CHAPEL EXERCISES
10:30 THIS MORNING
MEMORIAL HALL

The Daily Tar Heel

Report Circulation Complaints
TAR HEEL OFFICE
8:30-9:30 A. M.

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1929 | NUMBER 1

Fraternities Make Drastic Changes in Rushing Rules

No Rushing Allowed Until September 27; New Code Limits Season to 19 Days.

"Rushing Season," long known as the freshman's paradise, will be delayed this year for nearly two weeks. According to new rules adopted by the Inter-fraternity Council and the Faculty Committee on Fraternities, no rushing will be allowed until the 26th of Octoben.

Other changes almost as drastic mark the code adopted for 1929 by the fraternities. The hours of rushing are limited to the afternoon and early evening. No rushing is allowed before two P. M. and all rushees must be out of fraternity houses by nine P. M. However, Friday and Saturday evenings the period is lengthened until midnight.

Fraternity men are prohibited from accompanying freshmen away from Chapel Hill and from entertaining them away from the University. Conversation with the new men is prohibited except during the afternoon.

A feature of the new plan is the making of dates through the dean's office for the first two days. After September 28 the new men are allowed to choose for themselves.

The complete rules are as follows:

1. There shall be no rushing of any kind from the time that the freshmen arrive in Chapel Hill until one week after the first day of classes. (This first period of silence includes, then, what is commonly called "Freshman Week," in addition to the first week of classes).

2. The period of rushing shall extend from the beginning of the second week of classes (i.e., Sept. 27, 1929) to midnight, October 15; that is to say, a period of nineteen days.

3. There shall be a second period of silence extending from midnight, October 15, to 6 P. M. October 17.

4. Rushing shall be limited to the hours of 2 to 9 P. M., except on Friday and Saturday nights and the last night of the period of rushing (OCt. 15) when the time shall be extended to midnight.

5. On the first day of the Period of Silence, each fraternity shall submit a list of those whom they wish to bid through the secretary of the Inter-Fraternity Council to the Faculty Adviser on Fraternities.

6. On the second day of the period of silence the Faculty Adviser on Fraternities will summon every man who receives a bid to some convenient place selected by him, at which time each man shall appear alone before the adviser and any assistants whom the council may select to aid him and state in writing his first, second, and third choice of fraternities he would like to join, or may have reason to expect bids from. The adviser, after consulting the list of bids, shall then direct him to the house of the fraternity of his highest choice among those bidding him, but not informing him of any other bids he may have received, and putting him on his honor not to disclose to anyone his choice before arriving at the proper fraternity house and putting on the pledge button. The freshman's choice

(Continued on page two)

Opening Exercises This Morning

Formal exercises opening the University will take place in Memorial Hall this morning at ten-thirty o'clock. All eleven o'clock classes will meet at eleven-thirty in order that the students may attend the ceremonies.

President Chase will deliver the address. His subject had not been announced last night. The Carolina Tar Heel Orchestra will furnish music for the occasion.

The public is cordially invited to be present.

NATIVE TAR HEEL TO SUCCEED PROF PARKER DAGGETT

G. F. Bason Is New Head of Department of Electrical Engineering at University.

(By Lucy M. Cobb)

George Francis Bason, who today begins his work as the new head of the Department of Electrical Engineering in the University of North Carolina, is a native Tar Heel come home.

Professor Bason succeeds Prof. Parker H. Daggett, who resigned last spring to accept the deanship of the School of Engineering at Rutgers, the state university of New Jersey.

The Bason family has long been prominent in Piedmont and Western North Carolina. Professor Bason's people settled in Orange County in 1755.

Professor Bason is one of three children of the late Captain George F. Bason and Mrs. Fannie Badham Bason of Gastonia and Charlotte; the other two being William H. Bason of Raleigh, and Mrs. A. C. Burnham, wife of the well-known surgeon, Dr. A. C. Burnham of New York. Mrs. Burnham, is well remembered in this state as Miss Johnsie Bason, violinist of New York and Paris, but formerly teacher of violin in Red Springs Seminary, now Flora McDonald College.

The new University professor is a graduate of the Charlotte High School, having completed his course there under Professor Alex Graham. He was graduated from State College in Raleigh, in the class of 1908. Immediately after graduation he accepted a position with the Crocker-Wheeler Company of Ampere, N. J., and remained with this firm for six years, gaining while there diversified industrial experience. He started out with this firm as an apprentice and was elevated to the grade of engineer.

Entering Cornell University in 1914, he won the degree of mechanical engineer and master of science in electrical engineering. He was elected to the faculty of the Cornell Engineering School in 1915 and had been with the school until he resigned to come back to North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Bason have three daughters, Mary Burnham, Frances, and Johnsie, the latter being named for her charming aunt. Mrs. Bason is a woman of unusual charm and will be a social asset to the University community.

Triple Threat Ray

CAPTAIN FARRIS, GUARD

Some coaches are satisfied to have triple-threat backs, but Coach Collins goes them all one better by having a triple-threat guard, Ray Farris, captain of the 1929 Tar Heels. Ray hails from Charlotte and was a natural successor to Schwartz and Morehead, both Charlotte boys, as the Heels have been in the habit of selecting stars for captains in recent years.

Playmakers Plan Extensive Northern Tour this Winter

Work on Fall Productions to Begin Next Week; Trips through Eastern and Western Carolina Also Planned.

A two-week Northern tour on which engagements will be played in New York City, Morristown, Plainsfield, and Moorestown, in New Jersey, Baltimore, Md., and several other cities in Pennsylvania, Virginia, and Maryland will be one of the features of a busy schedule which has been arranged for the Carolina Playmakers for the present scholastic school year. Plans for the year, announced by Prof. Hubert C. Heffner, business manager and assistant director, call for the most strenuous schedule yet undertaken by the University folk drama group.

Prof. Frederick H. Koch, director of the Playmakers, who taught dramatic literature at the University of California during the summer, returned to the Hill the first of September. Work will begin September 25, just five days after the opening of classes for the Fall quarter, and from then on the Playmakers will be busy working on native folk plays, which will again make up the most of the program for the year.

In addition to the Northern tour, which will come from November 15 to December 1 and which will include the Thanksgiving holidays, the Playmakers will make a two-week tour of eastern North Carolina and the South during the latter part of February, and the same length tour of western North Carolina and Tennessee the last of April.

Six major performances are planned for Chapel Hill. There will be three folk playbills, two professional plays, one of which will be the annual Forest Theatre production, and a professional play by some outstanding little theatre group.

On three previous Northern tours the Playmakers have made such a name for themselves that the demand for them has been

(Continued on page six)

Buccaneer Notice

All men wishing to try out for the art and editorial staffs of the Buccaneer will meet in the Buccaneer office in the basement of the Alumni Building at 7:30 o'clock Monday night, September 23. All old men are urged to be present at this meeting.

CY EDSON,
Editor.

Dr. Edward Knight Writes New Volume

"Education in the United States" Written by Education Professor

Dr. Edgar W. Knight, professor of education in the University of North Carolina, has written a new book entitled "Education in the United States" which is winning highly favorable comment by prominent educators in this country and England. Leading colleges and universities have already adopted the book for use.

This book is Dr. Knight's third volume on the subject of American educational history, on which he is a recognized authority. His first book, "Public School Education in North Carolina," published in 1916 while he was on the faculty of Duke University, and his "Public Education in the South," which appeared in 1922, have remained the standard books on that subject.

Churches To Feed Freshmen Tonight

The Freshman Church suppers and receptions will be held this Friday night at 8 o'clock at all the churches of Chapel Hill with the exception of the Episcopal Church which will have a supper for Freshmen at 6:30.

All of the Freshmen are urged to attend these receptions in order to avail themselves of this opportunity of meeting their minister and fellow classmen of their denomination.

136th Session of University Commences Today with Chapel Exercises; All Classes Begin

Fraternity Notice

The Inter-Fraternity Council will hold its first meeting of the year this Friday night at 7:30 at the Coop. It is absolutely necessary that every fraternity have a representative at this meeting with a check to cover their bond of $100.00 in accordance with the new rules of rushing.

The Council is determined to strictly enforce the new Rushing Rules and every member of the council will be on the alert. At present there are several fraternities under suspicion.

LOCAL THEATRE INSTALLS MODERN SOUND EQUIPMENT

Western Electric System Was First Used Last Monday; Freshman Midnight Show Tonight.

Western Electric sound equipment, the finest machinery yet made to reproduce talking movies, was installed in the Carolina Theatre last week and made its debut on last Monday with the showing of "Charming Sinners." Extensive alterations have also been made in the decorating of the theatre to aid in reproduction of sound entertainments.

During the past two weeks the theatre has used many echo absorbing materials to aid in the improvement of its acoustics. The wall panels were inlined with a thick felt substance known as ozite, and a covering of this same substance has been placed back of the screen. Duventine, a cloth colored in blue and gold, decorates the outer surface of the masonite, which also absorbs sound. The whole interior of the theatre was painted with acoustical paint, containing ground asbestos.

Many alterations to the ventilating system of the house became necessary on the installation of Western Electric equipment. New fans of a noiseless type now replace the old and more noisy ones. A fan-house had to be constructed at the rear of the stage to house the new ventilating apparatus. A thick velvet carpet was added in the aisles so that patrons might move in and out more quietly. A new screen, considerably larger than the old one, replaces the former silver sheet.

Western Electric sound equipment has been installed in all the leading theatres in the Publix-Saenger and other chains of theatres, and projects Movietone and Vitaphone sound attractions.

A special midnight performance will be held tonight at eleven o'clock for the freshmen, and the feature picture will be "Fast Life" with Loretto Young and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. William Powell comes here Saturday in "The Green Murder Case," and "Fast Company" with Evelyn Brent and Jack Oakie is the attraction booked for Monday. The admission for the talkies is forty cents.

Enrollment This Year Expected To Be About Same as Last Year; Over 700 Freshmen Enrolled.

(By J. C. Williams)

Freshman Week, the period of orientation for new men at the University, began Monday with about 730 new men enrolled. It ended yesterday with the library tours and meetings with the deans of the different schools. Upperclassmen registered yesterday and the University gets underway this morning with all classes commencing. Chapel period will mark the formal opening of the 136th session.

Registration shows that the enrollment this year will be just about the same as during the same quarter last year despite the financial depression throughout the state. Y. M. C. A. statistics reveal the fact that more students are seeking aid this year than ever before.

Freshman Week was devoted to familiarizing the new men with the University. Under the guidance of upperclassmen and faculty members the freshmen were given physical examinations, instructions in the use of the library, English placement tests, student government lectures, and mental alertness tests.

The records of Dr. Lawson, director of Physical Education, show that the new men come from various sections of the country. Although the greater

(Continued on page six)

DIRECTOR PUBLIC WELFARE SCHOOL WRITES NEW BOOK

Dr. Howard W. Odum Writes "Wings On My Feet," Sequel to "Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder"; The New Volume Promises to Be Great Success.

Dr. Howard W. Odum, director of the University's school of Public Welfare, has produced another volume which promises to attain even greater success than his first great negro epic. The new book is entitled "Wings on My Feet," and is a sequel to "Rainbow Round My Shoulder."

"Rainbow Round My Shoulder" produced a storm of applause. The Baltimore Sun reviewed it as a triumph; H. L. Mencken called it "an epic in the grand manner, and one of the most eloquent ever produced in America"; and the New York World characterized is as "the most remarkable document of negro life."

The new work continues the story of "Black Ulysses" taking him to war as a member of the A. E. F. "Rainbow Round My Shoulder" carried him through his wanderings in forty states. Both are regarded as unusual portraitures done with remarkable faithfulness to negro nature and dialect.

Dr. Odum was born in Georgia and reared on a farm, and has gained an understanding of negro nature rivaled by few writers in the country. He is the author of a number of scholarly works in sociology and related fields, being one of the outstanding sociologists in this country.

155933

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except for the three intervals during Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Spring Holidays.

GLENN P. HOLDER ..... Editor
W. H. YARBOROUGH, JR., Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Business Mgr.

Two Species Of Frosh

In accordance with a custom established by an editor who was proud of his collegiate side whiskers and peg top trousers, the editorial glad hand has been extended to the new crop of freshmen every fall in the first Tar Heel of the school year.

We believe, however, that the 1929 edition of John Frosh neither needs nor deserves a welcoming editorial. If he possesses a desire for knowledge and a determination to secure it, nothing else is required. No ebullient editorial outburst could assist him materially in accustoming himself to campus life.

On the other hand, if the new material is another of the social leeches who are the bane of every college and university, he should receive no encouragement in establishing himself here. Providing that he survives the rigors of the scholastic requirements, which is unfortunately not unlikely, he will become another of the "crip" hunters who waste the taxpayers' money while they glide through the curriculum with a minimum of effort and a maximum of indolent enjoyment of the pleasant University existence.

The freshman with a purpose in attending college does not need a welcoming hand to assist him through the University's portals.

And Now the Inter-Fraternity Council

The Inter-fraternity Council has decreed that when Greek meets a prospective Greek during the first week after the commencement of classes that instead of the usual high-pressure sales talk that silence shall reign. For the first time in the history of fraternities at the University the very much bewildered frosh will be given a week of seven valuable days to acclimate themselves to an atmosphere foreign to what they have been used to. They will need every minute of it.

But the Tar Heel pauses to ask in its subtle way—How are the rules governing this altogether worthy but somewhat noble experiment, to be enforced, and just what body considers itself large enough and alert enough to police the campus and its environs looking toward enforcing the ruling? Is it to be supposed that when an older brother meets the kid brother who has just become a Carolina man, that they will pass in silence? Of course, Gentlemen, all of these questions are purely rhetorical, and the answer is NO.

The Inter-Fraternity Council has operated as an efficient organization during its existence, and we believe in its usefulness, but it has added another burden to the already heavily laden back of Old Man Honor System. Carolina men are honorable, and it would seem unusually so in view of the fact that a large majority of universities are abandoning the honor system in its entirity. The point we are making is that the Inter-Fraternity Council taxes the Honor System beyond need.

In our short contact with the University we have seen the arms of the Honor System stretched and stretched and it is our firm belief that it is plenty time to call a halt, and this fraternity rushing problem is the one to call it on. Let the Inter-Fraternity Council create the machinery to enforce their silence ruling or abandon it. The Honor System must be preserved, and any act which further burdens it aims at its destruction.—J. E. D.

Fraternities Make Drastic Changes in Rushing Rules

(Continued from page one)

as stated to the adviser shall be considered as final.

Penalties

7. In case a member of any fraternity violates in any way the rules regulating rushing (as defined in the by-laws) during the periods of silence, his fraternity shall be denied the privilege of pledging or initiating for the period of twelve months dating from the time of said violation, and shall also forfeit a One Hundred Dollar Bond which shall previously to any bidding of freshmen have been placed in the hands of the treasurer of the Inter-Fraternity Council at the opening of the fall quarter. In case any freshman violates any of the rushing regulations he renders himself permanently ineligible to join or be pledged by any fraternity at the University of North Carolina. Any pledging before the second period of silence shall have expired will not be legal and will not be binding on the freshman; it will furthermore incur the penalties named above as a violation of the rules. Penalties for violations of the by-laws by fraternity men and freshmen shall be determined by the Executive Committee of the Inter-Fraternity Council at the time of said violation.

Executive Committee

A committee of five from the Inter-Fraternity Council and two from the faculty, making seven in all, shall act on all cases of alleged violation of the regulations of the Inter-Fraternity Council, and their ruling shall be final. This committee shall have full power in carrying out the machinery of the rushing system.

By-Laws

1. Definition of Rushing—Rushing is defined as entertaining, engaging in social conversation, in written correspondence, or in any form of communication—direct of indirect—(except formal salutations) on the part of any member of a fraternity or any agent thereof. This holds for the evening meal laws.)

2. Rushing for the first two days (i.e., September 27th and 28th shall be done by invitation. During these two days rushing shall be restricted to fraternity houses. Cards will be distributed to the fraternities on which they are to write (one name to a card) the full name, the home, and in every possible case the local address of the freshman whom they wish to come to their houses these two days. These cards are to be handed to the Dean of Students through the secretary of the Inter-Fraternity Council by noon, September 25. A standard invitation will then be delivered to each freshman for every card received, these invitations requesting that the freshman visit the various houses, at least once during the two days. Each freshman must visit each fraternity from which he has received an invitation, if only for a few minutes, and failure to do so will be considered a violation of the rushing regulations, the penalty therefor to be determined by the Executive Committee of the Council. Fraternities shall be at liberty to make dates for the remainder of the season after these two days shall have passed.

3. No freshman who rooms with an upperclassman who is a member or a pledge of any fraternity, shall be allowed to join or be pledged by the fraternity with which his roommate is affiliated until the second week of the winter-quarter, 1930. Freshmen shall be allowed to make changes in their rooming quarters up to and through September 21, without incurring the said penalty, should they find themselves rooming with fraternity men against their wishes. In other words, this regulation goes into effect September 22.

4. There shall be no rushing of freshmen by fraternities at meals. The breakfast and lunch hours are covered by the period of silence, and the evening meal period shall be considered as being under the limitations imposed by the period of silence.

5. No fraternity man will be allowed to accompany a freshman out of Chapel Hill at any time, and there shall be no rushing of freshmen away from Chapel Hill.

6. No fraternity man will be allowed to pay for any entertainment of freshmen in or out of Chapel Hill.

7. During the periods of silence, every freshman is considered on his honor not to discuss the subject of fraternities or fraternity matters with anyone else, another freshman, a member of any fraternity, or any agent thereof; further, as has been stated above, when he is summoned before the adviser to receive his bid he must, on his honor, remain absolutely silent about the choice he made before the adviser until he has reached the house of the fraternity of his selection and has there received his pledge button.

8. Every fraternity man shall be considered on his honor to see that the regulations are are faithfully kept, and to report violations of the same to the chairman of the Inter-Fraternity Council Executive Committee.

9. The term "freshman" or "new man" in the above regulations and articles includes freshmen and transfers from other institutions. Upperclassmen, or men who have previously attended the University of North Carolina, may be pledged at any time after the opening of school in the fall. Men who have attended the University of North Carolina only in summer school shall have the same status as freshmen entering the University for the first time.

10. When the freshmen assemble to receive their bids from the faculty adviser, three members of the Executive Committee will be present to help in carrying out the machinery of the system, and to make sure that the freshmen conduct themselves as prescribed in the regulations.

11. In the order that this system may prove a success, the cooperation of every fraternity man and freshman is essential. It shall be the duty of every member of the Inter-Fraternity Council to see that all members of his chapter are properly informed concerning this system, and that they obey it in spirit as well as in letter. Any question as to interpretation is to be decided by the Inter-Fraternity Council.

The term "rushing season" is used to designate the period beginning with the first day of freshman week and ending at 6 P. M. October 17. During this period there shall be a rigid period of silence except for the indicated hours in the nineteen days of actual rushing.

Notice, Debaters

The following rules passed in the final session of the Debate Council last Spring become effective today, the beginning of the Fall Quarter of 1929-30:

1. The gold monogram shall be granted regularly for representing the University in two or more intercollegiate debates.

2. The monogram shall be granted for participation in less than two contests only in case the participant secures the recommendation of the president of the Debate Council and the unanimous vote of the remaining members thereof.

3. Freshmen shall be eligible for varsity competition.

J. C. WILLIAMS,
Pres. Debate Council.

55 Students Selected As Swain Hall Waiters

Fifty-five boys from virtually every section of the state have been announced on the list of University students awarded waiterships in Swain Hall, the University dining hall, to help defray their college expenses this year.

The assignments have been made and announced by the Self Help Bureau of the University Y. M. C. A. from 200 applicants. The Bureau, headed by Grady Leonard, each year assists hundreds of boys in finding jobs to help pay their way through college.

Thirty of the men assigned jobs will be coming to the University for the first time, and twenty-five will be returning as upperclassmen.

This country is really getting drier. We mean there hasn't been much rain for a long time.—Judge.

WATCH THOSE TAR HEELS GO!

A Glad Welcome and the Best Sandwiches in Town Await You at Harry's Carolina Grill

Sandwiches — Delicatessen

OPEN ALL HOURS

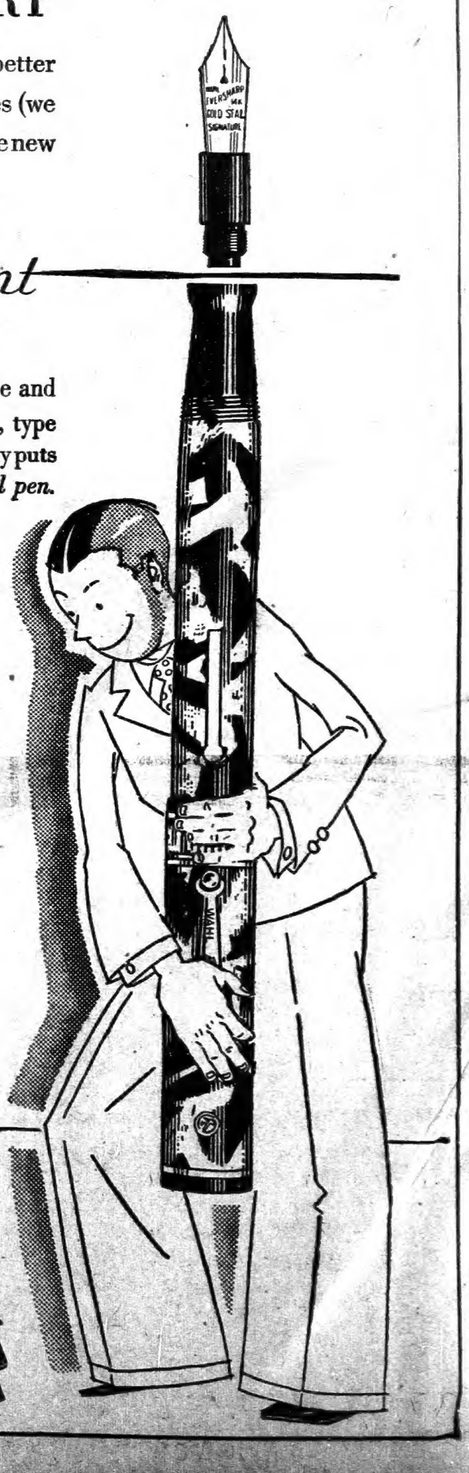
This ad would never have been written if every student were an old student, for they know our sandwiches. There are 700 new students, though, and they have yet to learn. So we take this opportunity of welcoming them to the Hill and inviting them around. Try our sandwiches once and you'll be a regular customer.

A CORDIAL WELCOME TO STUDENTS NEW AND OLD

Stetson "D"

Nationally Known — Justly Famous

Clothing and Furnishings for College Men



Start the year with a new WAHL-EVERSHARP

You'll take better notes—you'll write better themes—you may even make better grades (we can't guarantee that)—if you have one of the new

WAHL-EVERSHARP Personal-Point FOUNTAIN PENS

You select the point that fits your writing style and hand—you choose the holder of your color, type and size—then the dealer instantly, permanently puts the two together—and makes your personal pen.

And speaking of Wahl-Eversharp—of course you need the pencil, it's the standard of the world.

PRESS TO ISSUE 10 NEW VOLUMES

Two Volumes Will Be Valuable Historical Contributions; Three on Negro Folklore.

The University of North Carolina Press announced today that it is to issue ten new books this fall and winter.

This will bring the total number of volumes issued by the Press since its organization in 1922 to 70.

Some of the books are ready for release now. The others will be published between now and Christmas.

Two of the new books promise to be notable contributions to history. They are "The Virginia Plutarch," by Philip Alexander Bruce, eminent Southern historian, and "The Life of Miranda," by William Spence Robertson, University of Illinois professor and an authority on Spanish-American history.

Mr. Bruce's book will be released by October 15, and Mr. Robertson's by October 30.

Recognized as an authority in his field, especially in his studies of colonial times, Mr. Bruce in this new volume presents intimate reviews of the lives of 35 famous sons of Virginia. It is the biographical story of the Old Dominion in the light of its contribution to the greatness of America. He writes with a full sense of their individual and national importance. There are two volumes and they are illustrated.

A noted authority on Spanish-American history, Professor Robertson has unearthed some new documents, from which he draws heavily, and which are expected to throw a new light on the colorful Francisco de Miranda, participator in three revolutions in as many hemispheres.

Three of the volumes deal with Negro folk lore, for which the University Press has become widely known. By titles they are "Black Roadways in Jamaica," by Martha W. Beckwith of the Vassar Folklore Foundation, which throws new light on the folk beliefs of Jamaica Negroes; "The Tree Named John," by John B. Sale, a Mississipian, with silhouettes by Joseph C. Jones; and "John Henry," by Prof. Guy B. Johnson, of the University's Institute for Research in Social Science, previously collaborated with Howard W. Odum in "The Negro and His Songs" and "Negro Workaday Songs."

Dean Royster To Be in Europe for Year's Absence

Dr. James F. Royster, Dean of the Graduate School and head of the Department of English in the University of North Carolina, is at present in Europe, where he has accepted an appointment as Director of the American University Union in Great Britain for this scholastic year. The University trustees have granted Dr. Royster a leave of absence for the period of a year.

Dr. Royster's long interest in English literature, his contributions to it, and his editorship of the Journal of Philology, which is read among the students of English literature, both in America and England, make him exceptionally well qualified for the directorship of the Union.

You can always keep the kid from reading a vile modern book by telling him it is instructive.—Robert Quillen.

Chain commercial establishments are all right in their way, but these chain prison riots are all to the bad.—Savannah Morning News.

Magazine Editor Issues Call

Editor of the Carolina Magazine, John Mebane, requests that all students interested in writing for the literary publication meet with him for a few minutes in the Tar Heel office, basement of Alumni Building, Sunday night at eight o'clock.

At this time plans for the supplement and editorial placements will be discussed. It is not necessary to have had previous work on the magazine in order to contribute. All students who expect to contribute at any time during the year are expected to be present at this time.

FOR RENT—TO WOMAN

Furnished room; steam heat; garage. 238 Macaulay St., 2nd floor.

On Display

THE NEW FALL LINE
of Sharkskins, Travelwear and the Finest Worsteds

Tailored up in Authentic Style to Your Individual Measure

at $29.50 $34.50

Stetson

Free Valet Service

Welcome Back

We'll Be Glad to Have You Come in and Inspect Our New Line of

Made-to-Measure Suits and Topcoats

A Complete Line also of McGregor Sweaters, Hose and Socks

Pajamas Shirts
Varsity & Alligator Slickers
Hats — Caps — Neckwear

Jack Lipman's University Shop

Meet me at

Sutton's Drug Store

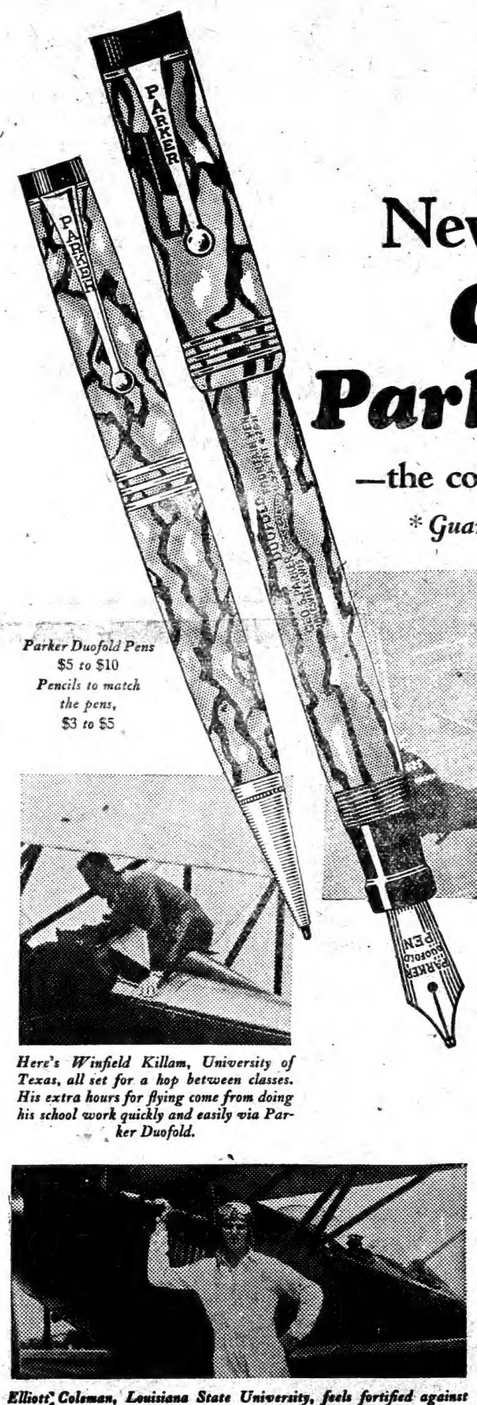
The Students' Drug Store

MEET THE GLOBE MAN!

THE "GLOBE MAN" IS COMING!

September 23 and 24

Semi-annual showing of FABRICS AND FASHIONS



Woolens will be shown in full length drapes.

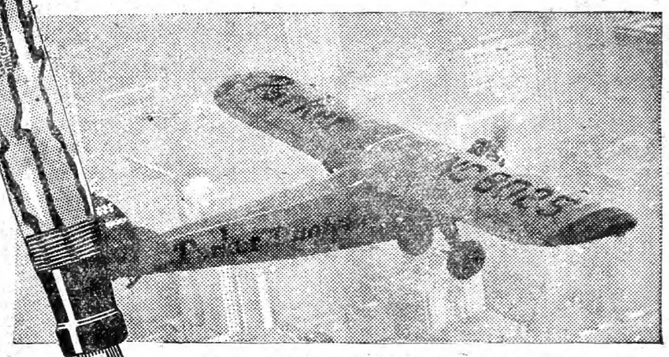
Orders will be accepted for immediate or future delivery. Measures taken scientifically.

THIS EXHIBIT IS AUTHORIZED BY

THE GLOBE TAILORING CO.
CINCINNATI
Makers of "Needle-Molded" Clothes

SOL LIPMAN

For a Flying Start in the New School Term



Choose a Parker Duofold

—the college favorite by actual census

* Guaranteed Forever Against All Defects

Parker Duofold Pens $5 to $10
Pencils to match the pens, $3 to $5

Here's Winfield Killam, University of Texas, all set for a hop between classes. His extra hours for flying come from doing his school work quickly and easily via Parker Duofold.

Christened "Parker Duofold" by Amelia Earhart, the first trans-Atlantic woman flyer, this 5-Passenger Fairchild Monoplane has, in the past 9 months, given flights to 6,200 Parker dealers and college students. This fall it will continue its tour among the colleges of America.

Elliott Coleman, Louisiana State University, feels fortified against adverse flying conditions when in his Command-aire plane. Likewise, he feels fortified against the stiffest exams when he grasps his trusty Parker Duofold Pen.

Here are Bill Banker, Tulane's All-American "Dixie Blizzard," and Ike Sewell, former captain of University of Texas' football team—all set for a hop in a Command-aire plane. When it comes to speedy writing, both are Parker Duofellows.

*To prove Parker Duofold is a pen of lifelong perfection, we offer to make good any defect, provided complete pen is sent by the owner direct to the factory with 10c for return postage and insurance.

Now numbers of colleges have their flying clubs and landing fields—but the thing that students like best to pilot through their studies is the light-flying Parker Duofold Pen that leaps to its work like a dart and writes with Pressureless Touch.

Pressureless Touch is Geo. S. Parker's 47th Improvement, combining capillary attraction with gravity feed.

A census of pens in 13 technical schools disclosed that Parker leads in popularity 2 to 1. It was voted the favorite by students in 55 colleges. And a nation-wide poll conducted by the Library Bureau proved Parker the preference by 25% above the second pen, and 48% above the third.

Non-breakable barrels of jewel-like, colorful Permanite, smartly black-tipped—28% lighter than rubber—holding 24% more ink than average, size for size.

Step to any good pen counter and select your point. Imitations can't deceive you if you look for the imprint, "Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD."

THE PARKER PEN COMPANY, Janesville, Wisconsin
Offices and Subsidiaries: New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Buffalo, Dallas, San Francisco; Toronto, Canada; London, England.

Parker Duofold $5-$7-$10

Victor Record Release Today

WELCOME! NEW STUDENTS!

STUDENTS' SUPPLY STORE
Everything in Stationery

Faxon Loose Leaf Student Notebooks $1.00 Complete

136th Session of University Commences Today

(Continued from page one)

part of the 730 are residents of North Carolina, quite a few hail from New York, Georgia, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Iowa, Virginia, Massachusetts, and the District of Columbia.

Upperclassmen and professional students registered Thursday September 19. Due to the fact that an unusually large number have transferred here from other institutions in the state and elsewhere, the enrollment of upperclassmen and graduate students is considerably larger than last year. On the other hand, the freshman enrollment is slightly smaller than last year. This latter fact is attributed to the prevalence of hard times.

Already the results of the orientation period are in evidence. In many cases the all-important high school graduate has become the meek and insignificant freshman who stands with mouth agape as he gazes with speechless wonder at the mysteries of higher education. The attempt to blend in a cosmopolitan University these men who come from widely scattered localities and walks of life was interesting and colorful.

Today marks the beginning of the 136th year of the University of North Carolina, which is the oldest state university in the United States in point of operation. Provision for its establishment was made in the constitution of 1776, and it was chartered in 1789. It was opened for the matriculation of students in 1775.

Beginning with 41 students in 1795 the University has grown to its present enrollment and position of prominence among institutions of higher learning. The greater part of this material growth has taken place, however, in the last fifteen years, the student body, resident and non-resident having reached a yearly total of 6,000.

Freshman Week was initiated into the regular program of the University within recent years to meet the needs arising from this growth. The freshman who came to the University of North Carolina a half-century ago found little difficulty in adjusting himself to his surroundings, for the campus of that day represented an almost neglible part of the present campus. Curriculum complications were few. Indeed, the University had just begun to grow into the fulfilment of its historic mission.

Now that the orientation period is over the freshman is more nearly fitted to meet the problems which confront the University man. More important than this, however, is the fact that he is capable of meeting them as University men should.

Hence Freshman Week has speedily become a part of the University itself.

Playmakers Plan Extensive Northern Tour This Winter

(Continued from page one)

great. Cleveland and Cincinnati, Ohio, both have made strong bids for appearances, but Prof. Heffner in arranging the tour found it impossible to include the Ohio cities due to limitations of time. The Ford Hall Forum has also requested performances, and a number of cities throughout Virginia and Pennsylvania. A number of Florida cities have requested dates on this year's Southern tour, and Prof. Heffner hopes to make arrangements to extend the Southern tour into the state of sunshine this year.

FOR RENT

For rent: 10-room house with steam heat and hardwood floors. Especially suitable for fraternity or a two-family apartment. Located on Pritchard Ave. just off Rosemary. Write or see Ava Crawford, Teer, N. C.

IN the college tempo.
A pen and pencil of subtle iridescent beauty and unending serviceability. The new Conklin Endura Supernal Pearl and Black will help make school days successful and campus memories perpetual. The pens $6 and $8. The pencils $4 and $4.50. Other Conklin Endura pens in modern color combinations at $5 and $7. Pencils to match $3.50 and $4. Identify a Conklin Endura by the annular lines in contrasting color on cap and barrel.

SUPERNAL PEARL AND BLACK

Conklin pens $3.50 and more. Conklin pencils $1 & more. Conklin desk sets $6 and more. All colors—many models. Not obtainable in static stores.

The Conklin Pen Company
TOLEDO, OHIO
New York Chicago San Francisco

Conklin ENDURA
Service unconditionally and perpetually guaranteed

Welcome Boys

Drop in and take a look at the new Arrow Blue Shirts — Varsity Underwear — Sweaters
Sweat Shirts — Walkover Shoes

Make a trade home where you find the best, for just a little bit less. We appreciate your patronage and meet you on the square.

BLANKETS — SHEETS — TOWELS

Andrews-Henninger Co.
Jack Andrews' Department

Just A Tip

For soles that will stand the wear of Carolina's Campus—
Get Your Shoes Fixed
--at-- Lacock's
Shoe Shop

BOARD AT

Miss Pickens' Dining Hall

FORMERLY MRS. DANIEL'S

Best of Food — Reasonable Rates

Adjoining Campus

TRY OUR DELICIOUS CREAM WAFFLES AND HOT CAKES

Welcome

TRY ONE OF OUR REGULAR DINNERS
40c

Carolina Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors and Faculty.

We Welcome You Back on the Hill after an Enjoyable Summer Vacation.

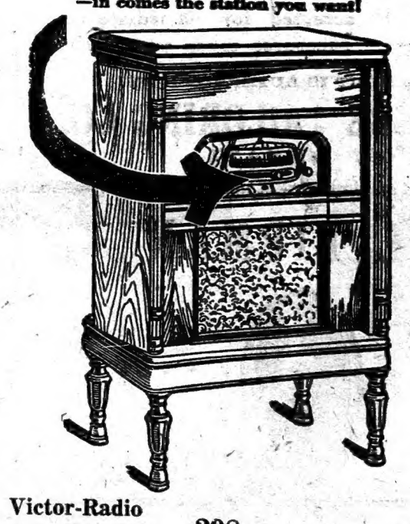
For the better service and convenience of Carolina men, we have added to our business a Coffee Shop counter and tables where we can serve you with home-cooked meals at all times.

Try Us Once and You Will Make Our Coffee Shop Counter Your Home for Meals.

Carolina Confectionery
AND
Coffee Shop

The same fountain service with the best of drinks as usual

New Shipment of the Latest Styles of Pipes



AT

University Book & Stationery Co.

(SUTTON BUILDING)
Next to Sutton's Drug Store

new Victor-Radio only $178
Micro-Synchronous

new Victor-Radio with ELECTROLA only $298

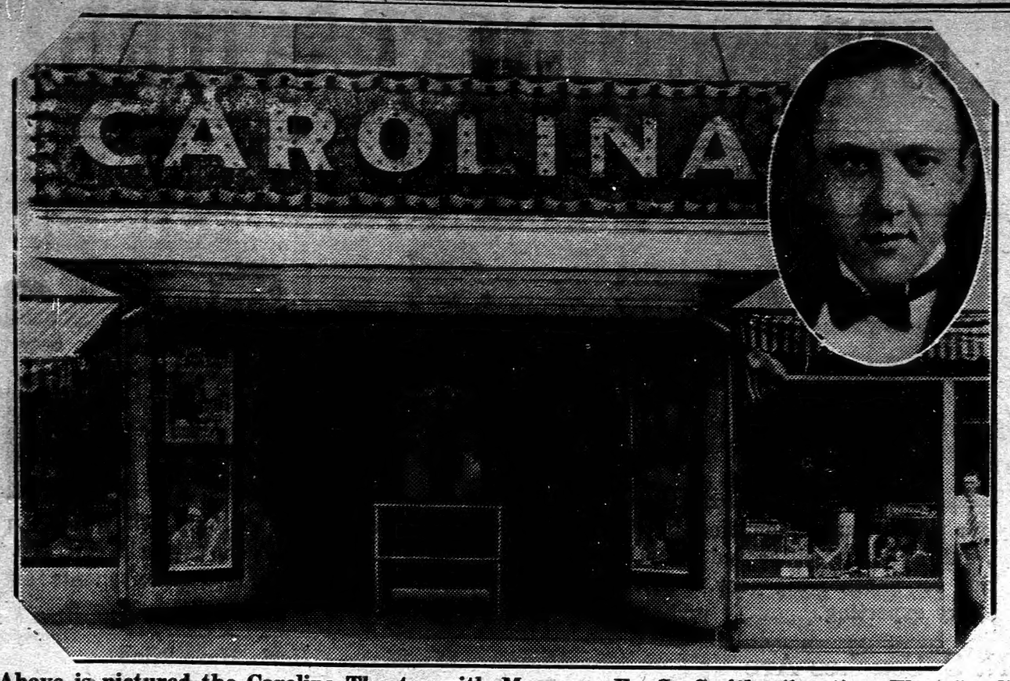
Just slide the knob to right or left—in comes the station you want!

The whole town is talking about our Victor demonstrations. These astounding new micro-synchronous instruments are going like wildfire.

Here at last is radio performance that matches the tone quality of the wonderful Orthophonic Records. Marvelous new dynamic speaker. Volume to fill largest room—controlled at a touch. Small, compact, exquisite cabinets.

Whether you have a radio or not, if you love music, come in and hear Victor-Radio. Convenient easy terms. Unfailing courtesy.

Don't wait! Come in Today!



Victor-Radio Console R-32 298

Victor-Radio-Electrola RE-45 $178

Micro-Synchronous radio!

Above is pictured the Carolina Theatre with Manager E. C. Smith (inset). The Carolina Theatre has recently installed one of the best sound machines in the state. Since the reopening of the show with the Vitaphone the Carolina has drawn a large number of patrons from neighboring towns.

Summer School Has Record Enrollment

The enrollment for the second term of the University Summer School reached 911 and set a new high record for students enrolled for a second session of Summer school. The enrollment for the second term last summer was 905.

A large percentage of the 911 enrolled remained over from the first session, at which 75.2 percent of the students were teachers. Director N. W. Walker and other officials were highly pleased that so many teachers took advantage of the whole twelve weeks' instruction.

"MODERN WEEK" CELEBRATION ON IN CHAPEL HILL

Along with the University's celebration this week of the opening of its 136th session, Chapel Hill merchants are celebrating what is being called "Modern Week."

The occasion marks the installation of a splendid new vitaphone at the Carolina Theatre, bringing Broadway and Chapel Hill just one step nearer together. The idea is to show the folks from nearby towns that Chapel Hill is the ideal place to come to shop or find amusement.

The town is decorated like a Thanksgiving turkey, and everything is in order for a very modern celebration of Modern Week.

E. Carrington Smith, manager of the Carolina Theatre and the leading spirit in the enterprise, has booked a special run of feature Vitaphone attractions of the first calibre for the week's entertainment.

The merchants are cooperating to the fullest extent with elaborate window displays, with sales and "specials."

Mayor Zeb Council has issued a special proclamation setting forth the week as "Modern Week." Cordial invitations have been extended to citizens of all the surrounding trade territory to visit the town. The merchants have advertised so much that this week's Chapel Hill Weekly grew from four to 12 pages, and the Modern Week edition is being distributed throughout the surrounding territory by aeroplane.

Chapel Hill, long recognized as a leading intellectual center of the country, is getting on the map in another way. It's becoming a modern trade center, and if you don't believe that, say the merchants, come and see for yourself.

IF YOU RECEIVED THE LETTERS you write

Would you be proud of them or just a bit sheepish? What about the appearance of the envelope—the paper? Would they make you want to read the letter itself?

Old Hampshire Stationery has that ability—it impels one to read the message. It is aristocratic, rich, substantial. It makes a letter stand out of the crowd.

Old Hampshire Stationery

Sold in Chapel Hill by Sutton & Alderman

SAFETY SKRIP. Successor to ink. 50c. Refills, 3 for 25c. Practically non-breakable, can't spill. Carry it to classes!

long ago

U. of N. C.

"went Sheaffer"

Like athletic leadership, sales leadership comes only with merit. Sheaffer leads in actual sales at 73 of the 119 foremost American universities and colleges*. To know why, just write with one at your Sheaffer dealer's. You'll be told that Sheaffer's Lifetime° is guaranteed for the rest of your life . . . against everything except loss. See the modern design of the Balanced Lifetime°, and experience its restful "feel". That's why it takes notes so swiftly in class and races through long themes without tiring the hand. Once you've used Sheaffer's Lifetime° pens and pencils, you'll never be satisfied with any others!

*This was proved by a disinterested organization whose sole purpose was to find the real pen leader. Documents covering this survey are available to anyone.

All fountain pens are guaranteed against defects, but Sheaffer's Lifetime° is guaranteed unconditionally for your life, and other Sheaffer products are forever guaranteed against defect in materials and workmanship. Green and black Lifetime° pens, $8.75; Ladies', $7.50 and $8.25. Black and Pearl DeLuxe, $10.00; Ladies', $8.50 and $9.50. Pencils, $5.00. Others lower.

At better stores everywhere

SHEAFFER'S

PENS·PENCILS·DESK SETS·SKRIP

W. A. SHEAFFER PEN COMPANY · FORT MADISON, IOWA, U. S. A.

°Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. ©W. A. S. P. Co., 1929

Scenes You'll Never Forget

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Loretta Young in the most thrilling love-nest scenes.

Farewell kiss of the young lovers in prison.

Unusual happenings in the love-nest tragedy.

You've read about the doings of the younger generation. Now you can see and hear them in—

FAST LIFE

with

DOUG. FAIRBANKS, Jr.
LORETTA YOUNG and CHESTER MORRIS

100% Talking Singing

Added Features

Pathe News

"Harmony Boys" Musical Act

Now Showing

SAT. "Green Murder Case"

CAROLINA THEATRE

MON. "Four Feathers"

CASH AND CARRY DRY CLEANING PRICES

50c SUIT 50c

The Same High Quality Cleaning Will Be Maintained and Our Delivery Will Cover the Entire Town.

PRICES:

Men's Suits—Cash and Carry 50c
Men's Overcoats—Cash and Carry 50c
Men's Pants—Cash and Carry 25c
Men's Coats—Cash and Carry 25c

LINEN SUITS AND WHITE FLANNELS—NO REDUCTION

DELIVERY PRICES SAME AS BEFORE

Carolina Dry Cleaners
167 E. Franklin Street
Telephone 5841

O'Kelly Tailoring Co.
110 N. Columbia Street
Telephone 3531

Johnson-Prevost Dry Cleaning Co.
207 E. Franklin Street
Telephone 7011

Welcome '33

And our many friends of past years. We are glad to have you back on the Hill. If you need anything for yourself or your room we shall be glad to show you our selections.

Berman's Department Store

NEXT TO THE CAROLINA THEATRE

FANS TO GET GLIMPSE OF HEELS' STRENGTH NEXT SATURDAY

Reserve Material Expected to Strengthen Team: Nine Letter Backs to Present Fast Offense

Little Can Be Learned of Wake Forest's Mystery Team and Collins Is Busy Preparing for An Uncertain Attack.

ONE WEEK from tomorrow football followers throughout the South will get a glimpse of what the 1929 Tar Heel eleven will be in action. During the past three weeks plenty of ink has been spread about what they ought to be. Sport writers from all over the South have been jubilant concerning the Tar Heels. Those who have seen them in action say that this year's team should be the best ever to represent Carolina.

The coaches, however, are saying little. They're putting some sixty odd aspirants through daily work-outs. Of that number there are lettermen for every position except center. Good freshman material and a reserve from last year's squad are available there.

Physically the squad is in good condition. Only two men have been out at all. Captain Ray Farris and Phil Jackson have been handicapped by illness, the former by tonsil trouble and the latter by gall stones. However, Jackson returned to active work early this week and Captain Farris is expected to be back in togs next week.

After two weeks of practice Coach Collins and his assistants, Cerney, Fetzer and Enright, strated scrimmage early this week. Various combinations have been used in these scrimmages and nothing definite has been settled about the line-up for the Demon Deacons clash here next week. However, the coaches have been running in signal practice what may be the starting team next Saturday. This eleven is composed altogether of vetrans with the exception of the pivot position. Holt and Fenner—ends, Adkins and Koenig—tackles, Farris and Eskew—guards, Lipscomb—center, Wyrick—quarter, Nash and Ward—halves, and Spaulding—full, give the Carolina mentors a letterman at every post except center and full back. Spaulding has seen two years of service but has never quite made his letter. Lipscomb was one of the reserve centers last fall.

There is an abundance of material in the backfield, but line veterans are scarce .Coach Collins can present three quartets of almost equal strength to Tar Heel opponents. Among the backs in togs this fall are Henry House and Pap Harden, full backs; Jim Maus, Jim Magner, Phil Jackson, Chuck Erickson, and Rip Slusser, half backs; and Shorty Branch and Jim Moore, quarters.

There is plenty of material for the flank positions, but little of it has been under fire. Among the reserves returning are Parsley, Nelson, and Tabb—ends; Dortch and Harper—tackles; and Hudson, a letterman from the 1928 squad, and Crew guards.

Carolina has ten games carded for this season. Half of these are listed for Kenan Stadium. Carolina opens with the Wake Forest Deacons here next Saturday. Following that game two trips are scheduled, one to College Park, M., for the Maryland scrap, and the other to Atlanta for the Tech clash. Homecoming day will be celebrated here October 19 with the Georgia game as a headliner. Two more games follow in the Stadium—V. P. I. coming down October 26 and State November 2. South Carolina and Davidson are played on foreign territory, while Virginia will end the home season here Thanksgiving. Duke follows on December 5, in Durham.

Carolina Mentor

Coach Chuck Collins (above) former Notre Dame star, is beginning his fourth year as head coach of football at Carolina.

CROSS-COUNTRY MEN BEGIN WORK

1928 Conference Champions Prepare for Stiff Season.

First call for the Varsity Cross-Country team has been issued and practice begins this afternoon at 3:30 on Emerson Field. Coach Ranson urges that all candidates for the 1929 team be present at this workout in order to round into shape for an early meet this fall.

In spite of the loss of last year's captain of cross-country, Henderson, and the absence of Fisher and Brown the 1929 team will have a wealth of material to choose from. Captain Barkley will lead a group of six lettermen back to the course among whom are: Baucom, Lowery, Wrenn, and Medford. In addition to these lettermen there will be such material as Crane, Simpson, Manning, Long, and Hamer while the last year's freshman team will furnish such men as Phoenix, Pierce, Anderson, Gilchrist, Draper, Farris, and Purser.

The high light of the 1929 cross-country season will be the Southern Conference meet which will be held at Chapel Hill for the second time in the past three years.

Out of the four Southern Conference Cross-Country meets that have been held Carolina has captured three of the wins and was not represented at the other meet. In 1925, when the meet was held at V. P. I., Carolina was not represented. U. N. C. took her first cross-country title in 1926 when the meet was held at Athens, Georgia, and followed it up the next year at Chapel Hill by duplicating the feat. This past year she made it a habit by winning for the third straight time at the meet in Atlanta.

Seven Mighty Good Men

Pictured above are seven reasons for the unusual amount of publicity given Carolina's prospects in football. They are Wyrick, Nash, House, Magner, Harden, Maus, and Erickson, all second year backs. They enjoyed a great year on the grid turf last fall and indications are that they are ready for another big year. When any of them are in Carolina's line-up opponents expect anything. They usually get what they're expecting.

HEELS TO MEET STIFF FOES IN COMING SEASON

Ten Games Listed for Carolina Gridmen; Eight Conference Teams to Be Played.

There don't appear to be any set-ups on the schedule that Graduate Manager Charlie Woollen and his colleagues of the Athletic Council have arranged for the 1929 edition of University of North Carolina gridmen.

Ten games are to be played, and eight of them are with Southern Conference teams. Wake Forest and Davidson are the only non-Conference teams to be met. There will be five games at home and five away.

The Tar Heels will open the season against Wake Forest in Kenan Stadium here on Saturday, September 28, after a four-weeks practice period. They will close the season in the annual game with Duke in Duke's new stadium in Durham.

The opening game with Wake Forest is expected to draw a large crowd. After losing to the Baptists for four successive years, the Tar Heels last year managed to throw off the jinx and defeated the Deacons to the tune of 65 to 0. This year the Deacons are expected to be much stronger, and there's no telling—they may pull another of the upsets for which they have become noted. The fans will be powerfully football hungry by the time this first game rolls around. Last year some 15,000 fans filed into Kenan Stadium to witness this game.

The other home games are with the University of Georgia on October 19, V. P. I. on October 26, N. C. State on November 2, and Virginia on November 28.

A great many North Carolinians are expected to go to Atlanta to attend the Carolina-Georgia Tech game there on Friday, October 11. On the following day, October 12, the University of Georgia will dedicate its new stadium in a game with Yale. This double menu is expected to prove a big drawing card for those who are anxious to see two mighty good football games. Plans are under way to run special trains to Atlanta for the occasion, and a number of pullman reservations already have been made.

Head Coach Chuck Collins began his season campaign September 2 with the opening of fall practice. Seventeen lettermen are back, with considerable reserve and freshman material of promise. There were nine letter backs in the list of 75 or 80 men who turned out for early practice. The main problem just now seems to lie in developing a hefty, stalwart line.

The complete schedule follows:

Sept. 28—Wake Forest at Chapel Hill.

Oct. 5—University of Maryland at Maryland.

Oct. 11—Georgia Tech at Atlanta.

Oct. 19—University of Ga. at Chapel Hill.

Oct. 26—V. P. I. at Chapel Hill.

Nov. 2—N. C. State at Chapel Hill.

Nov. 9—University of South Carolina at Columbia.

Nov. 16—Davidson at Davidson.

Nov. 28—University of Virginia at Chapel Hill.

Dec. 7—Duke at Durham.

3 N. C. Coaches Are Old Notre Dame Men

Three of Knute Rockne's alumni of the gridiron are teaching football at the University of North Carolina this fall. The Notre Dame trio is composed of Chuck Collins, Bill Cerney, and Rex Enright.

Head Coach Collins was an end on the championship Notre Dame team of 1924. Cerney was a teammate at halfback and Enright played fullback on the 1925 team.

Collins will center his attention on coaching the Tar Heel linemen. Cerney will coach the Tar Heel backs, and Enright will coach the freshmen.

Other coaches on this year's Tar Heel staff will be Athletic Director Bob Fetzer, a Davidson product, who is a veteran line coach; Jim Ashmore, from Illinois, who will help tutor the backs; Trainer Chuck Quinlan; and Freshman Coaches Grady Pritchard and Odell Sapp.

Odell Sapp, star end on Tar Heel football teams for three seasons and all-state the last two years, has been added to the coaching roster at the University of North Carolina, according to announcement today from Charles T. Woollen, Graduate Manager of Athletics.

Sapp will be assistant freshman football coach. He will also coach the freshman boxers and will help Freshman Coach Rex Enright with the baseball team. He will take the place of Lester Belding, former Iowa star, who goes this year to coach at Greensboro High.

The newcomer to the coaching force is one of few three lettermen the University has had in recent years and is well known in Tar Heel athletic circles. He has played three seasons at end on the football team, being twice a unanimous selection for all-state and prominently mentioned on all-southern picks, and has put in two seasons on the Tar Heel boxing and baseball teams.

Alumni To Get Choice Seats

University of North Carolina Alumni are being accorded special consideration in the distribution of tickets to the five big games the Tar Heels will play in Kenan Stadium this year. Application cards for tickets have just been mailed to all the University's 13,000 alumni, and reservations are being made before tickets are put on sale to outsiders.

Barkley

Minor Barkley, captain and star of the 1929 cross-country team at Carolina.

Many Games for N. C. Fans Listed

Carolina's football schedule was apparently made to suit the palates of Tar Heel sport fans. No less than seven of the ten games scheduled will be played in North Carolina. The only contests to be played on foreign territory are those with Maryland, Georgia Tech, and South Carolina.

With so many attractive games arranged at the home field, Kenan Stadium, the athletic authorities are planning to accomodate big crowds here this fall. Only once has the beautiful stadium been filled, but this fall all records should fall when the Heels meet Georgia and Virginia. However, the contests with State, V. P. I., and Wake Forest should also draw more than ten thousand to Chapel Hill.

Watch that Tar Heel team go.

Heels Have Nine Seniors Among Veterans

Nine of the sixteen veterans in Chuck Collins' training squad are Seniors and playing their third and final year of varsity football under Tar Heel colors. Their experience may mean much to this year's Tar Heel aggregation. The nine Seniors are Harden, fullback; Jackson, Ward and Maus, halfbacks; Farris and Eskew, guards; Adkins and Koenig, tackles; and Fenner, end.

Elmer Hall To Be With Playmakers

Elmer Hall is to take the place of Prof. Samuel Selden, technical director of the Carolina Playmakers, while the latter is away this year on leave of absence. Mr. Hall was with the Wharf Players at Provincetown, Mass., during the past summer. He has had a long and varied experience in technical work and is considered exceptionally well qualified for his new post. He is a former technical director for the well-known Boston Reperatory Theatre.

Professor Selden will be away all this year on leave of absence, to continue his studies in sketching, designing, and painting at Pratt Institute, which is one of the leading art schools in the country. He will resume his work with the Carolina Playmakers next summer.

Professor Selden, prior to beginning his studies at Pratt this Fall, was for the past summer the technical director of the Cape Playhouse at Dennis, Cape Cod, Mass. Howard Bailey, assistant business manager of the Playmakers, acted for the group and served as a member of the business staff during the summer, but will return to the Playmakers this Fall.

A Fellow Does Feel Different---- And Looks Different!

when he gets his work done at the University Barber Shop

Next to Sutton's Drug Store

Meeting Tar Heel Staff
7:30 SUNDAY NIGHT
TAR HEEL OFFICE

The Daily Tar Heel

Report Circulation Complaints
TAR HEEL OFFICE
8:30-9:30 A. M.

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1929 | NUMBER 2

University Plans Extensive Celebration For Home-Coming Week Beginning October 19

Dedication of Library, Carolina-Georgia Football Game, and Educational Conference Features Week's Celebration.

A program, extensive in its proportions, has been planned by the University of North Carolina in celebration of North Carolina Home-Coming Week, which begins Saturday, October 19. Among the many features of the celebration will be the dedication of the new library, the second annual Conference on Education, and the Carolina-Georgia football game.

Details of the program are being arranged rapidly and will be announced shortly. Invitations are being sent meanwhile not only to the librarians represented in the Southeastern Library Association, the North Carolina Library Association, the Citizen's Library Movement of North Carolina, but also to leaders in education, public affairs and civic interests, to alumni, and to other friends of the University.

Dedication of the new handsome library will take place at 10:30 Saturday morning with a speaker of national prominence to deliver the featured address. The Carolina-Georgia football game at 2:30 P. M. will be followed immediately by a reception to the University's guests at the new library; and in the evening the guests will be entertained with a special performance by the Carolina Playmakers.

The program on Sunday will be featured by Union services for all denominations in a general University convocation at which there will be heard a preacher of national reputation, and by a concert by the University Glee Club at 4 o'clock.

The first formal sessions of the Conference on Education will get under way Monday morning in conjunction with the Southeastern Library Association, the North Carolina Library Association, and the Citizen's Library Movement of North Carolina. The conference will be opened with a notable address and will be continued through Tuesday on the general subject of "Libraries and the South."

"The whole intent and purpose of these conferences," said President Chase, "is to bring together a body of informed and interested public opinion to help furnish intelligent leadership for the advancement of public education in the South. The whole South is interested and concerned in the proposition of school systems which will be adequate, judged by the best national standards; it is interested that these systems shall be based on the lines of sound policy and that the relations among different parts of the systems shall be properly worked out. Public education is a matter which must concern every thoughtful citizen. On its problems ought to be a meeting of minds, an opportunity for the exchange of information, the discussion of policies, the arousing of informed interest. It is for such purposes that the University has initiated and continued what it believes will be a series of conferences of growing importance."

Enrollment Larger for 1929

Contrary to expectations the enrollment for the fall quarter for this year comes within 53 of the high mark enrollment set in 1927 and exceeds by 75 the 1928 mark. Yesterday morning 2578 students had already registered as compared with the 1927 record of 2631.

It is expected that a large number of students are yet to register and will probably boost the total for this fall well above the high mark.

MANY FROSH SEEK N. C. PAJAMA CLUB

Cool Weather and Rain Dampened Pursuit of Summer School Club.

Expecting to find the pajama fad, initiated by W. O. Saunders of Elizabeth City, in full swing in Chapel Hill, the home of Louis Graves, who first suggested the idea, many freshmen included in their wardrobes loudly colored pajama suits, with belt loops, suspender buttons, and plenty of other accessories.

Desiring to become a "Carolina Man" as quickly as possible, these freshmen have been going over the campus, inquiring about the Pajama Club that was reported to have been organized here during the summer. And if Jupiter Pluvius had not kept his appointment with the opening of the University, doubtlessly they would already have had a pajama parade.

MAGAZINE PLANS EARLY EDITION

Editor Mebane Working Hard On First Issue.

Plans for The Carolina Magazine, literary supplement to The Daily Tar Heel have about been completed, announces editor John Mebane, and the first issue will appear sometime in the near future, the exact date having not yet been determined.

This year's magazine will appear twice monthly in the form of a literary supplement and will contain eight pages an issue. Practically the same type of material will be printed as has been used during the previous years of its existence. More space will be alloted to articles and book reviews and a number of new sections have been planned.

The entire student body is free to submit contributions. The staff has not been selected as yet, but there will be a meeting of all those students interested in writing for the magazine Sunday night at eight o'clock in the Tar Heel office, basement of Alumni building. At this time plans for the year will be discussed and the type of material which the editor expects to print will be taken up. This meeting will last for only a short while, and all students who are interested in writing are urged to be present.

Watch that Tar Heel team go.

Entertainment Program for 1929-1930

FALL
October 16, 1929	Isadora Duncan Dancers
November 22, 1929	The Jean Gros Marionettes (Matinee and Night)
December 3, 1929	Bertrand Russell
WINTER
January 8, 1930	The Ben Greet Players
January 30, 1930	William Beebe
March 6, 1930	Ratan Devi
SPRING
April 7, 1930	Helen Pugh
May 10, 1930	Cincinnati Chamber Orchestra
May, 19, 20 and 21, 1930	Lorado Taft

Student Committee Selects Varied Entertainments For Coming Year; First Oct. 16

Isadora Duncan Dancers To Present First Performance Here Soon; Bertrand Russell Also to Appear.

(By J. E. Dungan)

The Student Entertainment Committee of the University after a deliberation lasting several months, during which time it has had under consideration some forty or more programs, announces a season's bill of nine strong and unusually entertaining events.

To inaugurate the second year of the University Entertainment the committee has chosen the program offered by the managers of the Isadora Dancers, protegees of the world renowned and stellar dancer of a few years ago, which will come to Chapel Hill Wednesday October 16.

Two other programs will be presented during the fall quarter with three each for the winter and spring quarters. The Jean Gros Marionettes have been engaged for a matinee and an evening performance November 22, and Bertrand Russell, the English lecturer, will speak the night of December 3.

During the winter quarter, the campus will be regaled by the world famous Ben Greet Players who will present some of their Shakespearean productions for which they gained their fame. On the night of January 30, William Beebe, a Richard Halliburton of the sea, but of a more practical and scientific turn of mind, will tell the University audience something of his adventures while collecting deep sea life for a New York museum. Ratan Devi will furnish the entertainment to be given March 6.

Helen Pugh of Asheville, a pianist whose work is attracting the attention of musicians of the country, will offer a recital April 7. May 10 the Cincinnati Chamber Orchestra is scheduled to play for the students and other subscribers of the Entertainment series. Lorado Taft, an excellent speaker and a famous authority on art, will bring the season's bill to a close with a series of three lectures May 19, 20, and 21 on the field of art.

The first number, the Isadora Duncan Dancers, is an importation from Moscow, where Isadora Duncan trained the members of the troupe from their early childhood at a school which she established there. The eleven girls comprising the company were selected from the several hundred associated with the school.

So fascinating and impressive are these girls in the interpretation of the classic dances that the staid and conservative

(Continued on page four)

TAR HEEL TRY-OUTS

All men who wish to try out for the Tar Heel staff are asked to meet in the Tar Heel office, basement Alumni Building, Sunday night at 7:30.

All members of the staff who expect to remain this year will meet at the same time.

GLEE CLUB WILL TRY OUT SINGERS IN PERSON HALL

Professor Dyer, New Head of Music Department, To Conduct Tryouts This Morning at Nine O'clock.

The board of officers of the University Glee club in conjunction with Harold S. Dyer, new head of the music department, issued a call yesterday for candidates for positions on this year's glee club. At that time it was stated that due to losses through graduation and other reasons there will be a large number of places open to persons who have never been in the organization before.

Tryouts for positions in the club will begin at nine o'clock this morning in Person hall, the music building, and will continue during the rest of the week. The membership of the club last year met yesterday afternoon to formulate plans for an auspicious program this year.

The officers other than Mr. Dyer, who will serve as director of the organization, are: Frank Jacocks, president; Paul Scurlock, vice-president; Steve Lynch, secretary and Homer Lyons, manager.

Mrs. Woodburn To Be Member Music Staff This Year

Mrs. Grace Woodburn has been added to the Music faculty at the University of North Carolina and will do quite a bit of music work in cooperation with the Extension Division this year.

Before coming to the University of North Carolina Mrs. Woodburn was State Director of Music in Florida. She will aid Mr. Dyer in building up a wider interest in music in North Carolina and will be a leading figure in the music faculty.

Mrs. Woodburn will largely do field work by going out into various communities of the state and conducting schools of music for teachers.

Try-outs for Daily Tar Heel staff to be held Sunday night.

Dr. H. W. Chase's Talk On Education Features University's Opening

The President

President of University Says That Chief Objective Is Education; Chapel Exercises Mark Formal Beginning of 136th Session.

With the constant increase in extra-curricular activities in colleges and universities all over the country, students entering upon a career within the academic walls today should keep always in mind the fact that their chief mission is to get an education.

Such was the admonition that President Harry Woodburn Chase gave the University of North Carolina students yesterday as they set out upon a new year.

The formal opening marked the beginning of the 136th year of the oldest state university in America. The exercises were held in Memorial Hall, with Francis F. Bradshaw, Dean of Students, presiding. Dr. Chase delivered the address, and Rev. Eugene Olive, pastor of the Baptist church, conducted the devotional exercises. Appropriate musical selections were rendered by the Carolina Tar Heels orchestra, under the direction of Alex Mendenhall.

Welcoming both old and new students, Dr. Chase urged them to make the most of every opportunity for growth during the year.

Participation in social organizations, athletics, and other extra-curricular activities is fine and commendable, but students should bear in mind that their main objective, after all, in coming here is to get a college education.

Studies come first and should not be allowed to suffer because of participation in the various student activities, although the latter are important, Dr. Chase admonished.

"Don't live in a partial world, learn to live steadily and as a whole and not in the compartments and sections in which some of us are prone to pass our existence," he advised.

"Take part in athletics, join a fraternity, or take part in any of the numerous extra-curricular activities, if you wish, but don't forget that you are an individual and that youd own development is the main thing. Use your organization and work through it, but don't let is dominate your individuality.

"The tendency to be all alike is one of the unfortunate things about American colleges today.

"The real question you must face four years from now is whether you have a college education. It's entirely possible for a man to go through college and come out essentially an uneducated man. An educated man is one who makes some progress in understanding the world in which he is living."

"Your instructors can't force education down you, but the opportunity is here and it is your privilege and duty to grasp it."

Dr. Harry W. Chase, one of the South's foremost educators, featured the opening exercises of the University with a talk on student objectives.

MR. DYER TAKES CHARGE OF MUSIC STAFF THIS YEAR

Former Southwestern Man Succeeds Paul J. Weaver as Director.

Mr. Harold Dyer, of Southwestern College, Kansas, has taken over the duties of director of music at the University of North Carolina as successor to Paul J. Weaver who has been with the music department at U. N. C. for the past ten years.

For the past three years Mr. Dyer has been dean of the Choral Music at Southwestern College and has accomplished remarkable results in that field. He is accounted an authority in this field of the work and has written several books, among them being "The History of Choral Music in America," which is now in the process of publication. Prior to his position at Southwestern College Mr. Dyer was Dean of Teachers College of Wisconsin for nine years. In addition to these offices he has had quite a bit of experience in Symphony Orchestra Music.

Mr. Dyer has been one of the main factors in the development of Southwestern College as one of the finest schools of

(Continued on page four)

Local Airport To Give Show Sunday

The Chapel Hill airport, located two miles from the city, has planned a program of attractions for next Sunday, September 22, featuring Dick Hunter of Greensboro in a delayed parachute jump. The jump will take place in mid-afternoon from an altitude of 2,000 feet, and Hunter will fall several hundred feet before opening the parachute.

A bus will leave the Smoke Shop every hour carrying passengers to the field free of charge. Special rates have also been arranged for those wishing to take airplane rides, a penny a pound being charged for each ride.

Phi To Hold First Meeting Tuesday

The Philanthropic Assembly will hold its first meeting of the year next Tuesday night, September 24, at 7:15 o'clock. There will be business of considerable importance, including the installation of new officers.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $3.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN P. HOLDER ..... Editor
W. H. YARBOROUGH, JR., Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Business Mgr.

The Daily Tar Heel Makes Its Debut

Conceived in the sweat of a hastily assembled crew of news hounds and a trio of harrassed executives, the first issue of the Daily Tar Heel has made its appearance. There are necessarily numerous deficiencies in the paper, and they will continue until a more efficient staff organization can be perfected.

The chief function of the daily will be to bring about a closer unity among the various small groups which constitute the University. During the past few years there has been a steadily increasing tendency on the part of the students to drift into small cliques and groups which become to a great extent isolated from the remainder of the campus. Football games are practically the sole occasions upon which the mass of students meet in a compact body.

Through the college newspaper, imperfect as it may be when considered from a journalistic standpoint, the entire graduate and undergraduate bodies have an opportunity for an interchange of ideas and consideration of common problems. If the Daily Tar Heel succeeds in welding the various subdivisions of the University together to some extent by providing a medium for such an interchange of ideas and for the dissemination of accurate information about campus events, it will have fulfilled the purposes for which it was established.

The Duke Steps Out

Citizens of the state are fully aware of the fact that little Trinity College at Durham has had a new permanent and had her face lifted, as well as married herself into the richest family of the commonwealth.

Alumni of the University as well as active members of the student body, while frankly regretting that the recent flood of riches could not have gone into buildings needed at their school, harbor no jealousy or ill will whatsoever toward the Duke Devils. In fact, as citizens of the state they rejoice over the fact that there are now two great Carolina universities to lead the South.

The University, because of its traditions, history, and fine faculty will continue to serve the state and the South as long as there is a state. The rise of another powerful school can neither add or detract from the name of the institution founded by Colonel Davie so many long years ago.

The impression is current on the campus of our close rival that the recent acquisitions of Duke University have caused Carolina men to look with jaundiced eyes upon Durham's pride. It is a happy fact that taste in schools differs as in all other things. Duke will serve a real purpose in the state, that of offering deluxe education to the sons of our Carolinians who can afford it and desire it. The University, for its part, will continue in the future, as in the past, to make it possible for every man's son, no matter whether he be the son of a plumber or of a bank-president, to acquire the best practical and cultural education to be had anywhere in the United States.

J. E. DUNGAN.

Concerning The Newcomer

Among the pressing problems of the University of North Carolina none is more pertinent than "What to do with the freshman?" Owing to the fact that they are working with material which in great part denies any hope of the finished product, this and other American universities are progressively becoming inadequate.

Yet despite agitation from all sides the problem seems almost entirely incapable of any satisfactory solution. How can this well nigh universal ambition of going to college be wisely restricted? This is the question which needs to be answered. American colleges involve a cost per student which is in excess of tuition charges. In Freshman classes much of this is squandered on unfit human subjects.

Annually at the close of the Fall Quarter some forty percent of the Freshman class come to realize that they were never meant for college men—that they have left a life which they never should have left. We feel that such an elimination program seriously cripples the University and places a damper on its usefulness.

In the last analysis, the fault lies with the Freshman himself. He comes to Chapel Hill bent on an education—but vaguely so. Oftentimes, he comes to college merely because of the will of his parents.

We believe that no system other than a more rigid selection of each in-coming Freshman class is economically sound. The present practice of making the Freshman year an elimination period is clearly an instrument of great waste—a waste which seemingly knows no bounds.—J. C. W.

Another Sophomore Becomes Phi Beta Kappa In 2 Years

Winning membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic society, in two years instead of the three ordinarily required is the feat just performed by Robert Hoke Webb of Raleigh, N. C., a student at the University of North Carolina.

Young Webb's high achievement was revealed when the year's grades were turned into the University Registrar's office recently. The requirment for Phi Beta Kappa is eight University quarters of work, or two and two thirds years, with an average of 92.5 percent or better on all courses. Young Webb did the required work with the required grades in two years.

According to the records in Dean Addison Hibbard's office, there have been only two such cases in recent years, W. B. Shuford of Hickory, N. C., sharing the distinction with Webb.

He did his preparatory work at the St. Nicholas School in Raleigh and at Bell Buckle, entering the University in the fall of 1927. He has found time for many other activities to be a well-rounded student. He has participated in the activities of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, made his numeral in boxing, and has taken part in the social affairs of the German Club.

Report all circulation complaints to Tar Heel office between 8:30 and 9:00 A. M. on mornings of issue.

The Campus

By Joe Jones

When school closed last spring there was the usual scattering of students to the four winds, southward, northward, coastward and to the hinterlands. Some 2600 Tar Heels sought their native heath by bus, train, Ford, and thumnology. On the afternoon of the last day of exams the great northern trail—U. S. Highway No. 1—was strewn from Chapel Hill to New York with the nondescript argosies of U. N. C., the Yankee boys' collegiate flivers homeward bound.

The mightiest Tar Heel chariot on the road that day was Bull Durham's seven-passenger Caddie making a non-stop hop from Franklin street to Broadway. Bull himself, Orange county's best known taxi man, was under the wheel, while we seven undergraduates who had chartered the big buggy, were tastefully arranged among our luggage.

The Cadillac was road worthy and to spare; she made the trip from Sutton's Drug Store to the Jersey end of the Holland Tube, some 500 miles, in eighteen hours, including all refueling pauses for man and motor.

She left the Hill at 12:50 P. M., Thursday ,last day of exams. Before reaching Richmond she had overtaken four fordfuls of Yankee Tar Heels, including Bob Sartwell and his compatriots of Springfield, Mass., Harry Brainard of upstate New York, Fuchs and Switz of New York City, all in the full blue and white regalia of U. N. C.'s collegiate Fords. (Carolina should be quite well known in the North by now, what with the Playmakers, Gerald Johnson, the football team, Shep Strudwick, and the spring migration of U. N. C. Fords all taking up that way).

We got through Baltimore and up into the Delaware Valley shortly after mid-night. From there on it was extremely unpleasant riding due to the infernal cold and fog. Got through Phillie about 4 A. M., after asking a dozen milkmen the way out of that perplexing city. Passed through Princeton about seven, but we couldn't see a thing for the fog. And so on to Jersey City at 8:30, with the sun at last breaking through the fog and clouds, and poor Mr. Durham getting dark under the eyes, saying that he was about petered, wished he'd never started such a trip, and that he'd like to be back in Chapel Hill, instead of 500 miles away in a Hell of screaming North Jersey traffic.

So we bade him goodbye at this end of the Holland Tube, his face turned southward for the long lonely journey home. He said, "See you at the Hill next fall, boys." In a half hour we seven Tar Heels had gone our separate and obscure ways in the metropolis.

And now "next fall" has come, and we're back; back from the mountains, back from the cotton farms, from the cities, from the swamp country, from the coast, from the north, the south from Asheville, from Wilmington, from Florida and New York, from Tennessee and South Carolina, from Virginia; all drawn back to one small village by the invisible bonds which reach out from a great University to her sons and daughters, though they be wonders and astray to the corners of the earth.

Other endurance records don't impress the man whose neighbor has a pup that gets lonesome at night.—Boston Post.

Law Students Make Perfect Record on State Examination

Students from the University Law school who took the bar examination in August made a hundred percent record. Thirty University students took the test, regarded as one of the most difficult on record, and thirty passed.

Naturally Dean McCormick and the other members of the Law school faculty are pleased immensely. The showing is regarded all the more extraordinary when it is considered that 43 of the 135 candidates failed.

The record of this year, however, is but in keeping with the high averages maintained by University students in state bar examinations in the past. It is said that no graduate of the University Law school has ever failed to pass the bar. Sometimes two-year students (graduation requires three years) wishing to take the bar get the recommendation of the Law school, and while the records for all-time are not complete it is certain that no two-year student of recent years with the recommendation of the Law school has failed to pass the bar.

Methodist Student Bible Class Will Meet Sun. Morning

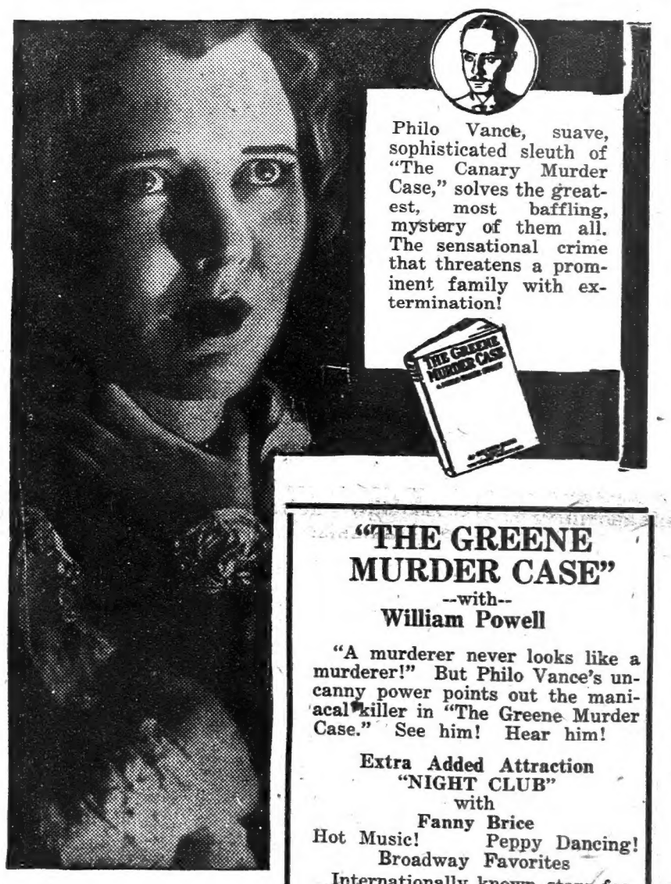
The Student Bible Classes will get under way at the Methodist church on Sunday morning at 9:45. Dr. W. S. Bernard, of the department of Classical Literature, will lecture to the upperclassmen. Professor Bernard has been notably successful in the leadership of this class.

The freshman class will hear Mr. J. G. Phillips, student pastor at the church.

Debate Council To Meet Monday Night

J. C. Williams, president of the Debate Council, announces that the first meeting of that group will take place at 7:15 Monday night in 210 Murphey Hall.

Every member of the council is urged to be present, as the matter of the proposed Carolina-British international debates is to be considered. In addition to this, the problem of completing the 1929-30 schedule of intercollegiate debates will be discussed by the group.



Dr. Bagby To Talk At Methodist Church

"The Origin of the Individual's Religion," will be the title of a lecture delivered by Dr. English Bagby at the forum hour conducted by the young people of the Methodist church. The subject will be treated from the psychological point of view, and will consider what it is in the individual's life with which a person deals when he accepts or rejects religion.

This is the first of a series of lectures to be given by well known psychologists. The hour is 7:00 P. M. next Sunday on the second floor at the Methodist church.

ROOM FOR RENT

Single room for man near campus. Phone 4521 at hours 8 to 9, or 2 to 2:30, or 7 to 7:30. Or inquire of Pugh or Pittard, Orange Printshop (phone 3781), at other hours.

"THE GREENE MURDER CASE"
--with--
William Powell

"A murderer never looks like a murderer!" But Philo Vance's uncanny power points out the maniacal killer in "The Greene Murder Case." See him! Hear him!

Extra Added Attraction
"NIGHT CLUB"
with Fanny Brice
Hot Music! Peppy Dancing!
Broadway Favorites

Internationally known stars featured in a Broadway night club performance with Jimmy Carr's famous Silver Slipper Orchestra.

Monday
"FOUR FEATHERS"

TODAY CAROLINA THEATRE ONLY

a PUBLIX-SAENGER THEATRE

Get your New Micro-Synchronous Victor Radio NOW

Play while you pay!

A small payment down, and we'll make delivery today.

Micro-synchronous—sensitive, balanced. 3 separate units, all accessible . . . interchangeable. Marvelous new dynamic speaker — loud or soft at the turn of a knob. Handsomest radio cabinets ever built.

Also the superb new Victor-Radio-Electrola.

The nation is turning to Victor-Radio!

Don't wait. come in today!

only $178.00
Victor-Radio Console R-32

The Greatest Sensation in Radio History

University Book and Stationery Co.
Next to Sutton's Drug Store
(SUTTON BUILDING)

Sports Editor Picks Deacons And Wild Cats As Winners In Grid Season's Openers Today

Football Campaign Gets Underway This Afternoon With Davidson-Elon and Wake Forest-Catawba Clashes.

(By Crawford MacKethan)

TWO OF North Carolina's Big Five elevens will heed the call of the pigskin this afternoon in the initial eyeopener for the dope bucket. While Wake Forest is answering the challenge of Catawba College, Daivdson will entertain western Carolina as Elon enters the Wildcats' lair.

According to past scores, reputations, expectations, and general opinion the two members of the Big Five, Davidson and Wake Forest, will emerge from their struggles today unscarred as yet in their journey through their 1929 schedules. However the pessimistic reports coming from their camps causes doubts and speculations to enter the minds of North Carolina football fans. However unless the Gods frown unkindly at crucial moments the status quo will remain and rumors for a dope upset in this annual clash will be stilled for another year.

Wake Forest suffered a severe blow when Johnny Cox was forced to leave school temporarily; the loss of their captain, who not only leads the team but is also rated as one of the strongest men, will possibly affect at least the size of the score this afternoon. Eustice Mills, an Apex lad, has been chosen to captain the Deacons in the absence of Cox. Much of the strength of the Deacons this year will come from the sophomore class; these men showed up well on last year's freshman crew and are all primed for their debut into college circles.

Very little can be said about the 'Cats this early in the season; in fact the past has proven that always it is a difficult task to steady the dope pail on Monk Younger's charges. It is hardly to be expected that the Wildcats will capture the state title this season; even the most optimistic name the year for this event as being still two years in the offing.

However, unless Davidson is far weaker than believed she will repeat her performance of last year, leaving Elon holding the hind end of a four touchdown score. Fans will watch closely this year the work of Brock, an understudy of the famous Bohannon-Pickney flankmen.

BUD ESKEW-GUARD

Bud Eskew is expected to be back at his old post at right guard on next Saturday when Wake Forest comes to the stadium to open the 1929 season. He has met much keen competition during the three weeks of practice but will no doubt get the call from Coach Collins.

Di Senate To Hold Meeting Tuesday

The president of the Dialectic Senate, J. C. Williams, announces that the first meeting of that organization will occur Tuesday night, September 24, in the Di Hall, New West Building. The meeting is called for 7:15 and will be open only to old members of the senate.

On the following Tuesday night, October 1, at the same hour the doors of the senate will be thrown open for the purpose of receiving new members.

After the new men have been received and the date of their initiation has been set the fall quarter officers will be formally installed.

St. Paul has decided against a combined auditorium and city hall. And yet, it would be handy for politicians and policemen to get to prize fights in bad weather.—Minneapolis Journal.

TAR BABIES OPEN WITH BLUE IMPS HERE OCTOBER 18

Games Scheduled With Duke, Maryland, Virginia, and State; Another to Be Added.

Limited to five games by Southern Conference rules the Carolina Tar Babies are preparing for another big season. Last year the yearlings went through the five contests without a defeat and copped the unofficial South Atlantic crown.

Four games are already listed for the Babies. Another is to be added. Duke, Maryland, Virginia, and State are to furnish the opposition for the Carolina youngsters, but no annoucement has been made of the fifth team.

The opening game is with Duke here October 18. Following the Blue Imp contest the Tar Babies have trips planned to College Park, Md., Charlottesville, Va., and Raleigh.

The four games already scheduled are:

Oct. 18—Duke at Chapel Hill.

Nov. 16—Maryland at College Park.

Nov. 23—Virginia at Charlottesville.

Nov. 30—N. C. State at Raleigh.

Pitt Team To Practice Here

The University of Pittsburgh football team, which is to play the Duke University Blue Devils October 5 in Duke's new stadium, will stop at the Carolina Inn here in Chapel Hill during their sojourn in the state, according to word received today by Irvin Gattman, manager of the Inn.

The Pitt team will arrive here on Thursday, October 3, and work out on one of the University gridirons the following day. There will be 40 members in the squad.

The Panthers will bring along their 50-piece band, which will also stop at the Inn.

The Tar Heels are to be away that week-end. They play Maryland at College Park. Carolina defeated Maryland last year, and naturally the Old Liners will be out for revenge.

Following the Maryland game the Tar Heels will journey to Atlanta to meet the national champions of Georgia Tech on Friday, October 11. The Carolina-Tech game will precede the Georgia-Yale game in Athens the next day. Then the Tar Heels will come back home to face Georgia in Kenan Stadium on Saturday, October 19.

AIR OF SECRECY RULES IN LOCAL FOOTBALL CAMP

Dame Rumor Has It That Collins Plans New Type of Attack; May Follow Knute Rockne.

An air of secrecy which descended on the Tar Heel camp yesterday gave wide credence to the rumor that the Tar Heels are working on an entirely new system of attack.

The squad drilled on fundamentals for two weeks while anybody who would looked on. Then came the first scrimmage and the devoting of much attention to the finer points of the game. And the second day of scrimmage spectators found a rope across the gates, and an inquisitive manager who wanted to know who they were and what they wanted. A few spectators are still being admitted, but only on proof of Tar Heel allegiance.

Just what the new attack will be has got the fans guessing. The driving Notre Dame attack is always spectacular and interesting, and the grid world is wondering if Chuck Collins is following Knute Rockne's lead and preparing to give the world a recognized and even more spectacular form of attack.

The Tar Heel workouts have been decreased from two to one a day with the opening of classwork, but the Tar Heel mentors are making good use of the two-hour afternoon periods each day.

There is scrimmage daily, with much of the time being used for drills at old plays with the coaches analyzing the defects, and for attention to the new stuff. All places are still open, with each scrimmage showing new combinations. It seems the Tar Heel lineup to face the Deacons is as uncertain as the system the Tar Heels may show this year.

"Stomping" Chorus In Talking Movie

The entire "stomping" chorus of the New York "Good News" musical comedy company, appears in the Paramount talking picture entitled, "Night Club," which comes to the Carolina theatre today.

The intricate dancing of these beautiful girls made a sensational hit in New York when the show first opened, and the "Varsity Drag" swept the country as a result.

Added to this the fact that the girls are led in their number by Bobbe Arnst, Ziegfeld beauty, who, at this writing, appears with Eddie Cantor in "Whoopee," one must realize that "Night Club" is no ordinary picture.

"Night Club" is the fifth of the series produced under the auspices of the Actors' Fund and Authors League of America, and a certain percentage of profits derived from the sale and exhibition of the pictures goes to the benefit fund of each organization. The story was prepared by Katherine Brush, who waived screen rights to her story, and the entire cast donated their services.

Besides the features mentioned, there are Pat Rooney and Pat Jr., Minnie Dupree, Anne Forrest, Betty Lawford, Geoffrey Kerr, Percy Helton, Ann Pennington, Patricia Collinge, June Walker, Vivienne Osborne, Mabelle Swor, Georgia Lerch, Adele Klaer, Dorothy Tennant, Fannie Brice, Tamera Geva and others in the cast.

"Push-in-the-Face," another of the series, and also a talking picture, will be presented on the same program.

FENTON ADKINS TACKLE

Fenton Adkins, 235-pound tackle, is expected to be a play-smearing cog in the Tar Heel defense and a certain hole-opener on the offense when Carolina clashes with the Demon Deacons' "mystery team" in Kenan Stadium next Saturday.

Athletic Association Opens Seat Sale for Deacon Game

Seats for the Carolina-Wake Forest football game here Saturday week, September 28, have been placed on sale by the Athletic Association and are going at a lively clip. They have been priced at $2. The game is to be called at 2:30 o'clock.

The game will give the fans their first opportunity to get a line on the new coaching system at Wake Forest and the new material at Carolina.

More than 12,000 saw the game here last year, and plans are being made to accomodate another big crowd this year.

If war and hell are synonymous why do the naughty abolish one and the good abolish the other?—San Francisco Chronicle.

DR. R. R. CLARK
Dentist
Over Bank of Chapel Hill
Phone 6251

You Are Cordially Invited to Come in and Hear the New Record Releases on our
New Victor Radio With Electròla
The latest advance in the World of Music

STUDENTS' SUPPLY STORE
Everything in Stationery

Meet me at
Sutton's Drug Store
The Students' Drug Store

The Tar Heel Club WELCOMES
Everybody for the Coming Year

PUNCTUATE YOUR DAY WITH

CAMELS

Let Camels be the commas and periods in the page of your daily activity Each Camel is a little interlude a high-spot of pleasure with which to punctuate your changing moods and thoughts It adds so much to the pleasure of life to pause now and then and say to yourself Time out for a Camel!

In Camel you get that extra measure of pleasure . . . because Camels are expertly blended from the choicest tobaccos grown . . . mild and mellow . . . cool and refreshing . . . their fragrance is always pleasant, indoors and out . . . and they do not tire the taste nor leave an after-taste.

© 1929, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Trio of Duncan Dancers Appearing Here

These three young Russian women are the stars of a troupe of eleven, all of whom are protegees of the late Isadora Duncan's Moscow school. They will appear here in a dance recital the evening of Wednesday, October 16.

DORMITORIES TO INSTALL OFFICES FOR ALL AGENTS

Agents and Peddlers Will Have Special Rooms for Displays.

No longer will students residing in dormitories be pestered by numerous agents, peddlers, and other itinerant merchants, during that part of the night usually set aside for study.

This year a room has been set aside in each dormitory for a dormitory "office". This room is rented to the boys who receive room rent for answering the telephone in the building. The position of responsibility now enjoyed by the telephone monitor is recompensed by the opportunity to make several dollars a week handling pressing, shoe repairing, and selling goods, such as pennants, stationery, and food in sealed packages.

This agency system has been installed because of the objections offered by dormitory residents to the almost continued disturbance caused by numerous agents, the loss of valuables stolen from the dormitories by outsiders, and the unsanitary conditions resulting from the establishment of several dormitory "stores" handling fruits, candies, drinks, and other goods creating smell and encouraging vermin.

The local health officer reported the unsanitary conditions prevailing last year, and the Carolina Dormitory Club, composed of presidents of the several dormitories, in company with the Department of Buildings and Grounds and the dean of students, began working on a plan to provide the necessary facilities for dormitory inhabitants without the accompanying evils.

This system will provide a real means of support for the two self-help men granted the monopoly in each dormitory. In stead of a host of men making a small amount of money out of the dormitory sales and service, 26 worthy students selected by the Self-Help Bureau and the dean of students will make practically all of their expenses. All outsiders are warned that no business can be carried on with the dormitory occupants except through these authorized "agents."

Student offenders will be punished by the Dormitory Governmental Organizations. Outsiders will be handled by the Department of Buildings.

This agency system is a new step, a wider extension of student dormitory government, and the outcome of the experiment will be watched with interest both at the University and other schools faced with dormitory problems.

BUSINESS STAFF NOTICE

A number of places are open on the business staff of the Daily Tar Heel. Old members and new men, preferably with some experience, are invited to attend the organization meeting, Tar Heel office, basement of Alumni Building, 9 o'clock Monday night.

M. R. ALEXANDER,
Business Manager.

Actress Praises Speaking Screen As Voice Medium

The speeches of players in talking pictures are more polished than those of stage actors.

Florence Eldridge, an actress with ten years' experience before the footlights, pays this tribute to sound motion pictures.

"It is a matter of concentration," she says.

"The motion picture," Miss Eldridge continues, "is photographed and recorded a scene at a time. Each scene is rehearsed many times before the final recording is made.

"It is obvious that in this method of procedure the player can give more attention to each individual speech than can the stage player, who must remember the lines of an entire play.

"The microphone, which seems to exaggerate faults in speech, acts as a spur to the screen player to perfect his lines," she adds.

Florence Eldridge has left the stage for the talking screen. Her latest picture role is in "The Greene Murder Case," which comes to the Carolina Theatre for a day's run beginning today and in which she plays the part of Sibella Greene, one of the members of the ill-fated Greene household. This is her fourth talking picture performance for Paramount.

MR. DYER TAKES CHARGE OF MUSIC THIS YEAR

(Continued from page one)

music in the country, and he sees wonderful prospects in the University of North Carolina's school of music. He thinks that within the next five years the University's school of music will be far enough advanced to give a teacher's degree in music.

Mr. Dyer is co-editor of several books of songs and has written a book and several articles on the "School Method of Teaching Music." Mr. Dyer is teaching a course this year on the History of Music and is also giving some private voice training. At present he is continuing along the line of Mr. Weaver's work and greatly appreciates the work that Mr. Weaver has been doing for the last ten years. Mr. Weaver and Mr. Dyer have been the warmest friends for quite a while and both are widely known in the music world of America.

Mr. Dyer says that the work Mr. Weaver has been doing has placed Carolina well up in the field of music in comparison with the other schools of music in the country. He thinks that the University will undoutedly have one of the best schools of music in the South within the next five years according to the prospects now in view. He says that the converting of the Old Library building into a new music building and by equiping it to the highest degree with first class material (which will be finished at least by Christmas) the University will have, without reservations, the finest musical situation in the South Atlantic States.

Mr. Dyer started into the field of music at an early age and is one of the pioneers of American music. He has studied in New York, Chicago, and Abroad and is undoutedly one of the best authorities in the South on music.

In the World War, Mr. Dyer played an important and very stormy role as Captain of the United States Intelligence department .

This is Mr. Dyer's first trip, for any length of time, to the South and he is greatly appreciating the atmosphere of North Carolina and especially that history surrounding the University's campus. At present Mr. Dyer and his wife and three children are staying at the Dan Grants' near the Gimghoul Castle.

Student Committee Selects Varied Entertainments

(Continued from page one)

Boston Transcript was moved to state: "Vital flesh at one rhythmic spirit disciplined abandon, fluent gesture, light quick harmony of motion-these the Isadora Duncan dancers gave."

Irma Duncan, who is one of the adopted daughters of the late Isadora Duncan, heads this delightful group of fascinating feminine personalities, including Maya, Lily, Tanya, Lola, Alexandra, Maria, Sonia, Manya, and "Little Tamara," a most intriguing and insouciant child of but fifteen who receives an oviation at the conclusion of each program, which she very much deserves.

Beside its classical numbers, each program ends with a group of modern Russian dances, given with the idea of picturing in terpsichore the new Russia.

If Miss Talley has the usual farm experiences, she'll soon be encountering notes not included in the chromatic scale.—Arkansas Gazette.

Buildings are torn down nowadays so soon after they are put up that a horned toad in a corner stone has hardly time to get to sleep.—New York Herald Tribune.

Take The Daily Tar Heel

Full Coverage on University and Chapel Hill News Alike

A Six-Day Paper With Magazine Supplement Every Other Sunday

At Your Door Without Fail Backed by a Complaint Service

$2 If You Send Your Check Now

$3 If You Pay Each Three Months

Don't Wait Do It Now!

The Daily Tar Heel

Meeting Tar Heel Staff
TONIGHT
TAR HEEL OFFICE

The Daily Tar Heel

Report Circulation Complaints
TAR HEEL OFFICE
8:30-9:30 A. M.

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1929 | NUMBER 3

1929 Student Body Represents Many States and 8 Countries

Not Only Many Countries but Almost Every Walk of Life Represented Here.

(By J. P. Huskins)

Representing almost every one of the United States and the foreign countries of Spain, Armenia, Persia, Siam, China, Venezuela, Italy, Cuba, and others, the present student body of the University appears to be the most cosmopolitan group that has ever assembled here.

Not only do they come from different countries but from all walks of life. Some have come as representatives of foreign governments, some on grants from beneficiary funds, and others have crossed the continent depending entirely on self-help as a means of support.

Prominent Venezuellan Enrolls

Dr. Raf Martinez-Ponte, from Caracas in Venezuela, South America, is here on a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation which is cooperating with the Venezuelian government in public health work. In the colleges in Venezuela there are no special courses in sanitary engineering. It was for this reason that he came to study American methods.

Dr. Martinez-Ponte holds a Doctor's' Degree in Physical and Mathematical Science, the highest degree in engineering that can be secured in his country. He comes here from the Universidad Central where he won his doctor's degree.

Cuba Well Represented

A. M. Perez, from Havana, Cuba, is enrolled as a freshman in the Electrical Engineering Department of the School of Engineering. Perez left Cuba to do his high school work in Spain before transferring to the University.

(Continued on page four)

Many Changes Made Here During Summer

Various and sundry changes have been made in the business district of Chapel Hill since the University closed its doors last spring. A very noticeable change has been wrought in the interior of Gooch's cafe. A new kitchen has been added to the old structure, and an attractive alcove is arranged in the rear. A fresh coat of paint covers the walls, and new seats have been installed at the counter. Another drawing card is the addition of four charming waitresses to the personnel.

The University Barber Shop also presents a very different appearance. The complete interior has been remodeled and painted. The personnel, however, remains unchanged, and Mack still predominates at the shine stand.

The improvements in Jack Lipman's Shop are as yet incomplete. A new floor has been laid, and a new front installed. Minor changes in the interior are yet to be made.

A cafe department has been added to the Carolina Confectionary store. Various other improvements have been made to the interior in anticipation of better business this year than ever before.

Another marked improvement is the installation of a Vitaphone at the Carolina Theatre, which has been drawing capacity audiences since the change.

TAR HEEL CALENDAR

Beginning with Tuesday's issue, the Daily Tar Heel will run a calendar of University events on the front page each day. Faculty and class meetings, meetings of organizations, events of general campus interest, and all athletic events will be included in the daily calendar.

Officals are asked to call the Tar Heel office, phone 3401, between 1:30 and 5:00 on the afternoon before publication in order to have complete information concerning the meetings of their organizations included in the calendar.

WILLIAMS MAKES PLANS FOR N. C. DEBATING SQUAD

Squad Plan to Be Continued This Year; Expected to Increase Interest.

To increase interest in debating and to improve the standard of debating at the University is the policy of the new Debate Council as outlined by J. C. Williams, president of the Council.

These aims are to be fulfilled by the squad system, which was inaugurated last year. The squad is composed only of men who are interested in debating and other forensic activities. Meetings are held on Thursday night of each week. In the last analysis, the squad is a discussion group which limits its discussions to the field of debating. The discussions of each meeting are lead by some faculty member who is an expert in his field. For all members of the squad, including those who do not care to participate in intercollegiate debates, this affords an excellent opportunity to become acquainted with current topics. The debate squad is intimately connected with the two campus literary societies. The function of the squad is to train

(Continued on page four)

Playmaker Tickets Will Be Sold Soon

Hubert Heffner, business manager and associate director of the Playmakers, announces that the sale of season tickets for the Playmaker season will start within the next few days. Tickets will be on sale at the Book Exchange, the Student's Supply Store, and through three salesmen.

So great has the audience grown that all performances will be given three nights this year instead of two as before. Only nine hundred season tickets will be sold while over a thousand seats will be available for the performances. Single admission for one performance will be $1 while the season ticket for seven shows is only $1.50.

It is requested that all who buy tickets leave their name and address in order that the Playmakers may send them notices of the shows. Reserved seats will be put up one week in advance for season ticket holders. Every effort will be made in order that the season ticket holder may secure, a desirable seat at each performance.

NOTED DIVINE TO PREACH HERE AT HOMECOMING WEEK

Dr. Shailer Mathews, Dean of Chicago Divinity School, To Take Part in Celebraton.

Dr. Shailer Mathews, Dean of the Divinity School in the University of Chicago, and noted as an educator, editor, and lecturer, has accepted an invitation to take part in the University's celebration of Home-Coming Week in October, President Harry W. Chase announced tonight.

The University celebration will be a part of the general state-wide celebration.

Dean Mathews will deliver a sermon at union services here Sunday night, October 20, in which all Chapel Hill denominations will take part. That afternoon there will be a concert by the University Glee Club.

The University celebration, it was stated tonight, will get underway Saturday, October 19, with the dedication of the new library that morning, the Georgia-Carolina football game that afternoon, and a performance by the Carolina Playmakers that night.

During the following week the University program will be featured by meetings of the Southern Conference on Education, the Southeastern Library Association, the North Carolina Library Association, and the Citizens' Library Movement of North Carolina.

Dean Mathews took his undergraduate work at Colby College, from which he was graduated in 1884, and pursued graduate work at the University of Berlin and at the Newton Theological Institute. Honorary degrees have been conferred on him by Colby, Oberlin, Brown, Miami University, and Pennsylvania College. He was a member of the faculty at Colby from 1889 to 1894.

Since 1908 he has been Dean of the School of Divinity in the University of Chicago. He is editor of "The World Today" and a noted lecturer, having delivered lecture series at a number of leading colleges and universities. He delivered the McNair lectures at the University of North Carolina in 1918. He is author of several books dealing with history and religion.

LITTLE THEATRE BOOK TO CARRY STORY OF KOCH

"Footlights Across America" Will Publish Story on Carolina Professor's Work in Playmaking.

Pioneering and creative work of Professor Frederick Koch, head of the dramatic department of the University of North Carolina and nationally known as father of the famous Carolina Playmakers, will be set forth and lauded in a new book which will soon be published for Kenneth MacGowan, New York City playwright, author and drama producer of note.

The new book will be entitled "Footlights Across America" and is hailed as the first authentic account of the new movement among the so-called "Little Theatres" in America. The book is the written result of Mr. MacGowan's extensive visit to all parts of the United States to study the development of the "Little Theatre." In this trip, he was commissioned by the Carnegie Foundation.

Mr. MacGowan and Professor Koch have been friends and in close contact with the work of each other for many years.

In the galley proof of the new volume seen here today, Mr. MacGowan praises the pioneering work of Professor Koch in the development especially of the "drama of locality," stating that Professor Koch's policy is the logical way for the development of an authentic American drama.

It will be remembered that Mr. MacGowan was the chief speaker before the drama section of the conference of the American Association for Adult Education held at Chapel Hill last spring. After the conference, Mr. MacGowan went to Statesville, N. C., to see the Carolina Playmakers in action during the annual tour of the group.

In the past Mr. MacGowan has been the author of a number of books, chief among which have been "Continental Stagecraft" and "The Theatre of Tomorrow." For five years he was associated with the eminent Eugene O'Neil and Robert Edmund Jones in the production of world premieres of several of O'Neil's plays. The plays were produced

(Continued on page four)

Authors' Reading Will Open Season for Playmakers Tues.

Koch Predicts "the Biggest and Best Year Yet" for Carolina Players.

An authors' reading of new plays Tuesday night at 7 o'clock in the Playmakers theatre will open the year's program for the Carolina Playmakers, one of the most widely acclaimed dramatic groups in the country. The year's program is the most ambitious and diversified that has yet been attempted; the programs will be given on three nights; tours will be continued, professional plays will be given, visiting dramatic groups will present their plays here, all of which will give the Chapel Hill theatre fans a busy year.

"The biggest and best year yet," is the enthusiastic prophecy of Professor Koch, veteran director of the Playmakers. Fresh from a successful sum-

(Continued on page four)

Police Have Easy Time Opening Week

A week-end without the usual dances or football game to attract out-of-town visitors gave the Chapel Hill police force a day of rest Saturday. The influx of new students and upperclassmen was marked with the quietness of a proverbial Chapel Hill Sunday afternoon.

Up to 8 o'clock last night no arrests had been made, according to Chief Lloyd of the Chapel Hill police. Chief Lloyd stated in an interview with a Tar Heel reporter that this week-end was one of the quietest in the history of the town. No drinking was noticed and no unnecessary boisterousness by any of the students marred the opening of the University.

College Night Exercises To Be Held Tomorrow Night in Memorial Hall

Frank Page, Former Highway Chief and Now Vice-President of Bank, Will Be Principal Speaker at Annual Exercises.

With Frank Page, former chairman of the state highway commission, President H. W. Chase and Ray Farris, president of the student body, as the principal speakers, the annual College Night exercises will be held in Memorial Hall tomorrow night. The program will get underway at 8:15 when the University band assembles on the chapel steps to play the opening selection, and the exercises will begin inside Memorial Hall at 8:30.

Providing the first opportunity for the new men to gather with the upperclassmen in a general campus event, College Night is one of the high lights of the school year. Representatives of the three chief groups connected with the University, faculty, student body and alumni, deliver addresses.

Peyton Abbott will lead the cheering, which is always a feature of College Night, in the absence of a cheer leader. Election of an official cheer leader has not yet been held. A number of special entertainment features have been arranged under the direction of Abbott.

TAR HEEL MEETING

Freshmen and upperclassmen who wish to try out for the staff of the Daily Tar Heel will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Tar Heel office, basement of Alumni Building.

Members of the present staff will meet at the same hour. New beats will be assigned and a number of important changes in the staff organization will be made.

There will be a business staff meeting Monday night at 7:30 at the office.

BOOK SHOP HAS BRIGHT OUTLOOK

Bull's Head Bookshop is Becoming Increasingly Popular With Students.

The popularity which the Bull's Head Bookshop at Murphey 214 has enjoyed since its establishment a few years ago is not on the wane this year, if early indications are not false. Within the first three days of its operation this fall, numerous readers and the usual number of purchasers have come in for a quiet bit of recreation, reading books not on required lists.

The Bull's Head was founded by Professor Howard Mumford Jones, who when he came here from the University of Texas initiated the movement for a room in the language building where students might read the latest novels, biographies and general works—and if they chose to, to buy them. It was established on a small scale, but its popularity grew, and now a large stock is kept on hand.

The shop is operated as a branch of the Book Exchange. Its policy is to carry books of general interest rather than texts, though occasionally novels and plays studied in class are to be procured there in various cheap editions, such as the Everyman and Modern Library. The idea of a popular reading room, however, has persisted, and it is the boast of the shop that no one has been asked to buy a book there.

Among the new books recently added to stock are Howard W. Odum's Wing on My Feet, which has received numerous laudatory reviews and seems to be headed for even greater success than Rainbow Round My Shoulder, the first part of the Odessey of the Black Ulysses; Andre Maurois' fine novel, Atmosphere of Love, and his Aspects of Biography (readers will remember M. Maurois as author of Ariel, the novelized life of Shelley, and of Disraeli); Claude G. Bowers' excellent treatment of The Tragic Era, the Reconstruction period in the South; and several humorous books which should prove interesting to those who want to start off the year with light reading.

The Bull's Head is open all week days from 8:30 in the morning to 5 p. m. and on Saturday from 8:30 to 12 o'clock.

Navy was rated as the strongest team in the East at the end of the 1928 football season.

NELSON HIGHWAY AIDS MOTORISTS VISITING UNIV.

Road Opened in August Shortens Distance to Greensboro and Raleigh.

(By R. W. Madry)

"The entire stretch of the state highway between Nelson and Graham was opened for traffic this week, and as a result the University was brought into much closer touch with the state and the nation.

The distance from Chapel Hill to Greensboro is now only 45 miles, whereas it formerly was 60; while the distance from Chapel Hill to Raleigh is only 28 miles, whereas it formerly was 36.

This new stretch of highway will divert a great deal of travel north and south that formerly passed through Durham, Hillsboro, Mebane and Haw River. In fact, it is now nearer from Durham to Greensboro via Chapel Hill than by the old route.

By way of Chapel Hill it is now only 73 miles from Raleigh to Greensboro, whereas by way of Durham the distance is 86 miles.

This new Nelson-Graham highway is in excellent shape. The section from Nelson to Chapel Hill, which intersects the Durham-Raleigh highway about 10 miles east of Durham, was recently tarred. The first 15 miles of the section from Chapel Hill to Graham is sand-clay and the last 10 miles is cement. The 20 miles from Graham to Burlington is all cement.

Nibs Price, California coach, never played collegiate football, but participated in the Rugby game which was played at Berkley when he was there.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $3.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN P. HOLDER ..... Editor
W. H. YARBOROUGH, JR., ... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Business Mgr.

Prohibition On The College Campus

According to persistent rumors about the campus, the Chapel Hill bootlegger army suffered heavy casualties during the summer months. An extensive campaign by prohibition agents is said to have depleted the ranks of the whiskey dispensers materially.

A brief observation tour through the business district or past the fraternity houses during the late evening and early morning hours will convince the most optimistic of prohibitionists that liquor is obtainable within or near the village, however. Reports indicate that the dry agents have functioned very efficiently in this section during recent months, but their task is well nigh hopeless. Their efforts to kill the bootlegging business in and around Chapel Hill are about as efficacious as an attempt to empty a well with a sieve.

Prohibition has been a colossal failure in this country, as millions of citizens realize. With typically American hypocrisy they vociferously champion the 18th amendment in public and hurry home to receive their favorite bootlegger on his regular visit. In all probability prohibition will continue indefinitely. The process of repealing a constitutional amendment is extremely complicated and cumbersome, and it would be difficult indeed to persuade the American public to admit resposibility for the ghastly blunder that prohibition has proven itself.

"Orange County cawn," notoriously vile as it is, will continue to be sold to University students despite whatever pressure the prohibition men may bring to bear upon the bootlegging gents. Drinking has always been prevalent among college men, and there is every indication that it will continue.

A drastic change in the undergraduate attitude toward habitual drinking is perhaps the only means of doing away with the liquor orgies which occur frequently on nearly every college campus. As long as whiskey drinking is considered an accomplishment by collegians, it will increase rather than decrease among them. A decided reaction against drunkenness would do more to decrease drinking on the Carolina campus than an army of prohibition agents.

Behind the Smoke Of the Smoker

(H. J. G.)

The Senior Class, composed of the oldest and presumably wisest heads among the undergraduates of the University, announces the holding of the first smoker of the year, to be held for get-together purposes.

Smokers, to those who have never attended them, are something of a mystery. What do the boys do when they gather of an evening in Swain Hall? Just stand around and hold a glorified bull session under a cloud of blue, stifling smoke, discuss wine, women, and profs, and occasionally cheer a speech of the president of the class or the chairman of the Executive Committee? Not at all.

Senior Smokers, and those of the other classes as well, are held for a definite purpose, and that purpose is not mere bulling. There is generally a light supper, a little music, and then serious class business is transacted, accompanied, of course, by plentiful free cigarettes. A faculty member is generally invited to give the address of the evening, and he is generally given serious and close attention, according to his merits.

Of recent years special efforts have been made to get the shy co-ed to attend these meetings, formerly reserved only for the dominating male. Nothing goes on that any nice young lady should not know about, and don't the girls like an occasional plate of ice cream and a cigarette as well as the next person? They do.

The Senior Smoker leads off the season with a combined business and social session, to which all members of the class are invited. It is not so much their duty to attend as their privilege, if they are to know what is happening and where their money goes, as well as meet the men and women who are their classmates.

Taken seriously, the Smoker is a means for getting things done in the proper manner—not by one or two public-spirited classmen, but by the class as a whole.

The University Holds Its Own

Plans were laid for the one hundred and thirty-sixth session of the University of North Carolina under circumstances which were decidedly unfavorable. The prevalence of hard times and the probability of even harder times causes officials of the University no small amount of worry. Reports from the registrar's office, however, show that the present enrollment exceeds the enrollment of a year ago by seventy-five. The writer is convinced that this is positive proof of one thing—the state of North Carolina is progressing.

That the scarcity of money and the lamentable agrarian discontent have placed a damper on the progress of the state cannot be denied. Be this as it may, the fact of a larger enrollment this fall proves conclusively that the spirit which underlies the activities of the people of the state has not been diminished.

Although this progressive spirit of the people is a potent factor, the aforesaid unexpectedly large fall quarter enrollment is due in large measure to another force—the untiring efforts of the officials of the University.

When the people of the state of North Carolina cease to back their university, then its enrollment will decrease from year to year; but as long as they continue to stand behind it material growth is a certainty.—J. C. W.

Bob Martin, heavyweight boxing champion of the A. E. F., is said to be a state policeman in West Virginia.

YACKETY YACK NOTICE

All men wishing to try out for the business staff of the Yackety Yack will please meet the business manager at 7:30 at the Yackety Yack office in the basement of Alumni Building.

All old members of the staff will be expected to be present if they intend to remain on the staff.

YACKETY YACK,
Business Mgr.

Pen Points

By H. J. Galland

Sunday morning, and here's your paper. You can use it to clean your razor as you shave, put under your feet when you lie on the sofa in the front room for an afternoon snooze, keep the coffee-stains off the tablecloth, or even read it.

* * *
* * *

The first question generally asked about the Sunday issue of the Daily Tar Heel has been whether or not it will have a comic section. Of course, of course—hasn't the Tar Heel always aimed to please? Not only a comic section on Sunday, but every day in the week, Monday's excepted, four whole pages of comics. The editors think it is all very serious, but then what do they know?

* * *
* * *

That new rear campus is a delight to look at, but we do miss our old locomotive and freight train. It used to go through every day a little before one o'clock in the afternoon. There was a prof in the History Department who used to tear his hair when the train racketed through, disturbing his carefully prepared discourse and making it impossible for him to continue.

* * *
* * *

He would wait for a few minutes for the noise to calm down, then give it up and dismiss the class before the end of the hour—Starvation Hour, too, just before the midday meal. Yes, the new campus is nice to look at, but we miss our old locomotive and freight train.

* * *
* * *

The Isadora Duncan Dancers will be here soon to inaugurate this year's program of merry-making. Last year's program was extremely successful, and by the looks of the program drawn up by the Entertainment Committee, this year's will run it a close second. The Vitaphone is interesting entertainment, but there's nothing like watching a charming young lady dance—in the flesh, as it were.

* * *
* * *

We see by yesterday's Tar Heel (we get all our news from the Tar Heel) that a Pajama Club is being organized by the Frosh, or such of them as wish to emulate the eminent W. O. Saunders of Elizabeth City. We are, in fact, a member of the Pajama Club—at night only. Considering the unusual freedom of this campus in matters of dress, there doesn't seem to be any necessity for dress reform here. There is, however, a pressing need for numerous suits seen daily on the campus—those of this harried scribe included.

* * *
* * *

The Carolina Theatre had its face lifted recently, and as a result, (in case you didn't know, and we can't see how you don't), it now talks in clear accents, and some not so clear. The entire theatre has been acoustically improved, so that echoes are eliminated. At one point in a picture this week the audience was invited to sing along with the actors, and to the surprise of all concerned, enthusiastically did. We are now starting a movement to film football pep-meeting leaders, thus adding theme songs and dancing to the usual procedure. We should like to see Coach Chuck trip a few of the light fantastics.

* * *
* * *

For a glimpse of beauty, we recommend a stroll through the new library. The decorations, on the whole, are tastefully done, the arrangement of the various rooms sensible, and the building imposing. Our mind full of exalted thoughts of beautiful architecture, we wandered by chance into a little side room. There we found two gentlemen of color at work on the statues removed from the interior of the old library. One was carefully cleaning the toe-nails of Venus de Milo, the other was wiping Apollo's nose. Our thoughts left us.

* * *
* * *

Changes—The gals in Gooch's . . . and the new semi-private dining section in the rear . . . Jack Lipman's new front . . . his store, not his waistcoat . . . sounds of loud talking issuing from the Carolina during a performance . . . the erstwhile organist of said theatre reduced to changing phonograph records during the news reels . . . the absence of back-slapping and assumed heartiness for the freshmen . . . Boss' new tie . . . Prof. Potter's new car . . . a whole new section of grass behind South for Freshmen and such to walk on . . . the Tar Heel inflicted on a groaning population every day.

R. B. House To Speak In Chapel Tuesday

R. B. House, executive secretary of the University, will speak in the chapel period Tuesday morning on the subject, "Literary Society Work and Debating."

This talk is part of a series which are presented to aid and encourage the freshmen in the selection of a worthwhile campus activity. Many freshmen desire to affiliate with some organization or institution, and it is the plan of the college to give them a comprehensive summary of the available activities.

Lutheran Students To Hold Services Tomorrow

The Lutheran Student Association of the University is organized to care for the highest interests of all Lutheran students and Lutherans in the community, as well as to promote the best interests of the campus. As there is no regularly organized congregation in Chapel Hill the Association provides for services held every Sunday morning in Gerrard Hall. The Sunday School is held at 10 a. m. and the church service at 11 a. m. A cordial invitation is extended to all. All Lutheran students are urged to be present at these first services which begin our work for the year. The Rev. C. P. Harry, D.D., of the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church in America will be present and will deliver the sermon at the eleven o'clock service. The Association has as its Student Secretary the Rev. Geo. A. Metz, a graduate student.

—Lutheran Student Association

Loan Fund Now Available

The University Loan Fund is now available for distribution to students desiring pecuniary assistance. Mr. Sprinkle in 204 South will handle the fund. It is requested that students report for the aid between the hours of 12-1 and 3-4 in the immediate future.

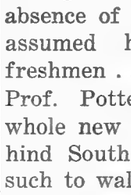
Seniors To Smoke And Elect Student Councilman Tuesday

Election of a student councilman will feature the first Senior class smoker of the year in Swain Hall Tuesday night at 9 o'clock, it was announced last night by Ralph Green, senior president.

Bill Chandler, who was elected student council representative from the senior class last spring, will not return to school this fall.

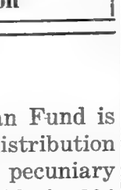
New Publication Has Story by Former Student

A new literary publication, edited and published by Willis H. Kinnear at Indianapolis, Ind., has created favorable comment from many prominent literary men. The magazine caters to the younger writers throughout the United States, primarily to those who are in the universities and is distributed on a national scale. Many well known writers are on the staff of Manuscripts, as the magazine is called, including Robert Morss Lovett, Norman Foerster, and Edith R. Mirrielees. Of special interest is the fact that one of the contributors to the current issue is Charles O. Culbertson of the University of North Carolina.



The magazine is filling a place among the literary publications that has long been neglected, and has the co-operation of the heads and members of the English departments in the largest universities of the country.

Four Patients Confined To Infirmary



With one day of classes gone the University Infirmary took on a business-like air. Four cases were reported yesterday: all of whom were minor ailments.

G. L. Cornwell, H. M. Gilbert, Fred Wardlaw, and Miss Mary Carter are confined to the infirmary with minor sicknesses.

DR. J. P. JONES
Dentist
Over Welcome-In Cafeteria
PHONE 5761

LOVE
HIGH COURAGE
WILD ADVENTURE

all the gallant daring of—"Beau Geste" and the vital force of—
"Chang"

ACTION . . . ROMANCE . . . THRILLER

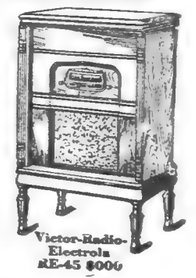
"THE FOUR FEATHERS"

in SOUND with
WILLIAM POWELL
RICHARD ARLAN — FAY WRAY
CLIVE BROOK & NOAH BEERY
Produced by the makers of "Chang"

LOVE between the heir of an ancient family and a beautiful, spirited girl! Love which could not be! Until disgrace symbolized by four tiny white feathers was wiped out by courage superhuman! The men who made "Chang" have surpassed themselves. Into the heart of the lawless African Soudan they went. To film A. E. Mason's story of splendid adventure and romance—the kind of romance granted by God only to a few!

You will see hundreds of maddened beasts fleeing from fire in the jungle! You will see thousands of desert savages—Kipling's Fuzzy Wuzzies—astride war camels, attacking a British fort where the hero strives to regain love and honor!

Added Attractions
"Her New Chauffeur"
All Talking Comedy
Pathe News
MONDAY



CAROLINA THEATRE

A Publix-Saenger Theatre

TUESDAY
Evelyn Brent
—in—
"FAST COMPANY"

Taking the town by STORM
Victor-Radio
WITH ELECTROLA
Micro-Synchronous!

at

$298.00

All the music of the world in one handsome, compact cabinet. Also exquisite Victor-Radio Console. Nothing in the world like micro-synchronous reception!

We are demonstrating day and night. You know that here are courtesy, comfort and service. Easy terms arranged.

Come in and hear
Victor-Radio
NOW!

University Book and Stationery Co.
Next to Sutton's Drug Store
(SUTTON BUILDING)

U. N. C. Holds Big Margin Over Wake Forest

FORTIETH MEET SCHEDULED FOR NEXT SATURDAY

Wake Forest Hopes to Renew Jinx of 1924-27; Chance for Fans to See Wake's New Coaching System and Carolina's New Material.

ONE OF THE South's oldest gridiron rivalries will flare up again next Saturday as the football elevens of Wake Forest and the University of North Carolina clash in the magnificient Kenan Stadium here. The game will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

The Tar Heels and the Deacons have been doing battle over the pigskin for exactly forty years, almost as long as there's been a football game.

The Tar Heels had things all their way from 1889 to 1924. The two institutions mixed it up on the gridiron 19 times, and the Deacons had but one victory and a string of well-fought losses to show for long and valiant struggles. But the worm turned that year, and the Deacons became particular jinxes for the Tar Heels.

They beat Carolina four times in succession, even when Carolina seemed to have the stronger team, as proved by subsequent season records.

In 1924 Murray Greason sprinted 27 yards for a touchdown and a heart-breaking 7-6 victory. The score was the same in 1925. A great passing attack, Rackley to Riley, sent the Tar Heels back 13-0 the next year; and in 1927 the Deacons invaded the Tar Heels' own field and carried off another close victory.

A great Tar Heel eleven turned the tables and humiliated the Deacons last year, but the fans are wondering if this jinx of other years will be riding on the shoulders of the Tar Heel warriors as they go out to battle the Deacons next Saturday.

The Deacons have been keeping mighty quiet this year. Scarcely any news has emanated from the training lair. The rumor is out that Coach Pat Miller has a lot more material than he's talking about and a lot of tricks in the bag. The Deacons are being called the mystery team of the Big Five.

The University squad as a whole has rounded into fine fettle, and observers at the daily practice sessions believe the team that carries the Blue and White on Saturday will be one of the strongest since 1922, the year the Tar Heels won the South Atlantic championship. The game will give fans the first line on Pat Miller's new system at Wake Forest and on the new material at Carolina.

Majority of Gridmen Are Tar Heels

The University of North Carolina's football squad is composed largely of native born Tar Heels. More than 50 of the squad of 70 working out daily in preparation for the opening game with Wake Forest are native Tar Heels, while 11 of the 16 lettermen back are Tar Heels, and two of the other five are from the neighboring province of South Carolina. Practically all of the native sons on the squad learned their football in North Carolina high schools under competent coaches turned out by North Carolina colleges.

Heels Will Make Bid for Conference Honors

Teams May Use White Footballs for Night Play

The football world will watch with interest this weekend the initial night gridiron clashes. From coast to coast speculations are being made as to the advisability of this new arrangement, and with these speculations has come the announcement of certain rulings made on such contests. The National Committee on rules has announced that if desired white footballs may be used, provided both teams agree. This announcement was received by schools who have scheduled post sunset games with some relief since several years ago the use of black balls was forbidden by the Rules Committee because of the fact that certain teams used black jerseys, enabling them to use the old sneak plays.

Throughout the South yesterday four night gridiron disputes were played off. At Greenville, South Carolina, Furman received Erskine on her own artificially lighted field. Optimistic weather reports coupled with the knowledge that a new fad was being ushered in caused Furman officials to increase the seating capacity to almost double the usual size.

Try-outs for Daily Tar Heel staff to be held tonight.

TAR HEEL MITMEN MEET ON TUESDAY

Archie Allen Will Lead Southern Champions of 1929; Many Veterans Back.

The University of North Carolina boxers, Champions of the South in 1929, will hold their first meeting Tuesday night in Gerrard Hall at 7 o'clock. Crayton Rowe has returned this year to tutor the Heel mitmen toward another crown. Coach Rowe hails from Charlotte and headed the Tar Heels in 27 and '28.

Captain Archie Allen will head the list of North Carolina threats who will return this year. In his train he will have men of such note as Vaughn, Sheffield, Goodrich, David, Warren and Cummings. These men all saw action last year under the Blue and White standard and from all reports are primed for the stiff schedule that is being arranged for this winter. Brown and Sapp are the two men of last year's squad who will fail to return this year. The loss of these men will be a heavy blow from which Coach Rowe must recover; however, the wealth of reserve material should make this task at least possible and more than likely probable.

N. C. beat W. F. 65-0 last year.

Meet me at

Sutton's Drug Store

The Students' Drug Store

Athletic Authorities Provide Intramurals for All Students

University Has Definite Policy of General Student Participation in Athletics.

(With the increased popularity of intramurals, the Tar Heel is publishing the following information concerning their origin and activities.)

The building of sound strong bodies has been emphasized by a school of modern writers on education as one of the three principal things which should be stressed during the colelge career. To carry out such a program, some form of athletics or exercise must be instituted for every student rather than varsity spors for a favored few.

The University of North Carolina has long been firmly committed to the athletic policy of "every student in some form of healthful exercise." The institution can point with pride to its record in this respect. At one time or another all of its undergraduates—except cripples—have been required to participate in some sport or take exercise in the gym.

The intramural sports which the University provides for its students are particularly noteworthy. The contests are held between teams representing dormitories or fraternity houses. Hhey are a part of the University to stay; and it is no longer a case of a very few varsity athletes who may get the benefit of athletics.

The Universiy has introduced intramural sports so steadily in the last few years, and the range is now so wide that it is no infrequent thing to hear puns about the "Intramural Knitting Team" or the "Intramural Twiddley-Winkers!" This is not at all surprising, for the University with its definite policy of general student participation in sports bars no sport it thinks might make for wholesome recreation and physical development.

In addition to the enlargement of Emerson Field and the gift of the handsome Kenan stadium, the University has provided intramural football and baseball fields, 40 tennis courts, an excellent track, an indoor field containing space for five basketball courts, boxing, wrestling, volley ball, and other indoor sports.

Needless to say, the directors and coaches have at all times insisted on and inspired University athletes with the "highest standards of sportsmanship," while the faculty has as steadfastly insisted on "high scholastic standards."

The same standards have been maintained in intramural athletics, conducted by a special Intramural Athletic Department. A total of 350 men took part in the Tag Football contests between dormitory and fraternity teams last year in which there were 100 conests, and cross-country, basketball, wrestling, boxing, winter tarck, tennis, baseball, and the decathlon ran the total studen participation up to 1860. The corresponding figure for four years ago was 1298.

House Has Speed And Power at Full

Youth and power—Henry House, Tar Heel fullback, is both. He's just 18, but he's about the most powerful line driver among a wealth of Tar Heel backs. He was the youngest man on the squad last year, but he won his "N. C." all the same. Coach Collins has been using him regularly in early scrimmages and from all appearances, he's due to be in the Tar Heel lineup in Carolina's opening game with Wake Forest here September 28. House is a junior and hails from Weldon.

California has a warmer winter climate than Georgia.

Watch that Tar Heel team go.

A NEW GOOCH'S...

At Your Service

Twenty-six years ago Gooch's Cafe was created to fill a very definite need in the life of this University town. At that time the complete seating capacity was about seven seats. Then, as now, Gooch's was the center of downtown activity. Year by year the management of this cafe has attempted to serve better a larger number of students and townspeople. You know the result. Gooch's is the one place every Carolina student knows. Gooch's is the meeting and eating place—the central point about which the student body radiates.

As New as the Class of 1933

Gooch's is now a new cafe—as new as the class of 1933. During the summer the whole plant has been thoroughly modernized. Many changes have been made in order that we may serve better and quicker than ever before. You are invited to come in and see what we have done. Dine with us and enjoy your meals.

MAIN DINING ROOM: The seating arrangement has been changed, more seats added and the whole lay-out planned for greater comfort, quicker service. The whole interior has been redecorated in Carolina's colors.

KITCHEN: Cleanliness to the nth degree prevails in Gooch's kitchen—one of the finest in the State. Tile floors, two large skylights, modern labor-saving machinery, heavy duty, quick gas and gas hot plate ranges insure quick delivery of well-cooked foods. Chef's ice box means minimum handling of foods—mostly direct from box to stove. Spaciousness, cleanliness and efficiency is quickly noted in the kitchen.

SEMI-PRIVATE DINING ROOM: The semi-private dining room is one of the new features of Gooch's. This is open at all times but may be reserved for any number of people from one table to complete capacity. Suitable for meetings of different types.

STORE ROOM; MEAT ROOM: The store room is filled with the things you like to eat. You can always count on getting just what you want when you dine at Gooch's. The meat room is equipped with a large walk-in refrigerator of modern type and perishable foods are well preserved by Frigidaire. Always well stocked with the meats and sea foods of the season.

Dine at Gooch's for a month. Establish for yourself that Gooch's is the best place in Chapel Hill.

QUALITY ~ SERVICE GOOCH'S CAFE SINCE 1903

Many Alumni Will Recall Wake Forest Game of '93 When the Teams Meet in Kenan Stadium

William Kenan, Jr., Donor of the Stadium, "Pete" Murphy, W. D. Merritt and Others Lead in 40-0 Score of That Year.

When the Tar Heels and the Demon Deacons meet in Kenan Memorial Stadium here at 2:30 o'clock next Saturday afternoon, the memories of the older University alumni will hearken back some 36 years to another Carolina-Wake Forest game in which William Rand Kenan, Jr., donor of the magnificent stadium in which next Saturday's game is to be played, was a member of the victorious eleven.

The Tar Heels won that day of long ago by the overwhelming score of 40 to 0, using the wedge formations and close driving backfield maneuvers that were then the vogue, and young William Kenan was right in the thick of the fight.

Kenan was not the only famous University alumnus who faced Wake Forest on that 1893 team. Numerous others have since made their mark in life. Perhaps Walter "Pete" Murphy, prominent Salisbury lawyer and legislator, is the best known in this state.

Others of the first eleven in 1893 were Charles Baskerville, prominent chemist and teacher, now deceased; Harry W. Whedbee, Greenville lawyer; David A. Kirkpatrick, manufacturer, of Greensboro; George R. Little, banker of Elizabeth City; William D. Merritt, Roxboro lawyer; and Louis I. Guion, now a farmer near Lugoff, S. C.

Next Saturday's game is expected to prove another interesting flare-up of the traditionally famous rivalry. The Tar Heels have been looking up in daily scrimmage, and observers seem to believe them the greatest Tar Heel team since that of 1922, which won the South Atlantic Championship. The Deacons are being hailed as the mystery team of the Big Five, and fans are anxious to see Pat Miller's new system and to learn what tricks he has up his sleeve.

This game will give the fans their first opportunity to get a line on the new coaching system at Wake Forest and the new material at Carolina.

Headquarters Chosen For Carolina Men

In order that graduates and friends of the University will have some official meeting place in each town in which the Tar Heels play this fall, the University Alumni Association has designated one hotel in each town as Alumni Headquarters.

For October, when Carolina plays Maryland at College Park, The Willard Hotel in Washington has been selected as headquarters for the Carolina supporters. The Atlanta-Biltmore in Atlanta will be the reunion center for the Georgia Tech game; the Jefferson Hotel, Columbia, for the South Carolina game; Hotel Charlotte, at Charlotte, for the Davidson game; and the Washington-Duke for the Duke game in Durham.

The last football game between Carolina and Georgia resulted in a 41-6 victory for the Heels. That was in 1914.

Harry Greb fought Tommy Loughran a ten-round draw in 1924.

Children nowadays are said to grow taller than their parents. They probably get a good start in early years trying to reach their mothers' skirts.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

A scientist says some lipstick kisses are poison. Well, we never kissed a lipstick in our life.—Dallas News.

Buccaneer Notice

All men wishing to try out for the Business Staff of the Carolina Buccaneer will meet in the Buccaneer office in the basement of Alumni Building Monday night at 8:30 o'clock.

PAT PATTERSON, Business Mgr.

N. C. ORCHESTRAS HAVE GOOD YEAR

Student Bands Gain Praise for Music During Summer

When the contributions to the field of dance music are considered, North Carolina can point to four Tar Heel bands that are now winning national fame for themselves and the state.

Offhand one thinks of Hal Kemp, former Carolina student, and His Brunswick Recording Orchestra, now playing its second year at the Manger Hotel in New York City and broadcasting regularly over WEAF and WJZ, and Tal Henry, formerly of Greensboro, and His Band, now filling an engagement at the Peabody Hotel, Memphis, Tenn.

And now there are two more additions to the growing little family of Tar Heel musicians in the national limelight.

Kay Kyser's Band, matriculated from the University just one year and well remembered all over the South, made a big success through the North and on Broadway last year and brought out its first Victor record in February.

Slatz Randall's Orchestra is the latest addition, this group, after a number of hotel and concert successes, having brought out its first Brunswick record, a big success judging from local sales. "Slatz" too is an old Carolina man—he was pianist for Hal Kemp when Hal was playing here at the University.

The remarkable part of the whole thing is that the personnel of each the groups, except Randall's orchestra and this was organized later, is practically the same as when the groups played in the state.

Kyser's band is perhaps the best known to the state. The orchestra grew up as a student organization at the University in 1926. Engagements were played in North Carolina and neighboring states for two years ,and the genial Kay (who was also cheerleader) came to have a wide following, not only for the music he could get out of his band but also for his clowning and funny antics.

Then the group went North. They played in Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, and New York, including a successful engagement on Broadway. The reports came back steadily of their growing popularity and success. Achievement had its reward in a contract with Victor, and the Carolina boys brought out a splendid record last February as their first contribution.

The tunes were "Tell Her" and "Broken Dreams," and the record is still having a wide sale. The orchestra is now under the management of the National Broadcasting Company, owners of WEAF and WJZ, and recently opened a long engagement at the Bamboo Gardens in Cleveland, Ohio.

Hal Kemp, besides playing at the Manger and broadcasting regularly, has also recorded a number of tunes for Brunswick and independent companies under other names; has recorded the music for one Vitaphone production, and is regarded as one of the most popular bands in New York. The orchestra has practically the same personnel as when it left the University. Hal also assists Ernie Rapee, director of Roxey's Orchestra, in cue-ing the music for sound pictures.

Tal Henry, the only one of the four groups which did not spring up at the University, is playing an indefinite engagement, prolonged by popular requests, at the Peabody Hotel in Memphis. The group has played many New York engagements, recording exclusively for Victor, and has also made a Vitaphone short. The orchestra is under the management of Max Hart, Inc., of New York City.

Randall's group was organized after he left the state. He played with a number of orchestras and made one tour of Europe, coming back to organize his own outfit. His group has had a number of successful hotel and concert engagements and has brought out its first record for Brunswick. It is now playing a hotel engagement in the West.

Carolina Theatre Entertains Frosh

After the regular show Friday night, Manager E. C. Smith turned the Carolina Theatre over to the freshman class. "Fast Life" was shown free to a packed house.

Before the show Peyton Abbot, cheerleader, taught the freshmen the various Carolina yells. While not as proficient as former classes the new men picked up the yells with little trouble.

Manager Smith is also planning to continue sending birthday greeting cards in the form of free passes to the Carolina students. His dormitory and fraternity free shows will also be continued this year.

With the installation of the Vitaphone the patronage of the Carolina has grown considerably. Cars from surrounding towns are seen every evening lining Franklin Street.

Heels Preparing for Great Grid Season

With sixteen lettermen back and a goodly number of reserves and sophomore prospects, the Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina are planning to make a strong bid for honors in the Southern Conference this year.

The Tar Heels have a 10-game schedule, and eight of the games are with Conference opponents, namely, Georgia Tech, South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Georgia, Duke, N. C. State, and V. P. I. The other two opponents are Wake Forest and Davidson.

The opening game is with Wake Forest in Kenan Stadium here in Chapel Hill next Saturday, September 28. This will give the fans their first opportunity to get a line on the new coaching system at Wake Forest and the new material at North Carolina.

The Wake Forest team is regarded as somewhat of a mystery outfit this year, few reports having come from the Deacon camp.

The only war we can think of just now that would help this country much would be a war between the corn borers and the potato bugs.—Kay Features.

Well, if grapes have gone from $20 to $175 a ton under prohibition, obviously we could relieve the wheat farmer by prohibiting bread.—Detroit News.

A scientist, C. H. Curran, has discovered that mosquitoes are cannibalistic. Well, here is more strength to their appetites.—Wichita Eagle.

YACKETY YACK

There will be a meeting of all men interested in trying out for the Yackety Yack business staff tomorrow night at seven-thirty in the office, basement of Alumni Building.

B. MOORE PARKER, Business Mgr.

1929 Student Body Represents Many States and 8 Countries

(Continued from page one)

Y Soler Andre Guiterrez, son of a prominent Cuban tobacco manufacturer, is also enrolled, being one of the 800 freshmen to register Wednesday.

Italian Government Represented

Coming from the University of Italy as a representative of the Italian government, is Gio Batista Pittana, a junior in the Department of Mechanical Engineering of the School of Engineering. Pittana has made a brilliant record. He has come to like the United States, especially the southern part, and steps are about to be taken to get him naturalized.

Many Others Here

William Barnett has registered at the University from Shanghai, China. Bennett is an American by birth. He is the son of Eugene Barnett, missionary to China and a prominent University alumnus.

There are many other interesting students enrolled. John Waters, a sophomore, spent his summer working on a freighter in order to learn "the shapes of all the capes in most of the seven seas." George Brown of New York City, a nephew of Lew Brown, the song writer and musician, is here. Lew Brown, it will be remembered, is the composer of most of the theme songs for Fox Movietone Pictures, having written "Sonny Boy" and the theme song in Al Jolson's new picture, "Say It With Songs." George is something of a musician himself and plans to take part in the University Glee Club. He is registered in the A. B. school.

Some Good Athletes

In the way of athletes, there are Wilmer Hines, Southern Tennis Singles Junior champion, and Bill Collins, husky brother of Coach Chuck Collins, head football coach of the University. Hines plans to compete for the University tennis team. He engaged Ed Yoemans, North Carolina intercollegiate champion, in three close sets today.

Bill Collins is from Oak Park, Illinois. He attended the same prep school that Coaches Collins and Cerney did. Collins will be a candidate for an end post on the freshman team.

But all this cosmopolitanism of the University student body doesn't fail to have its interesting sidelights. For example, a tired-looking, discouraged freshman from eastern Carolina stopped an upperclassman on the morning of registration and inquired about the location of the A. S. School building. Another freshman from Hyde county had been told that he would have to burn midnight oil; so he brought along a couple of lamps.

Authors' Reading Will Open Season for Playmakers Tues.

(Continued from page one)

mer at the University of California where he taught play writing, Mr. Koch greets the future with renewed hope and vigor.

"Job's Kinfolks" has been written into a full length play and will be produced here on November 7, 8, and 9. Prospects are bright for carrying this play on the Northern tour which will penetrate to staid old Boston, the conservative and cultural center of New England. However the Northern tour repertoire has not been completed. The tour will be from November 15 until December 1.

The reading and try-outs for a professional play will come off this quarter. The fall season will end with the annual reading of the Christmas carol.

Two new bills of plays, a playmaker production of a professional play, several tours, readings, a Forest Theatre production, and productions by visiting companies will fill up the spring program.

Professor Koch, Mr. Heffner, and Mr. Hall, all talk enthusiastically of the coming year.

Williams Makes Plans for N. C. Debating Squad

(Continued from page one)

and select intercollegiate debaters.

For the purpose of organization the first meeting will be held Thursday night in 202 Murphey at 7:30. They will continue every Thursday night thereafter in the collegiate year. All students who attend regularly and write one satisfactory paper per quarter will be given an academic half-course credit. Moreover, the intercollegiate debaters will be picked from the squad exclusively. To be eligible to try out for a team a member of the squad must have attended seventy-five percent of the discussions relating to the particular query which is to be debated.

Teams of intercollegiate debaters are always chosen on the competitive basis. Approximately two weeks before each debate a try-out is held. All of the contestants speak for the same length of time, and the men to compose the team are picked on the basis of ability and knowledge of the question.

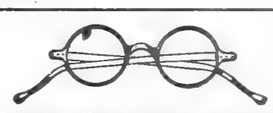
No member of an intercollegiate debating team holds his place on the team for more than one contest without going through another tryout. The same rules of eligibility apply to debating which apply to athletics at the University.

By virtue of a resolution passed by the Council in its final session last spring, freshmen are eligible for varsity debates. The present council urges that all freshmen who are interested in debating report to 202 Murphey Thursday night along with upperclassmen. It will be remembered that Hamilton Hobgood, a freshman, was one of the University's best debaters last year. Two years ago another freshman, John Wilkinson, distinguished himself as an expert at the forensic game.

As a reward for excellence and perseverance in intercollegiate debating the Debate Council grants a gold monogram. This emblem is granted regularly for participation in two intercollegiate contests.

Little Theatre Book To Carry Story of Koch

(Continued from page one)



in the noted Greenwich Village theater and in the Provincetown Playhouse. Mr. MacGowan in the past has been head dramatics critic for the Boston Transcript, the Philadelphia Ledger and the New York Tribune.

The book, "Footlights Across America" will be off the press in the near future, and although it will doubtless find widespread favor throughout the country, it will be of particular interest to Chapel Hill residents and friends of Professor Koch.

Carolina met Princeton, Harvard, and Georgia Tech on the gridiron in 1916.

FOR RENT

Furnished apartment with kitchenette; aiso one furnished room. 404 Hillsboro Street, Phone 3851.

EYES CORRECTLY FITTED
W. B. SORRELL

Eat Sunday's Chicken

DINNER

at the

Carolina Confectionery and Coffee Shop

On Display

THE NEW FALL LINE

of Sharkskins, Travelwear and the Finest Worsteds

Tailored up in Authentic Style to Your Individual Measure

at

$29.50 $34.50

Stetson

Free Valet Service

PLAYMAKER READING
TONIGHT—7:30
PLAYMAKER THEATRE

The Daily Tar Heel

SENIOR SMOKER
TONIGHT—9 O'CLOCK
SWAIN HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1929 | NUMBER 4

Four Students Hurt in Wreck Near Salisbury

Football Players Returning From Charlotte Skid Into Telephone Post; Dunavant Badly Hurt.

Bud Eskew, Jack Dunavant, Ty Reid, and John Daniel, University students, were injured Sunday night when the car in which they were riding slipped off the road, skidded back across it and smashed into a telephone post near Salisbury. Dunavant owned the car and was driving at the time of the accident.

All four of the injured men are football players. Eskew was holding down a varsity guard, and Dunavant, Reid, and Daniel, all sophomores, were trying for line positions. Dunavant seems to be the most seriously injured. According to reports, he sustained a broken collar bone, a concussion of the brain, and bruises. Reid had seventeen stitches taken in his scalp and suffered bruises on his leg, making it impossible for him to walk for some time.

Eskew suffered a cut in his head which necessitated five stitches. Daniel was slightly injured. The four others were in the front seat of the little roadster, due to the rain, and were necessarily crowded.

Harold Jarrett, another student in the University, who came along immediately after the accident occurred, carried Dunavant, Reid, and Daniel to Salisbury, where medical treatment was procured. He brought Reid and Daniel to Chapel Hill. Dunavant is still in the hospital at Salisbury and Reid is in the infirmary here under the care of Dr. Abernathy. Reid should be able to get up in a few days, while Daniel and Eskew are able to get about now. The cuts in the heads of the boys were evidently sustained from the side windshields, as the front one is guaranteed not to throw glass from any break.

The boys were returning from a short week-end spent in Charlotte, and were in a hurry to get back in time for their classes. According to Reid, it may have been that Dunavant fell asleep, or that he lost control of the car when it lurched back on the wet pavement from the shoulder. The car was completely demolished.

In Smash-up

Bud Eskew, monogram guard, who came to the forefront during the latter part of last season by his aggressive play as running mate of captain Ray Farris, may be lost to the Heels when they open their season against Wake Forest Saturday.

SELF HELP BUREAU SEEKS MORE WORK

Many Students Need aid in Order to Remain in School.

An S. O. S. call is being issued by the self-help bureau of the Y. M. C. A. to all townspeople, merchants, business men, and any one in Chapel Hill for work for the self-help men in the University. At least 25 boys must find work to do in order to eat after a week or less.

Never before in the history of the University has there been such a demand for work on the part of the students. A large number have come here with the expectation of getting work in order to remain; unless the townspeople and business men can furnish work, they must leave school.

It is requested that all who have work that possibly can be done by University students call at the Y. M. C. A. and ask for Grady Leonard who will get in touch with the most needy boys. The cooperation of every one is earnestly requested by Y. officials.

DONATIONS MADE TO NEW LIBRARY

Great-Grandson of Dr. Elisha Mitchell Presents Watch and Pewter Bowl to University.

Dr. W. C. Coker, head of the Botany Department, made an announcement yesterday of an award to the Library of two gifts received from John O. Miller of City of Richmond, Cal., great-grandson of Dr. Elisha Mitchell, the famed explorer who was killed in his ascent of the mountain named for him.

The two donations include an elaborate gold watch (with a key) which was discovered on Dr. Mitchell when the searching party found his body. The hands are stopped at the hour he was suposed to have met his death: 3:47 on "some day in June, 1857." The second gift is a pewter bowl which Dr. Mitchell kept on his desk during his distinguished teaching career at the University of North Carolina. There is a third gift already in possession of the Library, which will be aded to the two gifts received by Dr. Coker. This is a letter, the last letter written by the adventurer before his death. In this letter—headed by the phrase: "some day in June, 1857," the writer announces to his daughter, Mary, certainty of success for himself and his companions.

The two gifts donated by Mr. Miller were accompanied by a card which the donor wishes to be displayed with them. The card is as follows:

To the University of North Carolina from
The Children and Grandchildren
of
Mary Sibyl Ashe Miller
Granddaughter of
Dr. Mitchell

The entire collection will be on display in the North Carolina Room of the Library in about two weeks.

COMPLETE LIST OF PRESS BOOKS IS ANNOUNCED

Press Association Prepares Catalogue for Fall Issue.

With especial interest on The North Carolina Series, books about the negro, and a social study series, the University of North Carolina Press Association has prepared its catalogue for the fall.

Following the usual procedure the board of governors of the association has selected ten books, all of which are to appear at early dates. It has been the practice of this board to have the submitted manuscripts read by scholars of this and other schools who are experts in their particular fields. The board bases its final decision upon the the report of the readers.

It is unusual and interesting to note the various localities from which the books and their authors come. While a number of them are North Carolinians by birth or adoption, it is found that several of the writers hail from other southern states, and a few from the northern and eastern colleges.

One of the most interesting of the characters whose work ap-

(Continued on page four)

ALUMNI TO MEET HERE SATURDAY

W. T. Shore President Alumni Association Will Preside At Meeting of Directors at Carolina Inn.

J. Maryon Saunders, Executive Secretary of the General Alumni Association, announced yesterday that a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association will be held Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at the Carolina Inn. The President of the Association, W. T. Shore of Charlotte, will preside at this meeting.

This meeting of the Alumni Association Board of Directors will be mainly concerned with closing up the business for the year 1928-1929 and with plans for the coming year 1929-1930. The new year for the Alumni Association begins October 1. At this meeting the budget for the coming year will be drawn up, and the date set for the General Alumni Assembly, which will be held toward the end of November or the first part of December.

The Alumni Association Board of Directors is composed of the following members: W. T. Shore of Charlotte, who is president of the Association, Frederick L. Carr of Wilson and Dr. J. F. Patterson of New Bern, who are vice-presidents; A. B. Andrews of Raleigh, the past president, and Dr. C. O'H. Laughinghouse of Raleigh, Henry M. London of Raleigh, T. Holt Haywood of New York City, Norman A. Boren of Greensboro, John Kerr, Jr., of Rocky Mount, R. Grady Rankin of Gastonia, John W. Umstead of Chapel Hill, E. Earle Rives of Greensboro, Garrett Morehead of Leaksville, N. C., J. S. Massenburg of Hendersonville, L. T. Hartsell, Jr., of Concord, R. A. Spaugh, Jr., of Winston-Salem, Leo Carr of Burlington, T. A. DeVane of Fayetteville, Dr. E. R. Tyler of Durham, Thomas J. Pearsall of Rocky Mount, J. A. Pritchett of Windsor, R. C. deRosset of Charleston, S. C., L. P. Matthews of Norfolk, Va., William Kenan, Jr., of Lockport, N. Y.

Episcopalians to Meet Here Soon

The first session of the annual fall conference of the clergy and laymen of the Diocese of North Carolina will be held at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at the Chapel of the Cross. The convention will continue with night and day sessions Thursday and a final meeting Friday afternoon.

The unofficial program for the conference consists of addresses by Bishop Penick; Dr. Lewis B. Franklin, New York; Rev. W. Brooke Stabler, Worcester, Mass.; and Rev. L. F. Kent, formerly archdeacon of Yukon. Subjects of the addresses have not been announced.

A study of mission work of the church in the United States and in foreign countries is the purpose of the convention. Reports on the various phases of this work will be made by committee chairmen.

A service in the church on Thursday night will be held in connection with the conference. Rev. W. H. Milton, Wilmington, who will conduct the services, will speak on "The World Mission of Christianity."

Governor's Private Secretary Addresses Student Gathering

Annual College Night Exercises Run off Last Night With Dr. Chase, Ray Farris, and Tyre Taylor as Speakers.

The class of 1933 was received into the University last night at the College Night exercises in Memorial Hall. The exercises consisted of cheers, music by the University band, and speeches. A large number of freshmen and upperclassmen were present.

The assembly met on the steps of Memorial Hall at 8:15, and under the direction of the cheer leaders, practiced cheers which will be used for the Wake Forest game Saturday. The University band was present and interspersed the cheering with music. The band also accompanied in the Carolina songs. After a number of cheers and songs, the students entered Memorial Hall where the exercises proper were held.

Ray Farris, president of the student body and captain of the football team, on behalf of the students, received the class of 1933 into the student body of the University. He told of the significance attached to the student body and explained the duties expected of each of the students. President Chase extended the welcome of the University and members of the faculty to the incoming students. He related the glorious traditions connected with the 135 years of the University and urged every freshman to try to do his part in seeing that those traditions are continued through the years. The alumni were represented by Mr. Tyre Taylor, of the class of 1921, secretary to Governor Gardner. Mr. Taylor replaced Mr. Frank Page, former chairman of the state highway commission, who was scheduled to speak but was unable to be present. In behalf of the 11,000 living alumni of the University Mr. Taylor extended the greetings and welcome to the freshmen. At the conclusion of the speeches of welcome the audience joined in more cheers and songs.

Each year the College Night exercises are held for the purpose of formally inducting the freshman class into the University, and outlining the traditions and duties of the Carolina student body.

SENIOR NOTICE

President "Red" Green of the Senior class announced last night that the first Senior Smoker of the year will be held in Swain Hall tonight at 9 o'clock. The Senior representative for the Student Council will be elected. The music will be furnished by Jack Wardlaw and his orchestra.

Whites and Negro Play With Rocks; Judge Fines Them

A fistic, rock-throwing and verbal combat between Clyde Scott, white, Charlie Riggins, white, and Lemuel Furrow, negro, over payment of a garage bill, was the only thing to mar an otherwise quiet Sunday. The two white men were fined $10 and costs for their part in the fray, and Farrow was given a suspended sentence and charged cost of court before the Recorder's Court yesterday morning.

Rosa Merritt, negress, was given one month on the chain gang for disturbance at a public dance.

Mance Perry, negro, was fined $10 and costs for illegal possession of whiskey.

Willie Barbee, negro, was fined $5 and costs for public drunkenness.

Luther Austin, negro, was given suspended sentence on good behavior for 12 months for public drunkenness.

Joe Brown, negro, was fined $5 and costs for public drunkenness.

No arrests had been made yesterday up to 4 o'clock.

Commerce Fraternity Moves Into New Home

The local chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, the international commerce fraternity, has moved into its new brick colonial home, 121 West Rosemary street. The house was built during the summer and has just been completed.

About fifteen of the boys are living in the house. The fraternity has around thirty members. Formerly Delta Sigma Pi had social rooms over Sutton's drug store.

Dr. Henderson Will Speak At Kentucky Dedication

Commemoration of Transylvania Company Will Be Held at Henderson, Kentucky, October 9.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, head of the Mathematics Department at the University, will leave here October 9 for Henderson, Ky., where he is to speak at the unveiling of six bronze tablets depicting the history of the Transylvania company.

The commemoration exercises are to be in honor of Daniel Boone and Col. Richard Henderson, striking figures in the early colonial history, who were the first successful settlers of Kentucky, founding the city of Henderson on the Ohio river.

The Transylvania company was organized by Colonel Henderson in North Carolina and disbanded only after the state of

(Continued on page four)

House to Discuss Literary Societies

Mr. R. B. House, Executive Secretary of the University, will make a short talk in chapel this morning discussing the origin and activities of the two campus literary societies, the Dialectic Senate and the Philanthropic Assembly.

Playmaker Notice

All freshmen, new students, and old men who have had experience in stage managing or who are interested in learning something of the backstage work of a theatre are requested to see Mr. Elmer Hall, new technical director of the Playmakers, at the Playmaker theatre at any convenient time during this week.

Tar Heel Editor Completes Organization of 1929 Staff

New High Mark for 1929 Registration

Registration reached a high peak yesterday afternoon when the Administration office reported the total number of registrations as 2533, this total amounting to 29 more registrations than were received during the entire fall quarter of last year, when the registration for the quarter amounted to 2504.

Whereas the freshman class for this year is about the same in size as the class of last year, there is an increase in the number of students registered in the upper classes, and a large increase in the size of the Graduate school. The number of students registered here who are transfers from other colleges far exceeds the number registered here during the fall quarter of last year.

Holder Selects Assistant Editors; Many New Men on Staff.

Competition for positions on the Tar Heel staff opened Sunday night with more than fifty men reporting. Under the plan inaugurated this year no formal tryouts will be held, but men wishing to gain places on the staff will be assigned beats.

At the same time that beats were assigned, organization of the editorial staff was completed. Glenn Holder of Greensboro was elected editor last spring. Will Yarborough of Louisburg is managing editor, and Marion Alexander of Asheville is to continue as business manager. Hal Worth of Raleigh will be student circulation manager.

Members of the editorial staff

(Continued from page two)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.
The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $3.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN P. HOLDER ..... Editor
W. H. YARBOROUGH, JR., Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Business Mgr.

Tuesday, September 24, 1929

TAR HEEL TOPICS

It has been raining almost continually since the freshmen arrived in Chapel Hill. The office wise guy says that probably explains why they are all wet.

Our idea of a brazen cuss is the guy who came over to Alumni to try out for the Magazine staff Sunday night and purloined John Mebane's slicker from the back of the chair occupied by the red headed editor.

Three co-eds were among the 60 or more candidates who attended the tryouts for the Daily Tar Heel staff Sunday night, and the overflow at the co-ed shack has led to occupation of the fourth floor for the first time in the memory of man. Yes sir, things are looking up hereabouts.

The Ancient Fallacy of the "Gentleman's C"

Most undergraduates look with contempt upon the man who habitually makes A's and B's. He is a "greasy grind" or a "damn booter." The folks at home are quite likely to make things uncomfortable if a large number of D's appear on the quarterly scholastic report, while the University authorities have an unpleasant habit of terminating the college careers of those who receive F's frequently. Therefore the "Gentleman's C" is regarded by the average undergraduate as the ideal scholastic mark.

Even the F Student is not much worse off than those who work merely for high grades. Frequently an unintelligent student may make uniformly excellent grades by "boning" himself unmercifully, parroting the professor in language and content of lectures, and learning text books by rote. He is deserving of the open contempt he receives from his classmates and the just as great, but more concealed, scorn of his instructors. But at least an A or B is indicative of honest effort.

The "Gentleman's C" advocate is setting up for himself a standard of mediocrity that offers an excellent excuse for laziness. Moreover, he is breeding a contempt for scholastic achievement that is likely to prove fatal as far as the obtaining of any appreciable amount of real and lasting benefits from college is concerned.

Probably the student who receives most from his four years in college expends just enough honest effort on his courses to receive the maximum grade permitted by his intellectual capabilities and previous training, without sacrificing to his studies the time required for a reasonable amount of physical, extra-curricular and social activities. Unfortunately this type of student is extremely rare.

A large percentage of the undergraduates who should make A's and B's are C, D, and even F men, while many who receive A's and B's are naturally C and D men. In addition, every year hundreds of "students" who lack the requisite intelligence to "know what it is all about" clutter up the classrooms and even manage to hang on long enough to receive their degrees.

But whatever the "ideal" type of student may be, it is certain that it is not the disciple of the "Gentleman's C" fallacy. In most cases he is not even a student.

What Price Tobacco?

Many University students will follow with keen interest the progress of the movement launched in Raleigh Saturday to assist the farmers of the state to secure higher prices for their tobacco. Prices paid for the leaf have been ridiculously low on the markets already in operation, and hundreds of students here will suffer severe financial setbacks as a result.

Reports from the Bright Leaf markets indicate average prices in many instances as low as 14 cents per pound, which does not cover the cost of production. Recently announced statistics of cigarette company profits for the last financial year show that the manufacturing concerns made more money than they ever have before.

Evidently the tobacco buyers are taking advantage of the farmers in the absence of an efficient tobacco growers organization. The dismal failures of the tobacco co-operative associations in the past have reacted to the benefit of the buyers, and they have demonstrated that they are eager to exploit the farmers in every possible manner.

Relief for the growers is imperative. The Daily Tar Heel is is hearty sympathy with the promulgators of the higher price movement. Here's hoping that they put it over with a bang that will burst the ear drums of a few cigarette moguls.

Sophomore Chapel

Boring chapel exercises are the fate of all freshmen. But that sophomores should be forced to attend twice weekly the family gatherings of the first year men is a practice that should no longer be forced upon the program of the already crowded activity of the slowly rallying sophomore.

Benefits surely arise from daily gatherings of new men to hear certain aspects of University life discussed; certain announcements and explanations must be given the freshmen through direct speech; but for sophomores to have to listen to primary instructions again seems certainly a waste of time.

Freedom of action and movement is the ideal toward which Carolina is striving. That force should be employed to make second year men attend chapel is certainly a violation of the spirit of our system.

If certain announcements, such as the meetings of the Di senate, the sale of tickets, Y. notices, and such, which usually constitute a chapel program, must be brought to the notice of the students, why not insert them in the new Daily Tar Heel and thus dispense with this business of sophomore chapel? If certain machinery of the University must be explained to the freshmen, why not call them together and leave out the gallery of sophomores? If interesting programs are to be arranged each day, why not invite the whole student body and insure a crowd by continued excellence?

Being only a sophomore we cannot comprehend the reasoning of the governing authorities who order chapel for us. As a student of this august body, however, we pronounce sophomore chapel, as it is, the most inane and useless practice that we have yet seen on this campus.

J. D. M.

Merely Meandering
by john mebane

We feel rather flattered that the editor asked us to contribute a column to The Daily Tar Heel. "On Tuesdays," he says, and that's all. He might, at least, have warned us about puns and dialectical anfractuosities. But he didn't, and so we must choose between having caustic slabs from the dictionary hurled at us for our platitudes, and having to read letters in the Open Forum on plagarizing from Roget's Thesaurus.

We might endeavor to perfect a mixture of the two; but even that would probably react unpleasantly on professorial stomachs.

We read the other day a selection from an acquaintance (slight) of ours, Alexander Pope, in which he declared that "ten censure wrong for one who writes amiss." If there are many who write a miss as much as our friends have been doing this summer, God help the critics—they are heading for final ruin!

Before any more of you ask us, we'll tell you now that we had a delightful summer, that we're glad to see you back, too, and that if you want to tell us what you did during the holidays, we'll be glad to have you drop us a card. Or a letter. Or a check.

From that we hate to go to verse. But this was inspired. Honest.

YOUTH FLARES UP

Tonight I could hate you
Sitting there,
Curled up calmly in my chair,
Complacent, too.
I could hate you with a hate
Only Satan should create.

You did nothing wrong, you say?
You didn't know—
I'll blame myself; I was too slow.
'Twas my delay—
But next time you may depend
I'll put you out, my feline friend!

That's a short story in rhyme. But we won't impose any more of them; most tales about cats are too long—which is to say, it's fur to the end.

I guess Johnny Weaver won't object if I turn to his style for just about a dozen lines; so, here goes:

YOU GOTTA STOP

I couldn't say I loved you
With that other bozo near.
Sure, you knew I wanted to,
But, see, it's this way, dear:
He came around; I tried to smile
And all I done was frown;
You knew I loved you all the while—
But not with him around!
You make me love you all the more
With little things you do—
O, dear, you gotta stop before
You've torn my heart into!

O, darlin', darlin', can't you see
How much you'll always mean to me?

End.

No Harm Meant

Manager E. Carrington Smith of the Carolina theatre wishes it to be known that the musical equipment installed with the new Vitaphone is synchronized and runs with the film. It was erroneously suggested in Sunday's Tar Heel in Harry Galland's Pen Points that phonograph records were used. This is incorrect.

Those New Yorkers who entrust a half million dollars with almost total strangers are careless to say the least.—Durham Sun.

COUNCIL ENFORCES BAD CHECK RULES

Notice From Dean of Students' Office Warns of Violations.

The procedure involved in the handling of bad checks, worked out by the Student Council and Jeff Fordham for the past three years, will be carried on this year under the direction of J. A. Williams, in 204 South building. This procedure is as follows:

1. When a student gives a check that is returned for any reason, his name is given by the local bank to the Dean of Students office. A notice is delivered to the student, requiring his personal signature for the receipt thereof, together with the time of delivery. The giver of the check is allowed 48 hours from the receipt of the notice to make the check good and bring the cancelled check or a receipt therefor to J. A. Williams. If the check is not made good and the receipt produced within the time specified, the giver is placed on check probation, no matter what the cause of the return of the check. This penalty is given for lack of attention to the 48-hour limit.

2. When the giver carries the cancelled check or a receipt to J. A. Williams, the reason for the return of the check is explained. If it is found that the check was returned due to circumstances within the giver's control, he is placed on check probation. If the check was returned through error or other circumstances not within the control of the student giving it, then the student is excused.

3. If a student does not report within 48 hours after the receipt of the notice, the extreme limit allowed him to report is 10 days. (Will probably be reduced to five this year.) If he does not do so within that time, he is automatically suspended from the University for the remainder of the quarter.

4. When a student is placed on probation, either for giving the bad check when he could have controlled the circumstances causing its return, or for not reporting within the time allowed, a notice of his probation is sent to his parents or guardian, informing them of the reason for his probation.

5. Second offenses draw automatic suspension from the University, with right of appeal to the Student Council. A notice is sent to the offending student, advising him of his suspension, and informing him of the time of meeting of the Council. If his appeal is not made at the first regular meeting after his suspension, he loses his right to appeal and his suspension bcomes absolute. A notice is sent to the Registrar and the Dean of the student expelled, at the time of the expulsion. Last year the duty of hearing these appeals fell upon the President of the Student Body, who set a certain time for hearing appeals, but this year the duty will probably fall upon a less busy member of the Council than Ray Farris.

This procedure, for the past three years, has been very satisfactory. One cafe owner has reported that it has cut down his losses from around $4,000 to less than $200 in that period of time. It is the policy of the University to cooperate with the city merchants in this manner so that the credit of the University students can be maintained. It is gratifying to note that 90 percent of the student checks given are good. Of the ten percent bad checks only one percent are returned due to the fault of the students.

Soph Cabinet to Give Banquet for Frosh Y.M.C.A. Men

Friday night at 6:30 o'clock all Freshmen interested in serving the campus will meet at a banquet to be served in the dining hall of the Methodist Episcopal church, by the women of that church. The gathering is being sponsored by the Sophomore Y. M. C. A. Cabinet.

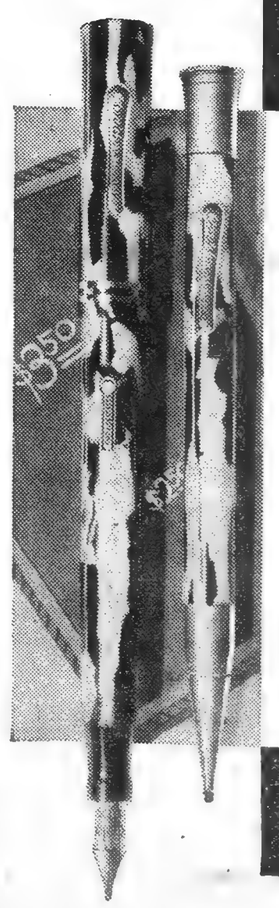
While the call has been issued primarily for ex-Hi Y men, President Dungan of the Sophomore group has made it plain that this banquet is for any one in the class of 1933 who desires to become affiliated with the social service work conducted here by the Y. M. C. A. There are no fees or dues whatsoever. Meetings of the Freshman organization, which will be known as the Freshman Friendship Council, will be held twice each month, while a smaller group chosen from the whole Council and to be known as the Inner Circle will meet once each week.

At the initial banquet Dr. H. W. Chase, president of the University, is scheduled to make the main address. The Y. M. C. A. quartet composed of Jack Connolly, Humphrey Marshall, Steve Lynch, and J. E. Miller, which made more than fifty appearances from various broadcasting stations and platforms throughout the state last year, will give several selections. Lindy Cate and Robert Barnett will render instrumental pieces. The banquet will be presided over by J. E. Dungan, sophomore Y president. Tickets for the event are being sold by Miss Ames in the Y office at 25 cents each. Any ex Hi-Y or sophomore Y man, who wishes, may secure tickets to sell by applying to Miss Ames.

FOR SALE
HUDSON SPEEDSTER
At a very reasonable Price
B. F. MOSER
University Barber Shop

A New Design
Carolina Belt
See It Before You Buy any Other
at
STUDENTS' SUPPLY STORE
Everything in Stationery

Tar Heel Editor Completes Organization of New Staff



(Continued from page one)

will be: John Mebane and Harry Galland, associate editors; J. C. Williams, J. E. Dungan, J. D. McNairy, Joe Jones, Beverly Moore and Dick McGlohon, assistant editors; Crawford McKethan and Joe Eagles, sports editors; Elbert Denning, Edward Yarborough, Sherman Shore and K. C. Ramsay, city editors.

Among those trying out for the staff are: Miss Edna Morissette, Miss Mary Marshall Dunlap, Miss Rose Lintner, William McKee, Nathan Volkman, Stanley Weinberg, Kemp Yarborough, George Stone, William Wall, Horace Ward, E. C. Daniel, Jr., Howard Lee, Louis Brooks, T. E. Marshall, J. D. Lathan, F. T. Phillips, V. W. Toler, H. C. Bridger, R. W. Stonley, Frank Manheim, George French, Al Lansford, Frank Huskins, Charles Rose, Jr., Cabell Philpott, Clyde Dietz, William Shulenberg, Jr., R. T. Martin, W. M. Bell, George Sheram, G. M. Cohen and R. H. Hodgin.

R. R. CLARK
Dentist
Office over Bank of Chapel Hill
PHONE 6251

Collins Faces Serious Problem In Reserve Strength for Line

Lack of Reserve Strength for Line as Tar Heels Enter Final Week of Practice.

The Tar Heels will go into their final week's practice before the opening game with Wake Forest with backfield prospects looking up but with certain question marks written boldly across the face of the line.

At left guard there's a big one. Will the flashy Captain Ray Farris be in shape to play his old crashing, spectacular game? The Tar Heel captain has been out of practice a week with tonsilitis and has not been in any scrimmage so far.

At center there's another. Will the rookie Ned Lipscomb, with his one season's varsity experience, come through at the key post? Or will one of the ambitious sophomores — Gilbreath, Alexander, or Belton?

But that isn't all. The coaches have dosed the line scrimmage out generously, yet found new material almost as scarce as hen's teeth.

It looks as if three weeks' work has been for naught so far as finding new material. The Tar Heels have seven letter linemen, a small number of dependable reserves and a still smaller number of promising sophomores—and these could be spotted pre-season.

The Tar Heels have nine flashy letter backs in camp, plus several nice freshman prospects. The backfield will clearly outrate the line. The problem is how much?

Even a veteran line can't play on quarter after quarter. Substitutions are inevitable. Coach Collins and his partners will be ferreting for new material again this week. If they find it, if they get promising men to supplement veterans Farris, Eskew, Hudson, Koenig, Adkins, Holt and Fenner and the smaller number of promising reserves and sophs—then things will begin to look better, but not before then.

LUFTY WORKS OUT WITH BIG LEAGUE

Former Carolina Captain Returns to University after Try with Cardinals.

The story of the tryout by the St. Louis team of the National League of Nap Lufty, captain of the 1928 Carolina baseball team, was learned today with the return of the star first baseman to the "Hill." The Tar Heel player spent more than two months with the world champions.

Preferring to finish his scholastic career and compete on the Carolina team for another year, Lufty refused to sign a contract with the Cardinals. Branch Rickey, owner of the team, personally offered him a contract with the most liberal conditions, Lufty said today.

Lufty opened the past baseball season with the Martinsville team of the Bi-State League. After only a month's performance with the Virginia team, scouts from big league teams began to notice the playing of the stellar first baseman.

The offer of the St. Louis team to pay expenses for the rest of the year, if he would travel to St. Louis and work out with the team was accepted by Lufty. Once in the Missouri City, he was placed with more than 20 other big league aspirants in a morning contest held daily. His work in this company so impressed officials of the ball team that he was offered a contract. He returned to his home at Greensboro Saturday.

BOXING NOTICE

A meeting will be held in Gerrard Hall Tuesday night at seven o'clock for all Freshmen and varsity men who are interested in boxing, and everyone interested in this sport is cordially invited to attend.

4 LINEMEN LEAD N. C. GRID TEAMS

Brilliant Performers Selected as Captains of Big Five Squads.

Four of the North Carolina Big Five elevens will be captained this fall by linemen, the Wake Forest Demon Deacons being the only outfit to choose a back as its leader. Football fans of this state will recall that this is a very unusual occurrence and one that has not come to pass in many a gridiron campaign between these five ancient rivals.

However for the University of North Carolina, the fact that she has a lineman as her captain is more commonplace than otherwise since for many a season past a member of the forward wall has headed the Blue and White. Ray Farris this year merely follows in logical order after such notables as Morehead and Schwartz.

Over at Duke the Blue Devils have chosen the brilliant Kistler as its captain for 1929. Last year Kistler stepped into the southern spotlight as one of the strongest tackles both on the defense and offense that the South Atlantic, and possibly the entire South, could bring to the forefront. The Devils will use him this year as their highest trump for capturing a position on the mythical All-Southern eleven.

N. C. State also seems to favor tackles, for she too has selected one to head her cause. Captain Lepo must be used as the nucleus for the State line this fall, and upon him will undoubtedly fall much of the brunt of attack and defense. However his work of preceding years causes little doubt to be left in the minds of State advocates that he will be able to fulfill this task to the satisfaction of all.

The Davidson Wildcats chose a Junior to head the "thin red line" during this coming season. There is little doubt that Brock is one of the strongest ends in North Carolina and bids fair to be placed into prominence this fall even more so than in 1928. He follows in the train of the "Bohannon-Pickney clique."

Wake Forest elected her flashiest back of last year to head the Deacons through their struggles this fall, and in choosing Johnny Cox she did not err. Cox is one of the most versatile backs in North Carolina. In the recent game with Catawba he was forced to be absent because of illness in his family; he will however, it is expected, be in togs when the Deacons journey to the Hill this coming Saturday to meet the Heels.

More Co-eds This Year.

The total number of co-eds at the University of North Carolina this year is expected to exceed last year's enrollment by some 40 girls. Registration is not yet complete, and during this week a large number of girls are expected.

The attic of Spencer Hall has been remodeled and is now open to accommodate 17 girls. The Pi Phi house with Mrs. Harding as chaperone has ten girls.

Veteran Guard

Jimmy Hudson letter guard on last year's team will probably be seen in the line when the Heels take the field against the Deacons on Saturday, provided Bud Eskew does not fully recover from the accident suffered yesterday morning. Hudson was a star on the freshman team year before last and proved his worth on the varsity last season.

Coaches Preparing For Stiff Contest

If you believe the Tar Heel football coaches—Messrs. Collins, Cerney and Fetzer—are taking next Saturday's game with Wake Forest lightly, list ye to this true story.

Coach Collins was to take the Tar Heels to see Wake Forest mix with Catawba yesterday but balked at the last minute.

"I didn't want the boys to see them," he explained. "They're pointing for us, and will be loafing against Catawba. If my boys see them playing that way, they may underrate the Wake Forest team and think they have an easy assignment ahead."

Tar Heel followers are wont to regard the Deacons as a mystery team this year, with Pat Miller holding several aces up his sleeve. The Deacon camp has been cloaked in silence, and too, the Deacons have jinxed the Tar Heels too long—7-6, 7-6, 13-0, 9-8 four yars running, 1924 through 1927.

Backfield prospects are shaping up fairly well for the Tar Heels, but the squad has shown woefully lacking in reserve line strength. Coach Collins will probably make another determined search for line material this week, but it's probable he'll bank in the Wake Forest contest on his seven veteran linemen and his small number of tried and proven reserves.

The Wake Forest-Carolina game is drawing much interest, and a large crowd is predicted. The pasteboards are already on sale through the University Athletic Association here, at $2 apiece, and are going fast. The game will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

Noting in the news dispatches that Des Moines university has closed its doors, we are prompted to ask what became of the movement to build that fundamentalist university at Dayton, Tenn.?—Durham Herald.

ATHLETIC PASSES TO BE EXCHANGED FOR TICKETS AT Y

Wake Forest Game Tickets May Be Had Between 10 and 5; Tuesday and Wednesday for Frosh; Thursday and Friday for Others.

(Editor's Note: This is a story sent out from the athletic association to aid the students in exchanging their passes for tickets to the Wake Forest game.)

It is the aim of the athletic association to give the best possible service to the student body in handling reserved seat football tickets. The following program has been mapped out for exchanging student athletic association membership coupons for Carolina-Wake Forest game tickets:

The student ticket exchange office will be open in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday and Wednesday, September 24 and 25, from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m. for freshmen; Thursday and Friday, September 26 and 27, for upperclassmen and graduate students. Each student must present his, or her, own athletic association membership book and have the Wake Forest coupon exchanged for a game ticket. No student will be permitted to get coupons exchanged for other students. Each student will present his student ticket for admission to the game, along with his coupon book for identification.

Student tickets for members of the Medical school and the Law school will be available, along with coupon books, at the offices of the Medical and Law schools Thursday morning.

Student tickets and student membership coupon books can be used only by the member to whom issued. Both are absolutely non-transferable and non-replaceable if lost. Fraudulent use will be penalized by forfeiture of privileges.

Farris Wants Cheerleaders

Ray Farris, president of the student body, announces that all sub-assistant cheer leaders of last year in addition to all other persons interested in trying out for head cheer leader and other positions on Carolina's cheering squad are to meet with Peyton Abbott this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Gerrard Hall.

The actual election will be held shortly after the Wake Forest game.

Owners of dog racers in England are considering the establishment of private training grounds like those for race horses.

LOST

S. A. E. jeweled pin. Finder return to William Thomson, 202 Old East, and receive reward.

FROSH CROSS COUNTRY

All Freshmen wishing to try out for the Freshman Cross-Country Team are requested to report to Coach Dale Ranson at Emerson Field this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Bradshaw Advises Freshmen

There was quite a bit of unnecessary confusion at the opening chapel session Monday morning because most of the new men had trouble in finding their respective seats. After every one was seated, Dean Bradshaw took a few moments to explain the seating arrangement.

He followed this with a short, interesting talk concerning the origin of chapel exercises at the University. According to Dean Bradshaw, chapel was originally held in Gerrard hall at 8:30 every morning. The main purpose of these meetings was to hold prayer and other forms of religious work. This form has evolved into the one now practiced at Carolina. Continuing, he also stated that chapel is now held for two other distinct reasons, namely, to familiarize new men with the campus and its work, and to give every one an opportunity to satisfy any doubt concerning all campus activities.

Following Dean Bradshaw's talk, Mr. Duncan welcomed the new men in behalf of the Y. M. C. A., and explained the freshman friendship council. He also told of the banquet to be held for the benefit of the ex Hi-Y men.

At the close of this welcome, Peyton Abbott led the group in a few yells.

As the closing line Dean Bradshaw gave the following bit of advice to the new men, "Get into the life of the University, play the game according to the rules, and you will be assured of becoming a successful student."

FRESHMAN TENNIS PROSPECTS GOOD

Bryan Grant, Wilmer Hines, and Lenoir Wright are Promising Candidates Judging from past Records.

Freshman tennis stock soared to hitherto unattained heights here yesterday when it became known that Bryan Grant, thrice Southern men's tennis champion, had definitely entered the University. With Wilmer Hines, Southern junior champ, and Lenoir Wright, winner of the Virginia prep title, already here, the prospects for an unusually good season are very rosy indeed.

Grant's choice came as a surprise, for he had not seriously considered entering here until a week ago. At first his acceptance seemed doubtful because of academic deficiencies, but it was learned yesterday that he had registered successfully. Bryan has dominated Southern tennis for three years, winning the 1929 title without the loss of a single set, and his position as number one man on the frosh team is more than assured.

Hines and Wright have both shown classy form in recent practice matches and the second and third berths will be in able hands.

Prospects for the varsity, while not as optimistic, are also good. Yeomans, state collegiate champ, is back and is in great form. Shapiro and Scott, numbers two and three on last year's team, will not be here. Bill Merritt, a letter man, is back, however, and looks good in practice. The varsity will have another capable contender in Sonny Graham, last year's freshman ace.

Coach John F. Kenfield will arrive in October and a fall tournament will be under his management.

SEND THE TAR HEEL HOME

The Alpha and Omega of PERSONALITY in Pens!

What do all those Greek letters mean? Simply this—if you want the limit in pen-personality—you want the new

WAHL-EVERSHARP Personal-Point FOUNTAIN PEN

When you go to the dealer's you try the points till you find the one that writes like you—then you look over the holders till you find just your idea of color, style, and size. Next—the dealer puts point and holder together, instantly, permanently. Result—your personal pen—as personal as your handwriting.

A good companion of the Personal-Point Pen is the Wahl-Eversharp Pencil—standard of the world.

WE INVITE YOUR INSPECTION

OF

Langrock Fine Clothes

PRITCHARD-PATTERSON, Inc.

"University Outfitters"

PLAYMAKERS TO OPEN SEASON'S WORK TONIGHT

Author's Reading for Future Production to Begin at Theatre 7:30 Tonight.

The Playmaker program for the year will open tonight at 7:30 in the Playmaker theatre with an authors' reading of new plays for the first production here. At the same time several old plays will be read for revival on the northern tour.

Five new plays will be read from the following list of new ones which were written last spring and during the summer: Mrs. Katherine Nolan's new play; Magnolia's Man by Mrs. Oscar Coffin; So Individual by Mary Dirnberger; Hully Gee by J. C. Wessell, Jr.; Him That Sitteth by R. G. Walser; Pegleg Scuddergold, by Frank S. Howell; The Devil's Doll by Mary Margaret Russell; and a new play by Fred Greer.

The following old plays are being considered for revival for the northern tour: Fixin's, and The No Count Boy, both by Paul Green, Gaius and Gaius Jr. by Lucy Cobb and Dod Gast Ye Both by Hubert Heffner.

Mr. Koch has requested that all who expect to try out for the plays be present for the authors' reading. Tryouts will be held on September 30. A cordial invitation is extended to all freshmen and old men who may be interested to try out. A committee of five will select the plays to be produced.

Welfare Worker To Visit N. C. Plants

For the purpose of studying the organization and methods of two state institutions located near Kinson, Mr. George H. Lawrence, Superintendent of Public Welfare in Orange county, and Dr. Roy M. Brown, Assistant Director of the University School of Public Welfare, were absent from their offices in Alumni building on Monday.

They were accompanied on the tour of inspection by Miss Gertrude Vaile, graduate student in the Institute for Research in Social Science. Miss Vaile came to Chapel Hill from Iowa, and is prominently known as the former president of the National Conference on Social Work. She expects to receive her Master's Degree from this university.

During its absence of a day, the party will visit the Caswell Training School for the segre-gation and training of the feebleminded. They will also inspect the State Industrial Farm Colony for Women.

Three Members of Same Family Enroll

Another record is believed to have been established last week for the University, when three members of the same family enrolled in the Junior class here.

Thomas Bivens, John Bivens and Sadie Bivens, all brothers and sister, are Juniors in the school of education. Their home is at Monroe, and before coming here they were students at Wingate Junior College.

Thomas and John are rooming on the campus while Miss Bivens rooms on Rosemary street. Thus they have a chance for a family reunion very often.

Co-eds Take Week-end.

Kate Graham of Durham, Josephine Hill of Burlington, Rosy Lazarus of Sanford, Pat Lumpkin of Danville, Va., and Alberta Parrott of Kinston spent the past week-end at their homes.

A monastery to be built at Edinburgh, Scotland, will cost $3,000,000.

BULLITT FINDS FRANCE BITTER

Germans Say That They Will Never Be Able To Pay Reparations.

Dr. J. B. Bullitt, professor of Pathology in the University, has recently returned from a tour of Europe as a Kenan traveling professor. Dr. Bullitt was engaged in this work for about a year and traveled in all the principal countries of the continent. He did much research in connection with his work in the University. Dr. Bullitt attributed the rise of criticism of America in Europe to the "Europeanized Americans" — Americans who have resided abroad for a long period of time.

Professor Bullitt discussed the problem of the German reparations with various classes of German and French citizens. The Germans, he stated, feel that they will never be able to pay the sum that is asked of them by the Allies. They stress the fact that Germany was deprived of all her colonies and nearly all of her natural resources and has no possible way of paying the raparations. They state that the payments so far have mostly been made on borrowed money. In France Professor Bullitt found an entirely different attitude. He states that he found much bitterness in France toward the Germans, and said that the French all hold the Germans responsible for the war and expect them to meet all the reparations installments. He found that they have a different view of their debt to America. He said that although they have agreed to make payment to America, very few of them believe that their country will make an effort to do so.

Dr. Bullitt studied in London for some time and came in contact with many of the leading citizens of Britain. He observed that the American idea that the English are hostile to America is entirely false. He stated that he could find very little of ill-feeling toward America by the English.

Student Orchestra Makes Chapel Hill Year's Headquarters

Mendenhall Band Has Successful Summer in North Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Ohio.

Alex Mendenhall and his Carolina Tar Heels have returned to the University to make Chapel Hill their southern headquarters for another year, after having completed a successful summer season in North Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Immediately following the close of school last spring, the orchestra went into Virginia and played for the finals at Hampden-Sydney, V. O. S., S. T. C., and filled a two week's engagement at the new Ocean Casino, Virginia Beach, Va.

The orchestra will play for the V. M. I. opening dances this week-end.

Co-eds to Entertain New Girls Today

This afternoon from 4:30 to 6 at Spencer Hall the Woman's Association will entertain at the first tea of the year in hon- of the new co-eds, it was announced last night by Kitty Wells, the president. Special entertainment features have been planned by the old students.

Student Vestry to Meet

The Student Vestry of the Chapel of the Cross will meet tonight at the Parish House at 7:15.

University Professors Attend National Meeting

Several members of the Psychology department of the University took an active part in the Ninth International Congress of Psychology, which met at New Haven during the week September 1-7.

Dr. J. F. Dashiell, head of the department, presented a paper at one of the formal morning sessions on a subject in Comparative Psychology. At informal afternoon symposia the following presented reports of their research: Dr. Mabel Goudge and Dr. Harry W. Crane (the former being Mrs. Crane) at the symposium on Abnormal Psychology; Dr. M. R. Trabue at the one on General Intelligence and Dr. J. F. Dashiell at those symposia devoted to the Effects of Drugs, Social Psychology and Psycho-galvanic responses. Dr. A. M. Jordan also participated in some of the discussions.

This is the first time that the Congress has met in America and it afforded the men who were there an unusual opportunity to meet many renowned foreign psychologists.

Dr. Henderson Will Speak At Kentucky Dedication

(Continued from page one)

Virginia had embraced its Kentucky holdings.

Dr. Henderson will be aided in unveiling the tablets by Judge Robert W. Bingham, Louisville publisher. It is interesting to note that Dr. Henderson and Judge Bingham are both descendants of members of the Transylvania company; Dr. Henderson being descended from Colonel Henderson, and Judge Bingham from James Hogg.

Complete List of Press Books Is Announced

(Continued from page one)

pears in this group is Joseph C. Jones, illustrator for The Tree Named John, a negro folklore collection by John B. Sale. Since being discovered at a comparatively recent date, Jones has won "a very special sort of recognition for the beauty and delicacy and the artistry of his scissors work." He has made seven full-page silhouettes and a number of head-and-tail pieces for this volume. The excellence of his work has created a sizeable demand for his services. He is only 20 years old.

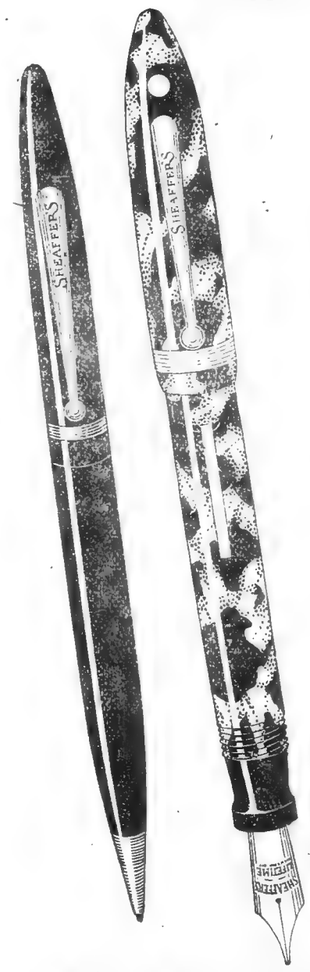
The book itself is as admirable as its illustrations. The author, a Mississippian, is described as having a rare insight into the rich human values that the material of his book incorporates. Sale's stories, the animal tales especially, are declared by advance readers to surpass Uncle Remus. This book is at the present moment ready for distribution.

It would be difficult to imagine a more spectacular or romantic career than that of Francisco de Miranda, Precursor and Knight-Errant of Spanish American liberty, who is the hero of Professor William Spence Robertson's The Life of Miranda. Illustrated with over 30 portraits, the story, in two volumes, will appear in November. There will also be printed on Japan paper and in a special binding an edition of 105 copies signed by the author who is professor of history in the University of Illinois. Mr. Robertson, by reason of his prominence in Latin-American historical research, is also a member of the board of editors for the Inter-American series to be published by the association.

Guy B. Johnson, of the local institute for research in social science, who collaborated with Howard W. Odum in The Negro and His Songs and Negro Workaday Songs has tracked down the negro legend of John Henry and has presented his findings in his book Afro-American Folklore. This book is ready for sale.

Applying Carlyle's well-known theory that history is the essence of innumerable biographies, Philip Alexander Bruce has given us The Virginia Plutarch in two volumes which will be off the press by October 30. Recognized as an authority on colonial history, Mr. Bruce has contrived to give the full amazing sweep of American history as it was made and participated in by thirty-three eminent Virginians.

Besides the foregoing publications there are six other books equally as powerful if perhaps less spectacular in the new list: Human Factors in Cotton Culture, an analitical, yet sympathetic, study of the south as ruled by that monarch; King Cotton, written by Rupert P. Vance, a member of the research staff in the University social science institute; The Schools of England, edited by J. Dover Wilson in the University of London, King's College, England; The Seventeenth Century Sheriff, discussing a broad field of local government and its background of English tradition and local environment divergencies, written by Cyrus H. Karraker, a member of the Birmingham-Southern College faculty; a book written in criticism of the present Dark Age of American Scholarship by Professor Norman Foerster of the University faculty, called The American Scholar; and an excellent study of folk life in Jamaica, which was written by Martha Warren Beckwith of the Folk-lore Foundation of Vassar College. The information for the latter book was gained through actual research and study among the Jamaican negroes. It is absolutely devoid of sensationalism, and most powerful in its simplicity.



Officials of the Press Association wish to have particular interest directed towards their efforts to produce books for the improvement of the minds of North Carolinians. In conjunction with this program, they are planning to popularize and add to the series of books about North Carolina and for North Carolinians, dealing with varied phases of government, economics and in problems of social welfare. The list of these books of this group is available at the rooms of the association.

Eubanks Drug Company

Prescription Specialist Since 1892

At U. of N. C.

Sheaffer leads in actual sales!

In this day of lectures and themes the student's pen must be swift and dependable to catch a usable picture of class instruction. That's why Sheaffer's school standing is so interesting; Sheaffer leads in sales to students* at 73 of the 119 foremost American universities and colleges. One reason for such dominance is the permanence and reliability of Sheaffer's Lifetime°. So durable, so well built is this smooth-writing pen that we guarantee it without hesitation for your entire life . . . against everything except loss! Write with Sheaffer's Balanced Lifetime°, note its smartly molded lines and the balanced "feel" that gives it flashing performance and makes long themes short. You'll understand its leadership and give it your vote, too!

*Recently a disinterested organization surveyed the college pen market and proved Sheaffer the undisputed sales leader. Documents covering this investigation are available to anyone.

At better stores everywhere

All fountain pens are guaranteed against defects, but Sheaffer's Lifetime° is guaranteed unconditionally for your life, and other Sheaffer products are forever guaranteed against defect in materials and workmanship. Green and black Lifetime° pens, $8.75; Ladies', $7.50 and $8.25. Black and pearl De Luxe, $10.00; Ladies', $8.50 and $9.50. Pencils, $5.00. Others lower.

SHEAFFER'S

PENS · PENCILS · DESK SETS · SKRIP

W. A. SHEAFFER PEN COMPANY · Fort Madison, Iowa, U.S.A.

°Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. © W. A. S. P. CO., 1929

SAFETY SKRIP, Successortoink, 50c. Refills, 3 for 25c. Practically non-breakable, can't spill. Carry it to classes!

Exhibition HERE At CAROLINA DRY CLEANERS Today and Tomorrow

Harry Kuster, Rep.

THE FINCHLEY Establishments

NEW YORK CHICAGO

THE MODEL SKETCHED OFFERS AN EXAMPLE OF THE TYPE OF GARMENT CONSIDERED MOST EFFECTIVE FOR FALL USAGE AMONG COLLEGE MEN. THE LINES ARE ENTIRELY CORRECT AND FOLLOW AUTHORITATIVE DICTATION. THE VARIETY OF WEAVES FROM WHICH SELECTIONS MAY BE MADE IS VERY BOUNTIFUL. INTEREST IS ALSO SOLICITED FOR CRAVATS, SHIRTS, WOOLIES, HATS, CAPS, FOOTWEAR AND VARIOUS OTHER INCIDENTALS OF CORRECT DRESS.

Report Circulation Complaints
TAR HEEL OFFICE
8:30-9:30 A. M.

The Daily Tar Heel

JUNIOR SMOKER
Tonight 9 O'clock
SWAIN HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1929 — NUMBER 5

Fraternities Send Invitations To Frosh Through Deans Office

Fraternities Must Send Cards To Dean of Students' Office Today Inviting Frosh to Visit On Friday and Saturday.

The first steps toward rushing season, somewhat altered in form from those of previous years, will be taken today by the various Greek orders now existing on the Hill when lists of desired freshmen are sent in by the fraternities to the dean of students. The dean will then send cards to the men invited by the fraternities. The freshmen must visit the houses to which they are invited sometime between the hours of 2 and 12 p. m. Friday or between 7 and 12 p. m. Saturday. Failure to appear at those houses to which he is invited will bar the offender from joining any fraternity during the time that he is a student at the University of North Carolina.

Because of the fact that the rushing period this year is shorter than those of previous years the rushing will naturally be more intensive. A freshman can easily make his dates for the entire season with the first two fraternities that he visits and such is heartily discouraged by the inter-fraternity council. Freshmen are urged to go slowly in making their decisions—in other words "keep your heads up."

Both freshmen and members of fraternities have been warned of the period of silence that now exists. Breaking of this rule is likely to bar any freshman from fraternities and subject the fraternity to a fine of a hundred dollars. Rushing is defined as entertaining, engaging in social conversation, or in any kind of communication whatsoever with the exception of formal salutations.

Church Conference Commences Today

More than ninety clergy and laymen of the state will convene Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Chapel of the Cross for the annual fall conference of the Diocese of North Carolina. The clergy and laymen will meet in separate conventions but will participate in the same programs.

Approximately 35 clergy are expected for the opening session Wednesday night. Following a continuous meeting Thursday the clergy will leave to make way for the laymen. About 50 laymen have signified their intentions of attending the sessions of the Diocese.

Addresses by Bishops Edwin A. Penick, Charlotte, and Joseph Blount Cheshire, Raleigh, will feature the program. Other speakers are Dr. Lewis B. Franklin, New York; Rev. W. Brooke Stabler, Worcester, Mass.; and Rev. L. F. Kent, formerly archdeacon of the Yukon.

The purpose of the convention is to study the mission work of the Episcopal Church in the United States and in foreign countries. Reports on the various phases of this work will be made by committee chairmen.

Services in the church Thursday night will be held in connection with the conference. Rev. W. H. Milton, Wilmington, who will conduct the services, will speak on "The World Mission of Christianity."

JUNIOR SMOKER TO BE HELD AT SWAIN TONIGHT

First Smoker for Class of 1931 Will Be Held Tonight at 9 O'clock; Carolina Tar Heels to Play.

President Hudson of the Junior class announces that the first class smoker of the year will be held tonight at nine o'clock in Swain Hall. All juniors are urged to attend.

Dean Hibbard and Ray Farris, captain of the varsity football team and president of the student body, will be the speakers of the occasion while Alex Mendenhall and his Tar Heel Boys have been engaged to provide the music. Refreshments will be served during the course of the evening.

The feminine element of the class are especially invited to this event and it is hoped that many will attend.

Y CABINETS HOLD FIRST MEETINGS

Talks by Officials Feature Opening.

A very important meeting of the three Y. M. C. A. cabinets was held Monday night in the parlor of the Y at 7:15 for the purpose of talking over the work to be done during the coming year.

Vice-President J. A. Lang, presiding in the absence of Jimmie Williams who was in bed with a chest cold, gave a very boosting talk on "The Weak Spots in the Cabinet Organization That Should Be Strengthened." His talk, being a general boost to the cabinet members for the new year, gave the members a general idea of what was to be expected of them during the year 1929-30.

The other speakers included Aubrey Perkins, who gave a very interesting talk on the freshman (cabinet) council, outlining very nicely the work planned for the new men this year, and Ed Hamer who gave a short talk, giving the treasurer's report of the cabinet. Mr. Comer, general secretary of the Y, explained fully some of the organization problems and also announced some of the big speakers and some of the other features on the program for the coming year.

This meeting helped to get the cabinets off to a good start and will probably be the beginning of a very successful year for the Y.

Norman Foerster Publishes New Book

In yesterday's list of forthcoming books of the University Press, The American Scholar by Norman Foerster was omitted through error. The first copies of this book will be here in about a week.

Mr. Foerster is one of Carolina's best known men in a national field; for many years he has devoted his life to scholarship and criticism. The forthcoming book is an address he delivered here to the graduate students. Already the book has elicited some comment, and its publication is anticipated with keen pleasure.

PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS HAVE MORE THAN 400

Medical School Has Capacity Registration; Lawyers Lead.

The enrollment in the professional schools of the University is well over 400.

That means that one out of every seven students is registered in either the school of law, medicine, pharmacy or applied science.

The school of medicine has a full house. There are 40 enrolled as first-year students, 40 as second-year, two as special, and one as a graduate, making a total of 83. This number included four women—two in the first-year class and two in the second-year class.

The school of pharmacy shows 63 registered for the Ph. G. degree, which is a three-year course. All applicants for the B. S. degree in pharmacy register in the school of applied science. The total number is more than eighty.

In the law school there are 42 registered in the first-year class. This includes Miss Cornelia E. Frizzell of Snow Hill, who is the only co-ed in the law school. The second year class shows 37 and the third 33, making a total of 112.

The freshman class in the school of enginering has 110 enrolled, showing a 30 percent increase over last year. There are enough upperclassmen in the engineering school to raise the total number of professional students well over the 400 mark.

Dr. Howard W. Odum Goes To Washington

Dr. Howard W. Odum, director of the University's institute for research in the social sciences, will spend this coming week-end in Washington to confer with a group of social scientists with reference to some country-wide research projects, whose subjects will shortly be announced at Washington.

Dr. Chase Announces Gift of Organ To University by Unnamed Donor

$40,000 Is Available for Organ and Addition to old Library for Auditorium.

TRUSTEES MEET

Local Architects Working on Plans for Remodelling Library.

The executive committee of trustees of the University of North Carolina met in Raleigh yesterday with Governor O. Max Gardner and approved the appointment of two new professors, heard an optimistic report by Harry W. Chase, and was notified of another gift of $40,000 by an unnamed alumnus.

The $40,000 gift was made available by the same party who some time ago offered the University $30,000 with which to purchase an organ. No suitable place for the organ has been found and the donor offered the additional sum for the purpose of erecting an auditorium addition to the old Carnegie library, which is now being refitted for a music hall. The organ would be placed in the addition, which would seat 800 people. The executive committee approved the plan and architects will see if the addition can be made.

The University architects, Atwood & Nash, Inc., in consultation with Dr. H. S. Dyer, Professor T. S. McCorkle and Professor N. O. Kennedy, of the music department, have made tentative plans for the auditorium addition to the old library building, which is now being converted to the uses of the school of music. These plans show an addition 101 feet long and 61 feet wide to the rear, or west, of the building, the architecture of which is in keeping with the design of the old part.

As is well known, the stack room of the old library building was thoroughly fireproof. This stack room, 28 by 57 feet, is incorporated as a part of the auditorium, giving a hall 82 feet by 58 feet by 32 feet high, with seating accommodations for about 800 people. The stage occupies a space 47 feet by 58 feet, of which 32 feet by 49 feet is visible to the audience, the remainder, at the rear, being used, on the main floor, for dressing and toilet rooms, above which are four large chambers for the accommodation of the organ. The rear partition of the stage is composed in a large part of grills, through which the sound of the organ will be heard.

The blower room for the organ wind is located in the basement, and special precautions are being taken to prevent the sound of the blower being heard about the building.

The stage floor is level, for use for recital purposes, and is to have removable seats rising in tiers at the back, for use by the glee club, the A Capella choir, the University band, concert band and the University orchestra.

The best advice obtainable is being utilized to make the auditorium acoustically correct, and the entire building is being designed around the requirements of a first-class organ installation.

Natural ventilation, only, with windows and ventilators in the ceiling, is being considered for

(Continued on page four)

Member Hoover's Law Enforcement Group Visits University

Administration for Carolina's institute for research in the social sciences was expressed to Dr. Harry W. Chase last Saturday by a member of President Hoover's commission on law enforcement and observance, Col. Henry W. Anderson, who is chairman of the sub-committee on causes of crime. Col. Anderson, who spent Friday and Saturday at the University, also conferred with Dr. Howard W. Odum, director, and other members of the institute, in Alumni hall, Friday night, with reference to the institute's studies in crime in North Carolina and neighboring states. The institute, at Col. Anderson's suggestion, will be ready to assist President Hoover's commission in the future.

Among the members of the institute who attended the conference were Dr. Roy M. Brown, Dr. T. J. Woofter, Jr., Dr. Rupert B. Vance, Dr. Lee M. Brooks, Dr. Katharine Jocher, Miss Gertrude Vaile, Marry L. Herring, Dr. Guy B. Johnson, H. P. Brinton and J. P. McConnell.

Mrs. Mosher to Visit University Women's Clubs

Mrs. E. R. Mosher, state president of the North Carolina division of the American Association of University Women, will speak at the opening meeting of the branches in High Point, Winston-Salem, Charlotte, and Statesville.

Mrs. Mosher will discuss the national conference on adult education. She was a delegate from the University at the last meeting of the conference.

The speaking engagements are scheduled as follows: High Point, September 26; Winston Salem, September 27; Charlotte, October 2; and Statesville, October 3.

BUCCANEER HOLDS INITIAL MEETING

Thirty Freshmen and Upperclassmen Attend First Assemblage Since Edson Became Editor.

Some thirty freshmen and upperclassmen attended the initial meeting of the art and editorial staff of the Buccaneer. More than half of the men competing for positions on the staff were artists. As has been the policy in previous years no regular method or procedure is used to try out men for the staffs. Any student in the University is permitted and urged to make contributions, either of an art or literary nature, to the Buccaneer and those that do exceptional work will be awarded places on the staff.

The Buccaneer is the college humorous publication. It is issued eight times a year. The first issue which will appear on or around October the 15th will be the "Pigskin" Number and will be devoted exclusively to football. The deadline for all copy and drawings for the first number is October the 3rd. The second number which will appear in November will be the "Aviation Number" and the last number of the Fall Quarter will be the "Christmas Number."

The type of material used by the Buccaneer is one and two line jokes; humorous poems, stories and short sketches; captions for drawings; and cartoons and art sketches. Any student interested in working on the Buccaneer staff should get in touch with Cy Edson, editor, either at the Buccaneer office or at the Chi Phi House.

Southern To Operate Trains to Tech Game

The Southern Railway company has recently announced that it will operate special sleeping cars from Greensboro and other points in North Carolina to Atlanta, Ga., to accomodate the football fans who are planning to attend the Carolina-Georgia Tech game October 11 and the Georgia-Yale game at Athens, Ga., October 12.

The special sleepers will leave Greensboro Thursday night, October 10, and will arrive in Atlanta some time during the following morning. The train will leave Atlanta Friday night and will arrive in Athens the next morning, then it will leave Athens Saturday night and and will arrive in Greensboro some time Sunday morning.

Three special cars have already been booked for Greensboro, and indications from Raleigh and Charlotte are that four or five special cars will leave North Carolina.

Notice To Graduate Students

Graduate students are requested to note the fact that Tuesday, October 1, has been set as the last day for the approval of applications for the Ph. D degree at the 1930 commencement. The date is given in the Graduate School catalogue as September 27, but the time has been extended to the first of October.

P. U. Board Holds First Session Monday Night; Fills Vacancies

The Publications Union board, the business organization behind all of Carolina's editors and business managers, rolled up its sleeves at its first session this year and got down to some real work.

Clyde Dunn of Kinston and J. E. Dungan of Chapel Hill were unanimously chosen president and secretary of the board. The group moved to notify Ray Farris, president of the student body, that due to a vacancy caused by the resignation of B. Moore Parker of Raleigh it would be necessary for a third student member to be appointed or elected to membership on the board by the student body.

Will Yarborough of Louisburg was appointed by the board to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of George Ehrhart of Jackson who served the board last year as managing editor of the Tar Heel.

Arrangements have been completed to permit C. H. Herring of Raleigh to distribute the entire circulation of the campus publications.

The editor and business manager of the Buccaneer, the college humor magazine, have been instructed that in case the delivery of that publication to its subscribers is delayed their salary shall have been deemed to have been unearned.

J. M. Lear, treasurer of the organization, reported that an audit of the accounts of the board was in progress and that a copy would be furnished the student body as soon as it was completed. It was moved to publish the results of the audit in the Daily Tar Heel.

After a detailed discussion of ways and means to finance the Daily Tar Heel, which paper is expected to run a deficit during the first year of its existence, a motion was made to adjourn.

Meetings will be held occasionally during the year as called for by the finances and administration of the publications warrants them. The membership of the board will be composed of Clyde Dunn, president; J. E. Dungan, secretary; J. M. Lear, treasurer; Oscar J. Coffin, adviser, and an additional member elected by the students or appointed by the president of the student body.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.
The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $3.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN P. HOLDER ..... Editor
W. H. YARBOROUGH, JR., Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Business Mgr.

Wednesday, September 25, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

Add to the list of modern tropes: busted as a Florida bank.

The notorious Chapel Hill mud has been remarkably scarce on the University campus this year, even after a week of almost constant rain. Perhaps the mud-slinging episode last spring accounts for the shortage.

The News and Observer lino man who set up President Chase's speech to read "the acquisition of knowledge is the main objection of a college education" instead of the "main objective" is evidently a college graduate himself.

At the University of Nebraska a fence 15 feet high has been erected around the women's building. It would take a great deal more than a 15-foot fence to keep the Carolina Don Juans out of Spencer, and still more to keep the co-eds in.

The Music Department Gets a Boost

The executive committee of the University board of trustees was notified at its meeting in Raleigh yesterday of a gift which will have an important effect on the future development of the music department. An unnamed alumnus has donated $40,000 for the purpose of erecting an auditorium addition to house the music department. Recently the same alumnus donated $30,000 for the purchase of an organ, which will be installed in the new auditorium.

A few years ago the music department exerted little influence upon the campus. One of two men constituted the faculty, the department was housed in lamentably inadequate quarters, and very few students were attracted to the University by the music courses. Within the past two or three years the department has been vastly improved, however. Under the direction of Professor Harold Dyer there is every indication that the department this year will surpass all previous periods in the expansion and improvements.

In all probability the new organ, which will be one of the finest in the country, will attract many students here. Concerts will probably be given frequently, and the addition to the old library building will provide something that the University has been woefully in need for many years—a suitable auditorium for the presentation of musical programs.

Prospects are indeed bright for the development of a music department here that will perhaps eventually attract as much favorable attention as the graduate school and others of the University's strongest units. A considerable portion of the credit for this forthcoming development will be due the unnamed alumnus who modstly refuses to allow the public to honor him as the donor of the new organ and auditorium.

The New Heelers And Mag Men

Over fifty aspiring journalists attended the tryouts for the Daily Tar Heel staff Sunday night, while approximately half that number were out for the Magazine staff. A healthy interest in campus literary and journalistic endeavor was indicated.

It is true that college magazines and newspapers contain a great deal of material that represents at best rather puerile attempts to impart an impression of ultra-sophistication, but they provide workshops which afford facilities for the development of an attribute notoriously foreign to the average American youth—the ability to write. Whether the new Tar Heel and Magazine men possess the capabilities essential to the development of a worthwhile journalist or literary worker remains to be determined, but they have the prime requisites—interest and ambition.

The editors have been considerably cheered by the gratifying response to the calls for new men. If the candidates for the staffs demonstrate the ability and willingness to work that their initial efforts give promise of, at least two of the campus publications will be in better condition this year than they have in many a moon.

The University's Home-Coming Week

North Carolina will celebrate in October a Home-Coming Week, during which time all of her native sons and former residents will be welcomed back to the state. The University is sponsoring at the same time a phase of the more extensive state-wide program here in Chapel Hill. Of course the local program will attract, in the main, Carolina alumni. However, a public invitation has been issued to the state-at-large.

Elaborate plans have already been made for the week-end of the Georgia-Carolina football game. Besides the game, there will be the dedication of the new library, a Playmaker performance, and union services on Sunday conducted by Dr. Shailer Matthews, the distinguished head of religion in the University of Chicago. It is also understood that several other notable features are being planned. Such a program will no doubt be of great interest to the alumnus.

The future alumnus, the undergraduate, usually—whenever he hears of an event of this sort—looks upon it indifferently as a mere formality. Home-Coming Week, however, is far from such, for its success is of vital interest to the University as a whole in that it is an opportunity for closer contact with its alumni. The student can be of great service in carrying out the program, not only by being actively interested during the actual celebration of the event, but by creating an interest in that section of the state from which he comes and by keeping in touch with the alumni he knows.

Home-Coming Week will be a success if both past and present men co-operate. The undergraduate could, if he would, assume an important position in carrying out the program which the University has determined upon.

B. C. M.

Correction

The Tar Heel Staff wishes to acknowledge an error in quoting in its columns the name of a negro folk-lore book by Guy B. Johnson. The title of the volume is "John Henry," not "Afro-American Folk-lore" as was printed in Tuesday's issue of the paper.

IN THE WAKE OF NEWS

J. E. Dungan

Good Morning! The author of the Wake bids you welcome back to the Hill and the Old grind.

You know, we have a persistent idea that when J. D. Bullock and his Inter-Fraternity Council declare open season on freshmen this year, the Greeks will have to date at Memorial Hall instead of Patterson's. You may not remember that there are four new houses being built that some one has to pay for, and that means rushing business.

Poor Little freshmen with glorified ideas about fraternity life. They'll learn and pay for their lessons, too.

It's the freshman that pays and pays in the end or rather we should say on the end.

H. J. G. in his column remarks the many changes around these parts, but we notice by the amount of publicity the Playmakers are spreading that they at least are still the same old group.

And the laundry! Still the same old laundry. Two shirts for one.

The Phi opened its doors to a monstrous meeting last night which was announced as a meeting to "conduct business of considerable importance." The business of considerable importance this year as in recent years for the Phi, as well as the Di, will be the collection of dues from members other than freshmen, and that literally is a real literary task.

J. C. Williams says that the average freshman comes to the Hill "bent on education." The trouble with the rest of us is that we are bent by education.

We hope that the Debate Council will finally get through making plans and get off the front page. It's time to hear about our chances for a successful grid season or something new.

In a rather naive way our paper chornicles how "after the regular show Friday night, Manager E. C. Smith turned the Carolina theatre over to the freshmen. 'Fast Life' was shown free to a packed house." Strange as it may seem the Carolina was really packed and at a free show at that.

The Lenoir News-Topic devotes a half column of snappy writing to the activities of the Nimrods of its vicinity, and headlines the story "Squirrel Season Opens With Bang."

The Stanley News of Albemarle gives a well known holy man of our vicinity an upper right hand three-column spread—"Cyclone Mack Begins Meeting in Albemarle Sunday," then a second head does a little prognosticating—"To be held in tabernacle on lot opposite high school; Evangelist to arrive Saturday. To last six weeks." But they've got Old Cyclone wrong down in Albemarle. He's a tough old bird, and will last for a good many years yet.

About the most ironical item brought to the Wake's attention this week is an advertisement in the Union Herald published in Raleigh. A certain Mr. S. Berwanger, whose business sagacity we have no reason to doubt, advertised last week to the "starving masses" that he had for sale some Stetson hats priced at $8.50 and up, and some Schobles at $7.50 and up.

The Associated Press has a beautiful one in this week's stuff. Their Sydney, Australia, correspondent reported that "Fighting 'Billy' Hughes, hero of numerous political battles, has gained new fame for agility and quick judgment. He escaped unscathed from flying pachyderms at the first wrestling match he ever attended." The next time you attend a wrestling match beware of "flying pachyderms." We are not aware at this writing of whether these "flying pachyderms are in any way related to a certain legendary bird that is reputed to fly over Mobile.

Engineering School Enrollment Larger Than Was Expected

In spite of the fact that this past year has been one of apparent hard times, the school of engineering has a larger registration this fall than it has ever had before. The freshman class is 30 percent larger than that of last year, and the other classes have the usual number of re-registrations.

"We thought that we would have a smaller registration, but there has been a greater increase in enrollment that ever before," said G. M. Braune, dean of the school of engineering, when interviewed yesterday. "There are about 250 men enrolled in engineering courses, an increase of about 12 percent over the registration of last year."

"The newly installed aeronautical course, a brance of the mechanical engineering course, is not responsible for the additional enrollment," said Mr. Braune, "for the greater part of the increase in enrollment is shown in the freshman class."

A list of the number of students in each class shows the following: there are 53 sophomores, about the usual percentage of last year's class returning; 46 of last year's sophomores returned to make the junior class this year of average size; and 33 seniors came to the Hill to complete their courses and to obtain degrees next spring.

These, together with the largest number graduate students ever to attend the engineering school, make a total of about 250 students registered in this branch of the University.

Since the school of engineering was first authorized as a separate school by the board of trustees of the University in June, 1922, the enrollment of this school has steadily increased until it now constitutes about 10 percent of the entire student body. It is significant that while the total registration of the University has increased from 2504 last year to 2559 this year, an increase of only 55, half of this increase is shown in the school of engineering. Whether this indicates that engineering is taking a larger place in the minds of prospective students or not is uncertain, but it does show that a larger percentage of the entire student body is now registered in the school of engineering than ever before.

Alterations Made For Engineers In Phillips Hall

To facilitate instruction of the larger classes in drawing this year, the mechanical drawing room in Phillips Hall has been divided into two smaller rooms and the office of G. Wallace Smith, instructor in drawing, has been placed between the two rooms.

In making these alterations a door was cut into the hall from the office and a window filled in. Blackboards were placed in the south room, and the bridge model in the hall was moved to the opposite side of the corridor.

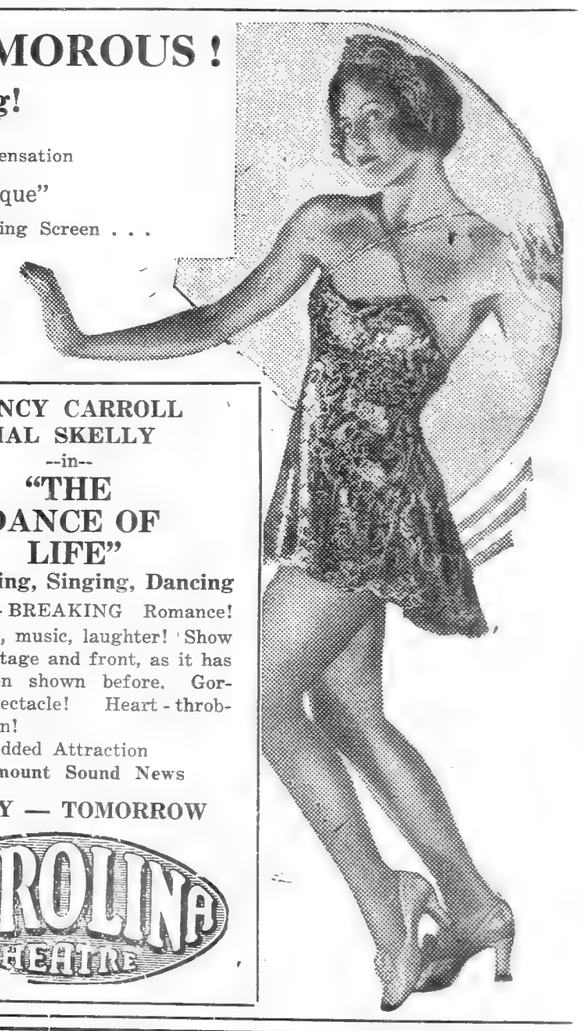
Freshman Y Meets

Tickets for the annual fall organization banquet of the Freshman Friendship Council are on sale at Miss Ames' office in the Y building at twenty-five cents each. The banquet is being given in the Methodist church at six-thirty o'clock Friday night. All ex-Hi-Y men who have signed up for the banquet are notified that they must buy your tickets before Thursday night.

State Sunday School Convention To Meet

Beginning Wednesday night, October 2, and continuing through Friday night, October 4, the annual state Sunday School Convention under the auspices of the North Carolina Sunday School Association, will be held at the First Baptist Church in Raleigh. General sessions of the convention will be held on Wednesday night, October 2, and Thursday and Friday mornings and nights, October 3 and 4. The afternoons of Thursday and Friday will be given over to departmental conferences.

Among the out-of-state Sunday School specialists who have already accepted places on the convention program are Dr. Percy R. Hayward, Chicago, Ill., director of young people's work for the International Council of Religious Education; and Elizabeth McE. Shields, Richmond, Va., director of children's work for the Sunday School Board of Southern Presbyterian Church.



The program for the convention is being arranged by a committee composed of the following officers of the North Carolina Sunday School Association, with Miss Flora Davis, general superintendent of the association, serving as chairman: J. B. Ivey, Charlotte, state president; L. W. Clark, Spray, chairman of the executive committee; E. B. Crow, Raleigh, treasurer; and vice-presidents, Dr. John B. Wright of Raleigh, Dr. C. M. Van Poole of Salisbury, T. W. Costen of Gatesville, Thomas P. Pruitt, Hickory.

Frosh Seeks Raincoat

Newspapermen may be indebted to a Carolina freshmen for a novel method of advertising. It was raining when the new men arrived at the University. And it was raining the next day when the following advertisement appeared on the Swain Hall bulletin board: "Lost during the rainstorm yesterday, a yellow slicker. Finder be kind, or weather be kinder."

Australia has increased the import duty on movie films.

GLAMOROUS!
Dazzling!
The Stage Sensation
"Burlesque"
On the Talking Screen . . .
With a Broadway Chorus Of 100

NANCY CARROLL
HAL SKELLY
--in--
"THE DANCE OF LIFE"
All Talking, Singing, Dancing
HEART-BREAKING Romance! Gayety, music, laughter! Show life, backstage and front, as it has never been shown before. Gorgeous spectacle! Heart-throbbing action!
Added Attraction
Paramount Sound News
TODAY — TOMORROW
CAROLINA THEATRE

Carolina Men—
LET A CAROLINA MAN
Furnish Your House
Living Room Suites
Beds — Springs
Mattresses — Blankets
Tables — Chairs
Stoves — Rugs
R. E. Quinn & Company
318 E. Chapel Hill Street
Durham, N. C.
R. E. QUINN, JR., Partner

Coach Collins Makes Changes To Strengthen Tar Heel Line

Thompson Replaces Adkins In Scrimmage; Eskew's Berth Now Open; Center Still Undecided.

Last-minute shifts in the Tar Heel line appeared likely today as the Tar Heels pushed their final week's program of preparation for Saturday's opening game with Wake Forest carded for 2:30 o'clock in Kenan stadium here.

Head Coach Chuck Collins started Monday when he moved George Thompson, scrappy 190-pound sophomore tackle, from left to right tackle and put him through scrimmage with the first string line, while Pot Adkins, letterman, held the bench.

Adkins is big and a good tackle, but he hasn't been showing particularly well this season. It may be the coaches think he's loafing. At any rate a sophomore named Thompson from down Goldsboro way is giving him a merry race.

Right guard is open too. Bud Eskew, veteran claimant, sustained scalp injuries in a week-end motor accident that will keep him out of togs for probably two weeks. Jimmy Hudson, 175-pound letterman, is his likely successor. Ellis Fysal, 188-pound reserve, has been showing well also, however, and he or other rookies might get the call.

Center is still undecided. Ned Lipscomb, tall and hefty Greensboro boy, has a season's experience on three sophomore candidates and a slight edge to date. He is a better passer, but Red Gilbreath and Tom Alexander have both been showing well in scrimmage, and any of the three might get the call. Belton, Mount Airy product, is a good prospect, too.

The other posts are fairly well settled with veterans. Don Holt and Julian Fenner seem assured of their old end positions. Captain Ray Farris, triple-threat guard, is back in togs, and if tonsilitis lets him alone, he seems a certain starter, as also Bill Koenig, 190-pound veteran tackle.

Harry A. Franck's first book for boys and girls, "Marco Polo, Junior," will be published by Century on September 20. The Century publishers announce that their juvenile headliner, "A Child's Geography of the World" by V. M. Hillyer, author of the popular "A Child's History of the World," will be ready on October 11.

TENNIS TEAM TO MISS LETTERMEN

Captain Merritt and Ed Yoemans Only Lettermen Returning; Good Prospects from Sophs, However.

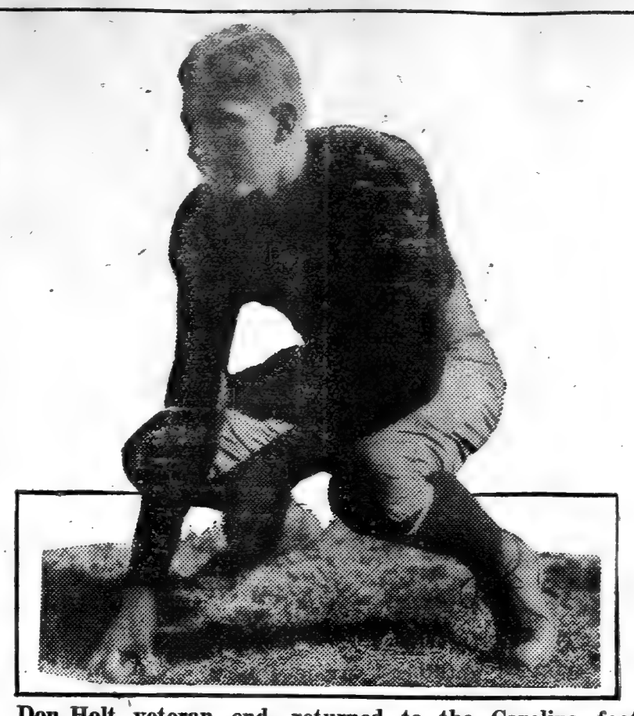
So far as can be ascertained there will be only two lettermen returning for the varsity tennis team this season. They are Bill Merritt, Captain, and Ed Yoemans, state intercollegiate champion. While this does not point to a very strong team, it is thought that with reserves and on-coming freshmen a fine team will be formed.

Bil Scott, John Norwood, and Charlie Waddell of last year's team will be sorely missed this year. Norton Shapiro, who paired with Bill Merritt and captured the state doubles crown last year, has not enrolled in the University this quarter, but there is a possibility of his return in the winter quarter. His return would greatly strengthen the team.

Among the likely candidates from last year's reserves are Norman Bryan and A. M. Rhett. Sonny Graham, the best of last year's Freshmen, will also make a strong bid for the team. Hendlin, Liskin, and Wilmot of the former Freshman team have not returned to the campus.

Abbott Issues Call For 1930 Wrestlers

Peyton Abbott, freshman wrestling coach, has issued a call for all first-year students who are interested in trying out for positions on the 1930 wrestling squad and team.



Tryouts will begin at 4 o'clock next Monday afternoon in the Tin Can under Abbott's direction. As in past years a considerable number of men are expected to appear for the tryouts, but Coach Abbott says that there is ample room on the squad for any one interested.

A tentative schedule has been drawn up to include the following colleges and universities: V. M. I., V. P. I., Washington and Lee, North Carolina State, Duke, Davidson and Virginia.

Coach Quinlan will take care of all varsity men who are not out at present for fall sports. They are asked to meet with him at the same time the frosh report to Abbott.

Watch that Tar Heel team go.

Big End

Don Holt, veteran end, returned to the Carolina football squad late this year, but he has lost none of his old form. The big end, paired with Odell Sapp last fall, did good work for the Heels on the gridiron. Holt's return this fall relieved Coach Collins of quite a problem.

WEEK'S GRID CARD FINDS NINE N. C. ELEVENS PLAYING

Nine North Carolina Elevens to Be in Action Saturday; Five For the First Time; N. C. State Waits until October 4.

(By Crawford McKethan)

Nine of North Carolina's eleven college football teams, five of them in their initial struggle, will spring into action this coming Saturday. Only one member of the Big Five, N. C. State, will refrain from taking the field this week-end, their curtain raiser coming October 4 against Washington and Lee in Raleigh. In like manner, only one of the family of the Little Six will not see action on the gridiron on Saturday; Lenoir Rhyne will wait until the following Saturday to engage Newberry at Newberry.

The annual Wake Forest-Carolina struggle really draws aside the curtain of 1929 football in North Carolina. Up until 1924 the Heels had everything pointing their way insofar as winning was concerned. Many of the games during the past years had been close and much disputed but almost by habit the Heels emerged victorious whether by the margin of one drop-kick or by that of half a dozen touchdowns. Then came that heart-rending four years when the jinx took up its abode in the camp of the Heels, and the Deacons challenged successfully the supremacy of the victor and ruler of the past. While all North Carolina looked on dumbfounded in 1924, the Heels fell from their throne with a resounding thump as Murray Greason galloped 27 yards through a much broken field across the final marker for a 7-6 victory. In 1925 the Heels bowed again before a defeat by the margin of one point as the Deacons turned in a 7-6 victory. In 1926 the famous Rackley-Riley combination proved too much for a bewildered Blue and White outfit, and consequently another victory was chalked up for the Wake county aggregation; this time however by the safe count of two touchdowns. 1927 proved to be only another sad, sad story for the Tar Heels, and with every factor in the world trying its best to give them victory (before the game) they dropped another as sacrifice to the gods of misfortune. The tale of 1928 need not be told; everybody knows it; we won. And now comes the huge question mark of 1929. Let us trust that at the final whistle we will not need a few of those touchdowns which we so easily stowed away last fall.

Tomorrow the Blue Devils will travel into foreign territory to meet Mercer at Macon. The Devils will win this game but as to the size of the score only speculation rules supreme. Within the Duke chambers this fall is harbored probably the strongest team that has ever prepared to take up arms in its defense.

The Wildcats of Davidson will meet Clemson this Saturday in Charlotte; that the 'Cats have a stiff job on their hands, nobody knows better than Monk Younger and Tex Tilson. Clemson this year has possibly the most powerful team that has even donned its colors, while Davidson is suffering and laboring under the hardship of having to build almost an entirely new team from inexperienced material.

Elon will meet its ancient rival, Catawba, at Elon in an important game bearing heavily upon the Little Six championship. Guilford will receive Rutherford at Guilford. High Point will also act as host and opponent to Wofford, and Atlantic Christian College will open its doors to Campbell for its first game of the season.

This sums up the list of activity scheduled for North Carolina elevens this week-end. Whether the dope bucket will remain settled is indeed a problem for the gods, but of one thing we are at least certain—North Carolina is going to see some pretty good football on Saturday, and a couple of out-of-state teams are going to have their hands full aplenty.

Century has acquired another unusual book in the manuscript of "Shanty Boat" by Kent and Margaret Lighty, which will be published early in 1930.

WARREN TO MEET ANDERSON FRIDAY

Ex-Carolina Boxer Fights in Durham.

Add Warren, former Tar Heel boxer and wrestler, will be seen in Durham Friday night in the feature bout of a combined boxing and wrestling card. This marks his first appearance in the ring since his fight approximately two weeks ago against Ox Shuford, another Carolina fighter who was Southern Conference heavyweight champ while here. Warren staged a brilliant fight to defeat his former teammate and settled an argument as to the better fighter of the two which has persisted since each of the men fought for the Heels. Add will meet Andy Anderson, Louisville, Ky., heavyweight, in Neese hall Friday. This will probably be Warren's final fight before he meets Jake Denning, the fighter who won the decision over him last month in what was billed as the battle for the championship of North Carolina.

DEACONS RESERVE THEIR STRENGTH

Aparently Lying in Wait for Tar Heels; Nothing against Catawba Showed.

That Wake Forest has a 100 percent better team than last year, and that the Deacons are saving a whole bagful of tricks for Saturday's game with the Tar Heels is the news that has come into the Tar Heel camp by way of Tar Heel scouts and supporters who saw Wake Forest down Catawba, 20-0, Saturday.

The Deacons, according to reports, used just seven plays, and didn't throw a single pass. The Tar Heel supporters interpret those facts as meaning that Coach Pat Miller is saving stuff and laying for Carolina.

The Deacon attack itself was looking mighty good, even though the team was playing without the services of Captain Johnny Cox, who rates "A-1 among the backfield men. Observers thought it rather remarkable the Deacons ran up three touchdowns and narrowly missed a fourth while running only straight football and just seven plays.

Two gentlemen, Messrs. Mills and Hipps, halfbacks, were looking especially good. According to reports, these two may be among the principal wreckers against Carolina. The line was holding well from tackle to tackle, with the ends showing average.

The Tar Heels had the Deacons well scouted, but as one scout said, "it was hardly worth the trip. The Deacons were showing just enough to win."

The Carolina coaches are wondering just what tricks Pat Miller has up his sleeve for Saturday's game, which will give the first real line on Coach Pat's new system at Wake Forest and the new material at Carolina.

Coach Collins is looking for offensive linemen. The Tar Heels have a number of men who are good on defensive, but finding a really first-rate offensive line is a harder proposition. The Tar Heels need an offensive line to open holes for their great crew of backs, and so it seems this may be a banner week for the offensive rookie linemen in the Tar Heel camp.

Mr. Saxon believes that Evans Wall is one of the most talented southern authors discovered in many years.

India has 20 percent more automobiles than last year.

CAROLINA vs. WAKE FOREST

SATURDAY - SEPTEMBER 28 - 2:30 P. M.

Stetson D Suits And Top Coats Will Predominate In Kenan Stadium At This Annual Classic

MADE TO YOUR INDIVIDUAL TASTE $29.50, $34.50

Stetson D

FREE VALET SERVICE

KNIGHT REVIEWS MILL CONDITIONS

Says South Should be Warned by History

If the South will heed the lessons of history that were learned in the industrialization of England a century ago and of New England and other parts of the East during the last quarter of the last century, it will solve the problems brought about by the recent strikes without paying the heavy penalties that England and New England imposed upon themselves in solving similar problems.

Such is the view of Dr. Edgar W. Knight, professor of education, as expressed in an article in the current number of The Outlook national magazine. The Outlook heads the article "The Lesson of Gastonia" and plays up the title in big headlines on the cover page of the issue.

Dr. Knight does not concern himself so much with the Gastonia strike as he does with the significance of all the strikes that have been called recently in the South. He presents succinctly the views of both sides, and then goes on to point out lessons that were learned by England and New England in handling similar situations. He indicates that the South can and will solve the problems without paying the penalties of other sections.

The most significant thing about the strike situation in the South, Dr. Knight says in the article, is "the fact that thoughtful people now are aware, and more surely aware than ever before, that the next great battles of organized labor against capitalism are to be pitched in this new industrial region and on the old issue of the rights of labor to organize and to bargain collectively for better wages and conditions of work."

"Increasingly are thoughtful Southerners realizing now as they have never before been willing to admit that all industrial history is set heavily against any policy of temporizing, of delay, of patching up; they increase in number throughout the Southern industrial region who are convinced by the lessons from the past that opiates will not give permanent health to an industrial system not mortally sick perhaps but obviously wasted and in places emaciated with stubbornness and complicated chronic disorders."

The practical question for the South to meet in its present confusion, Dr. Knight suggests, "is how to give study and counsel to the difficulties it now faces, to establish and apply proper principles to the process of rapid industrialization of the South, so as to escape the evils which afflicted other states and nations.

"By the enlistment of all interested parties and by the application of intelligence and the lessons of history to the problems of the present, the industrial development of the Southern States can be made wholesome. However behindhand the South may now be, it can catch up. It will catch up and keep up. There is evidence that the outcome can be made safe and satisfactory. Industrialism has made for an economic prosperity that can be made to supply a high degree of social well-being for the humblest workers as well as for the middle and the upper classes."

The new American opera which Clarence Loomis has based on Cale Young Rice's poetic drama "Yolanda of Cyprus" is now in the last stages of its rehearsal period and will shortly start out on a tour of the United States.

Tryouts This Week

Much Competition; Two Groups to Be Formed; Dyer in Charge.

The glee club tryouts are going forward with great enthusiasm among the students of the university who are particularly interested in music. Over a hundred men have already tried out, and a great many more are expected to demonstrate their skill before the end of the week. Special appointments may be made with Professor Dyer after this week for tryouts. A large number of upperclassmen from other schools, who have already proved to be talented, along with the new material, are expected to give the old men of the club some keen competition.

Two glee clubs are to be formed so that the gaps made by some mischance can be filled by trained men from the second club. Personnel of the first and second clubs will be announced early next week.

Professor Dyer is organizing a system of voice classes which are to be made open to all men trying out for the club. He is exceedingly interested in giving every one a chance, and to develop all material that has never been trained. He stated that every voice could be improved, because there were only twenty natural born singers in the world.

Due to the fact that Frank Jacocks, last year's president, is not in school this year, Paul Scurlock, vice-president of last year, is taking his place as president of the club. Bob Hovis was unanimously elected vice-president Monday. Homer Lyon, the secretary and treasurer of last year, still retains his same position.

The glee club will give a concert on the twentieth of October when the educational conference meets here. Practise has already begun for the occasion by the old members of the club.

Carolina Presents Hal Skelly Feature

Hal Skelly, the original Skid Johnson, the "comic hoofer" of the famous New York stage success, "Burlesque", makes his debut on the audible screen in Paramount's all-talking and singing screen version of "Burlesque", which has been produced under the title of "The Dance of Life". And, in recreating his famous characterization of Skid on the talking screen, Skelly introduces himself to the motion picture public everywhere in the most effective role he has ever essayed.

As a matter of fact, during the long engagement of "Burlesque,' in New York, the work of Skelly was acclaimed by critics and audiences as one of the most convincing pieces of acting seen on the stage in several seasons. And in some quarters it was whispered about that the play in many of its details followed the actual life of Skelly himself. Whatever the reason, Skelly makes Skid real. One understands and sympathizes with this man whose recklessness and thoughtlessness bring both joy and sorrow to those he loves. It is a role of effective shading; one that lingers long in the minds of those who have seen the play.

In the talking screen version of this play, Skelly is just as effective as ever. In the dramatic moments his work is superb, particularly a high pitched scene when he dances a "jazzed-up" version of the wedding march ceremony in order to hide his grief from his young wife who has decided to divorce him.

Britain now has 25 air liners.

Societies Discussed In Chapel Exercises

Origin and Activities Explained; New Men Urged to Join.

The chapel exercise Tuesday morning was, for the benefit of new men at the University, given over to the explanation of two important campus organizations, the Philanthropic and the Dialectic literary societies, by speakers representing each. R. M. Albright, speaker pro-tem for the Philanthropic society, and J. C. Williams, president of the Dialectic society, presented in two interesting talks something of the history and the nature of these organizations and some of the benefits of participation in their activities.

Mr. Albright began with a brief historical sketch of the societies. They had their beginning in 1795 in a single organization called the Debating society, which before long developed into the two present branches. He mentioned that membership was at first compulsory and that the societies monopolized all campus activities. However, in 1880 membership became optional, and the work of the societies returned to its natural channel of debating, public speaking and other literary work. Mr. Albright firmly asserted that these things were well worthwhile and that any student would be greatly benefitted by joining one of these organizations.

Mr. Williams went into a more detailed discussion of the organization and activities of the societies. Their organization is modeled upon that of the state legislature, the Dialectic society being like the senate and the Philanthropic like the general assembly. Mr. Williams pointed out the opportunities for those interested in debating, parliamentary law, or the political life of the campus, to gain experience through the societies. The University of North Carolina has been spoken of as a grand assortment of organizations, he said, but of all these the literary societies are by far the most important.

DR. CHASE ANNOUNCES GIFT OF ORGAN TO U. N. C.

(Continued from page one)

the auditorium on account of possible noise from a ventilating system.

The first floor contains the office of the music department, studies for the director and for Professor T. Smith McCorkle, together with a rehearsal room for the glee club, a library room for the use of the glee club manager, and a storage and library room to be occupied by the band manager. The second floor houses the piano department, son O. Kennedy, two classrooms for music appreciation and music history classes with piano roll and record storage rooms adjacent, a telephone room, ladies' rest room, and the office of Mrs. Grace Woodman, extension representative.

---

KEYS LOST

Lost: Bunch of keys in tan leather keytainer; somewhere on campus. Return to C. P. Stowe, 113 Old East, or at Tar Heel Office.

A freight elevator with a convenient outside entrance facilitates the matter of handling pianos for the entire building. Practice rooms, properly ventilated and lighted, are arranged in the basemnt.

Since the matter of the organ became a possibility sometime ago, specifications and bids from practically all of the leading organ builders throughout the country have been received.

Such organs as the Austin, Kilgen, Reuter, Estey, Skinner, Casavant Bros., Kimball and others have been under consideration by the committee.

Due to the influence of the University school of music throughout the south, the company whose bid for the organ will be accepted may be expected to install an example of their very finest product.

It is the hope that the organ when completed will contain from 90 to 100 speaking stops, representing a total of from 4500 to 5000 speaking pipes. The mechanism will be of the pneumatic-electro action, representing a degree of craftsmanship of the finest calibre. The console will be designed in the finish and style of the interior of the auditorium, being placed for practice purposes in the orchestra pit just off the stage. Equipped with either an electric or hydraulic lift, the console may be quickly raised to the level of tion on the stage for recital and accompaniment purposes which the situation demands.

The Echo organ, a feature of every modern organ, will be placed at the rear of the auditorium, with the sound chambers opening into the auditorium through grills placed in the ceiling. The auditorium will open directly from the present rotunda of the music building, and undoubtedly one of the most unique features of the entire installation will be the almost ideal location of the Echo organ. With the doors of the auditorium open the sounds of the Echo organ will be heard throughout the entire building.

Not only will the organ contain all of the standard accepted solo and accompanying stops, but due to the ideal installation which the construction of this auditorium makes possible, a six octave percussion scale controlling such unusual stops as the quested.

An unusual number of supporting stops have been asked for, so that for dynamic range from the faintest suggestion of tone from the Echo organ to the thunderous support of the double diapason chorus, this organ will be pointed to as one of the most tastefully chosen and satisfactorily installed in the entire country. Following the decision of the committee, an announcement may be expected as to the make of organ which shall be installed.

Upon the completion of the organ and auditorium, the University of North Carolina will find itself in possession of one of the most complete and artistically designed music plants in the entire southeast. Serious-minded organ students throughout the south will undoubtedly avail themselves of the opportunity for study on the new organ in large numbers.

EAT AND DRINK
at Carolina Confectionery
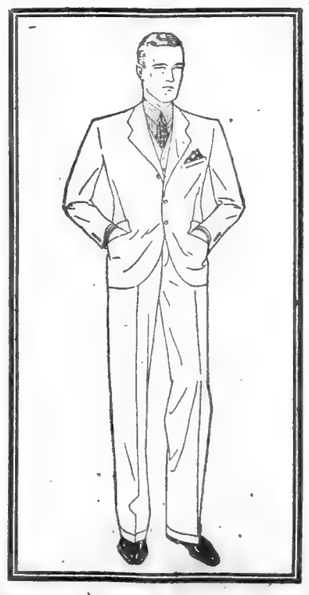
and
Coffee Shop

CARS FOR RENT
U DRIVE IT YOURSELF
Open Day and Night

CARS
Chevrolets, Oakland, Studebaker,
7-Pas. Packard, 8-Pas. Packard Sedan
Also Taxi Cabs with Careful Drivers. Long Distance Trips Special Discount. Free Road Service.
E. E. PUGH
Phone 3861

Take The Daily Tar Heel

Full Coverage on University and Chapel Hill News Alike



A Six-Day Paper With Magazine Supplement Every Other Sunday

At Your Door Without Fail Backed by a Complaint Service

$2 If You Send Your Check Now
$3 If You Pay Each Three Months

Don't Wait
Do It Now!

The Daily Tar Heel

Exhibition
HERE
At
CAROLINA DRY CLEANERS
Today and Tomorrow
Harry Kuster, Rep.
THE FINCHLEY Establishment
NEW YORK CHICAGO

THE MODEL SKETCHED OFFERS AN EXAMPLE OF THE TYPE OF GARMENT CONSIDERED MOST EFFECTIVE FOR FALL USAGE AMONG COLLEGE MEN. THE LINES ARE ENTIRELY CORRECT AND FOLLOW AUTHORITATIVE DICTATION. THE VARIETY OF WEAVES FROM WHICH SELECTIONS MAY BE MADE IS VERY BOUNTIFUL. INTEREST IS ALSO SOLICITED FOR CRAVATS, SHIRTS, WOOLIES, HATS, CAPS, FOOTWEAR AND VARIOUS OTHER INCIDENTALS OF CORRECT DRESS.

Report Circulation Complaints
8:30-9:30 A. M.
TAR HEEL OFFICE

The Daily Tar Heel

SOPHOMORE SMOKER
9 O'CLOCK TONIGHT
SWAIN HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1929 | NUMBER 6

Y.M.C.A. Lists Many Features For This Year's Attractions

Dr. Seerley, Mr. Barnett, Mr. Gray, and Other Noted Men To Appear Here.

A very interesting program has been planned by the Y for the coming year which will include some of the best speakers ever to be heard on a college campus.

This program will begin October 8 when the campus will have the pleasure of hearing Dr. F. N. Seerley of Springfield, Mass., who will give several talks on the subject of "Rational Sex Life." Mr. Seerley will begin his program with a short talk in chapel and will end with a mass meeting that night at Memorial hall at 7:30. He has also promised to meet all students desiring personal or group interviews at any time during the afternoon.

The second speaker on the program will be Eugene E. Barnett of Shanghai, China, who will be here on October 13 and 14 and will speak on "The Foreign Situation in China." He will begin his program with a sermon in one of the local churches at 11 o'clock Sunday morning to all students. He will speak again Monday morning in chapel and will close his program with an address to a joint session of the three Y cabinets on Monday night. Throughout his stay here, Mr. Barnett will be available for interviews to all students desiring to talk with him.

Mr. Barnett, who is an alumnus of the University, has for the past 20 years been in charge of the Y work in China among the universities and colleges, and during the late Chinese revolutions he remained at his post and counciled daily with government officials, besides attending to his duties with the college life of China.

The Y office is at present making a special effort to bring to the campus one of the most outstanding cotton-mill men in the south who will address the student body on "The Present Industrial Situation in North Carolina." The name and the date of this speaker will be announced later.

On November 6, 7 and 8 the students will hear Mr. A. Her-

(Continued on page four)

SOPHOMORES TO SMOKE TONIGHT

Y Quartet Will Perform at First Class Smoker.

President Ben Aycock of the sophomore class anounces that the annual sophomore smoker will be held tonight at 9:00 o'clock in Swain hall. The occasion will be used for the election of a class treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the failure of John Green, who was elected last spring, to return to the University this year.

The Y quartet, composed of Steve Lynch, Jr., J. E. Miller, J. C. Connolly, and Wofford Humphreys, will render a number of vocal selections during the program. The principal speaker of the occasion will be Mr. R. B. House, executive secretary of the university. Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the program. President Aycock urges that all members of the class be present.

Rushing Limited To Frat House Friday

The Inter-Fraternity Council wishes to call the attention of all fraternity men and freshmen to section 3 of the by-laws which state that all rushing for the first two days, Friday and Saturday, is strictly limited to the fraternity houses.

TICKETS ON SALE FOR PLAYMAKERS

Seven Productions to Be Given This Year; Possibly Eighth By Advanced Members.

Season tickets for the Carolina Playmakers' productions will go on sale today, according to an announcement by Hubert Heffner, associate director of the organization. The price of the season ticket will be $1.50, and the sale will be limited to nine hundred tickets. The price of individual performances will be $1.

The season's program calls for seven productions, with the probability of the addition of an eighth attraction in the form of a studio presentation by advanced members of the Playmakers. This performance will be open only to holders of season tickets. Tickets will be on sale at the Book Exchange, the Student Supply Store, or they may be procured from special representatives on the campus.

The season's program follows:

October 24, 25, 26: Original Folk Plays.

November 2: Henry L. Southwick, Shakespearan Actor.

November 7, 8, 9: "Job's Kinfolks" (3 acts) by Loretto Carroll Bailey.

January 30, 31, February 1: A Modern American Comedy.

March 6, 7, 8: Original Folk Plays.

April 4, 5: Performance by a Visiting Company.

May 16, 17: Forest Theatre Production.

Debate Squad to Meet

The first meeting of the debate squad will take place tonight at 7:30 in 201 Murphey. All men who are interested in any phase of forensic activity are requested to be present.

As was the case last year, all intercollegiate debaters will be chosen from the squad.

At the same time the debate class will also be formed. One-half course academic credit will be given for fulfilling the requirements of the class.

Negro Bootlegger Caught.

Earl Oldham, negro, was arrested Tuesday afternoon for the illegal possession of liquor by Deputy Sheriff G. A. Hearn in the negro section of Chapel Hill. Oldham had been under suspect by the police for some time, and was chased Saturday night by Sheriff Hearn but eluded capture. He was placed in the local jail in default of $100 bond.

The British are now beginning to experience the maintenance and repair cost of that Palestine mandate—The Indianapolis Sun.

Bullock Explains Rules to Freshmen

In the form of an announcement Wednesday morning Dean Bradshaw urged all men interested in Y. M. C. A. work to buy their tickets for the forthcoming banquet to be held in the Methodist Church Friday night.

Bullock took a few minutes to the interfraternity council, was then introduced by Dean Bradshaw.

Bulluck took a few minutes to explain in detail the rules of the rushing seasons this year. He especially emphasized the desirability of each man doing all that he could to help enforce the rules. He continued by telling that rushing is being done this year according to a new plan, and will naturally require the earnest cooperation of each individual in insuring the success of the plans. He also asked that each man upon receiving an invitation to visit a particular fraternity house regard that as a duty and make a special effort to comply with the offer of the invitation. The failure to do so automatically bars the offender from ever becoming a member of any fraternity while at the University.

He completed his talk by warning those persons in the process of being rushed to disregard fraternity propaganda and to discriminate between two or more bids with equal unprejudiced and reasonable procedure.

Dean Bradshaw followed Mr. Bullock's instructive talk by advising that no man feel hurt or left out because he does not receive a fraternity bid. All men cannot be fraternity leaders, and all campus leaders are not fraternity men. It is very essential that this be kept in mind at all times.

Judge Winston Says Mass Production Is Motto of Moderns

Decrying the passing of the days of individuality, Judge Robert W. Winston urged the senior class at its first smoker in Swain hall Tuesday night to cooperate in all their ventures. "We are living in an age of mass production, and we must keep abreast of the times," the Judge said.

Following the talk by Judge Winston, officers of the class outlined the program for the coming year. An orchestra and refreshments enlivened the evening.

Bob Graham was elected student councilman for the senior class to succeed Bill Chandler who failed to return to school. Graham defeated J. C. Williams by a few votes. Harry Galland was eliminated on the first ballot.

Carter to Speak To Engineer Students

Mr. R. D. Carter, toll engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in Venezuela, will speak to the students in the engineering school tonight at 7:30 in room 319, Phillips hall. Mr. Carter will discuss the subject of "Foreign Service."

There is no question about the Hoovercrats staying in the party but there is argument about which party.—The Dallas News.

Police Warning Against Drinking

Chief Lloyd of the Chapel Hill police force, in a statement to the press yesterday, issued a warning to the students of the University relative to the football game Saturday afternoon.

"Drinking and ungentlemanly conduct has been at a minimum so far this quarter," Chief Lloyd stated in an interview with a representative of the Tar Heel, "and it is to the advantage of the students that such a condition remain. The Chapel Hill police force wishes to cooperate in every way to aid the students of the University; but drinking and unruly conduct on the the streets of the town will not be tolerated.

"Realizing that college students are naturally possessed with a great amount of boisterousness, we try to give the benefit of the doubt to the student in every instance. But youthful good spirits are entirely different from intoxication. The town will be filled with several thousand out of town people and the police of Chapel Hill will have their hands full restraining these people."

Chief Lloyd also said that the police department only wanted the cooperation of the students during the football game, and the police would do the rest.

Research Institute Collects Material Of Social Sciences

Municipal Government, Crime, and Human Geography Figure Prominently in Study.

In view of the fact that information from the University institute for research in social science will figure prominently in future issues of the new Daily Tar Heel, Dr. Katharine Jocher, assistant director of the department, has prepared the following information for publication in this paper:

In July, 1924, the institute for research in social science was organized at the University of North Carolina for the purpose of making detailed studies in the social sciences arising chiefly out of state and regional conditions. A long term research program was worked out based upon certain major fields with a number of concrete, detailed studies in each field. These major fields of investigation include county and municipal government, social institutions, crime and criminal justice, taxation, social-industrial relations, collection of historical source materials, social history, the Negro, folk backgrounds, the southern cooperatives, and human geography.

The board of governors of the institute consists of President H. W. Chase as chairman and the following representatives of the several social sciences: Professor E. C. Branson, Dean D. D. Carroll, Professor R. D. W. Connor, Professor Frank P. Graham, Dr. J. G. deR. Hamilton, Dr. A. M. Jordan, Dr. Howard W. Odum, Dr. J. F. Royster, Dr. M. R. Trabue, Dr. L. R. Wilson.

The present staff includes Dr. Howard W. Odum, director; Dr. Katharine Jocher, assistant director; Professor Ernest R. Groves and Dr. T. J. Woofter, Jr., research professors; Dr. Roy M. Brown, Dr. Clarence Heer, Miss Harriet L. Herring, Dr. Guion Griffis Johnson, Dr. Guy B. Johnson, Dr. Rupert B.

(Continued on page four)

Football Tickets

The ticket exchange office will be open in the lobby of the Y.M.C.A. building today and tomorrow for the purpose of exchanging student ticket coupons for tickets for the Wake Forest game Saturday. All students must make the exchange during these days as no exchanges will be made after Friday. The office will be open from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M. on both days.

TAYLOR SOCIETY GETS UNDER WAY

Burnett, Manbeck, Whitton, and Nash Officers of Commerce Group.

First steps toward the beginning of activities by the University of North Carolina student branch of the Taylor society, international organization for the promotion of the science of business management, were taken at a meeting of the officers and the advisor of the branch held Tuesday evening.

At this meeting it was decided that during this year the society would meet once a month, and that after the organization meeting to be held about October 15, the meetings would be given over to addresses by men prominent in the field of business management and administration.

The University of North Carolina branch of the Taylor society was organized during the first part of the spring quarter last year and held a series of meetings which culminated in a final meeting at which Harlow S. Person, managing director of the society, delivered an address on "The Origin, Development, and Influence of Scientific Management."

Officers of the society as elected last spring are W. C. Burnett, president; Bill Manbeck, vice-president; Beaumert Whitton, secretary; and Strudwick Nash, treasurer. Professor G. T. Schwenning of the school of commerce is the advisor of the local society.

Law School Opens

Official opening of the law school will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the law building. Although new students have attended classes for the past three days, all members of the faculty will be introduced to them for the first time.

R. B. House, secretary to the president, will welcome the students to the University. Following the welcoming address Waddell Gholson, president of the law school association, will introduce the faculty. The program will be short and visitors are invited.

Frosh To Visit Frats

Mr. Francis Bradshaw, dean of students, announces that fraternity invitations will be delivered to the freshmen this afternoon and tonight, asking the freshmen to call at the fraternity houses during the prescribed hours on Friday and Saturday. The invitations were delayed because of the difficulty in securing the local addresses of the freshmen.

Dr. Otto Stuhlman Says German Students Work More Than Heels

Gives Information about German Conditions in Germany During Conversation Tuesday; Air Traveling Popular On Continent.

Students at the University of North Carolina who think they are overburdened with work and whose professors require much more scholastic activity than is necessary should certainly thank their lucky stars that they are not attending a German university.

Such was the impression given by Dr. Otto Stuhlman, Jr., in the course of a rambling conversation Tuesday in which he made many interesting remarks about conditions in Germany, France, Belgium and England, as he observed them during the past summer.

Probably one of the most curious things that Dr. Stuhlman described was his asking for Dutch cheese while in Holland. He called for the cheese by name, and when the waiter shook his head and said that he had never heard of it, the professor from North Carolina showed the shape of the article to be round by a movement of his hands and then told the waiter that the article he wanted was red. The waiter suddenly caught the meaning. The most astounding part came when the waiter replied that the common red spherical cheese which comes from Holland is made only for export and it not used at all in the country where it is made.

"Flying is quite common," said Dr. Stuhlman. "The price of a fare by air is roughly twice that of a first-class ticket by rail and water. At one of the largest airports, airplanes were arriving and departing with the regularity of railroad trains, and the funny part of it was that there was apparently no interest in these many comings and

(Continued on page four)

Playmakers Select Comedies for Tour

"Magnolia's Man," a mountain comedy by Gertrude Wilson Coffin, and an unnamed domestic comedy of young married people, by Catherine Nolan, were the plays selected at the author's reading Tuesday night at the Playmakers Theatre to be produced for the Playmakers' northern tour, November 15 to 30. To these two new plays will be added "The No 'Count Boy," a negro comedy by Paul Green, written some years ago but never produced by the Playmakers.

"The Devil's Doll," a witch play by Mary Margaret Russell, and "Pegleg Scuttergold or the Pirate's Thirteenth Bride," a burlesque of North Carolina pirate days by Frank S. Howell, were chosen to be reserved for later production. "The Devil's Doll" received high praise from the audience, who were asked to vote on the readings. The play committee making the selections for the tour consisted of Professors Gregory Paine, J. C. Lyons, Russel Potter, Rev. A. S. Lawrence, and Miss Margaret Vale.

Tryouts for these plays will be held in the Playmakers Theatre on Monday, September 30, at 4:30. Copies of the plays can be obtained at the main desk of the library after September 27. The tryouts are open to all, including freshmen.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $3.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Thursday, September 26, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

"What makes the Yo-yo yo?" inquires a Chattanooga paper. Which is a perfect example of the dam-fool questions some newspapers can ask.

One of our professors remarked yesterday that Chapel Hill is a most delightful place for an undergraduate to live. If profs and exams were prohibited here we would agree with him most heartily.

The New Highway and The Billboard Battle

One of the most important events in the history of Chapel Hill occurred recently when state highway 54 was officially opened to traffic. Not only does the new highway greatly decrease the distance between Greensboro, Raleigh, and Chapel Hill, but it also provides one of the most pleasant drives that the motorist may encounter in the entire South.

Traversing the heart of the Piedmont plateau, the road affords views of some of the most delightful scenery that the state has to offer—but the scenery is not the most pleasing attribute of the new highway. An almost complete absence of bill board and other forms of advertising displays, the curses of North Carolina's otherwise excellent highway system, make the new road unique.

Within the next few weeks, however, a monotonous succession of signs will be erected along the road, if no action is taken by the highway authorities to prohibit them. The usual likenesses of underclad flappers will arise to admonish the motorists that "It's Toasted," or "Not Even Your Best Friend Will Tell You."

For many years newspaper editors and civic organizations have agitated for removal of the blatant billboards that deface highways and detract from the joys of motoring in this country. Their efforts have been singularly unproductive of results, although they have succeeded in arousing considerable public opinion against highway advertising.

California has contributed the most important bit of work in the battle upon the obnoxious signs. The Standard Oil Company has removed all of its advertising boards from the highways in that state.

If all the companies would follow the example of the Standard Oil concern, they would lose nothing that would be of value to them in the fierce competition of modern business and industry. Highway signs often irritate the motorist and prejudice him against the products which they advertise, rather than induce him to purchase these products.

The authorities of Alamance, Orange and Wake counties or the state highway commission will establish a precedent that may be of inestimable benefit to the American riding public if they legislate against advertising boards along the new Nelson to Graham highway.

Self-Help Students Need Pork and Beans

The news columns of our paper have reported the fact that never in the history of the University has there been as persistent and as urgent a need for employment by some very worthy students who will leave this University and possibly college life altogether unless they find the wherewithal to continue here.

Bulletins are sent every applicant for admission detailing in glowing terms the easy manner in which a new student can "earn all or part of his expenses while at Carolina." We imagine that hundreds of students come here believing on the strength of this advertising that they will be able to earn their way. But it only takes a few days of making the discouraging rounds of all possible places of employment to prove to them that there are five times as many men as there are jobs.

It is an unfortunate fact, from the standpoint of employment, that the University is situated in a village. The law of supply and demand, coupled with abundant colored labor, dictates that college men here, no matter whether they be graduate students or freshmen, shall be paid a "two-bit" piece an hour for common labor. This fall there seems to be a shortage in even this highly profitable work.

As for more highly skilled means of earning one's way, search as you will, you can not find them, that is, after having dismissed a few political sinecures, which are out of average reach anyway.

The president's office under the direction of Executive-Secretary House does an admirable work in helping relieve this condition in the awarding of tuition grants, but this is a small part of the amount needed. In this connection we will not overlook the work done by the University loan funds, but here again the amount needed and the amount on hand show a decided disparity.

The Y. M. C. A. self-help bureau under Grady Leonard is doing its level best to keep several hundred students in "pork and beans" but it hasn't enough to go half-way around.

We sometimes forget that there are 13,000 alumni of our University because we only hear of them at graduation and through the Alumni Review. Other state universities have great loan funds, and numerous scholarships fostered and donated by their alumni. Ours are entirely inadequate. Literally hundreds of boys in the past decade have left Carolina disappointed and disillusioned because of failure to earn their way. They would have increased the prosperity and wealth of the state ten times over had they been able to finish their collegiate work.

Surely there must be men among these 13,000 alumni appreciative enough and interested enough to donate funds for the establishment of one hundred loyalty scholarships carrying stipends of from seventy-five to three hundred dollars a year each. The Daily Tar Heel, while appreciating the work of our alumni in the past, firmly believes that the establishment of funds can be no longer delayed.

J. E. D.

The Extra-Curricular Problem

The problem of extra-curricular activities and their relation to scholarship is one which is ever-present on the campus of this and other universities. We believe, however, that the unusually large number of organizations at the University of North Carolina warrants the contention that the extra-curricular problem here is of even greater pertinence than in the case of the average university.

Although the problem is as yet only in the process of being solved, the theory that indulgence in outside activities is detrimental to scholarship has at last been relegated to its proper place among the worn-out fancies and superstitions of educational philosophy. It is interesting to note that public opinion on the matter is in direct opposition to the facts. Within the last three years the Sociology Department of this university produced statistics which showed that those students who are most active in extra-curricular activities rank highest in scholarship.

The reasons underlying the aforementioned discovery are not difficult to conceive of. In the first place, it is only the capable student who can get through studying soon enough to have any time left for outside activities. In the second place, the student who cannot make good grades is seldom capable of succeeding in the extra-curricular field. In the third place, the presence of an ambition to succeed in any given field of endeavor is usually accompanied by an ability to achieve some measure of success in that field. In lieu of this it is therefore obvious that, all things being equal ,the same student will rank high both in scholarship and in extra-curricular undertakings.

The writer contends that a correct division of time between academic undertakings and those not included in the curriculum cannot be accomplished without giving full consideration to the ability of the student concerned. Participation in the one does not necessarily lower efficiency in the other. The matter is one which must be solved by the individual student and one which can be correctly solved only in the light of personal ability and personal situations.—J. C. W.

Fred Wardlaw, sophomore of the University, has been confined to McPherson hospital, Durham, with sinus trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Huske of Fayetteville have been spending a few days in Chapel Hill visiting their daughter, Miss Addie Huske who is a student in the University.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. McCorkle entertained Tuesday evening at an informal reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dyer. Mr. Dyer is connected with the music faculty this year.

John Redding, Ed Hedgepeth and Bill Morgan stopped over in Chapel Hill to visit friends on their way to Philadelphia where they will attend the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania.

The Episcopal women students were invited to be guests of honor at a supper given by St. Hilda's Guild of the Episcopal church with Mrs. D. H. Lawrence at the rectory. The new students as well as the old ones were welcomed during the evening by Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Lawrence and Kitty Wells, president of the woman's association.

SCOTCH PLAIDS
(By Dick McGlohon)

Dear Liz,

Guess you are surprised to hear from me so early, but that doesn't matter. I just had to write. It's been July since I saw you—the time the old man chased me out the house and you beat on his chest with your delicate little fists and pulled him back until I could jump the fence and sell out. Many things have happened since then and now it's my first chance to write and tell you all about the University and how I feel like somebody since I got back up here. I'm really a sophomore. Can you believe it?

But come right down to it, I don't know whether I'm a sophomore or not. You see I passed five courses last year and had to argue like the devil with the math instructor for a D on the fifth course. Frankly, I guess I'm a "Bull rat." That's what they called them at V. M. I. when I was up there year before last and got shipped. My old man calls them "damned fools," but he don't know what he's talking about.

Sophomore or dam fool, I'm going to see Ben Aycock, who is president of the sophmore class, and see if I can't get in on the sophmore dance, if they have one. Then I'm going to see Ray Farris and see if I can get in on the Grail dances. I've just got to learn to dance somehow, although my old man says it's a sin to dance and that he doesn't want any of his jack spent at these "public hugging parties." But this is my second year and I've got the old checkbook. I'm going to spend my week-ends raising hell and Sunday mornings in bed—no more Sunday school classes for me, you bet.

Last year I was green, just as green as you make 'em. I bought free hair tonic tickets and went to Dean Bradshaw for "skyhooks" to use as a tool in putting my bed together that some sophomore had wrecked by removing half the springs. I called President Chase's home to find out where the arboretum was and I bought an armful of tickets to the bath room. I thought that Rex Beach was a magnificent summer resort and didn't know the difference until my sophomore room mate told me better a few weeks afterward, after all the boys had had all the fun they wanted.

But, even at that, I was not so dumb, compared to some of these up here this year. They tell some mighty hot tales on the freshmen this year, I mean they do. In a bull session the other night in my room a bunch of us sophomores and a few freshmen were telling jokes and asking each other conundrums. Of course the freshmen were green and didn't catch on very fast. In the conversation one sophomore used the word expectorate, and I turned to freshman John and bet him he didn't know the meaning of the word. "Oh yes, I do. You can't get me on that. It means to look forward to."

They tell another tale around here about a freshman from one of the lower counties, perhaps Hyde. When he was unpacking his trunk the second night up here, some sophomores observed him taking a couple of lamps out. They became inquisitive and thought that they'd kid the boy along a little—asked him what the hell lamps were for. "Why I'm goin' to use them at night," he replied. "The freshman handbook said that Carolina students should put at least two hours a night on each subject and in order to do so had to burn midnight oil."

A freshman stopped me in front of South the first day I was up here and asked me where the A. B. school building was. He said that he had been walking all over the campus and couldn't find it.

Well, Liz, I have just about wrote out. Let me hear from you as soon as you can tell me all the news from N. C. C. W. Wish you would send me a copy of the Carolinian, too.

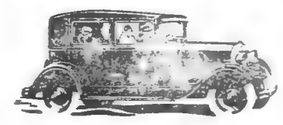
With love,

MACK.

Faculty Elects Officers

The faculty at its last meeting elected the following new officers: Professor M. T. Van Hecke, Ph. B., J. D., and Professor Harrer for a term of three years; Professor Mackie, Ph. D., was elected for two years. These officers succeed the following who retired this year: Professor A. W. Hobbs, Professor W. M. Dey, Ph. D., and D. D. Carroll, M. A. The following officers continue to serve for another year: Dr. Mangum, Professor Knight and Professor Prouty, Ph. D., who will serve as chairmen of the committees, and Professor Van Hecke, who still retains the position as secretary.

Glee Club Tryouts



The deadline for tryouts for the Glee Club has been set at 4 o'clock this afternoon. All interested must observe this deadline. Approximately 150 aspirants have reported so far.

First Year Lawyers Select President

O. A. Warren was elected to the presidency of the first-year law class at the first meeting of the year in the law building Wednesday morning. William L. Marshall, Wadesboro, was chosen vice-president of the group, while Dave Craig was named secretary-treasurer.

STATIONERY
Personal printed and embossed stationery at reduced prices.
Ask your dormitory store room clerk for samples.
ARTCROFT PRESS
W. C. Midford, Mgr.

You may not be A MAN OF LETTERS
yet many a letter the college man must write—business letters, home letters, letters of a distinctly personal and private nature . . . Letters written on Old Hampshire Stationery are sure of a hearing. The paper is rich, crisp, substantial—it has both class and quality.
Old Hampshire Stationery
Sold in Chapel Hill by Sutton & Alderman

GOOD FORD SERVICE
New Fordor Sedan $625 (F.O.B Detroit)

Bring your car to us for a thorough going-over at regular intervals. It costs little and it will be the means of giving you many thousands of miles of pleasant, economical motoring. All our mechanics are specially trained. All labor charged at low flat rate.
Ford
Strowd Motor Company
AUTHORIZED DEALER
Since 1914
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
We Appreciate Your Business

7
Carolina Playmaker Shows
for $1.50
Season Tickets on Sale at Book Exchange Students Supply Store and by Special Representatives
ONLY 895 TICKETS AVAILABLE
In order to secure the benefits of our pre-sale reservation plan for season ticket holders,
Be Sure
to leave your name and address when purchasing season tickets.
All Single Admissions Strictly $1.

Crayton Rowe Has Good Crowd At First Meeting of Heel Boxers

Seven Letter Men Are Back From Championship 1928 Team; Allen Captain.

Two new coaches and 45 students answered the initial call for candidates for another prospective Southern championship boxing team at Gerrard hall Tuesday night. With two out of the three championships resting securely in her possession Carolina is preparing to make a strong bid for the title again this year.

The return of Crayton Rowe as boxing coach after a year's absence will be welcomed by all those who remember him as the diminutive coach who put Carolina's boxing teams on the map. It was under his able tutorage that such stars as Warren, Shuford, Terris, Wright, Brown and this season's captain and southern lightweight champion, Archie Allen, were developed.

Odell Sapp, two years varsity light-heavyweight, is to coach the freshmen this year. The 25 who reported for practice gave the impression of containing good material. Four meets already on the schedule and the promise of probably two more is sure to result in keen competition for positions. A trip to V. M. I., one to Virginia, and Duke, and V. P. I. here, are the meets already on the schedule for the freshmen.

From last year's southern championship team seven letter men are back. Captain Allen, Vaughan, Sheffield, Goodrich, Webb, Davis and John Warren make about as formidable an array as any coach might ask for at the beginning of the season. Add to this three men from last year's freshman team such as Ed Gray, Jimmy Gattlin, and Tom Parsons and one can go places and do things.

And this is just what Coach Rowe is doing. Starting the season off here with V. P. I. on January 25, varsity and frosh get a stiff workout. Both tackle V. M. I. a week later at Lexington. On the eighth the two teams go to Virginia, the only other school that has won the southern title since the installation of the tournament four years ago. February 15 the varsity take their big trip down to Florida in quest of the 'Gators' scalp, seeking revenge for their only defeat last year. Two days later on the trip home there will be a brief stop for hostilities at South Carolina's camp. Then to complete the hardest week in the history of Carolina boxing, and to mark its entrance in intersectional competition, on February 22, Archie Allen's followers take on the national collegiate champions, Penn State, at Chapel Hill. Tentative meets with Duke and Washington and Lee are on the schedule but the dates have not yet been fixed.

Coach Crayton Rowe states that while there appears to be a complete varsity team out he wants all men interested in the sport to report to him for practice and instruction. A number of vacancies are in the varsity squad due to the fact that there are several men in the same weight. Of course the freshman team is yet to be picked and all those out will be given ample opportunity to display their wares.

Although Coach Rowe will devote the majority of his time in developing his teams, time will be given in teaching the art of self-defense to all those interested. Classes will be conducted every afternoon and the coaches will work with the beginner as well as the experienced boxer. Boxing is a sport that develops the individual rapidly and symetrically, gives him self-assurance that no other sport does, and teaches him self-defense that will always be valuable. A regular system of exercising will be followed each afternoon and these classes will begin around four. Practice will be held every day from four to six in the Tin Can.

BASEBALL NOTICE

Coach Ashmore has called a meeting of the varsity baseball squad for 4 o'clock today. Equipment will be issued from 10:30 to 12 and 2:30 to 4 o'clock.

Golf Team To Play Tournament Matches

Old Members Back This Year; Strong Team Expected.

June Adams, Charlie Chatham, Meade Willis, and Luther Steward, who composed last year's golf team, are all back and eligible to play again this season. This should prove to be a strong team this year.

Neither a captain nor a manager has yet been elected. A meeting for the purpose of choosing these men will be held in the near future.

The schedule has not yet been completed, but it is to include matches with Duke and Georgia Tech and the Southern tournament to be held this year in Birmingham, Ala.

Fetzer Is Honored

Coach Bob Fetzer, director of athletics at the University of North Carolina, was honored at a banquet in High Point held by the University alumni Monday night. It was a testimonial dinner at which signal tribute was paid to "the greatest coach in North Carolina."

After the banquet Coach Fetzer delivered a speech on the occasion of the awarding of silver loving cups to five amateur championship teams. A large crowd of sportsmen gathered in the local Y. M. C. A. to hear the veteran coach discuss athletics in its broader significance.

He stressed the physical and character-building sides of athletic development. He also urged the encouragement of mass athletics, the purpose of which is to get as many people as possible to try out for teams. Coach Fetzer concluded his speech with a discussion of football prospects at the University this fall. J. J. McMurray, a former star end at the University, introduced the speaker.

Tech Has Line Gauge

A bucking frame connected with a scale to register the charging power in pounds, of a football line, has been devised by Bill Fincher, line coach at Georgia Tech.

The device will be in use next week in practice on the new Rose Bowl field. Coach Fincher figured with an engineer of a scales manufacturing company, and has his apparatus so arranged that the total charging power of a line, or individual pressures, can be measured.

Coach Fincher says the device not only will give for the first time an accurate idea of how much power is exerted by seven linemen on their charge, but will tell him instantly when his forwards are slowing up in their work.

Gamecocks Miss Wolfe

Harry Wolfe, southern intercollegiate heavyweight champion while at the University of South Carolina will not return to the University this fall. At present, he is working with the Pennsylvania Railroad.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO LEAVE HERE FOR TECH GAME

Carolina Football Fans Get Reduced Rates for the Occasion; Georgia-Yale Game Included In Trip.

The Southern Railway has announced the schedule and rates to be effective for the special train to Atlanta and Athens, Ga., for the Tech-Carolina and the Georgia-Yale game.

The train will be parked for occupancy in Athens and Atlanta the days of the games. It will leave Chapel Hill at nine o'clock Thursday night, October 10 and arrive in Atlanta Friday morning at eight. It leaves for Athens Saturday morning at four o'clock, and leaves there at eight o'clock that night for the return to Chapel Hill.

The round-trip rate is $15.03. Rates for berths, compartments, and drawing rooms are available at the local ticket office. Proportional rates may be secured at any station in North Carolina. Where two people occupy one berth there will be no additional charge.

There will be special car parties composed of the University faculty members, team, band, students, Mr. J. W. Hanes of Winston-Salem, New York members of the Alumni Association and friends. Special cars will be run from Goldsboro, Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill, and any other point where there is sufficient business to justify.

Further information may be obtained at local ticket office.

Mercer All Set

Having completed their third week of training with a short workout on Alumni field here Saturday morning, the Mercer Bears are now in fine fettle for their first game of the season with the Duke University Blue Devils to be played on Saturday, September 28, in the Mercer stadium.

Coaches Lake Russell and Harrold McNabb, Mercer's new mentors, have developed their squad, 30 candidates into a likely looking football eleven. When Russell took charge of Mercer's athletics, the prospects for a good football team were the gloomiest in years, but the young coach and his still younger assistant have worked hard morning and afternoon during the last three weeks and now have the small group of Bear gridiron warriors in tip-top shape and ready to play a game at any time.

Sherwood May Become Back

Bill Sherwood, captain of the Lafayette team, and star end for the last two years, may be converted into a backfield man.

Fighting Preachers

Ministers fought against boxing in North Carolina colleges. On last year's Duke team were two boys studying for the ministry and a third boy was the son of a minister.

Rhame to Help S. C.

Crip Rhame, a freshman football star at South Carolina in 1927, is expected to win a halfback berth on the varsity this year. Rhame is a triple threat back.

S. C. Coaching Staff

Coaches Billy Laval, Whitley Rawl, Kenneth Thrash, A. W. Norman, and Burnet Stoney form South Carolina's coaching staff this fall. Coaches Rooster McFadden and Harry Lightsey did not return.

SEND THE TAR HEEL HOME

(By Crawford McKethan)

THE old order changes; the Hall of Football Fame has received its prizes, and now a new influx of aspiring grid stars are preparing to present their goods to the scrutiny of a critical North Carolina public opinion. The first shock brought on by the thought that such men as Dick Grey, Jack McDowell, Harry Schwartz and finally that great combination Rackley and Riley, will never again bring to their feet the cheering masses of North Carolina football fans has passed away, and in its place has come comfort in the thought that 1929 contains a collection of candidates such as never before has offered itself upon the N. C. gridiron.

It has often been said this early fall that Duke's possibilities were stronger this season than ever before; just how much truth there is in this statement we may all see when the Blue Devils take the field Saturday against Mercer away down in Macon. A world of strength has come up this year from the frosh team of last year, in fact nine of these sophomores are now standing on an even par with many of the lettermen and reserves of last year. Six of these sophs are slated to see action in the backfield at some time during this season; the aforementioned backfield candidates are Robeson, Brewer, Coleman, Rochelle, Beaver and Russ; Hyatt, Bryan and Friedman are pushing their seniors for a berth in the line. Rasky, Buie and Jankoski are all back this year to add their strength to the backfield. Peeler, Carpenter, Thorne, Warren, Taylor and Adkins will form the bulwark of the forward wall. This leaves unmentioned Captain Kistler who claims undisputed ownership of one of the tackle positions. Duke's hopes for a strong defense lie in the fact that around Kistler as a nucleus, a potent line may be moulded.

State has three sophs back who are showing up unusually well and are making it pretty hot for the three letter ball-toters who have turned up this fall. Wright, Dellinger, and Devant all showed up well on last year's freshman team and are continuing this performance in the scrimmages this year. Melton, Johnson and Jeffrey are the Davidson, although recent re-Around the following men the 1929 State line will undoubtedly be built: Jakie Jordan, Morgan, Crousen, Vann, Smathers, Stout, Chaplin and Gardner. Captain Lepo will hold down one of the tackle positions and will have on his shoulders the same responsibility that his rival from Duke must run up against.

Davidson will center its hopes this year around five men who return as the only surviving veterans and reserves of real strength from last year's squad. Coaches Younger and Tilson have more than a hard job on their hands, and one that when viewing the prospects that some of the other Big Five elevens seem to have, appears to be a bit overwhelming. Captain Brook on the flank is the one man of real strength on the Wildcat team; in the backfield the 'Cats will have McCall, Fraley, Brohart, and Parrish. In spite of its crippled condition Davidson will be forced to meet one of the stiffest schedules in its history.

Pat Miller has just about as tough an assignment over at Wake Forest as Younger has at Davidson, although recept reports seem to place the Deacons in a far more optimistic light. Among the men who will be called upon to meet the Heels on Saturday will be Williams, Webb, Zimmerman, Mills and Cox. Just what surprises Pat has hidden up his sleeve will be forced out in rapid style this week-end; his team may then be a wonder team but it will no longer be a mystery team.

Student Musicians at Duke Are Now Getting Organized

Durham, Sept. 25. — Student musicians at Duke University are getting their year's musical activities well under way. The first organization to get away with a flying start is the band. In past years the university band has been an outstanding organization on the campus, and its leaders believe that this year will be an even greater one for it. Its first appearance will be on October 5 at the opening of the new stadium.

New equipment has been bought for the band, and with a high-stepping drum major leading a company of brilliantly uniformed players their initial appearance should attract attention.

Nearly 100 men turned out for the first band practice of the fall, and out of these Director George E. Leftwich will select the most capable 50. According to Director Leftwich the band will accompany the football team to a number of away from home games this fall.

Other musical organizations on the campus are likewise getting busy, and with ample talent the symphony orchestra, the jazz orchestra, and the glee clubs are looking to crack organizations.

Grail Dance Saturday

The Grail anounces that its first dance of the season will take place Saturday night at 9 o'clock in the gymnasium. Jack Wardlaw will play.

Track Notice

Coach Ranson wishes all varsity candidates for track to be present for practice starting today at 4 o'clock. Equipment will be issued today between the hours of 10:30 and 12 and 2:30 and 4.

Kerr Needs a Punter

Andy Kerr must develop a punter and a running guard because of the graduation of Bruce du Mont.

John H. Anderson, Jr., third-year law student, has been very ill in McPherson hospital, Durham, due to a glandular abscess. He hopes to return to his home in Chapel Hill Sunday.

Don't Go Hungry When You Burn The Midnight Oil

Midnight Refreshments

HOT DOGS
SANDWICHES DRINKS
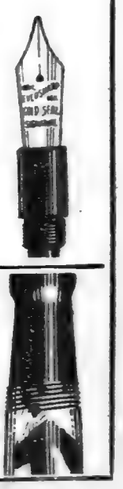
CANDIES

Await You at

The Blue and White



EMERSON FIELD
Sher & Wyrick, Managers
OPEN TILL MIDNIGHT

MR. and MRS. G. W. HILL
226 E. FRANKLIN STREET
Dressmaking — Altering — Repairing
Dormitory Men: 20% Discount for Cash and Carry.
Excellent Work Done On All Kinds of Clothing
FOR BOTH LADIES AND GENTLEMEN
Work Called for Daily at Your Dormitory by "Boss" Hill

CARS FOR RENT
U DRIVE IT YOURSELF
Open Day and Night
CARS
Chevrolets, Oakland, Studebaker,
7-Pas. Packard, 8-Pas. Packard Sedan
Also Taxi Cabs with Careful Drivers. Long Distance Trips Special Discount. Free Road Service.
E. E. PUGH
Phone 3861

A PEN MORE PERSONAL
than a pledge pin

A pen made to your order. Your choice of points. Your choice of holders. Your choice of color, size and style. You select the point and holder separately—then the dealer instantly, permanently joins them to make your

WAHL-EVERSHARP
Personal-Point
FOUNTAIN PEN

Never before such individuality! And a Wahl-Eversharp Pencil, standard of the world—to match your pen in color, style and writing ability. Over at the Wahl-Eversharp dealers. See them now.

Sorority Rules

The Women's Pan-Hellenic Council at its first meeting of the year changed its rushing rules for the coming season. Several drastic changes were made. In view of the beginning of rushing next week, the rules are being published.

The rules are as follows:

1. There shall be two or more weeks truce at the beginning of each college year, dating from the first day of registration. During this time there shall be no fraternity rushing. (Rushing consists of (a) talking fraternity matters to or before rushees; (b) making dates with rushees; and (c) allowing rushees to be present at fraternity parties or teas.)

2. The rushing season shall last one week beginning Monday, October 7, and ending on the following Saturday evening, October 12. The hours of rushing during the week shall begin at 3 p. m. and end at 6 p. m. Rushing may reopen at 7:30 in the evening and end at 10:30 the same evening. At all other times, the truce stipulated for the first two weeks shall be regarded. On Friday and Saturday evenings rushing shall last until midnight. The period of silence shall begin at midnight Saturday and terminate only after all the bids have been delivered the following Monday.

3. The mode of rushing is left in the hands of sororities with the understanding that the boys shall not in any way participate in rushing.

4. The girls who are to receive bids from the fraternities will be notified in writing on the Monday following the week of silence. They are to go to the office of the dean of women where they are to state their preference according to the usual rule of preferential bidding.

Frosh Learning Yells

"Hark the sound of Tar Heel voices!"—"So it's rah! rah! Carolina-lina!"—Yackety Yack! Ray! Ray!"—these are the familiar refrains being hummed and shouted in the dormitories and on the campus by the new Carolina men. Not quite two weeks on the Hill, yet freshmen are entering whole-heartedly into the University's campus activities. "Give us a chance Saturday" are the sentiments expressed by the majority of the freshmen, "and we will show you what a yelling bunch we are!"

Dr. Harold D. Meyer Speaks To Surry Parent-Teachers

Dr. Harold D. Meyer, of the University of North Carolina, will make the principal address at the first meeting of the Parent-Teacher association of Curry school, North Carolina college, to be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Curry auditorium. Short talks by others, a business session and a social hour will complete the program.

Near 1,100 Upperclassmen Register at State College

Raleigh, Sept. 25. — Although definite figures on the enrollment of upper classmen at North Carolina State college were not available at the close of registration late Tuesday afternoon, W. L. Mayer, director of registration, stated that between 1,000 and 1,100 students had matriculated.

Late comers are expected to increase these figures before the end of the present week and the director expects the total enrollment of resident students for the fall term to run close to 2,000.

Magazine To Appear October 6

The first issue of The Carolina Magazine will appear Sunday, October 6. The deadline for the initial issue will be September 30. All copy for this number must be in the hands of the editor by that date. Sketches, short stories, poetry and articles of a general literary or critical nature are accepted. Any student who wishes to submit contributions is invited to do so.

JOHN MEBANE,
Editor.

First Tea Given At Spencer Hall

The first of the customary series of Wednesday afternoon teas was given by the former women students of Carolina at Spencer hall yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 to welcome the new members of the Woman's association.

As a special feature of entertainment the Carolinians rendered several popular vocal selections with guitar accompaniment. The members of the quartet are Steve Lynch, John Millar, Woffard Humphries and Jack Connally.

Mesdames Lawrence, Rozzelle, Phillips and Oliver helped to receive and welcome the new students. Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Harding poured and members of the council assisted with the reception. Other members of the committee were Misses Maurine Forrester, Mary Louise Carpenter, Elizabeth Murphy, Henrietta Underwood and Sidney Currie.

Maps of Frat Houses

Maps showing the locations of the various fraternity houses in Chapel Hill may be seen in the Y. M. C. A. building or at Patterson's or Sutton's drug stores. These maps will be exhibited for the next few days for the benefit of freshmen who wish to know the location of the houses.

Grad School to Meet

There will be a first general meeting of the Graduate School Friday evening at 8 o'clock in Smith building. The principal speakers will be President Chase, Dr. W. W. Pierson, Jr., and Mr. Coney, assistant librarian.

Attitude of Players Important

"It depends on the mental attitude of the men," was the statement given by Ray Farris, captain of the varsity football squad this evening concerning the game with Wake Forest Saturday. He further explained that if the members of the team would assume the right attitude and work together there would be little trouble in defeating the Deacons by a large margin.

Crowds Amazed at Shows

What a glorious entertainment was presented to audiences at the Carolina theatre last night! Words fail to describe its perfection: It has everything, a romantic story, color, sound, dialog, fun, drama.

"The Dance of Life" is the picture which opened its two-day run at the Carolina theatre yesterday. It is the world-famous stage success, "Burlesque," on the screen.

"The Dance of Life" is talking throughout. It is one of the most adaptable subjects offered the dialog screen. Music works into the plot naturally. Catchy, new, especially written songs are heard, intermingled with a group of old-time favorites.

Three of every five automobiles in Belgium are American.

United Daughters of Confederacy Meet

The first meeting of the Leonidas Pope chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was held Tuesday afternoon in the Presbyterian church with Miss Annie Belle Durham and Mrs. Marvin Utley as hostesses.

The meeting was primarily for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year, and delegates to the state convention which is to be held at Statesville in October. Mrs. W. S. Bernard and Mrs. W. S. Long were elected delegates. The alternates are Mrs. A. A. Klutz and Mrs. Irene F. Lee.

Also of interest to the members was the plan voted on to change the meeting place from the Presbyterian church, and to arrange to meet in the homes of the various members.

During the afternoon tea was served by the hostesses.

Research Institute Collects Material of Social Sciences

(Continued from page one)

Vance, research associates; and Mr. Columbus Andrews, Mr Hugh P. Brinton, Mr. J. P. McConnell, Miss Mary P. Smith, Mrs. Julia C. Spruill, research assistants.

One of the special features of the institute is its clerical staff through which not only its own research is carried on but assistance rendered to the members of the faculty in their scholarly work. The office staff consists of the Misses Ina V. Young, Belle Mooring, Nancy Herndon, Treva Williams, and Mrs. Margaret Shine.

Because of heavy supplies from Holland and St. Malo, best new potatoes were sold in London recently at $12.50 a ton.

Bread prices in the Irish Free State are rising.

Y. M. C. A. Lists Many Features For This Year's Attractions

(Continued from page one)

bert Gray of England who, being one of the most prominent clergymen of today and an author of many books on social and religious questions, will be the big number on the fall quarter program. He is the author of the most widely read book on the sex question among college men, namely, "Men, Women and God." Further announcements will be made as to the detail of his program.

Another feature on this program will be on November 14 when the Y presents the United States marine band to the campus in a series of matinees and evening performances. The afternoon concerts will be especially for the school children in Chapel Hill as well as for the campus itself. Plans are being discussed for having the evening concert in Kenan stadium, weather permitting.

The marine band, which is the oldest band in the United States, is making a tour of the south and is stopping at only five or six points.

The Y is also making an effort to obtain one of the country's highest military officers to address the students on "Our National Defense Policy." The man has not yet been secured, but when such is the case an announcement will be made in more detail as to what the program will be.

Dr. Otto Stuhlman Says German Students Work Hard

(Continued from page one)

goings.

"You go and buy a ticket, have your baggage weighed, get in a plane and you are off for your destination. Air service is all over Europe, and the planes run like clockwork."

Automobiles are not very popular in Germany, said Dr. Stuhlman. "It is very seldom that you will meet a car on a German highway. The probable cause for this scarcity of automobiles is the difficulty of getting gasoline."

Instead of the two or three service stations on every corner such as there are in the United States, there will be a small sign, "Petrol," tacked on the side of a building. Then more than likely you have to go down an alley to a small, dirty stable that has been deserted, and there some one will try to sell you a bit of "petrol."

In regard to the movies in Germany, Dr. Stuhlman said that probably 90 percent of the pictures shown are American productions. All the American pictures showing in Germany this summer had been shown in this country some time before, and Mr. Stuhlman stated that in one city he was unable to find a picture that he had not seen before.

When asked how the "talkies" in Germany impressed him, Dr. Stuhlman said that the German talking pictures are better than those produced in this country. He believed that the foreign films have a faster action and that instead of a continuous stream of spoken words, sound to create atmosphere is used. Sounds to create atmosphere included the sound of an aeroplane taking off, uproar made by a mob, and the crash of a falling vase.

"I saw several German talking pictures, and I especially enjoyed a tragedy and a comedy. However, most of the German productions are only one or two reels long. They have not yet made any five or six reel talking pictures."

The musical comedies of the Germans he regarded as far superior to those of America. The girls in the choruses are excellent singers, they dance very well, and in addition they are real beauties. The competition for places in German revue is so keen that only the best are able to succeed, and accordingly the standard of their shows is much higher than that in this country.

The German opera company is much better than any in this country. Instead of having a German, two Frenchmen, an Italian, and a Spaniard singing German opera as it is in America, the German companies have all German singers. Because of this it is possible for one to sit in any seat in a hall and understand every word that is sung.

Contrary to general expectation, Mr. Stuhlman said that traveling in Germany is not cheap. Instead it is about as expensive as travel in this country. However, traveling in Belgium and France is cheaper, but that in England is the most expensive of all.

Dr. Stuhlman who is a professor of physics in the University made an eight-week tour of Germany this summer to study general conditions of physics teaching and research work in the German universities. He was especially interested in investigating the conditions surrounding advanced and research work in physics.

The Daily Tar Heel Business Staff Meets

All members of the business staff of the Daily Tar Heel are asked to attend an important staff meeting at the new office at 9 o'clock tonight.

MARION ALEXANDER,
Business Manager.

A New Balanced Shape
--in--
SHEAFFER
PEN AND PENCIL COMBINATIONS
$8.00 — $10.00

Lifetime Balanced Models
$7.50 — $10.00

OTHERS $3.00 UP

All Are Sheaffer Products

Students' Supply Store
Everything in Stationery

Nancy Carroll singing new hits better'n "Close Harmony"! Hal Skelly—you'll like him instantly—a scream as Skid. Lovable, awkward comedian! A wonder picture climaxed with a gorgeous musical comedy all in color!

"The Dance of Life"
with
HAL SKELLY
NANCY CARROLL
All Talking Singing Dancing
Special
With Scenes in Dazzling
Technicolor!
You'll Hear
the Sensational Song Hits
"True Blue Lou"
"Flippity Flop"
Added Attraction
Paramount Sound News
TODAY

CAROLINA THEATRE

SATURDAY
William Haines
in
"SPEEDWAY"
Special Saturday Morning Matinee
10:00 A. M.

Featuring
Made-to-Order Suits
at $27.50 — $34.50

Also the Latest
Hart, Shaffner & Marx
Silverstripe
Learbury
Stock Suits and Top Coats
McGregor's Sweaters
Golf Hose

Jack Lipman's University Shop

SAWYER'S RAINWEAR

BE prepared now to enjoy all the big games this season. You can't expect to support your cheering section lustily or enjoy watching that forward pass if you're getting drenched.

Sawyer's "Frog Brand" Students' Slickers have become staple and universally adopted everywhere. The new Sawyer "Forain" Zephyr-weight garments are now accepted as the very latest in wet weather protection for college men and women. Every garment tailored in the most advanced styles and rendered absolutely waterproof and windproof by the famous Sawyer process. The Sawyer's "Forain" street coat weighs only 20 ounces. See these new live models and staple "Frog Brand" slickers at the nearest dealers.

Get Yours—TODAY

H. M. SAWYER & SON
EAST CAMBRIDGE MASSACHUSETTS

Report Circulation Complaints
8:30-9:30 A. M.
TAR HEEL OFFICE

The Daily Tar Heel

FRESHMEN MEET TONIGHT
9:15 O'CLOCK
GERRARD HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1929 | NUMBER 7

Dormitory Clubs to Organize Tonight; First Year Men To Be Guests of Upperclassmen

Members of Dormitory Groups Will Gather in Their Social Rooms This Evening at 10:30.

It has been the custom during the last few years to set aside one night in the early part of the fall quarter for the organization of the dormitories and tonight is set for this fall's meeting. Usually the freshmen are entertained with food and speech by the upperclassmen, as a gesture that the student body of the university is interested in making friends as well as in the pursuit of education.

In those dormitories that have social rooms, the members will gather at 10:30 p. m. Other dormitories will have their meetings in the first floor halls or sections. Proper signs or other means of communication will be used by the dormitory presidents to inform the members of the meeting.

At these first meetings the men are encouraged to get acquainted; to elect dormitory officers not already elected; and after the main meetings the members will retire to their respective floors or sections and elect the councilmen. Two councilmen are elected from each floor or section, and sitting with the dormitory president as chairman, comprise the dormitory council. This council has jurisdiction over the dormitory deportment, and other affairs peculiar to each dormitory. The student council last year empowered the dormitory councils with complete authority over dormitory disturbances. The powers of the councils will be explained in detail at the dormitory meetings.

Each dormitory is entitled to send two representatives to the meetings of the Carolina dormitory club. This organization deals with the various problems which face the dormitory occupants and legislates concerning them. The object of the club for the past four years has been to make the dormitories better places in which to live and study. Many men have moved out of dormitories because of excessive noise. This condition should not exist. The dormitories should be the best places on the Hill to live. The club is trying to make them so.

All dormitory members are urged to turn out for these first meeting. The new men are especially urged to attend and find out the Carolina method of perfecting self-government in the dormitories.

All Alumni Clubs To Meet October 12

J. Maryon Saunders, executive secretary of the General Alumni Association, announces that all alumni clubs of the university will meet on October 11 instead of October 12, as was previously planned.

One of the main objects of this meeting will be to increase the number of active alumni clubs in this state. There are alumni living in every county of the state, but only about one-third of the counties have active alumni chapters. An effort is being made to have more alumni club meetings during the coming year than have been held in the past.

DIRECTORY NOTICE

All students who have registered since September 23, all students who failed to fill out address blanks when registering and all students who have changed their address since registering will please call by the Y office at once and leave their present address. This must be done before Saturday of this week or their names will go into the Master Directory permanently incomplete.

CHURCHMEN CLOSE MEET YESTERDAY

Many Episcopal Dignitaries Here for Diocesan Conference; Laymen Meet Today.

Exhorting the clergy to duplicate the record of the past year, dignitaries of the Episcopal church Thursday closed the final session of the annual fall forward movement conference of diocese of North Carolina. More than 50 clergy returned Friday to their pulpits throughout the state following the conference.

Opening with early communion at 7:30 o'clock Thursday morning, the clergymen spent the rest of the morning in a combination of addresses and open discussions. Rev. Robert E. Bribben, Winston-Salem, presided during the day.

"The Church's Mission in the Mill Town" was the subject of the first address by Rev. Norman C. Duncan. He discussed the possible activities of the church in the way of recreation and the religious life of the mill worker. Following an open discussion on the question of the mill town, Rev. W. B. Stabler, Worcester, Mass., spoke on the work of the church among students.

Advice on how to tell the missionary story was given to the clergymen by Dr. Louis B. Franklin, national treasurer of the church, New York city. "The missionary should visualize, dramatize, personalize, and vitalize his story," Dr. Franklin said.

Bishop L. F. Kent, head of the Episcopal school at Valle Crucis, entertained the conference with a story of his "Adventures along the Yukon." Bishop Penick was formerly archdeacon of the Yukon.

More than 75 laymen arrived for the first session of the conference for non-clergy. They were entertained Thursday night with a banquet in the parish house of the Chapel of the Cross last night. They are following the same program as the clergy.

Dr. Taylor to Speak

Dr. Carl C. Taylor, Dean of the Graduate school of State college, will preach at the United Church (Christian Congregational) on Cameron avenue, next Sunday at 11:00 a. m. Dr. Taylor is widely known as a scholar and as a speaker. The public is cordially invited to attend this service.

The horse took longer to get you there, but you didn't have to drive half-way back to hitch. —Publishers Syndicate.

CHANGE IN GLEE CLUB ANNOUNCED

New Head of Music Department Announces Plans for Fall.

An entirely new policy for the coming year will be adopted by the glee club, Harold S. Dyer, head of the musical department, said Thursday. "Enough men for more than four clubs have answered the first call of the year, and places on the first club will be awarded after intense competition," he stated.

Decrying the habit of the old men remaining away from practice sessions until immediately before the trips, Mr. Dyer said that all men failing to appear at every practice will be dropped from the group. "Instead of a select group of 30 to go through the year, 65 men will be kept in the club this season and the 30 men to make the trip will not be selected until time for the trip grows near," he said.

Dr. Dyer announced that in spite of the fact that the deadline for glee club tryouts was made yesterday at 4 p. m., there will be another opportunity for men interested in this work to tryout later providing special appointment is made with him. He is particularly anxious to give every person in the university who is interested in music a chance to tryout for the club. He has discovered some wonderful talent in previous tryouts, and he hopes to find more.

Correct Faculty Committee List Is Made Public

The faculty executive committee, which was elected at the first of this week, is composed of the following members: Dr. William Frederick Prouty, chairman; Maurice T. Van Hecke, secretary, and Dr. Charles Mangum, Dr. E. W. Knight, Dr. G. A. Harrer and Dr. E. L. Mackie.

Miscellaneous Offerings on Y Bulletin Board Interest And Amuse Casual Reader

Frosh Want Everything from 'English Poets' and Thoughts, To 'Sighchology' Book.

(By Milt Wood)

Do you want a "room close to campus heat?" Have you found a "bunch of keys in a 'lether' case?" How about living in a "one one-room cottage" near the campus? Perhaps you have a sighchology" book for sale? Maybe you would like to have some stationery with your name, address and the seal of the university on it "at a lower price than you can buy plain paper?"" Would you like to sell that old Latin book, because a pair of young fellows want "A Vergil's Aemeid" very badly?

Step right up then, my cheerie, for the place is the bulletin board of the "Y" store, the time is the present, and the opportunity of a lifetime for bargains or laughs is revealed on that classified column register of "Scotch" student advertisers.

Boy, page Will Rogers or Mark Twain to help out on this discovery of humorous writers and modern spellers.

The chap who has lost the bunch of keys in the "lether"

(Continued on page four)

Two New Men Added To Zoology Staff

From the department of zoology comes the announcement that two men have been added to the staff of instruction in zoology this fall.

Dr. J. N. Valentine, graduate of Yale and formerly on the faculty of Western Reserve university, comes to the university as assistant professor of zoology. Aside from his reputation as a zoologist, Dr. Valentine is a scientific artist of note. A collection of his charts are being published at present.

Mr. Alan Mozely comes to the university where he was a graduate student. Mr. Mozely completed recently a field of studies in Natural History in the Canadian Northwest, and has had published a number of scientific reports. He has been added to the faculty as an instructor in zoology.

POUND PARTY TONIGHT

Young people are invited to attend the "pound party" tonight at 8 o'clock in the social rooms of the First Presbyterian church. Bring a pound of something.

Professor Beard

At the recent meeting of the American Association of the Colleges of Pharmacy held in South Dakota, Professor J. G. Beard of the university's school of pharmacy was elected president.

Pharmacy School To Require Four Years for Degree

The school of pharmacy announces that in 1932 the three-year course in pharmacy leading to the Ph. G. degree will be changes to a four-year course. This change of policy is dictated by a new ruling of the American association of schools of pharmacy which requires all pharmacy schools claiming membership to institute a four-year course.

Interesting statistics are offered by Professor Beard of the pharmacy department relative to the required change. For the last three years pharmacy students have been voluntarily changing from the three-year Ph. G. course required by the school of pharmacy to the four-year B. S. in pharmacy required of those in the school of applied science. This year 18 of the 81 students registered for pharmacy are voluntarily taking the four-year course.

Grail to Give First Dance of Year at Gym Tomorrow Night

Jack Wardlaw's Orchestra to Furnish Music; Tickets on Sale at 8:15 and Dancing at 9 O'clock.

At a meeting of the officers of the order of the Grail last Tuesday evening the date of the first dance was set for tomorrow night. Jack Wardlaw has been engaged to play for this occasion.

The Grail has a series of dances running throughout the course of the school year. All students, excepting freshmen, are eligible to attend these dances. However, due to the limited floor space in the gymnasium, only 175 tickets are sold. These will go on sale at 8:15 tomorrow night. The dance will begin at 9.

The officers of the Grail at present are Marion Follin, president; "Red" Green, treasurer; Ed Hamer, secretary, and Mayne Albright, assistant treasurer. The executive committee is composed of Aubrey Parsley, "Red" Green and Marion Follin. Gordon Gray, Buggs Race and Charley Waddell will serve as representatives of the German club.

As all dances at the university are under the jurisdiction of the German club, this committee has the duty of reporting all infraction of rules to the executive committee of the German club.

A large crowd is expected due to the presence of outsiders attending the Carolina-Wake Forest game Saturday afternoon.

Last Day to Exchange Coupons

Today is the last chance for exchanging coupons for Wake Forest game tickets. The student exchange ticket office is open today from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. in the lobby of the Y.M.C.A. Medical school, and graduate school students who have not called at the business office for coupon books are reminded to do so today and have the coupons exchanged. No coupons will be exchanged after 5 p. m. today.

HEFFNER TALKS ON PLAYMAKERS

Associate Director of University Dramatic Group Speaks At Chapel Exercises.

An interesting discussion of the Carolina Playmakers was presented in chapel Thursday morning by Professor Hubert Heffner, the associate director of that organization. Professor fessor Heffner explained the activities of the Playmakers as outlined for the year, and then invited all new men with any dramatic ability to take advantage of the present opportunity of getting into this work.

Professor Heffner gave the program of the Playmakers for this season and made a few comments upon each play to be presented. He also spoke of the tours to be made this year, mentioning cities to be included in them and some of the presentations to be made at each.

Due to the fact that the Playmakers is a large organization, the work is of a large variety, Professor Heffner said. Besides the opening for actors, there is is an opportunity for those with ability in such work as scenic construction and painting to become connected with the club. However, as there is a need for a number of actors, Professor Heffner particularly urged that those with any dramatic ability or experience whatever, give consideration to the matter and attend the tryouts. He added, moreover, that those expecting to take part in the work of the Playmakers begin now, in order that they might gain the full benefit of their experiences.

The only prerequisite of work with the Playmakers is a satisfactory scholastic standing. Otherwise, the selection of actors is to be made solely upon merit.

Professor Heffner announced that the tryouts, open to every student interested, would be held Monday at the hours of 4:30 and 7:30 p. m.

President Chase To Make Two Addresses During Next Month

It was learned yesterday that President Chase is to make two important speeches at the beginning of next month. The first of President Chase's speeches is to be delivered at the university of Virginia at its opening convocation exercises on October 2. The second speech will be delivered at the founders' day exercises on October 5 at N. C. C. W. in Greensboro.

Spring Publishing Calendar of Press Is Being Delayed

Entire Board of Governors Must Read Manuscripts before Going To Press.

The spring publishing program of the University of North Carolina press association is being considerably delayed because the manuscript of every book to be published must be read by each member of the board of governors before it can be accepted, according to a statement Mrs. Howard M. Jones of the press association made yesterday. Ten of the 13 members of the board of governors, who are members of the university faculty, are busy planning their work for the year and have not much time to devote to the press.

Four recent books of the press have been greatly honored, according to another statement Mrs. Jones made yesterday, by being selected by the committee on intellectual cooperation of the league of nations, as among the 40 outstanding American books of the years in which they were published.

Each year the committee of the league selects a certain number of books from each country, including 40 from the United States, as the most important books of that year. The Negro and His Songs by Howard W. Odum and Guy B. Johnson of the university institute for research in social science, was chosen among the 40 outstanding books of 1925.

Folk Beliefs of the Southern Negro by Nelson N. Pickett, also of the institute, was chosen in 1926, and America and French Culture by Howard M. Jones, head of the university English department, was among the 40 in 1927.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.
The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $3.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Friday, September 27, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

Yesterday's biggest news event: old man sun returned to our city after a prolonged absence.

It has been suggested that Governor Gardner confer with the Communist leaders of the National Textile Workers Union. Don't do it, governor—those birds have an unpleasant habit of letting their pistols do the talking for them.

The Clinchfield and Marion mills, strike centers, have announced a "voluntary" five per cent wage increase for all employees, "to reward loyal workers." Since ex-strikers as well as stand-patters received the boost in pay, we conclude that the mill owners decided to let fortune smile upon the damned as well as the innocent. But we have a sneaking suspicion that if there had been no strike there would have been no wage increase.

A United Press dispatch states that other senators listened in amazement as Senator Brookhart recounted to the Senate Tuesday the story of a senatorial dinner at which some of the distinguished guests quenched their thirsts by reaching under the table for individual pocket flasks. We fear that the U. P. writer sadly misused that word amazement.

Is Individualism In Business Doomed?

On the heels of the merger of several leading banks in this state to form the gigantic new North Carolina Banking and Trust company, comes the news of another huge consolidation which will include approximately 17 of the state's leading financial concerns. The Marine Midland Corporation, a holding and management company now being organized by New York banking interests, will acquire the controlling interest in at least 17 North Carolina banks, if present plans go through.

This is the era of mergers. In every field of business and industry the smaller companies and being gobbled up by the large concerns. Chain stores have effectually eliminated most of the corner grocers and druggists who were until a few years ago the primary units in the nation's distribution system, and now the town banker seems destined to lose his identity in the modern trend toward big business enterprises.

Present indications are that the independent business man, operating his own small store or shop, is doomed to extinction in this country. A few huge corporations will dominate every channel of American business and industrial activity within the next few years, if the present merger movement continues unabated.

In many instances mergers have proven to be beneficial to the general public. Prices have been lowered, and general prosperity seems to have continued because of or in spite of the merger epidemic. But the new movement has succeeded in transforming thousands of individual business owners into hirelings of huge corporations, and for that reason, if for no other, it is to be deplored.

It is readily apparent that any man who thinks that he can become absolutely independent, subject to the bidding of no other person, and still earn his own living, is laboring under a delusion. The modern commercial system precludes all possibility of such an ideal existence. But the last stronghold of individualism in business, the small scale enterprise, seems destined to oblivion under the impetus of the merger movement.

Characteristically American

Advance publicity on the football situation tells of the worries of the coaches as to whether Captain Farris, the triple-threat spectacular guard, will "come through" in tomorrow's game with the old form he showed last season and the season before. The outcome of the Tar Heels' season may turn upon the performance of the captain.

Tonsilitis has been worrying Captain Farris a good deal. This kept him from scrimmage a good part of the training period. However with sickness cured, Captain Farris finds himself burdened with the duties of the presidency of the student body which, if he discharges them at all, will take a large part of his time. Indeed it is a good-sized job for one man to perform the duties of our system which depends more directly upon one man than any other. Making speeches almost every night, attending meetings of the student council, investigating every violation of the honor system reported, answering calls at night from freshmen seeking protection from sophomores, these might well keep any man busy. To do all this, then play football, and take any work is indeed a herculean task.

This is a situation that is characteristically American. We heap honors upon our heroes, burden them down with duties, ask every effort on their part, and in return we expect the best of performance of them. It seems that in a student body of nearly three thousand others could be found who could capably administer student government without taking the pep out of our finest athlete.

If Captain Farris can "come through" tomorrow, then he can perform tasks worthy of a Titan.—J. D. McN.

Readers' Opinions

ANOTHER OPPONENT OF BILLBOARDS

Editor Daily Tar Heel:

Your editorial in this morning's Tar Heel relating to the public billboards along our highways is most appropriate. Maybe it is up to you and the Tar Heel to impress upon our people and legislature the blight of this means of advertising. You are perfectly right in calling attention to our new road to Raleigh and its freedom from such gaudiness.

Irving Cobb said some years ago, "You will find New Jersey behind the billboards along the Pennsylvania tracks." I trust North Carolina will never approximate such a condition, although we are not far behind as to our highways.

The Daily Tar Heel is quite an improvement in college journalism and a distinctive addition to university life. Strength to your hand.

Very respectfully,
C. EXCELL ROZZELL.

POETICAL CONTRIBUTION

Editor of the Tar Heel:

I thought this poem might touch some kindred soul among our students. It is written by an emigrant boy, Stephen E. Blokowski. In a short while he will be dead, laid low by the scourge, T. B. He is living in poverty, conditions that are unfriendly, cruel, deadening. The poem is remarkable, glowing with Greek range of passion.

I heard a song. I wove into that song
The joys of fate—vague mystery —the bleak
And wan despair of which so many speak.
I wrote as if my spirit might belong
To some old master who was wise and strong.
The song was his—my words a puppet's freak.

I formed the words, and curbed them into a rhyme,
And when they faltered most, I made them leap
Fierce from my pen—as from a winters sleep
A lean and angered bear might lunge. In time
Grown bold—become a shrill voice mime—
I wove the words that made a murdered weep.

I changed the theme. I dallied with my words
Just long enough to fit them to a meash
Of tinselled thoughts, then drew them back afresh
To talk of truth and constancy— the girds
Of life and love—of flowers and mocking birds—
And of my own ego which cremates my flesh.

Very truly yours,
H. H. WILLIAMS.

N. C. C. W. STUDENTS FROM 19 PLACES OUTSIDE STATE

Greensboro, Sept. 26.—Mexico, Canal Zone, Washington, D. C., Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, New York, Florida, West Virginia, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Kentucky, Kansas, New Hampshire and Texas have representatives in student population of more than 1,800 at North Carolina college this year, according to statistics taken from the office of Miss Laura Coit, secretary.

Representation from the several localities is distributed as follows: Mexico, one; Canal Zone, two; Washington, D. C., one, Virginia, 50; South Carolina, 34; Georgia, 21; New York, 12; Florida, 10; West Virginia, seven; Tennessee, six; New Jersey, five; Maryland, four; Alabama, three; Pennsylvania, two; Connecticut, two; Kentucky, two; Kansas, one; New Hampshire, one; Texas, one.

The figures account for the 165 non-resident students at the state institution for women. The home state is represented with nearly 1,700 residents.

English Profs Moving

Mr. Thrall and Mr. Adams of the English department and Mr. MacMillan, secretary to the English department, are moving their offices from Murphey to Saunders hall. The freshman English conference are also moving their quarters to Saunders hall.

In making these new arrangements the over-congested office conditions at Murphey are relieved.

Morning Show Sat.

The Carolina Theatre announces that there will be a show Saturday morning beginning at ten o'clock. This show is being given in the morning in view of the Wake Forest-Carolina game that afternoon. The announcement of the picture to be shown will be given elsewhere.

Important Freshman Notice

The following men will come by 205 South building sometime this morning:

Dick Lee, Eugene Wright, Judge Beavers, McClain King, J. Fischer, William Tries, Tom Johnston, Terrell Brooks, Wilson J. Smith, Rom Still, Richard Studdert, Cary Nichols, Guy James, Ennis Robinson, Dick Smith, Alan Smith, Howard Holmes, J. W. Hughes, Bill Hall, Allen Caldwell, Robert Redding, Maxwell Bramlette, Lenox Duvall, Franklin Burrow, James Bailey, Mark M. Jones, Reed Tull, Bill Troxell, W. Vaught, James Ferguson, Clyde Vickers, John Lipscomb, Jack Lentz, Louis Whitehead, Mac Woodside, Thomas Hooker, Allen Howell, Wallet Kindel, George Hummel, Norman James, Junius Hobbs, Glenn Morris, Pete Miller, Paul Martin, Clarence Mann, Evon Ford, Frank Elliott, Thomas P. Crane, Billy Moore, Robert T. Abbey, Jr., Alex Andrews, Robert Anderson, Austin Allen, John Grimes, Henry Gibbons, Frank Glover, Woody Glenn, Richard Barber, Herbert F. Carroll, Roy Sapp, Duncan Wilson, Douglas Wood, W. M. Bacon, William H. Carroll, F. O. Carver, Jr., Robert Bostwick, Tom Ray, Bill Covington, Erving Craig, John F. Geiger, W. Lee Powell, Arthur Preston, Jobe Preston, Robert B. Brock, Earl Mitchelle, Willis Adams, Jr., Bill Sabison.

Fraternity invitations have been received for the above men, but as they have not been located their invitations are being held at the office of the dean of students for them.

Planning Reception

Davidson, Sept. 26.—(Special)—The Quadwranglers club at Davidson college will entertain Thursday evening at 7:45 o'clock in honor of Dr. Walter L. Lingle, president of Davidson, and Mrs. Lingle. The affair will be given in the new club room of the organization in Chambers building, and the nature of the entertainment has not been disclosed. This is the second time Dr. and Mrs. Lingle have been honored since they came to Davidson, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. McConnell being hosts at an informal reception immediately preceding the opening of school.

The Quadwranglers club is composed entirely of members of the Davidson faculty, and holds regular monthly meetings, at which time different members of the club are designated to appear as speakers.

Dr. Chase Will Speak

Greensboro, Sept. 25.—Special arrangements for the celebration of Founder's day, which will permit students of North Carolina college to attend the Pittsburgh-Duke game at the opening of Duke university's new stadium, were announced by President J. I. Foust yesterday in a letter to collegians. The announcement times the beginning of Founder's Day exercises at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, October 5, when students and members of the faculty will assemble at Aycock auditorium to hear the annual address, to be given this year by Dr. Harry W. Chase, president of the University of North Carolina.

STUDENTS FIND CHANGES ON N. C. C. W. CAMPUS

Greensboro, Sept. 26.—The more than 1,800 collegians just registered at North Carolina college, this city begin the new year under much better conditions because of several improvements recently completed at the state institution for women.

Concrete streets on the main campus, which holds Administration, McIver, Students', Aycock and Music buildings and the library, are the most marked improvements. The new roads will keep users of the campus out of the mud this fall and winter. More modern drives and walks are now under construction on other parts of the campus.

The principal new streets run from the Spring Garden street entrance at the east end to the Walker avenue entrance, and from the Spring Garden street entrance at the west through College avenue. A concrete street connects these two arteries.

Another decided help to students is the new postoffice equipment, housed now in the south basement of Students' building instead of the old room in Administration. Crowded conditions in the old quarters had long made confusion among those seeking mail. The old quarters, attractively fitted, are at present being used as a lounging room for local students.

The bookstore, once housed at Administration building, is this year located at Students' building in the basement of the right wing. New equipment makes the bookstore much less crowded and on the whole a more convenient place for the distribution of the thousands of volumes which are annually put into the hands of the college girls.

College Pennants Pillows Banners Table Runners
and
A Complete Line of COLLEGE JEWELRY
Students' Supply Store
Everything in Stationery

STATIONERY
Personal printed and embossed stationery at reduced prices.
Ask your dormitory store room clerk for samples.
ARTCROFT PRESS
W. C. Midford, Mgr.

"Read this letter first," says OLD HAMPSHIRE STATIONERY
when it makes its appearance from the postman's bag—and a fine appearance it makes too. For Old Hampshire is notably good looking stationery. It has quality, character, substance—there is something about its crispness, its rich texture, that tends to make even the dullest letter seem positively eloquent.
Old Hampshire Stationery
Hampshire Paper Co., Fine Stationery Department South Hadley Falls, Mass.

CAROLINA THEATRE
TODAY
Buddy Rogers
Nancy Carroll
—in—
"ILLUSION"
Splendid lovers! Young! The stars of "Close Harmony" now in a singing, dancing, talking story of Fifth Avenue and luxurious country places!
Added Features
"Beach Babies"
All-Talking Comedy"
Special Saturday Morning
Matinee at 10:00 A. M.
William Haines
in
"SPEEDWAY"

Come on Boys, Let's—
Beat Wake Forest!
Have Your Clothes Cleaned for the Game.
PRICES: Suit $1.00; Trousers 50c
PHONE 5841
Carolina Dry Cleaners

ALLIGATOR
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
ALLIGATOR is one snappy outergarment—and you can slosh around in it all day and never get wet. Turns rain, wind, dust.
Models for Men and Women $7.50 to $25
THE ALLIGATOR CO. St. Louis

New! ALLIGATOR STEPPERS (Pat. App. For)
Protect trouser legs—all colors to match all coats.
$2 and $3.50 a pair Ask to see them
KEEP DRY FROM HEAD TO FOOT

STRONG DEACON LINE WILL MEET FAST N. C. BACKS

Wake Forest Line Rated Very High; Carolina Expected to Present Corps of Fast Backfield Men.

A fleet crew of irresistible backs against a heavy array of immovable linemen—such on paper seems to be, in slightly exaggerated terms, the outlook for Saturday's opening game of the Big Five season—North Carolina vs. Wake Forest, Kenan stadium here, at 2:30 o'clock.

The Deacons from all reports are besporting a couple of fair ends and a great line from tackle to tackle. The dopesters concede the Tar Heels to have one of the greatest arrays of ball carriers in the southland this year. The outcome should be interesting.

Parker, Levine and Hicks, in the center of the Deacon line all range around 190 pounds apiece and are hard to move—or pass. The Deacons' prize sophomore tackles, Williams and Webb, 6 footers and 195-pounders each, are even stronger bulwarks, from reports here.

The quintet looks as if it might make tough sledding for the Tar Heel backs—who include nine proven veterans and two fine sophomores.

But there's more on both sides. The Deacons showed a fine trio of ball carriers last Saturday in Mills, Hipps, and Covington. Captain Johnny Cox, who didn't play against Catawba, is by reputation better than any of the trio and should be back in the Deacon lineup Saturday. And the Tar Heels have their own fine linemen—such as Captain Ray Farris, all-state triple-threat guard; Bill Koenig, 190-pound all-state tackle; and Don Holt, 180-pound end.

Whether the irresistible force or the immovable object will be stronger remains to be seen; but anyway it looks as if grid fans might be in for a tasty morsel Saturday.

Chapel Hill High Ready for Frosh

Coach Jones of the local high school reports that his squad will be prepared to give the Carolina freshmen all they are asking for when the two teams meet in scrimmage on Emerson Field at 3:30 Friday afternoon. With a squad of thirty men working regularly, and seven lettermen to build his team around, Jones, while not predicting a South Atlantic championship aggregation, is confident that the Chapel Hill boys will hold their own against all opposition in this section of North Carolina.

The Chapel Hill youngsters face a heavy schedule this fall with such foes as Bragtown, Oxford, Roxboro, Durham, Henderson, Hillsboro and Swepsonville to contend with before the close of the season. The opening game will be played with Bragtown here October 11.

Williams, Deshields, and Capt. Durham, all lettermen, are the big bets for the backfield, with Paul King, McKnight and others giving them a rush for their places. In the line it is a toss-up between Pendergraph and Frank King for the pivot position. Cates, guard, and Stone, end, veteran linesmen, Neville, guard, and Harold Ray, end, are outstanding in defensive work. Other promising candidates are Tripp, Teague, Upchurch, Barber, Atwater, Watson, Bob Ray, Council and the Renn brothers. According to Jones, the line will average about 160 pounds and the backfield 150 pounds when the final lineup has been selected.

Deacon's Football Stock Slumps When Covington Is Hurt

Star Wake Forest Back Receives Injury to His Knee; May Be Out for Two Weeks.

Wake Forest, Sept. 26.—Wake Forest football stock slumped badly yesterday afternoon when Walter Covington, first-string fullback, was put on the shelf for probably a fortnight as a result of a knee injury sustained in a scrimmage with the freshmen.

Covington, a hard-running back who can also pass and punt, was not started against Catawba but displayed lots of drive when he got in action against the Indians. He carried the ball five successive times to count the final Deacon touchdown, moving the pigskin from the 23-yard line across the goal.

Loss of Covington causes quite a backfield problem for Coach Miller. Johnny Cox, captain and halfback, is in Louisiana where funeral services were held yesterday for his mother. There is a probability that Cox will return in time for Saturday's game at Carolina. Eustace Mills, main threat of the Deacons, is hampered by an injury but will be in good form for the Tar Heel game.

The injury to Covington will mean that Spencer Bell, former Campbell college athlete, will rank next to Dupre for the fullback call Saturday. Should Cox return, he would start against the Heels. Otherwise, Hipps will be at a halfback job when the game opens.

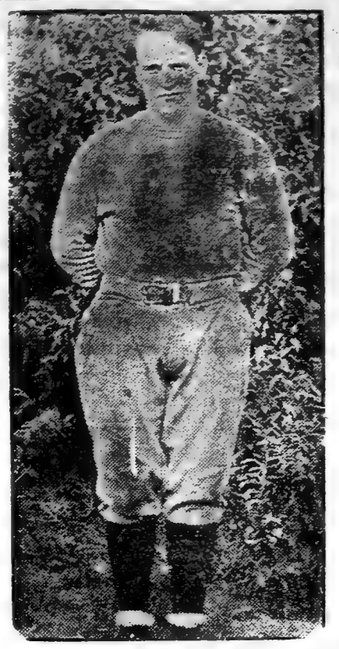
The varsity didn't look so warm against the yearlings yesterday afternoon. The freshmen have been at work for only a week but they presented a stubborn defense today. The varsity was kept on the offense throughout but displayed no marked ball-advancing ability. A pair of clever ends and a good center were outstanding for the frosh. One of the ends is a brother of Pete Pagona, Jersey youth who played here some years back.

Today's scrimmage wound up hard work for the Baptists. They will take it easy today and Friday but held afternoon and night sessions yesterday.

Tar Heels Install Field Amplifiers.

Through a Western Electric announcing system, which is to be installed today, every detail of the Wake Forest game Saturday and other games played in Kenan stadium at the University of North Carolina this season will be carried to the spectators in all sections of the huge amphitheatre, it was learned last night.

It is the first time that such an amplifying system has been installed in the south.



Equipped with a microphone, an announcer on the sideline will follow each play and relay his report immediately to large amplifiers which are being installed on either side of the field.

The announcer's report will give complete information concerning such important details as the name of the players carrying the ball, the tackler, yardadge gained or lost, penalties, and so on.

Through the use of this system it is believed that the spectators not thoroughly familiar with the two teams will enjoy the game a great deal more than formerly.

The monthly 12-hour checks of the North Carolina State Highway commission show that the tourist travel over western North Carolina highways this year has exceeded month for month that of any year in the region's history.

COACH CERNEY

AERONAUTICAL COURSE POPULAR AT N. C. STATE

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 26.—Fifty-eight freshmen at North Carolina State college have registered in the department of mechanical engineering. This is considerably larger than any other first year group in this department, and the increase, according to Prof. John M. Foster, is due, largely, to the option in aeronautics which is being offered by the college for the first time this year.

Although the option is allowed to juniors and seniors only, many of the freshmen have already expressed a preference for the work. Exact figures on the number of upperclassmen enrolling for the course in aeronautics were not available on Tuesday, but college authorities expect it to be one of the most popular divisions of the department of mechanical engineering.

Increased commercial activities in aviation and a growing demand for elementary instruction in this branch of engineering, it is stated, prompted the college administration to provide for the course in aeronautics. The subjects which will be covered include instruction in the theory of flight, with definitions and types of aircraft; types of engines, including all engine auxiliaries; structure and rigging, with reference to the fuselage, wings and controls; and air commerce regulations, laboratory instruction will be offered concurrent with the theoretical instruction.

The aeronautical option is available only to those students who have passed the required work of the first two years in the department of mechanical engineering. No short course of instruction in flight will be offered or is contemplated.

The college is working in close co-operation with the Curtiss Flying Service. Professor Foster, who will do much of the teaching in the new course in aeronautics, is handling the ground school lectures which are given locally by the Curtiss Flying Schools.

The first of these lecture courses, which are held in Page hall at the college, was finished last week. Sixteen men and two young women took the course. Another series of lectures will start shortly on a basis of two lectures per week.

SHORT SCRIMMAGE IS STAGED BY WOLFPACK

Raleigh, N. C.—(Special)—The State college Wolfpack held their daily scrimmage today but the coaches curtailed the session when a heavy rain fell shortly before the usual quitting time.

"The boys are mildewed already," said Coach Tebell. "Guess we better send 'em in before they begin to sprout web feet."

"Gus" Kaminer To Get Chance Carry Ball This Season

University, Va., Sept. 26.—For one man on the Virginia's varsity football squad the South Carolina game next week is more important than any other on the schedule. He is Glenn Augustus Kaminer of Gladsden, S. C., a veteran halfback.

"Gus" Kaminer, as he is known at Virginia, is looking past the Randolph-Macon game this Saturday. For him the contest with the Gamecocks in Columbia on October 5 looms larger than the games with Swathmore, V. M. I., St. Johns, Maryland, V. P. I. and Washington and Lee that are to follow.

This year Kaminer will be one of the ball-carrying backs. He hasn't been that in the past. He is a dependable blocker and under the system of Coach Neale he was the workhorse of the backfield. His play cleared the way for the man with the ball.

Davidson Cheer Leaders Chosen

Davidson, Sept. 26—(Special)—H. A. McAlister, of Lumberton, and George F. McClenaghan, of Florence, S. C., have been chosen by the Davidson college student body to assist E. S. Heefner, Jr., of Winston-Salem, in leading cheers at Davidson athletic contests. Heefner was selected by the Davidson students last spring as head cheer leader, and candidates for assistants were voted upon this week. Defeated candidates were T. M. Hunter, of Blenheim, S. C., and A. B. McClure, of Rabun Gap, Ga. Next spring the final race for the 1930-1931 cheer leader will be between McAlister and McClenaghan.

No one can say anything good about whisky and tell the truth.

Freshmen To Meet

There will be a meeting of all freshmen tonight in Gerrard Halll at 9:15 o'clock. The college yells will be practiced in order that the new men will be prepared for tomorrow's game.

Frosh Football Men Begin Work

In the first scrimmage of the freshmen against the varsity some fifty-five freshmen got into the fray. For the amount of time they have had they did as well as could be expected. The line came through in fine form, and a few backs showed up well. Coach Enright expects to have a strong forward wall by the middle of the season.

The freshmen used only the offensive form as has been taugh them so as to give the varsity the strong opposition they need.

As the policy of the University is to keep as many men out as possible all freshmen are urged to stay out. All the equipment has been given out, and the prospects for another good freshman team is seen.

Virginia Cadets Are In Great Condition

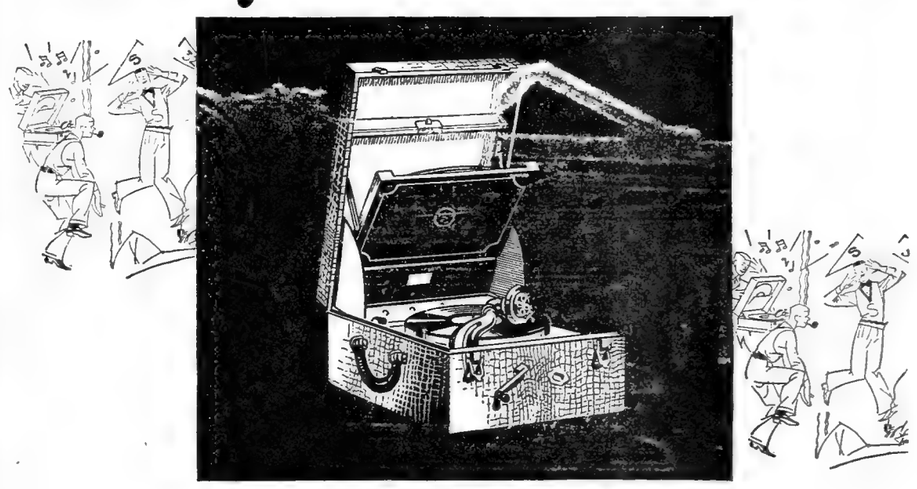
Lexington, Va., Sept. 26.—(Special)—The twenty-six members of the V. M. I. Flying Squadron who had a share in turning Hampden-Sydney back by a 19 to 0 score in the opening game Saturday all reported in good condition for Monday's practice. There were no injuries reported, but Trainer Herb Patchin had to use all of his exercises and invent a few more to get rid of the stiffness and soreness resulting from the clash with the Tigers.

INJURIES INVADE TAR HEELS' CAMP

Three of Five Players Injured Are Lettermen; Four of Hurt Men Are Candidates for Right Guard.

Five candidates for the Heel eleven are at this last minute before the Wake Forest game resting peacefully upon the roster for injured; of this number three are lettermen, and four out of the five are out for right guard.

Dunavant and Eskew have not yet recovered fully from their automobile accident of last week-end; Dunavant remembers the occasion by a broken collarbone, while Eskew still retains evidence of five stitches taken in his head. The two remaining right guards to be accounted for are Jim Hudson and Ellis Fysal. In a scrimmage the other day Hudson opened a gash above his eye that necessitated a batch of stitches. An old ankle injury has has returned to Fysal this week, placing him in rather an awkward light.



Jimmy Maus, one of the most versatile men in the Heel backfield, was out yesterday with a broken nose given to him in one of the early scrimmages this week. Maus, by virtue of the fact that he is probably the most outstanding passer on the squad this fall, will be sorely missed in the game with the Deacons.

Weekly Release Brunswick and Victor Records

STUDENTS' SUPPLY STORE

Everything in Stationery

Just give this little merry-maker a hand!

TAKE a Columbia portable phonograph with you, and wherever you are—in your rooms or fraternity house, on week-end trips or at home—it will give you countless hours of royal entertainment.

Your dealer will show you an instrument that will make you jump right into the Columbia cheering section—the Viva-tonal Columbia Portable. It has the tonal beauty and volume of an expensive cabinet machine. It is luxuriously fitted—yet it costs only $50!

If you like your melody in a more elaborate case, there's the electrically operated Columbia Portable at $60. And if you want your music at less cost per note, there's another corking Columbia Portable for only $25!

Whichever you select, be sure to slip these new discs in the record compartment!

▼ ▼ ▼

Record No. 1938-D, 10-inch, 75c

SWEETHEART'S HOLIDAY } . . . Fox Trots
HUGGABLE KISSABLE YOU }
Ted Wallace and His Campus Boys.

▼

Record No. 1916-D, 10-inch, 75c

I LOVE YOU—(Incidental Singing by Ted Lewis).
LEWISADA BLUES—Fox Trots—Ted Lewis and His Band.

Record No. 1869-D, 10-inch, 75c

SINGIN' IN THE RAIN—(from Talking Picture Production "Hollywood Revue of 1929").
ORANGE BLOSSOM TIME—(from Talking Picture Production "Hollywood Revue of 1929"). Vocals—Ukulele Ike—(Cliff Edwards).

▼

Record No. 1922-D, 10-inch, 75c

MOANIN' LOW—(from "The Little Show").
SWEETNESS—Vocals—Lee Morse and Her Blue Grass Boys.

"Magic Notes" Columbia "Magic Notes"

"NEW PROCESS" RECORDS
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Viva-tonal Recording—The Records without Scratch

U. N. C. PRESS TO RELEASE VOLUME ON NEGRO LIFE

'The Tree Named John,' by J. C. Jones, May Be Used by Book-of-the-Month Club.

Three authorities on negro life, members of the university's institute for research in social science, stand sponsor for the southern negro's superstitions and customs described in Joseph C. Jones' The Tree Named John, a forthcoming publication of the University of North Carolina Press.

Biting the head off a live butterfly in hopes of thus obtaining a new suit of clothes, and swallowing the raw swim-bladder of a fish in order to learn to swim are among the negro farm boys' ceremonies for which Guy B. Johnson, Howard W. Odum and Newbel N. Puckett vouch.

The book, which is attracting widespread attention, is being considered for distribution by a book-of-the-month club whose name the press will not make public. This book club has been holding Mr. Jones' book for two weeks, and Mrs. Howard M. Jones of the university press expects a decision on it within the next few days.

We wonder how many, if any, of the girls realize how much harder they are making it for the tariff farmers to determine whether stockings are luxuries or necessities. — Springfield Union.

Miscellaneous Offerings on Y Bulletin Board Interest And Amuse Casual Observer

(Continued from page one)

case can be found in 113 Old East, and a reward, be it ever so humble, is offered.

Be careful about that "one one-room cottage" offered for rent one block from the campus, though. It might be the little log cabin near the tennis courts. Nothing is said as to whether or not it is up-to-date with all modern conveniences. So be careful.

The freshman wanting the "Sighchology" book must have been talking with an upper classman whose exam experience was sad.

A real spirit of service and philanthropy must be voted to the chap who offers monogramed, you-name, your-address stationery "at lower rates than you can buy plain paper." But then, maybe he is going to be economical and use erased old paper, or tissue paper, as material for the letter heads.

Here's a secret: It is Roberts and Rolfe who want Virgil's Aeneid, alias "A Vergil's Aemeid" as one of these two fellows wrote it before placing it before the public on the bargain mart.

Oh yes; here's a good one. "Wanted. Thought and its expression. Leave address." That freshman is going to be a great man some day. He realizes his shortcomings. He asks for aid. How many there are who do not take even this much trouble, adults as well as frosh. May the gods aid this youth in getting an education. He deserves it.

Whether or not "Differential and Integral Calculus" has anything to do with "Mon Frere Yves," at any rate they are placed side by side. One or the other, it is difficult to tell, is in "Very Good Condition."

A room for rent near Swain hall is said to be "Conveniently quiet." Sounds like heresy, unless perhaps the ad is meant for deaf students, or it refers to a subterranean chamber and this leads to the thought that the "room" might be a grave.

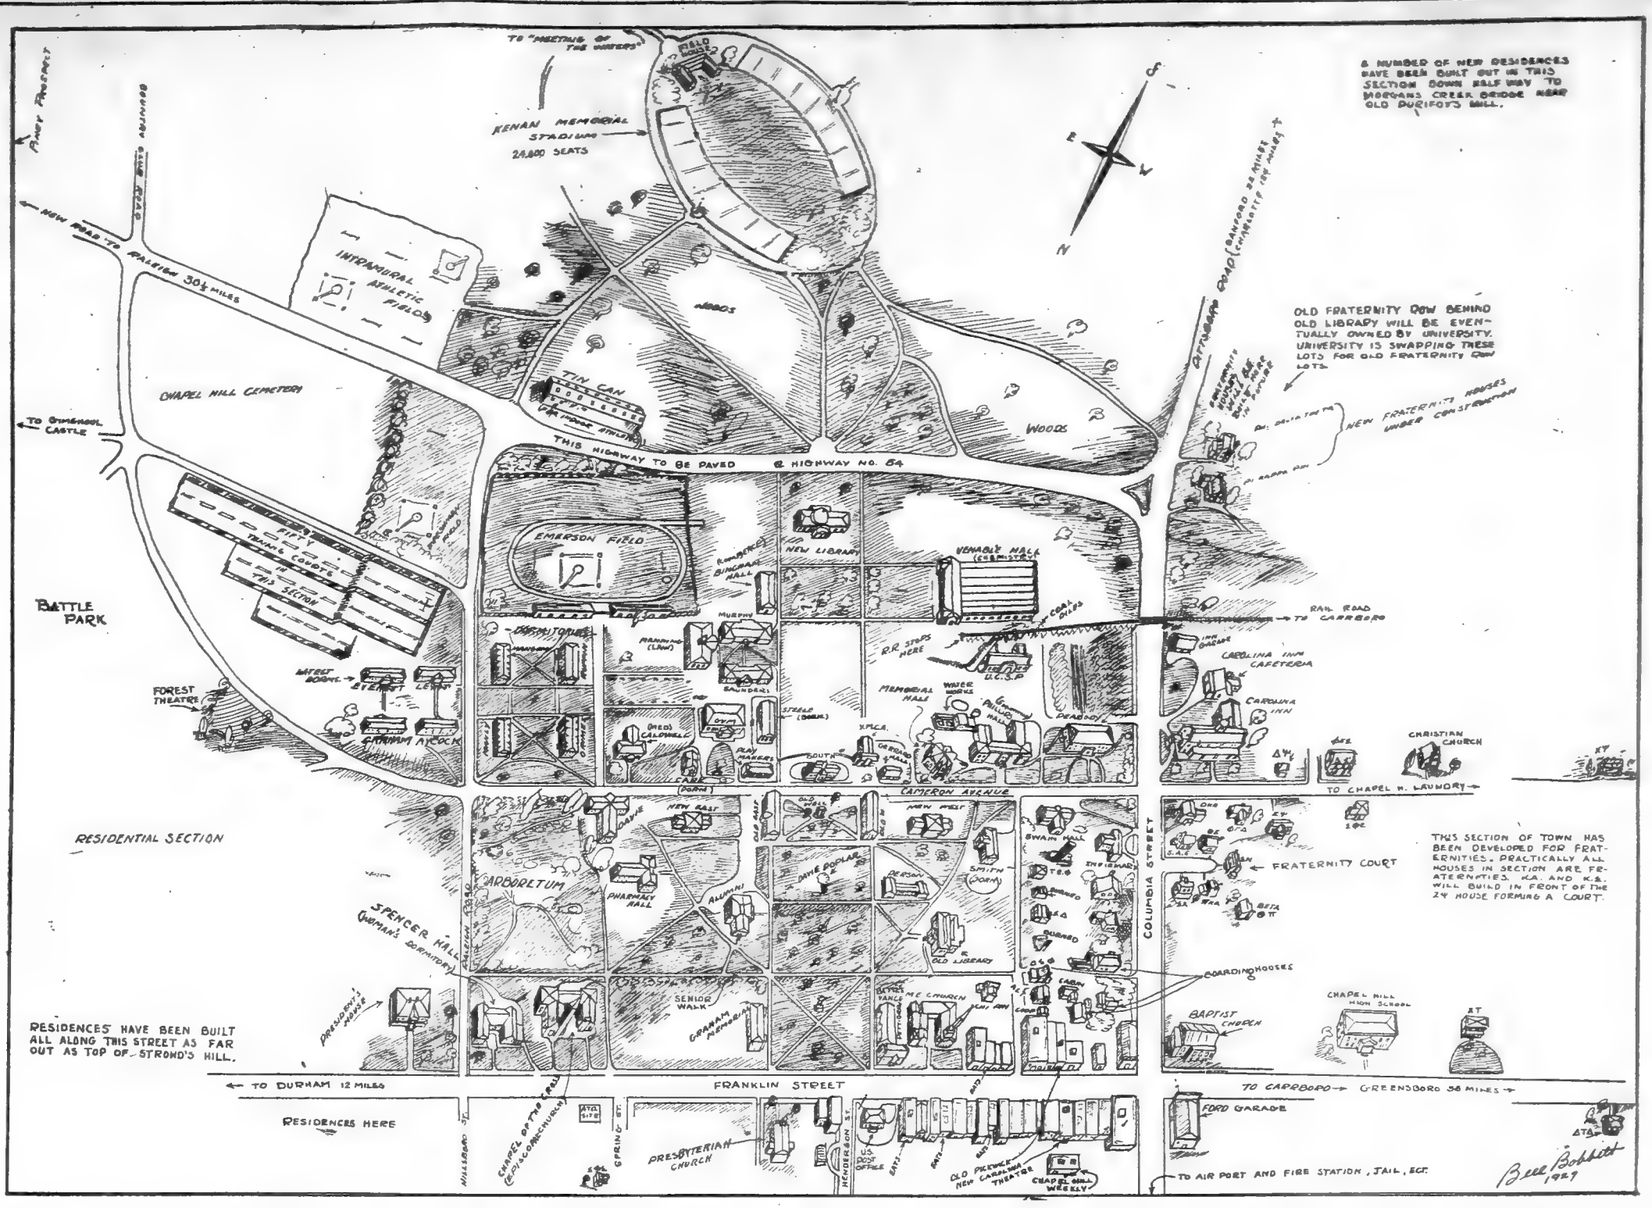
The early bird is still the one that catches the worm, emphatically and bromidically states one student who has books for sale. He adds, "see me situated at Steele near Y." Wonder if birds like book worms? "I mean business," says the same advertiser who prints in bold letters. He heads his offering, "Important. Read Twice." And this is necessary in order to make out some of the scrawled words.

A peaceful private home apparently wishes a change according to another piece of paper. "Want four boys to room in private home. Quiet place with plenty of heat and hot water. Family consists of four adults, two college boys." It wouldn't be peaceful in that home long. Wonder if the two college boys are classified as adults, or are in addition to the four adults.

They might be post graduates.

Play books are also for sale. These may be for serious use of students under Professor Koch, but they might also be for alleged students who are here to take the college course lightly, and fun heavily.

A student advertises Botany and Chemistry books for sale, saying "Leave address here and check book." Doubt if any one leaves his bank book there, but there was one bidder who scrawled on the paper. "Leave Botony and price with Mr. Leonard at chapel period." He did not leave his check book on the board, however, unless some one had lifted it a few minutes previously. So he's out of luck.



The friendly feeling between fraternities is starkly revealed. Upon a notice that the Epsilon Phi is to have its first meeting of the year, is the imprint of a sturdy and well-mudded shoe. The notice is signed by "The President," "The Secretary," and "The Treasurer," but the most interested of these three is surely the treasurer.

Yes, the "rooms close to campus heat and hot water" are at 210 Pittsboro street.

All for the one price is offered the unethical combination of "Latin books and their translations." Learn Latin and to ride on "ponies," men, for it's a great sport, the ad hints.

And among the last, but by no means unimportant, is this opportunity of a lifetime for alleged campus bards, "Wanted. Great English poets. Leave name and address. 410 Manly."

Map of Fraternity Houses

Take The Daily Tar Heel

Full Coverage on University and Chapel Hill News Alike

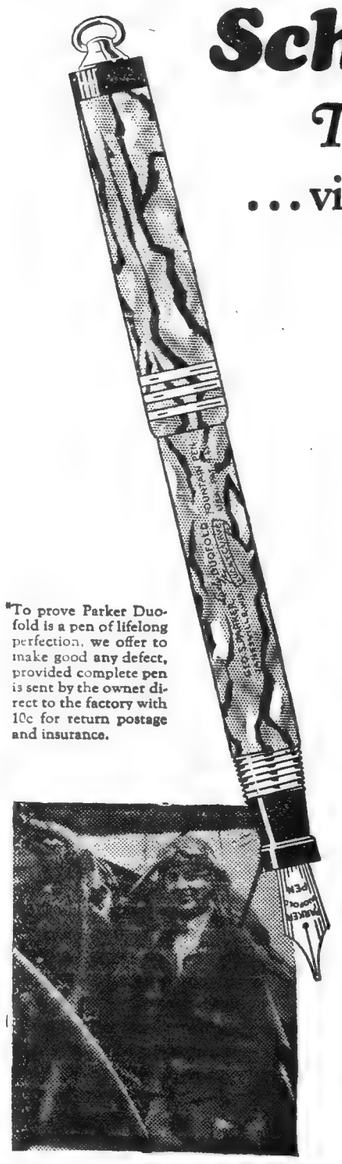
A Six-Day Paper With Magazine Supplement Every Other Sunday

At Your Door Without Fail Backed by a Complaint Service

$2 If You Send Your Check Now
$3 If You Pay Each Three Months

Don't Wait
Do It Now!

The Daily Tar Heel



School Work Flies

Through Cloudless Skies

...via Parker Pressureless Touch

24% Greater Ink Capacity Than Average, and * Guaranteed Forever Against All Defects

*To prove Parker Duofold is a pen of lifelong perfection, we offer to make good any defect, provided complete pen is sent by the owner direct to the factory with 10c for return postage and insurance.

Here's Bertha Flo, the University of Michigan's "Lady Lindy," all set for a hop between classes. Her extra hours for flying come from doing her school work quickly and easily via Parker Duofold.

Here's a pen that makes school work twice as easy—enables you to do quicker, better work because it clears the track for thinking.

It writes without pressure from the fingers—you merely guide it—the pen itself does all the writing for you. No effort. No strain. No fatigue.

And none of the nagging interruptions caused by ordinary pens. Always a gliding, smooth response—always a steady ink flow, no matter how fast you write.

Parker Duofold offers you also Non-Breakable barrels of lustrous Permanite, in five jewel-like colors or Moderne Black and Pearl—28% lighter than rubber—holding 24% more ink than average, size for size.

Try Parker Pressureless Touch at a nearby pen counter. See for yourself why Parker Duofold, by actual census count, led all other makes in popularity at 55 colleges and 13 technical schools.

Pens, $5 to $10, according to size and finish. Pencils to match the pens, $3 to $5.

THE PARKER PEN COMPANY, Janesville, Wisconsin
Offices and Subsidiaries: New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Buffalo, Dallas, San Francisco; Toronto, Canada; London, England

Parker Duofold $5-$7-$10

Carolina vs. Wake Forest
KENAN STADIUM
2:30 P. M.

The Daily Tar Heel

Carolina vs. Wake Forest
KENAN STADIUM
2:30 P. M.

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1929 | NUMBER 8

Sophomores and Freshmen Have Verbal Warfare in Quadrangle

Frosh Starts Rumpus When They Give Class Yell; Sophs Take It up.

"Thirty-three," some lusty-voiced freshman in a rather brave moment yelled. "Thirty-two," retorted an idle sophomore. Then the fun began. The battle cry was voiced far and near. The sophomores got out on the campus and gave an organized yell for their class. The freshmen "razzberried." Paper was thrown. The studious fellows clamoured for silence. The unthoughtful "frosh" continued to yell. Words, unmentionable and otherwise, were hurled with equal force and vigor. In fact, the land, supposedly adjoining the river Styx, was raised and torn asunder.

All this took place on the university campus Thursday night between the hours of 11 and 12.

Whether Dean Bradshaw had the foregoing incident in mind when he talked to the freshmen in chapel Friday morning is not known; but he did voice the following opinions which seem to supplement the thoughtless procedure:

"The sophomores have been very considerate this fall and it might be ventured that very few men have been hazed in any manner.

"It appears that freshmen should realize just how fortunate they are by being treated with such unusual courtesy.

"They owe respect to men who have so leniently disregarded a time-honored institution and allowed them to go unmolested."

HUNTER TO MAKE PARACHUTE JUMP

Bad Weather Causes Postponement of Program; Free Bus to Airport; Special Rates for Air Passengers.

On account of bad weather last Sunday, September 22, an "Air Show," which should have been held that day, will be held tomorrow, Sunday, September 29. Free busses will leave the Carolina Smoke Shop every hour for the airport. The feature attractions will consist of a parachute jump, which will be made by Dick Hunter of Greensboro, and probably several other airplane stunts. There will be two airplanes taking passengers. The price has been set at one cent per pound.

This entertainment is being put on by the Chapel Hill flying school, and will be held at their airport. The airport is one of the best in this section of the state, and is situated about two miles northwest of Chapel Hill.

DUKE PROFESSOR TO SPEAK SUNDAY

Dr. Frank S. Hickman, professor of the psychology of religion at Duke university, will speak at the Methodist church at 7:30 p. m. Sunday. His subject is "Religious Values." Dr. Hickman has been a university preacher at the university of Minnesota and knows the life and thinking of a state school community. Since coming to the south he has been in great demand as a preacher and lecturer. This is the second of the Epworth league meetings with outstanding psychologists as speakers.

Sophomores Elect Brown Treasurer

Y Quartet Performs at Smoker; House Delivers Speech.

Practically the whole sophomore class turned out Thursday night for their first smoker of the year. It was the largest class gathering since the freshman smokers of the past year.

Ben Aycock, president of the class, presided. During the course of the evening, refreshments were served and the Y. M. C. A. quartet entertained with a number of popular songs, followed by a speech by R. B. House.

Due to the failure of Johnny Green to return to the university this year, an election for treasurer of the class was held to fill his vacant position. Royall Brown was elected to this office by an overwhelming vote over his two opponents.

Fraternity Real Estate Is Valued at $500,000

Real estate owned by fraternities here at the University is down on the town tax books at $308,000. Since assessed valuation is about 60 per cent of real value, the houses and lands owned by fraternities are worth about $500,000.

Old-timers coming back to the village observe with amazement the growth in fraternity property.

"Thirty-five years ago, when I was a student," one of them said the other day, "there were only about a dozen fraternities. They did not have fine chapter houses costing $40,000 or more, as they do today. The members would rent a room somewhere which would serve for meetings. Sometimes they would rent a little house in a yard, one of the buildings that used to be called 'offices'—like the Kluttz cottage, for instance."

There are today thirty-one national and four local social fraternities, thirteen professional fraternities, and two sororities. A membership of over 900, including faculty members and students who are in college here now, is embraced in the men's fraternities, while the two women's sororities have a membership of nineteen.

The chapter houses serve to ease the University's housing problem. Many of them provide sleeping quarters for their members, and in some of them dining rooms are operated. Several hundred students, who would otherwise have to seek dormitory rooms on the campus, are thus cared for.

Woman's Association Meets Tuesday Night

The Woman's association will hold its first official meeting of the year Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Gerrard hall. The town representative is to be elected and the program of the year voted upon. All women students are urged to be present.

Stabler to Preach

The Rev. W. Brooke Stabler will preach at the Chapel of the Cross on Sunday morning. Mr. Stabler is assistant at All Saints church, Worcester, Mass., and has as his special field the student work in New England.

P. D. CARTER SAYS GREAT INTEREST IN SOUTH AMERICA

Representative of International Telephone and Telegraph Company Talks to Engineers.

That the college graduate who is looking to South America as a land of opportunity should make a careful survey of the advantages offered by a position with a corporation doing business there was the keynote of a talk by P. D. Carter of the International Telephone and Telegraph company before the William Cain student branch of the A. S. C. E. Thursday evening.

Mr. Carter, who is a graduate of the school of engineering of the university, has been with the I. T. & T. for three years and has worked in Cuba, Venezuela and Chile. In the course of his talk he presented the advantages of work with a corporation in South America and then what he chose to call the disadvantages.

Among the advantages he mentioned were rapid promotion and rapidly increasing responsibility, the respect of the people of South America for the American engineer, and the privileges of living in a metropolitan city.

He urged that one considering a position in the foreign field take the disadvantages into consideration before signing a contract. His group of disadvantages included the distance from home and relatives, the additional expense of living in a foreign country at a standard to which one is accustomed, the lack of sanitation in some places, and the many minor things such as the practical impossibility of obtaining a decent haircut or shave.

In concluding his talk, Mr. Carter told many of his experiences during his three years' service and also of the activities of the I. T. & T. in the various fields in which it has established operations.

Country Club Parties

Supper Tonight, Dance October 4, and Afternoon Gathering Oct. 11

The bad turn in the weather forced the entertainment committee of the Country Club to give up the plan for an outdoor picnic supper yesterday evening and to substitute an informal supper inside the house. The appointed hour was 6 o'clock.

On account of this change, the space inside being limited, the non-members attending were limited to members' house guests. But at two other events, soon to come, newcomers in the village will be welcomed.

The opening dance of the season will be held at 9 o'clock next Friday evening, October 4; and there will be an afternoon party for women at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, October 11. Invitations to both these affairs will be sent to newcomers in the village.

The arrangements committee, of which Mrs. C. T. Murchison is chairman, has made a schedule of 12 events in the period from now to February 1—about two a month.

Belgium is the greatest lace manufacturing country in the world.

DEBATERS HOLD FIRST MEETING

Debates with N. C. C. W. and State Planned; Two Co-eds Report.

Plans for a successful season of intercollegiate debating definitely got under way Thursday night with the formation of the 1929-30 debate squad in 201 Murphey Hall. Fifty-nine, including two co-eds, reported for membership in the squad.

The Debate Council plans to have the first intercollegiate debate of the season occur about the middle of November or the first of December. Efforts are being made to arrange a triangular contest with N. C. C. W. and North Carolina State.

Other than the triangular debate mentioned above, contests with the University of the South at Chapel Hill, the University of Texas at Austin, the University of West Virginia at Charleston, and the University of Virginia at Charlotte are very probable.

The council is also corresponding with Emory, the University of Alabama, Louisiana State, and the University of Kentucky.

The squad will meet next Thursday night in the same place at the same time (201 Murphey at 7:30). Dr. Horace Williams, eminent teacher of Philosophy and founder of intercollegiate debating at Carolina, will speak.

Phillips Russell Visits Chapel Hill

Biographer of Franklin and John Paul Jones Renews old Acquaintances.

Phillips Russell, graduate of the University in the class of 1904, biographer of Benjamin Franklin and John Paul Jones, is in Chapel Hill this week. He came from Rockingham, where he had been visiting his mother, and he will go on from here to his home in New York.

Mr. Russell has been going about the village and the campus, observing the various changes and ruminating upon the new ways and the new tone of life in Chapel Hill. He has renewed his acquaintance with many of his old friends among the faculty and the merchants. And of course he has seen the football team in action.

A year or so ago he made a journey to the ancient ruined cities of the Mayas in Yucatan. His book about this tour was published by Brentano. Since it came out he has completed a biographical and critical study of Ralph Waldo Emerson, and it is to appear this fall.

State College Opens

The members of the freshman class at North Carolina State College, the largest first-year class in the history of that institution, invaded the State campus last Friday and have since been enjoying college life unmolested; but yesterday the freshmen moved from the spotlight and humbled themselves into a mere existence when the upperclassmen returned for registration.

Approximately 1,100 students who were in college last year returned this year, college officials anounced. This number was increased by the addition of nearly 150 students who entered from other colleges.

Playmakers Notice

All students who have registered since September 23, or who have failed to fill out address blanks, and those who have changed addresses must call by the Y office today and leave their present address. This is important, for otherwise their names will go into the Master Directory permanently incomplete.

Important Freshman Notice

All freshmen whose names are listed below must call by room 205 South building, the office of the dean of students, before noon today in order to receive their invitations to visit fraternity houses. Invitations have been received for these men but their addresses are not known.

Willis Adams, Jr., Robert Irwin Abbey, Jr., Alex Andrews, Robert Andrews, Robert Anderson, Marsden Bellamy, W. M. Bacon, James Bailey, Sudge Beavers, Clifton Butler, Franklin Burrow, William Burke, Robert Bostwick, Maxwell Bramlette, Wm. H. Carroll, Hubert Fuller Carroll, Charles Coble, James Collier, Joseph H. Couch, Irving Craig, Lenox Duvall, Frank Elliott, James Ferguson, J. Fischer, Enon Ford, I. M. Grassgreen, John Grimes, W. E. Harris, Clark Henry, June Hobbs, Edward Hogue, Howard Holmes, Thomas Hooker, Allen Howell, George Hummell, Norman James, Guy James, Tom Johnston, M. Lazarus, Dick Lee, Jack Lentz, D. D. Levy, John Lipscomb, McClain King, Paul Martin, Billy Moore, Glenn Morris, Cary Nichols, Arthur Preston, George Preston, Harvey Robinson, Wm. A. Robinson, Bill Sabison, Roy Sapp, J. L. Schleifer, Israel Shlefstein, Alan Smith, Dick Smith, Witson J. Smith, Richard Studdert, Lee Satterfield, J. W. Sawyer, Harry Templeton, Wm. Tries, Bill Troxell, Reed Tull, W. Vaught, Clarence West, Duncan Wilson, Clyde Vickers, Jack Wilmont, Mac Woodside, Eugene Wright, Sam Young, I. H. Zollowitz.

Playmakers Hold Tryouts Monday

Tryouts for the Carolina Playmakers' first production will be held Monday at 3:30 in the Playmaker theatre. The plays to be produced are Magnolia's Man, a comedy by Gertrude Wilson Coffin; Being Married, a domestic comedy by Catherine Nolan; and The No -Count Boy, a negro comedy by Paul Green. The tryouts are open to all. New men are especially invited.

LUTHERAN ASSOCIATION MEETS IN GERRARD HALL

The Lutheran student association holds its regular services in Gerrard hall on Sunday morning. The Bible study hour is at 10 a. m. and the church service at 11. The services will be in charge of Rev. Geo. A. Metz, student secretary.

During one day in 1928, 1300 American visitors disembarked at Havana, Cuba.

Paris' latest is the Ski Dance.

New Student Directory Is Now Being Published by Y.M.C.A.

1929 Book to Contain Student Roll, Faculty and Administrative List, City and Business Directory.

One of the most complete directories ever printed for the university has just gone to press, and will be out sometime in the near future. The directory this year, unlike those in the past, will be printed in book form. A copy of this directory is delivered, free of charge, to each fraternity house, business house, office, resident, dormitory room, and all public places. Individual copies will also be given on request. This directory, having a most interesting table of contents of organized information, is the product of quite a bit of hard work on the part of the Y.

It will include: 1. A complete roll of the student body, giving each student's home town, county, local address, class, and religious preference.

2. A roll of the faculty and administration officers, giving their home and office addresses and phone numbers, and the subjects which they teach.

3. The names of all managers and other officers and all deans and directors of schools and colleges.

4. A list of the heads of the departments.

5. The personnel of the institute for research in social science.

6. A roll of all secretarial and clerical staffs of the university.

7. A personnel of the university extension division.

8. A personnel of the physical education and athletic departments.

9. Organization of the university press.

10. An outline of the fire zones in Chapel Hill and the key to all fire alarms.

11. Directory of business houses in Chapel Hill.

12. A complete city directory of Chapel Hill.

Cheerleaders to Be Chosen Monday

Acting Chief Cheerleader Peyton Abbot calls attention to the fact that there will be an election in Memorial hall next Monday morning during chapel period for the purpose of selecting a chief cheerleader to take the place of Bill Chandler who failed to return to the university this fall. Assistant cheerleaders will also be chosen at this time. Among those trying out for assistants are Allen Crowson, Lloyd Bass, J. P. Homer, George Biggs, Sam Glaberson, Richard Ferguson, Howard Henry, P. S. Carter, R. E. Brooks and H. A. Haines. All of these men will take part in leading the cheering at today's game, and Abbott requests that the students take notice of them and make their choice accordingly in Monday's election.

SPRUILL AT HARVARD

C. P. Spruill, Jr., of the department of economics and commerce at the university is again on leave of absence for the purpose of study at Harvard University. Along with graduate studies he is undertaking work as temporary instructor in the division of history, government and economics at Harvard.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.
The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $3.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Saturday, September 28, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

Welcome, Wake Forest. We'll do anything for you but bet on your team.

"Hoover to Enforce Dry Law" —headline in Josephus Daniels' News and Observer. Mebbe—but that's a mighty big job, old timer.

The weather man reports that a tropical hurricane, which was due to show up in Florida yesterday, is lost somewhere on the Atlantic. That's one lost article that nobody is going to be very anxious to find.

An Over-Complicated Rushing System

Yesterday the fraternity rushing season officially opened. We advisedly employ the term "officially," for it is an open secret that a number of Greeks have assidulously courted the favor of certain shining prospects since the quarter began, and long before. Indeed, campus gossip has it that one fraternity pledged approximately a dozen men before they graduated from high school last spring.

Drastic changes were made in the rushing rules last spring; the new system is undergoing the acid test at present. Theoretically a period of silence during the first week or two is highly desirable. It gives the freshmen a breathing space, an opportunity to adjust themselves to their strange new environment before the hectic fortnight of rushing begins. Without this initial period of silence new men are prone to lose their sense of values under the false adulation heaped upon them by the pledge-seeking brethren. But theory and practice are usually widely divergent in fraternity rushing.

Frequent infractions of the initial period of silence have occurred, as was to be expected. It is indeed difficult to enforce a ruling so drastic in intent. When a person is forbidden by any form or regulation to resist from engaging in conversation with a friend of long standing, infractions of that regulation are extremely likely to occur.

Another of the new rules dictates that a freshman who rooms with a fraternity man cannot be pledged by any fraternity until the beginning of the winter quarter. Many upperclassmen have been forced to undergo the great inconvenience of changing rooms when, through no fault of their own, they found that they had been assigned a freshman roommate.

There is little doubt that the new rushing rules are desirable from a theoretical standpoint, but they have greatly complicated an already over-intricate system. Cut-throat competition is practically inevitable when two or more fraternities make efforts to pledge the same man. The credulous rushee will likely join the group which spins the most grandiloquent web of illusion around itself and makes him the most fabulous promises, while the intelligent freshman will be able to perceive the true worth of the fraternity despite the smoke-screen spread by the members.

Our own opinion is that the net result would be substantially the same if all restrictions on fraternity rushing were abolished. At least the frat men would be spared a tremendous tax on their imaginations from their efforts to invent new methods of contravening the rules.

Pedagogy
A Contrast

(John Mebane)

Back in the old days when men wore sideburns and saved money on Gillette razor blades the methods of teaching differed greatly from the methods used at present in American schools and colleges. The teacher of thirty or forty years ago is usually visualized by the present generation of students as a tall, monsterlike creature brandishing vigorously about him a supple bunch of peachtree branches and vociferously demanding penitence for sins of unpreparedness.

This picture, conjectured by fancies of youthful brains, is, no doubt, suffering from excess of colour. Yet, it should not be denied that methods used in our colleges today are less rigorous by far than those of bygone, perhaps better, days. Present-day professors of pedagogy insist that the student, in order to learn, must, in some fashion, be interested in what he is taught. Modern maidens and lads, in order to become interested, must be entertained. So, many of our professors of today are taking out of their courses most of the work, the drudgery of it all. The student is given, usually in class, certain facts and points of significance which he should know. As for further investigation of these facts, no need. There is little drilling in the modern classroom. Professors propound; students sleep — sometimes snore. Not that students today are less intelligent than those of day before yesterday; but they have not been trained to think as quickly, to piece puzzles together by themselves, to crawl cautiously through pages of reference books.

There are, however, some professors teaching in our schools who cling to the old system, not cognizant of the fact that their pupils' minds are no longer storehouses of facts. These men succeed in awakening the student to the realization that there is, perhaps, something lacking in his training.

Dean Hibbard Offers A Suggestion

A painful yet deserved thrust was made at the student life here at the University of North Carolina when Dean Addison Hibbard, speaking to the juniors at their smoker Wednesday night, declared that there is not a single intellectual issue to which the student body, as a group, is alive. The dean's statement came rather unexpectedly; nevertheless, it is causing some—we daresay many—students to ponder over the question: Is there, or is there not, an issue? And again, is an issue worth while?

At any rate, Dean Hibbard suggested as a solution (or at least an aid to the solution) of the problem an extensive survey of local university life to be carried on by the students themselves. The Junior Class, which at this premature time has as yet taken no action, was appealed to for initiative in the matter of a thorough and understanding investigation.

We, at first, were rather skeptical of the idea. Little is ever accomplished by committees of students working on seemingly impossible projects in broad, general fields. But on second thought we have changed our opinion. Such a survey as suggested above was made by a senior class of three or four years ago, and the suggestions for improvement contained therein proved to be of tremendous value to those who were interested in settling vital campus problems. Considering such, there is no reason why an investigation of this sort should not be helpful at the present time.

If the Junior Class does not take up the project, some other group should realize the potentialities that may lie in the idea. Whether a survey would bring forth fruitful results or not, it is certainly a worthwhile experiment.—B. C. M.

The Campus

By Joe Jones

With some boys entering the University membership in a fraternity is a foregone conclusion. With others non-membership is a certainty. Some are on the borderline.

One type of the latter are those who get bids, really desire to become members, but are financially unable. With them it is a question of the wisdom of becoming a frat man and paying frat fees with sweat-earned, or even borrowed money. This becomes a vital question with many boys. They want like the dickens to be a frat man, but they just don't see where the money's coming from. Borrow it? Is frat membership worth that? Are the fellowship, prestige, etc., enjoyed by a frat man worth paying borrowed money for? How can the boy decide?

On the campus are upperclassmen and faculty members who have been through this trial. Some of them borrowed the money; others relinquished fraternal aspirations with regret. Looking back now how do they feel about it? Did the former get their money's worth? Do the latter still have regrets? Of what worth is frat membership to a man after his college days?

According to the opinion of Dean Hibbard it is "unthinkable to borrow money to join a fraternity." Especially does he think this to be true on this campus; he adds, however, that "at another institution where fraternities dominate more, it might be more worthwhile." Quoting Dean Hibbard: "After college days are over fraternity membership means very little to a man unless he is in college life. Fraternities can be either a good or a bad influence, depending upon the time and the chapter. One year the influence may be good, another year it may be had. Except in very rare cases, in ten or fifteen years after college membership means very little; though while in college it may be very real to a student."

Secretary R. B. House says, "Fraternities are fine things if one can afford them. If I had to make the decision myself I wouldn't borrow the money. The fineness of a fraternity is a permanent thing through a man's life; its practical value after college is overestimated. The chief value is its current value; that is, it gives a man opportunity for social and personal enjoyment; it increases the amenities of social life on on the campus, and does it throughout life in that respect. I don't think there are any serious dangers connected with fraternities. It is, however, rather disappointing sometimes to see boys overestimate what they call 'making a frat', and how they let up in their college activities after they become members. It is more disappointing to see how some boys take the fact that they don't get a bid. I don't think fraternities justify the vanity on on the one hand or the uneasiness on the other.

"A man shouldn't accept a fraternity bid if he is hard-pressed for funds," is the advice of Dean Bradshaw. He continues, "Most brand-new freshmen sadly overestimate the importance of fraternity membership, and the farther a man gets from his freshmanhood the less he values membership in a fraternity."

A St. Clairsville, Ohio, dancing pavilion banned bare-legged women and men without neckties, asserting their appearance on the dance floor discouraged business.

Enrollment Grows at N. C.

Greensboro, Sept. 26.—Latest figures at the registrar's office at North Carolina college indicate a larger student than that of last year. The number at the present time is larger than that of a corresponding time last year.

The count indicates a registration of 1,813 girls, 920 of whom are former students. Two hundred and sixteen are rated as commercial, 90 as transfers and 553 as new freshmen, a term which distinguishes the new regular from transfer and commercial students.

LOST

Bunch of keys in Keytainer. Keytainer is black with gold edges. If found return to 206 Ruffin. W. Ennis Collier.

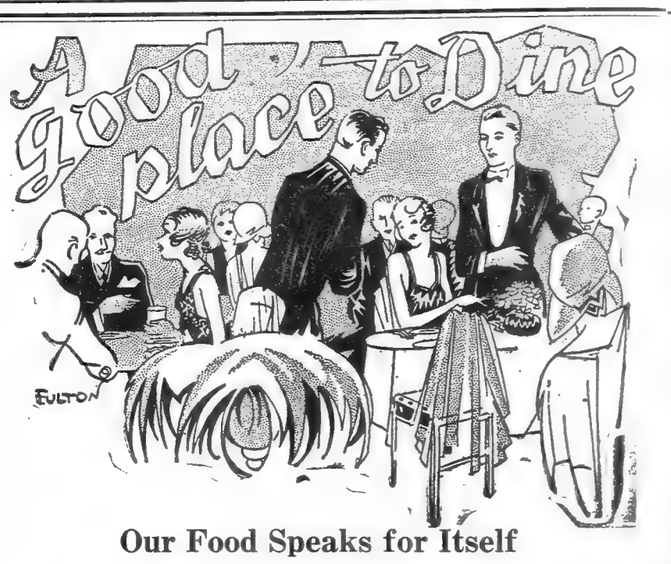
STATIONERY

Personal printed and embossed stationery at reduced prices.
Ask your dormitory store room clerk for samples.
ARTCROFT PRESS
W. C. Midford, Mgr.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

CAROLINA THEATRE

TODAY
WILLIAM HAINES
in
"SPEEDWAY"
with
ANITA PAGE
KARL DANE



The love story of an auto racer and an aviatrix, told against a background of real daring, and the kind of laughs only Haines can deliver.

ADDED FEATURES
"JED'S VACATION"
All Talking Comedy
"TWO LITTLE CHINESE MAIDS"
Vitaphone Vaudeville

SPECIAL SHOW
This Morning
10:00 A. M.

FOOTBALL TODAY

There'll be lots to talk about after the game.
—Tell it on—
CLUB PARCHMENT STATIONERY
TICKETS TO GAME ON SALE HERE
Students' Supply Store
Everything in Stationery

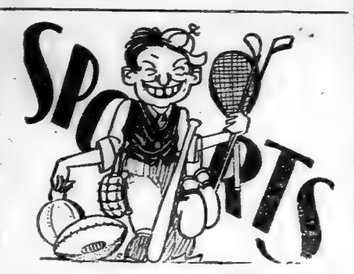
Our Food Speaks for Itself
Welcome Inn

The Daily Tar Heel

Covers Chapel Hill

NEWS and HOMES

LOCAL
Subscriptions $2.00



SUBSCRIBE NOW

The Daily Tar Heel

"BIG FIVE" FOOTBALL GETS UNDERWAY KENAN FIELD TODAY

Tar Heels Have Big Margin in 40 Year Classic; Wake Forest Hopes to Renew 4 Year Jinx

Collins Hard Hit by Injuries to Right Guards; Deacons Won last Saturday over Catawba.

By Joe Eagles and Crawford MacKethan

"Big Five" football gets under way this afternoon in earnest with the meeting of the Tar Heels and Deacons scheduled for Kenan stadium at 2:30. A lot has been written about the Tar Heel team. Little has been written about the Deacons. Some regard the Heels as the coming champions of the southern conference. Some regard Wake Forest as the mystery team of North Carolina.

Somebody's regards are going to be smashed all to pieces this afternoon. The scheduling of a warm-up game by the Deacons before the Carolina game is significant. They showed only enough in that game to win. Coach Pat Miller has been saying little this year, but he has been doing a lot of work. They have plans, it is said, of renewing the four-year jinx they held over the Heels.

From 1889 to 1924 the Deacons won only one game. But then the jinx got going and for four years the Heels held the small end of the score. Last year Coach Collins sent a victory hungry group of Tar Heels against the Deacons and piled up the largest score in the history of the two schools.

On paper the Heels seem to have far the superior team. Such was the case several times between 1924 and 1928. But the Deacons managed to win during those years. Pep meetings have been held at Wake Forest. They want a win over there. On the Hill the students are expecting a win. They would prefer another big score, but they aren't particular. They want a win.

In practice the Heels look about like they did last year. In some of the practices they fail to show up as well as they did this time last year. However, the continual drizzle of the past week may have affected them. Or perhaps the freshmen are stronger this year than before.

With several players out coach Miller hasn't announced his starting lineup. Captain Johnny Cox has been in Louisiana recently and his starting is doubtful. Kay Covington, fullback, is out with a bad knee. The rest of the lineup is likely to be the same which faced Catawba. Mills, Benton, Hipps and Dupre are the likely starting backs. Quillen and Gregson, ends; Williams and Webb, tackles; Levine and Hicks, guards, and Parker, center, will be the line starters.

Just who will start for Carolina is a puzzle. Injuries to right guards has complicated Coach Collins' problem considerably. Eskew was due for the starting berth with Hudson, letterman, and Dunavant as reserves. But an automobile accident put Eskew and Dunavant on the shelf. Hudson received a bad cut over the eye in scrimmage Wednesday. Crew and McIver, reserve left guards, have been shifted to the right guard post with "Red" Gilreath, reserve center. The rest of the Carolina lineup is just about settled. Lipscomb, center; Captain Farris and Crew, guards; Adkins and Koenig, tackles; Holt and Fenner, ends; Wyrick, quarter; Nash and Ward, halves, and Spaulding, full, will be the starting lineup.

Throughout the south this afternoon thousands of spectators will watch their grid teams step into the spotlight of the public eye, old feuds will be revived, heretofore unknown men will feel stardom within their grasp, and in the midst of such turmoil the Tar Heel selects the following teams as its winners.

As its first choice the Tar Heel foretells that the university of North Carolina will repeat its performance of last year, though not in such overwhelming style. While the Tar Heel looks forward rather confidently to a victory, it also advises the student body against attending the game with hopes and expectations of such a runaway score as resulted last year. We look backwards to the four years when Carolina was salted as just as certain a winner as they are this afternoon, and all but the final score agreed.

Duke with a large array of sophomore backs is set for Mercer this afternoon. The Devils are on an unknown quality, but on the basis of their showing last season they should score at least a two-touchdown victory win over the team from Macon. Mercer boasts an improved team this fall but Dehart's reserve material should serve to give him the margin of victory.

Probably the North Carolina team in most danger of defeat at the hands of an out-of-state opponent on this week-end is Davidson. She will meet on neutral ground this afternoon in Charlotte her old opponent from South Carolina, Clemson. Clemson undoubtedly has one of the most powerful teams that in her history has ever represented her. Davidson on the other hand is crippled both by lack of varsity men and reserve material. Much as we regret to do so we must pick Clemson as the most likely winner.

Laval's Gamecocks from the University of South Carolina get their first taste of battle this afternoon when they meet Erskine at Columbia. The Gamecocks, from preseason showings, should have an even stronger team this fall than the one which battled the Heels to a tie on a wet field here last year. The backfield is strengthened by the addition of Phame and other sophs. The line will feel the loss of Wolfe, one of the best tackles seen in the south in quite a while. However, the boys from the neighboring state should experience no trouble in equalling the 19-0 victory score over the Erskine team in last year's opening fray.

On the Tennessee-Centre tilt, southern pigskin followers will get a chance to see Major Bob Neyland's Volunteers, undefeated in the 1928 campaign, in action. With the touchdown twins, Hack and Mac, along with Dodd, again in action behind a veteran line, the Praying Colonels are destined to fall victims to a charge of backs and a barrage of passes as only an old army man can conceive. The result should be a five or six touchdown victory for the Vols.

The Ole Miss-Vandy game will probably furnish the fireworks for the southern fans today as the two teams are very evenly matched and both rated high in the southern conference. However, because of the loss of two stellar backs by Ole Miss this year, Vanderbilt should triumph by a touchdown or less.

Florida's national high scoring champions who ran up a total of 336 points against all opponents last year open the 1929 season against Southern. With such stars as Crabtree and Van Sickle, the Gators look good for another successful season. They should experience very little trouble trampling Southern by at least three or four touchdowns.

When Maryland's Old Liners tackle Washington college in their season's debut, Snitz and Snyder, versatile driving backs of last year, will be missing, but the veteran Coach Curly Byrd is reported to have some likely youngsters to complete the backfield. So with a seasoned line, they should not encounter very much difficulty in downing the Washington boys by about four touchdowns.

In the four major contests in Virginia today the Tar Heel picks Washington and Lee to win over Lynchburg, V. M. I. to win over Richmond, V. P. I. to win over Roanoke, and finally Virginia to win over Randolph-Macon.

Where? — In Tar Heel Ads.

Wyrick - Quarter

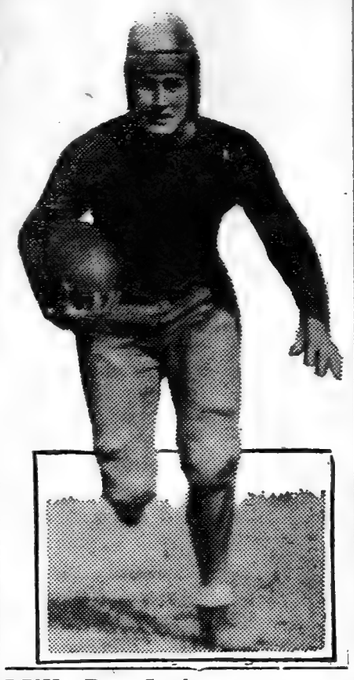
FROSH GRID TEAM PLAY CHAPEL HILL

Over 100 Candidates Out for Yearling Squad.

When Coach Enright sounded the call for freshman football Thursday over 100 men reported. According to Coach Enright the Tar Babies are looking unusually good considering that it is so early in the season.

The frosh have been working hard and are beginning to look forward to their first scheduled game with the Blue Imps October 18. In the meantime several practice games are under way.

This afternoon the freshmen play Chapel Hill high in a practice game.



In several scrimmages with the varsity the team has shown up extremely well. Both the line and backfield have produced a number of powerful prospects.

Later in the season the squad will be divided into a number of teams which will be used in scrimmage with the varsity.

Coach Enright urges all prospective candidates to stick with the squad till the end of the season.

A Kansas City caddy sued a golfer for $50,000 for an eye injury. Golfers who have lost their balls on the course may find it hard to understand how a caddy's eyes could be worth $50,000.

Nash - Right Half

Mills Leads in Football Scoring

The battle for individual scoring honors in North Carolina football circles will swing into a full blast Saturday when every member of the "big five" with the exception of North Carolina State, and every team of the "little six" group hits the action trail after two members of the large circle started the grind against opponents from the smaller group last week.

Mills, Wake Forest halfback, took the lead in the scoring column during the first week with two touchdowns registered against the Catawba Indians, while three Davidson players divided honors with one each, and Waggoner, for Elon, registered the only marker for the little group.

However, Elon presented a triple threat fullback in Williams, a plugging, dashing, fighting fullback who will likely make a big noise in the little collegian circle this season. Williams will swing back into action when the Christians meet Catawba at Elon Saturday.

Ward - Left Half

Spaulding - Full

Citadel Has Good Sophomore Material

Charleston, S. C., Sept. 27.—After inviting an out-of-state foe to help raise the football curtain in 1928, the Citadel has gone back this season to opening against a South Carolina opponent, and the Cadets get their first test of the season against Newberry College here Saturday.

At least four sophomores are almost certain to get their first taste of varsity competition in the game Saturday. While all of them might not be in the opening line-up, each is expected to play before the final whistle.

INTRAMURAL SCHEDULES TO BEGIN NEXT MONDAY

Intramural schedules and articles concerning them will begin with Monday's issue of the Daily Tar Heel. Announcements will be made regarding the organization of the dormitories, etc., from time to time. Don't forget intramural athletics are for "every student in some form of athletics."

A Local Club Rate

of

$5.00

FOR ALL

University Publications

The Daily Tar Heel

The Carolina Magazine

The Buccaneer

The Yackety Yack

MAIL CHECKS NOW

Carolina Publications Union

DEVILS READY FOR MERCER BULLDOGS

Durham, Sept. 27.—Before leaving for Macon, Ga., where they will engage Mercer college, the Duke Blue Devils went through a surprise scrimmage yesterday. The coaches wished to get in one day of work with a dry ball before sending the team into its first game.

Mercer furnishes the opposition in the first game of a strong schedule but the Duke team is confident from the head coach down to the substitutes. The Devils expect to win the opening game but expect a hard fight.

The Devils' attack will be a mixture of hard running backs and the passing game.

Two soph fullback hopefuls, Dan Coleman and Pat Rochelle, probably will get chances to try their mettle against the Bears.

It will be the first varsity fire for Glenn Roberson and Kid Brewer. They're due for backfield action.

The squad is due in Macon before noon tomorrow, stopping in Atlanta for breakfast. The return trip will bring the Devils back to the campus Sunday night.

Players making the trip follow:

Backs: Buie, Rosky, Jankoski, Coleman, Godfrey, Murray, Russ, Rochelle, Roberson, Brewer and Beaver.

Linemen: Warren, Thorne, Carpenter, Blackmon, Jordan, Peele, Hyatt, Captain Kistler, Hayes, Davis, Bryan, Friedman, Cole, Adkins, Jennings.

Fred Anders, student manager and four members of the athletic staff make up the party.

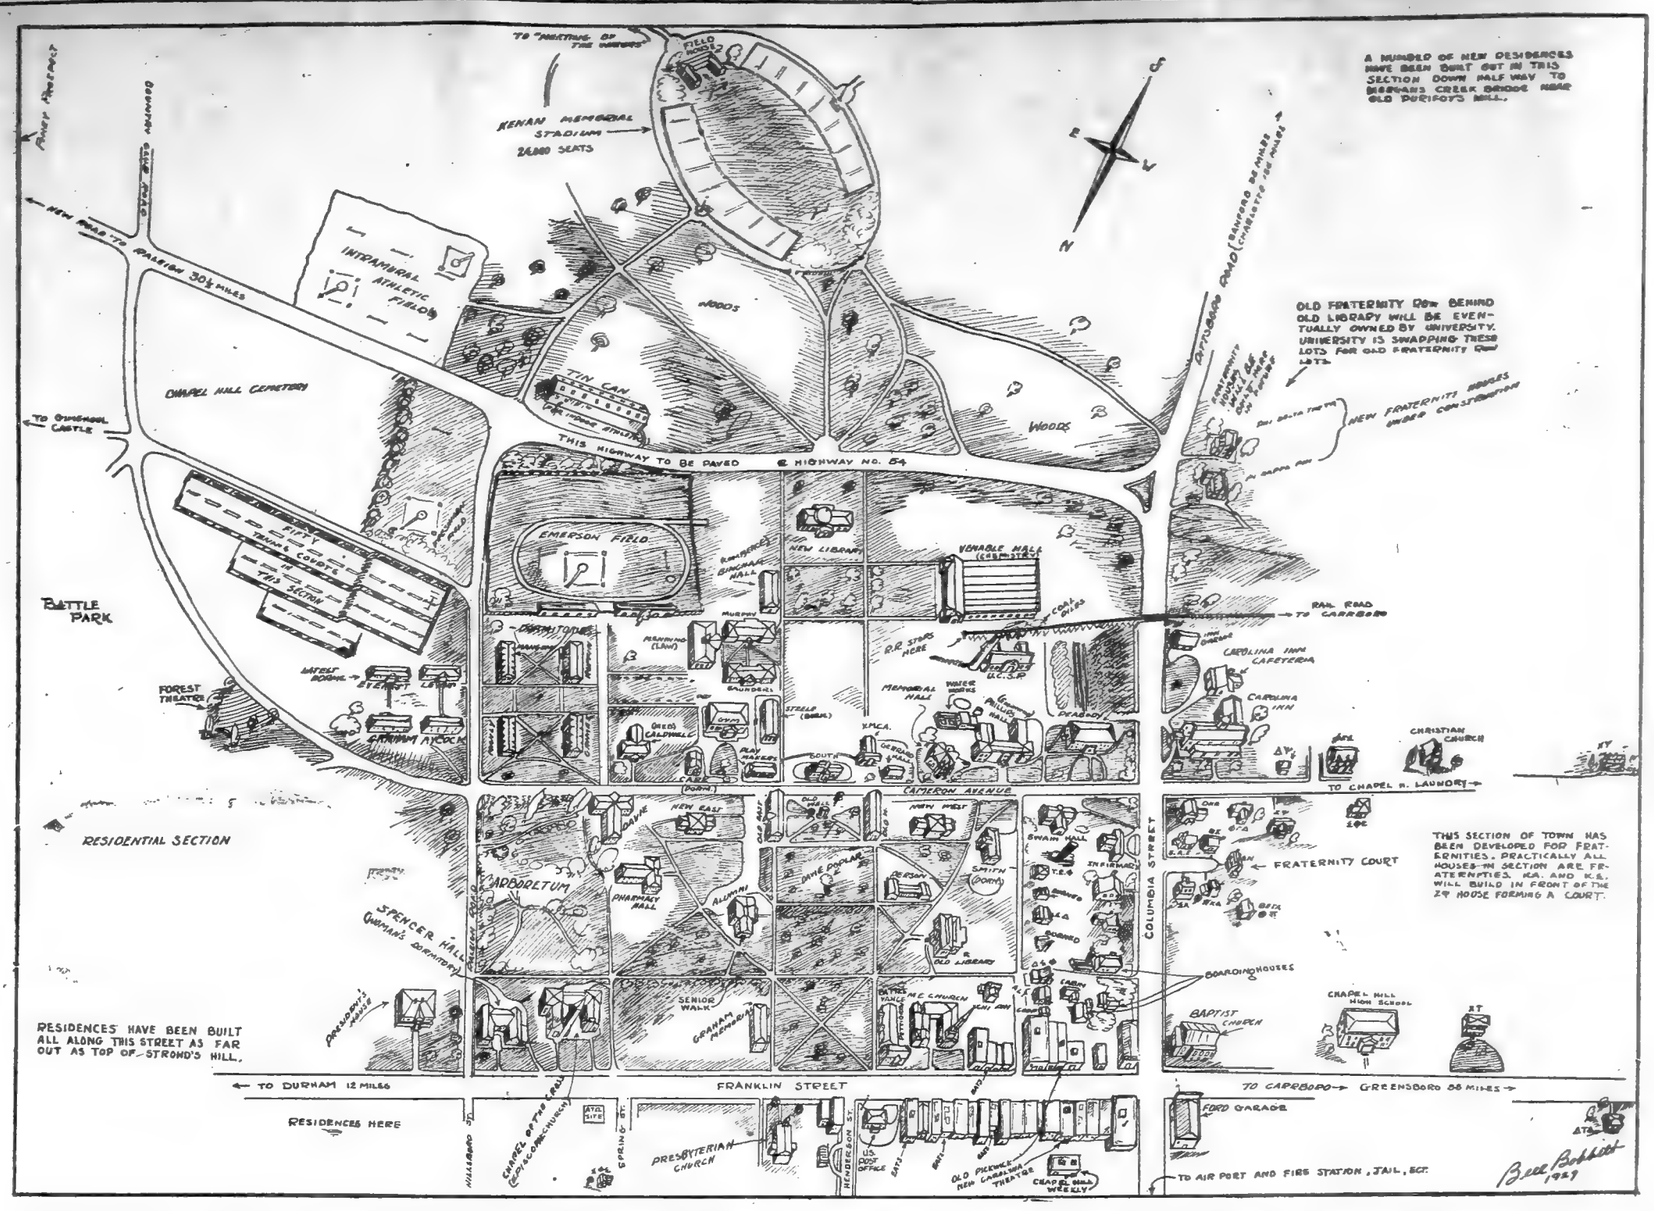
Plays Next Week

"Modern Maidens" Will Be Main Feature on Carolina's Program

"Our Modern Maidens" is the feature number on the Carolina Theatre's program for next week. It will be presented Wednesday and Thursday. The principal actors are Joan Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Manager E. Carrington Smith says that he is to have an unusually fine lot of plays in the next few days. "The Unholy Night," with Ernest Torrence and Dorothy Sebastine will be here Monday, and Tuesday's offering is Jeanne Eagles in "Jealousy," described as "a powerful love drama of clashing passions."

Patsy Ruth Miller and Jack Mulhall will appear in "Twin Beds" Friday, and Edward Everett Horton in "The Hottentot" Saturday.



Baseball has increased its pace by the adoption of a ball with a greyhound's glands.—Ring Lardner.

A London woman with 14 children was recently granted a separation from her husband.

Belgium holds first place in the manufacture of glass.

Arizona was admitted to the Union in 1912.

Map Showing location of Fraternity Houses at the University.

The above map of the campus and the fraternity houses is being published again today in order to aid freshmen seeking fraternity houses. Under the new plan of rushing, freshmen are required to visit all fraternities from which they have received invitations.

Lawrence C. Little With Duke University

Durham, Sept. 27. (Special)—Lawrence C. Little, secretary of Sunday school work in the Methodist Protestant church, has succeeded Dr. Howard M. Lesourd on the faculty of the Duke university school of religion.

Mr. Little who takes up his new duties at Duke is a graduate of the school and has had considerable experience in religious work. Dr. Lesourd is now with the Boston university school of religion.

Manual Training at School

Allen Langston, a graduate student who has had experience in teaching manual training, will give courses in manual training to boys at the school, in the afternoons, if parents are interested in the project. The cost will not be over $2 a month plus the cost of materials. The idea is to divide the boys into two classes, according to ages. Anybody who wants to make inquiries will find Mr. Langston at the school after 2:30 Monday.

Freud made a fortune not out of free and easy France but out of Puritanical America.—John P. Turner.

The principal Swedish seaports are Goteborg and Stockholm.

Southern Games

U. N. C.	vs.	Wake Forest
Elon	vs.	Catawba
Guilford	vs.	King College
High Point	vs.	Wofford
Atlantic Christian	vs.	Campbell
South Carolina	vs.	Erskine
Citadel	vs.	Newberry
Davidson	vs.	Clemson
Furman	vs.	Chattanooga
Virginia	vs.	Randolph Macon
V. M. I.	vs.	Richmond
V. P. I.	vs.	Roanoke
W. and L.	vs.	Lynchburg
William and Mary	vs.	St. John
Alabama	vs.	Miss. College
Auburn	vs.	Birmingham Southern
Florida	vs.	Southern
Georgia	vs.	Oglethorpe
Maryland	vs.	Washington College
Duke	vs.	Mercer
Sewanee	vs.	Bryson College
Tennessee	vs.	Centre College
Tulane	vs.	La. Normal
Vanderbilt	vs.	Ole Miss.

Racing at State Fair

Both horse and automobile racing will be features of the North Carolina State Fair, October 15 to 19.

During the first five days of Fair Week, horse racing will be the main attraction of the afternoon. Stake races with a $1,000 purse will be run, in addition to races in the open classes. More than $7,500 has been offered as purses for these races, and 104 horses are already entered.

The automobile races will be held on Saturday afternoon, October 19, under the rules of the American Automobile Association. The State Fair management says: "Many American racing stars will be there. In addition there will be a group of British racing stars who are now touring the country.

There will be no mud or dust on the State Fair grounds this year. More than 60 workmen have been engaged this summer in getting the grounds in shape.

Tile is being laid under the grounds, and they are being covered with top soil and sand. Quick growing grass has been sown, and beautiful green grass, instead of last year's red mud, will greet the visitors this fall.

Mrs. Wettach's School

The Experimental Kindergarten Begins Its Session Next Tuesday

Mrs. R. H. Wettach will open her Experimental Kindergarten next Tuesday, October 1, at her home on Pittsboro street. She has in readiness equipment which includes a Jungle Jym Junior, a slide, a sandbox, Patty Hill floor blocks, and a carpenter's bench with tools for building.

Mrs. Fred B. McCall will have charge of the music and will follow the Seymour plan of instruction.

Children must be four years old to enter. Those enrolled for the fall are: Thorndike Saville, Allan Garrett, Eleanor Carroll, Betsy Anne Bowman, Richard Bradshaw, Bayard Van Hecke, Bobby Wettach, Jean Logan, Gladys Wager, Jimmie Evans, Richard Kenfield, Shirley Graves, Paul Green, and Hubert Heffner. Those who will enter in January are: Billy Hobbs, Betta McCarthy, Josephine McMillan, Georgia Logan, Nancy Byrd Green, Robert McMillan, and Dougald McMillan.

George W. Truett to Speak

Rev. George W. Truett, celebrated Baptist minister of Dallas, Texas, a native North Carolinian, has accepted an invitation to speak at the State Fair in Raleigh during the celebration of Home-coming Week, October 14 to 19.

At The Carolina

ANITA PAGE, WILLIAM HAINES and JOHN MILJAN in "SPEEDWAY"

AMES SANDWICHES
All Kinds
"Eats" Boy Calls Every Night at Each Fraternity House.
Wait for Him
Ames Sandwiches are Sold Exclusively at Patterson Drug Company.
Special Prices on Party Orders
SPECIAL PRICES ON PARTY ORDERS
Toaster Installed by Us in Every Fraternity House

Beat Wake Forest
FREE! TO THE FREE!
HIGHEST SCORER!
TWO SUITS DRY-CLEANED
The Neatest Man at the Game Will Wear a Suit Cleaned by Us.
WE KNOW HOW!
O'Kelly Tailoring Co.
Phone 3531

EYES CORRECTLY FITTED
W. B. SORRELL

R. R. CLARK
Dentist
Office over Bank of Chapel Hill
PHONE 6251

U DRIVE IT SYSTEM
A Car Whenever You Wish
New Closed Cars for Rent Day or Night
At Little Cost
Pay by the Mile Ready any Time
U DRIVE IT YOURSELF
Chevrolets, Oaklands, Studebakers, and Packards
Taxi Service Also
E. E. PUGH
Day Phone 3861 Night Phone 5706

TAR HEEL MEETING
Tonight 7 O'clock
TAR HEEL OFFICE

The Daily Tar Heel

TRYOUTS FOR PLAYS
Monday 4:30
PLAYMAKER THEATRE

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1929 | NUMBER 9

RUSHING OPENS WITH FRESHMEN VISITING FRATERNITY HOUSES

Satisfaction Expressed With New System by Dean Bradshaw; Other Opinions.

Thronged fraternity houses Friday and Saturday attested to the success of the new system of rushing instituted this year by the interfraternity council. A total of 553 freshmen made 1899 visits to fraternity houses, a check by the dean of students made Saturday shows.

Fraternity leaders expressed gratification with the showing made by the new system. "The false rumor that the new system would work hardship on the freshmen was not the case," Gordon Gray, member of the interfraternity council, said Saturday. No complaints were made by the freshmen because of their inability to make all the visits," he added.

"The success of the system cannot be foretold at this early hour," he continued, but fraternity men with whom I talked and freshmen seem to be perfectly satisfied. The system is all right, I think," he concluded.

Satisfaction with the new system was expressed by F. F. Bradshaw, dean of students. "The freshmen have been allowed time to settle themselves," the dean said. "There is not a doubt but that some improvement has been shown by the new system," he stated.

"The feature of the new system which specifies limited time for the freshmen to visit the fraternity houses is very good," Will Yarborough, managing editor of the Daily Tar Heel said Saturday. "The shortened hours of visits by freshmen does not interfere with school work and allows both upperclassmen and freshmen ample time for their ...ies," the newspaper man ...ated. The system should be given a good trial before judgment is passed on its worth, Yarborough concluded.

More than two-thirds of the freshman class received invitations to the fraternity houses, the check disclosed. The majority of these freshmen received more than four bids apiece, figures show. Fraternity leaders were unwilling to state what the enormous number of bids for visits meant.

President John Bullock and Secretary Jimmy Williams of the interfraternity council were unable to be located for statements Saturday.

Faculty Notice

Mr. Heffner and Mr. Bailey wish to announce that any faculty member who desires to secure a season ticket to the Carolina Playmakers must secure one at once and mail check at his convenience. Remaining tickets will be sold within the next few days.

Farris Asks Frosh For Co-operation

Freshmen Hold Successful Smoker; House and Farris Speak.

A plea for the maintainance of the high standards of student government was made Friday night to the Freshman class by Ray Farris, president of the student body, at the first Freshman smoker of the year in Swain Hall. "It is up to the new students to cooperate with the upperclassmen if student government is to be a success here," the student leader said.

More than six hundred freshmen crowded Swain Hall to hear speeches by R. B. House, executive secretary, and Ralph C. Green, president of the senior class. "Retain your individuality", Mr. House counselled. "The psuedo-sophistication of the upper classmen should not attract the new man," he added.

"Stay on the hill. Have a good time surely, but the only way to get the most out of your college opportunities is to work and work hard," he concluded.

The smoker was brought to a close by a series of college yells and songs led by Peyton Abbott, assistant cheer leader. Music was provided for the first year men.

Dr. Carl Taylor to Preach Here Today

Dr. Carl C. Taylor, dean of the graduate school at State College, will preach this morning at 11:00 at the United church (Christian Congregational) on Cameron Avenue.

Dr. Taylor secured his education from Drake University. Three years later he got his M. A. from the University of Texas, and then in 1917 he gained his Ph. D. from the University of Missouri.

Since that time he has taught in many colleges, and is at present, dean of the graduate school of state college and also director of the Bureau of Economics and Social Research. Dr. Taylor is very interested in World Sociology, and has written many books along this line. Some of his best books are: "Rural Sociology," "Human Relations," "The History and Method of the Social Survey," and "A Hundred Public Questions Briefly Debated."

FIRST SUPPLEMENT APPEARS OCTOBER 6

Much Progress Made in Literary Fields at Carolina.

Indications after the first week of publication of the Daily Tar Heel are that the publications on the campus will enjoy their most successful year since the students voted the $5.00 fee in 1924. The establishment of the daily paper on the campus marks the most decisive step yet taken by a South Atlantic institution in literary fields. Glenn Holder is editor of the paper, Will Yarborough is managing editor, and Marion Alexander is business manager.

The Magazine Supplement to the Tar Heel, edited by John Mebane twice a month, is delivered with the daily. The first number will appear next

(Continued on last page)

Frosh Enrollment in Commerce Announced

At the close of the spring quarter there were 176 freshmen enrolled in the commerce school, and statistics available after the first week of this quarter show that the same number of freshmen are already registered in that school. Indications are that there will be several more first year students to register in commerce by the end of the fall quarter.

FRESHMEN ELECT WEBB PRESIDENT Y. M. C. A. GROUP

Frank Graham Features First Meeting of Friendship Council; Officers Elected.

A very successful Ex-Hi-Y banquet was given Friday night in the basement of the Methodist church at 6:30, for the purpose of organizing the Freshman Friendship (Cabinet) Council.

After a very enjoyable feed, Mr. G. H. Leonard, self-help secretary of the Y, led the group in a few peppy songs. J. Elwin Dungan, president sophomore cabinet, started the program off by introducing all the special guests after which the Y quartet sang three or four selections, closing with "Hark the Sound."

Mr. Brooks Stabler, one of the special guests, gave a short talk. Then President Dungan introduced the principal speaker of the occasion, Prof. Frank P. Graham. Mr. Graham gave a very interesting and inspiring talk in which he advised the group to keep their eyes on three simple things. "These three things," said Mr. Graham, "are the Spirit, the Body, and the Mind." He gave a number of examples of men who had done this and had become successful.

The next part of the program was the organization of the Council. The following officers were elected: Alex Webb, of Raleigh, was elected president, Robert Hubbard of High Point, vice-president, Alex Biggs of Winston-Salem, secretary, and Strat Donnell of Wilmington, treasurer.

After a piano solo by Harold Cone, Mr. Comer closed the meeting with a short word of prayer.

DEPARTMENTAL LIBRARIES IN NEW BUILDING

Commerce, Rural Economics, and Education Units Transferred.

During the past summmer the libraries of the schools of education and commerce and of the department of rural social economics were moved from their former quarters in Peabody and Saunders hall to the handsome new library building.

The library of the school of education has been placed in the large room to the right of the main entrance of the new building, and the library of the school of commerce is located at the end of the corridor to the right. The library of the department of rural economics and the offices of Professors Branson, Hobbs, and Wagner are quartered in the east end of the basement.

The bringing together of these three collections in connection with the main resources of the general library simplifies the problem of the use of materials on the part of the student body because all materials are now available under the same roof. Much valuable time and energy will be saved by virtue of these new arrangements by both student body and faculty. Since the funds for the employment of student assistants are limited to a great extent, those in charge of the library have not been able to work out a schedule of hours for the three libraries similar to the one observed by the reserve reading room and the delivery room of the main library.

The hours for the general library, the respective schools

(Continued on page four)

Mencken's American Mercury Praises the University Press

Article by Nelson Antrim Crawford on Methods, Purposes, and Accomplishments of American University Presses.

The American Mercury, H. L. Mencken's famed review, for October carries an article by Nelson Antrim Crawford which speaks of the University of North Carolina Press as having been distinctly successful in its mission of stimulating fine printing and broadening the public appreciation of literature.

Mr. Crawford's treatise is devoted to a study of the methods, purposes, and accomplishments of American university presses. Beginning with the establishment of the Oxford University Press of England in 1468, he follows up with a history of similar organizations in this country. He credits Harvard University with the establishment of the first American association in 1636.

Since Colonial days all the Universities, according to Crawford, have engaged in more or less publishing. At present he credits Columbia and Chicago with having the largest of the presses. The Carolina organization is placed in first rank with a dozen other prominent groups as doing especially significant work.

The Yale University Press, founded by George Parmly Day, has made two inovations that are largely responsible for improving the value of American university presses everywhere. These changes were, first, the opening of facilities to scholars and writers other than those connected with the university; and second, the enlargement of its publications field to include all serious books, in addition to scholarly works.

In this respect Mr. Crawford speaks of the local Press thus:

"The University of North Carolina has followed similar ideals, more modestly but with distinct success. Founded in 1922, the press named as one of its objects, 'to promote generally, by publishing deserving works, the advancement of arts and sciences and the development of literature.' In its short existence it has published such works as Howard W. Odum's 'The Negro and his Songs,' Roscoe Pound's 'Law and Morals,' and Edward C. L. Adam's 'Congeree Sketches.' It is about to begin the Inter-American Historical Series, a fifteen-volume work to cover the Latin-American countries, on most of which dependable English historical works are unavailable."

An interesting feature of the claims made for the scholastic presses is the fact stated by Mr.

(Continued on last page)

Tar Heel Meeting

There will be an important meeting of the Tar Heel Staff tonight at 7 o'clock in the office. All members are expected to attend this meeting. Any new men who wish to try out for the staff will also attend the meeting.

Mechanical Course Attracts Students

The department of Mechanical Engineering in the school of Engineering has this year the largest enrollment in its brief history of four years. The total registration for the department is 39, which is distributed among the classes as follows: freshmen, 21; sophomores, 12; juniors, 3; and seniors, 3.

Professor Hoefer, head of this department, is very pleased with the large number of freshmen enrolled in the mechanical courses, and he is delighted with the large number of last year's freshmen who returned as sophomores. As the department graduated its first man last spring, the mechanical branch of the engineering school is growing rapidly in popularity. As Mr. Hoefer put it, a 200 percent increase in graduates in one year indicates a rapidly growing department.

At present there are two members of the engineering faculty who are connected solely with the Mechanical Engineering department. Mr. Hoefer, teaches advanced courses in mechanical work, and Mr. Neil P. Bailey, who came to the University this fall from the University of Idaho, gives instruction in machine design and aeronautics.

However, in addition to these two men who are connected solely with this department, the other members of the faculty of the engineering school give instruction in the general engineering courses which are required of all engineering students.

As an additional activity of the Mechanical Engineering department, it is the intention of the department to petition the American Society of Mechanical Engineers for a local student branch of the society. The A. S. M. E. is the national organization of mechanical engineers, and the local student branch would be similar to the student branches of the A. S. C. E. and the A. I. E. E., civil and electrical engineering societies.

BLASTING TO STOP

Only one more week of blasting will be needed to complete improvements on the intersection of the Raleigh and country club roads, officials of the T. C. Thompson company, contractors for the university, said Saturday. The blasting which has been in operation for more than three weeks is being done by the university to improve the approach to the campus.

COMMUNITY CLUB MEETS

The opening meeting for the fall quarter of the Community Club was held yesterday afternoon in the parish house of the Episcopal church. About eighty people were present.

Several plans for the coming year were discussed.

Heels Show Power in Scoring 48-0 Win Over Wake Forest

Carolina Uses Straight Football to Drive over Seven Touchdowns; Deacons Never Threaten.

Presenting a smooth working lineup Carolina easily subdued Wake Forest here yesterday 48-0 in a game lacking in thrills but full of straight football. The Heels outplayed the Deacons from the opening whistle and only in the closing stages of the game did Wake Forest present a threat.

Starting with his veterans Coach Collins piled up a safe lead and then shot 26 men in the contest. Of the combinations he used the starting eleven seemed best. They ran over three touchdowns before the end of the first quarter and kept the Deacons well beyond the fifty yard line. The other combinations used looked good, but lacked the smoothness of the starters.

Carolina used few passes, confining its attack to straight football for the most part. Fifteen passes were attempted by the Heels, four of which were completed. The Deacons likewise concentrated its attack on the ground, resorting to the air only twelve times. Six of their passes found Deacon arms.

The game was only a few minutes long before the Heels scored. Rowe kicked off to Newsome. After one play the Deacons kicked to Wyrick on Carolina's forty-yard line. A couple of plays and the ball exchanged hands on a punt. The Baptists tried a play and then kicked. Carolina gained four yards on the exchange. Taking the ball on the 44-yard line Nash made six yards. Ward's pass was knocked down by Newsome. Trying a second pass Ward shot the ball into Nash's arms who took it to Wake Forest's three-yard line. Ward took it to the one-yard line and then scored the first touchdown of the 1929 season. Wake Forest was offside on the attempted point kick and Carolina led 7-0.

Following this touchdown the Heels kicked off again. Wake Forest held the ball for six plays before kicking. Carolina then marched down the field for another counter. Ward got a yard. Nash added ten. Spaulding went through the line for three more. Then with Ward, Nash, and Spaulding working, Wyrick drove the Heels across for the second score. Ward took fifteen yards and Nash went through the line for 30 yards for the score. Spaulding added the point.

Spaulding intercepted a pass to make the third touchdown possible. Taking the ball deep in Deacon, territory, the Heels sent it over with straight football. Spaulding did the scoring.

It was at this point that Coach Collins sent in a fresh team. They drove the ball down the field twice before scoring. They scored when Jim Magner, long distance passer, shot one of his heaves in the direction of Branch. "Shorty" scored.

Another touchdown was added during the half but the try for point failed. Substitutes were being used with increasing frequency by both coaches.

The second half opened with the original line but only Wyrick

(Continued on page three)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.
The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $3.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Sunday, September 29, 1929

Why Swain Hall Should Be Converted Into a Cafeteria

For many years Swain hall has been the most maligned unit of the university consolidated service plants. Bitter denunciations of the cuisine and service at the university dining hall are frequent—and not altogether unwarranted.

Unquestionably the Swain hall boarder receives full value for his money. The food is wholesome and plentiful, but the menu is seldom varied. Week after week monotonous round of half-dozen or so dishes is served until the palate revolts and the stomach becomes nauseated at the mere mention of Swain hall food.

Nearly every one detests certain foods, and when those foods happen to appear on the same menu, with little or nothing else, the diner is likely to go hungry. For that reason Swain hall boarders are frequently compelled to seek addition sustenance at down-town cafes.

The Daily Tar Heel suggests that Swain hall might be converted into a cafeteria, to be operated at cost by the university, with inestimable value to the student body. Although several cafeterias are operated in Chapel Hill at present, their prices are considerably higher than those at which a service-at-cost establishment could afford to sell similar foods. A competent dietician could easily be easily obtained to direct the preparation of a large variety of wholesome and delightful dishes.

Numerous colleges and universities in this and other states have cafeterias which are operated at cost by the institutions. Their prices are usually lower than those prevailing at Chapel Hill eating establishments.

A majority of the undergraduates here are possessed of modest financial means, and many of them are forced to take their meals at Swain hall. They must subsist on the fare offered them at Swain, however unpalatable it may be to them. Conversion of the dining hall into a cafeteria would enable them to purchase the food they desire.

Conversion of Swain hall into a cafeteria would be productive of more actual benefits to the students than almost any other progressive step that the university might undertake.

The New Amplifiers In Kenan Stadium

One of the most pleasing features of the game yesterday was the operation of the new amplifiers, which enabled every occupant of the huge Kenan stadium to keep in touch with the exact details of every play. Ex-freshman Coach Lester Belding, now athletic mentor at Greensboro high school, handled the announcing in a highly creditable manner.

The athletic association is deserving of a great deal of credit for installing the new announcing system. College football games undoubtedly furnish the most colorful spectacles of sportdom, and they add a great deal of glamour to undergraduate life. Only the expert who is familiar with the intricacies of the game and the faces of the players is able to keep in close touch with the progress of the contests, however. The new amplifiers enable every spectator at Carolina's home games to know exactly what is occurring at every point of the game.

An ideal setting for football games is furnished by beautiful Kenan stadium, and now the installation of the amplifying system has enabled the spectators to realize the ultimate of enjoyment from the games here.

Shades of Kike Kyser!

It is entirely out of the question to speak of there being a necessity for any great amount of cheering at yesterday's game. The Deacons were very evidently concentrating on today's prayers and not yesterday's grid contest. But we have some contests still to be fought which will demand, not only every last bit of energy that Coach Collins' men can command, but, of necessity, a backing by that great moral stimulus—organized and psychological cheering.

Tomorrow the student body, or rather a few upper classmen and the freshmen, will vote for a chief cheerleader and his assistants at chapel period in Memorial Hall. This office is an honor that should rank among the highest given students here. Next to the President of the Student body and the editor of the Daily Tar Heel and the captains of the athletic teams, the chief cheerleader is in a position to influence the student body more than any other man. Just as much as a football captain can inspire his team-mates to extraordinary endeavor, so can a good yell-leader whip the enthusiasm of an audience to such a fighting pitch that the team itself responds to the atmosphere of the time and place by fighting much harder.

The University has not had a great cheerleader since Kike Kyser. We sorely need a man with the ability to move the spirits of men, to sway their emotions, and to inspire them to greater vociferousness. In short, we need a popular and athletic leader with enough Carolina Spirit in his makeup to catch the fancy of a crowd, and enough initiative to make that crowd work.

The first step is to elect such a man; the second is to follow him; to overcome the pernicious apathy and sophistication that grips us. The position of chief cheerleader is a real honor; it belongs only to the man who can and will do the job.

J. E. D.

The College of Yesterday

The contention is often made that the colleges and universities of today are nothing more than places where young men and women spend four years of leisure, mostly at the expense of the state, since the individual student pays only about one-fourth of his expenditures. There are those who don't believe that the cost of these four years of college life is ever repaid to the state in an educational way. In the case of the state of North Carolina the incorrectness of both of these contentions is without a parallel.

People who criticise American colleges and universities today usually do so because they worship the college of yesterday, which operated under circumstances that bear an almost neglibible resemblance to that highly developed institution which we call modern American society. We are living in a progressive age when education and industry go hand in hand.

In point of fact, the college of yesterday was little more than the school of liberal arts which is a part of the university of North Carolina today. The writer contends that the tendency to criticize the present-day institution of learning is directly due to a failure to realize the present state of social development in the average American university.

Moreover, the American college of today is engrossed in a grand assortment of extra-curricular organizations which were unheard of half a century ago. And these outside functions are rapidly becoming a great factor in the education of the college man.

Although men will always continue to worship the past, they must recognize the virtues of the present. They must realize that the college of yesterday has heeded the call of progress and given place to the college of today.—J. C. W.

Pen Points

By H. J. Galland

Summer weather is here again, after a spell of unwelcome rain and cold. Freshmen will now begin to take an interest in that section of landscaped country known as the arboretum. Upperclassmen always have been interested in it.

* * *
* * *

We are in a position to help out a number of students who are not yet sure of their future vocations. We have been troubled by that question, too, but the solution is at hand. In conjunction with the employment bureau and the dean of students' office, we print the following advertisement from the Polk County News verbatim: "Queen's Big College guarantees to learn you the up-to-date barber trade in six weeks, for thirty-five dollars. You make money while learning. Queen's Barber College, Spartanburg, S. C."

* * *
* * *

And speaking of ads, we wonder if you noticed the display in the University Book and Stationery Shop's window. In the background is a placard advertising a forthcoming movie. The rest of the display is made up of numerous alarm-clocks. The title of the movie on the placard is "The Unholy Night."

* * *
* * *

The sophomores and freshmen, says yesterday's Tar Heel, had a verbal warfare in the quadrangle. "In fact," says the reporter, "the land, supposedly adjoining the river Styx, was raised and torn asunder." He means they told each other to go to Hell, in the time-honored manner.

* * *
* * *

Bill Bobbitt's map showing the location of fraternity houses and intended to help the wandering frosh in finding the houses of Bid Day, shows a total of seventeen houses out of thirty-one on the campus. Those freshmen we saw said that they got so interested in looking at the map and finding out about the university's swapping the Pittsboro road lots for the lots on the fraternity row, and learning the new names of the triangle dorms that they forgot to go to the houses they were looking for.

* * *
* * *

Before their first smoker, the freshmen were carefully advised by Dean Bradshaw to do their cheering for '32 outside of Swain hall, but to confine their enthusiasm for '33 to cheering inside the dining hall. The advice was given in an effort to do away with friction between the classes, but it seemed to us that if the freshmen barricaded themselves in Swain, as per instructions, and then made use of the numerous plates and dishes in introducing themselves to their sophomore friends on the outside, things might be interesting.

* * *
* * *

Patsy Ruth Miller and Jack Mulhall will appear in "Twin Beds," says a theatre notice in the Tar Heel. . . . Columnist Joe Jones touched on one of the most vital problems of college life in his symposium of opinions on joining fraternities. . . . Sandwich men visiting fraternity houses at night have a tough time of it with the weather what it is—whether to tote hot chocolate or lemonade is their worrier. . . . Twice as many students are coming out for all activities this year than ever before. . . . "Keep Off the Grass" signs have not been erected thus far, and every one seems to be using the proper paths. . . . The parking problem is getting 'cuter and 'cuter, said one co-ed, thinking no doubt of those Baby Cars. . . . and the co-eds are wearing their stockings inside out, because it makes 'em look more sheer . . . Honest!

HART GETS DEGREE

Friday evening Mr. O. P. Hart, graduate student in physics, successfully passed the preliminary oral examination for the degree of Doctor of Science.

The examination passed by Mr. Hart was the oral one which must be passed before a candidate for a doctor's degree is permitted to begin work on the material he plans to use in passing the final examination for the degree.

Mr. Hart is taking his degree in physics, and has taken his major in physics and his minor in mathematics.

The examining committee which conducted the examination consisted of Dr. Otto Stuhlman, Jr., Dr. E. K. Plyler, and Dr. H. K. Fussler, all of the physics department, and Dr. Arthur Winsor of the department of mathematics.

What the drys want is a prohibition dyke as effective in its way as the tariff wall.

Every Day Somebody's Birthday

SEND A GREETING CARD
A Complete Line of ——VOLLAND'S——
Greeting Cards
Everyday Cards for every occasion

Students' Supply Store
Everything in Stationery

DR. J. P. JONES
Dentist
Over Welcome-In Cafeteria
PHONE 5761

PROGRAM FOR EDUCATION CONFERENCE

The University of North Carolina announces the second of a series of annual conferences to be held at Chapel Hill, Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, October 19, 20, 21 and 22, 1929, on the general subject "Education in the South." The program of the 1929 series will deal particularly with the subject of "Libraries."

Saturday, October 19

Ten-thirty A. M. Memorial Hall.

CONVOCATION

Presiding: President H. W. Chase.
Dedication of the University of North Carolina Library. Rev. W. D. Moss
Invocation O. Max Gardner
Presentation of Building John Sprunt Hill
Acceptance Luis R. Wilson
Announcement of Gifts Andrew Keogh
Dedication Address By the Assembly
University Hymn Rev. W. D. Moss
Benediction

Five P. M. The Library.

Open House and Reception.

Eight-thirty P. M. The Playmakers Theatre.

Carolina Folk-plays. The Carolina Playmakers, Professor Frederick H. Koch, Director.

Sunday, October 20

Eleven A. M. Memorial Hall.

Sermon. "Manufactured Gods," by Dean Shailer Mathews, School of Divinity, University of Chicago.

Four P. M. Memorial Hall.

Musical Program. The University of North Carolina Department of Music, Professor Harold S. Deyer, Director.

Monday, October 21

Ten A. M. Gerrard Hall.

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE ON EDUCATION.

Presiding: President H. W. Chase.
"Significant of Intelligent Reading and Library Facilities in Modern Education," by Dean William S. Gray, School of Education, the University of Chicago.
"The Library in the Public Schools of Winston-Salem," by Mr. F. H. Koos, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Winston-Salem.

Eleven-thirty A. M. Gerrard Hall.

SOUTHEASTERN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

Presiding: Miss Charlotte Templeton, Librarian, Greenville Public Library, Greenville, S. C.
Address of Welcome, by Dr. Louis R. Wilson, Librarian, the University of North Carolina.
"The Rome Conference," by Mr. Andrew Keogh, President of the American Library Association.
"The Survey as a Starting Point," by Miss Mary U. Rothrock, Librarian, Lawson McGhee Library, Knoxville, Tennessee.
"The Citizen's Part in a Library Program," by Professor Frank P. Graham, the University of North Carolina.

Two-thirty P. M. Gerrard Hall.

SOUTHEASTERN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

Presiding: Miss Charlotte Templeton.
Open Discussion:
County Libraries.
Negro Library Service.
Public Library Standards.

Four P. M. Gerrard Hall.

NORTH CAROLINA LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

Presiding: Miss Anne Pierce, Librarian, Charlotte Public Library, Charlotte, North Carolina.
Introduction of Speaker, by Colonel F. P. Hobgood, Jr., Greensboro, North Carolina, Chairman, Citizens' Library Movement.
Address, by Governor O. Max Gardner.
"The Mecklenburg Campaign," by Mr. C. W. Tillett, Jr., Chairman, Charlotte District, Citizens' Library Movement.
Report from Davidson County.

Six-thirty P. M. Carolina Inn.

Address: "The Use of Leisure," by Dr. Arthur E. Bestor, President of Chautauqua Institution.
Dinner. Guests will be entertained by the University of North Carolina.

Tuesday, October 22

Nine-thirty A. M. Gerrard Hall.

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE ON EDUCATION.

Presiding: President D. R. Anderson, of Randolph-Macon Woman's College.
"Adult Education and the Library," by Mr. Morse A. Cartwright, Director, American Association for Adult Education.
"Adult Education Activities in the Southern States," by Mr. Russell M. Grumman, Director, Extension Division, University of North Carolina.

Ten-thirty A. M. Gerrard Hall.

Presiding: Miss Sarah C. N. Bogle, Secretary, Board of Education for Librarianship, American Library Association.
"Education for Librarianship in the Southern States," by Dr. Louis R. Wilson, Librarian, the University of North Carolina.
"Coordination of Training for Librarianship," by Mr. Charles H. Stone, Librarian, The North Carolina College for Women.

Eleven-thirty A. M. Gerrard Hall.

SOUTHEASTERN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. Business Session.

Eleven-thirty A. M. Carolina Inn.

NORTH CAROLINA LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. Business Session.

One P. M. Carolina Inn.

NORTH CAROLINA LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

Luncheon Meetings. (Places of meetings and details of programs to be announced)
(a) College Library Section.
(b) Children's Section.
(c) Public Library Section.
(d) Trustees Section.

Two-thirty P. M. Drives around campus. Golf. Visit to Duke University and other places of interest.
Trains from Durham for North and South connections at 4:08 P. M. and 8:00 P. M.

CAROLINA PLAYS 6 S. I. C. TEAMS IN SUCCESSION

Tar Heels Preparing for Maryland, Georgia Tech, Georgia, V. P. I., N. C. State, and South Carolina.

With the opening game with Wake Forest out of the way, the Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina will, on Monday, begin preparing for six Conference games which come in a row.

The Tar Heels go north next Saturday to invade the nest of Maryland's Old Liners. On Friday, October 11, they will meet the national champions of Georgia Tech at Atlanta, and on the following successive week-ends they will have home games against Georgia, V. P. I., and N. C. State. The sixth straight Conference foe will be South Carolina, to be met at Columbia.

High spirits ruled in the Tar Heel camp tonight. The Deacons are long-standing jinxes of the Tar Heels, although not a Conference foe. With that game out of the way, the Tar Heels can concentrate everything on the Conference battles just ahead.

Coach Bill Cerney's "hundred backs" looked great against the Deacons, while the line came through about as was expected. The Tar Heels might have shown more strength here, but improvement may be expected against Maryland.

The rookies will have had more seasoning, and Bud Eskew, third-year stellar guard, should be back. Eskew was out for a week with scalp injuries sustained in an automobile accident. His return opposite Captain Ray Farris, the Tar Heels' great triple-threat guard, should strengthen the center of the line considerably.

The promising showing of Carolina's rookie center today augured well also for the campaign just ahead. Center is the one post at which the Tar Heels show no veteran contender.

Fans are wondering what the split line, featured against the Deacons is going to mean in Tar Heelia. The split line has great possibilities, though no coach has ever quite mastered it. The question is how far Chuck Collins and his coaching cohorts, pupils of the great Rockne, can perfect the thing. The split line should prove a fine puzzle for Maryland's defense, for the Old Liners play a six-man line, and it is just about impossible to play such tactics against a split line.

Hoefner Attends Meeting

Professor Hoefer, head of the department of Mechanical Engineering of the school of Engineering, attended an executive committee meeting of the Raleigh branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in Raleigh last Wednesday afternoon.

The A. S. M. E. is the national organization, and the Raleigh branch includes all territory within a 60 mile radius of Raleigh.

Muscle Sounds Recorded

Cambridge (England).—With a long needle piercing his arm, Professor E. D. Adrian recently made a graphone record of muscle movements. Magnified 5,000 times, they came through a loud speaker like the sound of a machine-gun. Records of this kind are being used in the investigation of after-effects of sleepy sickness.

Sweden exports lumber, paper, matches, butter and iron ore.

Heady Quarter

Pete Wyrick is beginning his second year as general of the Tar Heels. He is one of the hardest driving quarters in the state, besides being a capable runner and pass receiver.

Heels Score 48-0 Win Over Wake Forest

(Continued from first page)

of the backfield. However, the Heels scored with Magner passing to Slusser. Magner then added the point. The last touchdown found Erickson reversing his field after losing ten yards and going around the opposite end for twenty-five yards.

The remainder of the game found the Deacons trying to score and Coach Collins using more substitutes. Only once was Carolina threatened. Captain Johnny Cox found his stride and pulled off several nice runs to put the Deacons in scoring distance. Zimmerman blocked Carolina's attempted punt and Cox pulled off a twenty-yard run to put the Deacons near the Carolina goal. Two passes fell into harmless territory just as the game ended.

Cox was the bright light on the offense for the Deacons, while Newsome did good work on the defense. Nash, Ward, Spaulding, Wyrick, Erickson and Magner looked good behind the Carolina line. Lipscomb played nicely at center.

Lineup:

Carolina		Wake Forest
Holt	l. e.	Quillen
Koenig	l. t.	Webb
Farris (C)	l. g.	Levine
Lipscomb	c.	Parker
Rowe	r. g.	Hicks
Adkins	r. t.	Williams
Fenner	r. e.	Gregson
Wyrick	qb.	Benton
Nash	r. hb.	Newsome
Ward	l. hb.	Childs
Spaulding	fb.	Dupre

Summary:

Substitutions: (Carolina): Crew, Nelson, Tabb, McConnell, Thompson, Hutchinson, McIver, Kerr, Gilreath, Fysal, Eskew, Harper, Gregory, Dortch, Brown, Parsley, Morris, Grinstaff, Branch, Jackson, Slusser, Erickson, Redfern, House, Harden, Houston, Magner; (Wake Forest) Brogden, Edwards, Hamrick, Benton, Edward, W., Placa, Zimmerman, Edwards, R., Hutchins, Mills, Bunn, Cox, Hipps, Bell. Touchdowns: Ward 2, Nash, Spaulding, Erickson, Slusser, Branch. Points after touchdown: Spaulding 4, House, Magner.

The United States Naval Academy was originally located in the town of Newport, R. I.

Brazil orange growers, seeking new markets, will wrap and grade their oranges according to quality.

Statistics

Yardage gained through the line: Carolina - 287; Wake Forest - 29.

Yardage gained around ends: Carolina - 45; Wake Forest - 10

Passes: Carolina - 7 out of 15; Wake Forest - 6 out of 12.

Yardage gained on passes: Carolina - 138; Wake Forest - 74.

Passes intercepted: Carolina - 2; Wake Forest - 1

Penalties: Carolina - 55; Wake Forest - 15.

Average distance punts: Carolina - 41; Wake Forest - 32.

Distance punts returned: Carolina - 63; Wake Forest - 24.

First downs: Carolina - 22; Wake Forest - 5.

WOLFPACK READY FOR WASHINGTON AND LEE FRIDAY

Strength of State Team Unknown; First Game Will Be Real Test for Tebell.

The State college Wolfpack will open the season with the Generals of Washington and Lee Friday, October 4. The game was moved up from Saturday to avoid a conflict with the dedication of the new stadium at Duke university.

Barring unforeseen developments in the way of injuries during the next week, the Pack, according to the coaches, will be ready for the whistle. Much has been accomplished since the squad reported on September 2, and the Tech staff now has a pretty fair line on the men who will bear the burden this year.

For the most part it will be a band of young wolves which will be thrown against the Generals. Tebell is not blessed this fall with a wealth of seasoned veterans. No one knows what the team will do in the white-hot fire of intercollegiate competition. This much is certain. Washington and Lee will provide a real test, and there are no soft spots in the remainder of the schedule.

A Tech victory over the Generals would go a long way to establishing the local collegians in the minds of the public. There is no denying the fact that there is a widespread belief that the Pack will not be so "hot" this fall. State lost a lot of men, it is true, and the sophomores coming up did not turn in a very impressive freshman record, but the varsity squad has taken its preliminary training mighty seriously. The sprinkling of veterans is expected to have a steadying influence of the new men. Every member of the squad is brimful of pep and ginger. There will be a lot of fight in Tebell's youngsters, and a team with the spirit is bound to go far.

Last year Washington and Lee gave the Wolfpack its worst defeat of the year, rolling up a score of 38 to 6 in the Lexington battle. The encounter next week at Riddick field, according to close observers, will be a different story.

The newest Detroit shortstop, Bill Akers, bought from Beaumont, cost $10,000. The Tigers have had numerous shortstops since last spring. He played in the Piedmont several seasons.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

LINOIL
For Toe Itch
Sutton's Drug Store

Davidson Director Says Proselytism Hurting Athletics

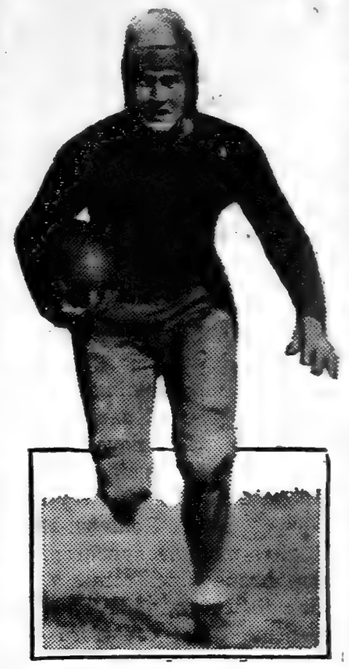
Concord, Sept. 28.—Proselytism of athletics in present day colleges is a major evil which must be corrected if the various institutions are to maintain cordial and unsullied relations, Captain Pritchett, director of athletics at Davidson college, said in an address before members of the Concord Rotary club Wednesday.

"When rival colleges begin putting pressure on promising young athletes, whether it be financial or otherwise, they are certain to engender a feeling of distrust in other schools that does not make for continued cordial feeling. When a star football player leaves one campus for another, or when they register in one school and then enroll in another they are not helping the future of the sport. They are, rather, furnishing the basis for ill-feeling that should not have a part in the relationships between schools," said Captain Pritchett.

The difference in scholastic standards at college is another evil that must be corrected if the future of athletics would be assured, the speaker declared. It is hardly fair, he pointed out, for a numbskull to be able to play on an athletic team at one institution whereas, if he were at another, he would not be able to even stay in school.

Alumni are the most influential factors in determining the ethical standard of a school, Captain Pritchett declared. They can, by their attitude and actions, do much to determine what kind of athletic standards are to be maintained, he said.

Carrboro Road to be Oiled Next Month



Oiling of the 11-mile stretch of road from Carrboro to the Alamance county line will be begun Monday, October 14, it was announced yesterday morning at the Durham office of the state highway commission.

About seven weeks will be required to complete the project, D. M. Rhea, engineer, stated. The road will be ready for travel by the time of the Thanksgiving game at Chapel Hill, it was said.

The Carrboro road is one of the main projects underway by the highway corps in this district at present.

Colleges and universities in the United States represent an investment of more than two billion dollars.

Strud Nash

Beginning his second year as a varsity back, Strud Nash shows promise of again being the most consistent back on the Tar Heel team.

HENDERSON HAS NOTE FROM SHAW

Irish Playwright Pens Note Along Margins of Book, 'Man and Superman.'

Archibald Henderson, head of the mathematics department and noted critic and biographer of George Bernard Shaw, told yesterday of an amusing and interesting message he had received from the renowned Irish playwright.

Dr. Henderson had published simultaneously in England and America, another of his critical essays entitled "George Bernard Shaw—Dramatist." Shortly after the publication of the book, Dr. Henderson received a copy of it in which the author of "Man and Superman" had written a note to him of about five hundred words. The entire letter was penned along the margins of the book. And upon the outside cover, Shaw had inscribed a message, commencing "My dear Henderson," and advising him to sell the annotated book and use the proceeds of the sale for his daughter's dowry.

Shaw had in mind, no doubt, the fabulous sums that his manuscripts had secured at the auctions held in London last year. Gabriel Wells, well-known New York manuscript and autograph collector, paid the large sum of $6,200 for one or two acts of Shaw's lesser-known works.

Yesterday's Football Scores

Carolina	48	Wake Forest	0
Duke	20	Mercer	6
Clemson	22	Davidson	0
Alabama	48	Miss. College	0
Dartmouth	67	Norwich	0
Army	26	Boston U.	0
W. and L.	33	Lynchburg	0
Tulane	35	La. Normal	0
Oglethorpe	13	George	7
Maryland	34	Wash. Col.	7
Virginia	7	Randolph-Macon	6

Wake Forest Has Music Department

W. C. Troxell, Former University Man, is Instructor.

Wake Forest, Sept. 28.—For the first time in the history of the institution music will be introduced this fall into the curriculum of Wake Forest college under the direction of W. C. Troxell, former trainer of the University of North Carolina glee club. Professor Troxell will have charge of the glee club and the band, and in addition will give individual instruction in voice and instrumental music. Many supporters of the college have expressed gratification at the introduction of this course which has hitherto not appeared in the program of studies.

In the education department, J. L. Memory, Jr., has returned from Columbia university where last year he was a graduate fellow of the general education board and did work leading to the doctor of philosophy degree. For the past four years Professor Memory has been connected with the state department of public instruction as inspector of high schools.

After spending a year studying at the University of Toulouse, France, C. A. Seibert, M. A., of Williams college, comes to Wake Forest as instructor in French.

A. L. Aycock, of the English department, attended Harvard university last summer, taking a course in art appreciation. He went through the courtesy of the Carnegie corporation of New York city as a representative of Wake Forest. The college was given a supply of equipment to be used in connection with a course in art appreciation which Mr. Aycock is giving this semester.

With the new men and courses now given on the campus and a student body about 700 strong, Wake Forest enters upon its 96th session with every prospect for a successful year.

Where? — In Tar Heel Ads.

5 TRIUMPHS 5 — CAROLINA THEATRE — 5 TRIUMPHS 5

MONDAY
ERNEST TORRENCE
DOROTHY SEBASTINE
—in—
"The Unholy Night"
A creepy, fantastic drama of ghosts and unseen murder.

It is a rare occasion for any theatre to present five such outstanding hits in one week—A fact of which the Carolina management is proud! Here's five real pictures!

TUESDAY
JEANNE EAGLES
—in—
"Jealousy"
A powerful love drama of clashing passions. All talking.

WEDNESDAY—THURSDAY
JOAN CRAWFORD — DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS
—in—
"Our Modern Maidens"
Jazz-mad youth meeting life in moments of flaming drama!
Even better than "Our Dancing Daughters"

FRIDAY
PATSY RUTH MILLER
JACK MULHALL
—in—
"Twin Beds"

a PUBLIX SAENGER THEATRE

SATURDAY
EDWARD EVERETT HORTON
—in—
"The Hottentot"
Funniest Racing Story Ever Filmed!

Comprehensive Examinations Will Be Given Seniors for A. B. and Commerce Degrees

Deans Carroll and Hibbard Issue Notices that Examinations Will be Given in Major Departments Before Degrees are Awarded.

Another cause for worry by the seniors in the school of commerce and the college of liberal arts is brought to mind by a circular issued by Deans Carroll and Hibbard which states that all graduating students in these two schools must pass a comprehensive examination in their major study before degrees will be conferred.

The regulation calling for these comprehensive examinations was passed by the general faculty on June 2, 1928 and reads as follows:

Before receiving his degree each senior in the College of Liberal Arts and the School of Commerce shall be required to pass to the satisfaction of his major department an examination in the field of his major study. Such comprehensive examinations shall be offered to students only once in any quarter. This rule will be effective with the class receiving its degrees in June, 1930.

Under this statement of the ruling appears the following discussion:

I. Departmental Responsibility: Each department shall have control over its own examinations, subjects only to uniform requirements as to the length of the examinations and the time of their being given.

II. Nature of the Examinations: It is suggested that the written examination be on a few general questions designed to test the comprehensiveness of the student's knowledge and the inter-relation of parts rather than to test his detailed knowledge of facts. It should be designed to demand three hours of writing time.

III. Time of Examination: In view of the fact that the spring quarter is taken up with a press of many interests, it is understood that the winter quarter—or that quarter preceding the one in which the requirements for the degree would normally be completed—will be used for this examination. Students, however, should not be allowed to take this examination until they have satisfactorily completed at least five courses toward their major. Re-examinations may be allowed once each quarter until three failures have been reported. At that time the student's degree shall be withheld.

Each department will announce to its major students the time set for these examinations and students will be held responsible for meeting these obligations at the time appointed.

Playmakers Sell Many Tickets

Thursday morning 650 season tickets were placed on sale by the Carolina Playmakers, and an additional 150 were placed on sale Friday, bringing the total up to 800. Saturday morning at 11:00 o'clock over 700 of the tickets had been sold, and less than 195 more tickets are now available.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

Amusements

Parlor Car Party Held by Joan Crawford

You can talk about ritzy palaces and gorgeous open air pavilions as places to hold whoopee jubilees, but Joan Crawford sets a new mark in her latest picture by holding a party in a specially built parlor car.

Although the novel "ballroom" was constructed merely for a sequence in "Our Modern Maidens," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's ultra-modern synchronized screen drama which comes Wednesday to the Carolina Theatre, presenting Miss Crawford for the first time as a full-fledged star, it will undoubtedly create a sensation among the younger generation who desire the latest in party surroundings. It is designed and patterned after a regular private parlor car, with the exception of the interior, which is an exact duplicate of that owned by W. K. Kellogg, famous breakfast-food king.

The woodwork is done in solid mahogany with various colored wood inlays used throughout as decorations. Futuristic furniture with unique all-leather upholstering, specially designed and equipped refrigerators and refreshment pantries, and a spacious dance floor are just some of the attractions to be seen on board this special "party parlor car."

The car was constructed in the Los Angeles railway terminal and piloted to the studio where it was switched into one of the huge stages on a special side track. Special steam appliances gave it locomotion in the studio. A radio and electric phonograph compartment also adorns the spacious interior.

Among those who take part in the frolic and who appear in the cast are Rod La Rocque, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Anita Page, Edward Nugent, Josephine Dunn and Albert Gran. Josephine Lovett, author of "Our Dancing Daughters," is responsible for the story, which was directed by Jack Conway.

FAMOUS OPERA STARS IN MYSTERY PICTURE

Famous figures in Gilbert and Sullivan operas in their palmy days are today figuring in just the opposite of those Savoyard shows—for they are in the screen's most vivid mystery thriller of the year, "The Unholy Night," an all-talking production which comes Monday to the Carolina Theatre.

In the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer filmization of the Ben Hecht murder mystery are Ernest Torrence, who began his career under Gilbert and Sullivan in the Savoy in London; Lionel Belmore, with Sir Herbert Tree at the same time and later in comic opera; Claude Fleming, Syddey Jarvis and Richard Tucker, all of whom once sang on the stage.

Roland Young, Dorothy Sebastian, Natalie Moorhead, and others of note are in the cast of this vivid London mystery of murder, ghosts and mental suggestion.

University To Take Active Part in N. C. Home-Coming Week

The University is planning to take an active part in the state-wide celebration of home-coming week to be held in October, when all native sons and daughters are invited to return and get better acquainted with the people and conditions they used to know.

The University will begin its part in the State-wide celebration on Saturday, October 19. Dedication of the handsome new library will take place at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, with a speaker of national prominence to give the featured address. The Carolina-Georgia football game at 2:30 o'clock will be followed immediately by a reception to the University's guests at the new library; and in the evening the University's guests will be entertained with a special performance by the Carolina Playmakers, nationally known folk drama group.

The program the next day, Sunday, will be featured by Union services for all denominations in a general universty convocation, at which Dean Shailer Mathews of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago will preach.

Not long ago, an aviator was doing well if he stayed up only a few hours, but now you almost have to shoot one to get him down.—Kay Features.

FIRST SUPPLEMENT APPEARS OCTOBER 6

(Continued from page one)

Sunday, the dead line for copy being Monday, September 30, and thereafter a week preceeding publication. The material this year will be along the same line as that of last year with the exception of a few new departments, the most notable of these additions being a larger department of reviews of publications and books.

Work on the Yackety-Yack will begin this week, according to Travis Brown, with a sufficient and efficient staff. Other news concerning the annual will be published at a later date. The first copy of the Buccaneer will very probably appear just before the Georgia football game, although it was scheduled to appear October 20.

This will be the "Pig-Skin" number devoted to comic football topics in the main, replacing the "Freshman" number which in the past years has been the first published. The cover, done in very bright colors, is already on press. The picture is of a rather large pig, tears streaming from his eyes, a hazy building being seen in the background lettered "Football Factory." On first glance all of this is not taken in, but the idea conveyed is that the pig anticipates removal of his hide for collegiate grid-iron warfare. Following this first number will come the "Aviation" number, modernly replacing the "Travel" number, the "Xmas" number, the "Scotch" number, the "Girls" number, and several more not as yet planned. Each of these will be of the same length as last year, approximately 30 pages, and a couple of humorous novels to be run. More interest is being shown in the work this year than ever before, with approximately 20 men trying for the art staff and 10 for the editorial staff. The work of each member of the art staff must be passing fair, according to Editor Edson.

Drawings are to be done with India ink on thick drawing paper. Several humorous copy writers are needed. The staff will probably be composed of six editorial and ten art men, Editor Edson states. The deadline for copy is the first of the month during which the number will appear, and the deadline for distribution on the campus is the 20th of each month.

The Publications Union Board, which controls all student publications here, will hold its second meeting of the year this week. Ray Farris has appointed Harry Galland, of Brooklyn, as the third student member of the board, replacing B. Moore Parker, who resigned to become business manager of the Yackety-Yack.

MENCKEN'S AMERICAN MERCURY PRAISES THE UNIVERSITY PRESS

(Continued from page one)

Crawford that while only 3 percent of the nation's books are published by them, they provide 15 percent of the volumes which the Institute of Graphic Arts uses for its annual display. It is his further observation that nearly all of the books published by the universities are well done from the standpoint of typography and binding.

This point is equally correct with respect to the North Carolina publications. They are, everyone, masterpieces of the printer's art. This is especially true of the special editions of prominent books which are printed on superior paper and bound in unusual quality and style.

In his conclusion, in which he says that the university presses are pioneers in a field which commercial publishers will soon cultivate, the author of the article offers as another example the experiences of Dr. Odum, who had his first works in Negro folk-lore published through the university press. Afterwards, Mr. Crawford says, "his later work has had a large sale through commercial publishers.

So one of the University's best known institutions receives favorable comment in America's most famous review.

DEPARTMENTAL LIBRARIES IN NEW BUILDING

(Continued from page one)

and departments are as follows:

General library 8:15 a. m.—10:30 p. m. Sundays, 2 p. m.-5 p. m.

School of commerce library: 8:30 a. m.-12:30; 2:00-5:00; 7:00-9:00 p. m.

Rural social economics: 9:00 a. m.-1:15; 2:15-6:00 p. m.

School of education library: 8:30 a. m.-1:00; 2:00-6:00; 6:30-10:00 p. m.; Saturday—8:30 a. m.-1:00; 2:00-5:30 p. m.

STATIONERY

Personal printed and embossed stationery at reduced prices.
Ask your dormitory store room clerk for samples.

ARTCROFT PRESS
W. C. Midford, Mgr.

Home-Made Sandwiches

Sutton's Drug Store

Victor, Columbia & Brunswick Records

University Book and Stationery Co.
Next To Sutton's Drug Store

A Local Club Rate

of

$5.00

FOR ALL

University Publications

The Daily Tar Heel

The Carolina Magazine

The Buccaneer

The Yackety Yack

MAIL CHECKS NOW

Carolina Publications Union

Langrock Fine Clothes

PRITCHARD-PATTERSON, Inc.
"University Outfitters"

Woman's Association Meeting
TODAY — 4:30
GERRARD HALL

The Daily Tar Heel

Wrestler's Meeting
TODAY — 4:00
TIN CAN

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1929 | NUMBER 10

Chase Makes Appeal to Alumni In Effort to Increase Funds

State Appropriations Insufficient to Provide for Emergencies; Plan for Annual Giving Sought.

Announcement of a statewide effort to raise funds from among the alumni to supplement state appropriations for the support of the university, which was made last Sunday night by President Harry W. Chase, has been given wide publicity in the press all over the state.

The effort, Dr. Chase's announcement stated, will be directed toward stimulating a systematic plan of annual giving.

The undertaking, designed as the Alumni Loyalty Fund and directed and supervised by a loyalty fund council of 12 alumni, concerns itself with two objectives, the announcement stated. In the first place, it seeks large gifts for special equipment and endowments and, secondly, many smaller gifts from many individuals. It is planned that these gifts, particularly the smaller ones, shall build up flexible reserve funds to provide for emergency maintenance purposes and to supplement income from the state.

It is the second of the two objectives which will concern the loyalty fund council in the immediate future. A plan is now worked out whereby all University alumni are to be asked to give something to their alma mater every year, much after the fashion of their annual gifts to their church, their club, and other philanthropies. It was pointed out by Dr. Chase that such a plan will not work a hardship on any alumnus, yet these combined gifts, even though not large, will aggregate a total which will materially strengthen the university in its service to the educational life of the state.

Dr. Chase's announcement said that complete details as to procedure of the appeal would be announced within a very few days.

Dr. Chase emphasized the fact that the alumni loyalty fund will not become the chief support of the university, but

(Continued on page four)

ALUMNI DIRECTORS MEET IN SESSION

Plans Made for Meeting of General Assembly of Alumni Association.

The board of directors of the general alumni association met at the Carolina inn Saturday, at which time plans were made for the general assembly of the alumni association, which will hold its first meeting of the 1929-1930 session in Chapel Hill on November 27 and 28.

The president of the association, W. T. Shore of Charlotte, presided at the meeting Saturday. Business that had not been completed during the past year was settled, and plans for the coming year were discussed.

The members of the board of directors of the association who were present at this meeting were: President Shore, Vice-President J. F. Patterson of New Bern, Past President A. B. Andrews of Raleigh, John Kerr, Jr., of Rocky Mount; R. Grady Rankin of Gastonia, L. T. Hartsell, Jr., of Concord, R. A. Spaugh, Jr., of Winston-Salem, T. A. DeVane of Fayetteville, Thomas J. Pearsall of Rocky Mount, and Henry M. London of Raleigh.

Entertainment Tickets

Season tickets for the entertainment committee will go on sale October first in the business office. $3.00 each.

ADDISON HIBBARD,
Chairman.

DR. CARL TAYLOR DELIVERS SERMON

Dr. Carl C. Taylor, dean of the graduate school of State college, preached the sermon Sunday morning at 11 at the United church (Christian Congregational) on Cameron avenue.

Dr. Taylor, whose subject was "Religious Certitude in an Age of Doubt," chose as his text John 8:21-32. The verse that he preached on was "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8:32).

"Religion," said Dr. Taylor, "is a reality—something that really exists in the lives of men, and any one who denies it or disregards it is blind to the world in which he lives. The function of religion," continued Dr. Taylor, "is to teach persons to understand life, and to help them set up ultimate goals for their life."

In closing Dr. Taylor said, "Doubt is the first step toward real certitude, for this doubt will lead to anxiety and anxiety will lead to seeking for the truth. Many men, some calling themselves Christians, do not test Jesus and test his way of life. They are certain of him. They fail to test his way of life and to believe in some of his great truths."

DIALECTIC SENATE TO MEET TONIGHT

The second regular session of the Dialectic Senate will convene tonight at 7:15 in the Di hall, New West building. The major portion of the meeting will be given over to the initiation of new members.

After the initiation ceremonies have been completed the hall will be thrown open to suggestions and discussions by all members—both old and new.

President Williams urges that a large number of bills and resolutions be put on the calendar for discussion, in order to enliven future meetings. In accordance with custom, the various standing committees of the senate will be appointed tonight.

Chapel Hill Alumni Club to Meet Friday

Carl T. Durham, president of the Chapel Hill alumni club, announces a meeting of the club Friday evening, October 4, at 8:30 at Smith building. Alumni of the university living in Chapel Hill are invited to attend. Those members of the faculty who are not alumni of the university are invited as guests of the club.

Dr. Chase will be the principal speaker at the meeting, and except for a short business meeting, the principal part of the evening's program will be of a social nature. There will be no admission fee for the affair.

According to the census of 1920 nearly 90 per cent. of the women of the United States have been married.

DEBATE COUNCIL TO HOLD 9 MEETS

President Williams Says Interest in Speaking Reviving at University.

(By J. C. Williams)

All indications arising from present forensic conditions at the University of North Carolina point to a successful season in that phase of extra-curricular activity.

Greater interest is being shown in intercollegiate debating than usual. Fifty-nine candidates, including two co-eds, reported for membership in the debate squad at the organization meeting held Thursday night in 201 Murphey. This represents a twenty-five per cent. increase in membership over last year's squad. Eight of the fifty-nine have represented the University in other years and are wearers of the gold monogram. Among the newcomers are several with debating records behind them which are worthy of consideration. The winners of the Aycock memorial cup last year are members of the squad. Three ex-Mars Hill debaters reported for the organization meeting, and there are three more on the Hill who are expected to join later. In addition to these, there are a numbed of former high school speakers who, although they did not win the coveted Aycock cup, have had considerable experience. The two co-eds also participated in the forensic game before coming to Carolina. With the present squad enrolment exceeding even the fondest expectations, competition for places on the various teams this season is expected to be keen. Approximately fifteen debaters will be used in the course of the collegiate year.

The first debate of the year is expected to be a dual contest with N. C. C. W., or a triangular affair including N. C. State College. Such a proposition has already been presented to the Speaker's Club of N. C. C. W., and that organization has notified the Debate Council of the University that the suggestion has met its hearty approval. The proposition now awaits the approval of Dr. Foust, president of the college. At the next meeting of the debate squad, Thursday night at 7:30 in 201 Murphey, something definite about the matter will be known,

(Continued on last page)

ORCHESTRA FACES SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Rehearsal to Be Held Tonight in Person Hall.

The university orchestra will meet for organization and rehearsal tonight at 7 o'clock in Person hall. Professor T. S. McCorkle, director of the orchestra, invites all students and faculty members who have had experience in playing orchestral instruments to join the organization.

In the past the orchestra personnel has been composed of about equal division of faculty members and students. This year the indications are that the students will outnumber the faculty. The organization should be much larger this year than ever before, in view of the new material that has presented itself to the director. The orchestra has approached the proportions of the little symphony in past seasons, but there has always been a shortage of strings.

As in the past, the organization will study various standard symphonies, overtures, and concert pieces from the best field of orchestral literature. It appears also that for the first time in the history of the organization, it will be possible to arrange a concert tour away from Chapel Hill. Many invitations have come to the orchestra from time to time, but they have had to be declined. It is practically certain, though, that certain arrangements can be accepted this season.

The orchestra last year numbered 38 players. It is hoped that the number this year will be 50 or 60. The instrumentation has been almost entirely completed, making possible the playing of the best type of symphonic music.

2615 Students Here For Opening Quarter

That the registration of students this fall may surpass the record of 2631 made in 1927 was the hope voiced yesterday by Dr. Thomas J. Wilson, registrar. By 11 o'clock 2614 students had registered, 110 more than last fall, and 14 short of the record.

The registration in the graduate school was 210, the largest in the history of the university.

Spain produced more than 7,000,000 tons of coal in the last 12 months.

Federation of Women's Clubs

PROGRAM FOR TODAY

All business sessions to be held at the Carolina Inn

11:00 A. M.	Meeting of Executive Board, at Mrs. R. D. W. Connor's home.
1:00 P. M.	Luncheon, given by Mrs. R. D. W. Connor for the Executive Board and Board of Trustees.
2:30	Meeting of Board of Trustees, at Mrs. Connor's.
2:30	Conference of District Presidents, Mrs. J. M. Hobgood presiding; North Parlor, Carolina Inn.
2:30	Conference Department Chairmen, South Parlor, Carolina Inn.
4:00	Registration of Delegates, Carolina Inn.
4:00	Trip around Campus, Courtesy of Community Club.
	Tea in Extension Library, Courtesy of Miss Nellie Roberson.

Law and Commerce Faculties Undergo a Number of Changes

Vacancies Filled by New Men; Several Added to Staffs.

Several changes were made this year in the faculty of the law and commerce schools. The majority of the new men are replacements to fill the vacancies caused by resignations or leaves of absence, and several new men added.

R. J. M. Hobbs, A. B., LL. B., succeeds R. A. McPheeters as professor of business law. Mr. Hobbs has been a practicing attorney in Greensboro and Gastonia for a period of ten or twelve years. He completed the law course at Columbia university law school under the deanship of Justice Harlan F. Stone of the United States supreme court. Mr. McPheeters has accepted a position as assistant trust officer with the Wachovia Bank & Trust company of Winston-Salem.

Professor Earl D. Strong, head of the department of economics and commerce at Grinnell college, Iowa, takes the place of Professor John B. Woosley, who is on leave this year at Chicago uinversity doing research work on bank taxation.

Professor V. E. Levin succeeds Professor H. A. Haring. Mr. Levin has been professor of economics at Simmons college, Boston. Dr. Haring goes to Lehigh university as associate professor of marketing.

R. S. Winslow has been appointed instructor in economics to succeed Professor Cutler, who goes to Columbia university as a member of the department of economics. Mr. Winslow comes to the university from the university of Illinois where he has been instructor in economics.

H. L. Macon has been appointed instructor in economics. Mr. Macon has been a graduate student and research assistant in

(Continued on last page)

Yackety Yack Notice

There will be a meeting of the Yackety Yack business staff tonight at 9:00 o'clock. All old and new members please be present.

B. Moore Parker
Business Manager

HISTORY STUDENT FAINTS ON CLASS

(By Milt Wood)

It might have been the humidity, it might have been from natural causes, but many believe that the term assignment was to blame.

At any rate, after Professor Frank Graham had made the term assignment including a 2,000-word thesis and 100 pages of collateral reading per week, B. W. Roberts, junior, fainted and was revived only after several minutes yesterday morning.

Fellow students in the class carried Roberts out of the room to an adjoining office and administered first aid until a physician reached the spot. He was later taken to the infirmary where he is reported to be weak but recovering.

Two physicians were summoned by telephone and students were sent out on the campus to look for others, so that four doctors appeared on the scene at the same time.

Roberts fainted at 11:12 a. m., shortly after the class in history 7 had taken up. Professor Graham had just finished outlining on the blackboard what he expected students to do during the term, when Roberts fell over on his left side, his arms stiffened, and his face went pale. It was at first believed that he had suffered a heart attack.

Other students in the class although not visibly affected by the assignment of work outlined by Professor Graham, fared better than Roberts. The class was not resumed during the period.

STUDENTS SLOW TO REDEEM Y PLEDGES

With Y. M. C. A. pledges collected from only half the student body, Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., yesterday morning was considering sending boys through the dormitories to collect pledges.

The number of men coming to the business office in South building has been growing smaller each day, until yesterday only one man appeared during the whole morning. Mr. Comer wishes to call the attention of the campus to this failure to redeem pledges made at registration, which is probably due entirely to neglect.

The amount collected up to 12 o'clock yesterday was approximately $1,200.

Phi Assembly Plans Smoker for Tonight

The second meeting for this quarter of the Phi society will be held in the regular meeting place tonight at 7:15 o'clock. At this time all new men and old men desirous of joining the society are urged to be present, as the doors of the society will be open for the receiving of new members. Immediately after the meeting there will be a smoker for both the old and new members of the society.

Farris Announces Pending Election

In chapel Monday morning the matter of electing a cheerleader was called to the attention of the student body by President Ray Farris.

Farris announced that nominations for the office of cheerleader would be held in chapel Tuesday morning and that election would take place on Wednesday. He added also that the election would be by ballot, and not by mass vote as previous announcements had stated.

In a short statement in chapel Farris asked that the students consider the qualifications of each nominee and the endeavor to elect the most able man. Commenting later, he said, "I hope very much that the student body will come out and vote in the election of a cheerleader. The position is one of the most important on the campus."

In order to acquaint the student body with some of the men interested in the office of cheerleader, Farris called to the platform those students who assisted in leading the cheering Saturday. They are as follows: Ashley Penn, George Biggs, Lloyd Bass, Allen Crowsen, Paul Carter, Sam Glaberson, George Brown and Jack Barret.

Farris then gave these men an opportunity to show their resourcefulness and ability by turning the remainder of the chapel exercise over to them.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon — J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

Tuesday, October 1, 1929

A Dangerous Pastime

A serious outbreak of hazing is reported to be sweeping over the campus, especially in the dormitories which comprise the two quadrangles. It is very probable that the reports are greatly exaggerated, but they evidently have some foundation.

Periodically a violent wave of freshman baiting occurs here during the first three or four weeks of the fall term. Every two or three years the sophomores and seniors and even a few juniors and seniors inaugurate a reign of terror which results almost invariably in the suspension of a few students.

Laws are in force in this state making it a criminal offense to participate in any form of hazing at the university. Under these laws, a person who witnesses an act of hazing and fails to report it is liable to prosecution. But even these drastic laws have not succeeded in eliminating the practice altogether.

Hazing, if it is restricted to good-natured horseplay, is altogether harmless and in some ways rather valuable. In many cases it gives the freshmen a sense of being made a part of the college, of being truly initiated into college life. A few freshmen actually enjoy the performance. But all of us have a streak of atavism in our make-up, and in the excitement attendant upon a "hazing party" it is likely to become dominant. Frequently what started out to be a harmless session of friendly horse play degenerates into a brutal, disgusting display of barbarism.

At any rate, hazing is a decidedly dangerous pastime, both for the freshman and for the upperclassmen who participate in it. Prospective hazers would do well to reflect upon the serious injuries that sometimes result from "learning the frosh their places." It is but a step from harmless horseplay to vicious brutality. The abrupt and disgraceful termination of their college careers has been the price paid by many students for participation in a brief hazing expedition.

Scientific Forensics

In the good old days when the Di and the Phi held sway over the campus, debating was popular and perhaps the most glorious of extra-curricula activities. Every student was either a senator or an assemblyman. Every inter-collegiate debate and every inter-society combat were events of great celebration among Carolina collegians. Those were the days when the gentle art of oratory wes foremost and—might we say—flowery.

But times have changed, and the orator, pure and simple, along with his puns and dramatic gestures, has passed from the scene. Into his place has stepped a mightier figure, one who is more fitted for the scientific world of fact and application, the scientifically trained spokesman. He is a necessary person in all groups whose points are to be gained. He is as necessary in the world of business as in the realms of politics and the professions. In brief, he is one whom the college man, in order to be educated more fully, should know intimately.

It seems that the Debate Council has recognized the importance of expert training of debaters in a progressive debating policy. It was largely through the efforts of the council, Professor George McKie, and others, that a debate squad and class were innovated here last fall. So great was the improvement in the quality of debating last year, that it was decided to repeat the course this year. It is understood that the class and squad are now permanent features.

This new program will no doubt be a matter of gradual improvement in campus forensics. But before it can be really successful it must have the support of the students. Many have already signified interest, but there are scores of others who should be actively identified with the program. If scientific debating is ever to have a place on the campus, now is the period, its infancy, when it requires most nourishment. It is to be hoped that the time is not far off when a course in debating will be necessary for college graduation.

—B. M.

Scholarship.

A democratic society which is interpenetrated by scholarship approaches the ideal of human social organization. The American people have yet a long way to go before they even comprehend to the full the problems and ideals of democracy, much less solve the one and reach the other. The disinterestedness of the scholar, the disciplined character of his intelligence, his openness of mind, his willingness to learn, and his capacity to bring new happenings to the test of long experience and of classic standards of excellence, are a richer possession than any gold mine or oil field or industrial establishment, however huge and profitable.

Followers of the economic theory of the interpretation of human history conveniently overlook the debasing and demoralizing influence of unrelieved prosperity and of that contentment which leads to self-satisfaction and cynical unconcern for the needs and longings of others. Nothing so blinds the eyes to a great principle as a bulging pocketbook. For all this the scholar and his career provide the antidote. He goes his way quietly, patiently, effectively, courageously, pouring into the steaming cauldron of public opinion those new elements and those old influences which he believes will help it to become more palatable and more nourishing. He is less concerned with political and social forms than with the substance which underlies and conditions them.—Nicholas Murray Butler.

Pajamas will not be popular as a street costume for men until provided with pockets for a watch, knife, key-ring, fountain pen, pencil, billfold, the twelve-ride railroad ticket, the driver's license, and the little red memorandum book stuffed with newspaper clippings.—Boston Transcript.

Merely Meandering

by john mebane

Somebody said to us the other day: "why don't you write one of those columns like you used to write? Don't write stuff over people's heads." Well, we've never written anything over anybody's head—we can't reach that high. But we told him that we would try to please him—that we would be naturally silly for an entire column.

Rain again. Every time it rains, some one steals our raincoat. Some people are slicker than we think.

Say, did you hear that guy—the one in the blue and white uniform—at the game Saturday tell us that we were a bunch of stupid eggplants? Well, we may have been eggplants, but we weren't potted!

No one can call us an eggplant and get away with it—unless they happen to be as big as he was.

When we grow up we'll probably be hard-boiled eggs. But hardboiled or stewed, what difference? Anyway, he said we were stewpid.

Which reminds us. Have you ever read that play called "She Stewpid to Conquer"? (Don't yell "rotten" yet; remember we're still egg plants.)

Headline in Daily Tar Heel:

"ABBOTT ISSUES CALL FOR 1930 WRESTLERS."

Wonder why he doesn't call for 2800 and have the entire student body throwing each other about?

We'd go out; we used to throw rocks.

But boxing is really our calling. When we were in the Boy Scouts, we used to box the compass.

We got pretty scared the other day. We went down to see the stiff room in the medicine building, having as our ambitious intention to watch aspiring young doctors dig into some of the corpses. Well, we got somehow into a large room where everything was very quiet and solemn. Then, like a burst of thunder out of a clear sky, or vice versa, we heard in the next room the rattling of bones! We were frightened just enough to be extremely curious; so we peeped through the keyhole of the door. Our fears were allayed—in the next room a crap game was in progress.

And we didn't make any bones about that.

Honest, we can't think of anything funny—that crack about out slicker is too true.

When any one has ambitions to write and is unable to do so, one always turns to poetry.

TROUBLE

I like the way you tilt your chin,
I like the way you smile,
I like to sit and watch you grin—
It makes my life worth while!

I like the way you fix your hair,
I like your deep blue eyes,
I like that velvet dress you wear;
Say, baby, it's a prize!

I like your little diamond ring,
I like your stately poise;
But I object to just one thing:
You know too many boys!

It is easy to explain the report that telephone calls from the United States to Europe have fallen off during the summer months. The only Americans who can afford them are already in Europe.—Richmond News-Leader.

GILFOND TELLS OF STUDENT R. O. T. C.

Washington Journalist Describes Activities of Student Corps in New Republic.

Following a critical account of other branches of the reserve army, Duff Gilfond, a Washington journalist, describes the work of the students R. O. T. C. in this week's New Republic. Units are now installed in 130 colleges and in the high schools of 55 cities, says Mr. Gilfond, with compulsory service in 85 of the colleges and 20 of the high school systems. In all 127,453 students are registered, and nearly 12,000 more high school students trained in the use of firearms.

The costs of at least one unit amount to more than a quarter of a million dollars a year, with permanent equipment worth more than half a million. The Yale faculty has 19 officers to train its R. O. T. C. unit, the faculty of Cornell 42, and that of Illinois 65.

The author criticizes the wording of certain college catalogues in announcing their military courses, and scores the methods used to attract student registrations, especially the appointment of girls as "honorary colonels."

He quotes from a letter by the national secretary of reserve officers, instructing members to report in advance to national headquarters the visit of any liberal speakers to schools which have military training.

DAVIDSON FRATERNITY GETS CUP FOR HIGH SCHOLASTIC AVERAGE

Davidson, Sept. 30.—(Special)—The Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity at Davidson college has been awarded the James C. Harper loving cup for the coming year, having made the highest average of any of the nine national fraternities located at this institution. The members of this chapter averaged an even 87 per cent. for the two semesters of 1928-1929. Sigma Alpha Epsilon closely followed with 86.75 per cent.

Other national fraternities and their averages are Theta Upsilon Omega, 85.75; Phi Delta Theta, 85.25; Beta Theta Pi, 85.20; Kappa Alpha, 86.15; Pi Kappa Phi, 83.30; Phi Gamma Delta, 82.85. The Pyramid club, a local fraternity, but ineligible for this competition, averaged 85.10. Alpha Omega another local was organized during the past year, but was not included in the averaging.

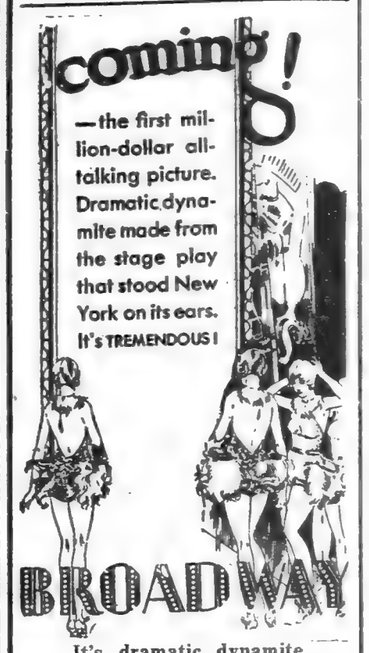
The James C. Harper loving cup was given by James C. Harper, of the class of 1915, in honor of his father and grandfather, and is annually presented to the fraternity with the highest scholastic average. If won three times successively, it automatically becomes that fraternity's property, but no fraternity group has been able to accomplish this since the cup was offered.

DR. H. W. CHASE TO BE CONVOCATION SPEAKER

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 30.—(Special)—By far the most important event to occur at the University of Virginia this year thus far will be the convocation which will take place Wednesday morning at 10:30. The convocation, always a notable event at the university, is to have this year a man of unusual note as its principal speaker. Dr. H. W. Chase, the distinguished president of university of North Carolina, is to make the principal address of the day.

Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase was born at Groveland, Mass., in 1883, the son of Charles Merrill Chase. He took his B. A. degree at Dartmouth in 1904 and his master's degree at the same institution in 1908. Two years later he was awarded his Ph. D. at Clark university. In the same year he was made director of the clinic for subnormal children at Clark. From 1910 to 1914 Dr. Chase held the position of professor of philosophy of education. He then served as professor of psychology, at the same university, from 1914 until 1919, when he acted as dean of the college of liberal arts. In the same year he became chairman of the faculty. In June, 1919, Dr. Chase was elected president of the university of North Carolina.

Dr. Chase has guided North Carolina's state university through the period of its greatest expansion and has done much to make the university the leading institution that it is today. In addition to his distinguished work in this field Dr. Chase is a leading contributor to numerous journals of philosophy and psychology. He is, among other things, the secretary and treasurer of the national association of state universities.



The student attendance at the convocation, it is predicted, will be larger than ever before. Besides the awarding of intermediate honors there will be announcements by Dr. Alderman.

A new road material, consisting largely of petroleum oil shale, has been perfected in Australia.

STOLEN — Saturday night from in front of Dr. Abernethy's, a canvas colored top off a 1928 model Buick roadster. Return to Gregory Peeler at the Chi Phi house and receive reward.

R. R. CLARK
Dentist
Office over Bank of Chapel Hill
PHONE 6251

CAROLINA
Durham's Leading Theater

It's dramatic dynamite
See and Hear

SUCH A CAST!
Glenn Tryon, Evelyn Brent, Merna Kennedy and a score of others.

HEAR THE SONG HITS—
"Eing a Little Love Song"
"Hittin' the Ceilin'"
"Broadway"

MONDAY thru THURSDAY
October 7-8-9-10

"Customed to Don or Customed to Measure"

Success!

recognizes better dressed men in in every walk of life. LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES find a definite appeal to successful men who appreciate hand-tailoring with distinctive woolens.

Pritchard-Patterson
INCORPORATED
"University Outfitters"

LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES NEW HAVEN, CONN.

SUPERNAL PEARL AND BLACK

AN outstanding expression of the college mode in writing equipment is this new Conklin Endura Supernal Pearl and Black pen. Priced at $6 and $8. Pencils to match $4 and $4.50—and worth it. Other Conklin Enduras that can qualify for any fraternity $5 and $7. Pencils $3.50 and $4. In ultra-up-to-date color combinations.

Not obtainable in static stores.

PENS—PENCILS—SETS
DESK SETS—LEADS

The Conklin Pen Company
TOLEDO, OHIO
New York Chicago San Francisco

Conklin ENDURA

Identify a Conklin Endura by annular lines in contrasting color on cap and barrel

SERVICE UNCONDITIONALLY AND PERPETUALLY GUARANTEED.

HEELS PREPARING FOR OLD LINERS

Collins Drilling Squad for Game with Byrd's Marylanders.

Injured Guards Recovered.

With a 48-0 victory over the Wake Forest Deacons in the game bag already, the Tar Heel football squad will begin pointing to Saturday's hunt up in Maryland, when the North Carolinians will match football lore with Curley Byrd's Old Liners.

The squad was considerably buoyed up by the opening success, but not one bit cocky or over-confident about this Maryland engagement.

Curley Byrd always puts out smart football teams. Tar Heel supporters know that from a great triple pass with which Maryland beat North Carolina three years ago.

Snyder and Kessler, the great Old Line ball toters, are "has-beens' now, but Byrd has plenty of material left—a whole veteran line, in fact, save two guards, two fine veteran backs in Radice and Evans, and a flock of promising sophomores.

And, in addition, Coach Byrd will be especially laying for the Tar Heels, who beat Maryland 26-19 in a free scoring battle last year.

It is expected that Chuck Collins, head Tar Heel coach, will go light on the scrimmage this week and stress defensive drills on the fine points of the game, which Byrd always manipulates to good advantage.

The Tar Heel backs, 12 of them, showed plenty adept at running the ball last Saturday, and Coach Collins will be wanting to patch up his injured linemen.

The Tar Heels should show a considerably stronger line against Maryland. Eskew, Hudson, and Fysal should all be in shape to take care of the right guard post that injuries almost left blank of prospects for the Deacon game.

The squad came through the Wake Forest game without a single injury, and, with the right guards convalescing this week, should be in good shape for the Old Liners.

Duke University Obtains Library

Durham, Sept. 30.—(Special)—The private library of the South Carolina poet, Paul Hamilton Hayne, recently acquired by the Duke University library, is one of the most interesting collections added to the library shelves in some time, those who have examined it declare.

Containing approximately 1,800 volumes, including many valuable files of magazines and pamphlets, the collection is expected to prove a valuable addition to the university's rapidly growing library. One of the most interesting items is a complete file of "The Palmetto Flag," a secession newspaper of 1851. In this file Hayne has marked his own articles and those of E. B. Bryan, a prominent Charleston secessionist.

Valuable sets of Milton, Shakespeare, Chaucer, Sir Thomas Brown, Lady Mary Wortley Montague and many others are contained in the collection of the literary South Carolinian, who died in 1886. There are a large number of autographed copies of books of poems from Longfellow, Whittier, Lowell, Aldrich, Stedman, Burroughs and others. In addition there are a number of first editions of important English and American authors; among these are Tennyson, Swinburne, Morris, Rossetti, Emerson and Hawthorne.

A number of these books contain letters from the authors laid in. There are a large number of autographed volumes by Sidney Lanier, among them the rare early novel, "Tiger Lilies." There are also a number of autographed copies of the books of the Georgia historian, Chas. Colcock Jones.

The value of the books to students is greatly increased by the manuscript material contained in the blank pages. Hayne seems habitually to have composed poems on the fly leaves of his favorite books. Some students will find it interesting to compare the poems as they appear in Hayne's published works as they appear in manuscript form.

In addition to the manuscript poems, there are apparently large portions of two unpublished novels written on the fly leaves of a set of volumes published by the Shakespeare Text Society. A careful inspection of all the books may bring to light the missing chapters, it is believed by Dr. Jay B. Hubbell, Duke professor of American literature and editor of the quarterly review, American Literature.

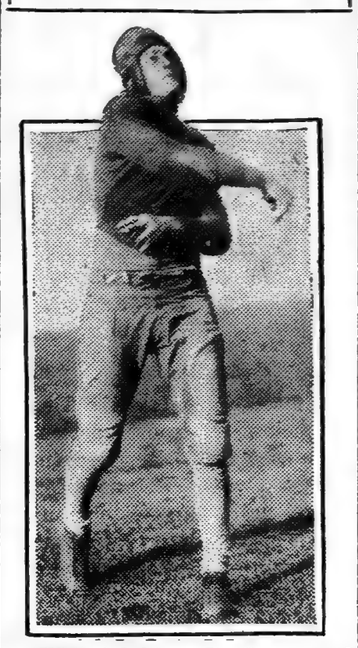
Dr. "Billy" Noble Sees Circus Again

Raleigh, Sept. 30.—Dr. Marcus Cicero Stephens, alias "Billy" Noble, attended John Robinson's circus in Raleigh last Thursday and wore a decoration that belongs to few—Billy Noble saw his first Robinson circus 62 years ago in Selma. Dr. Billy Noble missed John Lowlow, the university clown, who was the champion talker of his day. But barring the buffoons Dr. Billy thought Robinson was better than ever. The line of gab does not go over now as it did in 1867, Dr. Noble said, but the features inside the tent are far better than they were when Billy was a kid.

Bittersweet, the bright red berry in demand for winter decorating purposes, is fast disappearing in rural Ohio, so great is the demand.

Call for Wrestlers

Peyton Abbott requests that all candidates for the 1930 wrestling team report at the Tin Can this afternoon at 4 o'clock.



VIRGINIA DIRECTOR SAYS CHANCE FOR ALL THERE

James G. Driver, the director of athletics at the University of Virginia, has announced that everything possible will be done in the future to encourage men to participate in sports.

As a first step in this direction the department has practically abolished the system of cutting varsity and freshman athletic squads. That is every man who tries out for a team will be issued equipment, and placed under the direction of some coach who will give him work to do. No candidate will be cut from a squad unless the group gets so large that the equipment gives out. At the present time there is equipment for a large number of freshman football players, and any man who desires to get the exercise and learn the game is invited out whether or not he has had any previous experience on the gridiron. This invitation is particularly extended to men who are heavy enough to play in the line.

As a further attempt to pave the way for greater participation in intramural sports, an effort is to be made to obtain more ground for athletic fields upon which intramural teams can practice. As yet neither suitable land nor sufficient money has been acquired to carry out the project.

Half Back Magner

"Philadelphia Jim" started out in fine fashion against Wake Forest, Saturday. Last year he earned an all-state berth by his spectacular play and he is ready for another big year.

Abandon Frosh Caps

High Point, Sept. 30.—(Special)—After more than two weeks at High Point college, freshmen of the institution are beginning to believe that the practice of hazing newcomers is obsolete. Not even do they have to wear headgear to denote their freshness. The freshman caps, worn each year hitherto by members of the first-year class, have been abolished and as a result the public is unable to detect by his appearance that a youth is but lately arrived at college.

Officials of the college declare that for the first time since the opening of the institution there has been absolutely no attempt at hazing. Last year a vigorous effort was made to abolish the custom and resulted in the suspension from college of several members of the upper classes. The sophomore court, which had previously been allowed to operate, was disbanded and all forms of initiation were frowned upon. An effort to organize student opinion against these activities was made and the result has been highly pleasing to the college faculty and administration.

At the beginning of this year announcement was made that any student found guilty of hazing would be summarily dismissed and the upperclassmen were urged to welcome the new students and make them feel that they were a part of the student body. The college administrators are highly pleased at the spirit that has been manifested this year, and express their belief that hazing has been permanently given up.

A huge dormitory system intended to house all students is under way at the University of Nebraska. The first unit, for girls, is to cost $400,000.

The Russian Ballet is being filmed in England.

CHANGES MADE IN FROSH GRID CARD

Tar Babies Open Here Friday With Roanoke College Freshmen.

Arrangements have been completed by Graduate Manager Charles T. Woollen for a football game between the Carolina freshmen and Roanoke college freshmen here next Friday, October 4. This will be the opening game of a five-game schedule for the Tar Babies.

It has been announced that the Carolina-Duke freshman game, originally carded for October 18, has been moved up to October 12. The revised schedule for the Carolina freshmen is as follows:

Roanoke college here October 4.

Duke university here October 12.

Maryland there November 16.

Virginia there November 23.

N. C. State there November 30.

Intramural Notice

Letters have been sent out by the Intramural Athletic Association calling for entrants in the Tag Football League. Although reply cards were enclosed in the letters only a few entries have been made to date. The schedule will be held open for a few days but it will be necessary that all those teams expecting to enter do so at once in order that the schedule may be completed.

All teams not entered in a day or so will be counted ineligible for competition by the Association.

Mrs. Brogden Entertains

Mrs. W. J. Brogden of Durham, vice president of the Sally Southall Cotton social committee, entertained at dinner yesterday evening in honor of Mrs. Land, president of the committee.

The guests who were present were Mrs. Hobgood, second vice president; Mrs. O'Berry, general federation director; Mrs. Davis, treasurer, and Mrs. R. D. W. Connor.

COLLEGE GRADS HERALD ERA OF TALKING FILMS

Fredric March, the leading man opposite Jeanne Eagels in "Jealousy," is an outstanding example of the way in which college trained actors are being attracted to the motion picture field with the advent of the talkies. He graduated from the University of Wisconsin with high honors, so high in fact that he was given a position in one of New York's leading banks. After he left banking and went on the stage he still harbored the same animosity which the old school of stage actors have had since the advent of the movies, in their silent form.

When the motion pictures first started over 30 years ago, the first producers looked to the stage for their talent but any one who heeded their offers was usually ostracised from the ranks of legitimate actors. To Adolph Zukor goes the honors for attracting the first stage names to the silent drama, and likewise came Frederic March to the company headed by this same genius of entertainment.

While in the west playing in stock, March was often approached with offers to go on the screen, but these he candidly refused until after the advent of the talking pictures. When Paramount offered him a part in "The Dummy," he accepted and immediately gained a wide screen following. His next role was that of Gil Gilmore opposite Clara Bow in "The Wild Party," which greatly increased his popularity.

March is but the leader of a host of college graduates who have come to realize that the talking pictures present a new field for their efforts where education is essential.

"Jealousy" is the all-talking Paramount picture showing at the Carolina theatre today and is hailed as an epochal advance in better entertainment as was "The Letter," Miss Eagel's first talking picture.

Begin Now and Keep A Story of Your College Year
with
SNAPSHOTS

A Colorful Line of Eastman Kodaks $5 up

Always a Fresh Supply of Films

WE ALSO LEND KODAKS

Students' Supply Store
Everything in Stationery

Old Gold tobaccos are naturally good
..they do not require "artificial treatment"

When meat or fish or fowl has to be made good by artificial flavoring or sauces, let your stomach beware! Beware, also, of tobaccos that have to rely on "artificial treatment."

OLD GOLD tobaccos are naturally good; made honey-smooth and free of "throat scratch" by Mother Nature herself. By the "violet rays" of natural sunshine . . . not by artificial treatment.

More than three million smokers have changed to this smoother and better cigarette. No other cigarette ever won so great a fan-family in so short a space of time. Try a package . . . and you'll know why.

©P. Lorillard Co., Est. 1760

Better Tobaccos make them smoother and better . . . with "not a cough in a carload"

On your Radio, OLD GOLD—PAUL WHITEMAN HOUR. Paul Whiteman, with his complete orchestra, every Tuesday, 9 to 10 P. M., Eastern Daylight Saving Time

LOCAL GIRL WINS ART SCHOLARSHIP

Daughter of Dean Braune to Study in New York and Paris.

Picked as the best non-professional artist in the state, Miss Anna Braune, daughter of Dean G. M. Braune of the university school of engineering, and Mrs. Braune, has been awarded a scholarship giving her a year of study in the New York school of fine and applied arts and then a year at an art school in Paris. The value of the award is $500 a year for two years.

Miss Braune recently left for New York to begin her studies.

The scholarship was offered through Mrs. Sarah Polk Bradford, director of the Nashville museum of art, by Frank Alvah Parsons, president of the New York school of fine and applied arts.

Miss Braune's triumph came as the result of an examination of her work by a jury in Nashville, Tenn. One non-professional artist from North Carolina, Tennessee and Mississipi was to be chosen. After examining her drawings and paintings the jury decided that she led all competitors from this state.

Mrs. Bradford was chairman of the committee of award, and Mrs. Katherine Pentleton Arrington of Warrenton was North Carolina chairman of the award. Mrs. Mary Graves Rees, a member of Mrs. Arrington's committee, brought Miss Braune's work to the attention of the central committee.

Miss Braune had her first art instruction from Mrs. Rees, a well known Chapel Hill artist, and later studied at the Cincinnati school of art.

Ruthven Is Chosen U. of Mich. Head

Detroit, Sept. 30.—Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, nationally known scientist and dean of administration of the university of Michigan, was named president of the institution at a secret meeting of the board of regents, it was announced today. Dr. Clare Cook Little, former president of the university, resigned January 21, when friction arose between the president's office and the board of regents.

Phi Caledar

The following bills are to come before the Phi assembly at the meeting tonight at 7:15:

Resolved: That the Phi assembly go on record as favoring Dean Hibbard's proposal that some group make a critical study of the various aspects of student life at the university in order to suggest a more satisfactory curriculum.

Resolved: That the assembly condemns the apparent coercion in regard to price, of the tobacco planters in this state, by the various manufacturers.

Resolved: That the assembly endorses the recent move by the university to eliminate canvassing in the dormitories.

Duke University School of Law Has 16 Top Students

Durham, Sept. 30.—Sixteen law students will be in their third year at the Duke school this year and are tentative candidates for the bachelor of laws degree, according to officials of the school.

During the past commencement Duke awarded the degrees of LL. B. to its first third-year law class of four members. Duke law school was founded in 1904 and during its quarter century of operation has graduated a large number of students who have taken leading places in the profession.

Amusements

"The Hottentot," Stage Racing Hit, On Vitaphone

The thrill of the thundering hoofs; a dangerous race course; a terror-stricken and ludicrous rider wearing his sweetheart's colors, desperately trying to make high jumps; an uncontrollable horse, "The Hottentot," dashing to the finish line; the glory of achieving a great victory—

Such in one of the many colorful sequences in Warner Bros'. latest all-talking Vitaphone production, "The Hottentot," adapted for the screen from the celebrated stage hit by Victor Mapes and William Collier.

All the clamor and glamour of the steeplechase and the fascination of watching trained and spirited horses forging to the front, are brought to the screen with sound and dialogue.

Edward Everett Horton heads the all-star cast, appearing in the role he portrayed with such remarkable success on the stage. The cast also includes Patsy Ruth Miller, Edmund Breese, Edward Earle, Stanley Taylor, Otto Hoffman, Douglas Gerrard and Maude Turner Gordon. Harvey Thew adapted the play for Vitaphone. Roy del Ruth directed.

"The Hottentot" comes to the Carolina Theatre Saturday.

Discussion Groups Formed

An interesting experiment is being conducted by the recently incorporated United Church of Chapel Hill in holding a regular Sunday evening discussion group, especially designed for the young men and women of the University and town. The group will be conducted along lines preferred by the members and will probably include a fifteen minute talk followed by brief discussion.

The United Church will welcome anyone interested in the movement it is launching, and will be especially pleased at the attendance of those having no church affiliations here. The United Church of Chapel Hill was formed by the union of the Christian Church and the Congregational.

From its mouth to the source of the Missouri (its largest branch) the Mississippi River is the longest in the world.

CHASE MAKES APPEAL TO ALUMNI IN EFFORT TO INCREASE FUNDS

(Continued from first page)

will be used, as in other state universities, to supplement state appropriations.

"Even the wealthiest state universities," the statement said, "in the most prosperous states in which the principle of the university support is largest and most amply established, have without exception found an important place for the utilization of funds from outside sources. This is indeed a universally recognized principle in the financing of the modern state university. It seems not to weaken, or diminish, but to supplement and stimulate state support.

"There are two problems regarding the maintenance of the university which confront the state. The first is that of provision for its routine needs—its student increases, maintenance of our buildings, routine increases in salaries, promotions, clerical adjustments, and so on. These things are the bread and butter of the university and they are being provided for by the state. Then there is the question of university growth and development. I do not mean growth in numbers, but growth in stature, in quality and standards. In this field of quality the state does what it can.

"But, after all, routine needs must be met this year, next year, and to the end of time. The state of North Carolina seems not yet to be at the point at which its financial provisions can go very much beyond this point. And here lies a very real danger to the university. It is none the less real because it is not as obvious as overcrowded dormitories and inadequate classrooms. It needs, perhaps, illustration. Let me list almost at random a few of our problems of today, that you may see more clearly what I mean.

"New responsibilities develop. With rising salary scales everywhere our salaries are not adequate and must be increased. A teachers' college for the systematic advanced and graduate instruction of men and women for positions of responsibility and leadership in our growing public school system becomes of great importance for the state, and can be most effectively maintained here. Religious instruction, physical education, projects for better teaching of freshmen and sophomores press their claims. Plans for a great collection of southern historical material are under way. Provision for a system of retiring allowances becomes of increasing importance.

"And so on and on. Every one of these things that I have mentioned, and a host of others, have been the object of consideration during the last twelve months. Some of them the state has been asked to undertake. Some must be done now or lost momentum and opportunity result."

Dr. Chase's announcement was printed in full on the front page of the Raleigh News and Observer and the Durham Herald. It was also given prominence in the Greensboro Daily News, the Charlotte and Asheville papers, and in many smaller papers throughout the state.

The Durham Herald expressed approval of the aims of the allumni loyalty fund. It's editorial said in part:

"Large numbers have given to private education, and to public education also, in other states, but in North Carolina gifts to public education have been distressingly few. One reason, of course, has been the poverty, the same poverty which also has kept the state from doing more.

"But hundreds of men, even thousands of them, have prospered in these later years. They love the state in which they were born and which has guarded and protected them and theirs throughout the years of their development and advancement. The appeal is to them to help their state by helping its institutions, and by helping its young people to reach the highest development of which they are capable."

LAW AND COMMERCE FACULTIES UNDERGO NUMBER OF CHANGES

(Continued from page one)

the university for the past two years. Prior to coming to the university he was in charge of social science in the Richard J. Reynolds high school, Winston-Salem. In connection with his teaching this year he will be engaged in research in the history of taxation in North Carolina.

Professor F. R. Garfield is on leave this year doing research work with the federal reserve board in Washington. His teaching duties will be carried on by Mr. Macon. His work as chairman of the committee on the introductory course in economics has been assumed by Professor J. G. Evans.

A. R. Perkins has been appointed part time instructor to assist Professor E. W. Zimmerman in his course in resources and industries.

Professor C. P. Spruill has been granted an additional year's leave of absence to become a temporary member of the instructional staff in economics at Harvard university. During this year he will continue his researches on the public debt of Great Britain.

DEBATE COUNCIL TO HOLD 9 MEETS

(Continued from page one)

the Speaker's Club having promised to notify the Debate Council of Dr. Foust's action before that time. In the event of the N. C. C. W. debate the squad will immediately begin work on the query, and the debate will be held about the middle of November.

The council plans to hold the second contest shortly after the opening of the winter quarter, or perhaps just before the Christmas holidays—this matter depending largely upon the date of the first debate.

After this, contests will come more often. The University of the South will be met at Chapel Hill. The Tar Heel speakers are then expected to meet the University of West Virginia team at Charleston. There seems to be no hitch in the way of engaging the University of Texas debaters at Austin, the Texans having journeyed to Chapel Hill last year. Kentucky is expected to send a team to Chapel Hill in the winter or spring. The annual Carolina-Virginia radio contest seems a certainty. Last season the Tar Heels met the Virginians at Richmond; this season the Cavaliers journey to North Carolina. In addition to these, efforts are being made to revive the old North Carolina-Tulane-Alabama triangle. It seems probable, however, that Louisiana State will be substituted for Tulane.

In all, the Council plans to have about nine intercollegiate debates.

WHICH LETTER IS OPENED FIRST WHEN THE POSTMAN COMES?

The smartest-looking envelope is the first to feel the keen edge of the paper cutter—it gives a good introduction to the letter within . . . and when the paper itself is rich, substantial, crisp to the touch, the message receives preferred attention. Old Hampshire Stationery has all these qualities—it adds a new importance to what you write.

Old Hampshire Stationery

Sold in Chapel Hill by Sutton & Alderman

CAROLINA THEATRE

TODAY

Jeanne Eagles in "JEALOUSY"

Broadway cheered it on the stage—a world thrills to it on the talking screen! "Jealousy" — Jeanne Eagels' tremendously powerful drama of married love.

Also Added Features

Why not be Chirographic?

Old man Webster says that means writing in a particular way"—or words to that effect.

And no matter how particular you are about writing—you can find the point that writes like you and have it fitted, instantly, to the holder of your choice, when you get the new

WAHL - EVERSHARP Personal-Point FOUNTAIN PEN

It's the "tailor made" fountain pen—any point—any holder—any color—any style—assembled as you wish. Made possible by a new invention, the Interchangeable Nib.

See how it works—at any Wahl-Eversharp dealer's—and while you're there, see the Wahl-Eversharp Pencils that go with these handsome pens.

A Local Club Rate

of

$5.00

FOR ALL

University Publications

The Daily Tar Heel

The Carolina Magazine

The Buccaneer

The Yackety Yack

MAIL CHECKS NOW

Carolina Publications Union

Report Circulation Complaints
TAR HEEL OFFICE
8:30-9:30 A. M.

The Daily Tar Heel

Cheerleader Election
MEMORIAL HALL
Chapel Period

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1929 | NUMBER 11

Women's Club Delegates Meeting Here in Annual Autumn Council Session

R. B. House Delivers Welcoming Address; Large Attendance Expected Today.

Entertainment at luncheon and tea and an inspection tour of the campus yesterday occupied delegates from various cities throughout the state to the alumni council meeting of the North Carolina federation of women's clubs. Official opening of the two-day convention was held last night at the Carolina inn.

Following welcoming address by R. B. House, executive secretary of the university, and Mrs. Mary Graves Rees, of the community club, Mrs. N. B. Adams, state president, was introduced to the delegates. Addresses by Mrs. Edward M. Land and W. D. Moss completed the first session.

Earlier in the day the executive board and the board of trustees were tendered a luncheon by Mrs. R. D. W. Connor, chairman of arrangements for the convention. The board of trustees held a meeting following the luncheon.

The district presidents convened at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Carolina inn. Following the executive session the delegates made a tour of the points of interest on the campus.

Only 31 delegates had registered at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon although a much larger number are expected to arrive today.

Y Cabinet Meetings Held Monday Night

The three Y cabinets had their first meetings last night at the Y at 7:15.

In the freshman friendship council, President Alex Webb started the program off by leading the devotion, after which A. A. Perkins introduced the new officers. They included Alex Webb, president; Robert Hubbard, vice president; Alex Biggs, secretary, and Strat Donnell, treasurer. Mr. Perkins then gave a brief outline of the work for the coming year. It was decided to have the meetings from 7:15 to 8 for the benefit of those men who have dates with fraternities. The meeting then closed with sentence prayers.

Rev. C. E. Rozzelle, pastor of the Methodist church, gave a very interesting talk to the sophomore cabinet, in which he said that we should be thankful that we live in a day of such opportunity as today. His talk was very appropriate for the first meeting of the year. The business was postponed until the next meeting.

The junior-senior cabinet had a general discussion of the committees for the year and also some of the duties of these committees. Their program was closed with a short word of prayer.

SOCIOLOGY DEPARTMENT GIVES EXAMINATIONS

H. P. Brinton and Mr. Hamilton of the University of Virginia took their preliminary oral examination for sociology Monday night. The session was conducted by Dr. Odum in his office. It was attended by all the professors in the department of sociology and by those of the department of rural economics.

DIRECTORY WILL APPEAR SHORTLY

Proof Copy Will be Posted in Y and Dormitories for Corrections.

The proofs of the university directory, published by the Y, will be out soon. A copy of this proof will be posted in each dormitory and public place for temporary use until the directories come out. The directories are expected to be out some time within the next two weeks.

All students who change their addresses are asked to call at the Y and have these changes recorded. These changes will be made in the master directory, which will remain in the Y office all during the year. All persons desiring to make use of this directory are invited to do so.

The following students failed to give their addresses when registering, and are requested to call at the Y and do so at once:

Robert O. Abernethy, Roy Frank Abernethy, George L. Bartlett, Placid B. Bennett, Anthony James Buttitta, Richard A. Chace, John E. Cuthrell, Josh Curtis Cox, Walter H. Culbreth, Lacy Augusta Dalton, Thos. E. Denton, J. Norman DeViney, Wm. I. Dodson, Lewis Manly Durham, Wm. Eugene Edwards, Reginald Carroll Godwin, Bryan Grant, Edw. Floyd Hathaway, Chas. Patton Hayes, Earl Dills Higdon, Dun. G. Holt, Jack Morrison Houston, Chas. R. Hubbard, Ausker E. G. Hughes, Robt. Moore Jessup, David C. Johnson, Edward Louis Kendrick, Walter Robt. Kersey, Miss Kate Parks Kitchin, Walter Jesse Kitchin, Andrew W. Laven, Miss Ruth McCullough, Haywood A. McLawhorn, John Duncan McNeil, Robt. Dewey Marshall, Troy Wilson Millikan, Howard M. Nahagian, Robt. Mitchell Oliver, F. W. Pittman, John Wren Rea, Robt. Louis Redding, Chas. Floyd Rhinehart, B. Browning Roach, Harry Rockwell, Jas. Duncan Shields, Wales Franklin Sigmon, Odell Martin Smith, Ernest H. Stallings, Chas. B. Stonestreet, Lloyd Everette Swain, Miss Gertrude G. Vaile, Thos. Cobb Watkins, James Lucius Whitley, Mr. John H. Williams, John H. Williams, Wiley R. Young.

ROBERTS IMPROVED

B. W. Roberts, junior, who fainted Monday morning in Professor Frank Graham's history 7 class and was taken to the infirmary to recuperate, had virtually recovered yesterday, although because of the rain and his weakened condition he did not attend classes.

At 10 o'clock Monday evening when Professor Graham called to see Roberts he was studying, Professor Graham told his class yesterday. The youth collapsed Monday just as Professor Graham had finished outlining the required work for the term. The history tutor yesterday assured the other 70 members of his class that Roberts was the first person ever to have fainted in his classes.

Scotland is the only country in the world where the rate of suicide in urban population is less than among the rural.

Wins Art Scholarship

Miss Anna Braune, daughter of Dean G. M. Braune, of the University School of Engineering and Mrs. Braune, has been picked as the best non-professional artist in the state. The distinction carries with it a scholarship that gives her a year of study in the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts and then a year at an art school in Paris.

ODUM COLLABORATES IN NEW BOOK ON SOCIAL RESEARCH

Crawford's Recent Statement in American Mercury Borne out as Commercial Field University Professor's Fifth Book is Issued Under Joint Editorship with Dr. Katherine Jocher.

It was pointed out in a recent article appearing in the American Mercury, reviewed by this paper, that the Univeristy of North Carolina Press, among others, was pioneering in a publications field that would soon be cultivated by commercial publishers. The works of Dr. Howard W. Odum, Director of the Institute for Research in Social Science, were presented as examples of the type of books that would have a large commercial value in the near future.

This statement, by N. A. Crawford, was truthfully made, for Dr. Odum, in collaboration with Dr. Katherine Jocher, who is Assistant Director of the Institute, has recently had a fifth book published by a prominent metropolitan company. The volume, "An Introduction to Social Research," deals with important problems concerning the fields, present trends, developments, methodology, and procedure of modern research.

Reaction expressed by numerous contemporaries of the authors' indicate that this and other books by the University scientists will have a promising future, in view of the fact that "the social sciences are on the eve of still greater development." Social research, in which Drs. Odum and Jocher are so well informed, is the key to that development. For these reasons their work is a volume to be read by every student, teacher, and director of research in any of the social sciences.

Among the first comments by leading social scientists is an especially significant statement by Wesley C. Mitchell, head of the Department of Economics at Columbia University. He says: "The book will prove widely useful in that it assembles in orderly sequence a great variety of stimulating suggestions on how to work."

William F. Ogburn of the University of Chicago, speaking of this timely volume, also declares

(Continued on last page)

1,500 TEACHERS TO TAKE COURSES

University Extension Division to Offer Training in 26 Centers Throughout State.

Registration this week of teachers in service for courses to be given by the university extension division in 26 centers throughout the state is expected to total more than 1,500, Russell M. Grumman, director of the extension division announced Tuesday. The teaching centers range from Beaufort in the east to Canton in the west.

The training service for teachers was instituted nine years ago by the extension division. This year for the first time the school of education will aid in giving the courses. Dr. William J. McKee of the education school is director of the teaching training program.

The major aims of this extension service, it was pointed out by Mr. Grumman, are to improve classroom instruction and to further the professional growth of the teacher. The activities which contribute to these ends are visits made by instructors to classrooms with the purpose of analyzing conditions and assisting teachers in recognizing and solving classroom problems.

The university is arranging for more supervision of this work for the coming year. And it is also planned to make available more resources for the solution of educational problems.

Students to Vote Today For Cheer Leader; Eight Candidates for Position

LESLIE WEIL IS HEAD OF COUNCIL

Goldsboro Man and Prominent University Alumnus Chairman of Alumni Fund Administration.

Leslie Weil, prominent Goldsboro merchant, who is chairman of the alumni loyalty fund council of the university, will be directing head of a group of 12 prominent alumni who will assist in raising and administering the alumni loyalty fund, it was announced today by President Harry W. Chase.

Other members of the council who will serve with Mr. Weil are President Chase, Chapel Hill, Dr. L. R. Wilson, Chapel Hill; J. M. Saunders, Chapel Hill; W. T. Shore, Charlotte; A. W. Haywood, New York city; Dr. J. G. Murphy, Wilmington; Dr. Ira W. Rose, Rocky Mount; A. J. Barwick, Raleigh; C. R. Wharton, Greensboro; H. G. Baity, Chapel Hill, and Burton Craige, Winston-Salem.

Mr. Weil was graduated from the university in the class of 1895 and has long been actively interested in the university and alumni affairs. He is a member of the executive committee of the board of trustees, a member of its finance committee, and is a director of the general alumni association. The other members of the council have also been active in the welfare of the university since their graduation.

"It is now the move of the alumni," Mr. Weil said yesterday in a statement accepting the appointment. "Every effort should be made to get the alumni to realize that systematic, consistent income from private sources, in addition to state funds, is necessary if the modern state university is to be adequately financed.

"The alumni loyalty fund, managed by alumni, has set out upon the final step in establishing a financial policy for the university which will take into consideration comprehensive state appropriations as well as enthusiastic private support. The words 'final step' are used because other important steps have already been taken. The state has increased its appropriation in recent years; student fees have been increased; the educational foundations such as Rockefeller and Carnegie have added their considerable gifts, the most recent one being a grant of $100,000 toward the establishment of a school of library administration.

"It is now the move of the alumni."

General Alumni Meeting Nov. 27-28

The annual general alumni assembly was set for November 27 and 28 at a meeting of the alumni board of directors in South building yesterday.

The meeting of the alumni assembly is the time representatives of all local alumni clubs, all alumni classes and other alumni units come together for the annual business meeting of the general alumni association.

Nominations for alumni officers for the ensuing year are made at the assembly.

Farris Urges Students to Vote and Cooperate in Reviving Carolina Spirit Which Has Been so Strong in Past.

POLLS IN Y BUILDING

"ray, ray, ,rah, rah," yelled the cheerleaders down in Kenan stadium Saturday. "ray, ray, rah rah," whispered the students of the University, and when whispered is mentioned no reference is made to any thing quite so loud as a stage whisper. Kike Kyser's ghost awoke and hovered over the field in mental anguish. "Are these Carolina men?" he asked himself, "the men who so spiritedly yelled a few years ago with such lusty lungs as to cause the inhabitants of Durham to wonder at the terrific thunder storm taking place in Chapel Hill?"

"Oh, yes," says Captain Ray Farris, president of the student body, "it's the same crowd; but the spirit of Carolina is sadly lacking in livelihood," or words to that effect in an interview Tuesday morning.

At the regular Chapel period Tuesday morning president Farris introduced to the student body the men who they had nominated for the office of chief cheer leader. The names of those men follow in the order in which they were nominated: Jack Barrett, Soph.; George H. Biggs, fresh.; Howard Henry, Junior; Lloyd Bass, Soph.; Allen Crowson, Fresh.; Paul Carter.; Soph.; George Brown, Frosh.; Sam Glaberson, fresh.

All these men have been faithfully working with Peyton Abbott over the apparently dead body of the Carolina spirit for the past week; and it is urged by all concerned that each member of the student body cast his vote at the booth in the Y. M. C. A. building or at the one in Gerrard hall.

The campus leaders urge that every student votes today in order that something might be done to get under way some organized plan to revive the fast disappearing thread of life that binds Carolina spirit to this world.

Faculty Orchestra Begins Rehearsals

The university is unique among non-musical colleges in having among its faculty members a complete concert orchestra. This orchestra was formed last year among faculty men who enjoyed playing music together. Despite the fact that some of its members had not played for years the organization made remarkable progress. Those who attended the Playmaker productions will remember the agreeable change from the phonograph music to that of the faculty musicians. The excellent selections accompanying the forest theatre production last spring were enjoyed by all.

The musical tendencies among the faculty are not limited to any one particular branch of learning. The schools of law, medicine, applied science, commerce, education and the academic school being represented by members from the departments of romance languages, mathematics, english, chemistry, bacteriology, economics, law, public welfare and the extension division.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon — J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

Wednesday, October 2, 1929

The Alumni To The Rescue

President Chase's announcement of a state-wide effort to raise funds among the alumni to supplement state appropriations for the support of the university has met with a highly pleasing reception from the newspapers. All of the leading dailies gave the announcement an important position on the front page, and many of them commented favorably on the project in their editorial columns.

No person familiar with the needs of the university questions the fact that funds must be secured to supplement the state appropriations, if the institution is to continue its program of expansion. A systematic plan of annual giving by the alumni, such as the new undertaking provides, is the most practical method of obtaining the necessary funds.

Designated as the Alumni Loyalty Fund, the undertaking is a dignified attempt to induce the alumni to assist in the development of the university. Supplementary funds are imperative at the present time in order to meet new responsibilities that have devolved upon the institution, and the alumni offer the only means of securing them.

In many other states gifts to public education are frequent, but in North Carolina they have been very few. But in the last few years prosperity has come to thousands in this state who were formerly unable to contribute to public education, and now the old plea of poverty is without foundation. Thousands of the alumni are able to contribute toward fulfilling the needs of the university. To these men President Chase has addressed his appeal. They are confronted with an opportunity to assist in the future development of the state by helping its youth to attain their highest capabilities.

The Emotional Aspect

(By John Mebane)

Dr. Ernest R. Groves, of the university's institute for research in social science, in "Mental Hygiene in the College and the University," an article appearing recently in the Journal of Social Forces, suggests that the college is an excellent station for mental hygiene. Dr. Groves sees the existing lack of emphasis placed upon the emotional aspect of the student and the over-attention given, in some cases, to the acquiring of knowledge.

Dr. Groves' suggestions are timely and valuable to an institution such as the University of North Carolina. As is commonly accepted, the college assumes the task of preparing the student for life. Such an institution, Dr. Groves suggests, is more than a series of lecture halls. The aim of college, it is true, is to dispense knowledge; but unless it focuses the spotlight more accurately upon the individual, takes into consideration that there are existing differences in the mental and emotional "make-up" of the various students, much of its effort will avail little.

Mental hygiene helps the student to remedy maladjustment. There are numerous problems in the college student's life which, in order for the student to obtain full growth, must be met and solved. In the cases of individuals leaving home probably for the first time are these problems multifold. There is the great problem of adjustment to a new, and perhaps strange, environment. Homesickness results; waste of time; the realization of sex differences.

The university would profit greatly with the introduction of a full-time psychiatric specialist. Lectures could be given; individuals and their problems could be studied with a more microscopic scrutiny. Students with mental abnormalities are in attendance at probably every institution in this country. With the aid of an efficient and capable psychiatrist these students could be given attention and their problems solved — with profit both to the student and to the university.

Alumni Officers Have Correct Addresses

Correct alumni address lists will be supplied to all fraternities and other groups which wish to arrange homecoming programs in connection with the university's homecoming on October 19, according to Maryon Saunders, alumni secretary.

The alumni office at 208 South building has available accurate addresses of 95 per cent of the university's alumni, both graduate and non-graduate. Letters offering the use of these address lists have been sent to all fraternities, and already a number of groups have checked their address lists with those in the alumni office. "This service will be gladly rendered," said Mr. Saunders yesterday, "to others who request it."

Homecoming is a big event at other universities, and North Carolina officials wish this occasion to be observed more at Chapel Hill, according to Mr. Saunders. With the dedication of the library, the Georgia-Carolina football game, the meeting of the university's second conference on southern education, and the general homecoming being held all over the state, alumni officials expect this year's reunion to be very successful.

Morgan Examines Water Structure

In preparing material for his master's thesis, Karl Morgan, candidate for the master's degree in physics, is making a series of experiments to determine the molecular structure of water.

While it is generally understood that water is composed of two parts of hydrogen and one part of oxygen, Mr. Morgan is trying to determine whether water is a complex aggregate of simple molecules, as it is sometimes thought to be, and if this is the case, just what is the structure of these complex molecules.

Womans Association Meets in Spencer Hall

Athletic program for the coming year was outlined to the members of the women's association at their first meeting of the year Tuesday afternoon in Spencer hall. A report on athletics in the past year was also made to the club. A minor change in the representation on the council of the women's association was also discussed.

CHANGES MADE IN HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL SERIES

E. R. Rankin Announces New Arrangements for State Title Contest.

E. R. Rankin, secretary of the high school athletic association of North Carolina, announced for the first time yesterday a change in the arrangements for the annual class A conferences contest in high school football for North Carolina high schools.

This year the class A high schools are divided into two groups, the eastern group and the western group. The towns included in the western group are Charlotte, Salisbury, Gastonia, Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem; those included in the eastern group are Durham, Raleigh, Goldsboro, Fayetteville and Wilmington.

The winning teams in the two groups will be determined on a percentage basis this year instead of by elimination. The winner of the class A championship in the east and the winner of the class A championship in the west will be known by November 23, when the final games are played. Then, if approved by the two schools, the champion teams will play for the class A state championship in Chapel Hill November 30 under the sponsorship of the North Carolina high school athletic association.

The annual general contest in high school football for North Carolina will be open to 300 high schools in the state who do not fall into the class A group. The two winning teams in this group will be determined by an elimination process, and the two winning teams will play for state championship of the general contest in Chapel Hill on December 6.

Alpha Chi Sigma Entertains

Last Friday evening the Alpha Chi Sigma fraternity was host to the new men and members of the chemistry department at a reception given in Venable hall.

Dr. F. K. Cameron delivered the welcome address to the new men. During his address he pointed out many of the obligations the young chemist met with and advised them to begin now and prepare to meet them. He told them of some of the things that would be expected of them here at the university.

Dr. Venable made the principal address of the evening. During his talk he recalled many of his reminiscences here at the university. "When I began teaching here the lecture hall was in the building now occupied by the music department and the laboratory was in the building which is used by the Playmakers." Dr. Venable related many other hardships that the department had overcome.

When the lectures were concluded refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, punch and cake, were served. There were about 75 people present for this occasion.

Why Eskew Didn't Play Last Saturday.

The lame and the cripple of the Tar Heel squad joined with the sound and the fit of taking clips at Wake Forest plays Saturday. Bud Eskew, who played part of the game at guard, had five stitches in his head from an auto accident the first of the week. Ellis Fysal, at the same post, forgot an ankle hurt. Jimmy Hudson would have gone in, but the trainer has his head so beswathed in bandages to protect an eye cut, that the managers couldn't drive his helmet on.

Spaulding Hitting Good Stride This Year.

Yank Spaulding, who has played fullback for the Tar Heels for two years and just missed winning a monogram both seasons, appears to be hitting his stride this year. The hefty Pennsylvanian started against Wake Forest and proved a smooth cog in an effective backfield. He made regular gains on plunges, and a pass he intercepted in Deacon territory led to the Tar Heels' second score, which he drove over himself. He is fine on interference and defense as well.

Branch and Slusser Come Through.

Johnny Branch and Rip Slusser, prized sophomores of the Tar Heel pack, made their varsity debut against Wake Forest with creditable performances. Each bagged a touchdown on flashy pass catches. Branch brought the stands up several times with elusive and spectacular broken field work, and Slusser showed the fastest of the Tar Heel backs.

Maryland Using Huddle System This Year.

The Maryland team is calling signals from a huddle and playing an unbalanced line this year. The Tar Heels played a split line against Wake Forest Saturday. Both teams ran up large scores. There may be something interesting in the way of counter-defense when the ancient rivals meet in College Park Saturday.

Overheard on the campus yesterday as one of the many sidelights on the rain storm, was this from a senior in the engineering school: "I changed to Camels today, hoping that they might dry up some of this rain. But I didn't walk a mile for them. I wouldn't."

Correction

In yesterday's issue of the Tar Heel it was stated that the law and commerce schools underwent a number of changes in the faculty. The changes discussed were those made in the commerce school only.

America spends more than a billion dollars a year on hospital maintenance.

An airport is being constructed on Cozuniel Island, in Mexico.

Ireland has never been troubled with snakes or other venomous reptiles.

The first steam printing press was put up in Germany in 1848.

PORTABLE TYPEWRITERS — THE STUDENT'S HELPER

See the NEW ROYAL

Hammermill Bond Papers in ream packages at a surprisingly low rate. Ribbons and all accessories.

Students' Supply Store

Everything in Stationery

—their eyes are wise!
—they know their stuff!

They're the generation raised on "What a Young Girl Ought To Know"! So they know what they want . . . . . Love! and lots of it!

You can't blame them! You'd do the same. If you were young, good to look at, rolling in wealth.

You'd marry one man when you loved another!

You'd walk alone from your wedding altar, too, leaving your groom upstairs consoling the girl who'd loved him too well—and didn't tell!

In short, here's a story of love as the moderns know it.

What the doctor ordered!

A story as good as "OUR DANCING DAUGHTERS"

Joan Crawford
in
"OUR MODERN MAIDENS"
with
ROD La ROQUE
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR. and ANITA PAGE

Added Features
PARAMOUNT SOUND NEWS
"The Eyes and Ears of the World"

TODAY - TOMORROW

CAROLINA THEATRE

Saturday
"HOTTENTOT"
Coming
"NOAH'S ARK"

Drink Coca-Cola Delicious and Refreshing

PAUSE AND REFRESH YOURSELF

ONE SOUL WITH BUT A SINGLE THOUGHT- TO PAUSE AND REFRESH HIMSELF AND NOT EVEN A GLANCE FROM THE STAG LINE

Enough's enough and too much is not necessary. Work hard enough at anything and you've got to stop. That's where Coca-Cola comes in. Happily, there's always a cool and cheerful place around the corner from anywhere. And an ice-cold Coca-Cola, with that delicious taste and cool after-sense of refreshment, leaves no argument about when, where—and how—to pause and refresh yourself.

The Coca-Cola Co., Atlanta, Ga.

OVER 8 MILLION A DAY

YOU CAN'T BEAT THE PAUSE THAT REFRESHES

IT HAD TO BE GOOD TO GET WHERE IT IS

CD-1

VETERANS TO GET CALL AGAINST OLD LINERS

SOPHS GOOD BUT EXPERIENCE TO BE GIVEN EDGE

Collins Looking to Maryland Encounter Saturday as Stiff Assignment.

The Tar Heel team that will start against the university of Maryland at College Park on Saturday will probably show a straight line of veterans of one or more years of play.

And if the Old Liners pan out as Tar Heel supporters think they will, it's probable Head Coach Chuch Collins will be drawing heavily throughout the game on his supply of 16 veteran lettermen.

The 16 monogram men form a tried and proved nucleus. There are a number of outstanding sophomores in the Tar Heel camp, but naturally they lack the experience of the older heads.

The veteran linemen are Captain Ray Farris, Bud Eskew and Jimmy Hudson, guards; Bill Koenig and Fenton Adkins, tackles, Don Holt and Julian Fenner, ends. All of the number are seniors except Hudson, who is a junior.

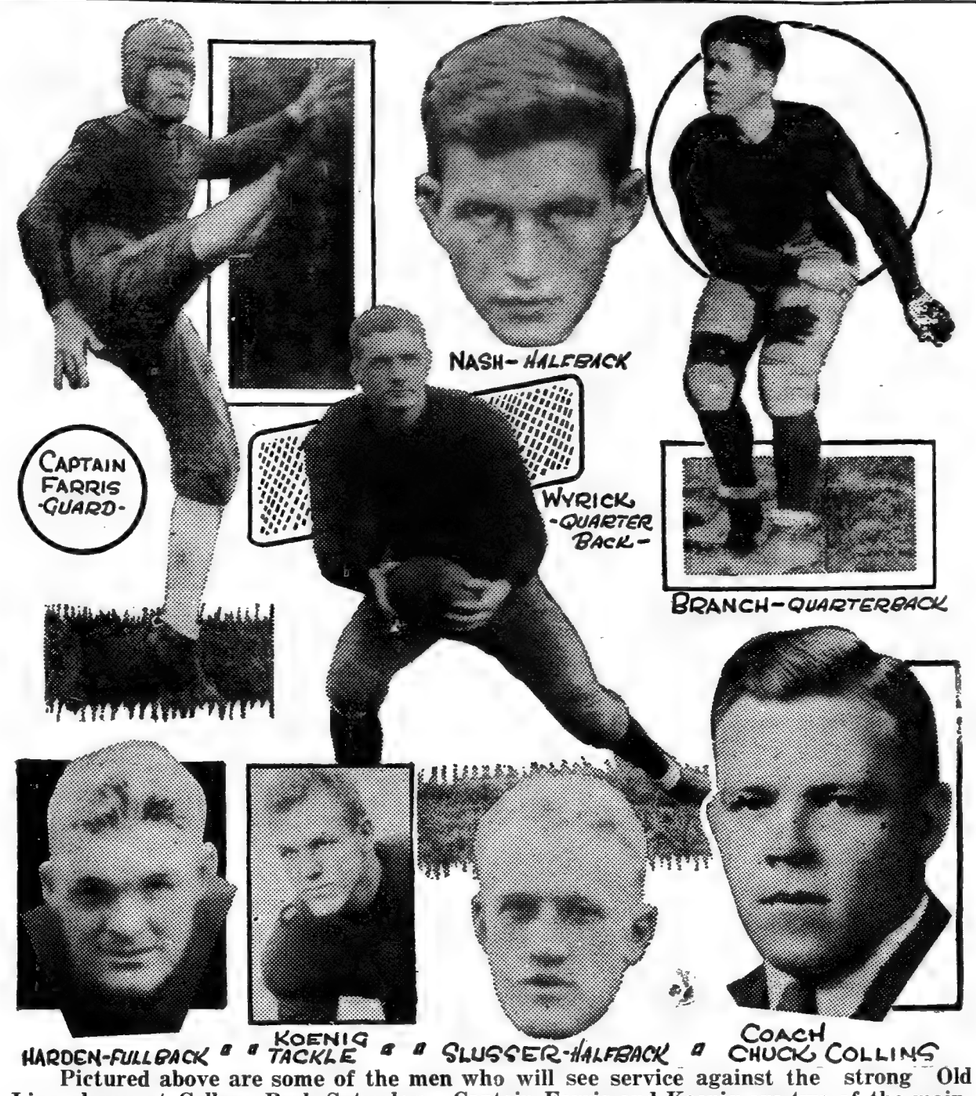
Center will be the only post at which the Tar Heels will show no veteran. Ned Lipscomb, a reserve from last year, started the first game and will probably start against the Old Liners.

The juniors have a decided edge among the ball-carriers. Pete Wyrick, quarter; Jim Magner, Jimmy Maus, Strud Nash and Chuck Erickson, flashy halfbacks, and Henry House, driving fullback, are all third-year students. The seniors in the Tar Heel backfield are Jimmy Ward and Phil Jackson, halfbacks, and Pap Harden, dependable fullback.

The Tar Heels made a fine showing in their opening game, running up a 48-0 score against Wake Forest in a game in which the Carolina coaches played 37 men.

Tar Heel supporters, however, regard Maryland's showing against Washington college as equally impressive and are viewing the Maryland engagement as one of the stiffest the Tar Heels will face.

Rain hit the Tar Heel camp Monday, leaving but three actual practice days, but the coaches had the boys back at real work on Tuesday.



INJURIES MIGHT KEEP LEPO OUT

State College Stock Slumps as Opening Game with Generals Nears.

When the Wolfpack from State College receives Washington and Lee on Friday, Captain Johnny Lepo may be very conspicuous in his absence. For the past several days now the Tech captain has been laid up with stomach trouble and the State trainers are skeptical as to whether he will be in shape to lead his teammates in repulsing the Virgnians in their first game of the 1929 schedule. If the Wolfpack captain is forced to be absent then Herman Gardner and Al Vin will be called upon to hold down the tackle berths. Jimmy May will probably be used as a reserve for this position. The doubt as to the appearance of Lepo in the lineup on Friday has caused the value of State College stock to sink more than one point.

Last week W. and L. snowed Lynchburg under by the overwhelming count of some 60 odd to 0.

Getting Ready For Maryland

Pictured above are some of the men who will see service against the strong Old Line eleven at College Park Saturday. Captain Farris and Koenig are two of the mainstays of the line. In Wyrick and Branch, Coach Collins will have two good backfield generals to send into the fray. Nash, Slusser, and Harden are some of Coach Cerney's "hundred backs."

KISTLER MAY BE OUT PITT GAME

Old Injury Giving Blue Devil Leader Trouble Again.

From all reports from the Blue Devil camp over in Durham it seems more than possible that Henry Kistler, Duke's powerful tackle and captain, may be missing from the lineup when his teammates meet Pitt in the stadium opening game this coming Saturday. An old injury from last season returned to Kistler in the game with Mercer last week-end, impeding his style in that contest and seriously jeopardizing his chances of meeting Pitt the following week-end.

In case it is impossible for Captain Kistler to enter the lineup Saturday, it is likely that Fred Taylor will be sent to guard and Thorne will be moved from guard to tackle.

The Blue Devil coaching staff was more than pleased with the defense exhibition that their charges displayed against Mercer last Saturday. The Dukemen allowed only four first downs to be chalked up against them and two of these came by the air route.

Tar Heels Forced Indoors to Run Maryland Plays

With the Maryland game only four days ahead old man weather seems to be working against Coach Collins' Tar Heels, and he has again forced them indoors for their practice. The squad went through a dummy scrimmage today, using Maryland's style of play both offensive and defensive. Although the team as a whole showed good form in Saturday's game with Wake Forest, much has to be done in ironing out the rough places noticed in the game.

Because of the great increase in the number of visitors from the United States many new hotels are to be built in the larger cities of Mexico.

COLLINS TO HAVE GUARD STRENGTH AGAIN SATURDAY

Jimmy Maus Also Expected to Be in Backfield Position Again.

In the game with the Old Liners this coming Saturday, Coach Chuck Quinlan hopes to have his four injured right guards ready for whatever call may be made upon them. In addition to this it is very likely indeed that Jimmy Maus will be in fit condition to return to his backfield position. The prospect of the return of these men has caused a new light of hope and expectation to enter the Tar Heel camp.

The rain has naturally slowed up the field practice for the Heels; however, during this week the varsity will meet the freshmen in scrimmage several times with the frosh displaying the wares that the Old Liners displayed last weekend.

The Carolina scouts that saw Maryland defeat Washington college brings back the report that the Old Liners have a strong team, a fast attack, and plenty of tricks.

Where? — In Tar Heel Ads.

ALL WET

It seems as if our little village is doomed to be "ALL WET" for a while. Brace up your dampened spirits with a drink of

SHERRI-COLA
or
SHERRI-ALE

Your palate is one place that will not object to being wet, that is if it is wet with one of these delicious beverages.

At your favorite fountain or in bottles.

SHERRI-COLA COMPANY

COACHING SCHOOL NOTICE

There will be a very important meeting in Peabody 6 at the chapel period Thursday, October 3. All men who expect to teach next year and who desire to take coaching in any branch of athletics this year are urged to attend. Coach Fetzer and his associates will be there to explain the general plans, and C. E. McIntosh of the school of education will discuss the importance of athletic training for those who expect to teach in the high schools.

Rifle Team Notice

There will be an important meeting of the rifle club tonight at 9 o'clock at the club's office in the basement of Alumni building. All old men, and any new men who are interested in the team, are requested to be present.

Elon Star Tops Scorers; Ward First Among Heels

McCall, Davidson, Ward, Carolina, and Eustace Mills, Wake Forest in Triple Tie; Spaulding Next, Trailed by Buie.

At this early date high scoring honors in North Carolina go to a lad from the Little Six, Williams of Elon. He has amassed a sum total of 20 points in two games. He leads his teammate, Cox, who is runner-up for scoring honors by seven points.

In the Big Five circle three men have rung up to their credit two touchdowns each: McCall of Davidson, Jimmy Ward of Carolina and Eustace Mills of Wake Forest. Waggoner of Elon also has two markers to his credit.

Yank Spaulding, Carolina, has a total on nine points, or one touchdown and three extra points. He is closely followed by Sam Buie of Duke who has seven points beside his name.

Four Carolina men have crossed the final mark for a touchdown, Nash, Branch, Erickson and Slusser. Peeler and Godfrey of Duke also have scored one touchdown. Covington, Wake Forest, has six points, as also have Black of Catawba, Pardue of High Point, and Bryan of Atlantic Christian college.

Thad Brook of Davidson leads in the extra points column with a total of four points; Magner, U. N. C., and Jit Benton, Wake Forest, each have two such counters. House of Carolina and Weigel of Catawba have managed to score one point.

The standing at present in team scoring honors follows:

In the Big Five—
Carolina	48
Davidson	34
Wake Forest	20
Duke	19
In the Little Six—
Elon	32
Guilford	20
Catawba	7
High Point	6
Atlantic Christ'n	6

ABELLS IS NEW GRID MENTOR AT VA. UNIVERSITY

Cavaliers Rapidly Smoothing Into Shape under Directions of Former Colgate Star.

Under a new system of athletic management the Cavaliers of the university of Virginia are all set to meet their gridiron opposition of 1929. Abells, a former Colgate star, has succeeded "Greasy" Neale as head coach, and under his tutorship the Cavaliers are rapidly assuming the shape of a smoothworking football team.

The offensive drive this season will be centered around Johnny Sloan, one of the most powerful backs in the South last year. As quarterback he will be the brains of the team, in addition to being the most dangerous ball carrier that Virginia has laid claim to in many a year.

Sloan will have beside him at the halfback posts two 175 pound, hard driving men, Kaminer and Faulconer. Abells has a veteran to step into the fullback position in Albert Lewry; however, a sophomore, Herbert Bryant is giving him plenty of competition for ownership of the berth.

All of these men can run, kick and pass, and upon this fact Coach Abells is resting his hope for a formidable offensive team this fall.

WARREN MEETS DENNING FRIDAY

Return Match Will Be Staged at El Toro Park—Add Lost to Durham Boy in Former Fight.

Add Warren, ex-Carolina boxer, will meet Jake Denning in a return match in Durham at El Toro park, Friday night. This bout promises to be of great interest to fight fans as it will be recalled that Denning won the decision over Warren a few weeks ago.

Warren's last fight which took place in Greensboro last Friday night with Andy Anderson resulted in Anderson being knocked out in the third round.

The next bout in which Warren engages will probably be staged in New York. Just when is not known, as details are lacking.

Ex-Frosh Gridmen Must Turn in Togs

Freshman Coach Rex Enright announces that all freshmen who enrolled for football and have failed to attend practice should turn in their equipment and begin attending regular gymnasium classes. These classes take place at Bynum gymnasium daily and men who have not enrolled will do so immediately.

SAWYER'S RAINWEAR

BE prepared now to enjoy all the big games this season. You can't expect to support your cheering section lustily or enjoy watching that forward pass if you're getting drenched.

Sawyer's "Frog Brand" Students' Slickers have become staple and universally adopted everywhere. The new Sawyer "Forain" Zephyr-weight garments are now accepted as the very latest in wet weather protection for college men and women. Every garment tailored in the most advanced styles and rendered absolutely waterproof and windproof by the famous Sawyer process. The Sawyer's "Forain" street coat weighs only 20 ounces. See these new live models and staple "Frog Brand" slickers at the nearest dealers.

Get Yours—TODAY

H. M. SAWYER & SON

EAST CAMBRIDGE MASSACHUSETTS

GRADUATE SCHOOL HAS STUDENTS FROM VENEZUELA AND THIRTY STATES

*** *** *** *** *** ***

Registration Largest in History of School

*** *** *** *** *** ***

Venezuela and thirty of the United States have sent alumni to colleges and universities to study in the graduate school of the university of North Carolina during the fall quarter, according to Dean James F. Royster.

With 210 students in the school now, and a registration of 445 in the summer session, the enrollment so far this year is the largest and most widely distributed in the history of the school. Less duplications, the total number of students since last June has been 609.

Every southern and border state is represented among the graduates now in the school, along with California, Colorado, Oregon and Montana in the west and ten middle western and northern states.

The men students outnumber the women by almost two to one; there are 148 men and 62 women. J. A. Martinez-Ponta, B. S., of the Universidad Central, Caracas, Venezuela, South America, is the only foreigner. He is studying hydraulic engineering.

The institutions represented number 101. The university of North Carolina, of course, is highest on the list with 41 alumni doing graduate work. Next are North Carolina college for women with 10, Davidson with nine, and the Citadel with four. Mississippi, State, Duke, Georgia, Wake Forest, Clemson, Boston, Columbia, Alabama, Chicago, Texas and Vanderbilt are among colleges represented by two or more.

English, with 56 students enrolled, is the most popular subject. History and chemistry, with 21 each, are next, while romance languages and sociology with 16 are tied for fourth.

The enrollment according to major subjects is as follows:

English 56, history and government 32, chemistry 21, romance languages 16, sociology 16, mathematics 13, education 11, classics 7, engineering 7, psychology 7, economics and commerce 5, physics 5, zoology 5, botany 4, geology 2, German 2, philosophy 2, special students 2, comparative literature 1, and rural social economics 1.

ODUM COLLABORATES IN NEW BOOK ON SOCIAL RESEARCH

(Continued from page one)

that the successful coordination that has been achieved in composing the book will be a significant factor in developing a scientific method in social science.

T. V. Smith also compliments the authors and their work, declaring that "its concrete suggestions are marked by sanity and commonsense." While Pitirim Sorokin of the University of Minnesota, another social scientist, offers his approximation thus: "My opinion is that this is the best book that has appeared in its field."

The book itself is one of a social research series that is being printed by the company, of which Dr. Odum is a member of the board of editors. It is also one of a large group, which Dr. Odum has written that deal with other of the studies and problems of social research. Most prominent of these are the books about the negro, a subject upon which he has become particularly well-informed.

In writing these numerous works he has been assisted by other scholars at the University. On this occasion his collaborator is particularly competent by reason of her work as the assisting head of the University Institute for Research in Social Science. Dr. Jocher well deserves the commendation that her part in the work receives.

A millionnaire says that he has not yet visited a night club. This accounts for the fact that he is still a millionaire.

RADIO

NEW SCREEN GRID SETS

Wholesale Prices

Everything in Radio at Wholesale Prices—New Screen Grid, A. C. Humless All-Electric Sets—Standard A. C. sets—battery operated sets—

Priced as low as $15.95

196 PAGE FREE CATALOG

—also an attractive array of beautiful consoles—accessories, parts, kits.

Most complete catalog in radio—196 pages of unusual price values. Write for it today.

ALLIED RADIO CORPORATION

711 W. LAKE ST. Tech. Dept. CHICAGO

U. of N. C. too, prefers Sheaffer's

You can't keep Sheaffer's Lifetime° performance a secret. In 73 of America's 119 leading universities and colleges Sheaffer's swift, easy writing and faultless service have placed Sheaffer's Lifetime° first among all fountain pens in sales.* What pen, other than Sheaffer's Lifetime°, is guaranteed for your entire life . . . against everything except loss? What pen has the smart lines and easy, restful-writing feel of Sheaffer's Balanced Lifetime°? There's a reason for Sheaffer leadership. You'll recognize that the minute you try your Balanced Lifetime° writing companion! Do it today!

At better stores everywhere

All fountain pens are guaranteed against defects, but Sheaffer's Lifetime° is guaranteed unconditionally for your life, and other Sheaffer products are forever guaranteed against defect in materials and workmanship. Green and black Lifetime° pens, $8.75; Ladies', $7.50 and $8.25. Black and pearl De Luxe, $10.00; Ladies', $8.50 and $9.50. Pencils, $5.00. Others lower.

SAFETY SKRIP, Successor to ink. 50c. Refills, 3 for 25c. Practically non-breakable, can't spill. Carry it to classes!

SHEAFFER'S PENS-PENCILS-DESK SETS-SKRIP

W. A. SHEAFFER PEN COMPANY • Fort Madison, Iowa, U.S.A.

°Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. ©W. A. S. P. Co. 1929

*A recent survey made by a disinterested organization showed Sheaffer's first in fountain pen sales at 73 of America's 119 foremost seats of learning. Documents covering this survey are available to anyone.

Joan's Dancing Features at the Carolina Theatre

If Joan Crawford had continued to average the same number of steps daily for four months that she used the first two weeks during the filming of her first starring picture, "Our Modern Maidens," which comes today to the Carolina theatre with a synchronized sound score, she would have exercised the same energy necessary in dancing from Los Angeles to Chicago.

For this popular Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, famous for her dancing both on the stage and in pictures, danced practically every day for five weeks, having spent three weeks training for a specialty number seen in her latest picture. Several different dances were executed during this period.

The old, but still popular "Black Bottom" and the Charleston" contributed several thousand steps to the possible marathon record. Many of the steps were earned in ballroom dancing during "rest periods" between scenes, when the set musician played especially for the star.

One of the unique items of the dancing record is that Miss Crawford danced to several different sources of music and on various floor materials. During the picture she stepped it off on pavement, grass, in a private parlor car, and in a regular ballroom, the music being everything from whistling to an eighteen-piece orchestra. She also danced to the rumbling of thunder during an unusual California storm.

The story is a filmization of ultra-modern youth written by Josephine Lovett, author of "Our Dancing Daughters." Jack Conway directed. The supporting cast includes Rod La Rocque, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Anita Page, Edward Nugent, Josephine Dunn, Albert Gran and others.

Braune Takes Exam For Doctors Degree

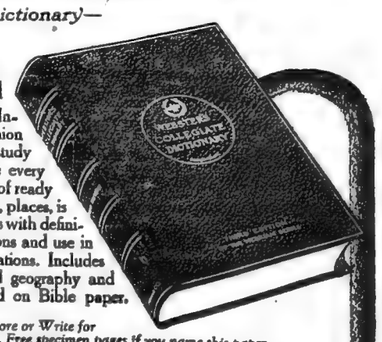
Milton Braun, instructor in physics in the University, passed the preliminary oral examination for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy Monday evening.

The examination passed by Mr. Braun was the preliminary oral examination which must be passed before one can begin work on material for the doctors examination.

As the original work for this degree Mr. Braun is making, together with Dr. Otto Stuhlman head of the physics department, a study of the cause of intensity changes in luminous gasses excited by an electro field in the presence of small amounts of impurities purposely introduced with the object of determining the structure of the molecules of the introduced gasses.

The "dark ages" of Japan extended from 1338 to 1673 though during this time many masterpieces of art were produced and the lyrical drama was introduced.

RECOMMENDED BY THE ENGLISH DEPARTMENT



University of North Carolina

WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE

The Best Abridged Dictionary—It is based upon

Webster's New International

A Short Cut to Accurate Information—here is a companion for your hours of reading and study that will prove its real value every time you consult it. A wealth of ready information on words, persons, places, is instantly yours. 106,000 words with definitions, etymologies, pronunciations and use in its 1,256 pages. 1,700 illustrations. Includes dictionaries of biography and geography and other special features. Printed on Bible paper.

See It at Your College Bookstore or Write for Information to the Publishers. Free specimen pages if you name this paper.

G. & C. MERRIAM COMPANY Springfield, Mass.

. . . in a horse it's SPIRIT!

. . . in a cigarette it's TASTE!

"SAWING WOOD and saying nothing" . . . ageing, blending and cross-blending, the standard Chesterfield method that makes good tobacco deliver its last atom of good taste . . .

And as a result, the most steadfast army of smokers any cigarette ever had! It's plain that smokers get out of Chesterfield precisely what we put in:

"TASTE above everything"

MILD . . . and yet THEY SATISFY

Chesterfield

FINE TURKISH and DOMESTIC tobaccos, not only BLENDED but CROSS-BLENDED

© 1929, LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

Report Circulation Complaints
TAR HEEL OFFICE
8:30-9:30 A. M.

The Daily Tar Heel

BUCCANEER COPY
DEADLINE
5:00 P. M. TODAY

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1929 | NUMBER 12

Autumn Council Meeting Of Women's Clubs Ended

Thirty-six Club Women Finish Two-Day Session Wednesday.

Reports by the department chairmen and the standing committees yesterday morning concluded the two-day session of the Autumn council meeting of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs. An outline of the plans for the coming year were laid before the delegates in the committee reports.

A total of thirty-six club leaders composed of district chairmen, members of the board of trustees, officers of the federation and department chairmen, entrained last night for their homes.

A luncheon tendered the delegates by the Rotary Club of Chapel Hill yesterday officially closed the convention. Rev. C. E. Rozzelle presided at the luncheon.

Prospects for the coming year were reported to be very bright by Mrs. Edward M. Land, president of the confederation, following the convention. She expressed satisfaction with the reception given the delegates by the women of Chapel Hill.

The delegates spent Tuesday in a tour of the campus sponsored by the hospitality committee. Following the inspection trip the visitors were entertained at tea.

The official opening of the conference was held at the Carolina Inn Tuesday night. R. B. House, executive secretary of the university, and Mrs. Mary Graves Rees, of the Community Club, welcomed the delegates to Chapel Hill. Addresses by Mrs. Edward M. Land, president, and Mrs. W. D. Moss ended the opening meeting.

A reception through the courtesy of the university extension division, concluded the activities for the first day.

FIRE CHIEF WARNS OF FIRE DANGERS

"Even though a fireman's life is no bed of roses," said J. L. Foister, chief of the Chapel Hill Fire department, last night, "the force here has had an easy time these last four weeks. There has not been an alarm since about the first of the month.

"But," the chief continued, "we are expecting trouble as soon as the weather turns cooler. People will begin to fire their furnaces, and very few of them will take the precaution to see if the flues in their houses are in good shape. I guess that fully fifty percent of our alarms at this time of the year are sent in for small attic and roof blazes caused by defective flues.

"And right now I want to ask the people of Chapel Hill, and especially the house managers of fraternities, to have the chimney and flues in the houses examined before they build the first fires this fall. Such precaution will save a good bit of trouble and money for the house owners and the town.

"Also," said Chief Foister, "false alarms cost the town money. Every time we take the fire truck out on a run it costs the town at least twenty-five dollars. Be sure there is a fire and then call the station immediately."

England's summer this yea was the sunniest in 18 years.

Buccaneer Deadline

The deadline on all copy and drawings for the first issue of the Buccaneer is this afternoon at five o'clock. Bring all contributions to the Buccaneer office in the Alumni building.

CY EDSON,
Editor.

DEBATING SQUAD MEETS TONIGHT

Williams Will Speak to Forensic Candidates; Definite Information Regarding Carolina-N. C. C. W. Debate Expected.

The second meeting of the debate squad will take place tonight at 7:30 in 201 Murphey hall. Dr. Horace Williams, professor of philosophy and founder of intercollegiate debating at the university, will speak.

Officials of the council expect to be able to release definite information regarding the proposed Carolina-N.C.C.W. debate at the meeting tonight.

Although the present squad enrollment is fifty-nine, all students of the University who are interested in debating are urged by the president of the council to be present at the meeting tonight and to join the squad. All intercollegiate debaters are picked from this group.

The address of Dr. Williams tonight will constitute a study of the fundamentals of debating.

WILLIAM CAIN CHAPTER REORGANIZES TONIGHT

The first meeting of the year of the William Cain student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will be held tonight at 7 o'clock in room 319, Phillips hall.

Dean G. M. Braune, dean of the school of engineering and active member in society activities, will make a short talk on the A.S.C.E. and its student chapters.

This meeting is to be in the nature of an organization meeting, and all men who are taking civil engineering are urged to be present, and a special invitation is extended to all freshmen and sophomores to attend by the society.

Henry and Barrett Lead In Cheerleader Election Balloting

With Jack Barrett and Howard Henry leading in the vote for cheer leader, there will be a second balloting held, according to an unofficial report to the Tar Heel last night.

Barrett led with 170 votes and Henry followed with 151. Both the boys are sophomores.

Voting was slow with only 615 votes cast in all.

The entire ballot and votes received are printed below:

Jack Barrett, '32	170
Howard Henry, '32	151
George Brown, '33	75
Paul Carter, '32	74
Allen Crowson, '33	57
George Biggs, '33	41
Floyd Bass, '32	33
Sam Glaberson, '33	14

STUDENTS ESCAPE INJURY IN CRASH

Presence of Mind Saves Six Students When Elevator Falls.

(By B. H. Whitton)

"Two dead in elevator crash" is probably the briefest way to sum up the catastrophe that occurred in Manning hall yesterday morning about ten o'clock.

During the first-year anatomy class which meets in the dissecting room on the third floor of the med building it became necessary for several students to go to the basement of the building. They got in the manually-operated elevator and attempted to make the descent, but soon after they had started down, a rope broke, and the cage fell to the bottom of the shaft.

One of the six survivors of the deadly crash graphically described the fall saying that as soon as the elevator began to drop every one in it pushed toward the front to be ready to jump for safety when the cage passed the second floor. However, this means of exit from the death trap was securely barred, for the second-floor door was closed just at this time.

In describing the remainder of the descent, the man interviewed said: "The sensation was that of one who is in an airplane which is falling into a loop."

The men in the elevator car realizing that something had to be done, kept their presence of mind enough to grab onto the cables which run up the side of the shaft and so prevented a much more rapid fall. It is probably this which accounts for the fact that there were only two dead in the crash.

The survivor from whom the description was obtained stated that during the time while they were trying to hold the cables, the skin was burned from his hands by the friction, and that the hands of the others who were in the car looked just as if they had been scraped.

When asked what he was thinking about as the car approached the bottom of the shaft, one of the survivors replied: "I was thinking about getting out, holding the cable seemed to have lost its appeal, and everyone was pushing for the side toward the platform, which serves as a step to be used in getting on the elevator in the basement."

The crash of the elevator at the bottom of the pit, which is not equipped with springs to prevent a direct blow against the bottom, was heard over the en-

(Continued on page four)

Playmakers Select Tentative Casts for Forthcoming Plays

Koch Picks Players as Result of Tryouts; Four Plays to Be Produced on Northern Tour.

Professor Frederick Koch has announced the tentative Playmaker casts selected at the tryouts held last Monday and Tuesday. The casts are for Catherine Nolan's "Being Married," Gertrude Wilson Coffin's play "Magnolia's Man," and Paul Green's negro comedy "The No 'Count Boy."

These three productions will be taken on the Playmakers' northern tour November 15 to 30. The three-act version of Loretto Carroll Bailey's "Job's Kinfolks" will be produced on the tour. Tryouts for this will be held at 4:30 Friday in the theatre.

Tentative cast for "Being Married":

Jim, K. Creuser; Pete, R. G. Dawes and J. M. Wood; Connie, Elzada Feaster; Pen, Anne Melick; Dora, Miss A. Lumpkin and Phoebe Harding; Gertie, Beth Colley; Betty, Elizabeth Barber.

Tentative cast for "Magnolia's Man":

Mis' Tish, Mrs. O. J. Coffin; Magnolia, Miss George Wilcox; Newt, B. C. Wilson; Rogers, Marvin Hunter.

Tentative cast for "The No 'Count Boy":

Enos, Howard Bailey; Pheelie, Penelope Alexander; The No 'Count Boy, Newbern Piland and Holmes Bryson; The Old Woman, Not yet selected.

Rhodes Scholarships

All applications for Rhodes Scholarship appointments from this institution must be in the hands of Mr. Hibbard, 203 South building, by Saturday, October 5th, 1929.

VESPER CONCERTS TO BE CONTINUED

First Performance October 20; To Entertain Southern Conference on Education.

The series of vesper concerts inaugurated several weeks ago, which became very popular, are to be continued again this year according to a statement by Dr. Dyer, head of the music department.

The concerts were usually given on the first Sunday of each month at 4 o'clock. Members of the music faculty, student organizations and visiting artists have given these concerts in the past. An unusually fine support was accorded these events, and it is felt for that reason they should be continued.

Series XI begins this month, with the first concert being held not on the first Sunday of the month, but on October 20 instead. This change in date is felt necessary, due to the fact that the university will be a host for the southern conference on education on October 19, 20, 21 and 22. As a part of this program, the university school of music will provide a vesper in Memorial hall for the visiting educators, citizens and students. The program will be given by Professor T. Smith McCorkle, violinist, with Mrs. McCorkle at the piano, Professor Nelson O. Kennedy, pianist, and the university glee club. Professors McCorkle and Kennedy will each perform a group of numbers, following which the glee club will sing a group of numbers which will be used on their fall tour.

YOUNG METHODISTS TO HOLD INITIATION HIKE

On Friday evening the young people of the Methodist church will hold their annual "Initiation Hike." At seven o'clock they will gather in the church parlors and then will take a short hike to a camp fire for a feast of "hot dogs." There will be a painless initiation ceremony for new members of the Epworth League and student Bible classes.

Library Making Campaign to Prevent Mutilation of Books

A campaign to decrease the marking and mutilation of library books by students and faculty members was instituted Wednesday by officials of the library and the English department.

The defacing of many of the standard books in literary history with underlinings, checkmarks, and the like, was the object of the concerted effort by the university officials to save many of the valuable volumes in the library.

A request read to the English students Wednesday asked that:

1. Under no circumstances should a library book be underlined or checked in ink.

2. The practice of underlining in pencil is equally bad.

3. A light pencil check on the margin, which it is the responsibility of the reader to erase, is usually the utmost limit to which a reader should go.

"The loss to the library and the department because of the depreciation of books is great and increasing. Please help in every way you can to lessen the evil."

The campaign was instituted, library officials said, because the practice of marking books had extended to rare books, first editions and expensive sets.

Williams Appoints Senate Committees

The Dialectic senate held its second meeting Tuesday night at 7:15 in the Di hall, New West building.

After having called the meeting to order President Williams appointed the following standing committees: constitution committee — Senator Dungan (chairman), Senator Rector and Senator Studdert; ways and means committee—Senator McPherson (chairman), Senator J. S. Williams and Senator Kincaid; finance committee—Senator Patterson (chairman), Senator Hunter and Senator Fred Wardlaw.

The senate then proceeded to the initiation of new members. The following men were taken in: George Vick, Jr., Selma; G. H. Hine, Winston-Salem; G. W. Wilson, Jr., Gastonia; W. A. Starbuck, Winston-Salem; R. W. Lamm, Wilson; M. P. Moore, Asheville, and W. W. McKee, Chapel Hill.

Phi Sigma Kappa announces the pledging of L. O. Gupton, a sophomore of Rocky Mount.

Tickets on Sale

Dean Addison Hibbard of the school of liberal arts announces that season tickets for the student entertainment attractions are still on sale at the business office in the administration building at $3.00 each. The entertainment committee finds that single admissions to all the performances would amount to $11.00, a saving of $8.00 thereby being saved if the season tickets are bought. Contracts amounting to $5,800 have been let for performances during the coming college year.

STUDENTS URGED TO HAVE PHOTOS TAKEN AT ONCE

All Pictures for Yackety Yack Must Be Made By December 10; No Extension Granted.

The iron-clad, hard and fast rule that all Yackety Yack pictures must be made by December 10 featured the opening yesterday of the annual fall quarter drive for pictures for the yearbook.

Booths have been established at Patterson's Drug Store and at the Students' Supply Store. Appointments are to be made between 1 and 3 o'clock afternoons and 5:30 and 7:30 o'clock evenings. Wootten-Moulten, the Yackety Yack photographers, will be in town regularly after October 9, and the work will be rushed ahead as fast as possible.

Business Manager B. Moore Parker has especially urged that all students comply with the requests of the Yackety Yack and have their pictures made early.

A 25c cut in the portion of the $5 student fee allotted to the Yackety Yack resulted from the extension of the Tar Heel to a daily. This necessitates strict economy. According to the terms of the contract, all pictures must be taken by December 10. Otherwise the printing and engraving bill would be increased roughly by $1,000, and the increase couldn't be handled without seriously impairing the quality of the yearbook.

As a result, Manager Parker explained, it has been found necessary to apply a strict closure rule at December 10. All pictures must be in at that time. The junior and senior pictures are being rushed from the start, and fraternity pictures may be made at any time.

Junior space, it was explained, is paid in one lump sum with fall tuition. Senior space is paid in two installments with fall and winter quarter tuition. The only charge when the picture is taken is a fee of $1.50 which is paid to the photographer.

Radio Presented Music Department

The Majestic Radio company has presented one of its best machines, the super-combination radio and Victrola, to the music department of the university for the use of the students in the music appreciation course.

The machine will be placed in the appreciation room in Person hall until the completion of the department's new quarters in the old library building. The Majestic company timed its gift, which it is making to a number of the outstanding universities, in order that the students may get the benefit of Walter Damrosch's annual series of lectures. These lectures given by the country's most eminent conductor, will be tuned in on every morning at 11 o'clock beginning October 11.

However, the machine will not be for use of the music appreciation students alone. At two o'clock every day any student is welcome to go to number 10, Person, and listen to it.

Mr. D. C. Stephanson, representative of the company, in presenting the machine, stated that it is a policy of the company to make such gifts, and that it asks nothing in return.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon — J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

Thursday, October 3, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

Here is an excellent illustration of the undergraduate attitude in both high schools and colleges: A member of the Chapel Hill high school grid squad was asked yesterday morning why he was not at school. "Aw, it's too wet for football practice," was his rejoinder.

A Burlington man went to sleep with his head on a rail and was struck by a passing train, according to a dispatch from the Alamance metropolis. The story states that he escaped with nothing more serious than a scalp wound. Evidently they produce mighty durable heads in Alamance.

"Governor Gardner Smiles at New York Times Interview"—headline in the Greensboro Daily News. So did a great many other people when they saw the governor quoted as favoring drastic reductions in working hours, higher wages and abolition of the tenement houses in the textile industry. The governor owns interests in several textile mills himself.

A Double Service By Swain Hall

After a lengthy discussion of the Swain hall situation with authorities, our opinion that conversion of one-half of the big dining hall into a cafeteria is practicable as well as highly desirable has not been altered. Just where the money is coming from to purchase the necessary equipment and to renovate the building is another question.

Unlike other state-supported institutions in North Carolina, the university does not provide funds for the operation of a student dining hall. The administration's attitude is that private capital is providing eating establishments which care for the majority of the students, and that as long as this is the case the limited funds at the university's disposal should be employed in meeting more pressing needs. Swain hall is being operated on a self-supporting basis for the benefit of students who cannot afford to eat at the higher priced private establishments. In other words, the university is maintaining Swain hall as a weapon to keep the boarding houses and cafes from extorting exorbitant rates from the students who patronize them.

Without doubt Swain hall is fulfilling an important obligation now by providing food for the students whose finances do not permit them to eat at the more desirable but higher-priced private establishments. But a still more important service would be performed by the university if it supplied at cost food of as great variety and delectability as that dispensed at the better private boarding houses here. Of necessity the prices would be somewhat higher than those charged for board at Swain hall now, but they might be considerably less than those prevailing at Chapel Hill cafeterias and boarding houses.

The Daily Tar Heel believes that funds should be secured for conversion of part of Swain hall into a cafeteria as soon as possible. Contributions from private sources would be the most desirable method for obtaining these funds, but such donations are not easily secured. Probably state appropriations offer the only means of securing the necessary money.

Swain hall would perform a double service to the campus if a cafeteria were operated in conjunction with the regular dining hall. Every effort should be exerted by the powers that be to make this double service possible.

Dispassionate Collegians

Dean Hibbard in a recent address before the junior class made the statement that there is not one intellectual issue of which the undergraduate campus is aware. Howard Mumford Jones in his address before the freshman class last year asked why it is that one year of college takes all the passion and fire out of a student. Editor Holder of the Tar Heel in an editorial last year characterized the typical student as a "lazy collegian" who spends most of his time playing bridge and recuperating from wild parties.

All these statements negate the common conception of college life as the period of highest intellectual activity. Far from being a place of enthusiastic learning, college often becomes a refuge for banality.

The fashionable policy among professors is to blame this state of affairs upon the "dumb" student who is more interested in social activity than learning; perhaps he is, and who wouldn't be when knowldege is shown to be so "dull, flat, and unprofitable" while social life is so attractive? Yet it is not upon the students that we can lay the greater part of the blame. Upon the shoulders of the professors, professional dispensers of knowledge, must rest the responsibility for the low ebb of intellectual activity.

As a typical example of the deadening influence an instructor exerts, we cite a recent occurence which came to our notice. In a class of English poetry the instructor prefaced his remarks on the first day with the statement that "we shall not go into this study with any of the good old eighteenth century lyrical enthusiasm." Immediately after the class a number of students paid fifty cents to the business office for the privilege of dropping the course and taking up something else. Many are still sleeping under the droning lectures of an instructor who talks about English poetry with about as much enthusiasm as we are prone to exhibit for the present rainy weather.

Many professors openly declare their profound contempt for the undergraduate mind and all that is accomplished by the undergraduate student. Such as these are responsible for the low ebb of intellectual enthusiasm.

Before the students are blamed too much we should investigate the intellectual stimulus offered by the professors, we should attend a class conducted by a man who is more interested in some research problem he is studying than in the class, we should see what is the challenge and example thrown out by the professors. Then we will understand in some way the dispassionate collegian whose ranks are enlarging every day. —J. D. M.

Carolina-Virginia Radio Debate

Last spring the university of North Carolina and the university of Virginia participated in the first radio debate ever to be held in the south. Resultant of this is the proposition that this contest be made an annual affair.

For forty years Carolina and Virginia have been vieing with each other for supremacy in every phase of activity. It seems to us only fitting that these ancient and honorable rivals should be linked up annually in a battle of the air. We feel that the proposition is worthy of the consideration of the student body of the university.

Radio debating has definite advantages which are not to be overlooked in this connection. In the first place, many more people can be reached. Since the purpose of intercollegiate debating is coming more and more to be that of educating the public on subjects of national and international importance, radio debating should be of great advantage by virtue of reaching more people.

Regardless of arguments for and against an annual Carolina-Virginia radio debate, such an affair would create a great interest in intercollegiate debating not only on the campus of the university but in statewide circles also.

The purpose of the writer in this editorial is that of bringing the proposition to the attention of the student body with a view to arousing an interest in Carolina-Virginia forensic relations. —J. C. W.

Intercollegiate

Professor E. D. Hay of the mechanical engineering department at Kansas university announces that the K. U. flying course is almost under way. Arrangements have been made with a Kansas City flying school to handle the students and as soon as 15 students can be signed up definitely for the course a school will be established. At a recent meeting over 20 enthusiastic students were all ready to start conquering the air and fifteen said they would take the course. All interested persons were asked to deposit their down payments of $200. Instruction will be given morning and evening at the field.

Because they violated the rules against "paddling" of new recruits, the two pep organizations of the university of Oklahoma were abolished recently, at a meeting of the board of regents, and 59 male members were suspended.

The organizations were known as the "Ruf-Neks" and the "Jazz Hounds." The action came as a result of recent paddlings administered to freshmen. The regents were called into special session to consider the action.

Movies taken of sleepers indicate that the greatest possible relaxation occurs when the individual coils himself like a kitten and when he sprawls out like a swimmer. This new evidence on sleep is announced by Professor S. R. Hathaway of Ohio university and Dr. H. M. Johnson of the Mellon institute, who are conducting a lengthy investigation of sleep at the institute.

Sleepers who took part in the experiment were blindfolded to avoid disturbance from light and were photographed in various poses by a motion picture camera. A typical subject took nine different poses in the course of about eight hours sleep and shifted from one position to another 33 times. All of the preferred positions required some supporting strain and the experimenters discovered that about half the time is spent in postures which are minor-images of others, thus resting the muscles that have been strained in previous poses.

After a thorough test made under actual playing conditions, officials at Oklahoma A. and M. college are convinced that night football will be a success.

Two weeks before the opening game the giant flood lights were turned on Lewis field after dark and a dozen players dressed in uniform held a light informal workout while the coaches and several hundred fans looked on.

The amount of light shed on the field from the dozen lamps was a distinct surprise to most of the spectators. Every punt and forward pass stayed within the lighted region and players agreed that the light did not hurt their eyes.

Even the stands on Lewis field were well lighted and spectators seated on the top rows were able to read newspapers.

The giant poles which support the flood lights are set 14 feet out from the sides of the field so there is no danger of players colliding with them when a play goes out of bounds.

The fossil skeleton of a giant hog which stood seven feet tall has just been mounted in Morrel hall at the university of Nebraska. The terrible pig in his prehistoric day was as high as the tallest modern automobile and had a wheel base of about 140 inches.

The fossil was dug up in Sioux county Nebraska. Only two of the giants have ever been discovered, the other being smaller than the university speeimen. The pig, scientifically termed Dinohyus hollandi, lived during the late oligocene or the early Miocene age, which would give him an antiquity of some twelve million years.

NORMAN FOERSTER'S NEW BOOK IS NOW AVAILABLE

Those looking forward to Professor Norman Foerster's new book, American Scholar, will be glad to know that it is now on sale. It may be obtained from the university of North Carolina press, by whom it is published, or from the Bull's Head book shop.

"Have our literary scholars lost sight of their proper objects of study by an all but complete surrender to the mechanical age and to the sensational and commercial spirit of America?" This is the question faced frankly in the American Scholar.

In his criticism of the modern types of educators and their systems of education, Professor Foerster writes trenchantly yet moderately. His book closes with a plan of education calculated to attract rather than repel promising young scholars and to train them rather than to misshape them.

Professor Foerster is a well known scholar and author of today. His recent books are the Reinterpretation of American Literature which he edited for the modern language association, and American Criticism which was included in the League of Nations list of 1928.

ARBORETUM WEATHERS RAIN WITHOUT MISHAP

Chapel Hill's beautiful arboretum was put through a crucial test during the week's heavy rainstorm, and has emerged triumphantly from the natural forces which tried again to reclaim the picturesque area as a swamp.

Landscape architects who first converted the lowlands into a versatile garden, were inspired into the placing of proper drainage in the arboretum which would meet just such tests of water as the section has just withstood.

For the most part, the bulk of the floodwater which gathered during the two-day period of several inches of rainfall, was properly and quickly drained out of the arboretum before its action damaged the property. However, the sides of some of the slightly elevated sand walks in the garden were washed away. Yet at only one place was it noticed where water flowed across a sand walk and the pedestrian had to ford the resulting little stream. This branch was caused by a stoppage of leaves in a drain culvert.

CAROLINA THEATRE

LAST TIMES TODAY
JOAN CRAWFORD
in
"Our Modern Maidens"
Added Features
"FARO NELL"
All Talking Comedy
Paramount Sound News

From an engraving of the time in Harper's Weekly

Autumn of '79

WHILE Yale and Princeton were battling to a tie at Hoboken, New Jersey, a small group of scientists, directed by Thomas A. Edison, was busy at Menlo Park, only a few miles away. On October 21, their work resulted in the first practical incandescent lamp.

Few realized what fifty years would mean to both electric lighting and football. The handful who watched Yale and Princeton then has grown to tens of thousands to-day. And the lamp that glowed for forty hours in Edison's little laboratory made possible to-day's billions of candle power of electric light. In honor of the pioneer achievement, and of lighting progress, the nation this year observes Light's Golden Jubilee.

Much of this progress in lighting has been the achievement of college-trained men employed by General Electric.

JOIN US IN THE GENERAL ELECTRIC HOUR, BROADCAST EVERY SATURDAY AT 9 P.M., E.S.T. ON A NATION-WIDE N.B.C. NETWORK

GENERAL ELECTRIC
GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY, [illegible] STADY, NEW YORK

Heels Work in Open Air as Maryland Game Draws Near

Three Teams Take Part in Scrimmage on First Fair Day; Leave Tonight.

The rain let up here yesterday and the Tar Heels held their first outdoor practice of the week in preparation for the Maryland game Saturday.

The field was still pretty damp and the coaches let the men off with line scrimmage and periods of defense against Maryland plays run by the freshman gridders.

Three full elevens took part in the day's activities. Johnny Branch ran one backfield with Jimmy Ward and Strud Nash at the halves and Yank Spaulding at fullback.

A second backfield included Pete Wyrick, quarter; Jim Magner and Rip Slusser, halfbacks, and Pap Harden, fullback.

The Tar Heels will throw their full strength into the Maryland game.

The regular varsity line of Holt and Fenner, ends; Koenig and Adkins, tackles; Captain Farris and Eskew, guards, and Lipscomb, center, was running intact except for Holt, who took another rest on account of his cold.

Jimmy Maus, who broke a nose in scrimmage last week, was running at half again today, behind a big noseguard. Holt should be in shape by game time Saturday. Henry House, plunging fullback, hurt his leg in today's work, but the injury is not expected to keep him out.

Coach Byrd Reviews North Carolina Team

College Park, Md., Oct. 1.—University of North Carolina's football team, with one possible exception, is the best ever produced in the South Atlantic section that includes Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia and the two Carolinas, in the opinion of H. C. (Curley) Byrd, the Old Line mentor, who saw the Tar Heels treat Wake Forest so ruthlessly in Chapel Hill last Saturday.

It is a team that has everything, in his estimation, and is particularly blessed with two great sets of backs. In fact, he says that the Tar Heels have eight backs anyone of whom is better than Maryland's premier ball-toter.

Byrd will drive his senior eleven and his Sophomore reserves hard this week to strive to stem the North Carolina onrush here Saturday but he sees it as one of the biggest tasks the Old Liners have ever faced, Yale or any other teams not excepted.

New System Features Intramural Program

The fall intramural program will get underway Monday, October 7th, with the opening of the dormitory and fraternity tag football leagues. Schedules for these leagues will be published in a few days.

In addition to tag football there will be two tournaments run off by the intramural department during the fall; namely, golf and tennis. Notice will be made later as to when entries will be accepted.

An added feature of this year's program, will be the awarding of a large silver loving cup to the dormitory or fraternity which compiles the highest score during the year. The rules governing this award are as follows:

1. (a) Each fraternity and dormitory entering a team in the football league shall receive 50 points.

(b) Each fraternity and dormitory entering a team in the basketball league shall receive 50 points.

(c) Each fraternity and dormitory entering a team in the baseball league shall receive 50 points.

2. Each team shall be allowed one forfeit in each sport without being penalized. For each forfeited game in excess of one, 10 points shall be deducted from the entrance points.

3. The winner of each league in each sport shall receive 50 points; second place, 35 points; third place, 25 points; fourth place, 15 points; fifth place, 10 points.

4. The winner of the all-campus championship in each sport shall receive 50 additional points.

5. (a) Individual winners in tournaments or contests conducted by this department will have their points credited to the dormitory or fraternity which they represent.

(b) In every case excepting cross-country and track the organization represented by the runner-up shall receive 10 points.

(c) In the cross-country meet the organizations represented by the first fifteen men to finish will receive points as follows: first, 15 points; second, 14 points; etc. — fifteenth 1 point.

(d) In track meets the organizations represented by the first four men in each event shall receive 5, 3, 2, and 1 point respectively.

No more entries for the tag football leagues will be accepted after Thursday night. Organizations that have not filed their entry should do so at once.

FROSH RUNNERS BEGIN TRAINING

Cross-Country Team Candidates Show Exceptional Ability.

The freshman cross country team began work last week with a large number of candidates reporting. Among the most promising of the aspirants are Clarence Jensen of East Orange, N. J., Mark Jones of Asheville and Nat Lumpkin of Charlotte. Jensen was a member of the cross country and track teams of Newark prep school last year, and besides finishing well toward the first in the cross country meets has to his credit the time of 4:33 in the mile. Jones ran the mile for Asheville last year and won this event in the state high school meet. Lumpkin ran the mile for Charlotte high school last year and placed in every meet.

Others who are showing up well in practice are Bonner, Boyd, Howley, London and Watkins.

Coach Ranson wishes to remind the candidates that rainy weather does not excuse them from attending practice, and that they should report to the stadium every afternoon at 4 o'clock for instructions.

Notice

Professor McIntosh, of the School of Education, asks that all students interested in high school coaching meet in room 6 of Peabody Building this morning at 10:30.

Special Prices

—for—

DUKE - PITT GAME

Durham - Saturday

5-Passenger Cars, Round Trip $4.00
(80c each for party of five)

7-Passenger Cars, Round Trip $5.00
(71c each for party of seven)

DRIVE YOURSELF, GO TO YOUR DESTINATION, WITH YOUR OWN PARTY.

The Cheapest Way

Carolina U Drive It

Round the Corner from Post Office - Telephone 3861

A Local Club Rate

of

$5.00

FOR ALL

University Publications

The Daily Tar Heel

The Carolina Magazine

The Buccaneer

The Yackety Yack

MAIL CHECKS NOW

Carolina Publications Union

The Daily Tar Heel

Covers Chapel Hill

NEWS THOROUGHLY

And

ALL CAMPUS EVENTS

LOCAL

Subscriptions $2.00

OUT-OF-TOWN

Subscriptions $4.00

SUBSCRIBE NOW

The Daily Tar Heel

STUDENTS SHOW SEDATE TASTES

Choose Books of General Nature Over Novels, Survey Reveals.

For the third time in the calendar year, sales of contemporary fiction amounted to more than sales of any other type of book at the Bull's Head book shop last week. The taste of students at the university seems to be rather for general works of various sorts, chiefly the Everyman and Modern Library series, which contain books in low-priced editions valuable because of their bearing on the study being carried on here.

An analysis of the reports of the book shop is of interest in its indication of the literary taste of Carolina students. Recent and standard biographies, literary histories, and the like seem to hold the center of the stage in the book field on the campus. Last week, for instance, eleven such works were bought by students, twelve Everyman books were purchased, and thirteen books of contemporary fiction sold, but the proportion is generally the opposite, Everyman books holding the lead. Poetry and drama are the least popular forms of literature.

Strangely enough, juvenile books have a good sale at the Bull's Head. The use to which such books are put is not clear in all cases, but a fair indication was furnished during the summer when a run on Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare in an attractive illustrated edition selling for $1.25 was made: the sophomore drama survey course was passing over the period of Shakespeare, and Shakespeare's plays are much longer than Charles and Mary Lamb's synopses.

By a judicious choice of new novels, the Bull's Head is able to present its patrons the choice books in the field as they appear. Only a small stock is kept on hand, and this is turned over often. A single novel seldom sells more than five or six copies over a period of two months. By keeping orders within this limit, the shop is able to give a wide choice of novels to those who frequent the reading room or purchase books from its shelves. Numerous students find it convenient to use the Bull's Head as a reading room in which to spend spare time profitably.

Among the new books which are to be found on the shelves of the shop are Norman Foerster's American Scholar, a criticism of contemporary scholarly methods and aims published by the university press; Evelyn Scott's The Wave, heralded as the best novel yet written on the War of Secession; Ralph Rashleigh's Adventures of an Outlaw, the recently-discovered autobiography of a daring bandit of the early nineteenth century; Oursler's The World's Delight, the story of Swinburne's mistress; Claude G. Bowers' The Tragic Era; Gorman's Dumas: The Incredible Marquis; Howard W. Odum's Wings on My Feet; and Ludwig's On Mediterranean Shores. A selection of novels of the last two weeks is expected in the next few days.

Trains are expected to be running before the end of this year on parts of the new trans-Persian railway which has been constructed between the Persian Gulf and Dizful and from the Caspian Sea to Aliabad.

A language for all nations has been developed. It contains 500 words and is called "panoptic English."

There are said to be 27 varieties of sea gulls.

AUTHOR DESCRIBES PRESIDENT'S VISIT

Claude G. Bowers, author of "The Tragic Era," tells in his recent and popular book of the only time that Andrew Johnson, president of the United States after Lincoln's assassination, ever visited Chapel Hill.

Johnson had journeyed to Raleigh, where he assisted in the dedication of a monument to his father. From Raleigh, he went to Chapel Hill to dine with President Ruffin on commencement day. Addressing the students, he urged the study of the principles of the constitution and free government. Afterwards Johnson became tired and depressed and quite worn out by the ceremonies. And, as Bowers states it: "Finally breaking away from the dignitaries, he wandered over the campus with some of the students, and one of these suggested that there was a bottle of real Kentucky rye in the dormitory. Gladly enough, he trooped with the students upstairs in the Old South building; there was a scurrying about for ice, sugar and the 'makin's' and he drained two generous glasses. One of the boys thought afterward that he was 'athirst,' and the hospitality of the boys was uncritical."

LIBRARY BEGINS BOOK COLLECTION THIS WEEK

Starting with this week the university library is beginning a special collection of books which will include the best and most popular non-fiction on the market. This collection will contain only books of general interest including biography, religion, facts and sociology.

These books will circulate every two weeks the same as the books in the general library. A special feature of this collection is that it will be supplemented practically every week.

Every national event observed by teachers and other libraries will also be observed by this library in that most of the books contained in the general library related to the event to be celebrated will be placed in the special collection.

The national "Poe Celebration" which takes place within a few weeks will be observed by the library. Books related to the life of Poe and his works will be placed in the special collection.

This collection is located at the left of the delivery desk in the delivery room on the second floor.

GROUP VOICE TRAINING IS CONDUCTED BY DYER

For the benefit of any students who have been unable to try out for the glee club, Dr. Dyer announces that group voice training is being conducted every day except Wednesday in Person hall from 4 to 5 p. m. No charge is made for this training, it being the purpose of the department to allow as many students as have this hour open on any two days of the week to avail themselves of this experience.

Dr. Dyer also announces that in view of the large number of candidates, the two glee clubs, which are soon to be selected, will be picked from these voice training groups. Registration for this work is made by the applicant turning in his name at the voice class. No other formality is required.

The automatic light buoys which guide ships through the Panama Canal are based on a Swedish invention.

Most of the whaling vessels still afloat make their headquarters at San Francisco and hunt in far northern waters.

N. C. C. W. Students Elect Officers for Campus Activities

Cecile Lindau Chosen to Head Playlikers, Dramatic Organization.

Greensboro, Oct. 2.—Recent elections at North Carolina college for women have resulted in the choice of several students for official work in a number of organizations.

Playlikers, dramatic organization of the campus, lately chose Miss Cecile Lindau, of this city, to head that association. Miss Lindau takes the place of Miss Louise Crim of Winston-Salem, resigned.

The zoology field club selected the following officers at a recent meeting: Miss Manie Robinson of Morven, president; Miss Elizabeth Wilkinson of Cary, chairman of the program committee; Miss Ruth Brantley of Spring Hope, vice president; Miss Nellie Robbins of Jamestown, secretary-treasurer, and Miss Sadie Troutman of Mooresville, chairman of the publicity committee.

The international relations club also added to its list of officials Miss Mattie Moore Taylor of Enfield, chairman of the program committee, and Miss Margaret Denson, chairman of the committee on attendance and membership.

The junior class lately accepted as one of its class songs a composition by Miss Eloise Banning of Raleigh. Miss Banning was also made secretary-treasurer of the Playlikers at the meeting of that organization.

STUDENTS ESCAPE INJURY IN CRASH

(Continued from page one)

tire building, and when those investigating the cause of the terrific noise reached the shaft, they found there five men who had jumped to safety as the elevator descended the last few feet, and one man was still alive in the cage. As the elevator was nearing the bottom, he had grabbed the upward moving cables and so been lifted from the floor.

In addition to these men who had been severely frightened but had otherwise escaped injury, two bodies, covered with many lacerations, lay on the floor of the elevator. The bodies were lying flat, just as if absolutely nothing had happened since the students had put their stiffs in the elevator to take them to the basement to continue their cutting on the bodies.

Faxon Loose-Leaf
STUDENT NOTEBOOKS
$1.00 and up
It's An Ideal Student Notebook
Students' Supply Store
Everything in Stationery

STATIONERY
needs no tongue—
to tell about you; its texture, its quality, its appearance—the very crispy crackle the envelope gives as it is opened—are eloquent to eye and ear and finger-tips.
Old Hampshire Stationery is eloquent in just this way—it tells volumes about you, about your taste and good judgment.
Old Hampshire Stationery
Sold in Chapel Hill by Sutton & Alderman

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS HOLD MEETING TONIGHT

The university of North Carolina student branch of the American institute of electrical engineers will hold its first meeting of the fall tonight at 9:15 in Phillips hall.

At this meeting Professor Bason, head of the electrical engineering department, and Mr. Winkler of the engineering faculty, will speak. This will be the first time that either of these men have spoken before the local branch, and will be in the nature of a formal introduction to the members.

The officers of the U. N. C. branch of the institute are J. J. Alexander, president; Val Hedgepeth, vice-president; F. R. Toms, secretary; W. B. White, treasurer, and Professor J. E. Lear, advisor.

FOR RENT

Comfortable room for two. Hot water. Reasonable rates. Apply 415 Cameron Ave.

Kindergarten and Recreation School

A modern kindergarten school is being conducted at the Methodist Church, hours 9 to 12 A. M. Children are admitted at the ages of 3 1-2 to 6 years. Tuition fee is 6 dollars per month.

Classes in supervised recreation are being conducted in the kindergarten room from 2 to 5 P. M. Children are admitted to these classes at the ages of 3 to 8 years. They are well taken care of at a reasonable rate by the day or week. Parents or guardians desiring this service will call at the school or phone Mrs. O. B. Williams, the director, at number 5921.—Adv.

Spanish Club Meets

The El Circulo Hispano Club will hold its first meeting of the year Friday night at 8 o'clock in the social rooms of the Episcopal church. All members are urged to be present.

What America needs is to get more mileage out of our parades.

One of the fastest sprinters in the world, Jack Elder, will be a backfield man at Notre Dame this year.

FOR SALE OR RENT

Nine room house one block of Post Office and Campus. Ideal for boarding or rooming house. Lights, water heat, garage. See W. L. Tankersly, Tankersly Building.

Bring your Ford here!

New Ford Coupe $550 (F.O.B. Detroit)

We'll oil and grease it at a low price and help you to keep it in the very best running order at all times. All labor billed at low, flat rate. We use only genuine Ford parts. Specially trained mechanics who take pride in doing a good job. Ask about the Special Inspection at $1.50.

Ford

Strowd Motor Co.

The seat won't seem so hard at the end of the session when you're energized by a breakfast of SHREDDED WHEAT. The vital food elements, vitamins, proteins, carbohydrates, mineral salts, bran—all answer "present" in

Shredded Wheat

EAT IT WITH WHOLE MILK

NOTICE

Juniors and Seniors

THE YACKETY YACK PHOTOGRAPHER IS HERE

Make Your Appointments

From 1-3 O'clock
Or From 5:30-7:30

—AT—

Patterson's Drug Store

OR

Students' Supply Store

DO IT NOW

AND

AVOID THE RUSH

Tar Babies vs. Roanoke College
4:00 P. M.
KENAN STADIUM

The Daily Tar Heel

Tar Babies vs. Roanoke College
4:00 P. M.
KENAN STADIUM

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1929 | NUMBER 13

PLAYERS ENLARGE TECHNICAL STAFF

New Director Was Formerly With Wharf Players, Provincetown, Mass.

Elmer Hall, former technical director of the Wharf Players of Provincetown, Mass., has recently taken over the technical directorship of the Carolina Playmakers, succeeding Samuel Selden.

Mr. Hall comes to the university with a record of several years of experience in this line of work. Born in Cambridge, Mass., in 1904, he graduated from the Rindge Technical high school and the Massachusetts school of art, being awarded at the latter a medal, the highest honor in the class, for a thesis, "Stage Lighting," and a model stage with lighting equipment. During the seasons 1923-24 and 1924-25 he acted and designed scenery with the Boston Theatre Guild.

During the summer of 1924 he was with Oliver Hinsdell at the Outdoor Players, and in 1924-25 with the Mariarden company at Peterborough, N. H. From 1926 to 1929 he was on the faculty of Emerson college of oratory, Boston, as instructor in stage lighting and designing. He is also author of "Stage Lighting, its History, Mechanics, Art," published by Emerson college.

In 1927-28 Mr. Hall acted as stage manager with Fritz Leiber in the plays of Shakespeare on tour; and during the seasons of 1926-27 and 1928-29 he was with the Repertory theatre of Boston. During the summers of 1927, 1928 and 1929 he was technical director of the Wharf Players of Provincetown, Mass.

Mr. Hall is well versed in all branches of stage art, particularly in photography and painting.

Carolina To Give Special Review

Officials of University, Tar Heel, Weekly, and News Bureau To Be Among Pre-Viewers.

University officials, clergymen, and the press will be present at a special previewing of the motion picture, "Noah's Ark," which is coming to Chapel Hill and will be shown at the Carolina Theatre.

Invitations to attend the special showing, which will be given at eleven o'clock either Friday or Saturday night, have been sent to President Chase, Messrs. Robert House, Charles Woollen, Harry Comer, Frank Graham, Dr. R. D. W. Connor, Dr. Harold Meyer, Dr. Odum, Dr. Noble, Dr. Knight, Dean Bradshaw, and other high University officials, in an effort to get the opinions of prominent educationalists, historians, and sociologists on the picture, believed to be one of the most important of the cinema year.

In addition to the university officials invited, the Reverend C. E. Rozzelle of the Methodist church, Pastor Eugene Olive of the Baptist church, the Reverend Alfred S. Lawrence of the Episcopal church and the Reverend B. J. Howard of the Christian church are being asked to attend the special showing of the picture, which has already been endorsed by preachers, rabbis, and priests all over the country.

Officials of the Daily Tar Heel, the Chapel Hill Weekly, and the University News Bu-

(Continued on page four)

Dr. Jordan's Educational Psychology Has Heavy Sale

Book Used Widely As Text Book By Psychologists; Sales Over 10,000.

Professor A. M. Jordan's latest book, Educational Psychology, which was published in the spring of 1928, is having phenominal success, it sales having already far surpassed the mark set for successful modern text books.

Dr. Jordan, professor of educational psychology in the university of North Carolina, is declared by many to have written one of the best text books of its kind that has been published. Educational Psychology has met with genuine approval of more teachers and students than any other text in the field of educational psychology. Published late in the spring of 1928, its success was immediate and widespread and there is every indication that its crest has not yet been reached. Already more than 180,000 copies have been sold.

The book was first written and used by Professor Jordan in his classes at the university in a mimeographed book form. [illegible] he had it published and its success has been assured. Dr. Jordan has not relied on the material gathered from old sources but has secured new material from entirely new sources and he gives that as one of the main reasons for its success.

The division of the book into four parts has aided materially in the teaching of it and has increased its popularity greatly. More than 100 schools, colleges and universities throughout the country have adopted this book and all have praised it.

J. J. Hudson of Western Reserve university says: "I am very favorably impressed with Jordan's organization and treatment of the various topics in this field, and particularly the practical application he makes of the principles of psychology in meeting actual problems of learning."

In writing this book Dr. Jordan has experimented to a large degree with some of his classes in educational psychology in the university and thus accounts for the directness of style in which it is written. Dr. Jordan, as far as possible, eliminated the use of technical terms unfamiliar to the student.

Perhaps the most thorough criticism of this book is by Stuart M. Stoke in the Journal of Applied Psychology when he states that "Professor Jordan has written a readable education psychology—an achievement of no mean proportion in a field which bristles with statistical and technical studies. Problems of learning, how to study, and transfer of training are well handled. . . . One particularly commendable feature is the inclusion of so much material of recent date. In a field as much in flux as educational psychology this is especially desirable. The chapters are well summarized and exercises are also provided. In brief, the author has used educational psychology in writing educational psychology."

In addition to this book Dr. Jordan has written A Children's Interest in Reading which was published, in a revised form, by the university of North Carolina press in 1926.

Asheville high school has a Japanese football coach, Art Matsu, who played at William and Mary.

Johnston To Talk To Cain Society

Mr. James Houston Johnston, director of the tenth district of the American Society of Civil Engineers will speak to the junior and senior members of the William Cain student branch of the A.S.C.E. Friday morning during the 11 or the 12 o'clock period.

Mr. Johnston is a prominent consulting engineer of Atlanta and is also the consulting engineer of the Georgia Railroad Commission. Although the subject of his talk Friday has not been announced, he will speak on some phase of the civil engineering society.

COLLEGIATE MAGAZINE CEASES PUBLICATION

The New Student, an intercollegiate magazine that circulates in every college of the country, has discontinued publication because of lack of financial support.

The passing of the New Stu[illegible]arks the last of a unique [illegible]nture in the publishing field. For seven years the magazine, edited by college students and recent graduates, has held a mirror to college life; the files for those years are a complete history of higher education in a changing post-war era. In addition to news, the magazine attempted to shape educational policy in the direction of more student freedom and initiative and against the goose step methods. It succeeded in making ardent friends and bitter enemies among professors, administrators, and alumni by its forthright championing of progressive educational methods in every occasion.

There are 18,000 Quakers in the United Kingdom.

SPRINKLER URGES FROSH TO FOLLOW BALANCED LIVES

Speaker at Chapel Exercises Warns Frosh against Spending Too Much Time on Any One Thing.

"My son, when you get to college look out for your mental and spiritual health, and in the time that remains study," these are a counterpart of the words used by Theo. Roosevelt at his son's entrance to college.

This morning in chapel Mr. Sprinkler brought to light the fact that very few, if any, of the students at the university need be warned about anything along that line.

Continuing, he said, "In 1870 Cecil Rhode entered Oxford university, but in a few months he was forced to leave because of his health. He went to South Africa, regained his health, and while there made a great deal of money in the diamond mines. He then returned to school, but again was forced to leave in search of his lost health. He regained it and returned to school, and during his entire education this process was repeated many times.

"This man through his great wealth founded what is known as the Rhodes Scholarship fund, which is awarded to those students who have recorded the most well-balanced and impressive activities during their college career.

Mr. Sprinkler brought out these facts in order to remind every man in the class of '33, as well as the entire school, that they should begin balancing their college lives at the earliest possible moment.

At the close of the period the freshmen received a shock that was expected to unbalance them all mentally. There will be no chapel Friday!

Chattanooga Professor Tells What Makes the Yo-Yo 'Yo'

Mechanism of Recent Fad Is Explained by Dr. D. W. Cornelius, Doctor of Physics.

What makes the yo-yo "yo?" That is the question that seems to be worrying many of the followers of this latest and popular fad that has recently struck the country. "Torque," says Dr. D. W. Cornelius of Chattanooga, and he ought to know for he is professor of physics. If you don't know what a yo-yo is, you at least know what makes it "yo."

A yo-yo is a little disc-like spool, attached by its axle to a string which is perhaps a yard long. To make it "yo" the string is wound about the axle of the spool. Then if you know how, you can drop the spool and watch it climb back up the string. If you know your "yo-yo" you can throw it straight out, over your head, loop-to-loop, and perform many slick tricks. No matter where you throw it, always the spool climbs back up the string.

Yo-yo is the fad of people of every class and station. College presidents, professors, politicians, bootblacks, soda clerks, newsboys, all have their yo-yo's; they range from the simple dime ones to more expensive jeweled ones. All have the same principle in common; they "yo-yo" alike.

Dr. Cornelius explains the con-

(Continued on page four)

Initiation Session Held By Assembly

The meeting of the Phi Assembly was called to order by the speaker pro-tem Albright in absence of the regular speaker. Due to the large number of new members the minutes and the roll call were postponed temporarily.

Twenty new members were initiated and formally given membership in the society.

Immediately following the initiation ceremony the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved and the roll called.

Much interest was shown in a smoker give in honor of the new men.

The following bills are to come before the Phi assembly at the meeting Tuesday night:

Resolved: That the Phi assembly go on record as favoring Dean Hibbard's proposal that some group make a critical study of the various aspects of student life at the University in order to suggest a more satisfactory curriculum.

Resolved: That the assembly condemn the apparent coercion in regard to price, of the tobacco planters in this state, by the various manufacturers.

Resolved: That the assembly endorses the recent move by the University to eliminate canvassing in the dormitories.

German Club Committee Publishes Its New Policy

Ticket Notice

Today is the last day that tickets for the Yale-Georgia football game can be procured at the Business Office of U. N. C.

Dormitory Officers Elected at Smokers

Twelve out of the thirteen dormitories on the campus report very successful and enjoyable smokers. Last Friday night was "Dormitory Organization Night," and it was well used for that exact purpose. The only dormitory not reporting a smoker will have its gathering this Friday night. The officers elected for the various dormitories were: presidents, vice-presidents, managers, and dormitory councilmen. Only the names of the presidents are included here:

New Dorms—J. T. Harden.
Old West—Frank A. Jones.
Old East—B. C. Wilson.
Steele—A. D. McNeill.
Carr—Dean A. Ward.
Grimes—Ben F. Beam.
Manly—J. M. Graham.
Ruffin—J. S. Weathers.
Mangum—J. G. Pleasant.
Aycock—Burtis Aycock.
Graham—S. E. Griffin.
Lewis—T. L. Hunter.
Everett—J. E. Heller.

In addition to the election of officers, the dormitories report good social programs. Dormitory problems were considered by the members. Eats and smokes were served. New men were welcomed. The dormitory council system and its powers and purposes explained.

Coaching School To Be Held By Ashmore

The meeting held Thursday morning in Peabody room 6 resulted in a decision to hold the basketball coaching class at chapel period during the fall quarter. Coach Ashmore explained that he could devote his time to the work better during the fall than the winter or spring, since he is tied up with the varsity basketball program in the winter and baseball in the spring. The first lecture on basketball will be held next Tuesday, October 8th, at 10:30 o'clock in Murphey 110. All who are interested in taking this course should report for the first lecture. Classes will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of each week at chapel period and the laboratory work will be given in the tin can two evenings each week. Any man in college who expects to teach next year is invited to take these courses. There is no credit given for the work, but it is free.

The coaches deserve commendation for their willingness to cooperate in preparing the men for the work of high school coaching, and the men who expect to teach in high schools next year will be more likely to get better positions if they are trained to take charge of some branch of athletics. The Teacher's Bureau of the school of education states that a man who can handle a team is never hard to place.

Everybody wants to relieve prison congestion, but when the convicts try it we discourage them.—Dallas News.

Copies of By-laws and Policies Of Executive Committee to Be Sent All Fraternities.

In order to familiarize the fraternities and new men on the campus with the policies of the German club and its by-laws, the executive committee of the club decided at its last meeting to have copies of the by-laws and policies printed and distributed among the fraternities in Chapel Hill.

The committee is composed of four officers of the club and five members appointed by the president. This committee with the faculty committee appointed by Dr. Chase regulates all dances given in Chapel Hill.

The members of the committee this year are Charles Waddell, chairman; George Race, president of the German club; Julian Palmore, vice-president; Bob Zealy, secretary and treasurer; Will Yarborough, assistant secretary and treasurer, and George Sanders, Gordon Gray, Dick Winborne and Travis Brown. The faculty committee is composed of Dr. W. S. Bernard, chairman, and Dr. W. M. Dey and Dr. R. E. Coker.

The policy of the club is as follows:

"To those new arrivals ignorant of the social machinery of the university of North Carolina, it may be explained that all dances given by any organization in the university, or any group of students thereof, are under the supervision of a committee composed of the faculty committee on dances, acting jointly with an executive council of the German club. This council is composed of nine upperclassmen of the university. The problem of chaperonage and supervision is managed through this channel. Early application should be made at 106 Murphey hall concerning intended dances.

"To dispell any suspicion of an idea that theirs is a secret police organization, the German club executive committee herewith sets forth its policy and its personnel: we hold that it is an exceedingly disagreeable duty to have to report a fellow student for misconduct at a dance. We shall consider it an act of courtesy on the part of those who might have imbibed any intoxicant to stay away from any social function that might be given at a parallel time.

"The executive committee is not a detective organization. Its purpose is to continue dances at Chapel Hill and to make them as attractive as possible. We do not wish to warn the student body, we wish, rather, to gain its co-operation in eliminating drinking during dances at Carolina."

The by-laws of the German club are as follows:

"The members of the university of North Carolina German club in regular session assembled do adopt, in joint agreement with the faculty committee on dances, in accordance with the constitution, the following by-laws:

"I. The executive committee of the German club shall act as a committee for the purpose of keeping order at all dances given under the auspices of the German club. The leaders of each dance shall act as temporary members of this committee. With the advice of the exec-

(Continued on page four)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.
The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Friday, October 4, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

The reporter who ducked into a rain barrel when the shooting started at Marion evidently believed in preserving the fourth estate.

The thing that surprises us most about this 252-year-old man who has been discovered living in Kaihsien is that he has not yet attributed his longevity to some brand of tobacco or patent medicine.

The lead in yesterday's Daily Tar Heel which read "two men dead in elevator crash" was substantially correct. Merely a matter of transposition of words "men" and "dead." They were med school "stiffs."

From Raleigh comes the report that sea gulls soared over the city during the heavy rains the first of the week. We shouldn't have been surprised to have seen whales in Chapel Hill if the downpour had continued much longer.

Industrial Warfare Breaks Out Afresh.

North Carolina shuddered yesterday as the news of the latest textile strike tragedy spread over the state. The fatal gun battle at Marion has forced upon North Carolina the grim realization that the forces of labor and capital are settling down in deadly earnest to long and bloody warfare with this state as the battlefield.

A dispute over whether the sheriff's forces or the strikers fired the first shot in the battle which resulted in the death of three union men and the fatal wounding of probably six more has already started. That will be a question for the courts to settle—but it is of little importance. The real problem before the courts and governmental authorities is that of terminating the textile industry warfare as speedily as humanly possible. Nation-wide in scope and gargantuan in its ramifications, this problem is one that the best-trained minds in the country should be called upon to assist in solving.

Unionization of textile mills is inevitable. Within the past few days announcement of a campaign fund of over a million dollars with which to finance the movement to bring all textile workers into the American federation of labor was made. It is possible that a quarter-century will elapse before the goal of the union men is achieved unless the mill owners abandon their anti-union policies. There is every prospect of continued and increasing bloodshed, with enormous loss of property, unless some means are worked out of convincing the mill owners that they must recognize the unions.

But even unionization of the textile workers will not solve the problems of the industry or alleviate the deplorable conditions of the wage earners to any material extent. Results of a survey made this summer show that more southern cotton mills are operating at a loss now than are earning profits. With the textile industry in its present condition, the mills cannot afford to increase wages or reduce working hours to any considerable extent. Competition is too keen at present. There are more mills than are needed, and all of them are fighting tooth and nail for business that has decreased rapidly with the tendency of the buying public away from cotton goods, which has developed since the World War. It has been amply demonstrated that unrestricted competition will not work in the textile industry.

Integration is another crying need of the cotton milling business. In many instances as many as three or four independent concerns assist in manufacturing one length of cotton cloth. The textile industry needs a Henry Ford to accomplish the marvelous integration for cotton manufacturing processes that now exists for Ford Motor company. One mammoth concern should carry on all the processes of obtaining the raw materials, manufacturing the cloth, and selling the finished product to the public.

Governmental supervision is probably the only hope of the industry. Under federal control the mills could be forced into mergers and into integration. A partial monopoly of the textile industry by a few mammoth chains of mills is probably the only means of rescuing cotton growers, workers and mill owners alike from the seemingly insurmountable difficulties in which they are enmeshed. Thereby would the mill owners be enabled to pay wages sufficient to maintain their employees at a decent standard of living—and the bloody textile war would abruptly terminate.

A Big Year for the Student Entertainment Program.

Season tickets for the student entertainment program are being sold this year for $3, which represents a saving of approximately $8 over the costs of single admission to the eleven events. Many of the numbers, especially the Isadora Duncan dancers, the Cincinnati Chamber orchestra and the Ben Greet players, have charged single admissions of $4 and more in the larger cities.

University students and the townspeople are indeed fortunate in having an opportunity to attend some of America's finest entertainments at the extremely low prices offered by the student entertainment committee. Last fall marked the inauguration of the student entertainment program here. Paul Whiteman's orchestra was the initial attraction, and it was received with the highest favor. During its first year the entertainment committee, which is composed of four student representatives, two from the Liberal Arts college and two from the School of Education, and three faculty members with Dean Addison Hibbard as chairman, functioned admirably. The entire program was enthusiastically acclaimed by the students and townspeople, and there is every indication that it will be received with even greater favor this year.

The student entertainment program idea has become firmly entrenched here in one brief year. A great service to the campus has been performed by the originators of the idea, one of whom was Dave Carroll, former assistant editor of the Tar Heel.

Readers' Opinions

Writers Wanted

To the Editor:

Pray permit me to express here the hope that a number of North Carolina students, both undergraduates and graduates, will contribute to "Manuscripts," a national magazine of college writing which is beginning publication this month. Plays, verse, short stories, critical essays, etc., may be submitted to the editor, Mr. Willis H. Kinnear, at 1002 Inland Bank Building, Indianapolis, Indiana. All accepted writing is paid for. I understand that the magazine is on sale at the Bull's Head Bookshop.

NORMAN FOERSTER,
(Advisory Editor).

Heresy in One Paragraph

The recent exhibition of cheering displayed by the student body had the faculty of stimulating some hope that perhaps, after all, even the University of North Carolina is reaching that stage of sophistication when the anachronism of concentrated yelling will be abolished. Since it is too impossibly optimistic to ever expect the day when football—that great, big, he-man's, commercial sport so poplar here, there, and everywhere—will cease to be patronized as now, one can at least view the gradual decline of vociferous and utterly idiotic cheering as reflecting a favorable trend. While American institutions of higher education are what they are football will continue in favor (although Harvard is reputed to offer an example to the contrary). But, at least with certain northern institutions, there has come to pass recently a marked change from the exceedingly freshman-like conduct that formerly prevailed. Some student bodies are learning that it is not necessary to proffer—nay, to force upon the team—their "psychological support" in the form of an enormous waste of lung power. But in the south, with characteristic provincialism, we must stand out to the last and cling to this magnificent privilege as long as possible. It is truly a wonder that only Harvard has realized the advertising power of individualism. The others, madly scrambling for championship teams to advertise the school, have resembled nothing so much as a great milling herd of sheep. A student has only to say that he comes from an American institution; there is no need to differentiate further. Sacred "school spirit," what offenses are committed in thy name! . . . and how before heresy to thee will be recognized as common sense!—R. M. H.

SCOTCH PLAIDS
(By Dick McGlohon)

Dear Liz,

We've heard of freshmen having all sorts of hobbies, tinkering with Erector sets for imaginative stimulation, playing with Yo-Yo balls, a recent fad on the campus—we've even heard it intimated that seniors will be playing bob-jacks before the year is over—but a real hypnotist is a new type here. He's a handsome chap, dark of skin, with piercing Valentino eyes, and he knows his hypnology too.

Last Saturday night the bottom floor of one of the quadrangle dormitories was all astir with curious students trying to crowd into one room to see this exponent of Morpheus ply his mystic art. He got his subject's confidence, waved his fingers a few times, said a few funny words about "you're going to sleep, to sleep, to sleep," and the boy really passed under the hypnotic spell. Then our erstwhile hypnotist made the sleeper's body rigid, so rigid that when stretched across the tops of two chairs he supported the combined weight of two heavy sophomores who sat on his abdomen.

This hypnotism is not what it's cracked up to be and I think the interfraternity council should make a thorough investigation before this freshman of mystic powers gets a chance to hypnotize some of Charley Price's frame-up men and finds out all this year's political dope. Then too the young instructors should be protected, for it wouldn't do for any of them to send in a string of thirty A's for one section.

There's plenty of room for the council to do some more investigating about these dance orchestra leaders taking advantage of the fraternities during the first week of silence by fighting among themselves and rushing the freshmen around. They ought to have known that there was to be no rushing on the Hill for a week. Nevertheless, the musical-minded frosh fared hard. If it wasn't for Jack Lordlaw and his Rhythm Breakers it was Alex Mendal and his gang. Both of them back-patted the frosh, tried them all out, made them sing a few ditties, trap the drums, and play a few tigerish rag notes on the saxophone. If the interfraternity council don't make an investigation into this matter the Y. M. C. A. should, for the freshman musician don't see no peace up here for the first week or so.

And then after getting started he gets over ambitious and goes through five years in college thinking he'll land a lifetime job playing for the footlights. Instead he plays for light foots only a short time and eventually, if ever, learns to his regret that the life of a college band is hardly a century and that his college days were wasted.

Musicians seem to be plentiful around here according to T. Smith McCorkle, director of the band, who says he has a larger band this year than ever before and more uniforms to buy than he expected. You see the rehearsal attendance so far has been perfect—the trip to Georgia Tech is just a week off.

Well, Liz, I've got to close.

With love,
Mack.

A five-year old boy of Paris has been in a trance for 10 days, and the only movement noticed is that of the eyelids. As he isn't a chess-player we think a doctor should be called in.—Punch.

You know a man is successful when the newspapers start quoting him on subjects he knows nothing about.—Jackson News.

"The American is a picture" says a visitor. Yes-hand-painted very often.

If a man wants his dreams to come true he has to wake up.

A pedestrian is a girl who doesn't neck.—Colorado Dodo.

The U-Drive It Way

Everybody Sings Its Praises And It's Cheaper Too!

7-pas. Cars to Duke-Pitt Game and Back $5.00

5-pas. Cars $4.00

LESS THAN 80c A MAN!

Carolina U-Drive It

Around corner from Post-office

CAROLINA THEATRE

Today
"TWIN BEDS"
with Jack Mulhall
Patsy Ruth Miller
Other Features
"Booklovers"
Vitaphone Vaudeville
"Screen Snap Shots"
Pathe News

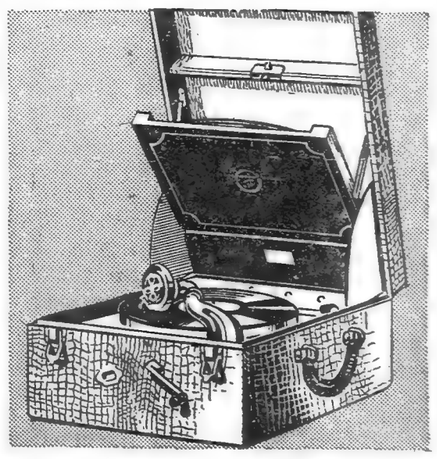
SATURDAY
"HOTTENTOT"

"That Calls for One"

When your favorite team has pushed the pigskin over the opponents' goal line and you feel as if the play "calls for one" be sure that you take a bottle of

SHERRI-ALE

to the back of the stadium with you.



SHERRI-COLA

for the morning-after bracer

Sherri-Cola Company

YOU'LL GET AN AWFUL BIG KICK OUT OF THIS LITTLE CASE!

MUSIC—the kind you want, when you want it, and where—it's all yours with the Columbia Portable. Why, it's just like having a private band right at your elbow! And the price leaves no headache!

Just let your Columbia dealer put the Viva-tonal Columbia Portable through its paces for you—and you'll want it if it's the last thing you buy! It has the tonal beauty and volume of an expensive cabinet machine. It looks like a million—yet it costs only $50!

If you like your melody in a more elaborate case, there's the electrically operated Columbia Portable at $60. But if you feel economical, there's a Columbia Portable for only $25.

Whichever one you pick, be sure these exhilarating hits are in the record compartment:

▼ ▼ ▼

Record No. 1938-D, 10-inch, 75c

SWEETHEART'S HOLIDAY } . . . . Fox Trots
HUGGABLE KISSABLE YOU }
Ted Wallace and His Campus Boys.

▼

Record No. 1942-D, 10-inch, 75c

SINGIN' IN THE RAIN—(from Talking Picture Production "Hollywood Revue"). Fox Trot.
MY SONG OF THE NILE (from Motion Picture "Drag")—Waltz—Ferera's Golden Hawaiians.

Record No. 1937-D, 10-inch, 75c

HOW AM I TO KNOW?—(from Motion Picture "Dynamite")—Fox Trot.
I'VE WAITED A LIFETIME FOR YOU—(from Motion Picture "Our Modern Maidens")—Waltz—Ben Selvin and His Orchestra.

▼

Record No. 1927-D, 10-inch, 75c

(YOU MADE ME LOVE YOU) WHY DID YOU? } Fox Trots
YOU BELONG TO ME, I BELONG TO YOU }
Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians.

"Magic Notes" COLUMBIA "Magic Notes"
"NEW PROCESS" RECORDS
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
Viva-tonal Recording—The Records without Scratch

36 Tar Heels Leave for Saturday's Game With Maryland

MARYLAND CLASH FIRST SOUTHERN CONFERENCE GAME

Close Contest Expected In Spite Of Coach Byrd's Prediction Of Tar Heel's Backfield Strength.

A Tar Heel outfit, 36 strong not including coaches and managers, left last night by train for Washington where they will reside on the eve of their annual game with the Old Liners of Maryland.

The men making the Maryland trip are Farris, Tab, Erickson, Spaulding, Slusser, Maus, Jackson, Nash, Wyrick, Branch, Fysal, Alexander, Harden, Holt, Fenner, Eskew, Dortch, Ward, Hudson, Nelson, Thompson, Brown, Lipscomb, Magner, Parsley, Adkins, Gregory, House, Gilbreath, Koenig, Harper, Crew, McIver, Buchan, Reid and McAllister.

The Heels have been styled as the "team of a hundred backs" by an associated press sports writer. The writer has exaggerated. The Tar Heels fall far short of five score ball carriers, but they do have an abundance of backfield material, and from the above list it can be seen that the North Carolina coaches are preparing themselves for whatever opposition may turn up on Saturday. Coach Curley Byrd may see in his own backyard the team which he traveled so far last week-end to witness in action.

Nobody as yet knows the lineup that will start off; in fact this knowledge would be of little interest or importance. Whatever combination goes in at the opening whistle is not likely to remain intact for many minutes. There are six letter halfbacks and a couple of sophomore prospects from whom it is hard to choose. Jimmy Ward, Jim Maus and Jim Magner — the three "Jim's" in the Heel backfield—are all flashy and steady ball toters and fine passers. Phil Jackson is another fast runner and rates slightly lower as a passer. All are veterans of one or more seasons. Strud Nash and Chuck Erickson, both juniors and veterans, will see action aplenty. Rip Slusser, the best of the soph halves, is a ten-second man who is extremely dangerous when he gets into the secondary. George Houston, another second-year man, is running him a close race. At full are Pap Harden, Henry House and Yank Spaulding, all veterans of more than one stiff struggle.

Pete Wyrick, a junior, is the veteran general but is being hard pushed by Johnny Branch. Both men can be counted upon to drive the Heels hard against the Old Liners.

Holt and Fenner will probably be at their old posts on end with Adkins and Koenig or McIver beside them at tackles; Captain Farris, Eskew and Hudson will divide the spoils of the guard position, and Lipscomb and Gilbreath will alternate at the pivot. This lineup is by no means final or official and the opening whistle may find many changes.

The 1929 Wisconsin football squad which will take the field in a double-header with South Dakota State and Ripon next Saturday will number an even fifty players.

South Dakota was the first state to have a polo pony ranch and was raising that type of steed for export in 1883, before there was a demand in this country.

(By Crawford McKethan)

Anybody who has gotten the thought into their head that the Tar Heels are going to have a walkaway against the Old Liners on Saturday might just as well think things over a second time. If you don't think that there is ground for such statement then just ask Chuck Collins what he thinks of the prospects.

Coach Collins made just one remark and in that remark he expressed a sentiment worthy of several pages: "We've just got to win that game—and it's not going to be easy." Looking back to yesterday's Tar Heel, we may see that this statement is almost the converse of what Coach Curley Byrd of Maryland has to say about the coming struggle. He seems to think that just on the eve of the contest we have the strongest team that the South Atlantic has ever produced. Unless we are sadly twisted up in our recollections, we can recall that Byrd likes the assistance of this psychology effect. It would be quite a feather in the cap of the Old Liners if they, crippled as they would have the general public to believe, would defeat the highest rated team in the South Atlantic and possibly in the entire South. We appreciate Coach Byrd's praise and only hope that his expectations may come true.

This is the first game of conference worth that the Heels have participated in this fall; Maryland also is opening up her 1929 S. I. C. campaign. It's going to look pretty good if Carolina is listed among the seven teams out of the fourteen members of the conference that will compete against one another this week-end who still have a 1.000 percent beside their names on Sunday.

The only conference game in North Carolina this week-end will be that between State and Washington and Lee over in Raleigh today. The absence of Captain Lepo and Basil Melton from the lineup is not going to help the 'Pack chances of coming out of a touch situation very much, so far as we can see. In fact it is going to prove rather embarrassing getting on without them. Lepo is the mainstay of the Tech line, and the coaches over there have "sorta" counted on him to hold things together in tight places. Melton will be sorely missed from the backfield, since his running this year has proved to be the source of one of the few happy moments that the coaching staff has experienced. However, even the loss of these two men is not going to keep the game from being close and one that will be decided by the difference of say a touchdown or so. State is either in a sad shape or else they have got a bunch of hidden strength. Anyhow, we'll see this afternoon. With shaking hand and an indecisive mind the Tar Heel predicts that Washington and Lee will emerge victorious by by the margin of about one touchdown.

"Bat" Battalino, new featherweight champion, will spend a year barnstorming before meeting any of the topnotchers, 'tis said.

The American Legion will promote rifle shooting for boys, with the hope of organizing ten thousand teams.

Driving Fullback

When the Carolina football team left last night for College Park, Maryland, Henry House, veteran fullback, did not go along. He injured his ankle Wednesday afternoon in scrimmage and will be held out for several days. He will be ready for the Tech game.

ROANOKE FROSH READY TO MEET THE TAR BABIES

Team Has Worked Hard All Week for Clash In Spite of Constant Rains.

Salem, Va., Oct. 3—(Special)—Despite the interference of heavy rains Coach White has been pushing his Roanoke college freshmen at a rapid pace this week in preparation for the game with the North Carolina university frehsmen at Chapel Hill this afternoon.

According to reports from North Carolina the Tar Heels have a first year outfit that compares favorably with the southern championship eleven of '28.

The Baby Maroons will send a light aggregation to Chapel Hill, the team averaging only 157 pounds, but expect to make up for the deficiency in speed.

While the starting lineup is not definite, L. B. Holyfield, former Mt. Airy, N. C., high captain, is certain to get into the game at the end position. His brother, also former Mt. Airy captain, will make the trip and get a chance at tackle.

Most of the past week has been devoted to improving the offensive play of the line. In the opening game of the season with Clifton Forge the Roanoke freshmen displayed a great defensive game but failed to open up holes for the backs.

Against the Carolinians Coach White intends to depend mostly on straight football. The Roanoke "Rats" have only been out for practice two weeks and most of the time has been spent in getting a line on the abilities of the various men rather than attempting to build an offense.

In Matthews, Russell, and Gilmer the Tar Heels will be up against a trio of fleet ball toters. Against Clifton Forge Gilmer broke through the middle of the line for 62 yards and a touchdown in addition to making several other long dashes.

Kerns, former Clifton Forge boy, will probably start at the signal calling post and is also a good ball carirer.

Hamilton, 181 pound fullback, was shifted to end in the opening game but moved back to his regular position this week and has shown great power in smashing the varsity line in scrimmage.

This will be the first time the Roanoke college freshman team has been permitted to schedule a game outside the state and the showing made against the Tar Babies will be watched with interest.

Bill Cox Says Wake Game Failed to Test Power of Tar Heels

Does Not Think That One-Sided Game Can Prove Real Strength of a Team.

There has been a great deal of speculation since the game last week-end as to whether Carolina played a good brand of football or whether she rolled up her 48 points against a weak and defenseless Wake Forest eleven.

Here's what W. N. Cox, sports editor of the Greensboro News, has to say about the question: "One fan writes inquiring why not more praise for Tar Heels in their well turned victory over Wake Forest. We admit Chuck Collins' team surprised us in many departments. For instance the timing of plays seemed too good to be true. Surely an eleven able to show that kind of football this early in the season is outstanding, but there is no sense in claiming superiority until it has been demonstrated under heavy fire. It may yet be proved that the Deacons were much better than the Tar Heels made them look, but the season is young and there will be plenty of space in October and November for singing of stars and praising coaches all down the line, at Chapel Hill and other places. First games, with few exceptions, where the scores are large are not worth a dime as evidence of strength. Reports leave us cold that read—so and so flashed a powerful team this afternoon and defeated Siwash by 77-0. It would not be a sign of great fighting ability or punching power if Jack Dempsey were to cold cock your correspondent in the first half second of the first round—would it? In the case we are speaking of the rub comes when it is remembered that Wake Forest looks pretty good. Miller's team was never demoralized; figure it out for yourself."

ALL-AMERICANS GALORE WORRIES SPORTS WRITER

The publicists are discovering too much "all-American" talent on North Carolina grid squads, thinks Eddie Wagg, sports editor of the Evening Telegram of Rocky Mount. Something ought to be done about it, he figures. Hear him in a recent installment of his column:

"Something is going to have to be done about the football situation in North Carolina. Things have come to a very serious state, and as far as this department can see there are but three solutions to the problem of handling surplus football stars: (1) discharge all news bureau men who have knack for discovering overnight potential all-Americans unless they give fair warning that they intend to discover the stars; (2) increase the size of football teams from 11 men to 18 men; or (3) let the bigger colleges have farms.

"North Carolina, if one believes the quaint rumors that emanate from various institutions where football is being practiced regularly, is burdened with a surplus of stars this season. Overnight the college typewriter men are finding bigger and better stars. Youths who were just stopping the varsity yesterday are all-American candidates today. And there are too many stars. If a man spends perfectly good money to send his boy to college, there is no assurance in the world that he will have a chance to make a team. If he doesn't make a team, well, its Love's Labor Lost.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

Tar Heels Better "Mud Horses" Than Maryland Eleven

Most of Recent Defeats That Tar Heels Have Handed Old Liners Have Been Played in Rain

Back in 1925 the Tar Heels went northward with a hospital list that seemed almost tragic. The first six backs were not even in shape to stand the trip, and the Fetzer brothers carried their squad to Baltimore only because the contract called for a university of North Carolina eleven to be there that particular day. The gloom on the campus Down Home was thick enough to cut with an axe, and then the deluge began.

The skies literally poured water for two whole days, and the municipal stadium at Baltimore became a veritable quagmire, out of which the Tar Heel reserves rose to glory and victory. Bob Sides and Hugh Jenkins, driven by Jack Cobb at quarterback, swept to a 16 to 0 victory. North Carolina alumni went wild, and Col. Isaac Emerson, the Bromo-Selzer king and donor of Emerson field here, up and promised the team $20,000 for a new wing to the stadium.

The season of 1926 yielded a dry day, and Maryland took advantage of several weak links on the Tar Heel eleven to win a 14-6 decision. That victory went to the Old Liners in fact of brilliant play by the Tar Heel line, and after a 93-yard run for a touchdown by Gus McPherson, the Tar Heels' 9.8 second halfback.

The floods came again in 1927, and the Tar Heels upset the dope to win, 7-6. The aerial efforts of Albert Whisnant and Jimmy Ward, who is playing his third year at halfback for the Tar Heels, won that game, which was preserved by punting by Billy Ferrell that was nothing short of brilliant. Last year proved an upset, for the Tar Heels won a 26-19 free scoring affair on a dry field.

It seems that rain is lucky for the Tar Heels and a jinx for the Old Liners.

Tar Babies Are Ready for Game

Coach Rex Enright declined last night to announce the starting lineup for the Tar Babies' first game of the season this afternoon with the Roanoke college freshmen on Kenan field at 4 o'clock.

The freshman team has been greatly handicapped this week on account of the wet weather and for several days was forced to be content with signal practice in the gym.

In preparation for today's game 22 men were picked to scrimmage the varsity while the remaining teams engaged in running signals.

Coach Enright plans to play at least four or five teams today in order to find out the best prospects for the first and second strings.

In the scrimmage yesterday with the varsity the line showed a great deal of strength and with a fast stepping backfield Enright plans to give plenty of opposition in today's game.

Little is known about the Roanoke college freshmen but it is understood they are sending down a strong team.

"It Must Be Good"

Our shop now boasts of five new barber chairs which enable us to give quicker and better service.

UNIVERSITY BARBER SHOP
One of the Most Modern Shops in the South
UNDER SUTTON'S BOOK STORE

DOBBS

Hats and Caps

Stetson

Clothiers Furnishers

Marion Alexander And Glenn Holder Address Kiwanians

Marion Alexander and Glenn Holder, business manager and editor respectively of the Daily Tar Heel, were guests of the Chapel Hill Kiwanis club at its regular meeting this week. Talks by the executives of the new daily featured the meeting.

A great deal of interest was exhibited by the Kiwanians in the new venture. Alexander explained the methods by which the paper is being financed while Holder sketched the staff organization and news policies.

Med Officers

At the recent meeting of the first year men of the medical school the following were elected officers: R. A. Stone, president; E. A. Knoeful, vice-president; and Chris Hall, secretary and treasurer.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS MEETS THIS EVENING

Le Cercle Francais will hold its first meeting of the year this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Parish house of the Episcopal church. All old members are urged to attend, and a special invitation is extended to all new students who are interested in spoken French. There will be a short program after which refreshments will be served.

Phi Chi Pledges Seven Men

The Sigma Theta chapter of the Phi Chi medical fraternity announces the pledging of the following men: Rufus Little; Bobbie Wilkins; Dick Winborne; Jimmy Turner; W. O. Fowler; Robert Oliver; Christopher Hall.

Miss Dorothy Bourgeois, co-ed at the Louisana State University, is the proud possessor of a complete collection of Rumanian postage stamps sent her by Queen Marie.

German Club Committee Publishes It's New Policy

(Continued from page one)

utive committee, the president of the German club may appoint other members of the club to serve at any dance or set of dances as temporary members of this committee.

"II. For the control of dances given at other times than those specified in the constitution by fraternities, clubs, or individual students of the university, the following regulations shall apply in addition: (1) permission to hold such dances must be obtained from the faculty committee on dances; (2) every such dance must be under the auspices and regulations of the German club; (3) such dance may be held only on Friday evening and Saturday evening, except by special permission of the faculty committee on dances; (4) any organizations, fraternity, or club giving such a dance shall select three of its members, and individual students giving such a dance shall select three students of the university, whose names shall be given to the faculty committee on dances and to the executive committee of the German club. These three members shall thereupon become temporary members of the executive committee of the German club, and shall be held responsible, for the time and occasion of that dance only, in the same way that members of that committee are held responsible for the conduct of that particular dance, and said committee shall convene with the executive committee of the German club at the next meeting after their dance. Penalty for failure in this last duty: automatic suspension from giving dances or receptions, etc., for a period of two years..

"III. Chaperones for all dances given under the auspices of the German club shall be selected subject to the approval of the chairman of the board of chaperones or the dean of women.

"IV. (Omitted).

"V. (Omitted).

"VI. Any organization giving a dance which in the judgment of the executive committee of the German club is not up to German club standards, shall not be allowed to give a dance for a period of time to be fixed at the discretion of the executive committee in conference with the faculty committee on dances.

"VII. The executive committee shall be empowered to suspend from all dances given under the auspices of the German club, for a period at the discretion of the committee, any student, visitor, or alumnus for any misconduct whatever in any period during which the dance or dances are being held, regardless of whether the misconduct is before, during, or after the dance.

"VII. The following rules shall govern conduct on the dance floor: (1) no smoking on the dance floor; (2) no one showing signs of drinking will be permitted to remain on the floor; (3) no girls will be allowed to leave the hall during an evening dance unless accompanied by a chaperone.

"IX. All dances given under the auspices of the German club shall close not later than one a. m., provided, that the last dance in any given set of dances given by the German club shall close not later than two a. m. When any dance is given on Saturday night, it shall close not later than twelve o'clock midnight.

"In addition to these by-laws of the German club, the university requires girls to be in their respective lodging places within half an hour after the close of each night dance. There are to be no dates after that time; the boys are to leave the girls, and the girls are to be under the supervision of their respective chaperones.

"Note: For any organization or individuals other than the German club wishing to give a dance, the method of procedure is as follows: a committee of three makes application to chairman of the faculty committee on dancing several days beforehand, stating time, place, character of dance; giving names of committee in charge of dance, names of chaperones, two members of the executive committee of German club they wish to invite, and the name of the door keeper. On the Tuesday after the dance at 7:30 in 109 Murphey, the above committee meets with the executive committee of the German club and makes a full report of the dance."

Chattanooga Professor Tells What Makes the Yo-Yo 'Yo'

(Continued from page one)

struction of the yo-yo thusly: "Mass time linear velocity equals momentum. In the ideal case of the yo-yo, it would go on spinning forever. Take a bullet for instance. Shoot it from a gun and it would never stop if it had no resistance from the atmosphere or was not halted by the target.

"If mass times linear velocity equals the momentum, it follows that a force applied in the simplest ideal case will change the momentum of a body; that is, the mass remaining constant will change the linear velocity.

"Now then take the yo-yo. According to the principle of the conservation of energy, if there is no force or toque applied, then the momentum remains constant. In other words a body at rest remains at rest until acted upon by some external force, or a body in motion remains in motion until acted upon by some outside force.

"Now take the yo-yo; as a result of the mass falling under the force of gravity, and attached to the axel, we have a force or torques, which causes an angular velocity to be produced. The farther the top falls the greater the angular velocity becomes, because the acceleration is greater. If it were left alone and it were perfectly free from friction it would spin forever. But being attached to a string, when it comes to the end, this stored energy can be utilized to bring it back up the string. Isn't that simple? In what we term an 'ideal' case, it would return completely to the top of the string. But no energy is ideally 100 per cent returned.

"So now we have the yo-yo partly back up the string. Now to get it up the string it is necessary to apply another force, or torque at the strategic moment to over come the loss of momentum brought about through friction and other imperfections in the machine. It's just like swinging someone in a rope swing. One must wait until the swing is just at the right place at the top of the upword motion before pushing."

So that explains why the yo-yo "yos."

CAROLINA TO GIVE SPECIAL REVIEW

(Continued from page one)

reau, and Mayor Zeb Council, will be present for the preview. The film is being rushed from Atlanta so that it will be in Chapel Hill in time to be presented to the university officials, clergy, and press, before it is presented to the public. Manager E. Carrington Smith of the Carolina theatre is anxious to have the picture viewed by those in a position to properly judge its merits, he said, so that it can be recommended to the people of Chapel Hill. He classed it as one of the most widely heralded films of the year.

CAROLINA
THEATRE
Wed., Thurs., Oct 9th, 10th

The Spectacle Of the Ages!
Told by two glorious lovers who loved for all eternity!

WARNER BROS. present DOLORES COSTELLO in NOAH'S ARK with GEORGE O'BRIEN
No Advance in Admission

FOR SALE OR RENT

Nine room house one block of Post Office and Campus. Ideal for boarding or rooming house. Lights, water heat, garage. See W. L. Tankersly, Tankersly Building.

Non-stop line plunges won an All-American berth for "Biff" Hoffman of Stanford University. When it comes to non-stop writing, "Biff" depends on a Parker Duofold.

[*To prove Parker Duofold is a pen of lifelong perfection, we offer to make good any defect, provided complete pen is sent by the owner direct to the factory with 10c for return postage and insurance.

For
Non-Stop Writing
These All-American Football Stars, Like All Real Fellows, Depend on Parker Pressureless Touch

*Non-Breakable Barrels—24% Greater Ink Capacity—Guaranteed Forever Against All Defects

Hitch your writing to the star of all pens if you want to be in the same class with the Big Fellows who star in every line of endeavor.

There's never been another so handsome to carry as black-tipped Parker Duofold—never another so shapely to hold—and none with our 47th Improvement—Pressureless Touch.

It adjusts its flow to the speed of your hand by easing your stroke. It sweeps pen worries out of your mind, so your brain has a clear track for thinking.

The headwork which made Howard Harpster of Carnegie Tech, All-American Quarterback isn't confined to football. He uses good judgment in the classroom too, writes—via Parker Pressureless Touch.

Do you know that by actual count Parker's Pressureless Writing now rules throughout America?

A census of pens in 13 technical schools disclosed that Parker leads in popularity 2 to 1. It was voted the favorite by students in 55 colleges. And a nation-wide poll conducted by the Library Bureau proved Parker the preference by 25% above the second pen, and 48% above the third.

Stop to any good pen counter and select your point. Imitations can't deceive you if you look for the imprint, "Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD."

THE PARKER PEN COMPANY, Janesville, Wis. Offices and Subsidiaries: New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Buffalo, Dallas, San Francisco

Pencils to match $3 to $5

Parker Duofold $5-$7-$10

ANNOUNCING
The Carolina Magazine
SUNDAY

The first issue of THE CAROLINA MAGAZINE in its new form. Published twice each month as a literary supplement to The Daily Tar Heel. Eight Pages.

Here Are Some of the Features Which Will Be Presented in the First Issue of the Literary Publication:

"The Measurement of the World," by J. J. Slade, Jr.

"Eva Le Gallienne and the Civic Repertory Theatre," by Richard A. Chace.

"Drama and the Arts" (a column), by Julian James.

Poetry — Short Stories — Articles — Book Reviews.

Read THE CAROLINA MAGAZINE, Official Literary Publication of the University of North Carolina

In any event wear an
ALLIGATOR
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

LET rain, wind or chill sweep the field—you're dry and warm. Smartly dressed, too! Expertly styled in a wide range of distinctive colors. For men and women, $7.50 to $25.
THE ALLIGATOR COMPANY, St. Louis

New! ALLIGATOR STEPPERS (Pat. App. for) Protect trouser legs—all colors to match all coats. $2 and $3.50 a pair. Ask to see them.

KEEP DRY FROM HEAD TO FOOT

Student Entertainment
SEASON TICKETS
On Sale at Business Office

The Daily Tar Heel

Student Entertainment
SEASON TICKETS
On Sale at Business Office

VOLUME XXXVIII — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1929 — NUMBER 14

UNIVERSITY DAY EXERCISES TO BE GIVEN BY RADIO

Hook-up to Broadcast Exercises over South Atlantic States.

The University Day celebrations of the university of North Carolina alumni, which are being scheduled for Friday evening, October 11, will be tied together by a special radio hook-up. Thus it is expected to draw together in a special program the largest number of university alumni ever to participate in a single undertaking.

The hook-up is designed to cover the South Atlantic states thoroughly, where eighty-five per cent of the university's living alumni reside. The coverage is planned for as far north as Baltimore and Philadelphia, as far south as Miami and New Orleans, and as far west as Memphis and Louisville. For this purpose, radio stations WBT of Charlotte, WPTF of Raleigh, and WSB of Atlanta have been hooked together for a special program.

The broadcast will begin at 6:45 and conclude at 7:30 eastern time, and of course it will be one hour earlier for those who reside in the central time belt.

This special radio program, the first to be used by the university, has been arranged by the Alumni Loyalty Fund in furthering this year its work of building systematic income from private sources for the university.

RECENT RAINFALL HERE HEAVIEST IN 3 MONTHS

The general complaint about the rain by practically the entire student body as well as the faculty appears to have been founded on well-balanced facts, for according to the official weather report taken in Chapel Hill, more rain fell during the two day's downpour the first part of the week than had fallen during the entire preceding three months.

During the rainy period which began about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and lasted until Wednesday noon, over ten inches of rain fell. At one time during this period three inches fell in the brief period of 13 hours.

While the weather reports of the local station are usually sent to Washington through the Raleigh office every month, the unusual amount of rainfall during the first part of the week necessitated a report by long distance.

Reports of floods have been received from many districts, but Chapel Hill itself seems to have dried up rather quickly, because it is, as the name implies, on a hill, from which the water flows away rapidly.

Morgan's Creek at the bottom of the hill towards Pittsboro passed a flood level of five years standing, and the Cape Fear river is reported to have passed a two-year flood level.

DR. KNIGHT TO ADDRESS TEACHERS NOVEMBER 7-9

Dr. Edgar W. Knight has just accepted an invitation to address the South Carolina Teachers' Association at their annual meeting in Charleston on November 7, 8 and 9.

He has also been invited to address the West Virginia and Texas associations during the same month.

Carolina Magazine to Make First Appearance Tomorrow

The First Bi-Monthly Issue of The Carolina Magazine, Literary Supplement to The Daily Tar Heel, Distributed Tomorrow.

The first issue of the Carolina Magazine in its new form as a literary supplement to the Daily Tar Heel will appear on the campus tomorrow. It will consist of eight pages and will consist livered with the campus newspaper.

The supplement, voted last year to replace the magazine form at the same time that the students voted in a daily newspaper to replace the tri-weekly, will set a precedent here for literary publications.

The magazine, edited by John Mebane, will appear twice a month and will print contributions from the students and faculty. Mebane states that he intends to follow, in the main, the policies of previous editors. New departments, however, will be added and the book review section will be enlarged. Short stories, literary articles, sketches, poetry and book reviews will constitute the bulk of the material used.

Among the features which will appear in tomorrow's magazine are "The Measurement of the World," an article by J. J. Slade, Jr.; "Eva Le Gallienne and the Civic Repertory Theatre," an interview by Richard A. Chace; "Drama and the Arts," a column of notes on the drama and fine arts by Julian James; "Jose Amezcua," a short biography by J. J. Slade, Jr.,; and verse by Richard A. Chace and Philip DeVilbiss.

In future issues articles by well-known faculty members will be printed. The deadline for copy, states the editor, is always one week in advance of the date of publication. All material should be sent in care of the editor of the Carolina Magazine, Box 710, or brought to the Sigma Delta house.

FRESHMEN FALL FOR USUAL BUNK

Seek Radiator Keys, Red Oil for Lamps, and 28-Inch Yard Stick.

Many and varied have been the tales told about the queer things done by the freshmen during their short stay of almost three weeks on the campus, but now we believe we have heard the prize one.

Freshmen have been sent for radiator keys, 28-inch yard sticks, red oil for lamps, smoke shifters, and many other things. Of course, a great part of these things are done with the utmost seriousness, and now we believe that we have found a new one which was made all the more funny by the seriousness with which the first year man conducted himself.

It was the day after the freshman arrived. He had been puzzling over the matter for a long time, but had been somewhat bashful about asking anyone to set him straight. Finally, however, he mustered up all his courage and stopped one of those dignified upperclassmen. Very seriously and with all due respect for the dignity of the mighty sophomore whom he was addressing, he asked: "Will you please tell me what that bell rings every hour for?"

William Cain Society Postpones Feature Talk

Due to the small number of freshmen and sophomores attending the first meeting of the William Cain student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers Thursday evening the talk of the evening, which was to have been given by Dean Braune was postponed until next week.

However, the postponement of the talk by the head of the school of engineering did not destroy the plans for refreshments, and those attending the meeting started in on the food as soon as the announcement was made that another meeting would be held next Thursday.

All freshmen and sophomores are urged to attend this second meeting which will be held next week when Dean Braune will talk on "The A.S.C.E. and Its Student Chapters."

Many Students are Looking for Work

As the end of the first month draws near, many students will be looking for work. Several of these students must make enough for their board, but as yet no work is in view. Most of these students have all the afternoon off, and will be only too glad to pick up some odd jobs. They can do all sorts of work, such as mowing grass, washing windows, washing cars, washing dishes, raking lawns, chopping wood, waxing floors, attending to babies, and any other sort of desired.

Everyone desiring work to be done will please call Mr. Grady Leonard, Self-Help Secretary of the Y, whose phone number is 5011. In case of an emergency, Mr. Leonard may be found at 3196.

Six Hundred Entertainment Tickets Are Now Available

Entertainment Committee to Offer Tickets to Students and Faculty.

Due to the heavy demand last year for season tickets for the features of the university entertainment program the entertainment committee meeting Thursday decided to offer 100 additional tickets to the 500 sold to students in the schools other than the college of liberal arts and the school of education and townspeople last year. A total of 600 season passes are to be offered at a price of $3 each. Seven or eight numbers will be guaranteed to the subscribers, valued at $11 at regular admission prices.

During the first few hours that the tickets were on sale more than 150 were sold, despite the fact that the first program date is not until Wednesday, October 16, when the Isadora Duncan dancers, a group of Russian terpsichorean artist, will offer a two-hour program.

Addison Hibbard, chairman of the committee, announced yesterday that the total capacity of Memorial hall, where all of the entertainments will be staged, is only 1600 and that with the student subscriptions already received and the 600 seats now on sale the total will be exactly that number. No additional season tickets will be sold, and the committee's attitude toward the selling of standing room, while not determined upon, is at the present time hostile. At least, standing room cannot be relied upon.

These tickets will continue to be sold as long as they last at Mr. Woollen's office on the first floor of South building. Checks from townspeople and out-of-town persons should be made payable to the entertainment committee of the university of North Carolina. Checks were received from nine Duke professors yesterday.

Dr. Emery to Talk To Epworth League

Dr. S. A. Emery, of the philosophy department will address the Epworth League at the Methodist church Sunday evening at 7:00 o'clock. His topic is "Some Non-Scientific Problems" and he will deal with certain phases of human experience believed to be beyond the field of the physical sciences, presenting questions which must wait for a spiritual or religious solution.

ALUMNI CLUB TO MEET OCTOBER 7

Chapel Hill Alumni to Assemble Monday in Smith Building.

The Chapel Hill Alumni will meet Monday evening, October 7, in the Graduate Dormitory, at 8:30. An earlier issue of this paper had stated that this meeting would be held Friday evening.

All Alumni living in Chapel Hill are invited to attend the meeting, according to the announcement of Carl Durham, president of the local Club. Non-alumni in the faculty are also invited to attend. Light refreshments and smokes will be served, and the meeting will be informal. President Chase is to be the principal speaker.

SAVILLE RETURNS FROM SURVEY OF RIVER CONDITIONS

Thorndike Saville returned yesterday from eastern North Carolina where he has been directing a corps of engineers who are making a survey of the swollen rivers of that part of the state.

According to Mr. Saville, engineers have been in preparation for the flood measurements and in the field since Monday. He has seven engineers scattered over various parts of the state now engaging in making measurements. Mr. Saville also stated that the Cape Fear river would reach next to the highest flood in its history.

Mr. Saville explained that these measurements being made will be useful in the studies of flood control, navigation, drainage, power and other problems. Information gathered by this survey will provide fundamental data that will aid the solution of many problems of this type.

Mr. Saville is chief engineer of the division of water resources of the department of conservation and development of North Carolina.

Organ Program

On Sunday night, at 8 p. m., Mr. Kennedy will play the following organ numbers at the Chapel of the Cross.

Prelude in C - -	Hollins
Hymnus - - -	Fielitz
Evening Song - -	Bairstow

UNITED CHURCH PLANS EXPANSION

Friends, Diciples and Methodist Protestants to Unite with New Church Here.

Friends, Disciples of Christ, Methodist Protestants, and other Christian denominations having no churches in Chapel Hill will be embraced in the local United church, according to a program of expansion announced yesterday.

The United church here was formed at the beginning of September by the union of the Christian and Congregational churches. In expanding to include other denominations it is following the precedent set by the United church of Raleigh.

The charter of the United church of Chapel Hill was recently approved by the directors of the conference of the Congregational churches of the Carolinas. Aiding the cause of the union of churches among the followers of Christ is set forth as one of the chief aims of the new church in its charter.

The object of the new program of expansion, it was stated yesterday, is a larger church and progress toward the Christian church's aim of union among the various Protestant denominations. This latest undertaking of the United church of Chapel Hill is merely a continuation of the program outlined in its charter.

The union of the Christian and Congregational churches took over property valued at $32,000. The United church building, located on Cameron avenue, is valued at $25,000 with no indebtedness. The parsonage is worth $7,000 with $3,500 indebtedness.

Johnston Addresses Local A. S. C. E.

Speaking before the students of civil engineering yesterday morning, James Houston Johnston, director of the tenth district of the A. S. C. E. urged all civil engineering students to join the national society as soon after graduation as possible. Mr. Johnston stated that because of the standards of the society, membership in it carried a degree of prestige which could be secured in no other way.

Mr. Johnston who was on his way to Boston to attend the fall meeting of the national society stopped over to speak before the William Cain student chapter of the society.

In the course of his talk, he stated that at the Boston meeting this fall, an attempt will be made to raise the entrance requirements of the society to include a degree from a technical school. This step shows that the directing board of the society is taking notice of the importance of a technical education to the engineer.

Carolina Freshmen Win Over Roanoke College Yearlings in Tight Game

Visitors Show Unexpected Strength to Hold Tar Babies to 13 - 6 Score.

The Roanoke college freshmen showed unexpected strength to hold the Tar Babies to a 13 to 6 score here yesterday. Both teams played indifferent ball until the last part of the first quarter. There were few consistent gains and punts were interchanged frequently.

Chandler started things going for the Tar Babies near the end of the first quarter by returning a punt 45 yards to the seven yard line. The period ended with the ball on the two yard line and the next quarter opened with Chandler going off tackle for a touchdown on the first play. A pass, Chandler to Thompson netted the extra point.

Roanoke received the kickoff and Burks returned the ball to his own 20 yard line. After running three line plays for a gain of eight yards Matthews punted and the ball was downed on Carolina's 40 yard line. Straight line tactics were used with slight gains and kicking seemed to be the favorite method of advancing the ball. Chandler's kick was blocked once by Smith on the 30 yard line but another try put it in safe territory.

The Baby Maroons advanced the ball within scoring distance and Kosis went off tackle for the visitors' first and only score in the latter part of the quarter. Matthews was the most effective ball carrier for Roanoke frosh, while Kern and Kosis alternated with him in line plunges and off tackle plays.

McNeill, Thompson and Chandler made several good gains for the Carolina frosh before the half ended, the longest one being by Chandler for 30 yards. Two passes by Chandler failed to find receiving hands. The half ended with the ball in the possession of the Baby Maroons near the middle of the field.

The players seemed to have warmed up a little in the last half and more varied tactics were employed. Both sides took to the air at intervals, with most of the passes being grounded. Two successive passes, Chandler to Sickles, failed and Chandler punted to safety. Gilmer was thrown for a loss by Allen and the visitors resorted to aerial tactics. McNeill's pass to Holyfield fell short and he kicked to the center of the field.

The Tar Babies then started an air attack that led the way to another touchdown. Two passes, Thompson to Henry, netted 40 yards and Landis plunged through the line for the touchdown. Chandler's dropkick for extra point went wild and the scoring was over for the day.

The Tar Babies roughed it up in the last period and drew three 15 yard penalties for holding. Peacock intercepted a pass by Kosis and the ball was Carolina's on the 50 yard line. Peacock's pass was grounded and he punted out of bounds on the 35 yard line. The Baby Maroons again threatened to score when a pass from McNeill to Matthews and a run by Matthews accounted for 35 yards. But the Tar Baby line held and the Roanoke

(Continued on page three)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Saturday, October 5, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

"Students Show Sedate Tastes"—headline in the S. L. C. D. (South's Leading College Daily). We gather that the head-writer has never come in contact with the famous "Orange county corn."

Several newspaper editors wondered yesterday morning why the 600 State college pajama-clad freshmen who paraded through the streets of Raleigh Thursday night did not suffer from the cold. That's easy—there were plenty of upperclassmen along to make it hot for them.

Communism Takes a Back Seat in the Textile Warfare

Out of the disaster at Marion comes one fact that stands out with startling clarity. Heretofore the general public has regarded the industrial warfare in the state as a communist-capitalist struggle, but the deplorable slaughter of union men at Marion has forced upon even the most prejudiced of observers the realization that the battle is between labor and capital entirely. Communism enters into the textile warfare only incidentally, and its forces are of very little importance.

When so conservative an organization as the American Federation of Labor becomes involved in a situation with as many aspects of the radical as that existing at Marion, there can be no question of the seriousness of the entire affair. The outcome of the Marion altercation will have tremendous effect upon the future of labor over the entire country. America has its eyes focused upon North Carolina, and particularly upon Marion. A dangerous precedent has been set by Sheriff Oscar Adkins and his deputies, and the state of North Carolina should act promptly to fix responsibility for the slaughter of the strikers.

Wholesale arrests have already been made. The authorities have acted with praiseworthy promptitude thus far. It is to be hoped that they will successfully meet this crucial test of the state's executive and judicial departments.

Communism, which served to becloud the real issue at Charlotte and Gastonia, has been eliminated from the Marion affair. The true causes of contention present themselves at Marion with stark reality. Upon the governmental agencies of the state now rests the burden of proving to the nation that North Carolina is capable of administering justice to the forces of both capital and labor in the titantic struggle in which the Marion calamity is an important event.

Dormitory Organization

Little is heard about dormitory organization. Occasionally we learn, through the medium of this journal, that somebody has been elected president of such and such a building. But to those of us on the outside of those walls, it hasn't much significance. We take it that as a matter of course dormitory officers must be elected, because they were elected last year and year before that. But as for the organization of dormitories and specific functions — why, nonsense.

The usual thing about it all, however, is that most of us are mistaken. Dormitory organization is not merely an ornament designed for campus life; it is more than a formality. Every year the dormitories have smokers, several each quarter, which serve to bring together, informally, those students who feel the need for social contacts. These smokers mean to many students who are non-fraternity men what a fraternity man's fraternity means to him.

Another one of the important functions of dormitory organization is seen in intramural athletic activities. Organization is a great help in getting men to participate in various sports.

There are many other things that could be said in favor of the above, to show why dormitories as individual units are not just nonentities; the things that could be said would merely go to show that organization in the dormitories is a very necessary part of campus life. At least it is certain that this sort of thing is worthwhile and should be given whole-hearted support on the part of the students.—B. M.

The Campus

By Joe Jones

Last Saturday while Carolina celebrated her first victory of the season an event was happening on the campus of a sister school which is, in miniature, the tragedy of the world.

* * *

At N. C. C. W. the student body was assembled for that gala event, Lantern Night, choicest fiesta of the year. As dusk descended the occupants of each dormitory met in a cluster at the entrance to their respective abodes. Each girl carried a lighted Japanese lantern, and each seemed a picturesque bit of statuary enveloped in the mellow glow of the diminutive twinkling flame.

* * *

The different groups, now lines, moved off gracefully in one common direction. Threading its way down the forest paths, the company converged near the pool at the Forest Theatre. A pause of the pianist indicated the program's opening. The marshals, six exquisite maidens in flowing white satin, escorted a young girl, loveliest of them all, to the center of the half-circle formed by her schoolmates. She held aloft her lantern, and began to recite a poem of autumn. Several lines had been completed when, with a dramatic gesture, the lantern was swung high into the air, and its flame extinguished as the girl collapsed to the ground.

* * *

It so happened that a Carolina man was the only male spectator, excepting Dr. Foust, president of the college, at this intimate gathering. I shall quote this Tar Heel's version of what happened next. He says: "I saw the lantern sail through the air, and the girl fall. At first I thought it was a part of the program, but when I noticed the confusion among her companions I realized that the girl had really fainted. In a few jumps I was at her side. I loosened the garments about her neck, slipped my arm under her head, and improvising a fan, waved it vigorously; at the same time directing those about me to chafe her hands and wrists. Presently she revived sufficiently to stand, and two of the marshals and I assisted her back to the dormitory. She was nervous and upset, but in spite of her tears she thanked me generously as I left. I felt amply repaid."

* * *

It is well known on the N. C. C. W. campus that this girl, an honor student and a leader in extra-curricular activities, was physically exhausted from long preparation for the evening's event. Edwin Markham sees "time's tragedy" in the "aching stoop" of Millet's "Man With the Hoe." But is not another of the world's tragedies symbolized by this talented young girl's sacrificing herself for an ungrateful world? Since the dawn of time such individuals have offered up themselves for the progress of humanity. From Socrates to Woodrow Wilson, and our own Edward Kidder Graham, witness the martyrs to the advancement of mankind.

Mars Hill Students Represent 11 States

The student registration at Mars Hill college shows an increase over previous years, according to statistics given out by the registrar's office. Seventy counties of North Carolina, 11 states, District of Columbia, Central America and Cuba are represented in the 420 students enrolled.

These statistics show the largest senior class ever enrolled at the college during the fall term, 103 showing the required minimum for a senior of 28 hours and eight quality points, and 30 who will be rated as seniors at the close of the first semester. The freshman class numbers 253, the fourth-year academy class 37, the third-year academy class 22. Of the total enrollment, 242 are boys and 178 girls.

North Carolina leads in student representation with 305 enrolled; South Carolina comes second with 87, and Tenn. third with 19. Other states and countries are as follows: Alabama 5, Central America 1, Cuba 1, Dist. of Columbia 1, Florida 4, Georgia 4, Kentucky 3, Louisiana 1, Maryland 3, Mississippi 2, Pennsylvania 1 and Virginia 9.

Rushees Puzzled by Map of Fraternities

While the map showing the locations of the fraternity houses on the Hill undoubtedly served at least one useful purpose when it furnished something for the frat men to do while seeing whether their houses were on the map, in one way it puzzled the many freshmen who were trying to find out where the houses that they were to visit were located.

One freshman with a large stack of cards in his hand was fruitlessly searching the map trying to find some of the houses to which he had invitations. Finally after quite a few minutes spent in looking over the map, he gave it up in disgust.

When asked what was the matter he replied, "What is the use of a map like that. I don't run a fruit stand, and I can't read Greek."

This seems to have happened in many cases, and taking it as a whole, the map was quite puzzling indeed to a great many of the men who were supposed to use it to find out where they were to visit.

Where? — In Tar Heel Ads.

Curtis Air Service Plans Co-operation

Two officials of the Curtis Flying Service at Raleigh were in Chapel Hill Tuesday to confer with Professor Hoefer and Mr. Bailey of the Mechanical Engineering Dept., regarding possible cooperation between the University and the Service in the newly instituted aviation course.

Mr. Tilley and Mr. Sutton, from the Raleigh branch of the Curtis Service extended an invitation to the members of the engineering faculty to visit the field at Raleigh, and Mr. Hoefer, Mr. Bailey, and Dean Braune went to Raleigh yesterday afternoon for that purpose.

Carolina Graduates In Telephone Work

Atlanta, Ga., October 4. (Special) Each year an increasing number of Carolina graduates have been selected by the Bell System Telephone Company for various types of work in this large service organization. Within the last three years twenty-two Carolina men have entered this work after their graduation. Of the 1929 class, twelve are now busily engaged, in some way, in helping to render telephone service to the entire nation. Four of these latter twelve men are located in Atlanta; while the remaining eight are in other sections of the East.

Each spring, representatives of the personnel departments of the several Associated Bell System Companies visit the colleges and universities throughout the country and select from that year's classes the number of men which these Companies will need within the entire organization to be trained for telephone work. Then, soon after graduation these men so selected report to the Company by which they are to be employed, where they enter a general introductory training course. This initial training period lasts about three months. During this time the new members of the organization are enabled to obtain a general, yet comprehensive, idea of all the work and policies which are necessary to give efficient and universal telephone service. The methods used in training these recruited men are based on the best systems that come from long experience and constructive foresight. In many phases of the work the men are given the opportunity to learn by practice and actual experience; in other parts, they are trained by means of lectures and observations. When this introductory training period ends, each man is assigned to the work for which he is best fitted.

Telephone work is not confined to engineering students or to men with technical training alone. Many men with the Liberal Arts and Commerce degrees also find a variety of opportunities open for them; and oftentimes a non-technically trained man becomes, through excellent training methods, a great telephone engineer. And sometimes a graduate in engineering will become a good accountant or commercial man. Incidentally, one of the officials of the company recently stated that during the next few years more men were to be selected from the two leading Commerce Schools in the South—Alabama University and North Carolina University, than has been the practice heretofore.

All of the North Carolina men who have entered this Company are more than pleased with their choice and good fortune of having been selected. They have found telephone work most interesting and with many opportunities for advancement open to those who apply themselves.

CAROLINA THEATRE

TODAY

Every Hoofbeat
A Heartbeat!

"THE HOTTENTOT"
with Edward Horton
Patsy Ruth Miller

ADDED FEATURES
"Raising the Roof"
Vitaphone Vaudeville
"Rat Skin"
Talking Comedy

—Monday—
Thomas Meighan
"The Argyle Case"

A Safe Place to Buy a
RADIO
One year free service (not including tubes) on all Radios sold by us.
University Book & Stationery Co.

Both are lines of national defense

THE Mississippi was a menacing flood. The telephone was the first line of defense, for over its wires the work against the flood was directed. Maintenance crews performed the same service as did telephone men in the signal corps in the war.

In the daily life of the nation, just as surely as in emergency, the telephone meets an ever-growing stream of demands.

To do this successfully the Bell System's expansion program embraces trans-oceanic telephony through the ether and under the sea, to ships at sea and planes in the air—and above all, wire facilities that will carry the voice, the typewritten word, the picture to every corner of the land.

BELL SYSTEM
A nation-wide system of inter-connecting telephones

"OUR PIONEERING WORK HAS JUST BEGUN"

Heels Meet Old Liners Today at College Park

U.N.C.-Maryland Game Today Is the Eleventh Since 1899

Both Teams Expect to Show Full Strength in Another Epic Game.

(By Henry Anderson)

Carolina and Maryland meet this afternoon for the eleventh renewal of a rivalry begun 30 years ago. Both teams are expected to show their full strength in this affair as both scored easy victories in their initial games.

This afternoon's contest promises another of the free scoring affairs that marked last year's game. This game will probably test the real strength of both teams as the first games of each were won by large margins. Carolina routed Wake Forest in its initial contest by an overwhelming score of 48-0.

In Maryland's opening game she defeated Washington college by the score of 34-7. This score does not illustrate at all the entire offensive of the Old Liners as Coach Byrd used the first team for only a part of one quarter.

In the advance information on the game Carolina has a slight edge over Maryland but the outcome is none too certain. Coach Collins is entering the Maryland territory with no expectation of a walk-away victory and is expecting as hard a game as he received at the Old Liners' hands last year.

At present Carolina is recorded as having six victories to the Old Liners' four in the games which have been played between the two teams since 1899, when North Carolina won a 6-0 decision. Last year Carolina won another hard fought game by the close margin of 21-19 and this year another one of these hard fought affairs is expected.

The big Blue and White team has carried a squad of 33 men with it to Maryland and the majority of them are almost certain of seeing action this afternoon. Coach Collins will probably start the same eleven that he used at the opening of the Wake Forest game with the exception of the return to the lineup of Eskew. The lineup will probably be: Fenner and Holt, ends; Koenig and Adkins, tackles; Captain Farris and Eskew, guards; Lipscomb, center; Wyrick, quarterback; Spaulding, fullback, and Nash and Ward, halfbacks.

Other backfield men that are liable to see action this afternoon are Branch, Magner, Erickson and Slusser who were prominent in the game last Saturday. Jimmy Maus, although being carried on the trip, will probably not see action as he has not yet recovered from a broken nose received in practice.

Coach Collins says that the Tar Heels will show almost their full potential strength this afternoon as they were somewhat crippled by a patched up line in last Saturday's fray.

COLLINS TAKES THIRTY-THREE MEN TO MARYLAND

The thirty three players who made the trip to Maryland are: Holt, Nelson, Tabb, Fenner, Parsley, and Brown, ends; Koenig, Dortch, Thompson, Adkins, Harper, and Gregory, tackles; Captain Farris, Crew, McIver, Eskew, Hudson, and Fysal, guards; Lipscomb, Gilbreath and Alexander, centers; Wyrick and Branch, quarterbacks; Magner, Maus, Ward, Jackson, Nash, Erickson, and Slusser, halfbacks; and House, Harden and Spaulding, fullbacks.

Sports Editor Picks Victors in Today's Conference Games

With the exception of the South Carolina-Virginia, Tennessee-Chattanooga, and Florida-V. M. I. games, nearly all of the Southern Conference's gridiron results may be determined to a fair degree of accuracy.

Nearly all of the teams in the east and north are playing merely set up games which will be little more than warming up affairs. There is little room left for doubt in the majority of this schedule but the Indiana-Notre Dame; Michigan-Michigan state, Purdue-Kansas Aggies and Wisconsin-Colgate affairs are going to be hard fought games and the result is not easy to forecast.

The Daily Tar Heel picks the following teams (suggested by "Butch" Slaughter, line coach at N. C. State):

North Carolina over Maryland.
Georgia Tech over Miss. Aggies.
Georgia over Furman.
Alabama over Ole Miss.
Clemson over Auburn.
Vanderbilt over Ouchita.
Tennessee over Chattanooga.
Kentucky over Maryville.
Florida over V. M. I.
Texas over Tulane.
L. S. U. over S. W. Louisiana.
Pittsburgh over Duke.
V. P. I. over Hampden-Sidney.
South Carolina over Virginia.
V. P. I. over Hampton-Sidney.
Michigan over Michigan State.
Purdue over Kansas Aggies.
Wisconsin over Colgate.
Notre Dame over Indiana.

GEORGIA GAMES DRAW NOTABLES

Seven Governors, Nine Railroad Presidents, and Many Other Notables Are to Attend.

Plans for the football game between Yale and Georgia in Athens on October 12 have gone beyond the status of a mere state affair and are assuming national proportions, according to Hugh Rowe of Athens, a member of the committee on arrangements.

Mr. Rowe was in conference with Governor Hardman Tuesday on plans for the game and the entertainment of six or seven state executives who will be present. It is the plan to have the governors spend Friday in Atlanta attending the Georgia Tech-University of North Carolina game on Friday afternoon, the Southeastern fair Friday morning and then going to the Yale-Georgia game Saturday.

The Governors of Connecticut, New York, North Carolina, Tennessee, Florida, Alabama and Georgia already have accepted invitations to attend the Yale-Georgia game, according to Mr. Rowe. The governor of South Carolina also is expected to accept an invitation and has written that he is revising his program with that in mind. Nine railroad presidents have made reservations for the game and still others are expected. Railroads are planning to run special trains from all the large cities in the south.

The governor of North Carolina will bring an official party of twenty to the Tech-North Carolina game Friday and then go to the Yale-Georgia game Saturday, according to a letter sent to the state executive department.

Watch Carolina Beat Maryland.

TAR HEELS USE ROCKNE SYSTEM

Every Man on Squad Has Been Trained in Notre Dame Style of Play.

The football squad that carries the university of North Carolina colors into the stronghold of the Maryland Old Liners at College Park today is an out-and-out product of the Notre Dame system. Every man on the Tar Heel squad has been trained from the ground up according to the tenets and principles of Knute Rockne.

Three of the four North Carolina coaches are former Rockne pupils. Chuck Collins, head mentor for the Tar Heels, starred at end on the famous "Four Horsemen" eleven that carried a national title to Notre Dame in 1924. Bill Cerney and Rex Enright, backfield coaches, are former Hoosier backfield stars.

Coach Bob Fetzer, long director of athletics for the university, plays a big role in coaching the Tar Heel lines, but the strategy used by the team is the Notre Dame style. And "Coach Bob" attended the Rockne coaching school at Washington and Lee last summer to become the next thing to a Notre Dame coach himself.

This system, distinguished all over the country for its high pressure offensive tactics, has seemingly come into its own at the Tar Heel institution this fall. It took the Moccasins of Chattanooga three years to rise to the S. I. A. A. heights with this style of play, and the Georgia Bulldogs found their stride in their fourth season of Rockne football. This, the fourth year of the Hoosier reign, may be the Tar Heels' big year.

The squad hit a winning stride in the opening game, swamping Wake Forest 48-0, but the tough sledding ahead is enough to make any coach step and study hard before plunging ahead. Besides Maryland the Tar Meels take on Georgia Tech, Georgia, V. P. I., N. C. State, South Carolina, Davidson, Virginia and Duke, and there's not a soft spot along the route. If the team emerges on top at the close of the season, then it will be another triumph for the Notre Dame system.

JOHNSTON SAYS TECH UNCERTAIN

"As I live in Atlanta and have a son who was chief cheerleader at Tech, I am more or less in touch with the situation there, and I can say that Tech isn't so cocksure this year," stated James Houston Johnston, consulting engineer of Atlanta who spoke before the civil engineers yesterday morning.

"They realize that they are to meet men worthy of their steel, but whatever the outcome of the game, they are going to make it touch for you.

"I wish to welcome you, and especially the players. We'll be glad to see you, and whatever the result of the game you'll have a good time."

Continuing the short diversion from the main topic of his talk Mr. Johnston gave some impressions that his son had received from seeing a practice session of night football on the Tech field. "There was a general impression of everything being blurred, and while it was possible to follow the massed plays, it was impossible to spot the individuals. Whether night football will be a success remains to be seen."

(By J. C. Eagles)

Last Saturday the Daily Tar Heel was very successful in predicting the results of the opening games played all over the south. The mere fact that the great majority of these battles were the first of the season made selections fairly simple since it is a well established rule with most of the larger schools to begin the season against a team which will give only the opposition required to evince the strength of their club. However, as the season progresses the matter of predictions becomes increasingly difficult. Today will see the real beginning of the 1929 campaign, and there are several games scheduled which will be battles to the end with the outcome in doubt to the last minute. However, from a study of showings made in the opening games last Saturday and the results of games played last season, the Tar Heel ventures the following predictions as to the final scores of the games this afternoon.

Georgia Tech starts things off against the Mississippi Aggies today in what will be the initial test of the strength of last year's national champions. Warner Mizell and Stumpy Thomason are being counted upon to furnish the offensive fireworks in the Tech assault. Maree leads the Tech defensive again this fall. With a team built around these three stars and with a wealth of material from last season, Coach Alexander should have a team which will offer threats to any team in the country. Tech should experience no trouble in scoring almost at will on the Mississippians who were downed last Saturday by Ouchita college.

Florida's high scoring champions of last season will meet V. M. I. today in Tampa. With practically the same team which lost only one game last fall and that by a lone touchdown the Gators look good to turn in at least a three-touchdown win over the cadets. However, the Virginians, led by Captain Hawkins, will give them a fight which will be well worth seeing, since the Flying Squadron is determined to do everything possible to make their first invasion of the far south a success.

CAROLINA FRESHMEN WIN OVER ROANOKE

(Continued from page one)

youngsters had to kick. The game ended with the ball in possession of the Tar Babies in midfield.

Lineup:

Roanoke	Pos.	N. C.
Copenhauer	l. e.	Nickols
Whitsell	l. t.	Smith
Greer	l. g.	Zovesus
Thomas	c.	Allen
Smith	r. g.	Philpot
Burks	r. t.	McDade
Holyfield	r. e.	Henry
Kern	q.	Chandler
Russell	r. h.	McNeill
Kosis	l. h.	Thompson
Matthews	f.	Sickles

DUKE-PITTSBURGH GAME TODAY AT DUKE'S STADIUM

New Stadium to be Dedicated by Opening Game this Afternoon.

The Duke-Pittsburgh game this afternoon will form the new Duke stadium at Durham.

The advance reports give Pittsburgh the advantage over Duke although there does not seem to be any idea of a walk-away. Captain Kistler of Duke is reported as being not due to play as a result of injuries.

The university of Pittsburgh will bring a galaxy of gridiron luminaries to Durham for the dedication game in Duke's new stadium Saturday. Some of the most prominent stars of the Pittsburgh eleven are Joe Donchess, end, who last year won all-American honors; Tom Pug Parkinson, fullback, who is rated one of the best in the game, while Charles Edwards, quarterback; Captain Al Dimello, guard, and Ray Montgomery, versatile lineman, are three others of the chief guns in the Panther team.

Bill Murray of Duke has been starring in the Blue Devils' workout. The Devils have been polishing up on their aerial attack in preparation for the game. Captain Kistler of the Duke Blue Devils is not due to play today as a result of injuries but it is possible that he will get into the game for a few minutes.

The likely lineups for the game are for Pittsburgh: Parkinson at full, Usana and Williams at halves, and Edward at quarter are the probable backfield starters. The ends will very likely be Donchess and Loehr, the tackles MacMurdo and Tully, the guards Captain DiMoolo and Montgomery, and center, Doughorty.

Duke's lineup is not certain but probably will see Hyatt and Peeler at ends, Thorne and Carpenter at tackles, Warren and Taylor at guards and Friedman, center. That is the way the men will line up on defense. On offense Warren goes to end and Hyatt to guard.

It is not likely that Kistler will be in the starting lineup but in case he does play Thorne would go back to guard in Taylor's place. Godfrey at full, Buie and Murray at halves and Rosky at quarter will probably compose the backfield for Duke.

The "Battle of the Bronx"—New York University vs. Fordham—is scheduled for October 12.

Baseball Notice

All sophomores who wish to try out for sub-assistant managerships of baseball will report at the intra-mural field this morning at 10:00. There are several vacancies on the staff.

V. P. I. Gets Ready For Game Tomorrow

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 4.—Virginia Poly's eleven is finishing a hard week of preparation for Hampden-Sidney. And it is all because the Gobblers are deemed far from ready to meet the sturdy aggregation from Death valley.

The opening game with Roanoke college last week proved that the Polytechnic attack needs plenty of polish on the ground and in the air. Phil Spear and Tommy Tomko romped across for the trio of winning touchdowns against the Maroons more through individual brilliance than through aid from their teammates. For a brief minute or two in the final quarter after the regulars returned to the firing line the Techmen skirted the flanks and knifed through tackle with machine-like precision. This must be the brand of ball unleashed tomorrow against a stronger and heavier foe than Roanoke proved to be.

Few words but plenty of action marked the training program this week. Coach Andy Gustafson took the soreness out of his athletes Monday afternoon by work instead of rest. One full hour of fast signal drill, looked upon as a full program for Mondays, was merely the prelude to 30 minutes of scrimmage. Every man except Phil Spear and Jack Gray took part. This pair received slight hurts in the opening game but returned to the line-up Wednesday and should be in fine fettle for the clash with the Tigers.

Watch Carolina Beat Maryland.

CAROLINA
THEATRE
Wed., Thurs., Oct 9th, 10th

The Spectacle
Of the Ages!
Told by two glorious lovers who loved for all eternity!

WARNER BROS. present DOLORES COSTELLO
NOAH'S ARK
with
GEORGE O'BRIEN
No Advance in Admission

ARROW
Arablue
SHIRTS

—smart, new blues
—fresh patterns galore
—every one an ARROW shirt with ARROW collar
Shop early; before stocks run low
Come in—TODAY

Only Arrow Shirts have Arrow Collars!

There will be thousands of them at
THE DUKE - PITT GAME
You Wear One Too

Varsity Underwear - Walkover Shoes - Rugby Sweaters
Outfitters at a Reasonable Price

Andrews-Henninger Co.

COUNCIL TO HELP IN CAMPAIGN FOR FIRE PREVENTION

Mayor and Fire Chief Mapping Out a Program for Chapel Hill's Participation

SCHOOL TO HAVE DRILLS

Mayor Zeb Council will exert the full authority of the town government, and will enlist the support of the school and the various civic organizations, to give effective cooperation in the state-wide observance of Fire Prevention Week.

"I have received a letter from Insurance Commissioner Boney," said Mr. Council yesterday, "asking me to bring this matter to the attention of the citizens and to do everything possible to impress upon the people the wisdom of protecting themselves and their property against fire. Mr. Boney gives statistics showing that the state has made fine progress in cutting down the fire loss. The loss last year was a million and a half dollars less than the average for the last seven years; but, even so, it was $5,000,000, so evidently there is much room for improvement. Worse, of course, was the loss of life. Two hundred and seventy-one persons perished in fires in North Carolina last year.

"In his proclamation designating October 6 to 12 as Fire Prevention Week, Governor Gardner urges that fire drills be held in the schools, factories and stores, and that an inspection be made of schools, theatres, churches, hotels, and other public and semi-public buildings. I have been talking to the chief of the fire department, and we are preparing to make certain suggestions as to how citizens can help the cause of fire protection."

Under the laws of North Carolina "every public school in this state shall conduct at least one fire drill every month during the regular school session, such fire drills to include all children and teachers and the use of all ways of egress." Superintendent Hoyle will see that this law is carried out in the Chapel Hill and Carrboro school buildings.

Another provision of the law is that the state insurance department shall issue a pamphlet giving directions for fire drills in the schools, and such a pamphlet has been prepared by Sherwood Brockwell, deputy fire marshal, and is procurable by all school officials. The point particularly emphasized by Mr. Brockwell relates to the use of exits. "Proper drills," he says, "insure orderly exit under control and prevent the panic which has been responsible for the greater part of the loss of life in the major fire disasters of history.

"Fire being invariably unexpected, drills should be so arranged that they will insure orderly exit under the unusual conditions obtaining in case of fire. These should be conducted at unexpected times and never at times when the children are accustomed to leave the building. A good practice is to hold drills while the children are changing classrooms or coming in from recess periods.

"It is better first to train the children to use the regular ways of egress and all of the exits, but, to insure effective drills in case of fire, as soon as they have become proficient in the use of all exits and accustomed to fire exit drills, assume that one exit is blocked and use the others, changing the blocked exit from time to time."

The tariff position of us Democrats is a bit confused, but we're still agin what the Republicans are for.—Dallas News.

Alumni Dinner Date Moved to October 11

The series of alumni dinners which university of North Carolina alumni are in the habit of conducting on the university's birthday, October 12, will be held this year on the evening of October 11, according to the announcement made here yesterday by Mr. J. Maryon Saunders, executive secretary of the university Alumni Association. The shift of the date from the 12th to the 11th has been occasioned by the fact that it has been found that Saturday is not an effective day to hold alumni meetings.

Too, this year there will be no celebration in Chapel Hill on the 12th. The celebration which had been planned for that day has been postponed until the 19th, when the university's new $625,000 library will be dedicated in the presence of the second annual meeting of the southern educational conference, and when there will be a general alumni homecoming for the dedication ceremonies and for the University of Georgia football game which will be that afternoon in the Kenan stadium.

This year, the theme of principal interest at the local alumni dinners will be the Alumni Loyalty Fund and its work of building systematic private income for the university.

J. HOUSTON JOHNSON VISITS UNIVERSITY

Mr. J. Houston Johnston, consulting engineer of the State Utilities Co., of Georgia, visited the Engineering School today. Mr. Johnston is at present the director of the American Society of civil engineering from the district in which North Carolina is located. This morning he addressed the members of the William Cain chapter of the American Society of student engineers and this afternoon held a conference with Mr. Thorndike Saville and Dean Braune in regard to hte affairs of the society.

Dean Braune formerly held the position now held by Mr. Johnston. Mr. Saville is state secretary of the society.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH TO BE "AT HOME" SUNDAY

The first of a series of Sunday afternoon "At Homes" will be given this Sunday at the Parish House of the Episcopal Church from 4:30 until 6 o'clock.

A cordial invitation is extended by the church to all students of the University, regardless of denomination, to drop in and have an informal gathering and a hearty welcome will await both old and new boys and co-eds.

These teas are sponsored by the Student Vestry of the Episcopal Church of Chapel Hill. With some of the co-eds, and Rev. Mr. Lawrence they will be on hand to receive the students.

HARPER SHOWS UP WELL AT TACKLE THIS YEAR

"Puny" Harper, the 78-inch, 214-pound Tar Heel tackle, who was taking healthy clips at Wake Forest plays last Saturday, never played football before he came to the university. The big boy has shown steady improvement and in his third year is proving a power on defense and giving prospects of making a fine all-round tackle. He is a southern conference champion discus heaver and also center on the Tar Heel quint. He comes from Pittsboro, N. C.

The visible backbone of the nation seems to be entirely feminine.—Arkansas Gazette.

Future archaeologists can trace our development of styles by the migration of the vaccination mark.—Brooklyn Times.

PRESIDENT CHASE TO SPEAK TODAY AT N. C. C. W.

Greensboro, Oct. 4. (Special).—N. C. C. W. will hold its formal fall opening today at Aycock auditorium, the date which also marks the celebration of Founder's day, when Dr. Harry W. Chase, president of the university of North Carolina, will visit the state institution for women to give the annual address in commemoration of the beginning of the college in 1891.

Students, assembling by classes, will march to the auditorium in time to be ready for the exercises at 9:30 o'clock. An early hour has been chosen for the program so that all collegians who wish may attend the Pittsburgh-Duke game at Durham. Provision is now being made to run a special train exclusively for the 1,800 girls and members of the faculty, in order to provide ample opportunity for the body to see Duke university's new stadium and the contest to be staged there.

President J. I. Foust has by letter urged every student to be present at the formal opening of the semester. October 5 is a holiday at the institution; but all of the college population are expected to be present at the exercises established to honor Dr. Charles Duncan McIver, founder and first president of the college. A large audience is expected at the auditorium. There announcement is to be made concerning the time the special starts to Durham for the game.

Cavalier Frosh To Play Five Schools

University, Va., Oct. 4. Special. Over 100 candidates for the Virginia first year football team are drilling out on Lefevre field in preparation for the five games scheduled for them. Their season will open with a trip to Lexington to play Virginia Military institute October 18.

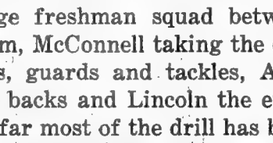
Joe McConnell, former star center at Davidson college and later coach at Woodberry Forest school, is head coach of first year football. He has two assistants, Kenneth Abell, former Colgate back and later coach at Fishburne Military school and at St. Johns in Wisconsin, and R. L. Lincoln, one of the best ends ever produced at Davidson. Abell is a brother of Earl Abell, varsity head coach.

These three tutors divide the large freshman squad between them, McConnell taking the centers, guards and tackles, Abell the backs and Lincoln the ends. So far most of the drill has been in fundamentals with but little attention to team play.

The first year squad seems to be in the same fix as the varsity. There is an abundance of fine backfield material but heavy linemen are scarce. There will be just about enough big men who combine speed and weight to fill out a crack first team with little line material left over for reserves. But there may be two or three backfields of almost equal ability.

The first year schedule includes five contests. It follows:

October 18, Virginia Military institute in Lexington.



October 26, Maryland in College Park.

November 1, Washington and Lee on Lambeth field.

November 8, Virginia Polytechnic institute on Lambeth field.

November 23, North Carolina on Lambeth field.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

EYES CORRECTLY FITTED
W. B. SORRELL

N. C. C. W. Opens Lectures Today

Greensboro, Oct. 4. (Special).—N. C. C. W. will open her extended lecture course of the season this evening at 8:30 o'clock, Aycock auditorium, with the appearance of Sidney Thompson, a dramatic entertainer well known to the public. Miss Thompson will present original plays, medieval legends and old ballads in costume.

Miss Thompson was trained by the French actress, Yvette Guilbert. Through the unique presentations of Arthurian tales, English madrigals and the folk lore of Roumania, Catalonia, Provence and Piedmont, she has received high commendation of American and European critics.

The lecture course, prepared for the benefit of collegians and other citizens of the community, embraces 11 numbers besides that of Friday evening. The course includes the names of the Duncan dancers, Bertrand Russell, Hugh Walpole, Frank Speaight, Lorado Taft and other artists favorably known to the public.

Kyser to Broadcast

Kay Kyser and his orchestra, well known Tar Heel musicians, who are now playing at the Bamboo Garden in Cleveland, Ohio, have been broadcasting regularly this week over station WHK. The program Saturday will be from 1:15 until 2.

Kay's band is one of several former student orchestras that have won wide fame since leaving the university. Although it left the campus just a year ago, Kay's outfit has already won an enviable reputation in New York and other larger cities of the north. Kay brought out his first Victor record last winter.

VIRGINIA HAS BIG BOYS AT TACKLES

University, Va., Oct. 4. Special. Virginia is relying upon the services of a fistfull of big tackles this fall. Coach Earl Abell has been working with three huskies who weigh more than 200 pounds and he has in reserve two others who scale above 190.

Hunter Motley, who weighs 210, and Dick Day, who tips the beam at 205, both won the "V" last fall. Larry Whalen, a 225 pound lad from Boston, who is the fastest of the trio, has been alternating with them in the tackle positions.

Coach Abell started Day and Whalen against Randolph-Macon and held Motley in reserve. But Motley will probably be in the opening lineup against South Carolina in Columbia on Saturday and against Swarthmore when the Cavaliers return to Lambeth field on October 12.

Motley is a heavyweight boxer of great skill. Johnny LaRowe, coach of the leatherpushers, has taught the big fellow how to use his hands and how to shift his weight so as to put all his force behind a charge, a body block or a tackle.

Last season Whalen started practice with the varsity but was injured before the first game and was unable to play. Earle Neale who was head coach last season, rated Whalen as one of the best tackles he had ever seen before the big fellow was laid up.

Coach Abell plans to alternate these three big boys in action. If he needs reserve strength he can call on the two men who were freshman tackles last fall, Gordon Fuller, 195 pounds, and Bill Williams, 191 pounds. These men lack experience in line play, but both show great promise.

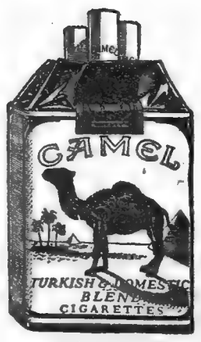
Watch Carolina Beat Maryland.

Loud Speaker Overrides Din in Filming "Noah's Ark"

The loud speaker has found a new use on the motion picture lot. Director Michael Curtiz used it not only to direct scenes in "Noah's Ark," the Warner Bros. vitaphone super-special, but also utilized it to broadcast music for the marching thousands, participating in the festival procession.

Even a brass band would not suffice to drown out unrelated sounds when the great pageant wended its way majestically through the fore-court of the Biblical temple of the production. Clashing cymbals of the dancing girls, the beat of huge drums mounted on the backs of camels and elephants, the blare of trumpets and other sounds defied dominance by any conveyor of sound other than the loud speaker.

Hence, in filming "Noah's Ark," a buzzer system to musicians in an adjoining stage, signaled when to strike up, and cease the martial music.



Dolores Costello is starring in "Noah's Ark," with George O'Brien in the leading male role. An all-star cast and 10,000 extra characters assist. Darryl Francis Zanuck is the author of the tremendous story which pictures modern and Biblical scenes in the tempestuous lives of two lovers, who are wafted from the present to the past, and back to the modern world at the delirious moment when news has come to American soldiers overseas that the Armistice has been signed. "Noah's Ark" comes to the Carolina theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

DR. R. R. CLARK
DENTIST
Office Over Bank of Chapel Hill
Telephone 385

TO FLAVOR A MOMENT
OR MARK A THOUGHT—HAVE A

CAMEL

Let Camels accent your little intervals between this and that Thoughts requiring pleasant punctuation moods asking for emphasis things accomplished which merit a bit of jubilee couple these with Camels and flavor them with pleasure Each time your day's activity takes a twist or a turn have a Camel!

Camel brings you an extra measure of pleasure . . . simply because it is a better cigarette. The choicest tobaccos grown are blended with expert care . . . into a mellow-mild smoke . . . cool and refreshing . . . which never tires your taste nor leaves an unpleasant after-taste.

© 1929, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Speech by President Chase
CHAPEL PERIOD
Tomorrow - Memorial Hall

The Daily Tar Heel

Speech by President Chase
CHAPEL PERIOD
Tomorrow - Memorial Hall

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1929 | NUMBER 15

Carolina Crushes Maryland, 43-0 When Backs Run Wild; Spaulding Dashes 73 Yards for Touchdown

Magner, Branch, Farris, Crew, Jackson Are Among Luminaries.

SCORE IS BIG UPSET

North Carolina's "team of a hundred backs" ran roughshod over the University of Maryland at College Park yesterday to amass a total of seven touchdowns. The score was 43-0.

Ward tallied first for Carolina in the first period by circling end for 20 yards. Spaulding got the extra point by a kick from placement. This was the only score in the first period.

On the first play of the second period Ward rounded left end for his second tally. Try for extra point failed. Maryland threatened during this period but Slusser intercepted a pass to place the Tar Heels out of danger. After Carolina took the ball Magner, sub for Ward, circled end for 63 yards and a touchdown. Try for extra point was wide. The half ended with the ball in Maryland's possession deep in her own territory. Score N. C. 19, Maryland 0.

Ward Scores Three

Early in the third period Ward circled end for 25 yards and his third touchdown. Branch went in for Wyrick early in the fourth quarter and took a pass from Phil Jackson for a 60 yard jaunt and the fifth touchdown. A few minutes later Spaulding received a pass from Jackson and netted a fast 60 yard run for a score. The score was N. C. 37, Maryland 0.

During the final seconds of play Johnnie Branch took another pass from Phil Jackson and twisted his way to his second touchdown. The extra point attempt failed and the final score was 43-0 in favor of Chuck Collin's Tar Heels.

The entire Carolina team worked smoothly throughout the whole game and the line showed up exceptionally well, with Captain Farris, Crew, Harper, Holt and Gilreath showing much ability.

In spite of the lopsided score the Old Liners put up a game fight. Chalmers was the leader of Maryland's offensive, and Evans did some fine punting for Maryland.

The lineup:

Maryland		Carolina
Peace	RE	Fenner
Wilson	RT	Adkins
Warcholy	RH	Nash
McDonald	RG	Eskew
Chalmers	QB	Wyrick
Madigan	C	Lipscomb
Radice	FB	Spaulding
Heintz	LG	Farris
Evans	LH	Ward
Lombard	LT	Koenig
Dodson	LE	Holt

Carolina	7	12	6	18	—43
Maryland	0	0	0	0	— 0

(Play by play summary on Sports Page)

Y Cabinets to Hold Important Meetings

There will be an important meeting of the two Y Cabinets and the Freshman Friendship Council Monday night at 7:15 at the Y. These meetings will be as short as possible so as to allow the men having fraternity dates to be present.

Community Chorus Will Hold First Practice Monday Night

The Chapel Hill Community Chorus, which George H. Lawrence has been organizing for the purpose of unifying the musical interests of the townspeople and the students in the University will hold its first rehearsal on Monday evening at 7:30 in Gerrard hall.

A large number of people have already indicated their interest in joining the chorus. Mr. Lawrence says, however, that a choir of 75 voices is to be formed. He urges that all students, both men and women, try out on Monday evening.

First Production

"The Messiah," by Handel, will be the first production given by the group. The famous oratorio will be put on just before the Christmas holidays. The work for the rest of the year has not been decided upon yet, but another oratorio or cantata will probably be produced later in the year.

The chorus, which is being sponsored by the music department of the chemistry club, will be under the direction of Dr. Harold S. Dyer. Mrs. A. S. Wheeler is to be the accompanist, and the glee club and the University orchestra will also give their support

New Library To Be Dedicated October 19th In Memorial Hall

President Chase, Governor Gardner, and Others Will Take Part in Exercises.

The university's handsome new library building, erected at a cost of more than $600,000, will be dedicated Saturday morning, October 19, at 10:30 o'clock in Memorial hall.

With President Harry Woodburn Chase presiding, the dedication exercises will open with prayer by Rev. W. D. Moss. Governor O. Max Gardner will present the building, and John Sprunt Hill, chairman of the building committee, will accept the building on behalf of the board of trustees. Dr. Louis R. Wilson, librarian of the university, will announce gifts and special benefactions. The dedication address will be delivered by Hon. Andrew Keogh, president of the American Library association. The assembly will sing "Hark the Sound," and Rev. W. D. Moss will pronounce the benediction.

The dedication exercises of library are being held in connection with the southern conference on education which is sponsored by the university.

Carolina-Georgia Game

Those who are invited to attend the conference will visit the Kenan Memorial stadium at 2:30 p. m. and see the Carolina-Georgia football game. The library will be opened for the guests at 5 p. m., which will be followed by a reception. The visitors will be entertained at 8:30 p. m. by the Carolina Playmakers.

On Sunday morning, October 20, Shailer Matthews, dean of the school of divinity, university of Chicago, will deliver a sermon, "Manufactured Gods," in Memorial hall at 11 o'clock. The music department of the university will render a musical program at 4 p. m. in Memorial hall.

From 10 o'clock Monday morning until 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, various conferences will be held at Gerrard hall and the Carolina inn.

On Tuesday, October 22, at 2:30 p. m. the guests will drive around the college campus and after playing golf the party will visit Duke university and other places of interest. This will conclude the conference.

Airplane Samples Are Received for Use of Engineers

The aeronautical branch of the department of mechanical engineering has recently received samples showing the details of construction of the wings and fuselage of a Waco 10 airplane. These parts, which have been added to the general collection of samples that is being gathered by the department, came from an airplane which was wrecked during the past summer.

In addition to the two parts showing the wing and fuselage construction, samples of the control surfaces, both aileron and rudder, were obtained at the same time.

Besides the parts which have just been added, the department has in its collection a Liberty motor which was placed in the University by the government last spring, the auxiliary equipment for this motor, and a propellor presented by the Hamilton Aero Manufacturing company of Milwaukee.

Another propellor has been given to the department by the Story Gawley company, of Glendale, Cal. As soon as this piece of equipment arrives, it will be placed in the room used by the senior mechanical engineering students, where all of the smaller parts of the collection are kept.

VESPER SERVICES TO START MONDAY

The regular vesper services of the Y will be held on Monday night at Gerrard hall at 7:00. The program, consisting of songs, prayers and meditations, will not last over 15 minutes. The junior-senior cabinet will have charge of these services for the first week.

Every student should make a special habit of attending these services.

Singing Service

A singing service will be held in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church today. Officials have invited all students and young people of the town to attend.

GARDNER, CHASE TO SPEAK OVER RADIO HOOK-UP

Grant Announces Speakers for University Day Broadcast.

Governor O. Max Gardner and President H. W. Chase will be the principal speakers over the University Day radio hook-up program, according to an announcement made here yesterday by Daniel L. Grant, director of the University alumni loyalty fund. In addition, the story of the North Carolina-Georgia Tech football game, which occurs the afternoon before, will be told by Mr. Munday of the sport staff of the Atlanta Journal, who has achieved a national reputation as a broadcaster of football games. He first came into prominence in broadcasting from Rose Bowl last New Year, and he is now under contract to broadcast eight of the most important games on the schedule this fall.

Honorable J. Shepard Bryan, '91, of the Atlanta Bar and former Superior Court Judge of Georgia will serve as toast master of the Atlanta alumni dinner, from which the broadcast will take place and will introduce the speakers. In addition, there will be a number of University musical numbers. The broadcasting will last for forty-five minutes, from 6:45 to 7:30 eastern standard time, and is distributed over stations WSB Atlanta, WBT Charlotte, WPTF Raleigh, thus covering the territory from Baltimore to Miami where most of the University's living alumni reside.

KOCH WILL GIVE LECTURE HERE

To Discuss Dramatic Groups For Benefit of Out of State Students.

Frederick H. Koch, head of the University of North Carolina Playmakers, will give an illustrated lecture next Friday night at 8:30 in the Playmaker theatre. The students coming here from other states have evinced a keen interest in the organization, and it is for their benefit that Dr. Koch has consented to give the lecture.

Dr. Koch will first discuss the Prairie Players, the dramatic group he directed in South Dakota before coming to the University, and he will bring his narrative forward to embrace the most recent activities of the Playmakers at the University of North Carolina.

RALEIGH ALUMNI TO HEAR TALK BY HOUSE

R. B. House will be a guest of the Raleigh Alumni Association the night of October 11. He will make a talk, subject as yet unannounced.

Registration Nears New All-Time Record

Dr. T. J. Wilson, registrar, announced yesterday that the total enrollment of the University had reached 2,621 students. This figure is 117 more than the mark reached last year. The total is 10 under the level set in 1927, the greatest number of students ever enrolled in the University.

Appoint Class Agents to Help in Securing Pledges To Alumni Loyalty Fund

Will Be Nucleus of Working Committee for University's State-Wide Appeal.

Goldsboro, Oct. 5.—(Special).—A group of class agents, representing virtually every living alumni class, will form the nucleus of a working committee for the University Alumni Loyalty fund, according to an announcement made here today by Leslie Weil, chairman of the Loyalty Fund council. Represented in the list, all of whom are University alumni, are many of the outstanding citizens of North Carolina.

The Alumni Loyalty fund council is sponsoring a statewide appeal to alumni to supplement state appropriations with private gifts.

The class agents are enthusiastic in their belief that University alumni everywhere are eager to respond to the call of the Loyalty fund, according to Mr. Weil, who points out that this method of financing is necessary in order that the University may continue to grow in excellence and finish as it grows in size. The private funds will be used to finance excellence.

The class agents have written three letters to the members of their respective classes outlining the plans of the appeal. Emphasis is being placed on a one hundred per cent participation rather than the size of the annual gift to be made.

FOOTBALL SCORES

N. CAROLINA	43 -	MD. 0
V. P. I.	37 -	Hampden Sid. 6
Pittsburgh	52 -	Duke 7
Yale	89 -	Vermont 0
Navy	15 -	W. and M. 0
Army	33 -	Gettysburg 0
Harvard	48 -	Bates 0
Wake Forest	19 -	Richmond 0
St. Mary's	14 -	Villanova 0
Penn.	20 -	Swathmore 6
Citadel	18 -	Oglethorpe 0
Penn. State	15 -	Lebanon 0

OCTOBER ALUMNI REVIEW APPEARS

Articles About Hazing Features; Watkins Replaces Allison.

(By R. M. Pittman)

Articles by Dr. Archibald Henderson, class of '98, and D. Allen Harrell, "North Carolina's boy Edison," who is now registered as a freshman in the University course in aeronautical engineering, contrasting "Hazing" and "Orientation" are features of the October issue of "The Alumni Review" which made its appearance yesterday. Dr. Henderson says, "If a freshman roomed in a University building his heart began to beat painfully after eleven o'clock at night." Anything from putting blacking on a boy's face while he was asleep to tying him to a tree in some lonesome graveyard and leaving him there until morning was the range of tricks played while he was a student here, Dr. Henderson declares.

Harrell says that upon his arrival here he and his class were met by several upperclassmen and a few of the faculty members who showed them around the campus, made them acquainted with the different buildings and helped them to get registered for their classes.

Editorial Staff

J. Maryon Saunders, '25, is editor of The Review this year and has as his assistants:

Associate editors: Louis R. Wilson, '99; Walter Murphy, '92; Louis Graves, '02; Frank P. Graham, '09; Kenneth Tanner, '11; E. R. Rankin, '13; Lenoir Chambers, '14; F. F. Bradshaw, '16; R. W. Madry, '18; Daniel L. Grant, '21; Edward Scheidt, '25; A. B. Martin, Jr., '25; Benjamin Husbands, '27; John W. Harden, '27. Advisory committee: R. D. W. Connor, '99; W. S. Bernard, '00; Albert Coates, '18; J. F. Royster; and E. W. Knight.

Tom Watkins, a special student from Charlotte, has replaced J. O. Allison as assistant editor. Allison is now studying in France.

Interesting Sections

There are several interesting sections in "The Review" this month. "The Sun Glass" by the field secretary, is especially interesting. He gives in his own way, the thoughts, activities, and other matters of interest among the alumni.

Other sections are: "Here and There with the Alumni," and "Keeping Up With the Classes." The latter two show the efficient method the general Alumni office has of keeping in touch with the alumni after they leave here.

JUDGE WINSTON TAKES OFFICE

Chapel Hill Man, 72, to Preside Over Bertie Court.

Judge Francis D. Winston of Chapel Hill has taken the oath of office as judge of the general county court of Bertie county. His first term of court will be held Monday.

This is the only county court in the state of the jurisdiction conferred upon it. In civil matters in Bertie county its jurisdiction is the same as that of the superior court.

Judge Winston has been a resident of Chapel Hill for quite a while, and he is a familiar figure on the campus of the University. Wednesday marked the 72nd milestone of his life, and he received many congratulations on his birthday.

"Rational Sex Life" Subject of Address By Dr. F. M. Seerley

Dr. F. N. Seerley of Springfield, Mass., will speak here Tuesday, October 8, on the subject of "Rational Sex Life." Dr. Seerley, being the first speaker on the Y program for this year, will speak in chapel Tuesday morning. He will also speak at a mass meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 in Memorial hall.

Dr. Seerley has spoken here many times, and has always had a filled house. He is at present head of the physical education department of the Springfield Y. M. C. A. college. From here Dr. Seerley will go to State college for two days to deliver a series of lectures. He is a very interesting speaker and every student should make it a point to hear him.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Sunday, October 6, 1929

TAR HEEL TOPICS

What with that 43-0 victory over Maryland, everything is serene on the Hill this morning.

Mrs. Esther Evans Williams, big game huntress, has cleaned up $300,000 in the stock since she began serving a six-months prison term for shooting her husband last spring. Hope the ladies don't accept that as an indication that "it pays to shoot your husband."

Too bad that Duke lost by such an overwhelming score in the dedication game at their new stadium. They always were a little over-ambitious over at the tobacco university, however.

A University Golf Course

For many years the athletic association has vaingloriously prated about mass participation in athletics here. As a matter of fact, fully half of the student body suffer physically from lack of exercise, either because they do not have the time or inclination for sports or because the facilities for the form of athletics they desire to participate in are lacking.

Golf and tennis are the only sports which will prove of value after graduation. Very exceptional indeed are those who participate in football, baseball, or track after they depart from the shelter of academic walls. skill in golf and tennis gained during college days will prove of immense value in providing an incentive to keep physically fit after the graduate takes up the burden of earning his own living.

Hundreds of University students play golf, and many more are anxious to learn the game. Yet the only golf courses available to undergraduates here are those at Hope Valley and the Country Club where the greens fees are prohibitive from the standpoint of the average student.

Every year many thousands of dollars are spent by the athletic association to provide for events in which an extremely small proportion of the student body participate. Outsiders contribute materially to the support of the football, basketball and baseball teams through paid admissions and other sources, but a considerable sum is paid in by each student to the athletic association through the matriculation fee. Surely it would not be unreasonable to request the association to make good its boast of mass participation in athletics by providing a golf course which would be available to all students without charge.

Fraternity Problems

In the mind of the average freshman there is nothing quite so prominent just now as "making a fraternity." The writer feels that there are certain factors in this connection which cannot well be overlooked.

There is no one who can evaluate the virtues of a good fraternity. The spirit of social harmony which enfolds the members of the desirable social brotherhood is, no doubt, without compare. No man who has sat in the company of friends who share his interests and seen the light from a dying fire flicker on their faces will ever tolerate the total neglect of that desirable fellowship which the good fraternity affords. Devotion knows no restraint, we are told.

But without this aforesaid harmony and oneness of purpose the ideal situation of companionship just presented becomes a chaotic entanglement which is without a parallel.

What, then, shall be the duration of that bond of fraternal loyalty? Unless its continuance infringes upon personal honor and personal dignity it should show no limit save that of the Stygian variety. And the members of this extremely unified group—shall they make limitless concessions to each other? In short, how long and for what purpose can we expediently grant our friends favors which we would not grant our ordinary acquaintances? These are problems which confront the fraternity and the fraternity men.

All too ofter the newcomer gazes with longing eyes at the badge of his favorite fraternity and sees there nothing but an ornament—nothing but a piece of gold finely wrought. Blinded by the impetuous desire to wear the fraternity pin he cannot look beneath the surface and discover what the group really stands for, in the last analysis.

Later when the slow but sure process of time has dealt the awakening blow, he looks beneath the glamour of the surface, beneath the mere beauty of the fraternity pin and finds—perhaps, that he cannot by temperament fit in with the ideals of his group—perhaps, that he has accidentally gotten into a group whose ideals and temperaments enable him to "click" properly. This we believe to be characteristic and by no means far-fetched.

What, then, is the role of the fraternity in the life of the University? What relation should this brotherly institution bear to the student body and especially to the newcomer?

For reasons which are too obvious to be mentioned the student body of any university naturally falls into two divisions—fraternity men and non-fraternity men. There are numerous students who don't belong in any kind of a fraternity. Financial, genealogical, social, and personal reasons account for such a fact. It is the chaotic condition which arises from an intermingling of these two natural divisions that we warn against.

We recommend the problems of the fraternity as being worthy of the most exacting scrutiny. —J. C. W.

Education Never Comes Free

The renown of a university is not only built by its scholars but is maintained by them. The University of North Carolina has merited and earned the very pleasing title of "the intellectual dynamo of the South," but a dynamo requires highly skilled engineers to keep it in working order and active in the production of power with which to move the wheels of industry and commerce. It is equally as important for a great university to have highly skilled professors whose constant care is to keep its intellectual dynamo running smoothly, turning out brain power.

The attraction individuals feel for a group of such highly skilled persons, combined with the unusually pleasing setting which we have here in Chapel Hill has caused the University of North Carolina to be extremely fortunate in the small number of losses among the great names on its faculty roster.

Money—that all important economic factor is, however, becoming more and more a genuine threat to the continued renown and prosperity of the University. The legislature, under the pressure of a combination of circumstances, has seen fit to pare the appropriations given the University this year to such an extent that it is utterly impossible to maintain any pretense of offering candidates for higher degrees the tools to work with. We have in mind one of the science departments which was given a mere fifteen dollars this year for all repair work and new equipment. The money was spent on repairing some batteries during the first few days and that department is now facing the rest of the year with no funds with which to replace worn out or broken apparatus. Another department was forced to turn away five candidates for doctors' degrees because of insufficient equipment.

Keeping $10,000 a year professors satisfied with $3,000 salaries requires more legerdemain than even that excellent executive President Chase is capable of. The time will come, and shortly, when other universities, at our very door-steps for that matter, are going to snatch these stars from out of our intellectual firmament.

The state of North Carolina wants education on a high level, and it is time for every Carolinian to face the issue, realizing that education is the most sterling investment that a progressive commonwealth can make, and that, strange as it may seem, it must be paid for.—J. E. D.

Readers' Opinions

CONCERNING STIFFS

To the Editor:

In the Tar Heel of October 3 there appears an article under the heading "Students Escape Injury in Crash." As there is no foundation for the material used in the story and as it reflects to some extent upon the conduct of affairs in the school of medicine, I should appreciate it if you would do us the courtesy of correcting the false impression which the product of someone's imagination may have caused. The only facts that occur to me are: that within the medical building you will find an elevator, some medical students, and also a number of so-called "stiffs." Some of the latter belong here while others visit us occasionally from other departments of the University. It is a good little story if only it had happened, but it did not, and I understand that the Tar Heel aspires to print the news and not short stories.

The reporters on the Tar Heel staff are welcome at all times over here at the medical school, but only so long as they tell the truth.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. S. MANGUM.

He was sentenced to kiss his wife or go to jail. He went to jail.

The apple crop of Great Britain averages 85,000 tons annually.

Pen Points

By H. J. Galland

Highly gratifying and encouraging is the report that Dr. Dyer of the Music department is planning to continue the Vesper concerts. Last year's Vesper and Sunday afternoon concerts were always looked forward to by numerous enthusiasts. In good weather, particularly, when the concerts are given near the center of the campus under the Davie Poplar, they are doubly appreciated, because of the ideal setting. There is no admission fee—nothing is required save a little interest in music and a spare hour or so on Sunday afternoon. We hope Dr. Dyer gets plenty of support—and good weather.

F. P. A. of the New York World notes that in his annual report to the president of Columbit University, Dean Frederick J. E. Woodbridge says that a majority of the graduate students look more for atmosphere than for advanced instruction. This is news concerning graduate students. But every year a lot of undergraduates, at the request of the faculty, get the atmosphere.

There were rumors when the library was being built that a smoking room would be provided for the use of readers. Although some of the library employees seem a little vague as to whether provision has or has not been made for the nicotine addicts, we haven't been able to discover such a room. We are aware of some of the more obvious disadvantages of the idea, chief among them being that everybody would repair to the smoking room and leave the main reading room in elegant and deserted silence, yet we think the plan feasible and worth-while. There is a smoking room in the Philadelphia Public library which is most successful. We should like to hear from Dr. Louis Wilson or anyone else in a position to settle the question through the Open Forum column of the Tar Heel—and students who are for or against, too.

Which brings to mind the fact that only one letter has so far appeared in the usually crowded battle-column. Somewhere a voice is calling.... and it sounds suspiciously like "Bicameral government" to us. All right, let's have it—grease your typewriters and keep a bucket of water handy in case they get too hot, but leave your bricks at home.

In a recent issue, the London T. P.'s Weekly reports that "In Abraham's Bosom," Pulitzer Prize winner, will soon be published on that side. The author, says the Weekly, is George Green, a young American negro.

The Chapel Hill social season, as every one knows, begins, not with the return of the co-eds to the Hill, but when the town fires begin to be frequent and interesting. Then the town turns out to chat on Professor Soandso's lawn as the furniture is taken out and a leak is sprung in the hose. This year's social season was announced in a handsomely engraved notice by Chief Foister in Thursday's Tar Heel. "Be sure," says the chief, "there is a fire and then call the station immediately." All right, chief, but suppose we call the station and the fire goes out before the engine arrives? Shall we light a match?

Considering the weather these past few days, this might be referred to as Chapel Hill.

Garden Club Will Hear Miss Busbee

Miss Isabelle B. Busbee of Raleigh is to speak to the Garden Club of Chapel Hill next Tuesday, October 8th, at 3 o'clock in the lecture room of Davie hall.

Miss Busbee's subject will "Art in the Garden."

DR. J. P. JONES
Dentist
Over Welcome-In Cafeteria
PHONE 5761

A Beauty Accused—

Will the murderer of John Argyle ever be brought to trial? . . . when a detective falls madly in love with a beautiful suspect.

THOMAS MEIGHAN
—in—
"THE ARGYLE CASE"
Meighan's First Talking Picture
—featuring—
H. B. WARNER — LILA LEE
ZASU PITTS — BERT ROACH

MONDAY
CAROLINA THEATRE
OTHER UNITS YOU'LL LIKE—
Mack Sennett Talking Comedy
"Girl Crazy"
Pathe News
Showing the Latest Events of the Day

—TUESDAY—
COLLEEN MOORE
—in—
"Smiling Irish Eyes"

WED.-THUR. Dolores Costello —in— "Noah's Ark"
FRIDAY Joan Bennett —in— "3 Live Ghosts"
SATURDAY Evelyn Brent —in— "Woman Trap"

Baseball
Play by Play!

ATWATER KENT
Screen-Grid
RADIO

Complete Price With Cabinet $145 (Less Tubes)

THERE are many features on the air right now—with the greatest sport broadcasts coming soon. Why miss them when you can own this new wonder set for so very little—and on such convenient terms?

Come today!

Electric & Water Division
University Consolidated Service Plants

Carolina Runs Roughshod Over Old Liners

PLAY BY PLAY STORY OF GAME

Tar Heels Outplay Old Liners in Every Department.

Chalmers kicked off for Maryland and Wyrick returned the ball to the 35 yard line. Ward went through line for 2 yards. Nash went around end for 3 yards. Ward ran around end for one yard. Farris kicked to Maryland's 35 yard line. Maryland failed to get a first down and kicked to N. C.'s 30 yard line. Ward ran through the line for 5 yards; Ward failed in a pass and kicked to Maryland's 34 yard line. Maryland fumbled on first down and Adkins recovered for N. C. Nash through line for three yards, Nash for two more, Nash again for one. Carolina was penalized for being off side. Ward failed at end on first down, but reeled off five yards around end. A pass on fourth down failed and the ball went over. Maryland kicked on first down and Carolina returned the punt to the 38 yard line. Ward to Nash for 18 yards. Ward around end for 20 yards and a touchdown. Spaulding kicked the extra point from placement. Score: N. C. 7; Maryland 0.

Maryland kicked again and N. C. returned the ball five yards to the 30 yard line. Nash got nine yards at end; Spaulding made it a first down. Ward failed to complete a pass on first down; Ward failed to complete a pass on second down; five yard penalty for two incomplete passes. Ward punted fifty yards to Maryland's 15 yard line. Maryland lost two yards. Evans punted only 23 yards and Nash returned to 26 yard line. Nash got 8 yards through line. Ward made it a first down. Maryland took time out. Carolina's ball on Maryland's 24 yard line, first and ten to go. Nash got a yard through the line. Spaulding 3 yards through line. End of first period. Carolina 7; Maryland 0. ball in Carolina's possession on Maryland's 20 yard line. Ward rounded left end for a touchdown on the first play of the second period. Spaulding's attempt for extra point was blocked. Score: Carolina 13; Maryland 0.

Chambers kicked off to Spaulding who received on the 20 yard line and returned to the 28 yard line. Nash got a yard through the line. Second down, nine to go for a first down. Nash went through the line for 7 yards. Nash made it a first down on the fifty yard line. Ward fumbled, recovered, and lost four yards. 3rd and 14 to go. Maryland's ball, first down, on N. C.'s 40 yard line. A pass, Chalmers to Dodson, gained 20 yards. Chalmers failed through the line. Chalmers passed to Dodson for two yards. Third and 8 to go. Chalmers passed to Radice for a first down on N. C.'s eight yard line. First down for Maryland on N. C.'s eight yard line. Carolina takes time out. Chalmers got a yard through the line. Warchloy made one yard through the line. Third down and six to go for a touchdown. Warchloy fumbled and Maryland recovered for a yard gain. Fourth down and five to go. Chalmers attempted a pass to Dodson and failed. N. C.'s ball. Farris kicked to N. C.'s 30 yard line where the ball was downed. Magner and Slusser substituted for Ward and Nash. Maryland fumbled and lost seven yards. Slusser intercepted a pass on his own ten yard line and returned the pass to the 25 yard line. Slusser got

(Continued on page four)

By Henry Anderson

The Tar Heels made it two in a row over Maryland yesterday and now seem well on the road to a successful season.

By taking the Old Liners in two Carolina succeeded in making her standing 1.000 in the southern conference and well above all other North Carolina southern conference teams.

Out of the eleven games that have been played between U. N. C. and Maryland seven have been won by Carolina and four by the Old Liners. For the past two years both Carolina and Maryland have had better offensive teams than defensive ones as the scores have indicated.

Advance reports gave Caroline the edge over Maryland in yesterday's game. The array of backs that Carolina has, seemed an impressive figure in predicting yesterday's game and as usual nearly all of the backs taken on the trip were used in the game.

The Tar Babies of 1929 seem to be making a very successful follow-up of last year's undefeated champions. However, Roanoke was no easy victim as the 13-6 score indicates. The Tar Babies still have a hard schedule ahead of them.

Pittsburgh christened the new Duke stadium by handing the Blue Devils the expected defeat. 'Tis a pity that all new stadiums can't be christened by a win for the home team. Odds were being given three to one on Pittsburgh before the game, but not because Duke has a weak team. The advance reports of a strong Pitt aggregation were responsible for the heavy odds.

Washington and Lee's victory over state last Friday was expected but not by such score as 27-6. N. C. State was rated as having one of the best teams in the state this year but if the score shows anything at all, the reports must have been incorrect. The Generals may have a better team than was expected but a 27-6 score usually means a rather one-sided game.

It is still too early in the season to prophesy concerning state honors as only two of the Big Five have competed against each other, but Wake Forest seems to be entirely out of the race. Davidson's chances are extremely slim, while State's stock is considerably lowered after the showing against W. and L. Duke's possibilities are yet to be determined as the game yesterday did not indicate their real strength. At present Carolina may be considered as the best bet.

Coach Byrd, of Maryland, slates Carolina as having the best team in the South Atlantic states but he may have been merely using this statement for its psychological effect.

Rifle Club Notice

There will be a meeting of the rifle club Monday night at 7 o'clock in the basement of the Alumni building. All old and new men are requested to be present.

If a davenport is a sheik's workbench, a rumble seat is a flapper's showcase.—Albemarle Press.

Tar Heels Invade Tech Stronghold Next Friday

Coach Collins' Notre Dame Trained Men Expect to Give Yellow Jackets Real Fight.

With the Maryland game a matter of history, the North Carolina footballl squad will return tomorrow and begin preparing for what is regarded the hardest test the Tar Heels face this year—the big game with the national champions of Georgia Tech.

The game is to be played in Atlanta next Friday, October 11 and reports of advance seat sales indicate that it will be witnessed by a capacity crowd. Grant Field seats some 35,000.

The North Carolina-Tech game will precede the Georgia-Yale dedication game which is to be played at Athens on the following day, Saturday, October 12.

Two-Day Menu

These two games will provide a two-day football menu that is regarded as hard to beat, and thousands of fans from all over the South are planning to take time off and attend both affairs.

Special trains are being run from all sections of North Carolina for the benefit of fans wishing to attend the two big events. Extremely low round trip fares are being offered by the railroads, and reservations already made indicate some several thousand Tar Heel fans will take advantage of the opportunity.

Followers of the Tar Heels believe that North Carolina this season has the best team in many years—in fact, the best team ever produced in the South Atlantic states, if you want to accept the judgement of Coach Curley Byrd of Maryland.

Determined

One thing all fans may rest assured—the Tar Heels will go to Atlanta determined to lick the national champs. Nobody realizes better than the Tar Heels themselves what a big feather in their cap a victory over Tech would bring to them. The magnitude of such glory has long since ingratiated itself with every member of the Tar Heel squad. The feeling on the Carolina campus is that this is the year of all years in which to put over a victory over Tech.

The Tar Heels should bo to Atlanta with plenty of confidence in their ability to lick Tech. Why shouldn't they? They don't have "a hundred backs," as Eddie Brietz of the Associated Press once jocularly informed the world; but they do have a dozen or so backfield men of sterling worth and their line has shown up much better than was expected.

The Yellow Jackets conquered the Tar Heels last year 20-7.

When the Girl Friend Acts Trite

Of course you want to make the best impression on that newly discovered femme, so when you take her to the drug store and she orders one of the regular drinks, suggest that she try sparkling

SHERRI-COLA

She will appreciate your good taste as well as that of the drink.

Sherri-Cola and Sherri-Ale

At your favorite fountain or in bottles.

Sherri-Cola Company

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM TO DEFEND SOUTHERN TITLE

Prospects Are Good With Six Veterans and Squad of Thirty-Five Men Working.

Rulers of southern conference cross country circles for three years straight, this year's Tar Heel harriers are working away in daily practice to continue the great record North Carolina hill and dale teams have set in the past.

Coaches Bob Fetzer and Dale Ranson have a nucleus of six veterans, headed by Captain Minor Barkley, stellar Tar Heel miler, around which to build another winning outfit. The squad numbers 35.

Whether the Tar Heels can repeat, and continue the great record, is another thing, but Coaches Fetzer and Ranson are going at the training program with vim and vigor.

The lettermen back this year, besides Captain Barkley, are Walter Lowry, Creighton Wrenn, Bill Medford, Cliff Baucom and Morris Cohen.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

"BROADWAY" TALKING SCREEN SENSATION COMING SOON TO DURHAM

The super-screen version of the celebrated Philip Dunning-George Abbott stage success, "Broadway," is to come to the Carolina theatre in Durham October 7 to 10. Glenn Tryon, Evelyn Brent and Myrna Kennedy are featured in the cast. It is an elaborate talking, singing and musical picture with an intense drama of the underworld of hijackers, night club life and bootlegging.

The photodrama was directed by Dr. Paul Fejos, under the supervision of Carl Laemmle, Jr. It was made on an elaborate scale, and is said to have cost $1,500,000. Much of the action is laid in a night club. This interior is said to be the most striking scene of the year. The decorations and the general arrangement and lighting of this set have set new standards in cinematography.

Against its bizarre and modernistic backgrounds, a chorus of 60 trained dancers put on a show that has no equal in the most gilded New York night club of the present or in the elaborate cabarets of the past.

CAROLINA THEATRE
Wed., Thurs., Oct 9th, 10th

The Spectacle Of the Ages!
Told by two glorious lovers who loved for all eternity!

WARNER BROS. present DOLORES COSTELLO in NOAH'S ARK with GEORGE O'BRIEN

No Advance in Admission

Sign On The Dotted Line

The manner in which you guard your banking relations in college is going to determine to a certain extent the value of your name signed on the dotted line of the financial world.

The Bank of Chapel Hill

Oldest and Strongest Bank in Orange County.

M. C. S. Noble, Pres. R. L. Strowd, Vice-Pres.
M. E. Hogan, Cashier

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. John Krause

nationally known tailoring expert, style authority, and personal representative of the KAHN TAILORING COMPANY of INDIANAPOLIS will present at this store an unusual

Tailoring Exhibit

of

KAHN Made-to-Measure CLOTHES

featuring the latest Styles and Exclusive Woolens for

FALL & WINTER

1929-30

October 7th, 8th and 9th

You are Cordially Invited

to consult the Kahn expert in matters of correct dress, and have him personally take your measures for Kahn custom-tailored clothes to your individual order

The Book Exchange
Chapel Hill, North Carolina

PLAY BY PLAY STORY OF GAME

(Continued from Page 3)

a first down. Magner got seven yards. No gain on end run by Slusser. Third and three to go. Nelson substituted for Holt at left end. Farris punted to Maryland's 33 yard line. It was not returned a single yard. Chalmers got four yards on an end run. Third and three on the 40 yard line. A pass failed and Maryland punted to Carolina's 22 yard line. Wyrick returned to N. C.'s 25 yard line. First and 10 to go, on the 25 yard line. Magner got five around end. Maryland called time out. Carolina's ball on her own 30 yard line, second down and five to go. Branch went in for Wyrick at quarterback for Carolina. Slusser through the line for four yards. Third down and one to go. Spaulding got a first down through the line. First down for Carolina on her own 37 yard line. Magner went around end for 63 yards and a touchdown. Score: Carolina 19; Maryland 0. The try for extra point failed. Gilbreath went in at center for North Carolina.

Carolina kicked off to Radice on Maryland's 20 yard line. He returned to Maryland's 35 yard line. First and ten. A try thru the line failed. Chalmers got a yard through the line. A pass by Chalmers was incomplete. Fourth and nine to go. Evans punted to Branch on his own 15 yard line. He returned the ball to Maryland's 41 yard line. Slusser got two through the the line. Slusser got two more through the line. Farris punted and it was Maryland's ball on her own 18 yard line. First down and ten to go. The half ended with the ball in Maryland's possession on her own 18 yard line. Score: N. C. 19; Maryland 0.

Other substitutions during the first half were: Harper for Koenig, Crew for Farris, Hudson for Eskew, Dortch for Adkins, Parsley for Fenner, and Maus for Magner.

Outstanding runs for the first half were a 64 yard run around left end for a touchdown by Jimmie Magner, sensational junior halfback. Johnnie Branch, star sophomore quarterback, returned a punt from Evans of Maryland from his own 15 yard line for 43 yards. First downs during the first half were North Carolina 9; Maryland 3.

Second Half

The lineup for the second half for Carolina was the same that started at the first except for Harden at fullback. North Carolina kicked off to Maryland. Eskew kicked to the five yard line, and Warcholy returned to the 15 yard line. Maryland failed to gain and punted to Wyrick in midfield. Nash went through the line for 15 yards and a first down. Nash got eight yards through the line. Nash got one more. Harden made it a first down. Carolina failed to gain on the next play. A pass by Ward was intercepted by Maryland. Maryland punted on first down, Evans kicking. Ward got two. Nash got two. Ward passed to Fenner for a first down on Maryland's 28 yard line. Harden got four through the line. Nash got two. Nash fumbled, Adkins recovered. A pass by Ward was incomplete. Maryland's ball. Chalmers' passes failed twice. Maryland penalized five yards for two incomplete passes. Evans punted to N. C.'s 41 yard line. Carolina's ball. Nash passed to Ward for a 20 yard gain.

Ward Passes

Ward took the ball on his own 25 yard line and circled end for a touchdown. Try for extra point failed. Score North Carolina 25, Maryland 0.

Adkins kicked off to Maryland's 20 yard line and Evans returned to the 37 yard line. Evans failed through the line. Chalmers passed to Dodson for six yards. Chalmers made it a first down around end. Carolina called time out. It was Maryland's ball on the North Carolina's 49 yard line, first down and ten to go. Thompson was substituted for Koenig at left tackle. Thompson intercepted a pass from Chalmers on the 50 yard line. Ward failed to gain through the line, but got four yards around end. Maryland took time out. Ward passed to Fenner and it was incomplete. Ward punted over the goal line.

Radice fumbled and Captain Ray Farris recovered on Maryland's 18 yard line. Ward got a yard through the line. Ward got two more through the line. Harden got one yard. Nash made it a first down through the line. Harden failed to gain through the line. Ward failed to gain around end, and the quarter was over. Score at the end of the third period was North Carolina 25, Maryland 0.

Branch was substituted for Wyrick during the intermission. A pass over the goal line failed. Warcholy failed to gain. Chalmers passed and Nash intercepted. Nash failed on an attempted pass. Magner went in for Ward. A pass Magner to Branch was intercepted by Radice. Maryland's ball on her own 28 yard line. Carolina took time out.

Gregory went in for Adkins at right tackle. Chalmers tried the line and failed. Chalmers passed to Dodson who was downed on his own 38 yard line. One play netted six yards. Second and six to go on the 44 yard line; a pass failed. Evans punted to Branch on the 15 yard line. He was downed in his tracks. Fysal and Gilbreath went in for Eskew and Lipscomb. Magner hit the line for eight yards. Magner got a first down on the 29 yard line. Erickson went in for Nash at right half. Erickson got two around end. Captain Farris was removed from the lineup and Crew took his place. Jackson went in for Magner at left half. Erickson got two around end. Jackson punted to midfield. Maryland's ball on the 50 yard line. No gain on the first down. Two passes by Chandler were grounded and they received a five yard penalty. A pass netted seven yards. It was Chalmers to Radice. Evans punted to Branch who was downed on the 20 yard line. Jackson got 20 yards. First down. Erickson made eight.

Branch Runs 60 Yards

A pass Jackson to Branch was good for ten yards and Branch ran 50 yards for a touchdown. Spaulding went in to kick extra point and failed. The score was North Carolina 31, Maryland 0.

Chalmers kicked off to Erickson who returned the ball ten yards to the 27 yard line. N. C. was penalized five yards for being off side. N. C.'s ball on her 22 yard line.

Spaulding Runs 60 Yards

Jackson to Spaulding was good for 73 yards and a touchdown. The pass was to the 40 yard line and Spaulding ran 60 yards for the sixth touchdown of the game. Spaulding again failed to get extra point. It was a great run that Yank Spaulding made. He outran the entire Maryland team for the score. Score stood at this point North Carolina 37, Maryland 0.

Branch kicked off for North Carolina to the 15 yard line. Radice received and returned to the 29 yard line. Chalmers passed and Ellis Crew intercepted the pass on the 25 yard line. He was downed. Jackson tried two passes. The second went over the goal line. Maryland tried two passes and they failed. Third down on the 15 yard line. Branch received the punt from Evans and returned five yards to the 40 yard line. Jackson made five yards through the line in two plays. Jackson got two more through the line. Branch punted over the goal line. Maryland's ball on her own 20 yard line. Chalmer's failed with a pass. Another pass failed. Radice went through the line for 15 yards and a first down. Pass, Chalmers to Dodson, was good for 3 yards. Maryland's ball on the 33 yard line. The pass was thrown to an ineligible man and it was North Carolina's ball on Maryland's 45 yard line.

Jackson to Branch

Jackson threw a pass to Branch for five yards and Branch ran the remaining 40 yards for the seventh touchdown.

Spaulding again failed to get the extra point and the score was North Carolina 43, Maryland 0. The game was over with the try for extra point. North Carolina had amassed a total of seven touchdowns and one extra point to rout the Old Liners in their twelfth meeting over a period of some 30 years.

SEA GULL SEEN HERE YESTERDAY

A phenomenal result of the recent storm was noted here yesterday. A sea-gull, flying low and laboriously, circled the University tennis courts several times and then disappeared heading east.

The three day rain and wind storm that terminated Wednesday forced a number of the birds inland. This gull was flying very slowly and so low that several tennis players almost succeeded in touching it with their rackets.

A Safe Place to Buy a

RADIO

One year free service (not including tubes) on all Radios sold by us.

University Book & Stationery Co.

New Line of Spalding Slip-Over and Button SWEATERS

Light Weight in the Crew and V-Neck

Students' Supply Store

Everything in Stationery

CAROLINA THEATRE
Wed., Thurs., Oct 9th, 10th

The Spectacle Of the Ages!

Told by two glorious lovers who loved for all eternity!

WARNER BROS. present DOLORES COSTELLO in NOAH'S ARK with GEORGE O'BRIEN

No Advance in Admission

"Customed to Don or Customed to Measure"

Unanimous

Clothes tailored with the rare distinction and luxurious imported woolens commands unanimous respect for the individual appearance created by LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES.

LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson

INCORPORATED

"University Outfitters"

The New Carolina Theatre in Durham

(FORMERLY THE CITY AUDITORIUM)

Presents

The First Million Dollar All-Talking Picture

"BROADWAY"

It's Dramatic Dynamite

A Great Cast Featuring Glenn Tryon, Evelyn Brent, Merna Kennedy And a Score of Others

Hear the Song Hits 'Sing a Little Love Song' 'Hittin' the Ceiling' 'Broadway'

MONDAY THROUGH THURSDAY, OCTOBER 7-8-9-10 and invites

Carolina Students and Chapel Hillians

to take advantage of
The Unusually Splendid Entertainment Regularly Offered

Talking and Singing Pictures with Extra Features

Road Shows

Vaudeville

One of Carolina's Finest Show Places

SEATING CAPACITY 1800

Box Office Opens at 1 O'clock

Bargain Matinees 1 to 2 P. M. 25 cents

Miss Isabelle Busbee to Speak to Garden Club 3:00 P. M. Today

The Daily Tar Heel

Cheerleader Election TODAY 9:00 - 5:00

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1929 | NUMBER 16

Sophomore Orders Begin Initiation Of New Men

"Sheiks," "Bulls," and "13" Clubs Have Neophytes Parading Campus; 37 Men Chosen.

With the opening last night of the initiation period for 14 members of the order of the Sheiks, the last of the three sophomore orders begin an extended program of initiation. Thirty-seven sophomores, initiates of the Minotaurs, the Sheiks, and the "13" club, will enliven the campus with their odd dress and clowning acts.

Selections for the sophomore orders are made from the ranks of fraternity members. No sophomore is allowed membership in both the Sheiks or the Minotaurs, while the "13" club is a national group, selecting sophomores from the thirteen leading fraternities on the campus.

First bids were extended Thursday night to initiates of the "13" club. The 13 chosen for membership are required to carry with them a chain of 12 links. The missing link, the 13th, is the incoming member. On requisition by a member of the order, the new man is required to explain the missing link theory wherever he may be.

Last Friday night the Minotaurs began the initiation of 10 new men. A straw hat, worn with years of disuse, and adorned with a bright red band, is the main feature of the dress of the initiates of this group. A green "mock orange," and a red bow tie complete the garb.

The period of initiation for the Sheiks and the Minotaurs will end with a football game between the initiates during the half of either the Georgia or the V. P. I. games. The antics of this group of grid skin artists are expected to entertain the large crowd attending the varsity game.

Following is a list of initiates: "13" club—Billy Draper, Sidney Lea, Joe Carpenter, Ted McLaughlin, Tom Shelton, Charles Rollins, Ed Graham, John Branch, Branch Carr, Byron Grier and Warren Thompson; Minotaurs — Mandy Webb, Thomas Alexander, Bill Bridgers, Jenks Hutchinson, "Stick" Skinner, John Parks, Tom Follin, Billy Myers, George Waterhouse and Lynn Wilder; Sheiks —W. S. Satterfield, Jr., Henry Anderson, Fred Jones, Hubert O'Donnell, Marion Glenn, Reed Perkins, Peter Gilchrist, Holmes Davis, Edward Yarborough, Tom Parsons, Frank A. Cole, Worth McAllister, Harry Finch and George Jones.

RUSSELL ARRIVES IN UNITED STATES

Stating that the American educational system is not designed to make people know the truth as it is tainted with propaganda and money of "Big Business" . . . . its obvious purpose being to turn out men and women with brains as standardized as so many gum vending machines, Bertrand Russell arrived last week in America to begin another of his renowned lecture tours.

Russell, a direct descendant of the famous English reformer of the 19th century, Lord John Russell, famed for his abilities as a philosopher, economist, mathematician, radical and pacifist, is scheduled to speak here December 3.

Juniors' and Seniors' Pictures to be Made

The Business Manager of the Yeckety Yack requests that all members of the Junior and Senior classes have their pictures taken as soon as possible.

Students to Choose Cheerleader Today

Tomorrow the final balloting for cheerleader will take place. The position of cheerleader is one of the most outstanding honors on the campus.

Howard Henry, assistant cheerleader last year, class of '31, and Jack Barrett, class of '32, are running. Both of these boys possess unusual qualities and either of the two would make excellent cheerleaders for the University.

The polls will be open all day. Voting booths will be in front of Gerrard hall and the Y building.

Out of a total of 615 votes cast at the last election, Barrett led with 170 votes and Henry followed with 151.

ALUMNUS TO HEAD BAR ASSOCIATION

Kenneth C. Royall, '14, Goldsboro, succeeds the late T. L. Caudle of Wadesboro as president of the North Carolina Bar association. His elevation was announced following a meeting in Raleigh of the executive committee of the association. Mr. Royall is one of the youngest men to hold this office.

Following his graduation at the University, where he made an enviable record as a student and activities man, Mr. Royall attended the Harvard law school for three years and was granted the LLB. degree. At Harvard he was one of the outstanding scholars of his class.

Psychology Frat Meets Wednesday

There will be a meeting of the psychological fraternity, Alpha Psi Delta, Wednesday evening in New West. At that time, several members of the fraternity who attended the psychological congress at New Haven last month are expected to present reports of the congress. Later on in the week several new members will be initiated.

Russell Talks Here

The young people of the University who attended the singing service in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church last Sunday night at 8:30 had the rare pleasure of meeting and listening to Charles Phillips Russell, alumnus of the University and a noted author.

Mr. Russell gave the gathering a very interesting informal talk. His main point was on the necessity for the University to strive for quality rather than quantity in the student body. According to Mr. Russell, quantity is no criterion for greatness and sometimes quantity may mar the excellency of quality.

From 25 to 38 miles an hour is the average speed of most small birds.

DI WILL DISCUSS TUITION PROBLEM

Important Meeting of Senators To Be Held in New West Tonight.

The regular meeting of the Dialectic Senate will be held tonight in New West. In addition to matters which concern the Di alone, the proposition of a mock trial between the Di and Phi will be discussed. Every member of the Senate is urged to be present.

The following resolutions appear on the calendar and will come up for discussion in the order listed:

1. "Resolved, That the Dialectic Senate go on record as stating that the University of North Carolina should grant free tuition to all students who are natives of North Carolina."

2. "Resolved, That the Dialectic Senate go on record as opposing the present dormitory system of distributing commodities to students."

The second initiation meeting of the quarter will take place one week from tonight. New men reporting tonight, however, will be given the full privileges of membership and be initiated at the regular time.

Scientific Society Will Meet Tonight

The Elisha Mitchell scientific society will hold its first meeting of the year, the 314th since its organization, tonight at 7:30 in room 206 Phillips hall.

The program of the meeting will include a talk by Dr. W. deB. MacNider, research professor of pharmacology, on "Regeneration of the Kidney and Its Bearing on the Kidney Function," and a talk by Dr. A. S. Wheeler, professor of organic chemistry, on "Further Paracymene Studies."

After the program of the meeting has been given, important business matters will be taken up by the society.

Garden Club Will Hear Miss Busbee

Miss Isabelle B. Busbee of Raleigh is to speak to the Garden club of Chapel Hill this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the lecture room of Davie hall.

Miss Busbee's subject will be "Art in the Garden."

Chase Delivers Talk On Honor System To Freshmen In Chapel

President of University Explains Merits and Advantages Of Honor Code.

Yesterday morning President H. W. Chase delivered an address in chapel on the honor system at the University. He pointed out the ideals that are embodied in the system in operation here, and explained how the system works.

As an example he used the case of a man taking money from a cash drawer in a bank. He said that that practice is termed theft; such is the case in the University when a man uses another's knowledge for his own benefit. Every one here is left with his own particular personality. If he chooses to work honestly, all is well; but in case a man elects to borrow work he is termed a dishonest person; which automatically bars him from the University.

In closing President Chase urged that every man be honest with himself and others, and consequently in the long run each person would profit infinitely.

At the close of Dr. Chase's talk, Dean Bradshaw announced that all freshmen not in the engineering school would meet with their respective Deans at the chapel period Wednesday in the following designated places: Dean Carroll, 102 Bingham; Dean Hibbard, Gerrard Hall; Dean Walker, 6 Peabody; Dean Bell, 206 Venable.

Ray Farris, president of the student body, then announced that one cheerleader must be chosen from those nominated last week. The two nominated are Jack Barrett and Howard Henry. He urged that all students vote tomorrow either at Gerrard hall or the Y.M.C.A. building.

Foerster Finds This The Dark Age Of American Scholarship

University Professor Points Out Some Dangers of Modern Study.

A vitally interesting study of American scholarship is presented by Professor Norman Foerster, member of the faculty and a noted authority on American literature, in his latest book, "The American Scholar," which has just been released by the University of North Carolina press.

In this volume Professor Foerster faces frankly the question of whether our literary scholars have lost sight of their proper objects of study through an all but complete surrender to the mechanical tendencies of the age, and the sensational and commercial spirit of America.

According to the author, this is the dark age of American scholarship. He points out that we are not only fulfilling the prophecy of Renan that the study of literature would be replaced by the study of literary history, but that we are transforming our allegiance from the republic of letters to general history, sociology and psychology.

This transference of allegiance, Professor Foerster argues, is evidence that our scholars suspect their own superficiality, which they are trying to overcome by moving farther and farther from the true center of literary study.

The book contains a sharp, yet moderate, criticism of the types of the modern professor and their system of training the scholars for the future. But it is by no means merely critical. The volume presents a plan of education calculated to attract instead of repelling promising students.

Among scholars Professor Foerster is regarded as one of the country's most distinguished authorities on American literature. He is the author of a number of books and magazine articles dealing with that subject. His most recent books are "American Criticism," recognized in the League of Nations list of 1928, and "The Reinterpretation of American Literature," which he edited for the American Literature group of the Modern Language association.

The University press has scheduled nine other books for release this fall and winter.

Seerley to Speak

Dr. F. N. Seerley, of Springfield, Mass., will speak this morning in chapel on the subject of "Rational Sex Life." He will speak again at a mass meeting tonight at Memorial hall at 7:30. Dr. Seerley, while here on the campus, will be the guest of the Y.M.C.A.

Student Vestry Holds First Tea

The first of a series of Sunday afternoon teas sponsored by the student vestry of the Episcopal church of Chapel Hill was held Sunday afternoon from 4:30 to 6 o'clock.

About 100 students of all denominations availed themselves of this first "at home." Some of the young women of St. Hilda's Guild (co-eds of the University) assisted a committee of women of the parish (Mesdames Anderson, Lawrence, Bullitt, Henry, Slade and Toy, Jr.) and Rev. A. S. Lawrence in welcoming the students.

Tea, cookies and home-made candies were served while an informal program of music was enjoyed. Dr. Urban Holmes sang several solos and Misses Stratton, Walker and Moore assisted in the entertainment.

Atlanta Alumni to Meet October 11

Atlanta alumni are observing University day and the playing of the Carolina-Georgia Tech football game in Atlanta in grand style. The Georgia Tar Heels are having a big banquet meeting to which are invited all University alumni who will be in Atlanta for the game. This meeting will be held at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, which is alumni headquarters for the game, and will begin about 7:30. All alumni who contemplate attending the jollification are requested to write J. W. Speas, 819 Grant building, Atlanta, Ga.

Sophs Get Only Six Cuts

Through some misrepresentation a part of the sophomores have the impression that ten cuts will be allowed this quarter. The dean of students wishes to announce that only six cuts will be permitted to sophomores.

U. S. Marine Band to Play Here Nov. 14

The campus will soon be flooded with numerous placards advertising the United States marine band which will be here November 14.

This band, sometimes known as the president's band, is composed of 50 pieces. It is one of the oldest bands in the country, having been in continuous operation for more than 135 years.

Plans are still being made for having the evening program in Kenan stadium, provided the weather permits.

Frosh Get Chapel Seats

G. P. Carr requests that all freshmen who fail to attend chapel and who do not have a regular chapel seat call by the office of the dean of students, 205 South building, from 2 to 3 o'clock and clear up the misunderstanding.

BAND WILL TAKE 62 MEN TO GAME

Uniforms To Be Issued for Tech-Carolina Game Tuesday; Begins Routine for Coming Year.

The University band has gotten under way on its routine for the coming year. The membership numbers 80 men, but only about 30 of these men have been with the band before. Although the losses were heavy among the old men, the new material is better than usual due to the growth of music work in the high schools throughout the state. The fact that the band is making a real growth is shown in the relative time required to advance through certain stages of music. During the past four years the band has worked under the following schedule: the first year through January was taken up with march music, then changes were made to easy concert music; the second year through the fall quarter shifted back to march music, and then to more difficult concert music for the second quarter; the third year began preparation of a very difficult concert program in November; this year work has already begun on concert music.

The band will make the trip to Atlanta for the Georgia Tech-Carolina game, and will possibly play for the Georgia-Yale game in Athens on the next day. For this trip the band will have the recently acquired uniforms, which were recently donated by the University athletic association. Last year the band put on a campaign to raise funds to purchase uniforms but only a small sum was obtained. This fall the athletic association agreed to purchase the uniforms, with this original fund to be maintained for repairs and replacements. Blazers of blue, trimmed and monogramed in white, with white duck trousers will constitute the uniform for the men; with a complete uniform for the director and for the drum major. The band will maintain the tradition that has existed since its organization of the men going without hats on parade. Investigation of other schools led to the decision to buy this informal type of uniform rather than something of a military order. This is the custom among the larger universities who do not have military training and R. O. T. C. bands. The uniforms are expected to arrive Tuesday and will be issued for the Atlanta trip.

The officers of the band are as follows: T. S. McCorkle, director; J. H. Brunjes, president; J. W. Clinard, secretary; Paul Patten, manager; C. H. White, Jr., assistant director, and E. L. White, drum major.

LIGHT DOCKET FOR RECORDER'S COURT

Only three cases were tried before Recorder Henshaw yesterday morning, and all these were concerned with liquor.

Denny Crabtree, white, was given three months in the county home for illegal possession of whiskey.

Jim Whitaker, negro, was given 30 days in the county home for public drunkenness.

Both the men were too aged and infirm to be given chain gang sentences.

Early Oldham, negro, was fined $15 and costs for having intoxicating liquor in his possession.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Tuesday, October 8, 1929

A New Carolina Magazine

The first issue of the Carolina Magazine, literary supplement to the Daily Tar Heel, has made its appearance. Although it is far too early to judge accurately the reception tendered the magazine in its new format by the students, we predict that it will be more popular than it has been for some years past.

Editor Mebane has adopted a sane attitude toward his publication, as evidenced by his editorial in the first issue. He states that "this year the Carolina Magazine will be published for the student body as a whole. In past years students, perhaps, have been afraid to submit contributions; and the magazine has been written by a few individuals interested in literature.—Our aim is to create a readable publication."

During the past few years the magazine has been steadily declining in popularity among the students. It has been regarded as the official organ of the campus litterati, published solely for their benefit and edification. Those on intimate terms with the small group dubbed the litterati were vastly amused, for the appellation was obviously a misnomer. But the campus persisted in regarding the members of the group with something approaching awe and certainly a very active dislike. Much of the magazine's unpopularity may be attributed directly to the mistaken opinion of its editors and contributors held by the students.

This year the magazine is masquerading under no false assumption of intellectual superiority or literary genius. The staff and the contributors frankly admit that they are merely persons who would like to write and are taking advantage of the medium offered by the magazine; they do not claim to be undergraduate literary prodigies. We are willing to wager that the campus will find their efforts far more readable than the material that has appeared in the magazine of other years, and that the publication is more popular this year than it has been in quite a few student generations.

Culture and "Crip" Courses

Professor Horace Williams made the remark a few nights ago that the present day college student is entangled in a curriculum of courses which is too highly specialized to permit education on broad, widely cultural lines. He stressed the point that lack of knowledge and wisdom in many fields is also lack of education in its finest sense.

Quite unconsciously we, in this world of specialization, are perhaps prone to lay too much emphasis on one specific subject and to glance superficially at the rest. But specialization in itself is by no means a vice; it is a necessity in the world of exchange in which we live. And a general, cultural knowledge has its virtues. Both types of intellectual training are seemingly essential to him who would be really educated. It seems that the maxim of knowing everything about something and something about everything is a fairly good one for the college man to live by.

The trouble, however, in getting an education which is at once specific and general is that a great many students seek "crip" courses to round out their culture. They no doubt take the attitude that their best effort should be placed on their major subjects and that, as they must take electives in order to obtain a wider culture, they should take those courses which require least work. No one can deny that this practice is widespread. Whether or not it is on the increase, no one can tell. Yet, it does constitute a problem, for it is as detrimental to the University as to the individual.

A solution to this perplexity has not as yet been advanced. Certainly the situation deserves one; nevertheless, it shall not come from this article. It is obvious, however, that the mass of students cannot obtain culture as long as they continue to waste their time in pursuit of "crip" courses. It is also apparent that students will continue to register for "crips" as long as there are any "crips" in the college curriculum to be registered for.—B. M.

Readers' Opinions

UP WITH THE RATTLE

To the Editor:

In days of old
When knights were bold
And the yo-yo not invented,
The gay buffoon
Made a toy balloon
And went away contented.

Now times have changed
And in town or grange
Each day brings forth its cravings;
Then someone thought
And a yo-yo wrought
To pacify their ravings.

Who will be the one to put the toy balloon and the baby rattle before the Carolina student body? The juvenile complex is far from being satisfied with the yo-yo—that peerless medium of expression for puerile tendencies! The yo-yo is all-sufficient for a large portion of our noble and sophisticated undergraduate group, but the clamor for more varied and complex instruments of recreation resounds with a mighty echo. Shall we permit such a vital need to go unappeased? Shall the heart-rending moans of the multitude in distress go unheeded? You, ingenuously ingenious freshmen! you, altruistically inclined upperclassmen! Set in motion the cobwebbed wheels of a long untouched intellect to devise some plaything that will be universal in its appeal! The yo-yo—alas!—is all too feeble, too inadequate, too mortal a machine to divert such cogent potential minds as rest dormant within the shapely skulls of our future leaders of America! The cry is for more inspiring, more individualistic instruments of diversion—give us the rattle and the toy balloon!

BROWNING ROACH.

Nothing can make a man more air-conscious than a flat tire.—Louisville Times.

Merely Meandering

john mebane

With profuse apologies, both to the poets and to the students, we offer a series of imitations of the modern poets. We apologize also to anyone else who has ever attempted to imitate the verse of others.

WHY A TOUCHDOWN
(After Gertrude Stein)

Here is the world. We live looking out. Looking out. Looking out. It is snowing couplets. Couplets. Snowing couplets. Showing couplets. Two couples. Two make a couple. Ruffles are not apple dumplings. Here are the dumplings. Crumplings. Here is the world. Here is the world snowing couplets.

DESTRUCTION
(After Eugene Jolas)

Deleterious parlance stalks among us,
Machiavellian, ruthless.
We stare lymphatically, unknowing.
Malversation seeps from our veins,
Spills over our flesh.
We squirm under dialectical anfractuosities,
Our limbs totter, topple us into dust.

NO FOOLING
(After Dot Parker)

So you leave me broken-hearted
Since you have had your fling?
Well, I'll tell you (since we've parted)
I've six others on my string!

ESOTERICA
(After Ezra Pound)

After all else is gone,
Withered from buds of the universe,
You, my songs, shall linger.
You shall snuggle into pockets of earth,
Warm yourselves, rest complacently.
You have done your share, my songs;
You shall be immortal.
Shun these creatures of vanity,
Thumb your noses at them.

YO YO
(After Edith Sitwell)

See the Yo Yo, watch it whirl,
Climb the string and dance,
Dance and prance,
Prance and dance,
See the Yo Yo whirl.
Watch its antics on the string,
See the Yo Yo spin,
Spin and grin,
Grin and spin,
Watch it on the string.

BLABBERMOUTH
(After Carl Sandburg)

So you're broken-hearted, eh?
Well, what about it?
Who wants to know what's hurting you?
Everybody has broken-hearts,
But they don't shout it to the world;
No, sir, they keep it in silence.
What if you are hurting;
Who wants to know what's hurting you?

JOHNNY JUMPUP
(After Edgar Lee Masters)

Johnny Jumpup never put tacks in teacher's seat
Or threw cabbages at the Opera House.
He passed people with a cheery greeting
And wouldn't have hurt the hair on a flea.
He used to run errands for his mother
And he didn't grumble about them either.
Three months ago Johnny fell in love,
And when he learned she was already married,
He drank a bottle of wood alcohol.

SMILE
(After Edgar Guest)

If the sun doesn't shine, why smile,
If it rains out-of-doors, walk a mile!
If you haven't got a car
And you yearn for a cigar,
What's the use of worrying—just smile!

COLD
(After Joseph Mitchell)

It is cold in the house.
This cold is good to look upon,
Hard and rigid like lead-pipe;
I can bite through it:
See, what a gaping hole
Where my fingers pierced!
There is a strangeness about this cold,
A strangeness that I do not understand.

Survey Reveals Law Studied as an Asset

A survey completed by National University Law School to determine whether students graduating in law enter private practice reveals that just about one-third yearly who obtain their degrees from the university pursue the legal profession.

The remaining two-thirds complete their courses, considering a law degree a most valuable asset for other business and professional careers.

The survey further shows that the students come from every walk of life, the university numbering among its groups men and women serving in minor business positions to high ranking places in civil, professional and military life.

The general belief of the past, according to university officials that law was taught only for the individual desiring to practice it, does not hold as a result of this survey and in the future there will be an even greater tendency for persons to study law for the purpose of applying the result of their study in any line of endeavor.

Drug addiction among women of Constantinople is so common as to be almost a matter of fashion.

DR. R. R. CLARK
DENTIST
Office Over Bank of Chapel Hill
Telephone 385

Better Than "Lilac Time"

"Smiling Irish Eyes"
with COLLEEN MOORE
JAMES HALL
Hear Colleen's Voice—Vitaphone's Gift to the Show World.
TODAY
also Comedy Novelty
CAROLINA THEATRE
WED.- THUR.
"NOAH'S ARK"

Hear Gloria Sing!

Of course, you've seen Gloria Swanson in the movies, but did you know that she could sing? She can—and how! Just drop in this week and ask to hear her first Victor record! It's got all that certain something which only Gloria knows how to radiate—and lots more. Treat yourself, too, to an earful of Ben Pollack and His Park Central Orchestra. They've recorded two scorching theme songs from the RADIO picture, "Rio Rita." And be sure to ask for Rudy Vallée's latest. It's a three-alarm hit from rim to rim, both sides! Hear them played on our new Victor Radio-Electrola!

Sweetheart, We Need Each Other—Fox Trot (from the RADIO picture "Rio Rita") with vocal refrain
You're Always in My Arms—Waltz (But Only in My Dreams) (from the RADIO picture "Rio Rita") with vocal refrain
BEN POLLACK AND HIS PARK CENTRAL ORCHESTRA
No. 22101, 10-inch

That's When I Learned to Love You—Fox Trot with vocal refrain
A Kiss to Remember—Waltz (from Tiffany-Stahl picture, "My Lady's Past") with vocal refrain
RUDY VALLÉE AND HIS CONNECTICUT YANKEES
No. 22090, 10-inch

At Close of Day—Fox Trot (from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Wonder of Women") with vocal refrain
Ich liebe dich (I Love You)—Waltz (from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture "Wonder of Women") with vocal refrain
LEO REISMAN AND HIS ORCHESTRA
No. 22100, 10-inch

Waiting at the End of the Road (from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture "Hallelujah")
DANIEL HAYNES AND DIXIE JUBILEE SINGERS
Old-Time Religion PACE JUBILEE SINGERS
No. 22097, 10-inch

Love (Your Spell is Everywhere) (from United Artists picture, "The Trespasser")
Serenade (Silvestri-Toselli) GLORIA SWANSON
No. 22079, 10-inch

Little By Little—Fox Trot (from Pathé picture, "The Sophomore") with vocal refrain
Every Day Away From You—Fox Trot with vocal refrain BERNIE CUMMINS AND HIS BILTMORE ORCHESTRA
No. 22088, 10-inch

Students' Supply Store
Everything in Stationery

New Orthophonic
Victor Records

"Customed to Don or Customed to Measure"

Present!

A roll call of the outstanding Universities would include with most interesting frequency the names of wearers of distinctive Clothes by LANGROCK.

LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson
INCORPORATED
"University Outfitters"

Tar Heels Begin Work For Biggest Game On Schedule

Victory Over Maryland Spurs Heels on in Preparation for "Golden Tornado" Friday.

With two games gone and 91 points scored, North Carolina's flashy football team was back from Maryland today to begin priming and driving for a bigger feather to adorn the Tar Heel cap—the feather of a victory over Georgia Tech's national champions in Atlanta Friday.

Youth and ambition are synonymous, it seems. A successful connection of the Tar Heel wagon with the star of a victory over Tech would bring a magnitude of glory. The Tar Heels were beginning an intensive drive today for just that purpose—"Lick Tech."

The sports writers and coaches are conceding this to be Tar Heel year, if there ever was a Tar Heel year. Ed Danforth, of the Atlanta Constitution, rates the Tar Heels a fine chance. Curley Byrd, whose Maryland eleven the Tar Heels topped 43-0 Saturday, goes farther and tells the grid world these Tar Heels have the hottest outfit he has seen below the Mason and Dixon.

The home state fans are up in arms, and, from the advance train ticket sales, are threatening a Georgia invasion by the thousand this week. The prevailing opinion is that a great fight is in store regardless.

Against the great Thomason and Mizell the Tar Heels will present a crew of 12 fine backs. The Tar Heels are conceded to have the best crew of ball-toters in the Southland. There should be plenty of fireworks when the two backfields meet in scoring combat.

Jimmy Ward and Strud Nash, Coach Collins' starting choice for the halfback posts in the first two games, form a great combination. Ward skirts the ends and is dangerous at passing. This year he has been doing some of the kicking for the Heels. Nash did a great deal of the heavy plunging of the Heels against the Old Liners Saturday. He is also one of the best pass receivers on the squad.

Johnny Branch and Jim Magner brought the stands up with sensational runs against the Terrapins. "Yank" Spaulding seems to have hit his stride and turned in one of his best performances Saturday.

All these and others just as good are priming for Tech. Henry House, the Tar Heels' hardest driving fullback, was held in reserve Saturday. Chuck Erickson and Phil Jackson, spectacular broken field artists; Jimmy Maus, who heaves the bullet passes; Quarterback Wyrick and Fullback Harden will be ready. Nine of these men are lettermen.

Tar Heel supporters say the great Tech line can't stop these men. Tech may score too, they say, but so will North Carolina, and the question is "how much?"

Alabama to Broadcast Student Pep Meeting

University, Ala., Oct. 7.—(Special)—For the first time in the history of the University of Alabama, pep meetings will be broadcast this fall, according to J. S. Roberts, Birmingham, head cheer leader of the Capstone. The pep meetings will be put on the air over WAPI the evenings proceeding the Sewanee game, Oct. 26, and the Georgia game Nov. 28.

The Limit of Endurance

The average man will stand any sort of government legislation except compulsory publication of his golf scores.

Spain has 118 hydroelectric plants.

INTRAMURAL SCHEDULE
First Week: Oct. 7-11

Tuesday, October 8:

4:00 P. M.—1. Beta Theta Pi vs. Sigma Alpha Epsilon; 2. Manly vs. "G"; 3. Field in use by varsity baseball squad.

5:00 P. M.—1. "J" vs. Old West; 2. Zeta Psi vs. Sigma Nu; 3. Phi Delta Theta vs. Kappa Alpha.

Wednesday, October 9:

4:00 P. M.—1.Mangum vs. Old East; 2. Pi Kappa Alpha vs. Pi Kappa Phi; 3. Field in use by varsity baseball squad.

5:00 P. M.—1. Chi Phi vs. Alpha Tau Omega; 2. Sigma Phi Sigma vs Phi Sigma Kappa; 3. Grimes vs. "F".

Thursday, October 10:

4:00 P. M.—1. Kappa Sigma vs. Zeta Psi; 2. Steele vs. "I"; 3. Field in use by varsity baseball squad.

5:00 P. M.—1. Beta Theta Pi vs. Sigma Chi; 2. New Dorms vs. Manly; 3. "J" vs. "G".

Friday, October 11

4:00 P. M.—1. Manly vs. Ruffin; 2. Chi Psi vs S. A. E.; 3. Field in use by varsity baseball squad.

Sigma vs. Phi Sigma Kappa; K. E.; 2. Phi Delta Theta vs. Sigma Nu; 3. Pi Kappa Alpha vs. Kappa Alpha.

Tag Football Rules

"Tag" Football shall be governed by the official inter-collegiate rules, with the following exceptions:

1. Periods shall be eight (8) minutes in length.
2. Tagging shall be substituted for tackling.
3. There shall be no undue rough play in the line.
4. No spiked or metal cleated shoes shall be allowed.
5. Seven men may constitute a team.
6. Any man is eligible for passes.

CAVALIERS WILL MEET SWATHMORE SATURDAY

University, Va., Oct. 7.—(Special)—Swathmore College will come to Lambeth field next Saturday to play the University of Virginia. It will be the first game with the Quakers since 1914 when one of the greatest Cavalier teams won a 47 to 0 victory in Philadelphia.

This Swathmore game will be Virginia's only contest this fall against a team from the north. Two Old Dominion elevens will be trying their strength against Pennsylvania teams the same day, for Virginia Polytechnic Institute goes to Franklin Field against the U. of Penn next Saturday.

After playing Swathmore the Cavaliers enter upon their first round with a state rival. Virginia Military Institute will be entertained on Lambeth field the afternoon of October 19.

RUTHERFORDTON HOLDS SESQUI CELEBRATION

Rutherford County observed its sesqui-centennial in August with an all-day celebration in which alumni of the University figured prominently. R. E. Price, '18, served as chairman of the local committee in charge of the arrangements and much publicity and the many congratulations given the occasion attests the excellence of his job. Among the speakers of the day were Josephus Daniels, '86, and Dr. A. R. Newsome, '15, secretary of the North Carolina Historical Commission.

The town of Rutherfordton put on its holiday attire for the celebration, and the display of flags and banners made a fitting background for the beautiful and historical floats of the parade.

(By J. C. Eagles)

After their 43 to 0 victory over the Old Liners Saturday the Heels began work yesterday in preparation for what should be the crucial battle of the year, for the success of the season hinges greatly on the Tech game. The squad is in good physical shape with the return of Henry House and Ty Reid who have been out because of injuries. Coach Collins is working steadily with his men and from present indications the Heels should give last year's national champions lots of trouble before the fray is over.

The Heels were the only members of the Big Three in North Carolina to come out of Saturday's games with a victory. Incidentally all three teams battled foes from other states, and in each case the games resulted in runaway scores. Carolina scored over the Old Liners almost at will. Duke could do nothing to stop the powerful attack of the University of Pittsburgh. State college, with the lightest team that has represented the Raleigh institution in years, put up a great fight against a heavier Washington Washington and Lee team but went down to defeat by a large score.

The coming week-end will see the Tar Heels invade Atlanta to meet Georgia Tech. Duke's Blue Devils remain idle in preparation for their game with the Navy at Annapolis on October 19. N. C. State goes south to battle Clemson at Florence. Wake Forest meets Elon in a game which should result in an easy victory for the Deacons. Davidson's wildcats will battle the strongest team on their schedule when they tackle the Army eleven at West Point on Saturday. Only one of the Big Five teams will remain in the state to play this week-end and this game will not be of major interest since the Demon Deacons meet Elon, a team which should not give them much trouble.

With the football front shifted southward this week and the biggest thrills reserved for those who journey to Atlanta to see the Heels play Tech and Yale battle the Georgia Bulldogs, the eyes of many sports followers will be turned on the world series which opens in Chicago this afternoon. The Cubs and Athletics from a study of statistics are about as evenly matched as possible. Taking each team and comparing them position by position very little advantage can be ascribed to either in any one of the nine places. Both clubs are probably more offensive than defensive machines since each boasts a list of sluggers which have been chiefly responsible in bringing them out in front in their respective leagues. The Athletics finished the season with the higher percentage of games won and lost having a .693 standing as compared to .645 for the Cubs. However the outcome of the series could hardly be predicted from such figures and it is the opinion of the Tar Heel that each club has about an equal chance to become the Champions of the World.

The boxing kangaroo has reappeared in New York. He represents the manager's rosy dream of a pugilist who will not demand a share of the gate receipts.—The New Yorker.

CHARLIE ROOT TO PITCH TODAY

Cubs' Star Righthander Will Toss in First Game of World's Series.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs today said he planned to send Charlie Root, his star righthander, against the Athletics in the first game of the world series tomorrow, reserving Perse "Pat" Malone for the second game Wednesday.

Lefty Grove is expected to toss for the Mackmen.

CHAPEL HILL HIGHS WIN OPENING GAME OF YEAR

With strong line out front and a pony backfield running wild behind, the Chapel Hill high school gridders celebrated the opening of their season here Friday by downing Asheboro highs, 25-6.

Captain Durham's 80-yard touchdown sprint after intercepting an Asheboro pass and the broken field running of Dick Dashiell featured. Both men bagged a touchdown apiece while Odell King, fullback, drove two across.

Conference Records

1928 Records of Southern Conference Teams

NORTH CAROLINA

65	W'ke For't 0	6	N.C. State 6
26	Maryland 19	0	S. Carolina 0
0	Harvard 20	30	Davidson 7
14	V. P. I. 16	24	Virginia 20
7	Tech 20	14	Duke 7

TECH

13	V. M. I. 0	19	Vanderbilt 7
12	Tulane 0	33	Alabama 13
13	N. Dame 0	51	Auburn 0
20	N. C. 7	20	Georgia 6
32	Oglethorpe 7	8	California 7

GEORGIA

52	Mercer 0	6	Florida 26
6	Yale 21	12	L. S. U. 13
7	Furman 0	0	Alabama 19
10	Tulane 6	6	Ga. Tech 20
13	Auburn 0

VANDERBILT

20	Chat'nooga 0	14	Kentucky 7
12	Colgate 7	7	Tech 19
13	Texas 12	0	Tennessee 6
13	Tulane 6	26	Centre 0
34	Virginia 7	13	Sewanee 0

ALABAMA

20	Mississippi 0	13	Tech 33
46	Miss Ags. 0	14	Kentucky 0
13	Tennessee 15	19	Georgia 0
0	Wisconsin 15	13	Louisiana 0
42	Sewanee 12

AUBURN

0	Bir.-South. 6	0	Georgia 13
0	Clemson 6	12	Tulane 13
0	Florida 27	0	Miss. Ags. 13
0	Mississippi 13	0	Tech 51
25	Howard 6

NORTH CAROLINA STATE

57	Elon 0	6	N. C. 6
0	Clemson 7	14	Davidson 7
37	Wake For't 0	12	Duke 14
7	Florida 14	0	Mich State 7

L. S. U.

	S. C. 7	0	Arkansas 7
46	Sw. La. Ins. 0	19	Mississippi 6
41	La. Col. 0	13	Georgia 12
31	Miss. Ags. 0	0	Tulane 0
30	Spring Hill 7	0	Alabama 0

DUKE

0	Boston Col. 19	38	Mercer 18
7	N. C. 14	0	Furman 6
14	N. C. State 12	0	Navy 6
33	Davidson 0	0	Georget'n 35
38	Wake For't 0	26	S. Dakota 6

TULANE

65	La. Normal 0	28	Millsaps 0
51	Miss Ags. 0	13	Auburn 12
0	Ga. Tech 12	41	Sewanee 6
6	Vanderbilt 13	47	La. Col. 7
14	Georgia 20	0	La. State 0

MISSISSIPPI AGGIES

20	Ouachita 7	6	Michigan 6
6	Tulane 51	6	Century 6
0	Alabama 46	13	Auburn 0
0	L. S. U. 31	19	Ole Miss 20

OLE MISS

25	Arkansas 0	26	Clemson 7
0	Alabama 27	6	L. S. U. 19
12	Tennessee 13	34	Southw'n 2
19	Auburn 0	20	Miss. Ags. 19
14	Louisiana 0

SEWANEE

14	Bryson 0	6	Florida 71
0	Texas Ags 69	6	Tulane 41
12	Transylv'a 13	8	Tennessee 37
38	Cumberl'nd 0	0	Vanderbilt 12
12	Alabama 42

SOUTH CAROLINA

19	Erskine 0	0	Clemson 32
6	Chicago 0	0	Citadel 0
24	Virginia 19	0	N. C. 0
21	Maryland 7	6	Furman 0
13	Presbyter'n 0	7	N.C. State 18

VIRGINIA

60	Randolph-M 0	20	W & L 13
13	S. C. 24	0	V. P. I. 20
0	Princeton 0	2	Maryland 18
0	V. M. I. 9	20	N. C. 24
0	Vanderbilt 34

V. M. I.

14	Hampden-S 7	0	Maryland 0
6	Richmond 6	13	Davidson 0
0	Ga. Tech 13	0	Clemson 12
31	Roanoke 13	6	Kentucky 18
9	Virginia 0	16	V. P. I. 6

V. P. I.

34	Roanoke 7	9	Maryland 6
32	Hampden-S. 7	20	Virginia 0
14	Colgate 35	13	W & L 7
16	N. C. 14	6	V. M. I. 16
54	King 0

WASHINGTON-LEE

56	Lynchburg 0	13	Virginia 20
38	N. C. State 6	12	Princeton 25
0	Kentucky 6	7	V. P. I. 12
0	W. Va. 22	0	Maryland 6
7	Tennessee 26	8	Florida 60

CLEMSON

30	Newberry 0	7	Mississippi 27
6	Davidson 0	12	V. M. I. 0
6	Auburn 0	6	Florida 27
7	N. C. State 0	27	Furman 12
52	Erskine 0	7	Citadel 12
32	S. C. 0

TENNESSEE

41	Maryville 0	57	Ca'n. N'mn. 0
41	Centre 7	37	Sewanee 0
13	Miss. 12	6	Vanderbilt 0
15	Alabama 13	0	Kentucky 0
26	W. & L. 7	13	Florida 12

KENTUCKY

61	Ca'n. N'mn. 0	7	Vanderbilt 14
6	W. & L. 0	9	Alabama 14
0	Northw'n 7	18	V. M. I. 6
8	Centre 0	0	Tennessee 0

FLORIDA

26	Southern 0	16	Georgia 6
27	Auburn 0	27	Clemson 6
73	Mercer 0	60	W. & L. 6
14	N. C. State 7	12	Tennessee 13
71	Sewanee 6

MARYLAND

31	Was'n Col. 0	6	V. P. I. 9
19	N C. 26	6	Yale 0
7	S. C. 21	18	Virginia 2
13	W. Way'lnd 6	6	W. & L. 0
0	V. M. I. 0	26	Jo'ns Hop. 6

CAROLINA
THEATRE
Wed., Thurs., Oct 9th, 10th

The Spectacle
Of the Ages!
Told by two glorious lovers who loved for all eternity!

WARNER BROS. present DOLORES COSTELLO
NOAH'S ARK
with
GEORGE O'BRIEN
No Advance in Admission

A Safe Place to Buy a
RADIO
One year free service (not including tubes) on all Radios sold by us.
University Book & Stationery Co.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. John Krause

nationally known tailoring expert, style authority, and personal representative of the KAHN TAILORING COMPANY of INDIANAPOLIS will present at this store an unusual

Tailoring Exhibit

of

KAHN Made-to-Measure CLOTHES

featuring the latest Styles and Exclusive Woolens for

FALL & WINTER

1929-30

Today and Tomorrow

You are Cordially Invited

to consult the Kahn expert in matters of correct dress, and have him personally take your measures for Kahn custom-tailored clothes to your individual order

The Book Exchange
Chapel Hill, North Carolina

College Life

Alumni Figure in State Bank Merger

The merger during the summer of several prominent North Carolina banks under the head of the North Carolina Bank and Trust Company also contained the news of the connection of several University alumni with the new enterprise. Former Governor A. W. McLean, '92, of Lumberton, is the chairman of the board of the merged organization. R. G. Vaughn, '92, Greensboro, is chairman of its executive committee. A number of other alumni are associated in the enterprise as directors and officers.

George K. Freeman To Continue State Branch of Legion

George K. Freeman, of Goldsboro, is the new president of the North Carolina Department of the American Legion. He was elected at the Raleigh convention of the ex-soldiers, August 26. Colonel Freeman was a student at the University in 1909-10, and in the summer school session of 1910-11. A. B. Corey, Greenville lawyer, and a student of the University in 1916-17, was elected a vice commander. Col. Freeman's election followed an interesting and spirited contest with Dr. H. A. Newell, of Henderson, as the opposing candidate.

New Directors Chosen For Occidental Life

New directors were announced recently by the Occidental Life Insurance Company, of Raleigh, formerly of New Mexico. Among the new directors are several University alumni of prominence in North Carolina financial and banking circles. These include: Judge J. G. Adams, '06. Asheville; Felix Harvey, '92, Kinston; Frank Page, '98, Raleigh; and P. H. Williams, '92, Elizabeth City. The Occidental moved its headquarters from Albuquerque, New Mexico, to Raleigh in 1926.

HOUSE SPEAKS

R. B. House, executive secretary of the university, delivered a short address on "History Versus Hysteria in North Carolina Today" to the Kiwanis club of Warrenton last Friday night.

One dollar a mile was the cost of propelling the Graf Zeppelin on its 20,000-mile flight around the world.

Art Department Meeting

The art department of the Community Club will have a meeting at the home of Mrs. W. E. Caldwell, 412 East Rosemary lane, at 4 o'clock Wednesday. All persons interested in forming a sketching club are invited to join the group which will go out every week to paint nearby landscapes.

"Noah's Ark," Talking Film, At The Carolina

"Noah's Ark," the Warner Bros, Vitaphone production, heralded as having been "made to top any picture ever made," comes to the Carolina theatre Wednesday and Thursday for a run of two days. The stupendous production includes more than ten thousand characters. Sets covering more than a square mile were used in the making—a period of three years.

Darryl Francis Zanuck wrote the story and Michael Curitz, internationally famed as the producer of spectacles of vast proportions, directed. Dolores Costello is starred with George O'Brien. Other prominent members of the cast are Noah Beery, Louise Fazenda, Guinn Williams, Paul McAllister, Nigel de Brulier, Anders Randolf, Armand Kaliz, Myrna Loy, William V. Mong, Malcolm Waite, Nobel Johnson, Otto Hoffman and Joe Bonomo.

"Noah's Ark," mighty in conception, portrays life at the ends of the rainbow-span of fifty centuries. The lovers, whose glamorous personalities survive the soul-stirring days of the World War, are transported back across the centuries, to the iniquitous days preceding the Flood.

Vitaphone is vindicated as never before by the magnificent sweep of the story—by the manifold sounds of tumult, war, slavery, flood, terror, mirth, and by the human voice, and never has quite so melodiously interpretative an accompaniment been provided as that which follows the ever-changing scenes of "Noah' Ark."

The choice of Dolores Costello and George O'Brien to play the parts of the lovers was in itself a stroke of genius. Paul McAllister is magnificent as the patriarch, Noah—and all the actors are perfectly cast.

The theme of the play is the changelessness of the heart of humanity—whether in the modern life that we know—or in the traditional past. Tremendous as is the idea of the play, the human story which runs through it is compelling, intimate and tender.

"Noah's Ark" stands alone among pictures. See and hear it at the Carolina theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

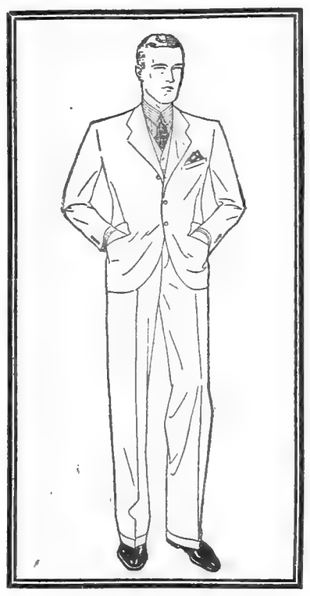
English Professors Move

The offices of the department of English have been moved to Saunders hall. In new quarters are: H. M. Jones, Saunders 105; W. F. Thrall and R. W. Adams, Saunders 102; W. D. MacMillan, Saunders 104; instructors and teaching fellows, Saunders 101 and 112. Other members of the department remain in Murphey hall.

ALL PUFFED UP

All of us are puffed up over our football team. We think that we have a good reason for being so for it has the stuff in it that makes a winner. Well,

SHERRI-COLA
and
SHERRI-ALE



have the stuff in them that makes winners in the field of beverages. If you haven't already tried them, call for them at your favorite fountain or in bottles and get the low down on Carolina's newest drinks.

Sherri-Cola Company

ON TO TECH!
Let Us Show You The Cheapest Way
Your Own Car Your Own Party And a Car While There
For Less Than Any Other Way of Going
Let Us Quote Our Special Prices to
Carolina-Tech Georgia-Yale
Two Seven-Passenger Packards and a Big-Six Studebaker Ready to Go.
Carolina U-Drive It
Around Corner from P. O.

WATCH THOSE TAR HEELS GO!

Exhibition
HERE
At
CAROLINA DRY CLEANERS
Today and Tomorrow
Harry Kuster, Rep.
THE FINCHLEY Establishment
NEW YORK CHICAGO

THE MODEL SKETCHED OFFERS AN EXAMPLE OF THE TYPE OF GARMENT CONSIDERED MOST EFFECTIVE FOR FALL USAGE AMONG COLLEGE MEN. THE LINES ARE ENTIRELY CORRECT AND FOLLOW AUTHORITATIVE DICTATION. THE VARIETY OF WEAVES FROM WHICH SELECTIONS MAY BE MADE IS VERY BOUNTIFUL. INTEREST IS ALSO SOLICITED FOR CRAVATS, SHIRTS, WOOLIES, HATS, CAPS, FOOTWEAR AND VARIOUS OTHER INCIDENTALS OF CORRECT DRESS.

Turn the light on the Truth!

It's just naturally good tobacco—not "artificial treatment" that makes OLD GOLD gentle to the throat and better to the taste

No one cigarette-maker has any monopoly on the heat-treatment of cigarette tobaccos.

For heat-treating is neither new nor exclusive. It has been used for years by practically all cigarette-makers to "set" and sterilize their tobacco.

But OLD GOLD'S goodness does not depend on artificial treatment. It is the product of naturally good tobaccos . . . carefully selected for mildness, smoothness and flavor. Tobaccos made free of "throat scratch" by Mother Nature herself.

Try a package. You'll immediately get the thrill of this smoother and better cigarette. And you'll know then why OLD GOLD'S sales are ALREADY THREE TIMES GREATER than the combined growth of three leading cigarette brands during a like period of their existence.

Better Tobaccos make them smoother and better . . . with "not a cough in a carload"

© P. Lorillard Co., Est. 17[illegible]

On your Radio, OLD GOLD—PAUL WHITEMAN HOUR. Paul Whiteman, with his complete orchestra, every Tuesday, 9 to 10 P. M., Eastern Standard Time

PEP MEETING TONIGHT
6:40 O'clock
MEMORIAL HALL

The Daily Tar Heel

PEP MEETING TONIGHT
6:40 O'clock
MEMORIAL HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1929 | NUMBER 17

Dr. Seerley Speaks To Two Large Audiences On Rational Sex Life

Dean of Springfield Y College Says "Petting Is a Natural Step toward Securing a Mate."

(By K. C. Ramsay)

"By 'rational sex life' I mean the scientific, the true, and the balanced sex life," said Dr. F. M. Seerley, well-known authority of sex education, in his address in Memorial hall last night. Dr. Seerley spoke twice yesterday, at the chapel exercises and at 7:30 o'clock last night.

In his address at chapel exercises Dr. Seerley said to the freshmen, "I am glad to meet you so early in your college career, for you have not yet decided what is to be your conception of God, of life, and of your future. It makes a great deal of difference what you think. That's the reason I'm here lecturing on sex. That's the reason for a University. It's to help you answer for yourself the hundreds of thousands of questions that come to you daily concerning your sex life."

Dr. Seerley outlined the three steps in forming a personality and pointed out the relation of these steps to the thinking process. He stated that the building material must be gathered first, then the organization must be brought about, and finally one must live the things he has gathered together and organized.

At the evening lecture Dr. Seerley used blackboard illustrations in tracing the development of sex anatomy from childhood upward. He showed how the relations between boys and girls developed from childhood through various steps.

The first social contacts between girls and boys occur in early childhood when they play together in the birthday parties and other similar forms of entertainment. From this stage they progress to dances. Dr. Seerley was asked his opinion concerning dancing and he said "It is a most natural way for boys and girls to mix in a rather intimate way and cannot possibly be subjected to criticism."

From dancing the girls and boys of today evolve to petting and the speaker was on the opinion that this is a most natural step for one to take in searching for a mate. He said that the large amount of petting being done today as compared with that of past generations should be attributed to the automobile and other means of being alone together.

The courting stage follows petting and approaches a more intimate relationship between sexes, and the final stage before marriage is of course engagement. Engagement brings about the most individual relationships before marriage and is the final step to take in being definitely sure that a certain boy and girl will be suitably mated.

Dr. Seerley pointed out that the largest percentage of unhappy marriages is caused by a misunderstanding of sexual relationships and that these misunderstandings can be attributed to not following the natural evolution of social relationships as outlined above.

During his stay here Dr. Seerley was asked his opinion concerning the present generation. He replied, "The modern generation is more frank than any

(Continued on page three)

No Holiday Friday

In a brief interview Tuesday afternoon the University registrar, Dr. T. J. Wilson, declared that the campus rumor of a holiday on Friday is entirely unfounded. Dr. Wilson says that no such information has reached him through the administrative offices.

As the students have it, a holiday was to be given on that date for the apparent purpose of allowing Carolina supporters to attend the Georgia Tech game in Atlanta on that day. In anticipation of the suspension of classes many students had planned to accompany the Tar Heel team on the southern trip and to participate in the festivities surrounding the contest, which is possibly the most interesting and important of the season's schedule. Consequently the entire student body was elated over the prospect of the holiday.

Other grounds for support of the rumored announcement were found in the fact that Saturday is to be Founder's day at the University. In view of these facts, Dr. Wilson's statement will doubtless be a surprise to those who were depending on the holiday to relieve them of class work in order to attend the Georgia game.

DR. H. S. DYER GIVES COURSES IN VOICE

Proving his theory that anyone can sing who wants to, Dr. H. S. Dyer, director of the department of music, is giving voice classes which are open to any student in the University, even though he has no more talent than the suppressed desire to express himself in song.

Every day, except Wednesday, students, who range all the way from freshmen to post graduates, meet in Person hall and learn what Dr. Dyer calls the simple and natural process of singing. There are four classes a day, which have an enrollment of from thirty to sixty men each.

Every college in the University is represented in the classes. Some of the members have studied at Harvard, Yale, Amherst, or New York University, while others have never sung at all; not even to the extent of having taken part in their college song.

All that is necessary to join one of these classes is a good ear for music, the desire to sing, and a good physique. Dr. Dyer says that not only can the student "learn to sing in a few easy lessons"; but also the group training provides a tremendous training in self-confidence and stage presence.

DR. KEOGH TO SPEAK AT LIBRARY OPENING

Dr. Andrew Keogh, librarian of Yale university and president of the American library association, will make the dedicatory address at the University of North Carolina Southern Conference to be held at Chapel Hill October 19-22, when the University's new $625,000 library building will be formally opened.

Miss Sarah C. N. Bogle will also be present at the conference.

A WORD OF WARNING

Friday the Carolina football squad tackles the hardest team scheduled this year. A victory over Tech means a lot toward gaining the Heels a place near the top in Conference ratings.

A lot has been written, especially by Atlanta sport authorities, about the Carolina team. They say we have the best team in the south up here this year. One writer says that Carolina will beat Tech.

All reports coming from out of Atlanta sound somewhat like the same ones written two years ago before the Georgia-Tech contest. Georgia had a team making a bid for national honors. Tech was only mediocre. Enough hot air was written about Georgia to float the Athens team over the Atlanta stadium. The game ended with Tech on top by two touchdowns. There may be a lesson in that.

It is also well to remember that in recent years teams have found it hard to beat Tech in Atlanta. The Yellow Jackets just play better football when at home.

The TAR HEEL believes that Carolina should win. But any team carrying the power Tech does is going to be hard to beat. Nothing short of great playing will turn the trick. Carolina is capable of winning. But the game will not be won until the final whistle sounds.

We do not believe in sentiment in football. But every Carolina man is expecting a victory Friday. If Carolina plays the football of which it is capable, Carolina will win.

CABINETS SELECT NEW COMMITTEES

Freshman Council, Sophomore, Junior-Senior Cabinets Hold Important Meetings.

The three Y cabinets met Monday night at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:15. In the freshman council, Alex Webb, president, started the program off with the reading of the devotional; this was followed by a few sentence prayers. The roll was then called and the minutes were read and approved.

Aubrey Perkins, freshman secretary of the Y, made a few announcements and then gave some of the plans for the coming year. At the suggestion of Mr. Perkins, President Webb appointed three temporary committees. After taking up a little business the meeting closed with a word of prayer.

The joint meeting of the junior-senior cabinet and the sophomore cabinet was opened with a short devotional service. Mr. Comer, general secretary of the Y, then announced that Eugene Barnett, former student of the University, would be the guest of the Y next Sunday and Monday, and would deliver two sermons at the Methodist church. Mr. Comer also said that Mr. Barnett would speak to the students on Monday.

University Women Offer Scholarship

Mrs. U. T. Holmes presided over the meeting of the local chapter of American association of University women yesterday afternoon at Spencer hall. The session was devoted to organization of plans for the year's work.

It was decided to hold the meetings at 7:30 every other Tuesday evening this year. A survey of Latin America will constitute the program for the year. Dr. Pearson will deliver the first address of the series at the next regular meeting.

A scholarship equivalent to $100 will be awarded by the chapter in accordance with a custom established by the local chapter several years ago. Mrs. Holmes is president of the chapter, Mrs. G. T. Schwenning is treasurer and Mrs. P. C. Farrar treasurer.

Mrs. Inez Stacy, dean of women, has resumed her duties after a short vacation.

CAROLINA CO-EDS TOUR CONTINENT

3 Prospective French Teachers Spend Summer in Europe.

Three North Carolina co-eds were among the 17 students who toured Europe last summer with the foreign study tour conducted by the University extension division, according to the report made to the faculty committee on foreign study last Monday night.

The three girls, Katherine McCallie, Emily M. McClelland and Catherine Groves, spent July and August studying and sight-seeing in France, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Belgium and England under the direction of Professor J. C. Lyons.

Besides seeing many famous European museums, monuments and castles, the girls visited Waterloo and the Jungfrau mountain in the Swiss Alps. The rocks where the Lorelei were said to lure voyagers on the Rhine to their death, and the ruined towers from which robber barons sallied forth to murder travelers who had managed to escape the Lorelei were also in the itinerary.

While at Grenoble the students, who are all prospective French teachers, took language courses at the University there. Credit was given for these courses by the University and by Adelphi college, Brooklyn, from which several of the students on the tour came.

EXTENSION DIVISION GIVES LECTURE COURSE

North Carolina dentists in five cities will hear a course of lectures to be given next week by Dr. L. D. Sayres of the Northwestern University dental school, Chicago.

"Bridgework" will be the subject of the lectures and of a series of clinics which Dr. Sayres will also conduct. The entire program is under the supervision of the University extension in cooperation with the North Carolina dental society.

Dr. Sayres' lectures are the eighth in a series of ten courses being offered this year by the extension division and the dental society. About 145 North Carolina dentists are taking the courses which are being held in Kinston, Raleigh, Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Charlotte.

Final Period Of Rushing Gets Underway With Fraternities Using High Pressure Methods

Tension on Campus Heightens As Period of Silence Nears; Rushing Ends Tuesday.

After about two weeks of intensive rushing the Greeks are gradually stepping into their stride and competition is picking up.

In spite of the new rushing rules' tendency to lessen the strain on both upper and lower classmen, tension on the campus is being heightened by the keen competition which has arisen between the fraternities. In place of the easy flowing rushing season of past years there is now a more organized "man hunt" going on. Previous to this year "rushing" became intensive only in the last day or so before the "period of silence" but the "period of silence" of 1929 will probably bring to a close the most intensive and strenuous rushing season seen so far at U. N. C.

For twelve days now the freshmen have been praised, pampered, and pumped in order to get them in a receptive frame of mind for the "wool gatherers."

The fact that rushing is limited to seven hours a day and that freshmen are forced to leave the houses at 9 o'clock is the only consolation for the seven hours of strain.

Nearly all of the frosh have been filled with so much fraternity lore that Baird himself would be put to shame. The Who's Who of the campus has been raised by about four or five hundred names. The best fraternity always begins with "Us." And Baird's Manual is always wrong unless it puts "Us" at the head of the list.

Although the freshmen were given a chance to get themselves adjusted to the University campus and the upper classmen became readjusted before the "fire works" started, the new method of rushing does not seem to relieve the general strain upon the campus.

Freshmen are by now settling down to a choice between one or two fraternities. Their likes and dislikes have eliminated many and at last the choice has narrowed down to a chosen few. The last two days of rushing will probably decide most of these freshmen and as usual this will cause the last two days to be filled with extra rushing for the freshmen.

There will be a few freshmen that will be under the embarrassing strain of making up their minds in the two days of silence as the larger part of these "prospective neophytes" will have come to a definite conclusion by the last night of rushing. Some have already made up their minds.

All through this rushing season the inter-fratrenity council has urged that the freshmen keep "open minds" until the "period of silence" when they can look at the facts without being stirred up by the flattery.

Pep Meeting Tonight

The final voting in the election of cheerleader resulted in the victory of Jack Barrett, sophomore, over his opponent, Howard Henry. The election was close, Barrett securing 391 votes, while Henry took 361.

Barrett announces that there will be a pep meeting at 6:40 o'clock tonight as the team leaves at 7:00.

COMMUNITY CHOIR HOLDS REHEARSAL

Plans for Fall Quarter Discussed At Meeting; 105 Singers Report for Chorus.

With an attendance of 105 singers, the Chapel Hill community chorus held its first rehearsal at Gerrard hall Monday evening. The chorus is made up of faculty members, students and townspeople. It was organized by a committee of which George H. Lawrence of the University faculty is chairman, and is jointly sponsored by the community club and the University school of music. Harold S. Dyer, head of the school, is director of the choral group and Mrs. A. S. Wheeler is accompanist.

As yet the chorus has no definite organization. It is the intention of the leaders to perfect an organization later when it shall be determined what form its administrative system shall take.

In view of the large attendance at the premier rehearsal, the success of the chorus is practically assured. However, the chairman of the organization committee urges that every one who is interested in the organization attend the next practice on Monday at 7:30 in the same hall. The University glee club will also lend its support to the venture. Over thirty of the number were on hand Monday evening to assure the bass and tenor sections adequate material.

The tentative program of the chorus includes two recitals during the scholastic year and the possible presentation of several programs at various University functions. In accordance with this program it is probable that the chorus will appear at the joint meeting of the Chapel Hill churches which will be held on October 20 during home-coming week. Several numbers were rehearsed Monday night in preparation for this event which will doubtless mark the first public presentation of the chorus.

It was the original plan of the chorus to offer Handel's "Messiah" as the first production. Since copies of this oratorio have not arrived it will be necessary to delay the preparation of the number. However, the famous composition will be given on or about December 20, the date set by the committee. An afternoon program is being planned to cooperate with the customary reading of the carols by Professor Koch of the Playmakers. This will be another of the features of the pre-holiday season. In addition to the chorus and a number of soloists an orchestra of about thirty pieces will be employed in the performance.

Wigue and Masque To Meet Thursday

The Wigue and Masque will hold its first meeting of the year Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in Person hall. Jack Kirkpatrick, secretary of the organization, requests that every member be present, for at this meeting the constitution of the group will be discussed.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Wednesday, October 9, 1929

The Lamentable Demise Of The New Student

Recently the New Student, organ of intercollegiate opinion, ceased publication after seven years of existence. Edited by college students and recent graduates, the magazine was a unique venture in the publishing field.

The passing of the New Student has many interesting implications. A dearth of intellectual interest among undergraduates, a woeful disregard of the vast potentialities offered by student discussion on a national scale of the problems of higher education, a lethargic attitude toward the "goose step" methods prevailing in the American colleges and universities—all these are indicated by the suspension of the New Student.

In sharp contrast to the failure of the most outstanding journal of undergraduate intellectual opinion is the increasing prosperity of College Humor and other frivolous publications catering to "collegians." A comparison of the subscription lists of College Humor and those of the defunct New Student offers excellent explanation why educators are continually complaining of intellectual laziness among undergraduates.

Three or four years ago a publication was launched by a group of serious-minded students here that was similar in many respects to the New Students. It was called The Faun, and it attempted on a local scale the type of endeavor carried out on a national scale by the New Student. After four issues it passed into oblivion to which most undergraduate intellectual enterprises seem fated at modern institutions of higher learning. The Faun's demise forecasted the eventual failure of the New Student.

The outlook for the future development of American higher education in the true sense of the term is indeed pessimistic, if the lamentable lack of interest exhibited by present day students in such publications as the New Student is an augury. It is to be hoped that other literary ventures modeled after the New Student will spring up in the near future, and that they will succeed in overcoming undergraduate apathy.

We wonder whether that college professor who has assembled and classified 507 "known annoyances" included the person who collects useless statistics?—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A New York contractor telephoned his barber to come to Europe and give him a hair-cut. We thought Europeans knew all there was to be known about trimming Americans.—Augusta Chronicle.

IN THE WAKE OF NEWS

J. E. Dungan

One of the arguments advanced by an acquaintance of ours as a reason why a certain freshman should join his fraternity was that the foundation of his house was built to carry 14 stories, which to our way of thinking is a genuine example of forward looking policy.

The Tar Heel carried a story last week of the antics of our freshmen, but when it comes to dumbness the Duke frosh have it all over our boys. An aspiring candidate for the degree of A. B. at the tobacco plant in writing home to his parents explained his not making a fraternity in the following way, "Aw, I could have made a fraternity, for that matter the best one here, if I had wanted to. The boys at the Phi Beta Kappa house had me around, but I couldn't dance so they didn't bid me."

We wish we could tell you all about the two female boot-leggers we have on the campus this year, but there have been too many investigations going on of late and so this hot bit of gossip will have to smoulder untold.

One of the local drug, chesspie, and writing paper emporiums advertised last week that "STATIONERY needs no tongue." Aye, but what about the postage stamps?

"Virginia has big boys at tackles. Virginia is relying upon the services of a fistfull of big tackles this fall, says Coach Abell." There'll evidently be no Tom Thumbs in this fistfull.

"Duke University School of Law Has 16 Top Students," chronicles our paper, and bearing this in mind we can see why it is that so many Duke students can spin such yarns about the excellence of their athletic teams.

The Springfield, Ill., Republican told last week of a certain James H. Kirby, aspirant for a senatorial sinecure at Washington, D. C., whose campaigning program is based on two evils he wants to see eradicated—high heels for women and liquor drinking. The senatorial candidate proposes to do away with drinking by shooting to kill all those persons found drinking liquor, which policy, we imagine, would be extremely effective.

Li Ching Yun, the oldest man in the world, aged 252 years, attributes his longevity to herbs. The news dispatches failed to remark, however, whether any of the herbs contained opium, which, as you know, is a powerful stimulant to the imagination.

France is to spend $100,000,000 on fortifications along her eastern border, but paradoxically and simultaneously complains that she is too poor to pay her last war's debts due to the United States.

The "cabbage king" of Bengal will erect a statue in marble depicting himself as seated among his vegetables holding a cabbage in one hand and a carrot in another, which reminds us that the senior class might well build a statue of "Boss" Hill holding a pair of Ray Farris' trousers in one hand and a coat of John Mebane's in the other.

The good people of Kinston are divided into two camps this week over whether they should whole heartedly endorse Eugene Wood's "cat washing contest" scheduled to be staged at the fair that community is to have. Mr. Wood gave this pronunciamento to the press last week—"Forty-three boys all equipped with cats, have filed their entries, but I hate to do anything to annoy the ladies." I'm telling you gentlemen that when you annoy the feline population of a community, there's trouble in the offing.

The Women's Christian Temperance Association of the Old Line state, according to the columns of the Baltimore Evening Sun, has created a department to be known as the Department of Non-alcoholic Fruit Products. Mrs. Doran, wife of the Chief of the United States Prohibition Bureau, spoke to the society. "We must teach the people," said Mrs. Doran, "what delicious drinks can be made from pure fruit juices. We must invent some new non-alcoholic beverages. Do you know, some people haven't an idea that you can make really good punch without a kick?" Yeah? But that's where the punch comes in.

The Reverend J. E. Skillington, speaking as a representative of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Morals, told the Rock River Church conference last week via the Downers Grove, Ill., Press that the board was "sorry that prohibition deprives the moderate drinker, as it was not aimed at him. If some one will show us a better way, we will be glad to give up prohibition." Shades of Wayne B. Wheeler!

Bull-etin—(Chicago Tribune) Appleton, Wis., October 2.—"Little 1-year-old Mary Brouillard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Brouillard, was struck by the engine of a fast moving Chicago and North Western passenger train and thrown into the air yesterday. The girl turned over eight or ten times in the air before striking the ground, but after an examination by witnesses of the accident was found to be uncut and unbruised." All of which is as good as one of Bull Gardner's stories.

Readers' Opinions

THANKS

Editor of the Tar Heel,

May I congratulate you and the Tar Heel on a good beginning in editorial policy. Your statement this morning concerning the textile industry is thoughtful and balanced in its viewpoint. Your editorial in regard to hazing the other day had the same characteristics. To write vigorously and emphatically without unfairness to either side is a difficult task and requires more maturity of feeling and thought than most student editors can command. My best wishes for a satisfying year to you.

FRANCIS F. BRADSHAW.

The Old Grad's Opportunity

In his statement accepting the headship of an alumni committee which has tackled the big task of securing contributions from 13,000 former University students, Leslie Weil, of Goldsboro, says:

"It is now the move of the alumni. Every effort should be made to get the alumni to realize that systematic, consistent income from private sources, in addition to state funds, is necessary if the modern state university is to be adequately financed.

"The Alumni Loyalty Fund, managed by alumni, has set out upon the final step in establishing a financial policy for the university which will take into consideration comprehensive private support. The words "final step" are used because other important steps have already been taken. The state has increased its appropriation in recent years; student fees have been increased; the educational foundations, such as Rockefeller and Carnegie, have added their considerable gifts, the most recent one being a grant of $100,000 toward the establishment of a school of library administration.

"It is now the move of the alumni.

"Regular, systematic income from each of the above named sources has been found necessary by most successful state universities. Before entering the undertaking of increasing our income from alumni, the Alumni Loyalty Fund Council has worked out details of appropriately correlating any increased income from the alumni with that being received from other sources. Our purpose is not that of displacing any of the above named income, but to stimulate and supplement it.

"After all, alumni giving is the strategic center of successful university finance. Important in itself, it is bound to stimulate income from the state and from the educational foundations, and finally it will inspire new friends."

We shall watch with interest the result of this practical appeal made to the alumni by President Chase in what must be regarded as the idealistic spirit. For alumni are rather strong on banquets, speeches, songs and playing the demon at athletic contests, and quite short on anything that tends to subject a patriotic love for Alma Mater to a business test or to a pledge in the nature of a tax. That kind of obligation the alumnus is apt to accept most readily when it comes to building a new house for the old frat or sometimes kicking in on a financial enterprise to see that the football team is not wholly lacking for material.

Perhaps Doctor Chase and his committee can bring home this higher obligation they are engaged in stressing. Certainly it would be a good thing for the university and for all other colleges if such a purpose could be carried out. For there is no getting over the fact that college equipment in faculty and plant is demanding money far beyond any reasonable appropriation coming from the state. The expansion has definite limits, which can be met only by endowment, which is practically non-existent, or by another source of regular income such as that it is suggested the alumni should be glad to provide.

What is the sentimentally vocative Old Grad going to do about it?—Raleigh Times.

---

87 DAVIDSON FRESHMEN ARE PLEDGED TO FRATS

Davidson, Oct. 8.—Eighty-seven members of the freshman class at Davidson College and five upperclassmen were last week pledged to the 11 social fraternities having chapters here, following an intensive three-week period of rushing. A total of 134 bids were extended the members of the first year class, this including all of the conflicts, of which there were quite a number. The percentage of freshmen accepting bids was slightly over 40.

The tallest man in Germany is 7 feet 3 inches in height.

Annual forest fires damage from 1916 to 1924 is estimated at $20,145,565.

NOTICE

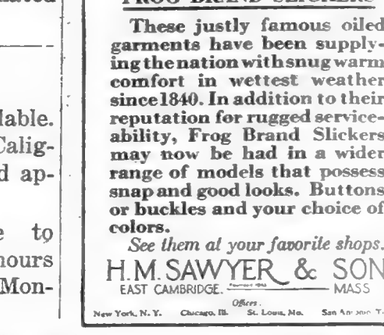
Part time position available. Only freshmen skilled in Caligraphy or print-writing need apply.

Applicants should come to 205 South between the hours 12-1 P. M. and 3-4 P. M. on Mondays thru Fridays.

SAWYER'S
Rainwear
ZEPHYR-WEIGHT

IN this new and ultra smart line of Sawyer's "Forain" Zephyr-weight rainwear, carefully dressed college men and women everywhere have at once discovered their ideal wet weather garment.

This lightest weight waterproof clothing is made of balloon cloth, rendered absolutely waterproof and windproof by the famous Sawyer Process. Street coat weighs only 20 oz.



FROG BRAND SLICKERS

These justly famous oiled garments have been supplying the nation with snug warm comfort in wettest weather since 1840. In addition to their reputation for rugged serviceability, Frog Brand Slickers may now be had in a wider range of models that possess snap and good looks. Buttons or buckles and your choice of colors.

See them at your favorite shops.

H. M. SAWYER & SON
EAST CAMBRIDGE MASS
Offices
New York, N. Y. Chicago, Ill. St. Louis, Mo. San Antonio, Tex.

RECOMMENDED BY THE ENGLISH DEPARTMENT
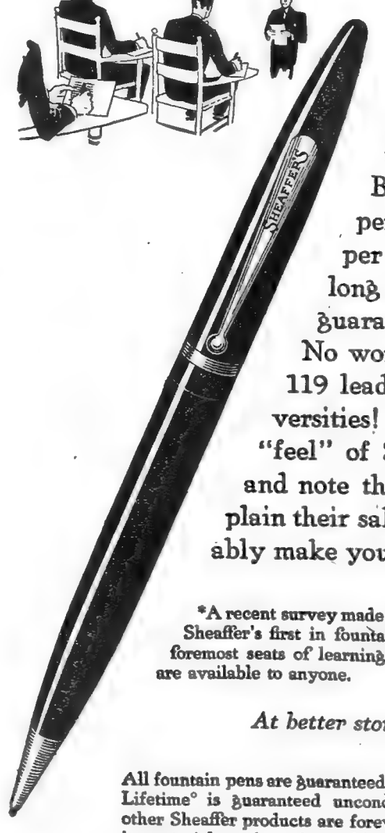
University of North Carolina
WEBSTER'S COLLEGIATE
The Best Abridged Dictionary—
It is based upon
Webster's New International



A Short Cut to Accurate Information—here is a companion for your hours of reading and study that will prove its real value every time you consult it. A wealth of ready information on words, persons, places, is instantly yours. 106,000 words with definitions, etymologies, pronunciations and use in its 1,256 pages. 1,700 illustrations. Includes dictionaries of biography and geography and other special features. Printed on Bible paper.

See It at Your College Bookstore or Write for Information to the Publishers. Free specimen pages if you name this paper.

G. & C. MERRIAM COMPANY Springfield, Mass.

At U. of N. C.
*Sheaffer's outsell all others

That graceful, tapered shape means more than a sleek, modern design. It proves the Balance in Sheaffer's Lifetime° pens and pencils. Balance means speed—more words per minute in class, and restful writing of long themes. Moreover, such service is guaranteed you for your entire lifetime. No wonder Sheaffer's outsell at 73 of the 119 leading American colleges and universities! At your dealer's, try the easy "feel" of Sheaffer's Balanced Lifetimes°, and note their smart lines. That will explain their sales leadership, and will probably make you an owner, too.

*A recent survey made by a disinterested organization showed Sheaffer's first in fountain pen sales at 73 of America's 119 foremost seats of learning. Documents covering this survey are available to anyone.

At better stores everywhere

All fountain pens are guaranteed against defects, but Sheaffer's Lifetime° is guaranteed unconditionally for your life, and other Sheaffer products are forever guaranteed against defect in materials and workmanship. Green and black Lifetime° pens, $8.75; Ladies', $7.50 and $8.25. Black and pearl De Luxe, $10.00; Ladies', $8.50 and $9.50. Pencils, $5.00. Golf and Handbag Pencil, $3.00. Others lower.

SAFETY SKRIP
Successor to ink. 50c. Refills, 3 for 25c. Practically non-breakable, can't spill. Carry it to classes!

SHEAFFER'S
PENS·PENCILS·DESK SETS·SKRIP
W. A. SHEAFFER PEN COMPANY · FORT MADISON, IOWA, U. S. A.
° Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. © W. A. S. P. Co., 1929

Tech Has Fine Team But Fans Think That Tar Heels Can Win

Tech's Offense Is Good, But Line Is Not as Good as Last Year's; Two Great Attacks Expected.

(By Crawford McKethan)

Georgia Tech has another great football team, but not the unbeatable combination of last year, and Tech can be licked.

Such was the report going the rounds here today. Tar Heel scouts and supporters who saw Tech whip Mississippi A.&M., 27-13, Saturday, were impressed with the Jacket outfit but think the Tar Heels have a good chance to turn the tables Friday when the two teams meet in Atlanta. The Tar Heel gridmen listened—and went to work. The spirit is that 1929 is Tar Heel year, but there wasn't one bit of cockiness in the way the Tar Heels began their preparations.

Tech showed the old driving offense against Mississippi. The great Thomason and Mizell were running top-notch. The Dunlap-Jones combination that beat North Carolina last year was working as smoothly as ever.

But Tech's line wasn't the same strong bulwark. Mississippi's backs ran up two touchdowns. Tech's opponents found scoring harder last year. V. M. I., Tulane, Notre Dame, and Auburn can attest to that.

The Tar Heels, "team of a hundred backs," have a great outfit of running, passing men. Tar Heel fans think the Blue and White backs can match their crashing offense with Tech's, meet the Jackets in their own style of play and win the verdict.

Whether that be so or not, it seems certain Friday's battle in Atlanta will show two great offensives.

Tar Heel backs ran wild against Maryland Saturday for six touchdowns, and they ran up seven against Wake Forest a week before. Tar Heel opponents have gone scoreless.

There are nine veterans who have faced Tech before and two great sophomores in the sensational quarterback Johnny Branch and the fleet halfback Rip Slusser.

The veteran aces who are being counted on to rip the Tech line-up are: Wyrick, quarter; Nash, Ward, Magner, Erickson, Maus and Jackson, halfbacks; and House, Spaulding and Harden, fullbacks. All were in fine shape as the Tar Heels got down to heavy work today.

That last thirty minutes of play that the Tar Heels enjoyed last season against the Tornado from Georgia Tech is going to prove to be a mighty big factor in the final count Friday afternoon. It was then that the Heelmen awoke to the fact that Tech was at least a human machine and not a collection of superhuman gods.

There is going to be a battle royal when the whistle blows this coming Friday, and it is not going to be confined solely to the physical struggle, North Carolina vs. Georgia Tech. The stiffest opponent that the Tar Heels will meet is the psychological complex, produced by the knowledge of the fact that Tech won the claim to the National title last year, and have had one of the most powerful teams in the country for the last several seasons. If Tech wins over the Heels, it is going to be because she took advantage of this mental haze which has encircled the University of North Carolina for the past few years whenever she encountered a formidable foe from the south or north. Georgia Tech will fail to repulse the Carolinians Friday if Coach Chuck's charges hold them scoreless during the first quarter and show on their own part some offensive aggressiveness.

While this is no time to become cocky or overconfident, it is time that we began to realize that a victory over Tech could be something besides a miracle. In fact, what is the harm in believing that you are at least on a par with such teams as Alabama, Florida, Tulane, and Georgia Tech. Inferiority complexes are seldom a valuable asset in winning football games. Tech has won more than one game by using to her advantage the knowledge of such a handicap.

* * *

Gus Tebell is going to find it pretty tough going when he meets up with Josh Cody's outfit down at Clemson this week-end. N. C. State has got a scrapping team, any one that saw the game with Washington and Lee last Friday will admit that, but that they are not what they were in '27 or even in '28 the Tech supporters have been forced to realize. And on top of that Clemson is boasting the strongest eleven in her history. And to cap Gus Tebell's misfortunes, Captain Johnny Lepo will hardly be in shape to see action this week-end. Last year Clemson administered a lone touchdown defeat to State in one of the hardest fought games on her schedule.

V. P. I. DIAMOND STAR IS MAKING GOOD WITH A'S

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 8.—(Special).—Playing his first professional baseball this summer, Monk Mattox, captain of last year's successful team at V. P. I., has already caught several games for the Philadelphia Athletics and has won high praise from Connie Mack, pilot of the American league champions.

Since the Athletics cinched the American League pennant, Connie Mack is using Mattox frequently in order to rest Mickey Cochrane for the world series. Although Mattox has caught in only two games, he has seen action in the bull pen, and in batting and fielding practice.

DEAN MARSTON TO SPEAK TO ENGINEERS OCTOBER 21

Dean Anston Marston, president of the American society of civil engineers, will speak before the students of the school of engineering Tuesday, October 21.

Dean Marston is dean of the school of engineering at Iowa State university, and as president of the society, it is expected that he will speak on matter pertaining to it.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

DR. SEERLEY SPEAKS TO TWO LARGE AUDIENCES

(Continued from page one)

preceding one and they make their own experiment in sex life without regarding the precedence of former generations very seriously. Of course mistakes are made but the problems are being worked out rather successfully."

Dr. Seerley is dean of the international Y. M. C. A. college (Springfield college) and is a nationally known authority on sex subjects. He has addressed audiences over the entire country, making numerous lecture tours. This season his work at Springfield is keeping him from making extended tours, so that he is taking a number of short trips.

BRANCH EXPECTED TO BE DYNAMITE TO TECH TEAM

A sawed-off 65-inch, 150-pound sophomore quarterback, geared to the road and elusive as a jack-rabbit, may be one of the biggest sticks of dynamite of the Tar Heel attack when North Carolina hits Georgia Tech's national champions in Atlanta Friday.

Reference is to Johnny Branch. The fans are calling the youngster a second Stumpy Thomason. The more ardent are saying he will be greater than even the great Thomason when he gets "grown up." The contrast when the two aces face each other on Grant Field Friday promises to be powerfully interesting.

Branch hurled consternation into the Maryland legion last Saturday. The wiry youngster squirmed and twisted to two 45-yard touchdowns after taking passes, and time and again he brought the stands up with sensational punt returns.

He generalled the freshman team to a South Atlantic championship last year, and carried the bulk of the running on his shoulders. He is good enough that Chuck Collins, head Tar Heel coach and a product of the Rockne school, has shifted his Notre Dame system this year so the quarterback can run the ball.

Fast and little, and an uncanny side stepper and twister, big men find it a problem to get their hands on the youngster in a broken field, or to hold him after they get him. He is wiry and tough, and a fine pass receiver and safety man as well as a great runner.

Investors lost over two billion dollars on the stock exchange yesterday. And they call it "playing" the market!

ERICKSON MAY AFFORD GEORGIA FANS THRILL

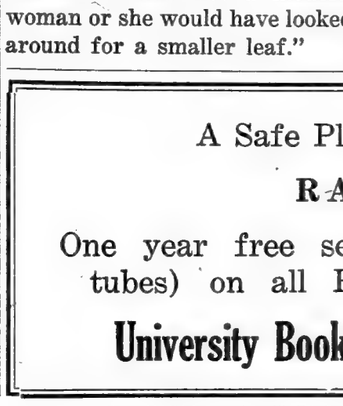
When a football player can reverse his field four times, find a hole and go across the goal line standing up and untouched, most coaches will agree that that man is a broken field runner par excellence.

Such is halfback Chuck Erickson, who will be one of a fine crew of Tar Heel backs who will carry the pigskin for North Carolina on Friday when the Tar Heels attempt to topple Georgia Tech's national champions on their own home field in Atlanta.

The Tar Heels are distinguished for their crew of backs, but there is probably not a one in the pack of 12 who can bring the stands surging up and shouting like Chuck Erickson.

Erickson made his name last year. He took the pass and made the spectacular broken field run that beat Virginia, 24-20, in the last minute of play. He ran half the distance of the field through a full team for one of Carolina's two touchdowns against Duke.

He capped the climax in the Tar Heels' opening game this year. The Tar Heels faced Wake Forest on the 6-yard line. Erickson took the ball to the left. The Wake Forest forwards met him at tackle. He turned and they met him at right tackle. He shifted again, and again, and reversed his field four times before he found his hole and shot across, still on his feet and still untouched. The stands went wild.



Quincy finished one game ahead of Decatur in the Three-I race.

FOR RENT

Furnished rooms for light housekeeping. Mrs. W. E. Privette, 307 McAuley street.

Veteran Quarterback Will Not See Action In Friday's Game

Out of Tech Game

Pete Wyrick, veteran quarterback, will not see service against Georgia Tech Friday. The little Carolina quarterback was slightly injured in the Maryland contest. His absence from the Carolina line-up is a severe blow to Carolina hopes for victory in the Atlanta contest.

Tar Heels Work Out Against Tech Plays Yesterday; Leave Tonight for Atlanta.

With the announcement yesterday that Pete Wyrick, veteran quarterback, will be out of the Tech game, hopes of the Tar Heels for victory dropped. Wyrick was injured in the Maryland clash, but it was not known until yesterday that he would not play against the Golden Tornado.

Coach Collins drove the Heels through a two-hour drill against Tech plays yesterday. This afternoon the Heels will have their last workout on home soil as they leave tonight for Atlanta. There they will have light practice Thursday.

Neither of the first two teams did any heavy work, but confined their exercise to running plays and dummy scrimmage against Tech plays executed by the frosh.

Following the dummy work against the varsity outfit, the freshmen worked against a team composed of Alexander, center; Crew and Fysal, guards; Dortch and Gregory, tackles; Reid and Brown, ends; Jackson, quarter; Slusser and Maus, halves, and McAllister, full.

George Ehrhart, formerly managing editor of the Tar Heel, says in his Virginia Beach News column, "And after looking at some of these 1929 dames, we know Eve was not a modern woman or she would have looked around for a smaller leaf."

Where? — In Tar Heel Ads.

A Safe Place to Buy a
RADIO
One year free service (not including tubes) on all Radios sold by us.
University Book & Stationery Co.

...in the ring it's PUNCH!

...in a cigarette it's TASTE!

"STICKIN' to our knittin'"—never forgetting that Chesterfield's popularity depends on Chesterfield's taste . . .

But what is taste? Aroma, for one thing—keen and spicy fragrance. For another, that satisfying something—flavor, mellow tobacco goodness—which we can only call "character." Taste is what smokers want; taste is what Chesterfield offers—

"TASTE above everything"

MILD . . . and yet THEY SATISFY

Chesterfield
FINE TURKISH and DOMESTIC tobaccos, not only BLENDED but CROSS-BLENDED

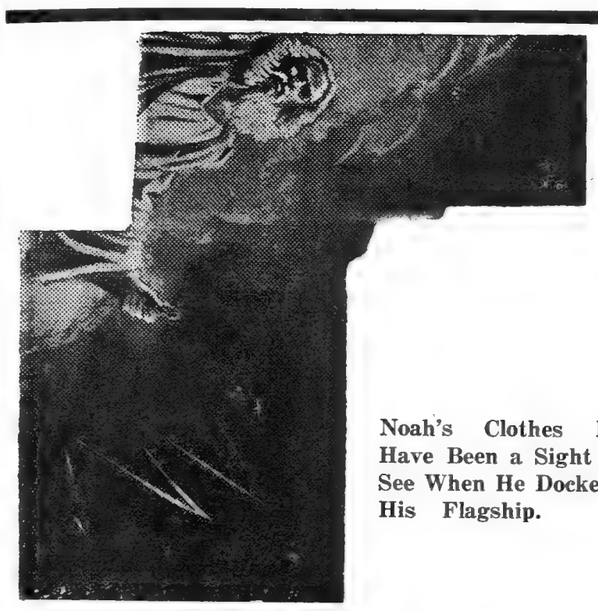
© 1929, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

BUILD NOAH'S ARK

AND WIN A FREE TICKET

HERE'S HOW

In each merchant's ad on this page appears a part of a picture of Noah's Ark, eight pieces in all. When properly fitted together you will have a perfect picture of the Ark. Each merchant has five tickets to give to the first five persons submitting the correct solution at his store.



The Campus Confectionery

INVITES YOU TO DROP IN

and

Quench Your Thirst

AFTER YOUR VOYAGE IN NOAH'S ARK
AND AT ALL TIMES

Noah's Clothes Must Have Been a Sight to See When He Docked His Flagship.

Yours Needn't Be!

Have Them CLEANED PRESSED and REPAIRED
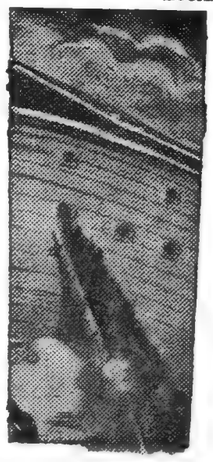
at

Carolina Dry Cleaners



WE CALL AND DELIVER

Noah Had a Great Trip—

BUT

Think How Much Better if He Could Have Drawn on Our BIG, FINE LARDER OF

Tempting Meats
and
Rare Table Delicacies

We Cater to Fraternity Houses and Boarding Houses.

G. H. Ray

Below Strowd's Garage on Franklin Street.

Where Quality Rules with Economy

CAROLINA THEATRE

Today and Tomorrow

No Advance in Admission

See and Hear
The Spectacle of the Ages!

——Added Features——

Paramount Sound News

Ye Olde Melodies (Screen Song)

Modern Times Bring the Modern Oil Burner

We'll bet dollars to doughnuts Noah would have had one. But, alas, they weren't available.

It is clearly science's latest contribution to heating and the greatest modern convenience.

THE OIL - O - MATIC
Oil Burner

You set the gauge and the Oil-O-Matic does the rest—IT AUTOMATICALLY KEEPS YOUR HOME THE SAME TEMPERATURE ALL YEAR.

You set another gauge, and the burner keeps your hot water at the same desired constant temperature.

Come down for a demonstration and let us refer you to a growing list of satisfied users in Chapel Hill.

R. R. BENSON

NOAH'S ARK

Is but one of the many splendid attractions booked by the Carolina Theatre for this fall. The following is only a small number of the wonderful attractions coming:

Al Jolson
--in--
"Say It With Songs"
Moran and Mack
"Why Bring That Up"
"Gold Diggers of Broadway"

Harold Lloyd
--in--
"Welcome Danger"
Flo Ziegfeld's
"Glorifying the American Girl"
"On With the Show"

YOU CAN WIN—

All you have to do is put the ark together. When completed the picture represents the Ark sitting up on the rocks where it was built. Be one of the first five to present it to any of the stores represented and they will give you a FREE ticket to see "Noah's Ark" at the Carolina Theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

Noah Was a Man of the Hour and His Ark Was a Great Conveyor

BUT

The Tech Game Is the Big Thing Now—and the Auto Is The Big Way to Go.

Special Rates on Two Cars to Atlanta and Athens.

Let Us Show You
THE BEST BUT CHEAPEST WAY

Inquire for

J. T. ("BULL") DURHAM

At The Carolina Confectionery

NOAH "GOT ALONG"

But Think How

Sheri-Cola

Would Have Flavored That Trip

Noah Missed Lots
But YOU Needn't——
TRY IT NOW

at

Patterson Brothers

A Carolina Drink with a Taste that Lingers

NOAH DID A GOOD JOB
SAVING THE PEOPLE
FROM THE FLOOD——

We'll Do a Good Job of your

CLEANING and TAILORING

All Work Guaranteed—Ladies' Work Hand Finished by Experienced Workers—Fifteen Years' Experience.

O'KELLY

TAILORING CO.

110 Columbia St.
Phone 3531

SPECIAL ATLANTA RATES
BEFORE 3 O'CLOCK TODAY
BOOK EXCHANGE

The Daily Tar Heel

"TAR HEEL" SPECIAL
9 O'CLOCK
TONIGHT

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1929 | NUMBER 18

KOCH WILL GIVE FIRST LECTURE TOMORROW NIGHT

Will Show Slides of Dakota Players and Carolina Playmakers.

Professor Frederick Koch will give an illustrated lecture on "Adventures in Playmaking" Friday night at 7:30 in the theatre. A variety of stereoptican slides will show phases of Professor Koch's work.

Part of these slides are of the original productions of the Dakota Playmakers of the University of North Dakota where Professor Koch began playmaker work. Others show the development of the Carolina Playmakers.

The lecture will include photographs of productions on the Playmakers' first stage in the auditorium of the Chapel Hill high school. Pictures of productions in the present Playmaker theatre, and slides of productions in the Forest theatre will also be used. The lecture is open to the public.

Dormitory Club Elects Officers

The occasion of the first meeting of the Carolina dormitory club this year was a good supper prepared by the ladies of the Episcopal church at the parish house. This first supper-meeting is becoming an annual affair with the dormitory presidents and managers, as this is the third successive year it has taken place.

The main purpose of the meeting was for the dormitory officers to get together and get acquainted. A good social hour was enjoyed. Don Wood played the piano with consummate skill. The members, getting better acquainted, went into a huddle over some of the more popular songs, and mirth and comradeship held sway.

After supper was safely stowed, R. B. House reminisced through his subject of "Dormitories as Wuz and Is," as only Mr. House can reminisce. There was a time when practically all of the three hundred students of the University stayed in dormitories. The senior, with his pipe, his book, and his bedroom slippers, would take his easy chair in front of his fireplace in his room in Old East and study, while his body servant prepared his bed and his night-cap. Those were the Oxfordian days of our existence, when the rich men brought their negro body servants to school with them. But, one should not romanticise too much about the good, gone days. Consider that the student of that time had to contend with numerous noises, disturbances, and other deterrents from study, that are but unusual in ths civilized era. One had a perfect right to ring the college bell, make speeches at the well, visit, bull, and disturb anyone else at will. It would have been an insult to ask another man to

(Continued on page four)

GERMAN CLUB TO MEET

Der Deutsche Verein will meet Thursday evening, October 10, at 7:30 p. m. in Murphey 113. Mr. Bell will tell briefly of his experiences last summer while traveling through Germany, Switzerland and Italy. His remarks will be illustrated by interesting snapshots from the journey. Everyone is invited—guests are welcome.

Former Carolina Student To Deliver Series Of Speeches

Noted Y. M. C. A. Leader Will Speak Here October 13 and 14 on the Chinese and Oriental Situation.

Mr. Eugene E. Barnett, a graduate of the University, and for two years secretary of the Y. M. C. A. here, will be here next Sunday and Monday to deliver a series of addresses on the subject of, "The Chinese and Oriental Situation Today—Politically, Religiously and Educationally." Because of the convenient location and the size of the auditorium of the Methodist church, the Y. M. C. A. has been given the privilege of using it for Mr. Barnett on Sunday. Mr. Barnett will speak there Sunday morning at 11:00 and then again that night at 8:00. He will also speak several times to the students on Monday, and will meet in conferences for all students desiring to see him.

Mr. Barnett has for the past 20 years been in charge of the Y work in China among the universities and colleges. During all the late Chinese revolutions he remained at his post, and kept in intimate contact with the government leaders as well as diplomats and other foreigners.

Mr. Barnett was the founder of the Young Men's Christian Association in Hangchow, a city of 800,000, the imperial capital during the splendid days of Marco Polo, and still the seat of a province of 17,000,000 people. This association has become the rallying point of a great religious and civic enterprise supported and participated in by governors, bankers, educators, silk merchants, and other leading men. When Mr. Barnett was called to the National Committee in 1921 he left a strong organization in Hangchow, housed in a modern building, generously supported by the community, and led by a Chinese successor in the general secretaryship.

Mr. Barnett was executive secretary of the student division of the national committee of China from 1921 to 1923. During this period he and his colleague, T. Z. Koo, were responsible for the entertainment by the China movement of the World's Student Christian Federation Conference. T. Z. Koo succeeded him as head of the student work.

Since 1923 Mr. Barnett has headed the city division of the national committee of the Y. M. C. A.'s of China. This position brings him in intimate touch with all parts of the country. During the past few months he has visited twelve of the eighteen provinces and has interviewed many of the prominent leaders in the contemporary scene. Since 1926 he has served concurrently as senior member of the National Christian Council and of its executive committee which has brought him unusual opportunities with present leaders of the churches and other Christian organizations of the country. He has also served as college trustee in Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist institutions.

Most of Mr. Barnett's public speaking in recent years has been done in the Chinese language. His main work in China is that of trusted counselor and friend of Chinese leaders, both in the association movement and outside it. What he says about China grows, therefore,

(Continued on page four)

Special Rates

Arrangements have been made to secure a special rate for the student cheering section for the Tech game Friday. A limited number of railway tickets, sleeper tickets, and game tickets will be on sale at the special rate of $17.50 at the Book Exchange for all three. Orders must be given at the Book Exchange before three o'clock today.

LETTER EXPLAINS NOVEL CREATION

Rev. H. G. C. Hallock Writes Dr. Stuhlman of Oriental Ideas Of Earth's Formation.

(By B. H. Whitton)

The man who made the world was something over 7430 miles high when he died, according to the figures given by Chinese teaching of the origin of the world.

This enormous size was figured from data contained in a letter received by Mr. Otto Stuhlman, Jr., from Rev. H. G. C. Hallock, of Shanghai, China, who wrote to the University professor telling him of a Chinese explanation of the origin of the world.

This statement of the creation was obtained during a Bible Class in which the story of the creation as recorded in Genesis was being discussed. The thought came to those attending the meeting that the Chinese teachings "could go them one better," and this explanation was given.

The impressing things of this story are that the creator of the world was born of "the male and female principles, Yang, and Yin." This man, Pan-Ku, was a short stubby fellow with horns, who had the remarkable capacity of growth which enabled him to grow six feet a day for the entire period of 18,000 years during which he was engaged in making the earth.

He obtained possession of an axe, and then proceeded to cut the world out of apparently nothing. After his work was almost completed, he had to die to finish the job. He died, and his various features became the physical features of the earth.

The origin of man is explained to the entire satisfaction of the evolutionists, because this story states that they were once the in-

(Continued on page two)

'JOB'S KINFOLKS' CAST IS SELECTED

The cast for Loretta Carroll Bailey's play "Job's Kinsfolks" was selected at a tryout held in the Playmaker theatre last Friday night. The play will be presented in its three-act form as an alternate bill on the Playmakers' northern tour November 15 to 30.

Members of the cast were selected with a view to their taking part in both this bill and the alternate program of three one-act plays. Loretta Carroll Bailey has the role of Kizzie, having played this part in the production last year.

The cast follows: Kizzie, Loretta Carroll Bailey; Kate, Nettina Strobach; Katherine, Phoebe Harding; Estelle, Muriel Wolfe; Danny, Howard Bailey; Carl Rogers, Hubert Heffner.

UNIVERSITY GRAD WILL SPEAK AT HISTORICAL MEET

State Literary and Historical Association To Meet In Raleigh.

Dr. William Starr Myers, graduate of the University in 1897, professor of politics in Princeton university since 1918, widely-known lecturer on historical and political subjects, and author of several books, has been secured for the main address for the twenty-ninth annual session of the state literary and historical association which meets in Raleigh Thursday and Friday, October 31, to November 1. Professor Myers' address will be on the evening of Nov. 1.

The association program will open Thursday evening, October 31 with the presidential address by Dr. H. M. Wagstaff, professor of history at the University of North Carolina and editor and author of several books on North Carolina history. Following the address there will be a reception to members and friends of the association.

A program of brief papers on North Carolina and southern history by Miss Adelaide L. Fries of Winston-Salem, Dr. G. G. Johnson of Chapel Hill and Dr. B. B. Kendrick of Greensboro will be presented Friday morning.

The North Carolina folk lore society will hold its annual meeting on Friday afternoon, November 1. The officers of the folk lore society are Mrs. S. Westray Battle of Asheville, president; Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Raleigh, Mrs. Maude Minish Sutton, Forest City, and Miss Lucy Maria Cobb, Raleigh, vice-presidents, and Frank C. Brown, Durham, secretary-treasurer.

Research Group Is Studying Failure Tobacco Association

Since the Tri-State Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association failed in 1926 members of the University Institute for Research in Social Science have been conducting a study to determine the causes of this failure. The work was begun with the idea of avoiding mistakes in any future organization, a number of which have been encouraged since the receivership of the old association.

It is the intention of Dr. T. J. Woofter, research professor in charge of the work, to complete his report of the matter at an early date. For almost three years the process of collecting the material for the final account has been under way. As yet Dr. Woofter has not a title for the paper, but he has planned and announced a definite arrangement of the topics that will be treated.

In the beginning, the background of southern agricultural life with its problems of negro labor, tenant farming, and systems of finance will be presented. All of these factors will be shown in their relationship to the failure of the former association. The second section will present a body of statistics on tobacco production, prices, supply, and demand; in section three, methods of organization will be discussed; in number four, the operation of the association; and the last division will be devoted to a discussion of the receivership of the old organization.

Dr. Woofter was assisted in gathering the data for this study by two other men. The first of these was Mr. Sidney Frissell, a research assistant, who worked throughout 1927. Mr. Frissell seemed particularly adapted to the work by reason of his association with the co-operative association as editor of its official paper, "The Tri-State Tobacco Grower." In this capacity he was given access to all the records of the organization, and was thus thoroughly familiar with its policies and methods. He was an ideal man for the study, knowing as he did the mistakes and fallacies of the administration of the association.

When Mr. Frissell gave up the study to accept a government position in Washington, the research was continued by another assistant, Mr. C. J. Bradley. Mr. Bradley's work is largely responsible for the mass of statistical information that will be incorporated into the report.

Considering the critical status of the southern agricultural industry, the growing sentiment towards a new association, and the statement concerning farm relief that was recently expressed by the national farm board, this study and report has been consummated at a strategic time. In reference to the declaration by the farm board, its members announced soon after its organization that their program of farm relief would be conducted solely through the agency of the co-operative asso-

(Continued on page two)

Team Given Send-Off

Last night a mammoth pep meeting was held in front of Swain hall to send the Carolina team off for the Tech game in Atlanta. The team will arrive in Atlanta early this morning. This afternoon they will work out for the last time before meeting the powerful Atlanta outfit. At the pep meeting cheers were given for the team and for individuals.

Engineer Students Go To Raleigh for Observation Labs

Tentative plans for several observation labs to be taken at the Raleigh field of the Curtiss Flying Service by the students of aeronautics in the department of mechanical engineering were announced yesterday.

Professor E. G. Hoefer and Mr. N. P. Bailey, members of the engineering faculty, were in Raleigh Monday evening to attend the formal opening of the Curtiss Service ground school there, and arrangements for these labs were made at that time.

At the Raleigh field, the Curtiss Service has eight or nine different types of planes, and the trips will be made for the purpose of observing the types of planes as they are studied in the aeronautics courses.

At the opening Monday, Professor Hoeffer and Mr. Bailey spoke briefly of their plans for the University courses in aviation, and D. Allen Harrell, University student from Scotland Neck, spoke on the construction of model aeroplanes.

Alumni Gifts Stimulate State Funds, Says Chase

Appeal Is a Systematic Effort To Get Alumni Into Habit of Giving to University Each Year.

In making an appeal for private gifts with which to supplement state appropriations, the University of North Carolina is only doing what every other state university in the country is doing, with the exception of Wisconsin, President Harry W. Chase told Orange county alumni and University faculty members at a smoker held here Tuesday night.

It has been shown conclusively that private gifts tend to encourage and stimulate state appropriations, Dr. Chase said.

The University president was explaining the purposes of the appeal recently launched by the Alumni Loyalty fund of the University.

"Such an appeal should not be regarded as an emergency measure," Dr. Chase said, but rather as an effort to get the alumni into a systematic habit of putting something aside for the University each year just as they contribute regularly to their lodge or their church."

Citing examples of private gifts recently made to state institutions in other states, Dr. Chase said that one donor expended for the Michigan law school ten times the amount used for building here in the last ten years. Private gifts made to the University of California have amounted to $5,000,000 in the last three years. Every building that was constructed here at the University prior to 1905 was built with private funds.

The Alumni Loyalty fund is based on the idea that, while the state may supply the essential things, state appropriations should be supplemented with private gifts with which to provide excellence in University life.

"That was the motivating idea when the fund was started under the administration of the late Edward K. Graham, and it is the same idea today," Dr. Chase declared. "The fund should be regarded as the presentation of an opportunity rather than of a drive or campaign."

Following Dr. Chase's address the following new officers of the Chapel Hill alumni association were elected: Louis Graves, president; Obie Harmon, vice-president, and Herman Baity, secretary.

Miss Isabel Busbee Talks To Garden Club

Miss Isabel Busbee, secretary to the president of State college for a number of years and a noted authority on art and landscape designing, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Chapel Hill Garden Club held Tuesday afternoon in Davie hall. Miss Busbee received her training in landscape designing at the Lowthorpe School of Landscape Architecture, Gardening and Horticulture for Women at Groton, Mass., and at North Carolina State college in Raleigh and is an authority especially on an authority on North Carolina horitcultural problems.

More than forty members of the club were in attendance at this meeting which was presided over by Mrs. H. R. Totten, president.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Thursday, October 10, 1929

College Reforms And Reformers

Recently the pages of magazines in this country have been flooded with articles offering suggestions for reforming the colleges and universities. Most of these articles have attacked the methods of instruction and "student indifference."

The would-be reformers seem to have lost sight of one significant fact, however: higher education has been popularized to such an extent that the modern student body represents nothing more than a typical cross-section of the American community. A few generations ago all college students came from families with a cultural background, excepting a few individuals who sought a college education because of an inherent desire for knowledge.

In sharp contrast is the modern student body, which consists to a great extent of individuals whose only qualifications for a scholastic career are the ability to pass a perfunctory entrance examination or the possession of an easily obtained high school degree. We Americans are notorious for our lack of interest in the cultural aspects of life; the average college student reflects this national tendency away from culture to a marked degree. The petty social activities of the weekends, fraternities and athletics attract by far the greater portion of the undergraduate's interest.

As an inevitable result of the modern system of mass education, the college student body is characterized by an inert sort of mediocrity. Before any really effective reform can be accomplished in higher education, we believe that one of two things is necessary—that rigid entrance requirements be established, or that the rank and file of American citizenry adopt an active interest in cultural affairs.

Excessive Expenses In a College Town

College towns should be the cheapest places in the nation in which to live; however Chapel Hill seems to be one of the most expensive places in this state, if not in the entire nation in which to exist. While prices here may not be excessive in comparison with those in the larger cities, no effort is made to reduce the cost of living in order that more and more students may attend the University. A conscious effort is being made by University officials to get more men here, much is done toward helping the hard working fellow earn his way through school, but little or nothing is done toward decreasing the general cost of living.

Recently the price of hair cuts has been advanced in the village to fifty cents, while in all the other cities of the state only forty cents is the charge. For dry cleaning a suit one pays one dollar here while in many of the nearby cities one pays only fifty cents for cleaning a suit. The University operates a supposedly profit sharing dining room, but the board there is such that the majority of the students are forced to go to private and more expensive boarding houses in order to get satisfactory food. In many places in Greensboro board and room are furnished the teachers for twenty-five dollars a month. even yo-yos cost twice as much here as they do in neighboring towns.

If the University would undertake to operate under efficient management a large dining room on a real profit-sharing basis then good board could be furnished for far less than is now charged; if the University would operate stores on a profit-sharing basis, then many articles could be bought much cheaper than at present. The University could operate other concerns and furnish the students with necessities of life at a reduced rate.

Nothing has ever been done to encourage industrialism in Chapel Hill; the ideal is to make this place a University town and nothing more. If the University is the only thing here, then why should not the University operate on a cost basis all the business concerns and reduce the cost of living instead of allowing a large number of people to live and grow rich from furnishing necessities to "hard-up" college boys?—J.D.M.

Regarding Free Tuition

The suggestion that the University of North Carolina grant free tuition to all students who are natives of the state is by no means a new one. Although there has never been any organized student movement looking in this direction, a large part of the student body is in favor of the idea.

Several state universities scattered throughout the United States give free tuition to all native students without any obligation whatsoever. Prominent among these are the University of Ohio and the University of Minnesota. Regardless of the fact that the practice is as yet in the experimental stage there are several advantages which accrue to state schools which collect tuition charges from "outsiders" only.

It is advisable, all things considered, for people who are going to live in any given state to be educated in that state. In the case of the state of North Carolina, many students attend institutions in other states who would come to the University of their home state if it had the free tuition attraction to offer to all students. Thus the state loses many young men and women who have received their elementary education at the expense of the North Carolina taxpayer.

There is no university or college of importance which does not have a considerable element of students from foreign states in its student body. Most of this element habitually settle in the state where they received their advanced schooling. The writer believes that better students would be attracted to the University of North Carolina from other states if they had to pay a tuition charge from which native Tar Heels were exempt. To the resident of North Carolina the free tuition inducement would be strong enough to prevent his leaving the state to attend a college or university located in a "foreign" state; to the resident of any other state the fact of having to pay a charge of seventy-five dollars more than native students would be of great enough significance to eliminate those who contemplated attending the University of North Carolina without any definite purpose in mind.

The fact that students of this University who are enrolled in the school of education are given free tuition gives rise to a complication which is destructive to the aim of the school. Many students enter the school of education merely to get free tuition and without any intention of ever teaching in the state. If the function of the aforesaid branch of the University be to train teachers, then the free tuition attraction is self-destructive. It not only attracts students who intend to teach and who are not financially able to pay tuition charges, but it causes many to enlist in the ranks of the "prospective teachers" who have not the slighest intention of entering the teaching profession for even a short time.

The writer believes that free tuition for all North Carolina students at the University would remedy this evil, for all branches of the institution would then have the drawing card which only one branch has at present. Then there would be no point in enrolling in the wrong school of the University.—J.C.W.

Readers' Opinions

TO ALL FELLOW YO-YOERS:
Ave! And Hist!
Hey! Hey!

" 'The time has come,' the Walrus said,
'To talk of many things:
Of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—
Of cabbages—and kings—
And why the sea is boiling hot—
And whether pigs have wings.' "

With this gentle reminder of the Serious Things of Life so admirably expressed by Mr. Lewis Carroll, let us give our undivided attention for a few moments to this Enemy in our midst, this Philistine who has come upon us wielding the jawbone of an Ass to smite two thousand men.

From his article in the Daily Tar Heel of Tuesday, October 8, all the world may read and understand the contempt, the bitter irony, and the gross misunderstanding which he has of us. Blood Brothers Bound by the Sacred Cords of Yo-Yo, what terms does he use to describe us? From the presumptuous height of his intolerance, he hurls at us adjectives like puerile; accuses us of ravings; and, blasphemy of blasphemies, hints that our chosen instrument is not adequate to our needs.

But hark!

Out of his own mouth he convicts himself, as the purely reasonable always do, of the most bewildering logic. He stumbles headlong into one of those inextricable mazes of fallacy where Gentle Fancy's children are never known to trip. We are told that we have a complex—a juvenile one, and that this craving remains unsatisfied by the little Spinning Wheel. Now, far be it from us to cast aspersions even on the rational processes of a Philistine, but in the very same sentence he thus describes our instrument: "That peerless (italics ours) medium of expression for puerile tendencies"! Blinded by prejudice and unlighted by any spark of Divine Fancy, he sees in the Yo-Yo only a pacifier for fools and infants!

But Brothers in Yo-Yo, let us not banish this Lost Soul from our midst with never a touch of Christian Charity and Sweet Reasonableness. Let us understand him. He is doubtless a Man with a Mission, a Serious Somebody, who is out for the Finer Things of Life. Doubtless he is a Practical Person who always sees the corner but never around it. He thinks that Life, even its Larger Moments, can be comprehended in a column of statistics, and he doubtless opines that Death is the Imminent Disaster.

Perhaps we should educate him, he seems literate; it's only his logic that is cock-eyed. We shall place in his hands a copy of Andre Siegfried's America Comes of Age, where he will learn from this witty Frenchman, in his last chapter, that one of the unhappy afflictions of American civilization is that: "Anyone who turns aside to dabble in research or diletantism is regarded as almost mentally perverted."

Perhaps we could lead him finally to that truly cultured point of view expressed by Mr. Waldo Frank in his little essay "The Machine and Metaphysics"; a point of view which admirably comprehends and understands the Real Meaning of the Yo-Yo in Modern Life: "Only when the individual worker experiences . . . that the elements of life in the machine fuse . . . together with his own into a unitary act—alone then will his spirit in participation be able to go out through the machine, so that it and the whole mechanized world may once again, in his joy, in his beauty, in his human pride, express him."

If he were tractable, if he still endured after a period of preliminary apprenticeship in the great Brotherhood of Yo-Yo, we might lead him eventually to the heart of our secret and let him read in the original French, the statement of our Faith by that distinguished aesthetician, Elie Faure: (We quote from the authorized translation of The Dance Over Fire and Water by Mr. John Gould Fletcher) "It is the precise role of the artist. It is in the energy which Michael Angelo possessed in order to realize, between intelligence uplifting itself, and matter tending to drag it down. . . . It is in the drunkeness of Shakespeare conciliating in lyric indifference the contradictory movements of the drama of passion. It is in the power of Rubens twisting in every sense, as clay in the flame, the universal forces released by the current of a river, by the flow of sap, the pulsations of blood and will. It is in the supernatural magic of Beethoven re-uniting in the orchestral multitude the multiform voices of God."

* No. 1. We have synthesized the Hebraic mythology and Mr. Matthew Arnold's epithet.
* No. 2. We do not Yo-Yo.
* No. 3. Professor Archibald Henderson will discuss the curvilinear mathematics and torque implications of the Yo-Yo in relation to the fourth dimension, in a forthcoming monograph.

One of our research assistants is now engaged in working out the relation of the Yo-Yo to the "Ractional Sex Life."

(Signed) Ko Ko
Nanki Poo.

Research Group Is Is Studying Failure Tobacco Association

(Continued from page one)

ciations. Although the board has the power to subsidize agriculture through a system of surplus control, they have refused to do this, preferring to have this function performed by the farmers united in associations. In adition it has set a policy of lending money to the industry only through members of farm associations. Thus, to secure the full benefits of farm relief it is essential and desirable that the farmers form into unionized groups.

College Life

Letter Explains Novel Creation

(Continued from page one)

sects that crawled over Pan-Ku.

To illustrate the story, Rev. Hallock enclosed in the letter a printed copy of the features of Pan-Ku. He appears as a stockily built individual with short horns. He is wearing a skirt of leaves and has a ring of leaves about his neck.

He has his hands extended above his head and is holding in each a sphere, one red, the other yellow. His face is oriental. There are the narrow eyes, raised at the outer extremeties, the long, drooping moustache, and the very dark eyebrows.

Beside him, on what appears to be a stump is the axe with which he made the world, and above the entire drawing are three groups of Chinese characters.

The version of the creation as given by this letter is substantially as follows: "Yang and Yin gave birth to Pan-Ku, who grew at the great rate mentioned before. Somehow he got hold of an axe, and with that he managed to 'k'ai-p-ih t'ien di' or hew out the universe. From what he cut it is not known.

He was 18,000 years doing this work, and in order to complete his work he had to die. His head became "the mountains, his breath, the winds, and clouds; his voice, the thunder; his limbs, the four quarters of the earth; his blood the rivers; his flesh, the soil; his beard, the constellations; his skin and hair, the herbs and trees; his teeth, bones, and marrow became the metals, rocks, and precious stones; his sweat, the rain," and most suggestive to the evolutionists, "the insects creeping over his body became human beings!"

Rev. Hallock says in his letter, "I hope we are proud of our ancestry! The Chinese speak of three kinds of insects that delight in man's "fellowship," the "crawlers, the jumpers, and the smellers." I asked a Chinese to which race he belonged? He said that he did not know, but that 'the foreigners must belong to the crawlers, for they a white.'

"In finishing the earth Pan-K failed to put the sun and t moon in their proper places, a he is shown holding them in h hands as mentioned before. T sun and moon went down in the sea, and the peoples wer left in darkness. A messeng was sent to ask them to go back into the sky to give light. They refused, Pan-Ku was called and at Buddha's direction wrote the character "Zeh," sun, in one hand, and "Yuin," moon in the other and going to the sea, he stretched out his hands and called the sun and the moon repeating a charm devoutly seven times. Then they ascended into the sky and gave light, day and night.

In the creation Pan-Ku made 51 stories, or floors; 33 for heaven, and 18 for hell, below the earth. If one is very good he will go to the 33rd heaven and be worshipped as a god, if he is very bad, he will go down to the 18th floor of hell.

Marquette will meet two eastern teams this year, Holy Cross at Worcester and Boston college in Milwaukee.

ON TO TECH!
Let Us Show You The Cheapest Way
Your Own Car Your Own Party And a Car While There
For Less Than Any Other Way of Going
Let Us Quote Our Special Prices to
Carolina-Tech Georgia-Yale
Two Seven-Passenger Packards and a Big-Six Studebaker Ready to Go.
Carolina U-Drive It
Around Corner from P. O

Victor, Columbia & Brunswick Records
University Book and Stationery Co.
Next To Sutton's Drug Store

Atlanta Writers Think Heels Will Turn Tables On Tornado

All Say That Heels Have Power Enough to Score Victory over Tech Team; Jackets Also Have Strength.

The two major games coming off down in Georgia this week-end are causing a landslide of comment from the Southern sports writers, and especially from those of the Atlanta Constitution. Of the two the Tech-Heel game is holding the Southern spotlight, while the Yale-Georgia mixup is attracting inter-sectional attention. That Yale will have a rather easy time with the Georgia Bulldogs is a generally conceeded point, so consequently the brunt of the speculation is aimed against the Tornado-Tar Heel struggle.

Herb Clark in a recent article expressed the following opinion:

"The Jackets will not win the battle with the Tar Heels. At least, the same team which took the Aggie scalp will not win from the Tar Heels.

"The Jackets showed numerous bad spots in their play. The pass defense was probably the most noticable from the stands. The Aggies passed 11 times. Eight of these attempts were completed and were made to account for 90 yards. Eight for 11 is an almost perfect average. For the defensive team it is far from that.

"Unless this phase of the Jacket game improves mightily the Tar Heels are going to count often. In the Maryland game Saturday they scored three touchdowns in five minutes, and passes were responsible for each of the tallies. A weak pass defense, facing this type of tossing would mean that the Tar Heels could do all the forcing. And it would mean that the Jackets would be in the w. k. tough spot.

"To cite other factors: the Jackets failed on several occasions to give their own passer the protection which is necessary for success at the air game.

"The Jacket line has not become unified. The charges Saturday were powerful at times and at times a lack of precision in the rush, left openings for flank movements on the part of the Aggie linemen.

"The blocking was also up-and-down. On about half the plays the Jackets set sail with grim intent and cut the Aggies down. The rest of the time they were about as effective as a nail file on an oak.

"A good part of the faulty play was due to the fact that the majority of the players were making their debuts. They were carrying the full weight of the national championship reputation on their shoulders.

Friday, with their baptism a thing of the past and with the increased poise and knowledge that the Aggie fray should have given them, they can be expected to be more aggressive and to handle themselves better."

John Staton, also of the Constitution, and former Tech All-Southern end, made certain remarks about the Tornado squad as it emerged from the game with the Mississippi Aggies that have rather close connection with the coming game:

"Power, not wholly harnessed, that is the impression the Yellow Jackets left with those who came to see them defeat the Mississippi Aggies, 27-13.

"It took power of the driving, smashing kind to rack up five successive first downs for a touchdown.

"And yet, in the last quarter everyone was amazed to see that same Tech aggregation stand by while the Aggies passed their way to a touchdown. On this march the Aggies carried the ball exactly 80 yards, and completed six passes without a mishap, not to mention the nice runs of Pappenheimer, the individual star of the game."

* * *

"Tech used an excellent defense to stop the running attack of this formation, but failed miserably to break up the many passes which Pappenheimer threw with accuracy and effect.

"One of the most interesting points in the entire play was the mobility of the Tech defense. There was a time when a defensive set was rigidly adhered to, regardless. But Saturday Tech varied its defense to suit the varying conditions. With the exception of the forward pass work, the defense was excellent."

* * *

"Tech used only its standard set and a simple punt formation, relying on power and precision for its drives and accuracy and timing for its passes."

* * *

"While the Tech interference as a rule was ragged, there were times when it functioned with amazing smoothness. This was especially true of the short bucks. Many times Mizell would pass the line of scrimmage behind a perfect wall formed by interferers. In this connection it should be mentioned that Dunlap did a particularly fine piece of interfering in the open field. Many times he cut the end out in front of Thomason, who was returning a punt, or for Mizell started on a wide end run.

"Perhaps the most pleasing aspect from a Tech standpoint was the manner in which substitutions could be made without visibly weakening the team. It has been the thought of many that Tech would have a powerful first eleven with few able reserves. Tech played two full teams, and there was little difference between them.

"After Saturday's performance there can be no doubt that Tech possesses a team laden with possibilities, a team capable of extraordinary development, a team perchance that could be developed into a conference winner. But withal, that team, to be really great, must show, week by week, the results of that development."

Crime costs the U. S. about $10,000,000,000 annually.

Intramural Notice

All Intramural football games between fraternities which were scheduled for Friday, October 11, have been postponed indefinitely on account of the Georgia Tech game in Atlanta. Dormitories wishing to postpone their games on that day are requested to make application for same to Mac Gray at the stadium.

BILL BYRD, END, LOST TO VIRGINIA VARSITY

University, Virginia, Oct. 9.—(Special)—Bill Byrd, veteran end, will be lost to the Virginia team for at least a month as a result of a shoulder dislocation sustained in the victory over South Carolina at Columbia.

Virginia was put in a position to score during the first quarter of the Carolina game when Byrd took a pass from Sloan to the seven-yard line. But he was downed by Eddie Zobel so that he twisted his left shoulder in the fall.

Byrd comes from Baltimore. He played at Peddie before entering Virginia. During his freshman year he played center, but in his first varsity season he was shifted to the wing where he has twice won his "V." He is a nephew of the Virginia governor and of the explorer.

"Shorty"

If Georgia Tech has her "Stumpy" Thomason, then North Carolina has her "Shorty" Branch. And now almost on the eve of the South's most important game The Tar Heel refuses to budge an inch under the pressure of the praise that has come up from the south in favor of Thomason. Friday's game will have as a side feature the settlement of more than one little personal matter.

"Stumpy"

There is no getting around the fact that "Stumpy" Thomason is a wonderful player; just now few people are trying to deny that fact. Last fall he made a pretty deep impression down in Kenan Stadium, and few Carolina men have found it easy to forget him. Thomason is a wellrounded player and is one of the most dangerous threats in the Tornado backfield.

TAR HEELS MEET V. P. I. HARRIERS

Varsity and Freshmen Have Tough Schedule This Year; Many Men Working.

The first dual meet for both varsity and freshman cross-country teams will be held at Blacksburg, Va., Friday, October 18, with the V. P. I. harriers as the opposition, according to an announcement made yesterday afternoon by Coach Dale Ranson. Following the V. P. I. meet, there will be another contest for both of the University teams November 2, at Chapel Hill, with North Carolina State college serving as the opposition. The varsity and freshman teams will next meet Duke at Chapel Hill on Friday, November 8. The two weeks after this meet will be spent in preparation for the Southern Conference championship meet which is to be held in Chapel Hill this year on Saturday, November 23.

Coach Ranson also announced that negotiations are pending for a state championship meet for varsity and freshman teams. An open road race in which both collegiate and amateur harriers will be permitted to participate is also being planned.

Coach Ranson, although not underestimating the strength of the teams to be met before the conference meet, is training his men with the idea of capturing the conference title for the fourth consecutive time. Carolina teams have won the Southern Conference championship meets for the past three years. In 1926 the title was captured at Athens, Ga.; in 1927 at Chapel Hill; and last year at Atlanta, Ga. In the meet at Atlanta two years ago the local team scored 17 points out of a possible low score of 15 points. Galen Elliott of Carolina led the pick of the south in this meet. Last year Young of Georgia, who will be back again this year, led the field.

Among the large number of candidates from which Coach Ranson hopes to pick a championship team are six letter men, Barkley (captain), Baucom, Lowry, Wrenn, G. M. Cohen and Medford. Other candidates are Simpson, J. J. Cohen, Brown, Rhodes, Phoenix, Farris, Pierce, Purser and Anderson.

The freshman candidates are Jensen, Jones, Zelly, Cox, London, Lumpkin and a number of other capable men.

On Wednesday, October 9, approximately 850 students were boarding at Swain hall.

MANY CANDIDATES DOING MAT WORK

Fall Work In Wrestling Going Ahead Under Supervision Of Peyton Abbott.

Fall work for the wrestling squad has drawn a large following. With one of the best teams in the south last year prospects indicate an even better team this year. Peyton Abbott, former captain of the Carolina team and undefeated wrestler, is conducting classes every afternoon from 4 to 6 in the Tin Can. Assisting him is Wayne Woodward, captain of last year's team.

Abbott is very optimistic over this year's prospects and predicts a team that will hold its own with any team in the south. Last year Carolina lost to Duke and V. M. I. by slight margins, and this year, with a generous number of good reserves and promising men from last year's freshman squad, Coach Quinlan is pointing for an undefeated season.

From last year's varsity squad are Captain Woodward, Ferguson, Moore, Saunders, Stallings, Cooper, Albright, Zealie and Thompson. Last year's freshmen will be represented by Edwards, Spell, Kushner and Allison. New men out for the squad who have been showing some promise are Carmichael, Conklin, Pearlstine, Taylor, Bell, Beecham and Young.

A good sized group of freshmen have given indications of developing into some valuable wrestlers. They will be coached by Peyton Abbott. As usual, men in the heavier weights are scarce for both freshman and varsity squads, and anyone interested in wrestling is requested to see Peyton Abbott or Wayne Woodward in the Tin Can any week day in the afternoon.

Fall work is primarily to give the men experience. Tryouts will be held just after the Christmas vacation and those who have been out all fall will have the additional advantage of being in excellent physical condition.

The schedule for meets will be about the same this year as last with the addition of the Navy at Annapolis. This marks the opening of intersectional competition for both the wrestling and boxing teams. The new meet promises to be one of the big lights in the wrestling season. Two years ago Duke defeated the Navy and this year the Tar Heels with a clever looking preseason team will attempt to repeat the same trick.

It is the hope of many southern coaches to hold a Southern Conference tournament this year. With the usual mix-up at the end of the season it is very difficult to decide on the champions.

Heels Plan Georgia Invasion For Carolina-Tornado Contest

Special Train To Carry Supporters To Atlanta; 62 Piece Band Will Head Student Parade.

North Carolina is planning a big invasion of Georgia on the occasion of Friday's North Carolina-Georgia Tech game in Atlanta.

Tar Heel followers who have seen the big Blue and White Legion trample Wake Forest and Maryland, 48-0 and 43-0, say North Carolina has the greatest chance since 1922 to topple the mighty Tech and maybe win conference honors. And Tar Heel followers are planning to be present en masse if there is a toppling.

Special trains are to be run from every center in the state. Extra low rates have been secured, to take the Tar Heels to both the North Carolina-Georgia Tech and Yale-Georgia games. The humble and the notable are making reservations to indicate that there will be a record and colorful Tar Heel invasion.

The Tar Heels' fine 62-piece band, headed by Director T. Smith McCorkle and Drum Major E. L. Smith, uniformed in blue and white, will lead the student parade. They will ride the special train which is to leave Chapel Hill Thursday night, and which is expected to carry several hundred students.

The Tar Heel band will play for both the Carolina-Tech game on Friday and the Georgia-Yale game in Athens Saturday.

With the Tar Heels mowing down all opposition and the Tornado blowing furiously another season, the game promises to be one of the South's outstanding grid affairs and one of the most colorful events on the South's autumn calendar.

The big home-coming game for the University will be played here Saturday week, October 19, when the Tar Heels will meet the Georgia Bulldogs here in Kenan stadium.

CAVALIERS TO OPPOSE SWARTHMORE'S ELEVEN

University, Virginia, Oct 9.—(Special)—Virginia is joining with five other southern teams in playing intersectional contests on Saturday. The Cavaliers will entertain Swathmore on Lambeth field. Georgia's dedication game with Yale will be the only other intersectional affair played in Dixie.

Two other Old Dominion teams go north. Virginia Polytechnic Institute plays Pennsylvania in Philadelphia and Hampden-Sidney again goes to Ithaca to meet Cornell. Vanderbilt's trip to Minnesota and Davidson's invasion of West Point will give grid critics added opportunities to make comparisons of strength across sectional lines.

Don't Experiment with your Appearance

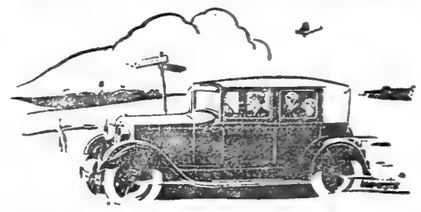
ESTABLISHED 1896 QUALITY PRICE SERVICE LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

CAROLINA THEATRE

Last Times Today

See and Hear the Spectacle of the Ages



Dolores Costello in "NOAH'S ARK" with George O'Brien

Friday

"3 Live Ghosts"

All Star Cast

BUY YOUR FORD HERE

New Fordor Sedan $625 (F.O.B. Detroit)

Free Inspection Service at 500, 1,000 and 1,500 miles

This includes a check-up of the battery, generator charging rate, distributor, carburetor adjustment, lights, brakes, shock absorbers, tire inflation and steering gear. The engine oil is also changed and the chassis lubricated. A check-up of wheel alignment and spring shackles is included as part of the 1,500 mile inspection. Everything is free except the cost of new oil and grease.

Come in and see all the Newest Ford Cars

Ford Strowd Motor Co.

D. S. 21

Text Books develop a new blaze of interest after a breakfast of SHREDDED WHEAT. Natural food makes you feel fine. SHREDDED WHEAT contains everything you need — nothing you don't.

Shredded Wheat

with fruit and milk or cream

Di Society Plans Dance This Quarter

The meeting of the Dialectic Senate Tuesday night in New West building was largely a business session. The Senate voted to lend the library several portraits which at present are stored in one of the society's rooms.

President Williams appointed the dance committee, which will make all arrangements for holding the annual Di Senate dance the latter part of the present quarter. The personnel of the committee includes Senators McPherson, Patterson, Wilson, and Hamer. The committee was instructed to make a report of its plans for the dance at the next meeting of the society.

The next initiation meeting will take place on the night of October 22 in the Di hall. This will be the last opportunity to join the Senate this quarter. Candidates who report for membership before that time, however, will be given the privileges of members and be taken in at the regular time.

After having discharged all matters of business, the Senate proceeded to discuss: "Resolved, That the University of North Carolina should grant free tuition to all students who are residents of the state." Although Senator Simpson defended his resolution ably, it was defeated by an unanimous vote of the Senate.

Davidson Names Men For Rhodes Honors

Davidson, Oct. 9.—(Special).—College students or alumni, representing five different states, have been selected by the faculty's executive committee of this institution to represent the college as candidates for the Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford, England. These men will go to their respective states on October 19th for appearance before committees which will determine the winner of each state.

Competition among students or alumni who were candidates from North Carolina was keenest. Eleven men, five of them seniors and six of them alumni, presented their names as candidates to the executive committee. Of this number, three alumni were selected: T. E. Lothery, Jr., of Davidson, who has been an instructor in the department of physics here for a year: Riggs McConnell, of Davidson, now coaching and teaching at Woodberry Forest, in Virginia, and J. A. Thompson, who is now studying on his Ph. D. degree at the University of North Carolina. Mr. Thompson did graduate work at the University for a year after graduation and for two years was assistant professor at Wake Forest college.

INVESTIGATE ORIGIN OF TERM 'TAR HEEL'

(From News and Observer Bureau)

Washington, Oct. 9.—Senator Overman has had the Library of Congress investigate the origin of the term "Tar Heel" as a synonym for North Carolinians. He is informed that the Oxford English dictionary says "it is a nickname for a native or inhabitant of North Carolina, in allusion to tar as a principal product of that State."

The Library of Congress expert also gives his approval to a quotation from John S. Farmer's "Americanisms," published in London in 1885, stating that it was a name given in derision by Mississippians to a brigade of North Carolinians, who in one of the great battles of the Civil War, failed to hold their position on a certain hill.

The Mississippians taunted the North Carolinians with having forgotten to tar their heels that morning, and hence the cant name.

Wake County Alumni To Meet at Raleigh

Raleigh, Oct. 9.—(Special).—Alumni of the University of North Carolina who live in Wake county will observe their alma mater's 136th birthday with a banquet at the Carolina hotel, Friday night at 6 o'clock, according to Dr. A. S. Root, president of the University alumni club of Wake county.

The meeting will begin promptly in order that the supper may be over before the beginning of the general University day radio program, which is being broadcast through radio station WPTF from 6:45 to 7:30 o'clock. The program is being broadcast from Atlanta, but the Charlotte and Raleigh radio stations are in a hook-up to relay the program.

President Harry W. Chase of the University and Governor O. Max Gardner are to be the principal speakers of the radio broadcast. A resume of the football game between Georgia Tech and Carolina, which is being played in Atlanta Friday afternoon, will feature the program also. Bill Munday, sports writer and sports radio announcer, will handle the football resume.

Dr. Root will preside at the Raleigh banquet, at which R. B. House, secretary of the University will be a visitor and speaker.

Alumni clubs all over the state will meet Friday evening to observe University day, and listen in on the radio program.

DUKE TO SELECT FOUR RHODES CANDIDATES

Durham, Oct. 9.—(Special)—Four candidates for the Rhodes scholarship will be selected from among Duke university students on October 11, according to Prof. F. K. Mitchell, of the committee in charge of the selection. The students selected will appear before a North Carolina committee on December 7, among representatives of other institutions, for examination. One student is to be selected for the coveted scholarship which provides a three-year course at Oxford university, England.

Qualities to be considered in making the selection include literary and scholastic ability and attainments, fellowship, character, leadership and physical vigor.

There are half a dozen members of the Duke university faculty who are former Rhodes scholars. One former Duke student, Furman McLarty, of Charlotte, of the class of 1927, is a Rhodes student at Oxford.

FRESH SUPPORT GIVEN VIRGINIA SPECTATOR

University, Va., Oct. 9.—(Special.—Twenty-four applicants for positions on the "Spectator" board of the University of Virginia were present at the staff meeting Monday afternoon and will assist eight old members of the staff in a campaign which is expected to reach every man in the University during the coming week, according to Howard B. Bloomer, editor-in-chief. "If, after every person at the University has had a chance to subscribe, we can't make up seven hundred subscriptions," said a staff member, "it will be definitely settled that the University of Virginia cannot or will not support any magazine of serious purpose." Those in charge, however, think the campaign will be successful if conducted with sufficient enthusiasm. Said Bloomer: "We ought to get them."

FIRST COACHING CLASS

Twenty-seven men met Coach Ashmore Tuesday for the first lecture on basketball coaching. The class was held again yesterday at 10:30 in Murphey 110. The coach states that he does not plan to give the class again this year.

Former Carolina Student To Deliver Series of Speeches

(Continued from page one)

out of an intimate inside knowledge of present-day Chinese thought and conditions.

A Floridian who emigrated before the boom, Mr. Barnett took his A.B. at Emory college, studied theology at Vanderbilt university, and has done post-graduate work at the University of North Carolina and Columbia university. He went to China in 1910, the last year of the old Manchu regime, and has lived there almost continuously during the years of revolution which have followed.

Mr. Barnett has two children in American colleges now, a son, who is a freshman here at Carolina, and daughter at Randolph-Macon at Lynchburg.

Dormitory Club Elects Officers

(Continued from first page)

leave one's room, so that one might study. Not this today. Dormitory presidents, councils, and managers guard the welfare of the dormitory members on every hand. Even itinerant agents have been "shoo-ed" away, and a dormitory office holds mercantile sway in each dormitory. In fact, with the civilization of some of the more exuberant of the younger generation, the dormitories would be the quietest and best rooming places on the campus. The dormitory club deserves considerable honor and recognition for planning and perfecting several of these reforms.

B. C. Wilson, president of Old East dormitory, was elected as president of the club. J. G. Pleasant, Mangum, was elected vice-president. J. S. Weathers, Ruffin, was elected treasurer. Short talks were made by Bob Zealy, as chairman of the grounds beautiful committee, and Jimmy Williams, as secretary of the club. Williams is connected with the dean of students' office and has been secretary of the club for three years.

Previewers Praise Show "Noah's Ark"

"The scenic effects were the most marvelous I ever saw, and for teaching a lesson, the picture is unsurpassed." This was the comment of the Reverend C. E. Rozzelle of the Methodist church on "Noah's Ark," the picture being shown at the Carolina today.

Before being shown to the public this week, "Noah's Ark" was presented at a special preview for University officials, the clergymen of Chapel Hill, and the press of the town. The picture was rushed from Atlanta by Manager E. Carrington Smith in order to be here in time for the special showing before the regular opening.

The picture brings the ancient Bible story up to date, and shows the application of the theme to a modern man and woman who are caught up and embroiled in the World war. In addition, therefore, to the famous stupendous Biblical scenes, there are pictures of the war and of the mobilization in Paris.

The sets used for the picture are the largest and most costly ever built. For the flood scenes, the climax of the photoplay, tons of water were employed. A number of the thousands of people taking part in the picture were injured during one scene depicting a stampede of wild animals as the waters of the flood rise. The picture is one of the most powerful dramas ever produced.

Some of the wealthy Romans had 1,000 slaves.

Harry Houdini, America's magician, was born in 1874.

The Daily Tar Heel

Prints Chapel Hill News FIRST

All Matters of Interest to the People of Chapel Hill Featured Equally With Those of the University.

Local Subscriptions $2.00

SUBSCRIBE NOW

The Daily Tar Heel

GRID-GRAPH
3:30 P. M.
MEMORIAL HALL

The Daily Tar Heel

GRID-GRAPH
3:30 P. M.
MEMORIAL HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1929 | NUMBER 19

Duncan Dancers Will Appear Here October 16 On Student 1929 Entertainment Program

First Bill of Season Will Bring Famous Group to Chapel Hill; Now on Second Tour of America.

Bag and baggage, with the most important articles of all, their abbreviated dancing skirts and blouses, the Duncan Dancers, including Irma and the "Little Tamara," and their ten terpsichorean sisters, will soon make their first appearance in Chapel Hill. They will be presented by the Entertainment Committee October 16.

Last year in a theatrical season which had many failures, The Duncan Dancers were one of the brightest attractions, and New York was loath to let them go. They appeared on the stage of the Manhattan Opera House and at Wallack's Theatre, New York City, enjoying one of the marked successes of the year. They are headed by Irma Duncan, one of Isadora Duncan's adopted daughters, an ideal and perfect leader. With Irma are the elfin "Little Tamara," charming and graceful Alexandra, Maria, Tanya, Manya, Vala, Sonia, Vera, Lola, Lily and Maya.

Their program is frequently changed and is always interesting. They have a background of classical music by Chopin, Schubert, Schumann and Tschaikowsky. To these are added a feature New York has been most enthusiastic about; a series of modern Russian dances which have proven a terpsichorean revelation and created a furore.

While in Boston they were bestowed one of the most unusual honors ever accorded a dance group in this country. For the first time in its history, the renowned Boston Symphony Orchestra engaged dancers as soloists, selecting the Isadora Duncan Dancers to open the famous "Pop" season for a full week's engagement from May 6th to 11th.

The success scored by these young and beautiful Russian dancers in Boston was so instantaneous and marked that the management immediately sought them for a second week's engagement in June. Owing to previous European bookings for the same date, the offer had to be declined.

New York papers were loud in their praise of the Duncan Dancers. Clippings from New York papers are as follows:

New York Times—"The eleven Russian children are disarmingly beautiful and spirited. Their youth and simplicity escape all the pitfalls of anemia and preciousness which their elders have not always succeeded in avoiding, and their complete sincerity contains no hint of solemnity. Even the little group of Schubert's waltzes, in themselves inconsequential except for the fact that they were created by Isadora, are lifted beyond banality by the freshness of these young artist's performance."

New York Evening Post—"The revolutionary group, in which the performers sang as they danced, reached a high-dramatic level of intense emotion and strong rhythm which was at times thrilling. The favorite of the afternoon was the smallest of the 'protogees,' Manya, a girl of about thirteen. Her light elfin grace and joyful

(Continued on page four)

Grid Graph 3:30

The grid-graph report of the Carolina - Georgia Tech game will be released in Memorial hall this afternoon beginning at 3:30.

MANY CHAPEL HILL DELEGATES GO TO WOMEN'S MEETING

Executive Board of Association Of University Women Meets Tomorrow.

The executive board of the North Carolina division of the American Association of University Women will meet in High Point Saturday, October 12. Details will be discussed for the meeting with the newly appointed acting director of the National Association, Dr. Katherine McHale, in Durham November 10, and for the annual state meeting to be held later in the season in Charlotte. Policies are to be formulated for making contacts with the newly admitted members residing in North Carolina and for the North Carolina contribution to the million-dollar fellowship fund. Those attending will be Mrs. E. R. Mosher, president, Chapel Hill; Mrs. F. O. Clarkson, vice-president, Charlotte; Miss Sara Rowe, secretary, Durham; Mrs. Thomas Powell, treasurer, High Point; Mrs. Mary Taft Smith, chairman of international relations, Winston-Salem; Miss Lillian Killingsworth, chairman of the fellowship fund, Greensboro; Dr. Katharine Jocher, chairman of publicity, Chapel Hill, and Mrs. Andrew Adair, president of the Charlotte branch.

Mrs. Mosher, the incoming president of the board (whose entire membership is practically new) has been associated with the local chapter of the association since coming to Chapel Hill six years ago. Although she has never held an official position in the Chapel Hill organization, she has served on numerous committees. Mrs. Mosher states that the primary purpose of the High Point meeting will be to arrange for the fund contribution and to strengthen the infant North Carolina division which has been established only two years.

Dr. Katharine Jocher, whose work as chairman of the publicity committee will mean much towards the success of the state association, has also been active in the Chapel Hill chapter since her college graduation in 1922. Besides taking a prominent part in all of its activities, she was for some time treasurer of the chapter.

Koch Lectures Tonight

Professor Frederick Koch will give an illustrated lecture on "Adventures in Playmaking" this evening at 7:30 in the theatre. A variety of stereoptican slides will show phases of Professor Koch's work. These slides are of the original productions of the Dakota Playmakers and the development of the Carolina Playmakers.

It has been announced that there will be no chapel this morning.

Duncan Dancers Here Next Week

BRADSHAW TALKS TO FROSH CLASS

Dean of Students Warns Frosh To Form Good Habits.

In chapel Thursday Dean F. F. Bradshaw delivered a word of friendly warning to the freshmen on the habits they were forming at the beginning of their college careers.

Dean Bradshaw stated that the class of 1933 seemed to be well above par in compariton with other classes in such qualities as preparation, ability and determination. However this applied only to the class as a whole and not to every individual, and his purpose, he said, was to speak to the individual.

Then the dean of students illustrated his remarks with a description of a frog with its brain removed. A frog in this condition continues to live, but it has no initiative and will move only when prodded and swallow only when something is placed in its mouth. Mr. Bradshaw pointed out that such an existence was useless and ineffective.

Dean Bradshaw undertook to show by this illustration the importance of thought and initiative in life, and cautioned each freshman against a mode of life lacking in thoughtfulness. He stated that, though psychologists agreed that man had little control over what sort of life he should lead, he exercised the most influence over his life during a change of environment, such as entering college. He then urged each freshman to seize this moment of plasticity in his life to form the right kind of motivating habits. Now is the time to form the habit of living thoughtfully. "Don't be stampeded by anybody's idea. Decide for yourself," he said. "There is no formula in life," he continued, "but there is a favored method and that is living the thoughtful life."

"The complaint is sometimes made that men with college educations, though they have a sufficient knowledge of facts, too often are lacking in powers of discrimination and initiation."

ENGINEERING SOCIETIES TO MEET NEXT THURSDAY

The University student branches of both the A.S.C.E. and the A.I.E.E. will hold meetings next Thursday evening in Phillips hall.

The program for the William Cain student branch of the A. S. C. E. will consist of a talk by Dean G. M. Braune, of the school of engineering, and two reels of moving pictures showing the construction of a hydro-electric development in the Great Smoky mountains.

The program for the meeting of the branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, of which J. J. Alexander is president, has not been announced.

N. C. RADIO HOUR BEGINS PROGRAM

R. M. Grumman Begins Year's Work With Lecture; Broadcast From Station WPTF

On Wednesday night the University of North Carolina resumed its weekly broadcast from station WPTF of Raleigh, when R. M. Grumman, director of the extension division, opened the fall series with a lecture on "Opportunities for Adult Education in North Carolina." Mr. Grumman emphasized the conception of education as a continued process throughout life. He took occasion to elaborate upon the two leading mediums in the individualistic approach to adult education, home study and reading courses. He mentioned the efforts being made in North Carolina to educate the thousands of citizens who neither read nor write.

The activity of several other state departments in promoting adult educational projects were reviewed. Other state organizations now conducting educational campaigns were mentioned.

The University radio hour, which is sponsored by the extension division, concluded with a sports chat dealing with football developments of the past week.

Flying Is Optional In Aviation Course

Flying is optional in the course in aeronautical engineering being given at the University of North Carolina this fall for the first time.

Since the new course was announced, Professor E. G. Hoefer, head of the department of mechanical engineering, who is in charge of the course, has received a number of inquiries from anxious parents who wanted to know whether their sons would have to fly if they should take the course.

"The object of the course is not to teach flying," Professor Hoefer stated today, "but if a student wishes to learn flying he is free to do so by attending an approved flying school, provided he has the approval of his parent or guardian. Such contact with the industry would benefit him in his technical studies."

There have sprung up many flying schools teaching the actual operation of aircraft, including the care of mechanical equipment, and many men are trained for ground work in connection with aircraft maintenance. Such men require no knowledge of engineering, most of them being merely flyers or aircraft operators, or mechanics. They may be likened to automobile drivers and auto mechanics. However, for advanced technical work, such as design, a thorough course in engineering is absolutely necessary.

It is the purpose of the Uni-

(Continued on page four)

Alumni Loyalty Fund Appeal Is Not An Emergency Measure

Chairman Weil Points Out Danger of Misinterpreting Purpose of Fund; No Conflict With State Appropriations.

Goldsboro, Oct. 10.—"The appeal for private gifts that the Alumni Loyalty Fund has made recently to alumni and friends of the University is not to be regarded as an emergency measure," Leslie Weil, chairman of the Alumni Loyalty Fund Council, declared in a statement issued here today.

Pointing out the danger of the appeal being misinterpreted, he explained that "the fact that the last legislature did not increase the institution's maintenance appropriation as requested plus the fact that there has since been flaws and substantial reduction from the appropriation made have brought on the most stringent condition in the institution's finance in recent years.

"These conditions, followed very soon by the public information that the Alumni Loyalty Fund is this fall inviting every living alumnus to put the University in his budget for an annual gift, have led some to interpret this move of the Council as one arising out of the stringency in University finances recently brought about.

"The fact is that the Loyalty Fund Council would have requested gifts from all alumni this fall even if there had been substantial increases in the legislature's appropriations. Since 1922 the council of the fund has been on the lookout for an executive officer to develop the aspect of University finances represented by private giving.

"Such a man became available this year in Daniel L. Grant, former alumni secretary, and editor of the Alumni Review, and recently away from Chapel Hill for a special investigation in the field of alumni relations.

"To develop private giving in a systematic manner is one of the purposes which the alumni have had constantly in mind since 1922, when Mr. Grant first became alumni secretary and founded the central alumni office.

"Mr. Grant has been a student of alumni affairs, and influential in developing the whole field of alumni relations throughout the country. While alumni secretary he was also president of the National Association of Alumni Secretaries, and in that position combined that association with two other coordinate bodies into the American Alumni Council.

"For ten months now Mr.

(Continued on page four)

No Holiday Today

The President's office announces that there will be no holiday today or Saturday as rumored.

Y.M.C.A. Announces Barnett Lectures

Mr. Eugene E. Barnett, who is being brought here by the Y. M. C. A. to speak on "The Chinese Situation Today—Politically, Religiously and Educationally," will have the following program which has been figured out by the Y office.

Sunday, Oct. 13

9:45 a. m. Visits Dr. Bernard's Bible class.

11:00 a. m. Speaks in Methodist church.

4:30-6:00 p. m. A tea and a reception for Mr. Barnett at the home of Mr. Comer, especially for all of the faculty who were here when Mr. Barnett was Y secretary.

8:00 p. m. Speaks in Methodist church followed by a forum.

Monday, Oct. 14

10:30 a. m. Speaks in chapel.

2:30-4:30 p. m. Personal or group interviews.

7:15 p. m. Speaks to a joint meeting of the three Y cabinets.

Mr. Barnett will go from here to Duke university to make a chapel address Tuesday morning.

Local Mail Schedule

Postmaster Herndon requests that students note the following schedule of out-going and incoming mails. Observance of the schedule will facilitate the handling of the large number of letters leaving Chapel Hill daily.

Windows open from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. On holidays from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. and from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m.

Out-going mails close at 7 a. m., 1 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. Incoming mails arrive at 7 a. m., 11:45 a. m., 1:30 p. m. and 5 p. m.

On Sundays: out-going mail closes at 10:30 a. m.; in-coming mail arrives at 11:25 a. m. No window or carrier service on Sunday.

Morning delivery will be made on holidays.

Air-mail dispatched at 5:30 p. m. connects with north and south routes at Greensboro.

COLLEGE BANDS FURNISH MUSIC FOR HOMECOMING

State college and Wake Forest college bands will play for the State Home-Coming celebration, and it is expected that the bands from the State University and Duke will also join in furnishing music for the occasion, it was announced following a meeting of the Raleigh chamber of commerce home-coming program committee Wednesday morning.

Dicie Howell, lyric soprano, former Tarboro girl, will be the big attraction at the chamber of commerce dinner for distinguished guests on Monday night and at the celebration at the state Capitol on Tuesday night. Reservations for the dinner must be made by Saturday noon.

Home-coming North Carolinians are asked to register on arrival in Raleigh with the chamber of commerce in order that a list may be prepared of the North Carolinians returning to the state for the event.

Comer Goes to Raleigh

Mr. H. F. Comer, general secretary of the Y, motored to Raleigh Wednesday to request the assistance and cooperation of General Albert Cox in trying to get Colonel P. J. Hurley, assistant secretary of war, to speak here November 13.

Colonel Hurley, if he accepts, will speak here on the subject of "Our National Defense Policy." Col. Hurley has been closely connected with President Hoover during the late discussions of arms limitation, and international peace, and is therefore very well informed on the subject of national defense.

Invitations are, at present, being sent to Colonel Hurley from the Y office, from President Chase's office, and from General Cox, personally.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Friday, October 11, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

Over two billion dollars was lost on the stock market in a single day recently. And they call it playing the market!

Fannie Hurst has issued a call for women to rebel against the long skirt edict. We suggest that she call upon the masculine element if she wants a rebellion as is a rebellion.

This may be the day of youth, but not if you consider the past Tuesday as example. The ancient Howard Ehmke demonstrated to the youthful Cubs that he knows any number of ways of serving them—all of them downright disagreeable.

The Real Significance of the MacDonald-Hoover Conference

Wednesday President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald issued a joint announcement in which it was stated that their conversations had been based on the assumption that war between Great Britain and the United States was "banished," and that consequently a satisfactory solution of the "old historical problems" between the two nations had become possible. This announcement is indicative of the highly amicable relations existing between the British and American nations at present.

Probably England and the United States are in more perfect accord on all questions now than has been the case since the American colonists broke away from the mother country more than a century and a half ago. Since the World War Anglo-American relations have continually become more cordial, and the negotiations between Premier MacDonald and President Hoover mark the culmination of a decade of increasing accord. Pessimists and anti-British agitators may point out that Great Britain's power has been declining for several years; they may assert that England hopes to attach her fading star of world empire to the trail of the comet-like rise of the United States into world power. Such assertions are at best nothing more than idle speculation. There is every indication that a permanent and lasting amity has been formed between Great Britain and the United States, and that Premier MacDonald's visit to this country is a genuine expression of friendship between the two great English-speaking nations.

International agreements are likely to prove mere "scraps of paper," of course. The most important aspect of the negotiations between Premier MacDonald and President Hoover does not lie in the agreements and treaties that the two executives may perfect, but in the deep friendship between the two nations expressed in these negotiations.

Lux et Libertas

(Editor's Note: This article was written as an English theme by a freshman. We are publishing it in the editorial columns of the Tar Heel because of the excellent ideas it expresses.)

It has long been a custom in this world of ours for a government, state, or university to adopt a motto expressing its prime objective. Modern business and political methods, however, have destroyed any significance which might previously have been attached to these mottoes; and so we see the seals of many institutions of note bearing mottoes which are now meaningless and worthless.

"Lux et Libertas," the Latin words meaning light and liberty, which the University of North Carolina has adopted for its motto, signifies a high-minded purpose, the diffusion of light and liberty through the processes of education. Every university, whatever its rating may be, has for its ultimate purpose the spreading of light through education. Not all, however, preach the doctrine of liberty and tolerance. In setting for itself such a high-minded purpose the University, which represents the state, has undertaken a difficult task. But what have been the University's accomplishments in the past towards extending the realm of light and liberty? Two movements stand out in my mind as proof that the University's influence in this direction has been negligible.

A few years after the end of the World War there began throughout the United States a rebirth of the Reconstruction Ku Klux Klan with a new aim and ambition—the expulsion from the land of all Catholics, Jews, Negroes, and aliens. Un-American as its purposes were, thousands and hundreds of thousands of Amrican men flocked to the Klan's banners, determined to rid their country of its "enemies" and at the same time preserve the honor of the Cross. North Carolina's citizenry, including many University alumni, as well as common peons, also gathered round the Klan's banners and the burning cross in large numbers. Whatever their basic reasons for joining an organization with such evil purposes were, their membership stamped them as uncivilized and un-Americanized. One can hardly suggest that "light and liberty" ever entered their consciousness.

Turning to more recent happenings, which even now are attracting nation-wide attention, we find the same disregard for liberty and a considerable lack of sane intelligence. I refer to incidents occurring in the nearby city of Gastonia. There a spirit of intolerance and ignorance has been demonstrated that will stain the good name of this state for a long time. The mob-like spirit which native North Carolinians have so well exhibited in flogging and terrifying strikers and Communists, as well as noted jurists, speaks loudly in defense of my assertion that the state university and other state colleges have done little to disseminate the ideas of light and liberty among the citizens of this state.

As long as such unlawful outbreaks continue and as long as mob spirit and un-American influences grip both intelligent and ignorant classes, the motto in the seal of this university will remain only a motto and no reality. I know of only one solution to quell the mob spirit and that is to inculcate in the minds of all students and graduates of this university the necessity for tolerance and recognition of the rights of their fellow-men. Not only tolerant spirits, but spirits that will enter into agreement with all other forces in the state to solve the various problems that arise from time to time in a fair and decent manner. When the University will have succeeded in producing such minds in its students, then, and only then, will it be able to proclaim fearlessly to the world that here 'lux et libertas" prevail in fact and not in word. —N. V., "33.

Readers' Opinions

TO KO KO NANKI POO

"Valga me Dios! que
Metadores, mentidores
Carracos y perros,
Voy a Metarles,
Con solos mis manos,
Toditas sin falta."
Thus swore the Hidalgo
Don Kose Calderon.

* * * * *

Dire is thy vengeance,
Don Jose Calderon
For the slight thing we did,
Killing thy grandfather.
What boots it if we killed
Only one greaser,
Don Jose Calderon?
This is your deep revenge:
You have greased all of us,
Greased a whole nation
With your Tamales
Don Jose Calderon.
Santos Esperiton,
Vincente Camillo,
Quitana de Rios,
De Rosa y Ribera.

—O. Henry

What? and are we thus to be set at naught by the nameless wielder of the retributory pen of the yo-yo? Nom de sacre mille petite cochons!

A Philistine? Brush up, brother, brush up. Imbibe a little at the Pierian Spring for a change, and introduce an historical fact into your inane verbage. Did the Philistine of old smite, or was it he who was smitten, with the proverbial asinine implement? I grant you that the figure was well applied. The aforesaid were forsooth a peculiarly appropriate weapon to wield in your midst! The homeopathic principle would apply perfectly.

Waldo Frank's metaphysical conception that when "the elements of life in the machine fuse—together with his own (the worker's) into a unitary act—his spirit in participation will be able to go out through the machine, so that it may once again, in his joy, in his beauty, in his human pride, express him," is a beautiful idea of the relation of mind and matter. But God forbid that my soul manifest itself thru the yo-yo! But again it does not follow that the souls of the manipulators of the yo-yo are necessarily expressed thru this medium. Perhaps the yo-yo itself is in a state of metaphysics—it may be that the soul of an Aristides, a Plato, a Napoleon, a Lincoln, or even one of our own esteemed grandsires, which is disclosed to us thru the torque of the yo-yo.

Permit me, O Ko Ko Nanki Poo, to felicitate you on your keen perception and character analysis of me, your profound understanding in your estimation of my personal traits and qualities—"a Man with a Mission, out for the Finer Things of Life." Never have I been more flattered since my widowed mother-in-law offered to become my bride immediately following her daughter's preliminary rejection of my suit. But the stigmatization of a following clause is painfully unjust—"if he were tractable." Ah! if the propounder of that debasing statement could but see into my innerself, he would perceive the injustice of it. Never was mortal so tractable, so tolerable as I. Can anyone claim, without fear of contradiction, that I have ever persecuted a yo-yoist, that I have ever illuminated the landscape with bonfires of the innocent yo-yo? (They would make a cheerful blaze!)

The moving finger writes, and having writ
Moves on; nor all your piety and wit
Can lure it back to cancel half a line,
Nor all your tears wash out a word of it.

—Omar Khayyam
B. B. R.

(P. S. Mr. Editor: For God's sake, if you don't keep this damned yo-yo tripe, pro con and nonpartisan, out of the Daily Tar Heel, it's a doomed publication.)

Intercollegiate

A well educated Vienna man has offered to sell the film rights to his suicide, which he is planning for the near future. He plans to blow himself up with a home-made infernal machine. —Reflector.

We are well acquainted with the Viennese light comedy. Are we now to look forward to the introduction of light tragedy?

Question: Is Jurgen anything more than a smutty story in high-brow style? What is the basic philosophy of the work? What are Cabel's views on women? Explain his seemingly unnecessary repetitions.

Answer: I should say that the basic philosophy of Jurgen is an exposition of the difference in the viewpoints of youth and old age. I might very well add that the anticipation exceeds the realization thereof; because that is an ever recurring Cabellian moral. From his writings, I should say that he believes in the old French truism that "Life is the woman you possess, and Art is the woman you desire." —Cadet.

The above is borrowed from "Among the Illiterati" for the illiterati. Hint: not to be taken too seriously.

Japanese women in Tokyo have started a campaign to secure equal educational rights with the men. Women in Japan now attend classes at some of the universities, but they attend only as visitors and receive no credit or degrees. They are demanding co-educational rights at the universities for men until there are sufficient women universities to take care of those who care to attend.—Virginia Tech.

Brawl versus Studies is the current question before the student body at Randolph Macon. The question was inspired by a lively fight which occurred one night when a pedigreed hound was roughly handled by a band of canine highwaymen.

Islam versus Bedlam is the question before the student body at Carolina. For verily 'tis so. . . . If not Islam by day then most assuredly Bedlam by night for all anti-Islamites. And Omar doesn't feature in the party one iota.

Attention, football enthusiasts.

Before:

It probably is about the best, if not the best team, ever produced in the South Atlantic section, is the opinion of no less an authority than H. C. (Curley) Byrd, who sat in the stand at Chapel Hill last Saturday as the Tar Heels ran up a 48 to 0 count against Wake Forest.

"And they could easily have made it a 100," Byrd said.—Diamond Back.

After:

Some things are better left to the imagination.

Virginia Tech makes answer: North Carolina University sprang a surprise on conference football fans as they crushed Maryland by a score of 43 to 0. Maryland's defense was completely wrecked as the Carolina backs tore through the line at will. This victory establishes the Tar Heels as a strong contender for the title this season.

Mildred Field: "I got insomnia."

Alice H.: "How come?"

Mildred Field: "I woke up three times during the last class period."—Lampoon.

The secret of being collegiate is contained almost entirely in the facial expression. Only the high school student or the freshman who is making a wrong start in the University looks eager. Collegiates are not eager. They are bored.—Montana Kaimin.

More delightful surprises appear to be in store for Northeastern University men this year as we learn of the release dates and interesting information concerning Professor Trentwell White's newer books.

"Three Rookies at Morton" is the first of a series of four adolescent boy's books.

(Are Professor White's books founded on local color?)

MANY STATE MUSICIANS TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Greensboro, Oct. 9.—A large number of musicians who teach and supervise in the high schools of the state will attend the conference at North Carolina college Friday and Saturday of this week, according to latest reports by letter from visitors who expect to be in Greensboro to hear T. P. Giddings, supervisor of music at Minneapolis, and Russell V. Morgan, supervisor in the Cleveland schools.

Among the reports coming in to the office of Dr. Wade R. Brown, dean of the school of music, is a representative one from Asheville, which states that the entire staff of nine high school music teachers will be present Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Giddings will give a demonstration with a group of 40 boys at the recital hall of the music building Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock and will speak of the treatment of the boy's voice at that clinic. Dr. Morgan will talk at 11:45 o'clock the same morning on the organization of a program of instrumental music in the school. Both men will hold clinics at 2 o'clock and 3:30 o'clock, respectively, in Aycock auditorium in the afternoon.

Editors at Work On Duke Journals

Durham, Oct. 10.—(Special)—Three student publications at Duke university are beginning a new year of work under the direction of a new set of editors and business managers.

The Chronicle, weekly newspaper, is the first to go to press under a new staff. Homer L. Lippard of Barium Springs is editor and H. H. Rouseau of Orangeburg, S. C., is business manager. Gerald M. Crona of Portland, Me., is editor of the Archive, the literary monthly which has for five years been regarded as a leader in its class. Its business manager is Julian V. Conally of Leaksville.

The Chanticleer staff has made a good start toward the publication of the yearbook which is to come from the press next spring. Chisman Haynes of Pine Hill and Fred W. Anders of Gastonia are the editor and business manager.

Fraternity Tries House Mother Plan

An innovation among fraternities on the campus has been made by the securing of a house mother for Pi Kappa Phi's new home on the Pittsboro Road. The fraternity's selection is Mrs. C. E. Rogers, of Spartanburg, S. C. Mrs. Rogers has had previous experience at Davidson College where she was house mother of the Pi Kappa Phi chapter in that school.

The chief duties of the house mother consist in general supervision of the housekeeping and of the dining room.

The house mother plan has proven quite successful throughout the west, and it is being tried extensively in eastern schools. It is believed that this is the first time in the history of fraternities on the campus that the plan inaugurated by Pi Kappa Phi has been tried here.

CAROLINA THEATRE

TODAY
"THREE LIVE GHOSTS"
You haven't seen anything till you've frolicked through London Town with these irresistible funsters.
Added
Comedy News

SATURDAY
"Woman Trap"

Victor, Columbia & Brunswick Records

University Book and Stationery Co.
Next To Sutton's Drug Store

ALLIGATOR
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

ALLIGATOR is one snappy outergarment—and you can slosh around in it all day and never get wet. Turns rain, wind, dust.

Models for Men and Women $7.50 to $25

THE ALLIGATOR CO. St. Louis

New! ALLIGATOR STEPPERS (Pat. App. For)
Protect trouser legs—all colors to match all coats.
$2 and $3.50 a pair Ask to see them
KEEP DRY FROM HEAD TO FOOT

NORTH CAROLINA VS. GEORGIA TECH TODAY

Tar Heels Primed For Clash In Georgia City

Squad of Thirty-five Men Took Light Workout on Grant Field Yesterday; Team in Good Shape for Contest; Wyrick Only Man Definitely Out of Game.

North Carolina's football squad of 35 men arrived in Atlanta yesterday morning and took a light workout on Grant field during the afternoon before one of the south's leading grid clashes of the 1929 season, scheduled for today.

The Tar Heels arrived in Atlanta in fine physical condition, except for a back injury to Quarterback Pete Wyrick, who will probably be out of the game for several weeks. Henry House had not completely recovered from an ankle injury sustained in a scrimmage two weeks ago but it was thought that he would be able to play should he be called. Both men made the trip, however.

Johnny Branch, Carolina's diminutive quarterback, will probably general the Tar Heels with Phil Jackson as first substitute for the post.

Sports writers throughout the south this week have praised the Tar Heels very highly and many of them predict that Carolina will conquer the almost invincible Tech Tornado. Eddie Brietz, associated press sports writer, made the following statement in an article yesterday:

"The North Carolinians are taking two sets of the sweetest backs in all Dixie to Grant field and all the Atlanta sports writers are agreed that anything is liable to happen when Coach Chuck Collins, the youthful Tar Heel mentor, hurls his collection of passing artists and ball luggers against the remnants of the team that bowled over both Notre Dame and California last season.

"Tech scouts who saw Carolina smother Maryland 43-0 last week, came back to Atlanta with notebooks of Tar Heel stuff. They told Coach Bill Alexander that unless radical steps are taken to stop the menace from the north, the Tech season is apt to end before it gets well in motion."

It is a well known fact that the Tar Heel backs are unusually good, but there is some doubt as to the strength of "The Hill" line. Up to the present they have not met a very powerful offense, but it is believed that they can hold up very well under the strain which they expect to meet today.

The Tar Heel offensive has chalked up 13 touchdowns for a total of 91 points in the two games played, while Tech has succeeded in conquering the Mississippi Aggies last Saturday, hurling a number of passes in spite of a steady rainfall throughout the clash. Thomason and Mizell will be matched against the stellar Heel backs and a number of passes and fast runs should come from both teams when such offenses oppose each other.

The Tar Heel does not predict a win for the Chapel Hill team but it does say that it is a golden opportunity for them to come through, and is expecting big things of those Tar Heels.

The coaches announced today that the starting lineups tomorrow would probably be as follows:

Carolina	Pos.	Georgia Tech
Holt	l. e.	Jones
Koenig	l. t.	Watkins
Farris (capt.)	l. g.	Westbrook
Lipscomb	c.	Rusk (capt.)
Eskew	r. g.	Brooks
Adkins	r. t.	Swartz
Fenner	r. e.	Sloan
Branch	p.	Dunlap
Ward	l. h.	Thomason
Nash	r. h.	Mizell
Spaulding	f.	Maree

Georgia-Yale Scores

The spectators at the Duke-Carolina freshman game tomorrow will hear the quarter score broadcast of the Georgia-Yale game at Athens, Ga., according to an announcement made yesterday by C. T. Woolen, graduate manager of athletics. This announcement is expected to meet with the approval of those who will be in attendance at the game and should prove an interesting feature of the afternoon's entertainment.

BARRETT TO LEAD CHEERS IN ATLANTA

Expects to Get Fine Cheering Today; Campus Moans Death of Rameses III.

Jack Barrett, recently elected cheerleader of the university, stated that he was going to Atlanta for the express purpose of wringing "gross issues" of cheers from all Carolina supporters present. Approximately five hundred students will make the trip, and a number of alumni will be present, hence much vocal inspiration is in store for the Tar Heels.

The only contrary element in cheerleader Barrett's plans is the unfortunate demise of the time honored mascot, one goat by name, Rameses III. Poor old Rameses III had spent a happy summer around Caldwell hall looking forward to the big trip, but he passed away only a few days before the event which he had so long anticipated. Barrett has sent out pleas for Rameses IV and some kind alumnus may have him on the way to Atlanta now.

Snead Is Eli Flash

Charley Snead showed his ball-carrying ability again Tuesday, scoring two touchdowns as the varsity scrimmaged against the Yale scrubs. Snead kicked both goals after touchdown.

Football Music

The student band is closely related to football in most of the big colleges. New York U took the band to its camp.

Phil Jackson

The Tar Heels, 34 strong, have led the advance on Atlanta and Georgia Tech. A great number of students left yesterday and last night by car and by special train for the Georgia city which temporarily is the center of the football world. Additional thousands will journey from all parts of North Carolina to support Coach Collins and his fast stepping team of "a hundred backs" as they make their great attempt to overthrow the 1928 national champions. All in all there should be almost as many Tar Heel supporters as there are rooters for Tech if the advance indications prove correct.

The Carolina team invades Atlanta this year as the first team in a long while which, on a basis of early season showing, is picked to down the mighty Tech grid machine. However, while sports writers in this state and in the Georgia capital have predicted that the Tar Heels should come out on top after a very closely fought game, Coach Collins and his squad were far from appearing overconfident when they entrained Wednesday night. Instead a spirit of determination to fight to the end against a team which they realized was no ordinary foe seemed to pervade the 34 men.

Since Henry House and Pete Wyrick will both be out of the game because of injuries, the line-up which will face the Georgians this afternoon will probably be composed of Fenner and Holt, ends; Adkins and Koenig, tackles; Eskew and Farris, guards; Lipscomb, center; Ward and Nash, halfbacks; Branch, quarterback, and Spaulding, fullback. In addition to these men the following made the trip: Brown, Tabb, Nelson and Parsley, ends; Gregory, Thompson and Dortch, tackles; Crew, McIver, Hudson and Fysal, guards; Alexander and Gilbreath, centers; Wyrick and Jackson, quarterbacks; Maus, Magner, Erickson, Slusser and Redfern, halfbacks, and Harden, House and McAlister, fullbacks.

With the Athletics two up on the Cubs we find them journeying to the Quaker City for a brace of games. If Connie Mack's hurling staff continues to function as in the previous contests, the trip might be only an elongated funeral march as far as the Bruins are concerned. But the chances are that the Cubs will take one of the games in Philadelphia, and Wrigley field will be the scene of the deciding game. To date the youthful fench-crasher Jimmy Foxx takes the lion's share of the series spotlight by his Ruth-like tactics of a homer a day, and it seems as though his teammates are stealing a march on the well known Hornsby, Wilson and Cuyler of "Murderers Row," at least as far as timely blows are concerned.

Among the spirit lenders at the Tech game will be the 60-piece University band which will be attired in its new uniforms. Much work has been done in preparing formations for this game and it is certain that the crowd will be well entertained between the halves. The band will also play and perform at the Yale-Georgia game, and will represent Yale in the cheering section.

Al Marsters is showing well at quarter for Dartmouth.

Jimmy Ward

Ward Tops Scorers

Last Saturday's games saw "Pete" Williams, Elon fullback, ousted from the top of the scoring heap in North Carolina. Williams added but one point to the twenty he had last week, while Ward scored three touchdowns against Maryland to add to the two he scored against Wake Forest.

Individual scoring:

	TD	EP	TP
Ward, Carolina	5	0	30
J. Waggoner, Elon	4	0	24
Williams, Elon	3	3	21
Cox, Guilford	3	1	19
Walker, Elon	3	3	21
Branch, Carolina	3	0	18
Spaulding, Carolina	2	4	16
Bunn, Guilford	2	0	12
McCall, Davidson	2	0	12
Mills, W. Forest	2	0	12
Buie, Duke	1	2	8
Magner, Carolina	1	2	8
Cheek, Guilford	1	1	7
Beaver, Duke	1	0	6
King, Davidson	1	0	6
Nash, Carolina	1	0	6
Erickson, Carolina	1	0	6
Slusser, Carolina	1	0	6
Peeler, Duke	1	0	6
Godfrey, Duke	1	0	6
Black, Catawba	1	0	6
Perdue, H. Point	1	0	6
Bryan, A. C. C.	1	0	6
Parrish, Davidson	1	0	6
Brousard, Davidson	1	0	6
Fraley, Davidson	1	0	6
Doffemeyer, Elon	1	0	6
Covington, W. F.	1	0	6
Hipps, W. Forest	1	0	6
Dellinger, State	1	0	6
Willis, W. Forest	1	0	6
West, Guilford	1	0	6
Newsome, W. Forest	1	0	6
Brock, Davidson	0	5	5
Benton, W. Forest	0	3	3
House, Carolina	0	1	1
Weigel, Catawba	0	1	1

Team Scoring

	TD	EP	TP
Carolina	14	7	91
Elon	11	6	72
Guilford	7	2	44
Davidson	6	5	41
Wake Forest	6	3	39
Duke	4	2	26
Catawba	1	1	7
State	1	0	6
High Point	1	0	6

Carolina-Duke Freshman Clash Saturday Only Game In State

Tar Babies Hope to Keep Up With 1928 Frosh Team; Duke Imps Seek Revenge.

With North Carolina, Davidson, and State all playing out of the state this coming Saturday, and Duke and Wake Forest both carded to lie idle, the North Carolina-Duke freshman game to be played in Kenan stadium here Saturday afternoon is assuming varsity proportions as far as sporting interest goes.

The game was originally carded for October 18, but was moved up one week to keep from being as near the North Carolina-Georgia game on October 19. It will be called at 3 o'clock.

Johnny Branch and his Tar Baby cohorts licked the Blue Imps last season, 6-0, later winning undisputed claim to the South Atlantic championship.

With both teams inheriting the traditional Carolina-Duke rivalry, and with both camps boasting a fine outlay of former high and prep school stars, Saturday's battle promises a revenge affair and a mighty nice football exhibition for the fans who can't follow their varsity favorites out-of-state.

The Tar Babies showed great potential strength against Roanoke college's first year team last Saturday despite a close 13-7 score. Their offensive was rough, due to the fact that their offensive drills had been mighty few at that time, but the Tar Baby outfit showed a real big line and a scrappy outfit that packed a big punch.

The Duke freshmen are reported to have one of the best outlays of prep and high school stars in this section. The Tar Babies have a precedent to live up to, in the form of a South Atlantic championship, and with the Blue Imps one of the principal barriers, they will probably be "shooting the works" Saturday even as the Tar Heels are against Tech today.

Filling Big Job

There was some doubt at the beginning of the season as to Ned Lipscomb's ability to fill the position left vacant last year by Harry Schwartz. There is none now. The big Greensboro boy is holding down the pivot post in admirable style.

In School . . . Parker Pressureless Touch

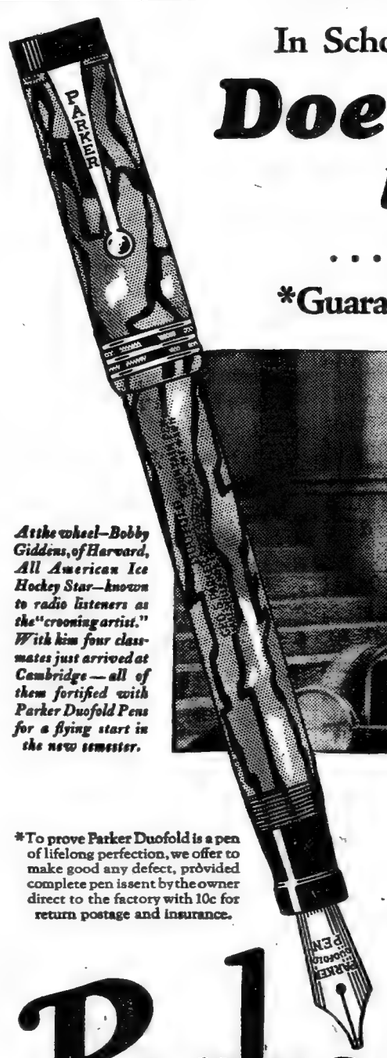
Does Everything



but Your Thinking

. . . and Clears the Track for That

Guaranteed Forever Against All Defects

At the wheel—Bobby Giddens, of Harvard, All American Ice Hockey Star—known to radio listeners as the "crooning artist." With him four classmates just arrived at Cambridge—all of them fortified with Parker Duofold Pens for a flying start in the new semester.

*To prove Parker Duofold is a pen of lifelong perfection, we offer to make good any defect, provided complete pen is sent by the owner direct to the factory with 10c for return postage and insurance.

Parker Duofold

$5-$7-$10

Parker Pressureless Touch—presented in Duofold Pens—asks no one to strain his muscles and exert his mind to do its job of writing. The ink connects with your paper a split-second sooner than the point, and its flow keeps pace with the speed of your hand by contact alone—not by pressure!

Pressureless Touch is Geo. S. Parker's 47th Improvement, combining capillary attraction with gravity feed.

A census of pens in 13 technical schools disclosed that Parker leads in popularity 2 to 1. It was voted the favorite by students in 55 colleges. And a nation-wide poll conducted by the Library Bureau proved Parker the preference by 25% over the second pen and 48% above the third.

Non-Breakable Barrels—28% lighter than rubber, holding 24% more ink than average, size for size.

Step up to any pen counter and select your color and point. Look for the imprint, "Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD."

Pencils to match, $3 to $5.

THE PARKER PEN COMPANY, Janesville, Wisconsin. Offices and Subsidiaries: New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Buffalo, Dallas, San Francisco

BULLDOGS MEET TARS OCTOBER 19

Chapel Hill Prepares for Invasion of Georgians; Homecoming Game'

The North Carolina-Georgia Tech and Georgia-Yale games are holding the Dixie spotlight this week-end, and next week-end two of these same teams will mix it up in another of the south's leading grid tilts.

The Georgia Bulldogs will invade Kenan stadium here in Chapel Hill to renew a 34-year grid rivalry with the Tar Heels.

Tickets for the football classic are moving at a rapid clip. Extra festivities, including dedication of the University's new $625,000 library, opening of the University's Southern Conference on Education, and a Homecoming Day program, promise to draw a tremendous throng.

The game has an interesting angle in that North Carolina and Georgia have perhaps their hardest games amassed in these two weeks.

North Carolina is set to strain a point to beat Tech and Georgia feels likewise about Yale this week-end; yet both teams have to look to saving some strength for next Saturday.

And from early season showings Tech and Yale are going to furnish great tests for the Tar Heels and Bulldogs. Tech whipped Mississippi A. & M. last Saturday, 27-13, showing much the same drive as the old national champions. Yale whipped Vermont by an 89-0 count.

TWO VIRGINIA MEN WIN IN NET PLAY

University, Va., Oct. 9.—(Special).—Two Cavalier tennis stars, who are playing in the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate tennis tournament now being held at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., have entered the quarter finals of the competition after hard fought battles.

C. Alphonso Smith, Virginia net captain, turned in a straight set victory over F. X. Brewka of Washington and Lee. The Orange and Blue performer took the final setto. The Mink netman tightened up and held Smith to a 7-5 battle.

Fred Johns, an outstanding Cavalier player during the past two years, was forced into an extra set before downing James Allen of Davis and Elkins college. The scores of the match were: 6-4, 2-6, 7-5. This proved to be one of the most interesting net battles of the entire tournament thus far and gave promise of Johns' finishing near the top of the ladder in the final accounting.

Many Students In Wake Forest Band

Wake Forest, Oct. 10 (Special)—The personnel of the Wake Forest college band this year was announced today by W. C. Troxell, director, who has recently come to this institution as instructor in music.

Thirty men comprise the musical unit for this session, and the entire organization will soon be equipped with regular uniforms consisting of a blazer of college colors, black trousers, and sash of old gold. W. L. Warfford is student director.

DUKE FRESHMEN COME FROM MANY STATES

Durham, Oct. 10 (Special)—Twenty-one states and three foreign countries are represented in the new freshman class of Duke university. North Carolina leads with Pennsylvania, Virginia, New Jersey and South Carolina also furnishing a good share of the new men. Freshman co-eds come from ten states, according to the tabulations.

Gardner To Attend Game In Atlanta

Raleigh, Oct. 10 (Special) Governor Gardner and President Harry W. Chase of the University of North Carolina will attend the Tar Heel-Tech game in Atlanta today and will be principal speakers tonight in a radio hook-up program for University of North Carolina alumni.

Carolina alumni will hold a big banquet in Atlanta Friday night, and the program will be broadcast throughout the South Atlantic states, in which section about 85 per cent of the alumni reside.

There will be a hook-up of stations WSB of Atlanta, WBT of Charlotte and WPTF of Raleigh. The time will be 6:45 to 7:30 o'clock, Eastern Standard.

Judge J. Shepard Bryan, University alumnus and a prominent Atlanta attorney, will preside at the banquet.

Another feature will be the story of the Carolina-Tech game by Bill Munday, famous radio announcer.

Six Veterans Will Face Tornado Today

Six veteran seniors who have seen the Golden Tornado howl and crash with all its fury for two years running will be in the Tar Heel line that will face Georgia Tech in Atlanta Friday.

They will fill every post but center—Holt and Fenner at the flanks; Koenig and Adkins at the tackles; and Captain Farris and Eskew at guards. The only non-veteran will be Lipscomb at center, and Lipscomb was Harry and Lipscomb was Harry Schwartz's understudy last year when the stellar Tar Heel captain gave Peter Pund such a scrap.

Farris was a wide pick for all-southern last year. All six were widely picked for all-state honors. On their veteran shoulders will undoubtedly lie the answer to the dopesters' contention that the Tar Heels have the best chance of upsetting Tech and winning conference honors that a Tar Heel eleven has had since 1922.

Tech has the same Thomason and Mizell and Dunlap to give another great offense. North Carolina has a galaxy of at least 12 fine backs who have run up 13 touchdowns in just two games. Fans say the Tar Heel backs can't be stopped. If the Tar Heel line only holds——.

The six veterans are all heavy and powerful. The ends weigh 180 apiece. Fenton Adkins with his 239 pounds is a power at right tackle. Bill Koenig is as powerful and faster with his 190 pounds at the other tackle. Captain Farris, left guard, weighs only 185 but is known as one of the hardest charging guards in the south. Bud Eskew, 180-pounder, is a close second in power at right guard.

The whole line averages 6 feet 1 in height, lacking a fraction of an inch, and 191 pounds in weight. The question is can this 1337 pounds of Tar Heel brawn and power hold Tech's mighty offensive drive?

Pledged

Sigma Epsilon Fraternity announces the pledging of Mr. Dowd Whitley, of Monroe.

Air Battle Forecast

Both Fordham and N. Y. U. spent much of their practices today brushing up on forward pass plays. Statements from rival camps indicate an aerial battle between the two Saturday.

PRESBYTERIAN TEA

The students of the University are invited to a tea in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church tonight at 8 o'clock.

VIRGINIA BOXERS FACE STIFF CARD

University, Va., Oct. 9.—(Special). — Although Coach John LaRowe has issued repeated calls for additional candidates both for the varsity and first year boxing teams of the University of Virginia, a scarcity of material has been very evident. Coach LaRowe is especially anxious that all veterans report for this preliminary practice since the extremely hard schedule for the year necessitates a well conditioned squad. Regular workouts are being held in the gymnasium at 4 p. m. every afternoon, and all men interested in the sport, whether with experience or not, are asked to report immediately.

Prospects for a star first year team this year are exceedingly bright with many candidates already getting down to hard work. Among the foremost of these are Goldstein, amateur champion of Washington; Haggard, McEachern, and Poss, former stars at Fishburne Military academy, and Payne of Augusta Military academy who was never defeated in prep school circles. The latter four however are at present working out with the first year football team.

Following is the schedule of the varsity boxing team for the coming season:

Jan. 18.—Virginia vs. V. P. I. at Blacksburg.

Jan. 25—Virginia vs. V. M. I., home.

Feb. 3.—Virginia vs. Florida, home.

Feb. 8.—Virginia vs. North Carolina, home.

Feb. 15.—Virginia vs. Duke at Durham.

Feb. 22.—Virginia vs. Pennsylvania, home.

The site of the Conference championships has not yet been decided, but will probably be settled at the next meeting of the executive council.

Wake Forest Professor Writes Pharmacy Book

Wake Forest, Oct. 10 (Special)—"Pharmacology Notes," based on a series of lectures by Dr. T. D. Kitchen, dean of the school of medicine at Wake Forest College is the title of a book soon to be published by Arthur B. Peacock, Raleigh, and Victor T. Sullivan, Wilmington, of the 1929 medical class.

It is bound in red cloth, lettered in gold, is printed very legibly with voluminous notes which, when coupled with the extraordinary large appendix, will make it an excellent reference book.

Authenticity is insured through the reputation of Dr. Kitchen as an authority on pharmacology, and through his position as president of the North Carolina Medical Association.

Mr. Sullivan was awarded his Bachelor of Science degree in 1927, served his interneship at the college hospital and was followed in these capacities by Mr. Peacock, co-author of the book.

Outgrow Fields

New York high schools are this year staging their big games in the Polo Grounds, Yankee stadium and Ebbetts field.

Captain Jack Martin of the Penn State team has a protege on his squad this year. Paul Moss, the recruit, is from Farrell, Pa., and learned his first football from his older townsman.

Gene McEver, great back at Tennessee, is also a star in baseball.

Government railways of Japan now own 4,000 locomotives.

Slavery was abolished in Cuba in 1880.

Great Demand For Georgia Game Tickets

Tickets for North Carolina's big homecoming day game with Georgia, carded for Kenan stadium here October 19, are going at a rapid clip, and the early seat sales give every indication of a record crowd for the Tar Heel-Bulldog clash, according to information from the University athletic association.

Georgia's "sophomore team" showed unexpected strength in a 27-0 win over Furman last Saturday. The Tar Heel backs have been running wild all season, and the game promises to be one of the south's real classics.

Other affairs in the offing give promise of adding to the size and colorfulness of the throng expected for the game.

It will be homecoming week for North Carolina and homecoming day for University of North Carolina alumni. As added features, the University will dedicate its $625,000 library on Saturday morning and open its annual southern conference on education, which should draw many noted educators.

The big Blue and White team will play six more games after the Georgia battle. Three of these will be home games—V. P. I. October 26, N. C. State November 2, and Virginia Thanksgiving day.

College Boys Are Not Spendthrifts

Berkeley, Calif.—The popular conception that college students are youths with their own cars and lots of spending money does not "hitch" with the figures given out here by the alumni bureau of occupations of the University of California, which reports that last year students at the university earned a total of more than one million dollars while taking their regular courses.

The bureau this year is seeking to increase the earning power of the students to two million dollars. Five thousand students at the school are said to be either totally or partially self-supporting.

Duncan Dancers At N. C. C. W.

Greensboro, Oct. 9.—The Duncan Russian dancers, headed by Irma Duncan and accompanied by Russian musicians, are the next offering of the lecture course at North Carolina college, this city, to the 2,000 or more patrons attending the programs of the course.

Miss Duncan's group, composed of 12 dancers, is scheduled to appear at Aycock auditorium Friday evening, October 18, at 8:30 o'clock. The dancers are said to be the first ever invited to appear as soloists with the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The latest count of students at North Carolina college gives the present total enrollment at the institution, exclusive of 400 pupils at Curry training school, as 1839, according to Miss Taylor Moore, registrar.

Flying Is Optional In Aviation Course

(Continued from page one)

versity to emphasize intensely this engineering phase and to train for the directive and designing side of the aeronautic industry. This requires a thorough study of rigorous mathematics, mechanics, and thermodynamics before aerodynamic studies can be begun.

In the University course, the junior year is on the cooperative basis, so that the student spends half his time in school and half time on some job connected with the aeronautic industry. It is possible in this plan that the student may obtain flying and ground school instruction.

FROSH HAVE THREE MORE GAMES AFTER BLUE IMP CONTEST

Will Play Maryland, Virginia, and N. C. State Yearling Teams.

With the Roanoke game behind, there remain only four more scheduled games for the freshman gridders. The fracas with the Duke yearlings tomorrow afternoon is expected to be one of the most bitterly contested games of the year, and should prove the mettle of the Tar Babies.

For their next game the freshmen will journey to College Park, Md., where they will meet the University of Maryland freshmen Friday, November 16. The University of Virginia yearlings will be met at Charlottesville Friday, November 23. The last game of the season will see the State college freshmen pitted against the local gridders with Raleigh the scene of battle. This game will be played on Friday, November 30.

Duncan Dancers Will Appear Here Oct. 16

(Continued from page one)

abandon brought out a murmur of approval."

New York Herald-Tribune—"The gospel of the Duncans is interpretive dancing carried to the point where it is essentially recreative. In a large degree, the present delegation attains to these ideals. Like their famous mistress, many of these girls are heavily built and opulently developed, without the lithe natural grace of person and trimness of limb to which the American eye is accustomed on the dance platform. But they had in their artistic make-up more priceless gifts; a splendid vitality of understanding and a complete grasp of symbolic thought translation, a joyous freedom and abandonment to rhythm and movement, a thorough discipline of mind and muscle.

The Isadora Duncan Dancers will be presented here by the Entertainment Committee, October 16.

Alumni Loyalty Fund Appeal Is Not An Emergency Measure

(Continued from page one)

Grant has been in the full employ of the council and developing plans for private giving to the University, not as an emergency measure but as an integral part of the University finances, running parallel with state appropriations, student fees, and gifts from the educational foundations."

LEAD IN "3 LIVE GHOSTS" A BROADWAY STAR AT 23

A Broadway stage star at 23! This is the unusual achievement of Robert Montgomery, handsome New York actor, who plays one of the principal roles in "Three Live Ghosts," United Artists' all-talking comedy-drama, featuring an all-star cast, which comes to the Carolina theatre today.

Leaving school at 15, young Montgomery, who recently celebrated his 23rd birthday, decided upon a career as a short story writer. He felt that to write successfully, he must first learn something of life, and of people.

Fired with ambition, he hurried to New York, where he launched upon his literary work. He wrote several stories—classics, he thought—but publishers thought otherwise and promptly rejected them. Discouraged, and without funds, Montgomery landed a job as assistant stage director with William Faversham. Subsequently he played several small parts in a Faversham production. Parts in other stage productions followed. Then came his first big chance—leading man with Grace George in "The Garden of Eden," after which he played leads opposite Laura Hope Crews, Margaret Lawrence and others.

Montgomery had just concluded a starring engagement with Margaret Lawrence in "Possession," when Thornton Freeland, the director, remembering Montgomery's excellent characterization, decided he was the youth to play the American in "Three Live Ghosts."

Montgomery declared it all seemed like a dream now that he is in Hollywood and getting a big break in talking pictures. Montgomery has an excellent speaking voice.

Drown Your Sorrows

There are a bunch of Carolina supporters who will have to content themselves with watching the Grid-Graph today. If you were unable to go to Atlanta, drown your sorrows in a cheerful drink of or

SHERRI-COLA

SHERRI-ALE

If we down the Yellow Jackets, remember to get a couple of bottles of the "Ale" before you start your celebration.

Sherri-Cola Company

IF YOU KNOW YOUR BANDS-

you'll pick this one!

TED LEWIS and His Band have turned out a new Columbia Record that you'll vote for the minute you hear it! Inscribed on it are all the qualities you expect to find in a Ted Lewis record—moanin' melody, rollickin' rhythm, and that something else that only Lewis gives!

And when you get this great Ted Lewis record, hear these other hits too...

Record No. 1916-D, 10-inch, 75c

I LOVE YOU (Incidental Singing by Ted Lewis) } Fox Trots . . . . .
LEWISADA BLUES } Ted Lewis and His Band

Record No. 1948-D, 10-inch, 75c

BEALE STREET BLUES } Vocals . . Willard Robison and HARLEM BLUES } His Deep River Orchestra

Record No. 1946-D, 10-inch, 75c

INDIANA } Fox Trots . . Mound City Blue Blowers FIRE HOUSE BLUES }

"Magic Columbia Notes"

Columbia "NEW PROCESS" Records

Viva-tonal Recording - The Records without Scratch

TAR BABIES VS. IMPS
Today 3:00 P. M.
KENAN STADIUM

The Daily Tar Heel

FRESHMAN CLASS RALLY
Today 10:30 A. M.
MEMORIAL HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII | SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1929 | NUMBER 20

Carolina Crushes Tech 18 to 7

Gardner And Chase Make Pleas For Greater Private Support Of North Carolina University Fund

They Insist That University Needs Are Far Greater Than Just Enough to Meet Bread And Butter Demands—Speak At Banquet of Atlanta Alumni.

(By R. W. Madry)

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 11.—Urgent pleas for a new attitude toward private support for state institutions was made here tonight by Governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina and President Harry W. Chase of the University of North Carolina.

Speaking with direct reference to North Carolina, they declared that so far the State has been able to meet the bread and butter needs of its institutions of higher learning, but that there exists today a greater need for funds with which to provide for "excellence in the life of these institutions."

Governor Gardner and President Chase were the principal speakers at a banquet given by the Atlanta alumni of the University at the Biltmore Hotel. Through a widespread radio hook-up their addresses were broadcast throughout the South and as far north as Baltimore. A program by the University's 62-piece band, the members of which were all dolled up in new blue and white uniforms, was also put on the air. J. Shepard Bryan, former Superior Court Judge and prominent Atlanta attorney, was toastmaster. A large number of alumni attended, including many Tar Heels here for the Carolina-Tech game.

The addresses dealt for the most part with the appeal recently launched by the Alumni Loyalty Fund Council of the University, the purpose of which is to get the alumni in the habit of putting the institution in their annual budget, just as they give to their church or to their clubs.

Praising the "Graciousness and charm of Georgia hospitality," Governor Gardner pointed out that Georgia and North Carolina had long been connected "by intimate ties of kinship, history, and common traditions." He recalled with pride that the first state university to be chartered in America was the University of Georgia and that the first to be opened was the University of North Carolina.

He sketched briefly the story of higher education in the South, pointing out that just before the war between the States the University of North Carolina had a student body of 600 who came from 35 states, and that the institution had produced besides a president and a vice-president of the United States, 13 governors of other states and a score of cabinet officers and foreign ministers.

With the rise of mills and the rebirth of Southern industry came a new impetus in public education, which resulted in new frontiers of opportunity and achievement.

"In my judgement, we here in the South are today confronted by one of these frontiers," the Governor declared.

(Continued on page four)

Freshmen to Rally In Memorial Hall

There will be a rally of the entire Freshman class in Memorial hall this morning at 10:30 in preparation for the Carolina-Duke freshman football game in Kenan Stadium this afternoon, according to an announcement by officials last night. All freshmen are asked to be present at this meeting.

KEOGH SPEAKS ON WORLD LIBRARY CONGRESS OCT. 21

Yale University Librarian To Speak Here Home-Coming Day.

The World Library congress held in Rome last summer will be the subject of a speech by Dr. Andrew Keogh, librarian of Yale university and president of the American Library association, Monday morning, October 21, at the Southeastern Library association meeting at Chapel Hill.

More than 1500 librarians attended the Rome congress, Dr. Keogh being among the American delegates who were received by King Victor Emanuel as well as by the Pope.

"The Citizens' Part in a Library Program" will also be discussed at the Chapel Hill meeting, in addition to county libraries, negro library service and public library standards.

Dr. Louis R. Wilson will be the other speaker.

ROOSEVELT WILL SPEAK IN RALEIGH

New York Governor to Attend State Home-Coming Celebration Tuesday.

Raleigh, Oct. 11.—(Special)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, Thursday notified Governor Gardner and Josephus Daniels, that on Tuesday he would attend the North Carolina Home-Coming execises here, and arrangements have been made for him to speak at the state fair grounds at noon and at the Golden Lights Jubilee celebration on Capitol Square Tuesday night.

The Home-Coming committee, of which Governor Gardner is chairman, and Mr. Daniels, vice-chairman, feared for a while that Governor Roosevelt would be unable to attend the Home-Coming celebration, but he states that he is planning to be in Raleigh Tuesday.

Governor Roosevelt will speak from the grandstand in the main building at the state fair.

Rhodes Candidates

Dean Hibbard announces that the four candidates for the Rhodes scholarship from the University for this year are R. M. Gray, Jr., Travis Brown, R. Hoke Webb and Jack Crow.

Syracuse university's football team will go captainless this year.

The Victor

Coach Collins may well be termed the victor in yesterday's contest between the Heels and Georgia Tech. The team has now had several years under the Notre Dame system, and this system played a big part in yesterday's 18-7 victory over the Techmen.

DRAMATIC ASSOCIATION EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE WILL MEET HERE TODAY

The executive committee of the Carolina Dramatic association will meet today at 10:30 a. m. followed by a luncheon at the Carolina inn at 1 o'clock. Plans for the spring dramatic festival and state tournament will be discussed The committee is composed of six members connected with the University and six members chosen from different localities throughout the state. The committee attended Professor Koch's lecture on the development of the Carolina Playmakers last night and will be present at his reading of "The Taming of the Shrew" on Sunday night at the Playmaker theatre.

New Course Included In University Law School

Only Three Colleges in the United States Give Instruction of This Character; Designed for Creative Leadership.

With the development of a new course in the administration of justice, with the appointment of four salaried student research assistants to the faculty, and with the largest and best prepared student body in its history, the University of North Carolina school of law opened its eighty-seventh year this fall just as Professor Atwell Campbell McIntosh began his second quarter century of law teaching.

The course in the administration of justice will be conducted by the entire faculty, in cooperation with visiting judges and members of the bar. Meetings of the class will be held monthly for half day periods. The work in preparation for the class meetings will consist largely in investigations into actual practices. The course is designed to prepare for creative leadership on the part of the legal profession in the solution of the larger problems of the administration of justice. The University of North Carolina is one of but three schools in the United States offering instruction of this character. Seven conferences will be held during the year to deal with the important suggestions which are now in the forefront of public and professional interest in connection with the administration of the course. At these conferences carefully prepared reports will be read by certain students assigned to lead the discussion, and this will be followed by a general discussion by faculty and students, and visiting lawyers. Any lawyer who may be interested in any of the subjects is invited to attend the conferences. The schedule of conferences for the present year and the faculty members responsible for each conference, is as follows:

October 17—Mr. McCormick, Incorporation of the Bar.

November 14—Mr. Breckenridge, Arbitration and Conciliation.

December 12—Mr. McCall, The Rule-Making Power.

January 16—Mr. Wettach, A Ministry of Justice.

February 13—Mr. McIntosh, New Ideas in Pleading.

March 13—Mr. Van Hecke,

(Continued on page four)

Diminutive Quarter Leads Tar Heels To Win Over 1928 National Champs; Magner Scores Twice For Carolina

Branch Runs Back Punt for 55 Yards and Touchdown; Hudson, Farris, Adkins, Lipscomb Line Stars.

Grant Field, Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 11.—(Special)—Opening its siege guns early, Carolina's football eleven smashed its way to an 18-7 victory over the powerful Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech this afternoon. When the final whistle blew there was little doubt in the minds of the 25,000 spectators as to the supremacy of the Heels. They outcharged, outpassed, outran, and outplayed the Techmen throughout three quarters of the contest.

Any illusions Tech supporters entertained as to victory were dispelled early in the game. A line that yielded not and a host of backs who have not yet learned the lesson of defeat were representing the Heels. They were in the game to play football. They played from the opening whistle to the final gun.

Tech threatened three times. Once they scored. Following Tech's march down the field early in the game and unsuccessful try for field goal, Carolina punted out of danger. However, Mizell's long boot put the ball back on Carolina's seven yard line. Branch's kick was short and Thomason and Co. held the ball on Carolina's 25 yard line. "Stumpy" pulled his best play of the game here, going around end for a score. His boot was good and Tech led 7-0.

This touchdown was Tech's greatest effort. They tried often to score but Carolina was hungry for a victory.

From that touchdown on except for a few minutes in the third period the game was Carolina's. The line was doing great work and the combination of backs used by Coach Collins was knocking down or intercepting the Tornado passes.

Carolina received Thomason's kick-off and started for a score. With Nash doing great work on the receiving end of passes and carrying the ball through the line, Carolina carried the ball to Tech's 27 yard line. Jim Magner started through the line. There was no stopping for the speedy Pennsylvanian. He scored The try for point was wide.

A few minutes later he scored again from the seven yard line. Tech had been penalized 30-odd yards for rough playing, placing the ball on its 37 yard line. Magner passed to Nash for 20 yards. Nash added ten more yards in two tries and then Magner went through for another score.

"Shorty" Branch furnished the big thrill of the game with his 55 yard return of Mizell's punt. Twisting, turning, and slipping, the little Carolina quarterback brought the stands to their feet with the longest run of the day. "Shorty" outstumped "Stumpy" today.

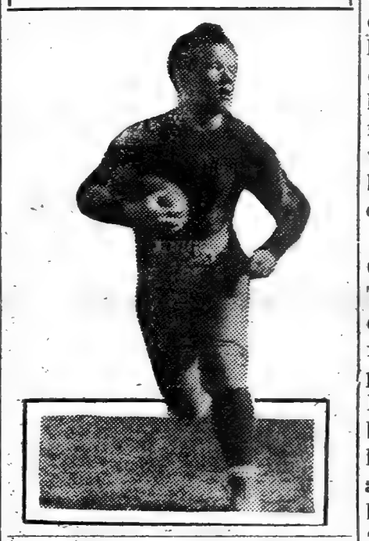
The Heels outplayed the Jackets from the beginning. They held when Tech threatened. They scored on every opportun-

(Continued on page two)

STATISTICS OF CAROLINA-GEORGIA TECH GAME

	Carolina	Tech
Yards gained through line:	97	69
Yards gained around end:	48	36
Yards gained on passes:	78	81
Total yards gained:	223	186
Attempted passes:	16	16
Passes completed:	8	6
Punts returned—yards:	145	73
Average distance of punts:	36	44½
First downs:	9	6

PLAYMAKERS WILL GIVE DRAMATIC READING - SUNDAY



"Taming of the Shrew" To Be Given at 8:30 Tomorrow Evening.

The series of dramatic readings which the Carolina Playmakers present on the second Sunday evening of each month at 8:30 will be begun this season, as has been the custom from the first, by a rendition of one of Shakespeare's plays. This year the play will be Shakespeare's lively comedy, The Taming of the Shrew.

Petruchio is one of Mr. Koch's favorite roles. He played this part in the production of The Taming of the Shrew in the Forest theatre in 1923, this being the only time he has acted in any of the Carolina productions here.

The public is cordially invited to attend this reading.

Out-Stumps "Stumpy"

DUNCAN DANCERS' PERFORMANCE IS DRAWING FEATURE

Russian Girls Make Big Hit in Boston and New York: Packed House Expected Here.

The student entertainment committee which secured last year many notable artists and attractions for the University is to be credited with another achievement in securing the sensational Isadora Duncan dancers from Moscow for a performance here October 16. Last fall the committee brought Paul Whiteman to the Hill as its first program. This year the coming of the Duncan dancers is attracting as much comment as did the coming of Whiteman.

These young and beautiful dancers are the direct and authorized artistic proteges of Isadora Duncan, who trained them from early childhood at the school which she established in Moscow. The eleven girls comprising the company were selected from the several hundred associated with the school.

So fascinating and impressive are these girls in their interpretation of the classic dances that the staid and conservative Boston Transcript was moved to state: "Vital flesh at one rhythmic spirit, disciplined abandon, fluent gesture, light, quick harmony of motion—these the Isadora Duncan dancers gave." All Boston responded to these marvelous artists when they appeared there as soloists with the Boston symphony orchestra at Symphony hall for a full week's engagement, May 6 to 11.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon — J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

Saturday, October 12, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

Well, we see where we'll have to start saving up for the trip to Pasadena to watch the Tar Heels win the national championship.

Yesterday morning Shorty Branch was heralded as "a second Stumpy Thomason," but this morning Stumpy might be adequately described as "a second Shorty Branch."

Will some obliging gent tell us the name and address of the company which manufactures the yo-yo? We want to send them a bill for all the publicity their product has been receiving in the Daily Tar Heel recently.

"Go ahead Carolina; win all you can now. It'll be that much more for us on December 9." Such was the message of brotherly love expressed in a telegram received from several Duke students by the radio station at Raleigh and broadcast during the Tech game yesterday afternoon. We always suspected that there were numerous psychopathic (Probably psychopathetic would be the more appropriate adjective) cases at Duke.

We Toss A Few Bouquets

Perhaps never before in the history of the University has the student body been so enthused as it is today over the brilliant victory at Atlanta. Roseate dreams of a national championship are uppermost in the minds of every Carolina man.

The Tar Heels rose to heroic heights as they submerged the Golden Tornado, claimant of the national title last year. It was no easy task; every Carolina player on the field did his part in marvelous fashion. Yesterday's victory represents the culmination of two, even three years of heart-breaking effort on the part of many of the players. To them especially the nation-wide acclaim that they are receiving comes as a well-deserved reward.

Much of the credit for Carolina's excellent showing belongs to Coaches Collins and Cerney. For more than three years they have been the targets for caustic criticism; bitter disappointment has been theirs game after game as they watched their charges go down in defeat. This fall the system which they installed here four years ago has borne fruit. The Tar Heels have reached the highest pinnacle attained by a North Carolina football team since the game was in its infancy, and Collins and Cerney are chiefly responsible.

Bouquet tossing and bestowing of laural wreaths are in order, and we nominate the entire Carolina team, together with the coaching staff, as recipients.

Chapel Hill "Goes Modern"

Four years ago we considered Chapel Hill the most attractive village that we had ever seen. There was none of the garish newness, the blatant "best little town in the country" atmosphere about the place; it was delightful in its tranquility, in the absence of the obnoxious civic "booster" with his hypocritical heartiness and his painfully obvious mediocrity. Even the unpaved sidewalks and the ramshackle old business buildings had an elusive sort of charm.

Since we first came here the beauty of the University campus has been greatly enhanced, but the village itself has lost much of its unostentatious charm. In a few brief years the place has been completely transformed; it has grown from a quiet, scholarly little village into a briskly sophisticated college town. In the process it has gained little and lost much. The Chapel Hill of today has an assumed smartness, a hard glitter that oftentimes becomes tawdry. Although traces of the old village still remain, in the form of several time-honored buildings, they shamefacedly retire into the shadows of the shining new structures that have arisen. Smart street lights, a stop signal, paved sidewalks and many other modern "improvements" proclaim that Chapel Hill is now a town.

Doubtless the Chapel Hill of today is more progressive, more business-like than the village that it replaced, but it has become cheap and commonplace, similar to thousands of other small American towns. The metamorphosis of Chapel Hill was inevitable, perhaps, but it is none the less to be regretted. North Carolina gained just another town and lost its most picturesque and charming village when Chapel Hill "went modern."

Mexico Shocks The World

An AP dispatch under recent date from Mexico City tells of the adoption of a new penal code in Mexico which suppresses the jury system and abolishes the death penalty. The act was promulgated by President Gil under the powers granted him by Congress. Trial by bodies of alienists and other experts will replace a jury trial. Special committees will be created to take charge of convicts upon the completion of their imprisonment so as to fit them to resume their places in society. Fines will be imposed according to the income of the person affected.

Abolition of the jury system and trial by experts and alienists has long been discussed by people interested in criminology but no country has seen fit so far to experiment with a new system; perhaps the bonds of tradition and prejudice are too strong to be broken easily. Theoretically trial by experts should prove the most effective method of dealing with criminals. Whether it will work or not will depend largely upon the personnel appointed to handle it and upon the moral support given by the public. Whether such a radical departure can be given a fair trial in Mexico is controversial at least.

That such a seemingly backward and chaotic nation as Mexico should take such a forward and progressive steps in handling criminals is surprising. The other nations of the world will watch with keen interest the working out of this proposal, some with apprehension lest it should work, and some with a sympathetic spirit of co-operation. Whatever the outcome may be, it is indeed a "noble experiment."—J. D. M.

The U. S. produced 29,428,000 pounds of hops in 1926.

The Campus

By Joe Jones

To anyone in search of a pleasant and convenient forest trail down which to walk these fine autumn days I should like to recommend the path leading into the woods directly back of Kenan stadium field house. Its ready accessibility from the campus and the great natural beauty of the region it traverses combine to make it peculiarly attractive to students who would get themselves into the woods for an hour or so of a sunny afternoon.

The timbered valley leading from the stadium to Meeting of the Waters, and on to Morgan's Creek, is one of the fairest localities near Chapel Hill. Down its length flows a brook, and alongside the brook there twists and winds the path of which I have just written. It leads over roots and around lichened rocks, but is well beaten and easy to follow. It is overshadowed by tulip trees, beeches, oaks, and hickories, whose yellow and pale green foliage transmutes the October sunlight into dappled gold. A wind sighs through the tops of these trees, but down below is stillness.

On the smooth, gray trunks of the ancient beeches are carved hundreds of initials, both of students present and students gone before, while one lofty tulip tree is possessed of the most complete set of sapsucker pits I have ever seen. The entire bole is girdled by ring upon ring of the tiny holes, perfectly drilled and in flawless alignment. I wonder why the sapsuckers find le vin of this tree more refreshing than any other in the woods.

The path is bordered by shrubs and lowly plants; such as sassafras, redbud, crimson-berried dogwood, and alder; Solomon's seal, bloodroot, ferns, and mosses. There are a few stragglers of purple asters, but most autumn blossoms don't flourish in deep shade.

Of course innumerable birds may be seen, chiefly of such sorts as chewinks, warblers, thrushes, wrens, jays, woodpeckers and cardinals.

Not far down the valley one comes upon Meeting of the Waters, where the two streamlets, Rockspring and Chapel branch, tumble into each other and bicker away together. Here is a profusion of bowlders scattered about in such a manner that the waters trickle between them with a pleasant sound. The top of the largest is so broad that two may climb up and sit comfortably side by side.

To get back to Chapel Hill without retracing your steps follow the path from here downstream a short distance till an alder thicket is reached. Then, walking uphill to the left, you'll run right into an open field, at present full of cowpea vines. On the other side of this patch is the Country Club road which will lead you directly back to Chapel Hill. The entire trip outlined in the above paragraphs may be walked in less than an hour.

However, anyone preferring a longer walk will find pleasure in going to Laurel Hill. To reach there one may start out the Raleigh pike, turn right at the bottom of the hill into the dirt road, follow that to Morgan's creek, and continue up the right bank in a fairly well defined path which leads to Laurel Hill in a few minutes.

Of all the beautiful places lying about Chapel Hill this is one of the finest. The stream swings in a great curve to the northwest so that the broad sandy beach on the inner bank of the horseshoe is bathed in sunlight all afternoon. Here is an irresistable invitation to lie in warm, dry sand. Back of the beach is the forest of tall trees, before it the creek sings a merry note, while straight up from the thither shore rise the greenery festooned cliffs that are Laurel Hill. Far from any habitation, shut in from the winds on both sdies, and with sunlight pouring from above, this strand has a distinct air of peace and solitude. It is indeed a place for the linking of beauty and long thoughts.

There are a great many other lovely spots in these Orange woods, and much pleasure may be had in seeking them out. I am glad that this university is set in the midst of a wilderness, a wilderness traversed by alluring footpaths leading away to such delightful spots as Meeting of the Waters, Laurel Hill, Vale of Ione, Flirtation Knoll, Glen Lee, Anemone Spring, and Trysting Poplar.

They say that President Kemp Plummer Battle in surcease of his arduous University tasks used to walk these paths and keep them cleared. Some of them have grown faint since then, some are lost, but until the last student gets an automobile I think there will be someone lingering down the dim trails on warm Sunday afternoons in remembrance of him "who knew and loved these woods as no one else."

Readers' Opinions

To B. B. R.

Editor of the Tar Heel:

Anent the Philistine: may we refer you to our foot note number 1: to synthesize in Webster's Collegiate; and to numerous scholarly articles in the learned journals treating the technique of mythological synthesis.

While we felicitate you on our essential Oneness in Yo-Yo, we beg to point out that in the really and truly world of vital statistics and geometrical propositions, we are in fact two separate and distinct human beings; or at least we try to be.

For the sake of our genealogy we have placed at the delivery desk in the library a copy (unmarked, in accordance with the best library etiquette) of the apparently not-so-well-known-as-it-might-be, but-never-the-less-immortal, Gilbert and Sullivan light opera, The Mikado.

Secure in our confidence of your utter tractability, and delighted with the prospect of your sharing with us the Real Meaning of the Eternal Principle and Essential Oneness of Being, we are, Dear Sir, your most Humble and Obedient Servants

KO KO and NANKI POO.

For Nanki Poo and Ko Ko

Editor of the Tar Heel:

The flowers that bloom in the spring, etc., have nothing to do with this case—for you've got to take under your wings, gentlemen, a caricature of a case. And never mind the liberties we've taken with the text, for we have the express permission of the "apparently-not-so-well-known - as - they - might-be" authors of the opera which may have given rise to the great god Yo-Yo.

The point of it is that the Yo-Yoer is an enemy of society, in that the spectacle of the nonchalant and skilled wielder of the Hendersonian torque causes otherwise innocent bystanders to step in and try the simple trick themselves. The rest can be found in the murder archives of Edward Pearson.

I have, sirs, a little list, and as for the Yo-Yoers, I have them all on my list, and I know darned well they never will be missed. So, Ko Ko and Nanki Poo, run along and play with your tops. For I like these disciples of Yo-Yo (I can't get the hang of the thing either) less than your honored selves, and I am, after all,

THE LORD HIGH EXECUTIONER.

NORMAN HAPGOOD NOW IN EUROPE

Norman Hapgood, writer on literary, civic and educational subjects, whose new book "Why Janet Should Read Shakespeare" has just been published by The Century Co., is now in Europe for a period of years on a "family educational tour." Believing that, as the world draws closer together, it is of special importance that children be educated in modern languages and knowledge of other countries, he is sending two of his children to a French school for a year and to a German school for the year following. He himself, with Mrs. Hapgood, is going to visit Palestine and Athens, the two most interesting places, in his opinion, in their contribution to world culture. He is also going to travel slowly through the Mediterranean countries and try to find out why almost all of them seem to prefer dictatorships. He will make a special study of the Swedish system of liquor control, and he also wants to find out how the World War is presented to school children in the various countries of Europe.

Dr. E. C. Branson in Improved Condition

Dr. Eugene C. Branson, head of the department of rural social ecenomics of the University and one of the country's leading authorities on rural problems, who has been ill at his home here with influenza and pneumonia, was reported as resting well and being improved last night.

Dr. Branson was taken ill two weeks ago, influenza settling in his lungs, and pneumonia developing. He still has a rather high temperature, but his physicians regard his condition as favorable.

NORTH CAROLINA CRUSHES GEORGIA TECH; SCORE 18-7

(Continued from page one)

ity. It was Carolina's day from every angle.

Carolina outgained Tech 223 yards to 186. It completed half of its 16 passes, and outgamed Tech throughout.

In the Carolina line Lipscomb, Farris, Hudson, and Adkins did great work. They were in there on every play and time after time threw Tech men for losses, Back of that line Nash, Branch, and Magner did great work.

Mizell, Thomason and Westbrook did the big work for Tech.

Many Tourists Make First Sound Debut

Tourists from Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Illinois, Ohio and Texas, with probably representatives from nearly every other state in the union, all unconsciously have played in their first talking picture.

Sound scenes for Paramount's "Woman Trap" were successfully made in downtown Los Angeles on one of the busiest streets in the west. The scenes, photographed and sound recorded on South Broadway during the noon hour period, are a part of "Woman Trap," all-talking feature at the Carolina theatre today.

To photograph the scenes unknown to the thousands of people on the sidewalks, Director William Wellman had his cameras and microphones hidden in a packing case, mounted on a store delivery truck and pulled by two attendants, wearing the caps and uniforms of porters. Small wires, wound on reels, connected the camouflaged camera truck with the sound recording wagon that was parked at the curb. The sound truck had every outward appearance of being a moving van and attracted no attention.

EYES CORRECTLY FITTED
W. B. SORRELL

DR. R. R. CLARK
Dentist
Over Bank of Chapel Hill
Phone 6251

WHEN IN DURHAM
meet and eat at the
Silver Moon Cafe
Opposite Bus Station
DURHAM, N. C.

CAROLINA THEATRE
TODAY
3 Great Stars in One Great Picture!
"WOMAN TRAP"
WITH HAL SKELLY
EVELYN BRENT
CHESTER MORRIS
ADDED
Vitaphone Vaudeville
Monday
"MADAME X"

May the University continue to spread enlightenment in the coming years as it has done in the past.
Patterson Brothers
Phone 5541

MEN! MEN!
A treat for you——
Your Suits and Topcoats tailored by Homeland Tailoring Company
Baltimore, Md.
Represented by
L. C. Doster — 127 W. Rosemary St.
"HE'LL CALL ON YOU"

The Play By Play Summary Of North Carolina's Victory

TAR HEELS CROSS TECH GOAL TWICE IN SECOND PERIOD

Nash Plays Fine Ball Until Injured in Second Quarter; Koenig and Spaulding Also Hurt.

The starting lineup was as follows:

GEORGIA TECH		CAROLINA
Jones	L. E.	Holt
Watkins	L. T.	Koenig
Westbrook	L. G.	Farris (Capt.)
Rusk (Captain)	C.	Lipscomb
Brooke	R. G.	Eskew
Holt	R. T.	Adkins
Williams	R. E.	Fenner
Dunlap	Q. B.	Branch
Thomason	R. H.	Nash
Mizell	L. H.	Ward
Maree	F. B.	Spaulding

First Quarter

Captain Farris and Captain Rusk met in midfield for the tossup. Carolina won the tossup and received. Thomason kicked off for Tech to Spaulding who returned to the 33 yard line. Ward lost one on an end run. Ward went through line for no gain. Branch kicked to Thomason on the 23 yard line. Farris made the tackle. Mizell around end for a first down. Dunlap got three around end. Dunlap through the line for 3 yards. Mizell punted to Branch who was downed on his 18 yard line. Ward went through the line for two yards. Ward fumbled and Dunlap recovered for Tech. Tech's ball on N. C.'s 18 yard line. Thomason through line for three yards. Thomason through line for a first down on the seven yard line. Thomason went through the line for two yards. Mizell failed to gain. Dunlap went through the line, lost three yards. Eskew made the tackle. Thomason failed to kick a field goal. Carolina's ball.

First down on the 20 yard line. Magner went in for Ward at half back. Branch went through the line for one yard. Thomason fumbled the punt and Fenner recovered on the 46 yard line. Magner failed through the line. Branch's pass failed. Magner passed and was penalized five yards for two incomplete passes. Tech was offside. Fourth and ten. Branch punted to Thomason who was downed on his 25 yard line. Mizell through the line for two yards. Mizell on an end run lost one yard. Carolina called time out.

Tech's ball, third down and nine yards to go, on the 26 yard line. Mizell punted to Carolina's seven yard line. Branch punted out to the 25 yard line. Tech's ball on Carolina's 25 yard line. Dortch went in for Koenig. Thomason went around end for 25 yards and a touchdown for Tech. Score Georgia Tech 7; North Carolina 0. Thomason got the extra point.

Thomason kicked off to Carolina's 15 yard line. Branch got 20 yards on the return. Carolina's ball, first down on the 35 yard line. Nelson went in for Holt. Nash on an end run failed to gain. Magner through the line for three yards. Tech was offside on the play. Third down and Branch passed to Nash for a first down on Tech's 45 yard line. Nash went through the line for nine yards. Tech took time out on the play. Nash passed to Magner for a first down on Tech's 32 yard line.

Magner Scores

Magner passed to Branch and it was incomplete. Tech was offside. First and five. Magner went through the line for a touchdown. It was a beautiful run that Magner made for 27 yards and a touchdown. Spaulding failed to get the extra point. Score North Carolina 6: Georgia Tech 7.

Thomason kicked off for Tech to Magner on the five yard line. He returned it to the 28 yard line. Tech was offside on the kickoff. Thomason kicked off again from the 35 yard line. Thomason kicked to Magner who returned to the 38 yard line. Nash went around end for a yard. Time out for Carolina.

Carolina's ball, second down and nine to go on her own 41 yard line. Brumby replaced Williams at right end. Carolina was penalized five yards for being offside. Magner got six yards through the line. Magner passed to Fenner but it was incomplete. Branch punted to Tech's 20 yard line and Thomason returend to the 40 yard line. Carolina took time out.

Spaulding was hurt and Harden replaced him. Thomason lost six yards on an end run. Fenner tackled him. Mizell went through the line for no gain. Tackled by Eskew. Mizell punted to Branch on the six yard line and he returned it to the 16 yard line. The quarter was over on the punt. Score, Carolina 6; Georgia Tech 7.

Second Period

Nash got a first down for Carolina on the 32 yard line by an end run. Branch through the line for no gain. Nash went through the line, but failed to gain. Branch punted, but Tech was offside. Mizell punted to Branch on his 37 yard line. Carolina's ball on her 37 yard line.

Jones, end, was put off the field, and Tech was penalized half the distance of the goal for roughing. Williams for Jones. Carolina's ball on Tech's 37 yard line. Magner passed to Nash for a gain of 20 yards. Carolina's ball on Tech's 18 yard line. Graydon in for Mizell. Nash got three yards through the line; Nash made a first down on an end run. Carolina's ball on Tech's six yard line.

Magner Gets Another

Magner went through the line for a touchdown. Nash failed to get the extra point.

Score: North Carolina 12; Georgia Tech 7.

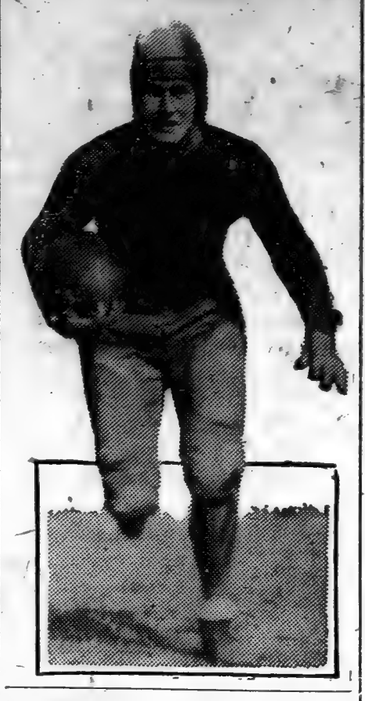
Carolina kicked off to Tech, Eskew kicking. Thomason received on the 5 yard line and returned to the 45 yard line. Graydon went through the line for six yards. Carolina was penalized for being offside. Tech's ball first and ten to go on Carolina's 47 yard line. Tech got three yards through the line. Dunlap got a yard through the line. Hudson went in for Fysal. Thomason failed to gain. Graydon faked a punt and failed to gain. The ball went to Carolina on the 40 yard line. Slusser went in for Nash. Slusser got 22 yards through the line. Carolina's ball on Tech's 38 yard line. First down and ten to go.

Tech substitutions. Isaacs for Holt at right tackle; Millianes for Brook. Carolina lost a yard. Magner passed to Slusser for six yards. Flowers went in for Graydon for Tech. Magner failed in an attempted forward pass. Branch punted outside on Tech's 11 yard line. Dunlap failed on a fake punt and lost five yards. Dunlap punted to Branch on the 48 yard line. Slusser failed through the line. Maus went in for Magner at left half. Sloan went in at right end for Tech.

Slusser was thrown for a seven yard loss. A line play netted two yards. Georgia Tech took time out. Carolina's ball on her 44 yard line, fourth and 15 to go. Tech was off-side. Branch punted to Thomason on the 15 yard line and Nelson forced him back to the 10 yard line. Dunlap got two through the line. Dunlap punted to Slusser on the 50 yard line and he returned to the 41 yard line. Maus lost one yard. Fincher went in for Watkins at left tackle. Maus got a yard through the line. Maus failed on a pass. Branch punted over the goal line. Tech's ball on her own 20 yard line. Jackson went in for Maus at left half. Flowers failed on an end run. Dunlap got two yards on an end run, tackled by Adkins.

Branch Wiggles for Score

Dunlap punted to Carolina on the 45 yard line. Branch received the punt and ran through the entire Georgia Tech team for a touchdown. It was the most beautiful run seen on Grant field in many a day. Erickson went in for Branch. Erickson failed to get the extra point. Score: North Carolina 18, Georgia Tech 7.

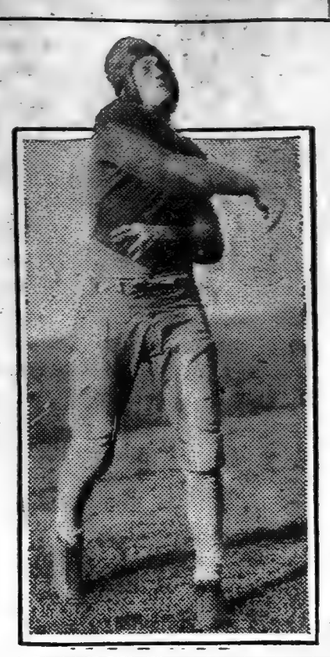


Adkins kicked off to Thomason on his ten yard line and he returned to the 33 yard line. Thomason made four yards through the line. Dunlap to Maree for a first down on the 47 yard line. Thomason through the line for five yards. Dunlap passed to Sloan for a first down on the 25 yard line. The half was over on the play. Score at the half: North Carolina 18, Georgia Tech 7.

Second Half

Mizell returned to his old position at left half for Tech and

(Continued on page four)



Consistent Back

Winners' Leader

Scores Twice

Ask Reciprocity In Athletic Tests

Wake Forest Representative Takes First Active Steps Toward Reciprocal Agreement.

Complete and equal reciprocity among all the big five North Carolina colleges in admission of their student bodies to intercollegiate athletic contests is being sought after the first active steps were taken this week by D. Lacy McBryde of Wake Forest college.

Duke university will issue invitations to start the ball rolling in calling a meeting at North Carolina State October 20 to discuss plans to put before the athletic associations of each of the respective schools.

Representatives of the Wake Forest student body will be chosen at a meeting next Monday to meet with the committees from the other schools later in the week.

Student body officials at each institution are to take up the matter with their respective athletic officials after the Raleigh meeting has devised some plan for presentation to the mentors and graduate managers.

Play Smearer

Able Center

Whale of a Tackle

(By J. C. Eagles)

The football menu offered to the fans all over the south today is probably the most varied and the most interesting that has been shown this season. However, the nature of the games is such that there seems to be little difficulty in at least predicting the majority of the winners in advance. A few of the games bring together teams which are so evenly matched as to make it a toss-up as to the selection of the ultimate victor.

North Carolina fans who failed to make the trip to Atlanta will have to content themselves with seeing either Wake Forest battle Elon or with witnessing one of the three other games between members of the little six. Duke is idle this week-end and Davidson journeys to West Point to meet the Army.

The first game which the Tar Heel considers for prediction is that between Florida and Auburn. Picked to overwhelm the cadets from V. M. I. last Saturday, the Gators failed to show the strength that was ascribed to them by the advance dope and were only able to eke a 12 to 7 win. At present they are handicapped by the absence of Dale VanSickle, all-American end last season, along with two other varsity performers. In spite of these adverse signs we pick the Florida ball carriers to come out on top chiefly because they were so powerful last fall and again because Auburn has been the footmat for the southern football teams for the last four or five years. They boast a better team this fall but a great deal of improvement will have to be shown before they can rise to the heights to defeat the Florida Gators.

That the army will defeat Davidson is practically a certainty. The Wildcats always present a varied attack and can be depended upon to put up a good fight. However, their chances against such a team as the Army are practically nil.

The great team which represented the University of Tennessee last season seems to be just as effective this fall if any conclusions may be drawn from early season showing. The touchdown twins, Hackman and McEver, are up to their old tricks and to date have scored all but two of the touchdowns made by the Tennesseans. With these men running behind one of the steadiest lines in the south we predict that the undefeated record set up by the squad from the neighboring state will be continued when they meet Mississippi in Knoxville this afternoon.

The game between South Carolina and Maryland offers trouble when it comes to picking the winner. The Old Liners showed up rather unfavorably against the Tar Heels last Saturday but they have made changes this week which it is contended will strengthen their attack. The return of two injured varsity players also tends to raise their chances. The Gamecocks put out a team last season which started things off in fine style and up until about mid-season they were a source of constant worry to the other members of the southern conference. This season Coach Laval has developed a running mate for Zobel in the person of Rhame, a sophomore. To date they have shown enough power both on offense and defense to warrant their being picked to win over Maryland.

Other predictions which the Tar Heel makes are:

Yale to win over Georgia.
Penn. to win over V. P. I.
V. M. I. to win over Citadel.

CAROLINA - DUKE FROSH MEET IN STADIUM TODAY

Two Frosh Teams Expected To Have Close Struggle in First Major Yearling Contest.

The North Carolina-Duke freshman football game in Kenan stadium at 3 o'clock this afternoon will assume varsity proportions as it is the only major contest in this part of the state.

The game was originally slated for the week-end of the Georgia-Carolina contest but was moved up to fill a vacant Saturday at the Hill.

Last year the redoubtable Johnny Branch led his men to a 7-0 victory over the Blue Imps, and then on to a South Atlantic championship. This year with a team perhaps not so spectacular, but substantial and rugged, the Tar Babies are priming to repeat the stunt. Their strength was manifested when they defeated a game Roanoke college frosh team last Saturday, 13-7. A final punch was lacking in their drive but with another week of practice behind them they should be in fine shape for the contest today.

The Duke freshmen with a strong team as usual, are reported to have an array of the best prep and high school talent in this section. Boys from all over the country compose the lineup and with all the old Carolina-Duke rivalry at full force today the game should be packed full of thrills from start to finish.

Mrs. Tapp: I've noticed that the farmers always have a man for a scarecrow.

Mr. Tapp: That's because they couldn't afford to dress a woman scarecrow.—Answers.

Another Milestone

The University passes another milestone today—its 136th. Congratulations on a priceless history of service.

Students' Supply Store

Everything in Stationery

New Course Included In Univ. Law School

(Continued from page one)

Statute Law-Making.

April 17—Mr. Winston, The Jury System.

The total registration in the law school numbers 121 as compared with 118 at this time last year. Although there is a falling off in the registration for the first and second year, the third year class numbers 39 as compared with 15 last year. This means that the senior class, in spite of a one hundred per cent success on the part of the University's candidates for admission to the bar last summer (most of whom had completed only two years' study of law) is nearly three times the size of any previous senior class. Nineteen of the entering class of 43 have college degrees, 3 have had four years of college work but have not received their degrees, and 14 have had three years of college preparation. Only 7 (as compared with 16 last year) of the entering students have complied with merely the minimum entrance requirements of two years of college preparation. Ten per cent of the student body are from other states. Eight states are represented.

The four research assistants to the faculty are: John Anderson, Chapel Hill; Walter Hoyle, Lincolnton; H. B. Parker, Monroe; and A. K. Smith, Raleigh. These men who are receiving a salary of $250 a year each, are devoting twelve hours a week to the work of assisting the faculty in research projects. Mr. Anderson has been assigned to Professor Breckenridge for work in the field of corporations. Mr. Hoyle has been assigned to Mr. Van Hecke for work in connection with the restatement of contracts. Mr. Parker has been assigned to assist Miss Lucile Elliott, law librarian, and Mr. Smith, the student editor-in-chief of the North Carolina Law Review, has been assigned to Professor Wettach, the faculty editor-in-chief, to assist in the supervision of the student editorial staff.

Professor Albert Coates is absent on leave, pursuing advanced work as Research Fellow in Criminal Law at the Harvard law school. Some of his courses are being taught during his absence by Professors McIntosh and Van Hecke.

Play by Play Story of Game

(Continued from Page 3)

Eskew and Branch returned to the Tar Heel lineup.

Eskew kicked off to Thomason on his 15 and Slusser got him on the 35. Thomason got one through the line. Thomason through the line smashed off five yards. Dunlap passed to Mizell but it failed. Mizell punted to Branch on his 12 yard line. Jackson was thrown for a five yard loss on an attempted end run. Harden went through the line for two yards. Branch punted to Thomason on the 45 yard line and he returned it to Carolina's 30 yard line. Mizell went through the line for two yards. Hudson replaced Eskew at guard for Carolina. Time out for Carolina. Mizell went through the line for four yards. Dunlap on an end run netted three yards. Dunlap's pass was intercepted by Harden on the 20 yard line. Jackson lost two on an end run. Jackson went through the line for three yards. Branch punted to Tech on their 45 yard line. Dunlap passed to Thomason and it failed. Mizell smashed the line for two yards. Lipscomb got the tackle. Mizell passed to Maree and it was incomplete. Tech was penalized five yards for being off-side. Mizell punted to Branch on the 15 yard line and he returned to the 19 yard line.

Slusser fumbled and it was recovered by Dunlap. Time out, Carolina. Thomason fumbled on an end run and it was recovered by Branch. Slusser got two through the line. Time out, Tech.

Jackson failed on a line plunge. Branch punted to Thomason and he was downed on Carolina's 46 yard line. Mizell failed to gain through the line when Adkins downed him. Dunlap passed to Maree for six yards. Adkins threw Dunlap for a 12 yard loss. Mizell punted to Branch on his 12 yard line. Branch returned it to the 32 yard line. Tech was penalized 15 yards, placing the ball on Carolina's 47 yard line. Branch passed to Jackson for 27 yards. Jackson went through the line for two yards. Jackson passed to Branch for two yards. Jackson passed and Maree intercepted on his seven yard line. Mizell went through the line for one yard. Mizell punted to Branch on his 22 yard line and he returned to the 29 yard line.

J. Williams went in for Isaacs at right tackle for Tech. Jackson went through the line for five yards. Harden got one yard through the line. Jackson went through the line for a first down on the 41 yard line. Slusser lost two on an attempted end run. End of third quarter. Score: North Carolina 18, Georgia Tech 7.

Fourth Quarter

Branch on an end run lost one yard. Slusser on an end run for five yards. Branch punted to Thomason on his 20 yard line and he returned to the 29 yard line. Thomason failed to gain on an end run. Nelson got him. Dunlap passed to Mizell and it was intercepted by Lipscomb on Carolina's 35 yard line. A pass, Jackson to Branch netted two yards. Slusser went through the line for six yards. Jackson went through the line for one yard. Farmer replaced Rusk. Houck went in for Maree. Harden made it a first down through the line. A pass, Branch to Jackson, failed. A pass, Jackson to Branch, failed and Carolina was penalized five yards for two incomplete passes.

Carolina's ball on Tech's 24 yard line. A pass, Branch to Jackson, netted six yards. Another pass failed. Tech's ball on her own 20 yard line. Dunlap was replaced by Frink. Thomason went around end for five yards. Mizell passed to Houck and it failed. A pass by Mizell was intercepted by Branch on their 45 yard line and he returned it to their 25 yard line. Time out, Carolina.

The referee said that Branch interfered with the receiver and the ball went to Tech on her 45 yard line. Mizell got three yards through the line. A pass, Mizell to Frink netted three yards. The ball was now in mid-field. Law is now in at left guard for Tech. Huntsinger went in for Thomason. Mizell punted to Branch on his 13 yard line. Crew went in for Farris at left guard. Carolina was penalized five yards for off-side. Time out for Carolina. Jackson made four yards through the line. Branch punted to midfield and it was Tech's ball on the 50 yard line. Mizell passed to Frink and it failed. Erickson went in for Harden. Mizell passed to Sloan and was intercepted by Branch on the 30 yard line and he returned to the 40 yard line. Slusser got four yards through the line. Jackson on an end run lost 6 yards. Slusser lost three yards through the line. Maus went in at right half for Slusser. Maus punted to Tech's 45 yard line to Frink. Mizell passed to Huntsinger for 15 yards and a first down. Mizell failed on a pass. Lipscomb grounded it. Mizell passed to Frink and failed. Tech was penalized five yards for two incomplete passes. Mizell punted to Erickson on the 25 yard line and he returned it to the 30 yard line. Ward failed to gain through the line. Maus went through the line for five yards. Ward punted to Tech's 34 yard line.

Mizell passed to Huntsinger and failed. Thompson went in for Adkins. Tech was penalized five yards, off-side. Mizell's pass to Huntsinger failed. Mizell passed to Sloan for four yards. Time out, Tech. Tech was penalized five yards. Tech took another time out. Mizell punted to Maus on the 25 yard line. Ward went through the line and failed to gain. Ward failed to gain through the line. Erickson lost two yards on an end run—and the Tech-Carolina game ended. North Carolina 18, Georgia Tech 7.

Gardner and Chase Plead for Funds

(Continued from page one)

"It is essentially spiritual in its nature, consists in a new approach to and appraisal of cultural values, and lies between those parallels which separate mediocrity from excellence. We have, in other words, achieved a mediocre respectability in higher education here in the South. Public support of our state colleges and universities, plus a few notable private benefactions and the aid of some of the educational foundations have brought us thus far, but we stand today with only the slenderest margin between the operation of these institutions and the bread and butter line.

"Let me illustrate. U. B. Phillips of Georgia and William E. Dodd of North Carolina are perhaps the two greatest living authorities on Southern history. But do they work in the South? Indeed, no! One had to migrate to the University of Michigan, and the other to the University of Chicago to find the materials and the financial support with which to study the history of their homeland. We Southerners protest at the inadequacies and even the unfairness of American historical writing. But we do not have any grounds for complaint when we will not support the collecting and preserving of Southern historical source materials, to say nothing of financing their use. To suggest the distance by which we lag in such matters, try to imagine the contrary situation of the North and West relying upon us to perform a similar service for them!

"The reasons why public support stops at the bread and butter line and falls short of the limits of University responsibility and opportunity are not difficult to find," Governor Gardner declared.

"In the first place," he said, "there has existed, and still exists in some degree, a serious limitation in the field of inadequate sources of revenue. The South has only recently attained to any semblance of economic security and popular support of public education in the form of taxation must always be governed by the ability of the people to pay.

"In the second place, by its very structure and purpose the state university is, if successful, the advance guard of civilization. It touches, despite the amazingly large matriculation in higher educational institutions, only a small percentage of the population. It must, therefore, derive that sentiment of wide popular support from a confidence in the efficacy and integrity of the institution itself, rather than in any absolute understanding of the significance and value of the work being done.

"What, then, is the answer to this problem? How shall we alumni of the University of North Carolina and Georgia and the alumni and friends of these and other Southern State institutions respond to this newest challenge? In North Carolina—and I think that I am safe in assuming that the same condition prevails generally in the South—we urgently need not only the money with which immediately to endow a great collection of source material on Southern history and a school of fine arts and a great school of medicine, but we need an entirely new attitude on the part of our alumni and friends as to the usefulness and significance of this kind of giving. Of what use are all material riches in the world if we, as a people, lose our appreciation of that which brings to life beauty and spiritual assurance? Man does not live by bread alone and our obligation to the generations that are to come involves infinitely more than leaving them a community and state and section that are economically self-sufficient and well-ordered. It involves leaving them an environment and a civilization with which they will not find themselves spiritually at war.

"In a peculiar sense the University of North Carolina faces now the challenge of which I have spoken tonight. The State is supporting and will continue to support the work there as liberally as it can. But this is not sufficient. A minimum of $10,000,000 in additional endowment is not only needed, but is imperatively necessary if the institution is to fulfill its educational mission. I cannot go into a detailed analysis of these needs, but this is unnecessary at this time. Doctor Chase has indicated some of them. Neither is it necessary for me to add that Doctor Chase and I and other alumni friends of the University are not thinking now merely in terms of a provincial State university. We are thinking, rather, of a great American university, located in the South and adequately equipped to meet the needs of a changing civilization.

"We have just been through the opening days ofthe University. Despite depression and hard times, our enrollment has increased over last year by more than a hundred students. I wish you could know at first hand the difficulties under which many of these students are in college; I wish you could hear as I have heard, something of the sacrifices of boys and parents both. You would, I know, be stimulated by it, and you would feel, as I feel, how much we need a large increase in our loan funds and our scholarship resources for these hard-working boys.

"We have, at the University, promising beginnings in the fine arts. The Playmakers Theatre came from outside funds. So did the beautiful Kenan Memorial Stadium, a contribution to beauty as well as to athletics. The fine organ and the concert auditorium that we will add to our musical life this year came to us as a gift. It would be, both for our students and for the state, a splendid enrichment of our life to develop here an art museum with its collections of beauty and taste. The whole artistic level of the state would in the end be raised by such a gift.

"Our campus, with its great natural beauty and the fine taste and service of Dr. Coker, could be put almost in a class by itself by additions to available funds.

"Again, a faculty of excellence is the heart of any university. Our Kenan Fund for salaries has been an enormous source of strength to us. We need even more opportunity for the reward of special achievements, and there are many, in our University life.

"And I might go on. I hope I have made my point concrete enough. There are literally scores of undertakings ripe for action, planned, thought through, any one of which would add distinction and excellence to the life of the University, and which only await sufficient funds. Say, if you like, that the state should do all these things. I reply that, in practice, there is always a gap between the power of the state and the genuine needs of any university worthy of the name."

THE FUTURE

May it be as great and illustrious as the past. Alumni can hardly hope for more for their great University

Carolina Confectionery

Eubanks Drug Company

takes pride in the University's heritage of 136 years of priceless service to its State and takes this opportunity of wishing it the future that it has been making for itself in each of the splendid years of its existance.

Victor, Columbia & Brunswick Records

University Book and Stationery Co.

Next To Sutton's Drug Store

FANCY ICES SHERBETS

DURHAM ICE CREAM CO., Inc.

"Blue Ribbon Brand"

ICE CREAM

DURHAM, N. C.

BLOCKS "Won its Favor-by its Flavor" PUNCH

Congratulations to a great University

on the passage of another milestone

1793- General William Davie and a notable assembly laid the cornerstone of Old East, oldest State University building in the country.

1929- The University celebrates its 136th anniversary of priceless service to its state. A great plant, a faculty of 200, serving a resident student body of 2500 and an even larger non-resident student body

Stetson "D", young beside the University, takes pride in this great record and in its own record of service to Carolina students.

Stetson D

Clothiers Furnishers

BARNETT LECTURES
Monday, 10:30 a. m.
MEMORIAL HALL

The Daily Tar Heel

BARNETT LECTURES
Monday, 10:30 a. m.
MEMORIAL HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1929 — NUMBER 21

North Carolina Passes Its 136th Anniversary

Activities of Founder of University Related; Many Obstacles Faced Before Institution Started; Saturday Was Birthday.

(By J. B. Allen)

The first state university in America to begin operation, the University of North Carolina yesterday celebrated its 136th anniversary.

When the people of North Carolina drew up their first constitution as an independent state in 1776 they made the following provision for the education of the public: "That a school or schools shall be established by the legislature for the convenient instruction of youth, with such salaries to the masters, paid by the public, as may enable them to instruct at low prices; and, all useful learning shall be duly encouraged and promoted in one or more universities."

The absence of records makes it impossible to attribute directly the responsi[illegible] this section. It is a supposition that the measure was originated by the Mecklenburg delegation which was instructed to provide for a "handsomely endowed" university to be situated in that county. It is also supposed that this instruction was given because of the refusal of the British government to grant a charter for Queens College in that county, or any institutions free from control of the church.

Provided for the Future

Whatever its origin might have been it is true that, just returned from a successful war with the Indians, lately having declared their independence, threatened with British invasion, unorganized, and facing an uncertain future, these Revolutionary statesmen did not neglect to provide for their unborn children. Their government was an experiment in democracy and they recognized the fact that the liberty which they had declared and which they were about to defend could be perpetuated only through education. They realized the necessity of training leaders in order to make their experiment a success.

It seems a remarkably significant fact that the University was chartered in 1789 by the same legislature that voted to make North Carolina a part of the Federal government. It is also interesting to note that it was just seven days after the charter was granted before the first meeting of the board of trustees was convened.

After adapting themselves to self-government two views developed when the proposal for carrying out the constitutional provision for education came before the people. One party held that the state should establish and maintain free public schools; the other that the state should charter private schools, under the control of private individuals but conducted for the purpose of education rather than for gain, and, in order that education be as cheap as possible, the state should grant these

(Continued on page two)

Organ Program

Mr. Nelson O. Kennedy will render the following organ numbers at the Chapel of the Cross: Cantilena, C. McKinley; Andantino, Lemare; Andante (Symphony Pathetique), Tschaiskowsky.

Tickets On Sale

Season tickets for the year's entertainment series including the Isadore Duncan dancers and many other prominent features are now on sale in the Business office at three dollars. Admission to any feature will cost approximately one fifty, hence saving is effected in season purchase.

CAROLINA TO SHOW FILM OF TECH GAME

Students disappointed because of their inability to travel to Atlanta last Friday to witness the Tar Heels crush last year's national champions by the score of 18 to 7 will be given, after all, an opportunity to see Tech and Carolina in action. The Carolina theatre will show Monday a news reel taken at the Atlanta stadium. This picture, produced by Publix-Saenger, will contain all of the big thrills of the game, and University students and townspeople may see the Heels actually administer the drubbing that they gave Georgia Tech Friday.

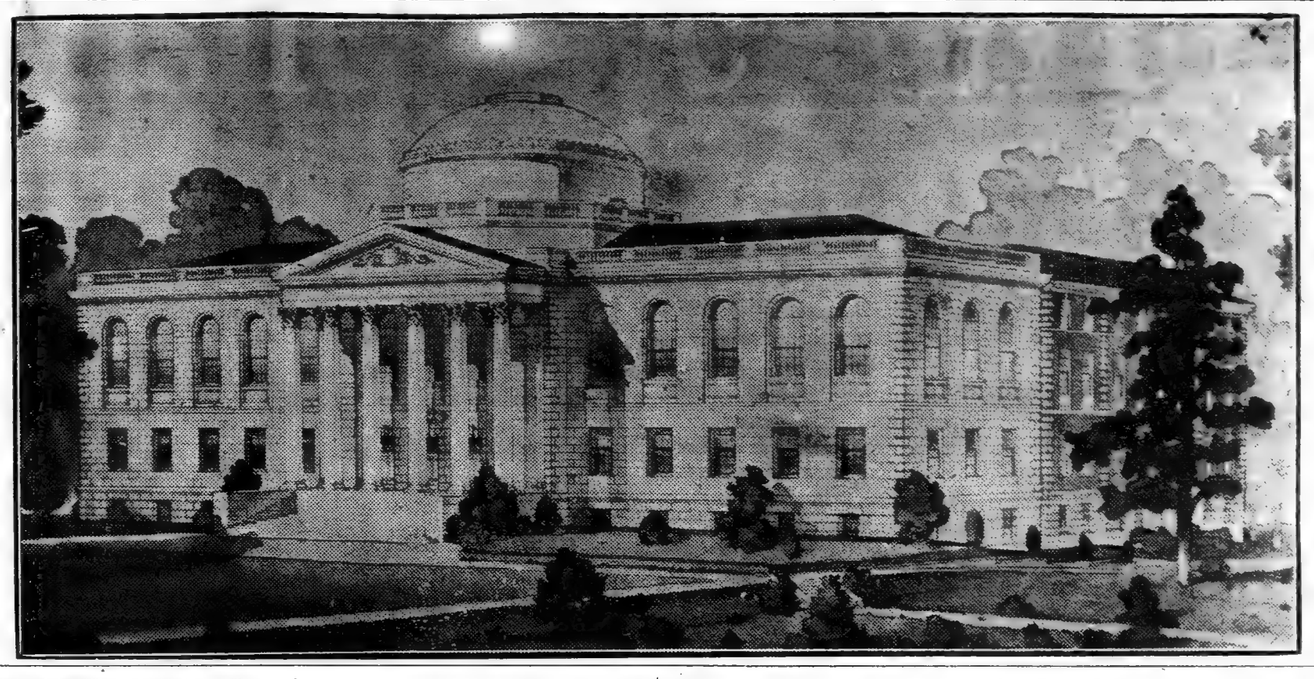
SICK BOYS HEAR REPORT OF GAME

Even students who were confined to their beds in dormitories by colds and other illnesses Friday afternoon were able to follow the fortunes of the victorious Carolina football team embattled with Georgia Tech. Constant questions were hurled out of window by pajama-clad figures as to "What's the score?" And happy answers were thrown back from rooms where radio receiving sets were bringing in details of the game. The tremendous victory for the Tar Heels cured many of the ill students who took part in the general celebration during the evening—and morning.

No Services Today At United Church

There will not be preaching at the United Church (Christian Congregational) this morning at 11:00. Instead, the congregation will attend services at the Methodist Church to hear Eugene E. Barnett. Sunday School will be at 9:45.

Dr. Dashiell To Speak



Dr. J. F. Dashiell, noted professor of psychology will give an address Sunday evening on, "The Relation of Scientific Psychology to Religious Interests." The hour is at 7:00 in the Methodist church, and this lecture closes a series of talks by outstanding psychologists. Dr. Dashiell is the author of a widely used college text book in his field. His versatile interest in human life promises an interesting hour for those attending the Epworth League service.

Regular Sunday Tea

The weekly teas that are held every Sunday afternoon from 4:30 to 6 o'clock at the Parish house of the Episcopal church will be held today.

Refreshments will be served and there will be an informal entertainment at this gathering which is sponsored by the student vestry of the Chapel of the Cross. All the students of the University are cordially invited.

New Library To Be Dedicated Saturday

ROMANCE OF N. C. PLAYMAKERS TOLD BY KOCH

Reviews History of Players Here; Compares Work to Physical Ability.

The romance of the Carolina Playmakers, a drama in itself, extending over a period of ever more fruitful years, was traced last night to a small audience by Professor Frederick Koch, the father of the Tar Heel theater movement. His talk was amplified by a number of slides.

The program was interrupted frequently by the shouts and tumult of students who were celebrating Carolina's momentous football victory on the campus. Professor Koch took note of the general celebration on the outside which apparently had dwarfed the attendance at the illustrated lecture, by saying that they were celebrating a physical victory in the same way that those who patronized the Playmakers' theater celebrated a victory of art.

The speaker said that is was the adventure of watching the Carolina Playmakers develop thru the years which was most interesting. "This is a Theater of youth and the story of the Carolina Playmakers is the adventure of that youth," he said. Referring again to the celebration outside, Professor Koch stated that it was difficult for fine arts to compete with physical arts, but that both were alike in that each was boosting Carolina.

Origin of the theater was traced back to the Greeks by the speaker. Interrupted for a moment by a vigorous yell for Carolina from students outside the theater, Professor Koch said that the Greeks, too, cheered lustily for athletic achievement but they also cheered with the same enthusiasm for the poetry of their theater.

The pioneering work that has been done by the Carolina Playmakers, the lecturer said, has given the theater in America an example of how the "play of locality, if truly pictured, becomes of interest to areas beyond the confines of the home state."

"All art of permanent significance, must be first the art of locality," Professor Koch said in explaining to the audience what has enabled the Playmakers to make as much success as they have.

The speaker also outlined the

(Continued on page three)

Football Results

N. C. Frosh 7; Duke Frosh 8
Georgia 15; Yale 0
Army 23; Davidson 7
Penn 14; V. P. I. 8
Minnesota 15; Vandy 6
Cornell 40; Hamp-Sid. 6
Virginia 12; Swathmore 7
Notre Dame 14; Navy 7
Boston Coll. 7; Villanova 7
Fordham 27; N. Y. U. 7
Boston U. 27; Vermont 6
Pitt 26; W. Virginia 7
Brown 13; Princeton 12
Purdue 30; Michigan 16
Harvard 35; New Hamp. 0
Illinois 45; Brindly 0
Georgetown 13; St. Louis 0
Chicago 13; Indiana 0
North Western 7; Wisconsin 0
Ohio State 7; Iowa 6

Barnett Services Methodist Church

Mr. Eugene E. Barnett begins his program here today with a sermon in the Methodist church at 11:00. He will speak again tonight at the same place at 8:00. This will be followed by a forum.

Mr. Barnett will speak again in chapel on Monday at 10:30. Monday afternoon he will be available for conferences with all students. He will close his program Monday night by speaking to a special joint meeting of the three Y cabinets.

Sigma Epsilon Also Has a House Mother

A story in Friday's Tar Heel carried news of the securing of a house mother by the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity. It has since been learned that, though the movement is new on the campus, the house mother of the Pi Kappa Phis is not the only one at the University. Mrs. George W. Foushe of Mount Vernon, N. Y., has been here with Sigma Epsilon fraternity since their occupancy of their new home on Rosemary lane at the beginning of the school year.

Mrs. Foushe's duties are more as social advisor and counsellor for the members of the fraternity. She makes her home in the fraternity house, and offers suggestions about the housekeeping, and also the dining room which is taken care of for the most part by an outside caterer.

Meeting Y Cabinets

There will be a joint meeting of the three Y cabinets Monday night at the Y at 7:15. Mr. Eugene E. Barnett will be the special speaker at this meeting. All members, old and new, are requested to be present.

University Will Dedicate New Library This Week

(By R. W. Madry)

Next Saturday, October 19, will mark a new milestone in the development of library service in this nation.

The occasion will be the dedication of the University of North Carolina's new library, largest and most beautiful of the many pretty buildings on the Carolina campus.

The new structure will house the largest college and university book collection in the south this side of Texas.

Impressive Ceremony

An impressive ceremony has been arranged for the christening of the handsome new building. Governor O. Max Gardner will present the building in behalf of the people of North Carolina. John Sprunt Hill, chairman, will accept it on behalf of the board of trustees. Andrew Keogh, president of the American Library association, will deliver the dedication address. There will be appropriate music. The exercises will be concluded with the benediction by the Rev. W. D. Moss. President Harry W. Chase will preside. The program will begin at 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

Reception After the Game

Former Tar Heels back for the state-wide celebration of Home-Coming week are expected to attend the dedication exercises, which will be followed by the Carolina-Georgia football game in Kenan stadium that afternoon and an open house and reception in the library after the game. That night at 8:30 o'clock the visitors will be guests of the Carolina Playmakers.

The library dedication will mark the beginning of the University's celebration of Home-Coming week. An open invitation to the University celebration is extended to all Tar Heels, especially the native sons coming back for a visit.

Southern Education Conference

Saturday will also mark the opening of the University's second annual Southern Conference on Education and the annual meetings of the Southeastern Library association, the North Carolina Library association, and the Library movement of North Carolina. All of these meetings will continue through Tuesday. The program of the Southern Conference on Education will deal particularly with the subject of "Libraries."

The Sunday program will be a big feature of the University's celebration. At 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning Dean Shailer Mathews of the school of divinity, University of Chicago, will preach at a union service of all Chapel Hill denominations in Memorial hall. That afternoon there will be an appropriate musical program by the University department of music.

Library Cost $625,000

The University's new library was erected at a cost of $625,000, but so confident are its creators of the future of the University and of the importance of a library in that future, that the new building is but one unit of a great library to come. Closing the quadrangle, the sides of which are South building, Venable hall, and the group of buildings which includes Steele dormitory and Murphey hall, it extends over a front of 210 feet and to a depth in the center of 140 feet, and rises to the height of four stories, including basement. Yet some day it will be necessary to build wings on either side to a depth of 150 to 200 feet, and, later still, to close these wings at the rear with a section as large as the front of the present building. The stacks now being erected for books are nine stories high and will shelve approximately 400,000 volumes. Later extensions can be provided at the rear to a depth of 150 feet and a height of from nine to sixteen stories, with a capacity of more than a million volumes, when the future demands it.

Designed by Atwood and Nash

The building was designed by Atwood and Nash, Inc., University architects and engineers, with the firm of McKim, Mead, and White of New York as consulting architects. T. C. Thompson and Brothers were the constructors.

The front of the building is of limestone, the main entrance being through a classical portico of Corinthian columns. This portico is approached by way of an imposing flight of steps similar to that of the law building, but proportionately larger, and forms the central motive of the north facade of the library.

A low dome crowns the building, the top of which is approximately 90 feet above the ground level.

The Three Floors

The main entrance leads to an entrance hall, with marble and terrazzo floor, Travertine walls,

(Continued on page three)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Sunday, October 13, 1929

A Deplorable Lack of Restraint

Friday night the students who remained on the Hill were in exuberant spirits, naturally. But even exultation over the brilliant victory at Atlanta was no excuse for the childish pranks engaged in by a mob of several hundred students who congregated at the Carolina theatre.

At first the crowd was peaceable enough and its antics were more asinine than dangerous, but the mob contagion took possession of it, as is nearly always the case, and childishness became viciousness. Aged and odiferous eggs were hurled with abandon; the usual "show rush" was staged, attended by frequent breaking of glasses and a large quota of cuts and bruises. The mob was assuming a dangerous attitude when Executive Secretary R. B. House persuaded the members to disperse in an admirable talk.

Nothing is quite so nauseating as the individual who is unable to celebrate victory without making an ass of himself. Especially disgusting is the spectacle of a college man, presumably above the average in intellect and in the niceities of social usage, descending to vicious imbecilities because his team has won an athletic contest.

It is apparent that the Tar Heel football team is slated for the greatest season in its history, and the student body will very likely have much cause for rejoicing in the remaining weeks of the season. With Georgia, Duke and Virginia games in the offing, it would be highly advisable for the student body, or at least a certain element of it which inclines toward rowdyism, to learn that the proper way to celebrate victory is not by conducting themselves in a manner befitting a brutalized race of morons.

To be sure, very few of the undergraduates here would intentionally give themselves up to senseless destruction of property or physical violence, but the mob urge frequently incites the most sane of men to idiotic deeds. We Carolina students would do well to restrain ourselves in the approbation which we express for the feats of our football team lest someone is killed or serious loss of property results from an over-enthusiastic celebration of victory.

Another Football Idol Emerges

Out of all the glory and enthusiasm of the Tech-Carolina game Friday there emerges one Lindbergh feat which will thrill the youth of the land as perhaps no football game has thrilled it; Johnnie Branch's fifty-five yard run will become legendary in the annals of football in this state. Every grammar grade and high school boy will now aspire to be another "Shorty"; our plucky quarter will be the idol of the football worshipping youth of the country.

All the elements of a moving picture, a dime novel, a sophomore short story, or a great novel, if you will, were present in the game Saturday. With the regular quarter injured, the greatest opponents of the year facing the team, the dashing little quarter, outweighed many times by backs of the other side, stepped in and generaled his team to a victory over the national champions, and then pulled the most spectacular play ever seen in Dixie; that we say is a story we often read in fiction, but rarely see happen.

Many morals could be drawn from the story of the game, and we dare say many Y uplifters, preachers, and professional good men will point out the triumph of "clean living"; many tributes will be paid to the "indomitable courage" of the team that defeated Tech; home folks, sweethearts, friends and alumni are showering the team with gifts and affection. If Shorty should never play another game, the triumph that is his will thrill the imagination of the land for a long time; the mere telling of the story appeals to our childish worship of the heroic and magnificent.—J. D. M.

Alma Mater 136 Years Young

Yesterday the University passed another milestone in an eventful career. Alma Mater, one hundred and thirty-six years of age is impressively young. Having drunk at the fountain of Youth which is Knowledge for so many years her jeunnesse and vigor are precitible to the most impartial eye. The University of North Carolina has kept step!

Drawing back the curtain that has fallen on other birthdays, we lived again the colorful and varied fortunes that have become the history of the University of North Carolina. We treked with Hinton James from the mouth of the Cape Fear to the site where William Davie had located the first University building, there to be the first of a long line of students. Then we saw the Goddess Fortuna invoked by the early fathers to preside over the destinies of the institution when it became necessary in 1801 to raise maintenance funds through the medium of a 2,000 pound lottery.

Living again the duels and brawls of a more demonstrative period, we saw Hopkins and Hawkins expelled for "dangerous display of deadly weapons." In 1805 we saw the birth of the Honor System, following the secession of a majority of the student body as a result of the harsh measures resorted to by the University officials, an Honor System that has never faltered in its one hundred and twenty-four years, but that has grown as the University has grown and remains today as an integral part of University life.

Yesterday we thought of Peter Dromgoole and his tragic love, of the pride that swelled within the breasts of the masters who taught and guided James K. Polk through his formative years at the University, the day of his inauguration as president of the United States, of the "terrible days" during the carpet-bag rule of the University, of the struggle to continue during the years that followed, of the fight against the evolution bill, and of many other things.

Singing in our ears were the names of William Rufus King, several times ambassador to foreign countries, president of the United States senate, and vice-president of the United States; Thomas Hart Benton, political genius of 1830; of Vance, Battle, Aycock, Branch, Swain, Pettigrew, and Mebane.

Vividly could we see Edward Kidder Graham meeting the students on the campus or in his office and of his interest in their life and affairs. Still fresh in our minds was the magnificent gesture of a remarkable and loyal man who in refusing to permit material gain lead him from an ideal last spring renounced a sinecure at twice his present salary. Becoming a president of the University as a result of a compromise by his wise administration and his intellect Dr. Chase has not only won the heart and fancy of the Old North State, but has become one of the ten most outstanding university presidents in the entire United States.

The birthdays of man are numbered, but those of the University of North Carolina will fall perpetually on each succeeding twelfth day of October, and Alma Mater will forever stand a beacon on a dark and stormy sea sending out "Lux et Libertas."—J. E. D.

Readers' Opinions

Meaningless Mexican Reforms

Editor The Daily Tar Heel:

The editorial in Saturday's Tar Heel regarding one of Mexico's latest "reforms" reminds me that the little nation continues to be successful in her aims.

It is now something over a dozen years since Luis Cabrera, at one time high functionary in the government of the late Venustiano Carranza, while speaking before a group of Mexican "patriots" at the McAlpin Hotel in New York City said, "Our biggest task is to fool the people and the government of the United States." Their success is notorious.

The recent AP dispatch announcing the abolition by the Portes Gil government of juries and the death penalty (except, of course, for offences in no way criminal) and the institution of trial of criminals by alienists means nothing to me but another step in the direction so frankly pointed out by Cabrera. "That such a seemingly backward and chaotic nation as Mexico should take such a forward and progressive step in handling criminals" is not so much "surprising" as inconceivable, for there is an inherent contradiction in the phrase.

That such a step is progressive has not yet been demonstrated, for though juries have been found most incompetent it does not seem to me that alienists have given us good reason to trust intheir intelligence. Still, granting that in some places this reform would be a forward step it does not follow that such would be the case in Mexico. Whoever has heard a Mexican "scientist" commit himself must agree with me that Mexico is an unexplored field for the Ringling-Barnum clown hunting expedition.

Portes Gil and Elias Calles do what they please to an anathetic people, and the world looks on and at times applauds. The "reforme" must cause fanfare while the sore needs of the nation go unnoticed in the big noise.

Even assuming that the leaders are striving for the betterment of their country such reforms are meaningless when imposed on a nation in the state of culture in which Mexico finds itself today. Alienists and Temperance Unions are too formidable for any but the most "grown-up" commonwealths to grapple with.

J. J. SLADE, JR.

DR. J. P. JONES
Dentist
Over Welcome-In Cafeteria
PHONE 5761

North Carolina Passes Its 136th Anniversary

(Continued from page one)

schools certain privileges. As a result of this confusion coming out of different interpretations of the provision no creative measures could be passed.

Davie Appears on the Scene

Many private institutions were chartered during this period, but the idea of a state university was unpopular among the majority. There were cries against any increase of taxes and that the establishment of such an institution was an attempt to set up an aristocracy. No leader appeared to champion the cause of the University. No one was willing to risk the sacrifice of his popularity to the movement until the fall of 1789 when the one man, perhaps, in the entire state whose ability assured success appeared and began the fight for a state university. That man was William Richardson Davie. His absolute faith in the advantages of such an institution and his consistent services, coupled with his popularity and ability, overcame the numerous obstacles and made the institution a success.

Davie was born in England, but as a youth came to America to live with an uncle in the Waxhaw settlement on the Catawba river. He was a graduate of Princeton, leaving that institution to contribute his ability to the American cause. His brilliant services as a cavalry officer in North Carolina was equalled after the war by his success in the practice of law and as a servant of the people. As one of North Carolina's representatives to the Constitutional convention at Philadelphia in 1789 he effected a compromise in which North Carolina, then one of the larger states, cast her vote with the smaller states for equal representation in the Senate and saved the convention from adjournment. His services to the state were many and great, but the greatest of all, perhaps, was his leadership in the movement for a state university.

Great Advocate of Education

Having had no leader for 13 years the movement now gained by the neglect when Davie took up its cause. He was a strong advocate of the education of youth. He looked with regret on the necessity of North Carolina's having to seek her leaders in foreign states. He wished the state to train her native sons so that they, in turn, might render their services to their state. Only a man of his calibre could have assured the success of the movement.

The North Carolina legislature of 1789 met in Fayetteville at the same time as did the convention elected to consider the ratification of the United States Constitution. Davie was the representative from Halifax to both bodies. He held the theory that the ratification of the Constitution and the establishment of a university went hand in hand. So, November 12, 1789, just nine days before he made the motion in the convention that led to the ratification of the United States Constitution by North Carolina, he introduced a bill in the legislature to establish a university. The bill passed and a charter was granted, Davie being the main instrument in the drawing up of this charter. A board of trustees was provided for as the governing body, and, lest Davie's services be lost at this moment of apparent success, he was among the first selected to guide the institution in its youth.

Charter Was Granted

A charter had been granted, but that act alone could not make the university a reality. Funds were necessary to erect buildings. An act was passed conferring to the trustees certain arrearages due from sheriffs and other officers which the state had been unable to collect. To this source was added escheats. Seven thousand three hundred and sixty-two dollars was collected, only the interest of which, according to provision, could be used. But in order to construct buildings provision for a larger income was necessary. In 1791 Davie brought a measure before the legislature asking for a loan of $10,000 for the purpose of erecting buildings necessary for the opening of the institution. His speech in support of this measure is thus described by Judge Murphey in his address at the University in 1826: "I was present at the House of Commons when Davie addressed that body upon a bill granting a loan of money to the trustees for erecting the buildings of the University, and although more than 30 years have since elapsed, I have the most vivid recollection of the greatness of his manner and the powers of his eloquence on that occasion." The appeal was successful. The loan was later converted into a gift—the only appropriation made by the state in interest of the University until 1881.

Italy now has 156 leather glove factories.

THANKS!

Carolina Students - For your Patronage—
DURHAM'S NEW
Carolina Theatre

offers you the best possible amusement in the world—real surrounding Programs are offered at no advance in prices—Showing Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday

"The Drake Case"

Thu. - -Fri. - Sat.
"TWO MEN AND A MAID"
Extra
Twice daily Thu.-Fri. Sat. on the stage
"Blue Devil's Orchestra"

25c
Daily
(From 1 to 2)
Bargain hour

"Customed to Don or Customed to Measure"

Style Expression

As expressed by LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES is founded on quality hand-tailoring and original, exclusive woolens.

LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

"University Outfitters"

Duke Frosh Beat Tar Babies By 8-7 Score In Hectic Game

Duke Scores First; N. C. Yearlings Take Lead in Second Quarter to Lose by Safety in Final Moments.

N. C. Frosh		Duke Frosh
Nichols	L.E.	Williamson
Sharkey	L.T.	Harden
Zaviches	L.G.	Mullins
Allen	C.	Blackson
Philpot	R.G.	Warner(c)
McDade	R.T.	Dougherty
Walker	R.E.	Holt
Chandler	Q.B.	Coombs
Thompson	L.H.B.	Cochran
McNeill	R.H.B.	Abbott
Abrams	F.B.	Ershler

In a raggedly played, but bitterly fought game, the Duke University freshman team eked out a victory over the 1929 edition of the Tar Babies. The score was 8 to 7, which is pretty unusual in any man's football game. Duke's eight was accounted for by a touchdown and safety. The safety was the result of a blocked Tar Baby kick behind the goal line, with Duke receiving the benefit of the two points. This was a lamentable feature of the young Heels' game throughout the entire afternoon. There were exactly three punts blocked by Duke, and, incidentally, recovered by them. Otherwise the Baby line played gallant defensive football, twice repulsing the Imps in the very shadow of the goal. It was ragged, but it was a football game. It fairly exuded thrills for a pretty sizeable gathering down at Kenan. Chandler once dashed the entire length of the field for, supposedly, a touchdown, but was called back because, to start this run, he had scooped up an Imp fumble. The new rules prohibit the defensive team from advancing by means of a recovered fumble. This Chandler, by the way, played a beautifully consistent game all the afternoon, and his passes were something to think about.

Duke scored their lone touchdown after receiving a Carolina punt. By short, slashing line bucks the ball was finally carried over by Abbott. The try for point went flooey. The Tar Babies looked pretty bad in this first quarter, but they came back afterwards. On just about two passes, the Heelets went practically 50 precious yards, and crossed the goal line on a beautiful pass from Chandler to Thompson. The first pass, which put the ball in scoring territory, was from this same Chandler to Sickler. The Heelets then crossed the Imps by passing to Cole for the extra point. All the Imps rushed in to break up the kick—only there wasn't any. The half ended shortly after.

The first quarter of the first half showed the ball see-sawing back and forth in a punting duel between McDade and Combs. They came off with honors even. The second quarter contained fireworks. Carolina and Duke both scored, which left the score at the half: Carolina Frosh 7; Duke Frosh 6.

Duke kicked off to begin the second half. Duke was offside and was penalized. They kicked again and Chandler showed them a nice pair of heels—which evidently were not tarred—to bring the ball back to the 45 yard line. It was a nice run. The Babies completed one pass and attempted a punt which—this is monotonous—was broken up by Duke. Duke couldn't gain through the line and kicked. Terrible kick. Straight up. The Heelets' ball—but they didn't gain either. McDade kicked—this was one that he did get off. Four Babies covered the Duke receiver like a blanket. Duke got a first down by a pass. The air was quite popular. A Baby back intercepted the next one—and the Heelets turned their eyes to the goal—about 50 yards away. Duke decided to keep abreast of the time and intercepted a pass also. Duke then tried passes galore — but all failed and the ball went over. Ferebee—a substitute Baby back—made a nice run—but he had to come back because of offside. No more gain and the Heelets punted. Duke completed several short passes in succession and then attempted an end run, but after it was over the Imps were just ten yards further back towards their own goal. Ferebee was the man who stopped them.

Another pass incomplete and it was the Heelets' ball. No gain and a penalty and — Duke blocked another punt. And the Babies were right on the goal line. Then the Tar Baby line impersonated a big stone wall with telling effect. For four downs the Imp backs vainly tried to puncture the gray line. But the ball went over. The Babies got off a short kick to the 30 yard line and the Imps started over again. Duke completed a beautiful pass to the 15 yard line. Line bucks took it to the four yard line, where again the Tar Babies made a wonderful stand with their backs to the wall. The Imps just couldn't gain through the line. They were pushed back in fact. Shades of the varsity! The ball went over and the Babies tried one thrust at the line.

On the next play McDade attempted a boot which was blocked by a blue-jerseyed Imp, and though Carolina recovered, the ball was behind the goal line, and two points were chalked up on the Duke side of the ledger.

It was heartbreaking to the frosh to lose on something like that after making such gallant stands on the goal line. The score was then Duke 8, Carolina 7.

The ball was put in play by a free kick. The game ended with two beautiful passes from Chandler to Thompson, and Chandler to Walker. The ball was in midfield in the Tar Babies' possession as the whistle blew.

McDade, a big tackle, was a consistently good man, even though he was somewhat slow in getting his kicks off. Walker, at right end, played a nice brand of football, along with Thompson and Ferebee, halfbacks. Chandler was, perhaps, the individual star. His passes and returning of punts made him outstanding. The Tar Babies showed a lack of coordination—but what can one expect when they have to spend their time emulating cannon fodder for the Varsity. Coombs at quarter, Abbott at half and Warner at guard played well for Duke.

Fullback Harden

"Pap" Harden played a jam up good game against Georgia Tech. Those Tech passes could not be completed when he was in there.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S NOTICE

The young people of the United Church will meet tonight with the young people of the Methodist church to hear E. E. Barnett at 8 o'clock.

The Sport Pan

There is no reason now for the Tar Heels to lose any of their remaining games. They amply demonstrated Friday that they can stack up with the best in the south and come out on top. Tech shot the works against Carolina, but the Heels were right there when the final whistle sounded with a two touchdown lead. It has been said in the past that Carolina suffered from stage fright when it played big teams. Perhaps there was a lot to that, but this year they seem to have outgrown any inferiority complex they may have felt in the past.

In glancing over the remainder of the Carolina schedule we notice several tough spots. Georgia will be tough next Saturday. The Athens team began the season with a bunch of sophomores doing the heavy work. But sophomores can cause a lot of worry. Glance back at Carolina's array of sophomore backs in 1928 for reference. V. P. I. always has a hard running, flashy set of backs. The return of McEver, Tomko, and Rice strengthened their attack considerably and they are likely to present a powerful threat.

State hasn't shown the power of former years, but they do have a scrappy team. However, a team can't go forever without power. South Carolina has Zobel and Rhame behind a hard charging line. Neither played against the Heels last year, but Zobel hasn't been tied down with injuries this season, and Rhame seems to be a hard running boy. Davidson is in somewhat the same class as State. They don't mind tackling the big boys, but they lack real power.

Virginia and Duke should be the toughest of the remaining teams. Both enjoy giving Carolina a scrap and both would like to top off their seasons with victories over the Heels. Earl Abel has a smart team at Virginia. The Cavalier schedule doesn't call for any game which will leave Virginia hobbling as the Princeton contest did last fall. They have a fast backfield with four regulars from the 1928 eleven back and two good sophs to fill in.

Duke's telegram to radio station WPTF in Raleigh Friday night indicates what they are planning to do. The sports columnist of the Duke Chronicle quotes Coach DeHart as follows: "In my opinion, Duke will beat any team we play in the south this year." The columnist, "Herb," seems to have the same idea. Duke has as much potential strength as any coach could wish. But whether they utilize it all is another matter. The former prep and high school stars on the Blue Devil roster would ease any coach's worry. But it's rather early to figure on that game. Some eight weeks with six games remain before the game.

More About Duke

For some reason the idea is about that the Tar Heel is attempting to promote ill-feeling between Duke and Carolina. Nothing is further from the intentions of this end of the line. We think they have a nice school over there. Their teams are listing big contests. Their endowment fund attracts nation-wide comment. Our only objection is that "Herb", either carried away by the enthusiasm aroused by thoughts of a victory over Carolina or by disillusionment caused by a Carolina victory is prone to make rash statements. Last spring his column carried a lot of stuff about a lot on non-existing titles. All the titles existed and Carolina held them all at that time. We merely attempt to correct false impression which might reflect back on either of the two institutions were they to gain wide circulations.

Comments between student papers of rival schools have been quite in order since Harvard and Princeton started their row several years back.

Dedication of Library To Take Place Oct. 19

(Continued from page one)

and ornamental ceiling. On the left is the reserve reading room, with a large alcove, and on the right a second reserve reading room. To the rear of the entrance hall is a corridor 12 feet wide, at the west end of which are three large seminar rooms, and offices for the librarian and his administrative assistants.

The second floor is approached from the first floor by a double staircase which leads directly into the delivery room, the delivery room being between the stack room and the reading rooms. The reading room consisting of a circular rotunda and two large flanking rooms, extends entirely across the front of the building and is easily accessible from the stairs and from the delivery room.

The remainder of the second floor is taken up by the cataloging room, periodical room, periodical storage, stack room, stair halls, and part of the stacks.

The third or top story is occupied by the upper part of the main reading room, eight seminar rooms, a reading room for the blind, typewriting rooms, light shaft, upper portion of stack room, and stair halls.

In the basement are the library extension department, library instruction room, staff room, rural social economics reading room, North Carolina reading room, repair room, receiving and shipping room, janitor's work room, two seminar rooms and two offices, as well as a large vault, rest room, storage room, and stair halls. A book conveyor to bring books from either stack room to the delivery desk and vice-versa, as well as a stack room elevator serving all the nine tiers of book stacks is included.

Uses of the Three Floors

The first floor will be used chiefly for reserved readings assigned by the different departments, particularly those assigned the freshman and sophomore classes.

On the second floor provision is to be made for seating some 400 students for advanced study and reference.

The seminar rooms will be found on the third floor, which will be devoted largely to graduate work study.

The building is so arranged that it will not only contribute greatly to the work of the undergraduate student body but will be of special significance to the more than 600 graduate students who are enrolled in the University from 30 states during the regular and summer sessions.

It is the hope of the University to make the occasion of the opening of the building significant through provision of endowment funds for special collections and particularly through the enrichment of bibliographical holdings and collections of southern materials.

To Build Up Collections

With the new building greater energy will be devoted to the University's plan of building up a great North Carolina-Southern collection. Achievement in this field will turn the eyes of the nation upon the University just as California, through the Bancroft, and Michigan, through the Clements collection, have gained national fame. The provision of such a building will automatically stimulate the giving of collections.

The new building will make possible the centralization of the different departmental libraries, especially the closer unification of the materials of the department of rural social science and highly specialized North Carolina materials already in the main library.

The installation of the Library of Congress depository card catalogue set constitutes perhaps the most significant single improvement that the library has made in its long history of service. This catalogue contains approximately 1,025,000 cards and is a duplicate of the author catalogue of the Library of Congress, which is the second largest library in the world. Both titles and authors, as well as other information of a bibliographical nature, appears on the cards.

By comparison with other leading university libraries in the country, the library here now ranks 26th in the number of volumes; 14th in volumes added last year; 22nd in expenditure for books; 19th in appropriation; 25th in number of staff, and 21st in amount paid for salaries.

The modern library structure is not merely an edifice architecturally acceptable in proportion and decoration. The building's plan and equipment are a concrete expression of the organization of the library within. Ideally speaking, the new library building at Chapel Hill is the expression of the dignity of learning; practically, it is planned with cold and remorseless efficiency. Every inch of space in it has been utilized for one purpose: to house books and make these books available to persons who want to use them.

It would take a great deal of space to list all of Dr. Wilson's diverse activities. He is also director of the University press, a governor of the instutute for research in social science, and associate editor of Social Forces, the University News Letter, and the Alumni Review, and has been active in the affairs of the Southern Education Association. He was formerly director of the University extension division and editor of the Alumni Review, doing pioneer work in both instances.

Beneath Dr. Wilson's disarming manner is to be found a capacity for hard work, an unusual ability in organization and administration, and a keen fidelity to duty that has made him a vigorous and dependable leader.

ROMANCE OF N. C. PLAYMAKERS TOLD BY KOCH

(Continued from page one)

history of the Playmakers building, referring to the appropriation made by the trustees of the University, as well as a $13,000 sum which the Carnegie foundation donated for the furnishing of the building.

The slides showed the development of the Dakota Playmakers where Professor Koch was a guiding genius before coming to North Carolina. Scenes from early plays produced by the Carolina Playmakers were shown and in general gave students and others in the audience from foreign states an insight into the methods employed by the famous theater organization in Chapel Hill.

Sigma Phi Sigma announces the pledging of Henry Elbert Gibbons, Jr., of Hamlet, N. C.

LIBERAL REWARD
FOR RETURN OF HAT
Light Gray Brill Bros. Hat
RETURN TO 205 SOUTH BUILDING

Victor, Columbia & Brunswick Records

University Book and Stationery Co.

Next To Sutton's Drug Store

"YOU, WHO ARE JUDGING ME, ARE GUILTY!"

Ruth Chatterton's GREATEST TRIUMPH
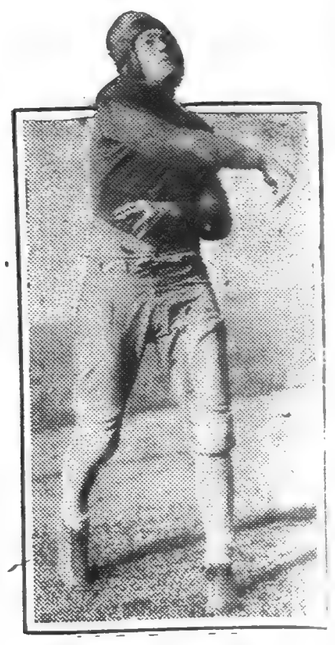
"MADAME X"
with
Lewis Stone - Raymond Hackett

Broadway's blase reviewers were moved to a chorus of praise rarely accorded a picture by the great emotional acting of Ruth Chatterton and the other stars in this stirring drama of a woman alone in a world of men.

EXTRA ADDED ATTRACTION
Pictures of the Tech - Carolina football Game.
also
"Old Black Joe"
(Screen Song)

Monday
CAROLINA THEATRE



TUES.
Dolories Del Rio
in
"EVANGELINE"

WED. - THURS.
Betty Compson
in
"ON WITH THE SHOW"

ON TO A

CHAMPIONSHIP!!

Tech Did It. Tar Heels Beat Tech

MAGNER
Halfback

TAR HEELS CAN DO IT!

CAPTAIN FARRIS, GUARD

Chapel Hill MERCHANTS Congratulate and are proud of North Carolina's Great Team

JOHNNIE BRANCH Quarterback

Carolina Grill	Paul Thompson, Chesterfield Representative
Bus Drink Stand	Johnson-Prevost Dry Cleaning Co.
Carolina Barber Shop	University Cafeteria
Andrews-Henninger	Stetson "D"
Students' Supply Store	Patterson Bros.
J. J. Nebbens, University Barber Shop	The Carolina Theatre, One of the Publix-Saenger Theatres in North Carolina
Carolina Dry Cleaners	Eubanks Drug Company
University Shoe Shop	O'Kelly Tailoring Company
Orange Print Shop and The Chapel Hill Weekly	Electric & Water Division, U. C. S. P.

STRUD NASH
Halfback

FOOTBALL TALKS
10:30 Today
MEMORIAL HALL

The Daily Tar Heel

FOOTBALL TALKS
10:30 Today
MEMORIAL HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1929 | NUMBER 22

HENDERSON GIVES BOOKS TO LIBRARY

Acquisition of Rare American Volumes Announced By University.

The library, to dedicate its new $625,000 home on Saturday, has just announced the acquisition of a splendid and large collection of some 650 volumes of American plays, richly illustrating the history of the American theatre, the gift of Dr. Archibald Henderson, author and head of the mathematics department.

Many of the items in the collection are rare and valuable, especially those of the first half of the nineteenth century, and can be duplicated only with great difficulty. All of them are of the greatest interest to literary students and to students of social history.

Dr. Henderson carefully built the collection over a long period of years. The Henderson collection is not exhaustive, but, representing almost every phase of the changing taste of American theatre-goers of the period as it does, is considered highly valuable.

Here, for example, is the manuscript of "Oscar and Malvina, a Pantomine," by O. Byrne' dated 1792, a relic of the days when everybody was reading McPherson's "Ossian" and everybody believed that Ossian was a great epic poet, probably equal to Homer. An edition of Mrs. Susannah Howson's "Slaves in Algiers," printed in Philadelphia in 1794, recalls the Barbary pirates and the war in which the little American navy ended a tradition of robbery on the high seas which all the powers of Europe had not exterminated.

Here, too, are Mrs. Mercy Warren's "Poems" and her dramatic pieces which stimulated Revolutionary patriotism; and here are some of the pieces with which William Dunlop, the Belasco of the eighteenth century,

(Continued on page four)

Isadora Duncan Dancers Are Given Enthusiastic Ovation During Recent Performances

Critical Press Unanimous In Its Praise of These Unique Artists; To Be Here at University Wednesday Night.

The Isadora Duncan dancers will be the first attraction of the season offered by the student entertainment committee, and will give their performance in Memorial hall on Wednesday night at 8:30. The doors will be open for the performance at 8 o'clock, when those with season tickets will be admitted. Single admission tickets will go on sale when those with season tickets have been admitted. Season tickets for the student entertainment attractions are on sale now at $3. Single admission to the performance Wednesday evening will be $1.50.

The Isadora Duncan dancers opened their 30-week tour for the coming season at Carnegie Hall on Sunday evening, October 6, attracting a capacity audience that accorded the youthful Russian dancers a spontaneous and enthusiastic ovation. Three additional performances at Carnegie Hall on the evening of October 7 and the afternoon and evening of October 12, were sold out in advance.

Again the critical press was unanimous in its praise of these unique artists. Leonard Liebling of the New York American headed his column with the caption, "Delightful Art at Recital by Gifted Duncan Dancers." He further stated: "Lovely and delightful were the expositions witnessed last evening, beginning with the illustrations of the Schubert's C major Symphony. The entire company, Irma included, wafted themselves lissomly and beautifully about the carpeted stage. . . . enthusiastic plaudits greeted all the exhibitions."

Mary F. Watkins, in the Herald Tribune, had this to say: "A year of popularity has laid no apparent blight upon the lustre of their ardent spirits; the weariness of constant travel and excitement has left almost untouched the bloom of their rich vitality and grace; they come back to us unchanged in charm."

The critic of The World finds that "they seem to have the faculty for making even the most hackneyed of numbers take on a spontaneity and charm . . . on the whole, the program was extremely refreshing and the audience received it with enthusiasm." From the New York Times: "Duncan Dancers Give a Charming Program . . . Performance is witnessed by a large and enthusiastic audience."

The Evening Sun: "The entertainment, as a whole was charmingly enhanced by the captivating youth, grace and spirit of each individual dancer."

The Evening Post: "The last group, made up of Russian numbers, so popular in the recitals last spring, received the most enthusiastic applause of the evening."

In order to satisfy a popular demand, S. Hurok, the manager of the Isadora Duncan dancers, is bringing them back to New York for a special return engagement on Saturday, December 28.

The executive committee of the University recommended coeducation at Carolina after the Civil War, but the Board of Trustees refused to admit female students.

Deadline For Fraternity Bids

All fraternity bids must be turned in to Jimmie Williams, Secretary of the Inter-Fraternity council, at the Pi Kappa Phi house by ten o'clock tonight. Also a check of five dollars to cover the cost of sending notices to freshmen and other work connected with handling the bids should be sent to Williams at the same time.

Engineers Get Plane But No Flying Allowed

According to Professor Hoefer, head of the department of mechanical engineering, that department is to have an aeroplane. An application has been in to the War department since October 28, 1928, and yesterday Professor Hoefer received a communication from the air corps of the War department saying that a plane was available to the University of North Carolina, and if accepted would be sent at once.

The plane is placed here by the War department for the University and is not to be flown. It is to be assembled in the mechanical laboratory at Phillips hall. The plan is a two seater, VE-9 type with engine. It is 29 feet five and three-eigths inches long, and has a span of 34 feet five and three-eighths inches.

This is to be shipped from Wright field at Dayton, Ohio, and is expected to reach Chapel Hill within the next few weeks.

Intercollegiate debating was introduced to the University during the school year of 1899-1900. The first contests were with Vanderbilt and University of Georgia.

Chinese Not All Launderers, Some Scholars, Says Barnett

E. E. Barnett, University alumnus and former secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., lectured in chapel Monday morning on the subject, "The Chinese Situation Today." Mr. Barnett discussed chiefly the place of scholarship in Chinese political and social life, showing its extreme importance and influence.

Mr. Barnett remarked early in his lecture that rather than a land of launderers, as some might have supposed, China is a land of scholars. Yet, also, paradoxical as it may seem, China is a land of illiterates. These statements are reconciled by the facts that though over 80 per cent of the people are illiterate, scholarship is regarded as the highest of attainments. Furthermore, Chinese scholars, though few, are highly cultured.

Mr. Barnett explained that the mark of scholarship in China is the literary degree which is given upon the satisfactory passing of strenuous tests conducted by the government. He mentioned also that the literary degree is particularly important because it is necessary to holding public office. As a result of this fact, public officers are highly cultured men. However, until a few years ago there was this difficulty in the system: the tests for degrees were based solely upon classical knowledge; therefore men might and did frequently come to office who lacked a knowledge of practical and modern affairs.

Mr. Barnett stated that under the circumstances reformers naturally arose, and in 1905 they effected a complete change in the educational system. Since then Chinese students have developed an interest in wider education, and thousands even have come to America in search of the "new learning."

The China of today, Mr. Barnett declared, is being built under the leadership of the students. They are not merely meddling in politics but are soberly and earnestly endeavoring to uplift Chinese life.

Mr. Barnett described another particularly progressive step of the Chinese in these words: "The students are looking to the future and not to the past as the Chinese have long done. Also, the Christian students are looking much to Christ, not as they hear of him, but as they read of him in the New Testament."

Finally Mr. Barnett requested a larger place in the interests and sympathies of American students for these ardent young scholars, who are "attempting to build not only a new nation but a new world as well."

BARNETT TALKS ABOUT CHINESE

China Offers Blind Opposition To All Western Faiths Says Y. M. C. A. Worker.

Eugene E. Barnett, who has been for the past 20 years in charge of the Y work in China, gave a very interesting lecture Sunday morning in the Methodist church on the present condition of China today.

Mr. Barnett, having seen much of the conditions of China, stated that the missionary movement in China would succeed only as the churches in China became more Chinese in personnel and assumed Christianity voluntarily.

After outlining the movements in the previous missionary approaches to China and pointing out their weaknesses, Mr. Barnett described the modern era of missionary development as being characterized by blind opposition on the part of the Chinese to all Western faiths, by superficial popularity of Christianity, and by the subjection of all religions to intelligent criticism and scruples.

"This situation in China," continued Mr. Barnett, "was an outgrowth of the previous attempts of missionaries. In the seventh century the Nestorians went to China with the aim of Christianizing this ancient nation. This movement failed, because it did not establish among the masses a laity through which to imbed the Nestorian principles in the hearts of the people. Then came the Franciscans in the thirteenth century. This movement also failed, but this time because it insisted on Europeanizing the Chinese. The sixteenth century brought the Jesuits with their bickering and division among themselves. All of this was followed by the modern era with its superficiality and criticism."

Mr. Barnett became very optimistic when he began discussing the outlook of the missionary situation in China today. "After a hundred years of blind opposition to all western religions, the Boxer uprising brought the Chinese to a realization of their weakness and initiated a new era for Christianity in China," says Mr. Barnett.

"Now we face a period in which our religion is being subjected to the most intelligent scruples. This brings us face to face with two difficulties; the one growing out of the spirit of nationalism and the other out of the spirit of rationalism. But I do not think there will be any miracles performed to save the church in China. It will survive if it has the elements essential to a survival. One thing that makes the outlook particularly bright is that there came to birth in 1900 in China a church that is Chinese."

Mr. Barnett continued by saying that out of the ten ministers in China today, six of them are Christian, two of these being former Y secretaries. Out of the 400,000,000 inhabitants in China only 400,000 of them are Christians (one Christian to every thousand Chinamen), yet this small band of Christians seem to be the leaders of the present Chinese government.

Mr. Barnett spoke again Sunday night along practically the same lines on which he spoke that morning. Mr. Barnett goes from here to Duke university to deliver an address in chapel.

Fraternity Rushing Season To End At Midnight Tonight

Leaders Are Mustering All Forces to Secure Best Prospects; Final Selections To Be Made Thursday.

Rushing of freshmen by the fraternities on the campus will end at midnight tonight with the tolling of the bell in South building. An extended "man hunt" against more than 500 freshmen will end at that time.

Until Thursday afternoon when freshmen will be called to Memorial hall to make their selection, no fraternity man is allowed conversation with any freshman. Final selection by chosen freshmen will be made Thursday from bids given them by the various fraternities.

Rushing today is expected to reach new heights. With the decrease in the time remaining for fraternity talk with the freshmen, fraternity leaders are mustering all their forces in an effort to corner the best prospects on the "Hill." More than one fraternity is planning informal entertainments for freshmen tonight.

Rushing season opened 19 days ago with more than 500 freshmen visiting the fraternity houses. Two days following the inception of the rushing season were set aside for "date" visits. First year men who received bids during these two days were required to make a visit to the fraternity house tendering the bid.

Innovation this year of many new rules by the interfraternity council tended to lessen the strain both on the freshmen and the fraternity man. No rushing after 9 o'clock at night and no formal entertainments for the new men made the formerly exacting period one of comparative ease.

Fraternity leaders and faculty men interested in the fraternity situation early expressed satisfaction with the working of the new system.

Later developments and seeming infractions of the rules by fraternities have led those informed with the situation to believe that minor changes with greater penalty for digressions from the rules will be made by the council.

Annual Notice

The Yackety Yack staff will have an important meeting this afternoon at 2:30. All members are requested to be present and also those who wish to try out for the staff.

Adam and Eve Wore "Breeches" Says Bible Printed 1599

Old Work Donated To University by Rev. J. T. Mangum.

The latest addition to the University of North Carolina library, which is to dedicate its new $625,000 home next Saturday, is a valuable copy of the rare so-called "Breeches" Bible, printed in London in 1599, the gift of Rev. J. T. Mangum of Lexington, a trustee.

This translation derived the name "Breeches Bible" from the fact that the word "breeches" is used instead of "apron" to indicate the garments made by Adam and Eve as described in Genesis iii:9. The translation was made in 1560 at Geneva, Switzerland, by the Calvinists exiled from England.

This edition of the English Bible was the first to be divided into verses. It was intended for popular usage and for this reason usually appears as a modest quarto in small type. The copy presented to the University is a quarto about two and one-half inches thick, ornamented with woodcut maps and pictures of Biblical characters.

The Psalms appear in a special section at the back of the book in a metrical version by Sternhold and Hopkins. The words are accompanied by music.

The printers of the library's copy, "The deputies of Christopher Barker, printers to her Majestie," held the sole right to print the Bible. The founder of the company, Christopher Barker, was the first to print the "Breeches" Bible. The library's copy represents a later edition published after he had retired.

Sigma Delta announces the pledging of Robert Hodges of Winston-Salem, and F. O. Carver, Jr., of Roxboro.

Playlikers Give Program Before Capacity Audience

(By Sherman Shore)

The Playlikers, dramatic organization of N. C. C. W., presented their first play of the season, "The First Year," Saturday night in the college auditorium. The Playlikers have become an important part in the college activities since the organization of the group, and their success was conclusively attested by the huge audience of several thousand who came out to witness the play.

Practically all the stage settings, scenery and costumes are arranged and designed by students, and at the end of the first scene of the play the curtain was raised to permit the audience to see the change of scenes.

"The First Year" was written by Frank Craven, and is fairly typical of the present-day generation. An only daughter is faced with the problem of deciding between two young men of vastly different types. One is the confident, ambitious kind who wants to go places and do things; the other is just a "slow and steady" who doesn't care to venture outside his own element. Her choice and the subsequent events combine to portray early marriage life in all its seriousness, and at the same time to intersplice some spicy bits of humor.

The acting was good, and the greatest interest was shown throughout the play. Miss Frances Padgett, who played the stellar feminine role, carried off her part in a very convincing manner, as did the others of the cast. Perhaps the cleverest bit of acting was that of Miss Delia Grant who played the part of "Hattie," a nondescript negro girl. Although only a minor role, it required some good acting to portray successfully this character, and Miss Grant did her part wonderfully.

Four other plays have been selected by the Playlikers for presentation during the coming year. The next will be Martin Flavin's "Children of the Moon" to be given November 2.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Tuesday, October 15, 1929

A Momentous Week-End

One of the most important events in the University's history will occur here next Saturday morning, when the new library, largest and most beautiful building on the campus, will be dedicated. An impressive ceremony has been arranged for the christening of the new building, which will begin at 10:30 Saturday morning.

A deplorable lack of interest has been exhibited toward important events in University history by the students during the past few years. Last Saturday was Founder's Day, but very few students were aware of the fact; a still smaller number understood the significance of the celebration, which is rich in traditions formulated during the long period of service rendered by the University to the state.

The dedication of the new library Saturday will go down in the annals of University history as the beginning of a new era in the institution's development. Dean Shailer Mathews of the school of divinity, University of Chicago, will preach at a union service of all Chapel Hill denominations in Memorial hall Sunday morning. His sermon will feature the Sunday program, which will conclude the dedication ceremonies and the University's part in the state home-coming celebration. Dean Mathews' sermon in particular should be heard by every student.

History will be in the making here this week-end; it is to be hoped that the students will arouse from their apathy long enough to participate wholeheartedly in every phase of the dedication program and homecoming celebration.

High Pressure

This is the last day of rushing season—but what a day it's going to be! With the time extended till twelve o'clock or thereabouts all fraternal groups are mustering their forces for the last offensive. Those fraternities which have already made of their desirable rushees practical sureties will be ready to put forth every effort to keep them from changing their minds; while those which have not been so fortunate will be prepared to fight—with words, or otherwise—if necessary.

A fraternity is prone to be somewhat Napoleonic in its being ruthless while rushing prospects. This is not the case with many, although it is a well-known fact that the slashing of throats is a widespread practice and something of an art. It has no doubt been going on for the past eighteen days or so, but if things follow the usual trend it will proceed with an intensity and commensurate skill on the part of the Greeks today and tonight, the equal of which has been seen never before by the freshman.

Best friends will be wiring freshmen to go this way or that. Interested girls will be employing all their persuasive powers, and parents and relatives will be either advising or commanding. In fact, a thousand and one new factors can, and most probably will, be brought into light for the average freshman who is considering joining a fraternity to ponder upon.

While all these high pressure tactics are being used, it would be well worth the freshman's while to consider the situation critically and with a level head. The last day of rushing season is too apt to have its atmosphere saturated with the emotional and sentimental.

—B.M.

The West Talks And the East Fights

Yesterday's news dispatches from China told of new outbreaks along the Russian border, of the growing probability of war with Russia, of an imminent civil war, bigger and better than ever, of the slow starvation of a whole district, and of immense suffering in the threatened area. Russian trouble seems to be promoting the civil strife. Open fighting continues along the border, although both nations have declared war unthinkable and have agreed to submit the quarrel to the League of Nations for settlement. General chaotic conditions prevail as a result of the Manchurian Railroad seizure.

While the East fights and prepares for bigger fights, the West is talking peace. Premier MacDonald has just paid us a visit to give his assurance that Great Britain has nothing but a friendly and peaceful attitude; the Kellogg peace pact outlawing war has just been proclaimed by President Hoover; "high pressure" publicity has been called in for the aid of peace. The World Court will soon open for its fall sittings; the League of Nations has just assembled and laid the cornerstone of its new building, a symbol of world peace.

In the West the air is charged with peace talk; yet in China and Russia actual fighting is going on, and all the aspects of war are evident. Armies with a greater potential strength than those in the World War can be mobilized from these two nations. The West is carrying its scientific war tools and inventions to the East and teaching the use of these. A large fraction of the world's population and territory is affected by this struggle.

What will be the result of these conditions? Is Western civilization powerless to intervene and keep down another great war? Are all the plans and organizations for peace only vain chatter? We wonder what will be the strength of peace when the armies begin to move, the cannons begin to shoot, and millions of people prepare for war. Was the "war to end war" a mere figure of speech?—J. D. M.

The Second Speaker on the Y. M. C. A. Program

A distinguished alumnus of Carolina returned here Sunday after an absence of many years spent on foreign soil. He left Chapel Hill as a Y. M. C. A. secretary, and during his stay in China, in which country he has seen most extensive service, he has been intimately associated with the Y. M. C. A. But it was not merely as a representative of that organization that he spoke here Sunday and yesterday; it was as a reputedly keen observer of the Chinese situation.

Eugene E. Barnett, the man referred to, has witnessed a part of one of the greatest revolutions of our time, the Chinese revolt against vested foreign interests. He was on the job during the most critical phase of the internal conflict. So tense was the situation, it is said, that the Barnett family was prepared for two months to flee from Shanghai in twelve hours notice. But Barnett and his family remained there, and it was in that position that especially the former was enabled to get a close-up of the scene as it actually was. Barnett, according to all reports, knows China and the tendencies at work there today. He is thus qualified to give first-hand information about one of the most turbulent parts of the world, about a situation and a problem which appear to the eyes of all intelligent people as demanding thought.

The Barnett series of lectures came as the second group on the Y. M. C. A. program for the year. The first group, which was conducted by Dr. F. M. Seerley, proved highly satisfactory to those in charge. It is to be hoped that the response on the part of students to the remaining features of the program will be great enough to warrant the bringing here of more men like Mr. Barnett and Colonel Hurley, assistant secretary of war, who will probably speak here very soon.—B. M.

Readers' Opinions

Editor Daily Tar Heel:

THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

Dedication Day, October 19, 1929

(By William Thornton Whitsett, '90.)

Temple of tomes, thy stately grace
Adorns this proud October hour!
Within thy wall, the mighty race
Of deathless souls, undying power!

Still walks the earth with echoing tread
The gone but unforgotten soul
That keeps its way all scant of bread
Where Wisdom's mighty waters roll.

Here long within thy classic shade
Shall sages pause and drink their fill;
Shall weave for thee their accolade,
Beside these waters deep and still.

A thousand wheels shall sing the song
Of gain and gold and goods and pelf.
But to this spot shall e'er belong
Communion rich of self with self.

Forever here this torch shall burn,
Serene and star-like, full and free;
Perchance, some dreamer here may turn
A phrase to live immortally.

Phi Calendar

Resolved: That a committee should be appointed to investigate why the Tar Heel is not carrying news of state and national interest as it promised in its campaign to become a daily.

That the Phi assembly approves of complete and equal reciprocity among the big five in the admission of their student bodies to athletic contests held between them.

That the Phi assembly indorses the movement to establish world peace, now being led by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

Merely Meandering

john mebane

COUPLETS ON OCCASION

The Scholar Passes
(A Lament)

Professor Foerster says that we
Have eyes with which we do not see.
At least, we see, but not aright,
To us the day is but as night.
We study but our methods are
As far from right as earth from star.
Of course that trope's a little strong,
But not so very far from wrong.
("O, how various is the scene,
"You know exactly what I mean.")
This is not the scholar's age,
That of savant or of sage;
The Yo Yo is our chief delight,
We spin the top and sail the kite.
We drink not of Pierian spring;
We only stand and pull the string!

Repent

We have no pity in this age—
(The observation of a sage)
We stand for self; for self we pray
The livelong night, the livelong day.
We neither help the thieves and crooks
(Who have no learning from our books)
Nor sympathize with Esquimaux
Who suffer from excessive snows.
Ah, what a wretched race are we
Who do not have the eyes to see
The sorrows of our fellow-man,
Nor reach the little girls a hand.
Sackcloth and ashes are our need,
We, who sow so wild a seed.
Let us repent ere it's too late
And choose the narrow path and straight.

'Tis Spring!

See the flowers—ah, 'tis spring!
See the sparrows on the wing!
See the trees spread out in bloom,
Smell the fragrance in the room.
See the skirts the lassies wear,
O, 'tis more than we can bare!
See the youngsters skip and dance;
Girls with dresses, boys with pants.
Hear the jazz-band in the park,
See the wing upon the lark.
See the hillside there dew-pearled,
The ladies with their hair uncurled.
When lads and lassies 'gin to sing,
We know that it's precisely spring.

Modern Poetry

If you desire a recipe,
Here's how we write our poetry:
This modern verse is writ by rules
Of poets in fanatic schools.
A poet in this day and time
Must be half mad to write a rhyme.
And manners strange and actions queer
Give them a start on their career.
Possessed with countenances droll
They have advanced quite near their goal.
They never comb unruly hair;
In talking they assume a stare.
A poet, often, must rehearse
To fit himself to his verse.
And if their looks are fit for trade,
Their genius is no more delayed.
They wrack for topics for their piece
And, wracking, feel their wrath increase.
They storm about their rooms and curse
And find no topics for their verse.
In recognition of their plight
They hurl their inkpots into night;
Realizing such an act inane,
They bring them quickly back again.
No thought is needed; no thought writ;
For poets have recourse to wit.
The leading aid he always gets
Is that from Webster's and Roget's.
A string of words a yard in length
Gives poetry a look of strength.
Uncapped letters are the fad;
Punctuation is not had.
There is no measure for a line:
One has two beats; one has nine.
Words' lengths are measured by a rule
And wound like thread from off a spool.
Quite frequently new words are coined
And other verses are purloined.
A poem must mention or suggest
A head upon a lover's breast;
Or substitute if it desires,
"Her blazing eyes shone like two fires."
Cummings, Stephens and James Joyce
Shout with vigor and loud voice;
While Gertrude Stein, a humble maid,
Sets adjectives upon parade.
Come, let us share the fate of those
Who put their feelings into prose!

College Life

Daniel at Harvard

A. F. Daniel, who finished here in 1927, is at Harvard this year as a research assistant to a member of the department of electrical engineering.

Mr. Daniel obtained his masters degree from the University of Chicago in 1928.

CAROLINA THEATRE
TODAY
DOLORES DEL RIO
as "Evangeline"
in
Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's
Immortal Love Epic
ADDED
"POSTMORTEMS"
All Talking Comedy
Vitaphone Vaudeville
WED. - THUR.
Betty Compson
in
"On With the Show"

Co-eds To Give Dance

The girl students of the University are to give a [illegible] dance next Friday night in Spencer hall. Invitations will be issued through the [illegible]. All co-eds are requested to [illegible] in the names of those [illegible] they wish to invite to the council before tonight.

Jack Wardlaw and his orchestra will furnish music for the occasion. This dance is expected to be the best and largest [illegible] staged by the co-eds.

Tobacco's at its best . . . in a pipe

MEN'S preference for a man's smoke—the pipe—is plenty positive. But do you know why? We'll tell you.

First, pipe tobacco's different—for instance, Edgeworth. Second, tobacco smolders as it should in a pipe. And third, these mean you get more satisfaction—greater relish of the good old savory burley, soothing fullness of rich smoke.

There's even a fourth reason: you like good company. The pipe-smoking brotherhood is that.

Tobacco's at its best in a pipe. It gets a chance to be itself there—to loosen up as it comes to life, to expand and take in air and glow. Only the choicest leaves get that chance, moreover, for pipes tell the truth about tobacco. Choice leaves, choice blends, and mighty careful handling. Edgeworth comes up through eleven distinct processes before we're willing to pass it on to you.

If you keep on missing all this, that's your fault—for we're waiting to send you your first pipefuls of Edgeworth. See the coupon? Fill it out, get a good pipe and the postman will bring you a neat little glad-to-meet-you packet of good old Edgeworth.

Edgeworth is a careful blend of fine tobaccos—selected especially for pipe smoking. Its quality and flavor never change. Buy it anywhere—"Ready Rubbed" and "Plug Slice"—15¢ pocket package to pound humidor tin

EDGEWORTH

LARUS & BRO. CO.,
Richmond, Va.

I'll try your Edgeworth. And I'll try it in a good pipe.

Name _____

Street _____

Town and State _____

Now let the Edgeworth come!

Tar Heels Face Tough Georgia Eleven In Homecoming Contest

Conquerors of Georgia Tech Welcomed Home; Holt, Spaulding, and House Expected To Be Ready for Big Game.

The Tar Heels are going to hurl full strength against Georgia Saturday, if you believe Chuck Quinlan, genial Tar Heel trainer.

Near a dozen men were knocked and banged up in the hard-charging, furiously - fought Georgia Tech game. But Coach Quinlan, at the close of today's first workout for Georgia, announced it to be his opinion that "we won't be short a man Saturday, except Wyrick, who, of course, will be out for some weeks yet."

That means Henry House, charging fullback, out two games with a pulled muscle; and Strud Nash and Yank Spaulding, banged up in the Tech game, will be in shape along with the other Heel speedsters.

That means Lipscomb, Farris, Eskew, Adkins and Koenig, who played such great football against Tech, will be back in top-form again. Good news for Tar Heel supporters!

With the Tar Heels victors over Tech's great Tornado, and the Bulldogs having conquered Yale's great eleven, this Tar Heel-Bulldog clash is holding the center of the Southern football stage and giving promise of one of the season's greatest games.

Georgia started off slow, but the Bulldogs left no doubt as to their strength when they whipped Furman 27-0 and Yale 15-0 in successive Saturdays.

The Tar Heels have blazed full speed all season. They scored seven touchdowns on Wake Forest and seven on Maryland. They tallied three more against the great Tornado to give Tech its first Southern Conference licking since Alabama downed the Tornado in 1926. Stumpy Thomason scored one touchdown on the Tar Heels and that was the only time their goal has been crossed.

The sports writers, laying plans for a great move on Chapel Hill Saturday, are freely predicting that that game, whoever wins, is going to show this year's Southern Conference champions in action. The Tar Heels are thinking they'll need full strength.

Not only will the game prove a "battle of the backs," but the biggest fight promises to be between two hefty, hard-charging lines.

The Tar Heel line really came into its own against Tech. Lopscomb, Farris, Eskew, Adkins, Koenig and Fenner, of the veteran rank, all played super-ball. Nelson and Dortch, a couple of rookies, did just as well. Sport critics said the Tar Heels beat Tech principally because their line out-charged and out-fought Tech's great line, because they opened gaping holes for Carolina's fleet back to sweep thru. Over at Athens on Saturday it was the same thing. Take the word of Eddie Brietz, Associated Press sports writer, who commented on the great running of Armin Waugh, Georgia's big backfield noise, only to conclude: "But it was the Georgia line that won the game."

Smith and Balmer, Bulldog ends, brought to mind Georgia's all-American Nash and Shivar of a couple of seasons back. Captain Boland at center was in on every play. The whole line outrushed, out-charged, out-fought Old Eli.

Lipscomb, Farris, Eskew, Adkins and Koenig were all banged up a bit in the furiously fought Tech engagement, but Chuck Quinlan, Tar Heel trainer, said yesterday that everyone of the Tar Heels' fine forwards would be in shape Saturday.

(By Crawford McKethan)

Those Carolina men who withstood the temptation of journeying southward last week-end and remained at home did after all get a chance to see some football. In spite of the mass of press matter that had taken complete possession of the state papers last week concerning the two games in Georgia quite a few of the "stay-at-homes" did manage to dig down far enough to discover that the Tar Babies were playing the Duke freshmen. And those that did, got their money's worth.

The game lacked the culture and the smoothness that so clearly distinguishes freshman from varsity struggles, but in their place it furnished something for the entertainment of the thousand spectators that is not seen every day in the Big Time. The game was fought throughout with a bitterness and a determination that bespeaks all too clearly the intensiveness of the rivalry between the two neighboring institutions.

The Tar Babies lost and possibly they should have won; upon that point argument will do little good; but the fact remains that when backed to their very goal line on two successive drives they put up a fight of which any Carolina man may well be proud. Eight line smashes netted less than five yards. The fact that on the next play Duke blocked an attempted punt and scored the winning point is heartrending but it takes little from the beauty of the tale.

There's no getting around the fact that a one-point defeat in the last two minutes of play is pretty discouraging after you have held on to the big end of a score for almost half of the game. It's hard even for a varsity crew, veterans of more than one close struggle, to go back with only a minute and a half left to play and put up a fight that even looks like they're trying. You couldn't expect that of a freshman team. Not hardly, and you would more than likely look for another score from the opposition. But in spite of such thoughts, you who saw the last minute of Saturday's game must admit that such wasn't what happened. In exactly one and a quarter minutes the Tar Babies of "33 had kicked off from their 20 yard line, had recovered the ball, and had tossed some three successful passes toward the Duke goal line which had carried the ball past the center of the field.

That's the story; you can take it for what it is worth; the Tar Heel is still sticking to its policy of laying off too much praise for freshmen. However, we do say that there are several men on the first year squad that at least know how to scrap.

Action pictures of the University of Detroit's night football games will be rare. The floodlights lack actinic power needed for photographs.

Tickets Exchanged

Student tickets for the Georgia - Carolina football game may be exchanged in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. today, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, between the hours of 10:00 o'clock A. M. and 5:00 P. M.

"Swift" Magner

Jim Magner may not be classed a first string back on the Carolina football team, but when Coach Collins needs touchdowns and needs them in a hurry he usually sends the Philadelphia boy in and he usually gets the score. When Magner trots on the field the fireworks get underway.

Jim May Supply Much Of Tar Heel Punch Against Bulldogs

For flash the Tar Heel backfield can boast several backs that have Jim Magner beat, but when it comes to punch and drive and consistency it would be hard to find a back in any Southern camp who can beat the veteran left halfback.

Magner was one of the principal dynamos of power against Tech last Friday. Coach Collins hurled him in after Tech had scored. Magner was the main driving cog in the offense, and 25 and 7-yard off tackle thrusts by the veteran netted the Tar Heels' first two touchdowns. Besides running a great game, Magner was doing stellar pass heaving to Nash and looking just as great at taking spirals from Johnny Branch, and at backing up the Tar Heel defense line.

It was "Magner cum laudo," and Tar Heel supporters say Magner can't be stopped from making all-southern this year.

Just now the Tar Heels are prepping for Georgia, conqueror of Yale's mighty Old Eli., The sports clan are saying Saturday's game with the Bulldogs here is liable to crown the 1929 southern conference champions. And Jim Magner will undoubtedly be one of Coach Collins' principal aces, win or lose.

It seems it takes a hard game to make Magner do his best. He came into his own with a great exhibition against Harvard's superb eleven last year. He had off-days against easy teams. Then came hard tests with Virginia and Duke. Magner was the principal cog in the Tar Heel offensive both times. The Tar Heels beat Virginia 24-20 and Duke 14-7. These two games made him just about a unanimous selection for all-state fullback, despite the fact that he was a halfback.

Coach Collins saves Magner regularly, as a "trump card" to play when needed. He made a 65-yard touchdown spring on Maryland, and the game obviously sewed up, out he came. It took all the Tar Heels' strength to beat Tech, and Coach Collins gave the Tornado a more than liberal "dose of Magner." And unless the fans are mighty much mistaken, Saturday's Home-Coming day game will give the Bulldogs a more than liberal "dose of Magner."

TAR HEEL TENNIS TEAM FACES HARD BILL THIS YEAR

Matches Arranged With Many Of the Larger Northern and Eastern Universities.

Carolina's tennis team which last spring proved to be one of the strongest in the south faces a very stiff schedule this year. Due to the excellent showing made by the University racketeers during the last season, the athletic association has been able to arrange matches with many of the larger northern and eastern universities. Thus the necessity for the Tar Heels to put out a strong team this year is easily apparent.

Coach Kenfield, who has been instrumental in developing many potential stars during his regime here as coach of the tennis team, has his men working steadily now. However, several of the mainstays of last year's team have failed to return to the University. In order to fill these vacancies new material must be developed. Accordingly Coach Kenfield urges all men interested in tennis and who would like to go out for the team to report to the varsity courts as soon as possible. Daily practices are being held and in a short time rankings will be established and a tournament will be run off.

Ed Yoemans, last year's state singles champion; Scott, captain of last year's team, and Merritt, leader of the 1929 team, form the nucleus around which the team will be built. Last year's freshman team, which produced several good men, has proved somewhat disappointing in that only one or two of the leading members of that aggregation have returned to school this fall.

All places on the team are open and until the rankings are established the personnel of the squad remains unsettled. However, in view of the fact that the schedule for this year is the hardest ever tackled by a Carolina tennis team, all prospective candidates for positions are urged to come out and begin practice as soon as possible.

35 MEN REPORT FOR FALL TRACK

Captain Dave Nims Leads Cindermen in Early Work-outs; Heels Have Good Record.

The University of North Carolina trackmen, southern conference champions once and state champions exactly eight times in the last eight years, are laying plans already for next spring's campaign.

Thirty-five men answered the call and are working out and practicing daily, on strict training. Those 35 include all of next spring's track candidates except those out for football or cross country.

Graduation mowed down five Tar Heel aces last June—Harrison, Henderson, Stafford, Cowper and Harper. Still, the Tar Heels have 13 lettermen back next spring, and with the advantage of the fall training, Coaches Bob Fetzer and Dale Ranson are hoping to continue the fine Tar Heel record.

Captain Dave Nims, who does the quarter in 50.2 seconds and the half in 1 minute 58.3 seconds, heads the list of veterans returning.

Ken Gay and J. K. Smith will be back in the sprints, and Dick Garrett for the 440-yard dash. Minor Barkley, cross country captain, has another season, and Baucom, Cox and Brown will all be back in the distances. The other lettermen being counted on are Perry, hurdler; Adkins and Dameron, weight heavers; Neiman, vaulter and broad jumper, and Bagby, high jumper.

These men will be supplemented by a promising group of youngsters up from last year's state championship freshmen. Charlie Farmer, Wilmington ace who twice came within a fifth of a second of the Southern record for the 220, is the best prospect.

Others will be Slusser, Weil, and Case, members with Farmer of the team that won the freshman relays at the Georgia Tech relays; Phoenix, Pierce and Farris in the middle distances; Reid, hurdler, and Brown, javelin and weight man.

"Customed to Don or Customed to Measure"

Conclusive

Consider the many hours you spend in your clothes and how much of your ease and comfort and satisfaction and pride depends upon making the right selection—and you can come to only one conclusion—
LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES.

LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

"University Outfitters"

Governor Roosevelt To Be Here Today

Mr. R. B. House, Executive Secretary, wishes to announce that Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor of the state of New York, will pay an informal visit to the University today. He will be accompanied by Hon. Josephus Daniels and will arrive at South Building about three-thirty this afternoon.

Ray Farris To Talk Chapel Period Today

At the Chapel exercises today, Ray Farris, president of the student body and captain of the football team, and Jack Barrett, chief cheerleader, will be on the program.

They will talk on the Carolina-Tech football game and will announce the details of the Carolina-Georgia game next Saturday. Jack Barrett will announce plans for the cheers at the coming game.

Students From Many States In Playmaker Work at University

The enrollment in the playwriting and dramatics production course given by Professors Koch and Hubert Heffner reveals the fact that the Playmakers' activities have drawn students from many sections of the country. The members of these classes range from students specially enrolled in the University for dramatic work to graduate students who have had considerable experience in acting, writing plays, and in directing productions.

The states represented include Alabama, Texas, Connecticut, Georgia, Mississippi, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, New York, Virginia, South Carolina, Louisiana, Massachusetts, and California.

Among those students who have had considerable previous experience are R. G. Dawes, a graduate of Swathmore, who was in charge of student dramatic productions there last year; Joe Fox of Massachusetts, a former member of the "Maskers" at Amhurst; and A. J. Buttita, of New Orleans, who wrote several one-act plays which were successfully produced at the University of Texas last year.

Several of those interested in this work are taking courses both in playwriting and dramatic production. Co-eds make up approximately half of the enrollment.

N. C. STATE BAND MEMBERS CHOSEN

Raleigh, Oct. 14.—(Special) "The music supervisors and the music teachers in the public schools of the state are doing such a fine piece of work that it is now impossible for any institution not to have a creditable band," says "Daddy" Price, director of the musical organizations at N. C. State college.

Ten years ago, according to Mr. Price, about one or two men of the number applying for admission to the State College band, had had previous musical training, and many of the men who were members of the band in the early days of his directorship were actually taught the scales by Mr. Price.

In the last decade, Mr. Price has noted a gradual change in this condition, and he attributes the improvement in the personnel of the college bands to the musical training the students have received in the public schools.

Although a majority of the members of the band this year are from North Carolina, many other states are represented in the roster.

CONFERENCE RUN HERE NOVEMBER 23

Carolina Harriers Meet Duke, V. P. I. and State Before Title Race.

North Carolina's fleet harriers, rulers of Dixie hill-and-dale circles for three years running, will race V. P. I., N. C. State and Duke this year and bring their season to a close with participation in the southern conference championship meet to be held here November 23.

The schedule was announced here today. The Tar Heels are also endeavoring to arrange a state championship meet or an open amateur run. This would come around the first of December, as an anticlimax, but definite arrangements have not yet been completed.

Coaches Bob Fetzer and Dale Ranson are working a squad of 35 distance men daily in anticipation of this hard schedule.

There are six lettermen back, headed by Captain Minor Barkley, stellar Tar Heel miler, and a number of promising sophomore prospects.

The Tar Heels give indications of showing another fine cross country model, regardless of whether they can maintain their great record of three consecutive southern championships.

The lettermen back this year, besides Captain Barkley, are Walter Lowry, Creighton Wrenn, Bill Medford, Cliff Baucom and Morris Cohen.

Among the most promising of the sophomore prospects up from last year's freshman hill-and-dale squad are Clarence Phoenix, Jack Farris, George Pierce, Royall Brown, Henry Anderson, Paul Rhodes and J. C. Purser.

The V. P. I. meet is to be held at Blacksburg October 18. The Tar Heels will race N. C. State and Duke over the home course on November 2 and 8, with the conference meet to be held here November 23. The State and Duke meets will be over a four-mile course, the others over a five-mile course.

The Tar Baby harriers will engage the freshman teams of V. P. I., State and Duke the same days as their big brothers meet the V. P. I., State and Duke varsities. An open amateur road race is also pending for the freshman cross country men.

Open House at Library

Immediately after the Carolina-Georgia game Saturday afternoon there will be open house and a reception at the Library for the guests and visitors. Several thousands of invitations have been sent to librarians, governors, college presidents and deans, state superintendents of education and others who are interested in library work and education.

The faculty, student body, and town people are cordially invited to attend the dedication exercises and to inspect the new library.

Psychology I

Members of the class in psychology I are reminded that no lecture is to be given on Tuesday. The Thursday quiz is to be given as previously announced.—J. F. DASHIELL.

Goal posts at Iowa U. are of steel, anchored in six feet of concrete. A visiting team, celebrating a victory, once tore out the goal posts and took them home.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

DR. R. R. CLARK
Dentist
Over Bank of Chapel Hill
Phone 6251

CO-EDS BEAT BOYS

Pi Beta Phi sorority has pledged the following girls:

Kate Graham, Durham; Evelyn Way, Raleigh; Mary Laurena Withers, Raleigh; Elezada Feaster, Miami, Fla.; Lil Jackson, Mt. Pleasant, Tenn.; Edith Mangum, Lexington; Clyde Duncan, Beaufort; Adelaide McAnally, High Point; Virginia Turner, Weldon; Jean McAllister, Greensboro; Margaret Bullitt, Chapel Hill; Adelaide Reed, Beaumont, Texas; Josephine Hill, Burlington, and Elaine Wheatin, New York.

The Chi Omega Sorority pledged the following students: Misses Ruby Buck, Bald Mountain; Mary Chadbourn Norcross, Smithfield; Mary Watkins Price, Greensboro; Ida Currie, Clarkton; Kate Parks Kitchen, Scotland Neck; Louise Thacker, Greensboro; Edna Morisette, Elizabeth City; Elizabeth Hawland, Henderson; all of North Carolina. Miss Harriet Daniel, is from Clearwater, Florida. Georgia is represented by Miss Mary Borrough of Savannah, and Miss Catherine Sherard of Toccoa. From Tennessee comes Misses Mary Carter of Fayetteville and Dorothy Fooshe of Memphis.

Russell Speaks To Literature Class

Dr. Phillips Russell, eminent biographer and alumnus of the University, addressed Professor Paine's class in American literature yesterday on the subject of "How to Write." Dr. Russell explained his own method of writing, and gave some important facts which are helpful to students who are interested in writing.

"A mechanic," said Dr. Russell, "must secure an adequate supply of tools when he starts in his profession, but a writer must depend solely upon his vocabulary, and it is almost entirely on his choice of words that his future depends."

College Novel Prize

College Humor and Doubleday, Doran have cooperated in offering $3,000 as a prize for a campus novel prize contest, a story of college life by the college generation. The contest is open to all college boys and girls enrolled in American colleges as undergraduates and to graduates of not more than one year. The story may or may not be an autobiography but it must deal with college life and college people; it must be a story of youth seen through the eyes of its own generation.

The sum of $3,000 is for the right to serialize the story in College Humor and to publish it in book form, and will be in addition to all royalties accruing from the book publication.

Motion and dramatic rights will remain with the author.

Both the book and the magazine publishers reserve the right to publish in book and serial form, according to the usual terms, any of the novels submitted in the contest.

The contest will close on midnight, October 15, 1929.

The judges will be the editors of Doubleday, Doran and College Humor.

Rochester U. Library To Get 17 Ton Chimes

ROCHESTER, Oct. 12.—A set of chimes said to be the largest on the continent, will be hung in the library of the new college for men at the University of Rochester, 165 feet in the air.

The set of seventeen bells has a total weight of seventeen tons, and is capable of producing the deepest notes of any chimes outside of Europe. The bells are the gift of Hopeman Brothers, contractors in charge of construction of the new college building, and were given as a memorial to their father.

The main part of the library building is three stories high and is located at the end of the main quadrangle of five buildings.

"EVANGELINE" DECLARED DOLORES' BEST VEHICLE

Edwin Carewe's masterful production of "Evangeline" with Dolores Del Rio in the starring role is to be shown at the Carolina theatre today.

One of the great literary classics and known to hundreds of millions of men, women and children, the forthcoming presentation of "Evangeline" is being eagerly awaited.

Accurate in setting and faithful in its following of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's stirring account of the Acadians and Evangeline, the fairest and most courageous maid of Grand Pre, "Evangeline" is likewise said to be one of the most pretentious epics of the screen, combining romance, pathos, surging drama with a basis of fact, and photographic beauty unparalelled.

Embracing all of the tender romance of "Ramona" and the stark realism and tragic drama of "Resurrection," "Evangeline" is said by critics to surpass any vehicle Miss Del Rio has ever had in honest entertainment value.

Syncronized, but not a talking picture, "Evangeline" also presents Miss Del Rio's appealing singing as well as the best of her pantomimic art, and among her songs are a chansonette by Marie Antionette, sung in French and Al Jolson's refreshing ballad "Evangeline."

Roland Drew, seen in "Ramona,"Alec B. Francis, Donald Reed, Paul McAllister, James Marcus, George Marion, Louis Payne, Lee Shumway and Bobby Mack head the supporting cast which numbers several thousands of people.

A single setting for one "Evangeline" episode cost more than $100,000 and among the picturesque background are two huge English frigates of the late 18th century.

Soccer has been abandoned by the University of Iowa after a two year revival.

Henderson Gives Books To Library

(Continued from page one)

regaled polite circles, including General Washington himself.

Perhaps the most picturesque title in the collection is "The Drunkard's Doom, or The Last Nail," a temperance play by G. D. Pitt which preceded "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room." This is a nineteenth century production. Among other dramatists of the earlier nineteenth century importantly represented in the collection are John Howard Payne, John Brougham, and Dion Doucicault, whose name, mis-spelled Bourcicault, appears on many a title page.

"Nature's Noblemen," by H. O. Pardey long held the boards; it is in the collection, and so is Mrs. Howatt's "Ormand," a successor to "Fashion," which has recently been revived.

Those random titles illustrate the richness and variety of the collection, as well as the warm human interest which lies in these old plays. In recognition of Dr. Henderson's generosity, the library is giving each book and pamphlet a special label, and with this well-selected collection as a nucleus, it hopes to add other items of value to American dramatic and theatrical history as gifts are made and as opportunities appear.

Don't Experiment with your Appearance

ESTABLISHED 1896 — QUALITY VALUE SERVICE — LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES — NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

Violet Rays of Sunshine not "artificial treatment"—make* OLD GOLD *... a better and a smoother cigarette

OLD GOLD brought about a great change in smoking habits. It gave smokers a new freedom of enjoyment ... without any forbidden limits.

The man who used to say "I can't smoke until after lunch ... my throat is sensitive in the morning" now finds that he can "light up" whenever he pleases. For his morning OLD GOLD has no more throat-scratch than his breakfast omelet.

Likewise all those who have to guard their throats ... salesmen, singers, actors, and the like ... no longer have to stint their smokes, for OLD GOLD is as free of throat irritants as a glass of spring water.

Better tobaccos did it ... naturally good tobaccos ... extra-prime leaf made irritation-free by the violet rays of sunshine ... not by "artificial treatment."

If you like food that is naturally good, instead of food made good by "artificial treatment" ... you're sure to prefer OLD GOLD'S natural tobacco smoothness. Try a package ... and get a vote of thanks from both your throat and taste.

© P. Lorillard Co., Est. 1760

Mother Nature makes them smoother and better ... with "not a cough in a carload"

On your Radio, OLD GOLD—PAUL WHITEMAN HOUR. Paul Whiteman, with his complete orchestra, every Tuesday, 9 to 10 P. M., Eastern Standard Time

Isadora Duncan Dancers
8:30 TONIGHT
Memorial Hall

The Daily Tar Heel

Isadora Duncan Dancers
8:30 TONIGHT
Memorial Hall

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1929 | NUMBER 23

Season's First Entertainment Brings Duncan Dancers Here

Internationally Famous Dancers Open Program Tonight at Memorial Hall; Large Crowd Expected To Attend Russian Concert.

The Isadora Duncan dancers, world entertainers from Russia and protegees of the world famous and stellar dancer of a few years ago, will appear in Memorial hall tonight at 8:30 o'clock on the first student entertainment program of the year. The doors will be open tonight at 8 o'clock and the admission will be $1.50, except for those holding season tickets.

A classical program including 15 feature numbers has been prepared by the Isadora Duncan dancers for presentation in Memorial hall tonight.

The company of dancers which in the past has delighted Chapel Hill audiences with its program, is reported to be direct from Moscow, Russia, led by Irma Duncan, adopted daughter of the noted Isadore Duncan. The troupe is assisted in the program by Maurice Sheyne, pianist.

The following versatile program to be given tonight, was announced yesterday by Dean Addison Hibbard, chairman of the student entertainment committee:

Slow March	Schubert
Waltzes	Schubert
Scenes from Childhood,	Schubert
Irish	Schubert
Moment Musicale	Schubert
Marche Militaire	Schubert
PART II
Prelude E Minor	Chopin
Mazurka Op. 33 No. 3	Chopin
Valse, Op. 70, No. 3	Chopin
Valse Brilliante	Chopin
Mazurka, Op. 7 No. 2	Chopin
Mazurka, Op. 2 No. 2	Chopin
Polonaise, A Minor	Chopin
Russian Songs	Gretchaninoff
Impressions of Modern Russia

Entertainment Tickets

Season tickets for the student entertainment program are on sale for the last time today. These tickets can be secured at the University business office for $3.00 the season.

What Engineering Is To Be Explained To Frosh By Professors

The first of a series of orientation and motivation lectures to be presented to the freshman class of the School of Engineering will be given this morning at 12 o'clock by Dean G. M. Braune, head of this branch of the University.

The lectures, which will be held weekly, are given for the purpose of explaining to the freshmen what engineering is and what activities are included in each branch of the profession.

Lectures will be given first by the dean of the School of Engineering, who will talk on the general topic of engineering, and then by the heads of the various departments of the school,who will explain the work of their branches of the profession. The final lectures will be given by a member of the mathematics department who will explain the relation of math to engineering and also talk on ethics in engineering.

The need for such a course of lectures for the freshmen has long been recognized, and last spring the facuty made arrangements for them to be given this fall. The faculty of this school feels that these lectures will give the first year men a view

(Continued on page four)

"Libraries" To Be Topic Of Southeastern Conference Here

Meeting Will Bring Together Many Leading Librarians of Country; Begins With Dedication Exercises.

Open discussions of county libraries, negro library service, and public library standards, and addresses by a number of prominent library administrators feature the program, announced today, of the Southeastern Library Association's meeting at the University of North Carolina next week.

The libraries will meet in conjunction with the University's annual Southern Conference on Education, whose program this year will center on the general subject "Libraries." The first meeting will not be held until Monday morning, but most of the librarians are expected to come in on Saturday.

That day, Homecoming Day for North Carolina Alumni, will mark the dedication of the University's new $625,000 Library, which is to house the largest book collection in the South. President Harry Chase and Governor O. Max Gardner are to be among the speakers. Another of the day's attractions will be the Carolina-Georgia football game that afternoon.

The librarians will hold their first separate session at 11:30 o'clock Monday morning. Dr. Louis R. Wilson will welcome them on behalf of the University. Featured speakers will be Andrew Keogh, president of the American Library association; Miss Mary U. Rothrock, librarian, Lawson McGhee library, Knoxville, Tenn., a former president of the Southeastern association; and Prof. Frank P. Graham, of the University who was largely instrumental in organizing the Citizens Library movement in North Carolina.

Miss Charlotte Templeton, librarian of the Greenville (S. C.) public library will preside at this session and at an afternoon session at which the librarians will discuss "County Libraries," "Negro Library Service," and "Public Library Standards." Representatives of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, which recently set aside $500,000 for the regulation of county libraries in the south, a grant from which was made to Davidson and Mecklenburg counties, will be present for this discussion.

Other meetings will be held jointly with the Education Conference and the North Carolina Library association, with a separate business session on Tuesday morning to conclude the program.

D. A. R. To Meet

The first monthly meeting of the Davie Poplar chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be held Wednesday afternoon, October 16, at 3:30 at the residence of the regent, Mrs. I. H. Manning, 570 Rosemary street. The hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. Manning and Mrs. Cameron.

MUSIC DIVISION COMMUNITY CLUB MEETS AT 3:30

Initial Meeting of Year To Be Held in Person Hall Today.

The music division of the Chapel Hill community club will hold its initial meeting for the year in room 9 of Person hall (Music building) this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. All people who are interested in this work are invited to be present.

Mrs. T. S. McCorkle is chairman of this section of the club, and will conduct today's program. The program is based on early Italian vocal and instrumental music. A historical resume, illustrated with various musical numbers, will be given. Vocal numbers of Palestrina, di Lucca and others will be heard; a violin Sonatina of Clementi's will be played; and several of Scarlatti's piano numbers will be played by John Efird, student pianist.

In addition to the personal performances, the phonograph and reproducing piano, together with the music department's library of recordings, will be at the disposal of the club.

Additional programs will be given on the second Wednesday of each month, with different club members in charge of each.

No Classes Saturday

There will be no classes on Saturday, October 19. The day will be devoted to the dedication of the University Library, the Carolina-Georgia game and other events. This was stated by President Chase in a letter to members of the faculty dated October 11. This will answer questions of various students as to whether or not there will be classes Saturday morning, October 19.

The President in his letter calls attention to the importance of the dedication ceremonies, urges all students to be present and also urges their attendance on the University sermon in Memorial hall Sunday morning, the 20th, at eleven o'clock, when Dean Shailer Mathews, of the University of Chicago Divinity School, will preach.

Give Piano Recitals

The first of a series of monthly piano recitals will be given Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium of the Chapel Hill Baptist church. These programs will be presented jointly by the pupils of Mrs. J. M. Williams and Miss Lena Mae Williams. November 20 is the date set for the next recitals, which will begin at 4 o'clock. The general public and those who are personally interested in the pupils and their work are invited to attend every program of the entire series.

Rushing Library Work

In order for the new library to be completed for the dedication exercises to be held next Saturday morning, work is being rushed forward at a quick pace. The windows are being washed today and directional signs for the use of library patrons are being placed at strategic points. The large atlas case under the rotunda on the second floor is expected to be completed by Saturday. There are also several other minor pieces of furniture to be installed.

RAY FARRIS AND BARRETT TALK IN CHAPEL PROGRAM

Tell Students That Cheering Will Have Much To Do With Victory Over Georgia.

"Get behind your team—fight for them—fight with them! Give them everything you've got in the way of lungs, and we'll win that Georgia game Saturday, at least we expect to. That Georgia crowd is coming up here with some of the best examples of school spirit and cheering ever seen; and we've got to show them that Carolina can't be beat; either in the stadium or on the field!"

The foregoing statements and opinions were expressed jointly by Captain Ray Farris and Cheerleader Jack Barrett in chapel Tuesday morning. Continuing Captain Farris said, "We have a winning team, and we can't afford to allow anyone to leave Chapel Hill Saturday and say that the team hasn't the loyal support of the entire student body. Fellows, get out there Saturday and show them you can yell just twice as loud as they can."

At the close of these remarks Dean Bradshaw announced that all students except those in the school of liberal arts would meet with their respective deans today during chapel period at the same places they did last week. Chapel will be resumed Thursday morning.

Member of Faculty Warns Pedestrians Of Night Walking

"Pedestrians passing to and from the new fraternity houses on the Pittsboro highway are perhaps not fully aware of the hazards connected with walking two and three abreast on the highway, near the bridge, after dark. The glare of approaching headlights, especially on cars passing the Inn and bound south, is such that the motorist coming into Chapel Hill at this point is sometimes blinded for a second or two," says a University faculty member, who frequently travels the Pittsboro highway at night, speaking of the danger of pedestrian traffic along the highway and referring especially to the members of the fraternities whose new houses are situated just beyond the Carolina Inn.

This statement is published in the interest of pedestrians and travellers, because this spot is liable to become, as the person previously quoted has remarked, "a potential dead-man's curve."

SOCIOLOGY CLASS VISITS PUBLIC WELFARE MEET

George H. Lawrence, superintendent of public welfare in Orange county, was a visitor at the district welfare association meeting in Reidsville yesterday. He was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Elithe Patrick, Miss Maurine Forrester, Miss Elizabeth Barber and Miss Lena Mae Williams, all students in the University. The attendance of the group as the association is a part of their field work in sociology 14, a course in which Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Saunders of the institute for research in social science, collaborate in teaching. At the meeting of the association Mr. Lawrence spoke on juvenile court problems, along which line he has conducted considerable research.

Roosevelt Visits Campus; Likes Heel Football Team

Chief Speaker at Home-Coming Celebration in Raleigh Talks About College Newspapers And Football; Meets Coaches.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York, visited Chapel Hill yesterday afternoon. Accompanied by Josephus Daniels, editor of the News and Observer and former secretary of the navy, the governor drove over from Raleigh, visited Kenan stadium, and returned to Raleigh, stopping by Duke university on the return trip. He left Raleigh last night for Albany.

College newspapers and football were the topics of conversation between the governor and the Tar Heel reporter who accompanied him during his visit to the campus.

While an undergraduate at Harvard, Governor Roosevelt was managing editor and editor of the Crimson, the student daily publication there. According to him the rivalry between Yale and Harvard extended beyond athletics, for after each football game the News, Yale daily, and the Crimson staged a race to put the first extra on the streets. In 1904, Governor Roosevelt's year as editor, the Crimson rented a shop near New Haven, telephoned in a play by play account of the game and had an extra out seven minutes ahead of the News. That was considered quite a feat as the News prided itself on getting the extras out unusually early following a game in New Haven.

Turning to football the governor declined an invitation to remain over for the Georgia-Carolina game Satursday, saying that he would probably be embarrassed as he was at the Carolina-Tech game. There he was sitting between the president of Tech and Mrs. Max Gardner, wife of North Carolina's governor. However, he expressed a

(Continued on page four)

Buccaneer Notice

There will be a meeting of all men who are out for this year's Buccaneer Staff in the Buccaneer Office in the basement of the Alumni Building tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 o'clock. Both old and new men are requested to be present at this meeting.

Cy Edson,
Editor

Notables To Attend Heels-Georgia Game

A host of notables will attend the North Carolina-Georgia football game Saturday. Among them will be Chancellor and Mrs. Charles M. Snelling, of the University of Georgia; Gov. and Mrs. O. Max Gardner, of North Carolina, and two former North Carolina Governors, Cameron Morrison, and Angus W. McLean, and their wives. All will be guests of President Harry W. Chase, at the president's luncheon at noon and will see the football classic from the University's guest box.

Big Rush

The officials of the University Athletic Association here were swamped today with orders for tickets to the Carolina-Georgia game Saturday

The big rush was caused, of course, by Carolina's defeat of Georgia Tech and Georgia's defeat of Yale. It appears now that all sport lovers are intent on seeing the Bull Dogs and Tar Heels lock horns Saturday.

Tickets were going mighty fast today, but Graduate Manager Woollen stated tonight that there are still plenty of good seats. The pasteboards are selling for $2.50 each and with 20 cents additional for registration and postage.

SELF HELP BUREAU MAKES MANY SUGGESTIONS TO AID STUDENTS

In order that there may be a better understanding between the self-help student and the employer, the self-help bureau submits the following suggestive statements. These statements are made after several years experience with the self-help problem.

A clear and definite understanding should be reached between the employer and the student as to what is expected of the student.

Many students are willing workers but are inexperienced. A little coaching usually makes a good worker out of them.

The rate for manual labor is 25 cents per hour, based on the University rate for work on the campus. There is no objection for employer to pay more to worthy students. The student should not ask for more.

Work, such as painting, waxing floors and carpentering is rated as skilled labor and the price is 30 cents to 40 cents per hour.

One hour's wages should be paid for work lasting less than one hour.

A student is generally expected to work three hours per day for his board.

A student is generally given a room or equivalent for performing one of the following tasks: (1) firing and attending an average furnace; (2) working at general work six hours per week; (3) "staying in" on an average of four evenings per week.

The rate for "staying in" evenings is 50 cents for the evening until 11 o'clock. After 11 the rate is 25 cents for each additional hour.

The charge for typing is 15 cents per double spaced page and 20 cents per single spaced page. Two cents is charged for a carbon page. A stenographer gets from 40 to 60 cents per hour.

The self-help secretary is on duty from 8 to 5 on each day except Saturday and Sunday. On Saturdays he is on from 8 to 2.

Calls should be made as far in advance as possible. This is especially true if any certain student is wanted, but the secretary is glad to fill calls at any time, however. In any case of emergency he may be called at his home, phone 3196, and he will do his best to fill the call.

Any complaint should be registered at the self-help office promptly so that adjustment can be made.

Any favorable comments concerning any worker will also be appreciated. Constructive suggestions will be welcomed.

Many students are depending upon work to keep them here, and they are willing to do anything from digging ditches to nursing babies.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon — J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

Wednesday, October 16, 1929

The Rushee's Problem

Although a large percentage of the fraternity rushees have already indicated their choice, many have wisely postponed their decisions until the final period of silence. Quite a few men must decide by tomorrow afternoon whether they wish to become fraternity men, while others are wavering between two or more chapters.

The one great virtue of fraternities is the pleasure and companionship they afford their members. A vast amount of hokum is spilled by frat men during the rushing season about their undying allegiance to one another and to "dear old Alfa Alfa." The intelligent freshman realizes that life in a fraternity is by no means idyllic, that fights, bickerings, personal antagonisms, dissensions of all sorts frequently arise—or if he doesn't, he will discover it very soon indeed after he is pledged. But most fraternity men derive genuine pleasures from the social contacts they form in their chapter, and they would not willingly deny themselves these pleasures. Fraternities have a decided value in undergraduate life; with all their apparent weaknesses, membership in them is desirable.

The question for the first group of freshmen—those who are undecided about whether they wish to become fraternity members—involves finances almost entirely. If the costs attendant upon fraternity membership will not place too great a strain upon the finances of the rushee, his problem is comparatively simple.

One of the greatest tragedies of undergraduate life occurs when a new fraternity member finds that he is not compatible with the group. If the ideals and aspirations of the other men conflict with those of the new member, he is in a bad way. Many fraternities attempt to recast all their new men in the same mold, to make them conform to a set pattern. Unless the newcomer is a spineless sort of person, with no desire to preserve his own individuality, this procedure will only serve to increase the discrepancy between him and the other members of the group. Thus the prospective pledge who is undecided as to which fraternity he wishes to join should exercise the greatest care in making his selection. He should determine the group in which he would be most at ease, in which he would be free to follow his own inclinations and achieve his own aspirations.

A man willing to work and unable to find work is, perhaps, the saddest sight that fortune's inequality exhibits under the sun.—Carlyle.

This Business of Seeing the Birdie

(H. J. G.)

The annual agonized call has been sent out from the offices of Wooten-Moulton, the photographers. Every year a major portion of the student body cheerily pays for the Yackety-Yack and then sits back and waits—for the last minute.

It's a great American habit, this business of waiting for the last minute to get things done. We may be a nation of go-getters, but when it comes down to it, we are generally busy getting something else, just as long as we have a day or a week to put off the pressing matter which should be getting our attention.

Cries for cooperation on this, and most other campi, are enthusiastically seconded — and then forgotten. But there is something more than cooperation in getting Yackety-Yack pictures taken early this year.

More than seven hundred pictures must be taken for the student annual. Each picture receives the maximum amount of care and attention that is humanly possible. But when, toward the end of November and the beginning of December, a sudden flood of students descends upon the studio, the pictures must necessarily be taken hurriedly.

It isn't necessary to point out that he who comes earliest is served best, so we won't do it. We won't even mention the evident fact that the editors of the Yackety-Yack and the photographers will be saved much needless hair-tearing if the pictures are made early and on schedule time. It is left simply up to you. If you want to have your picture taken carefully and well, have it taken early.

You look as well now as you will in three or four weeks, so straighten your tie and get a shave, or powder your nose and smooth your hair, and have your face recorded for posterity and your grandchildren. And if your grandchildren point derisively at your Yackety-Yack photo many years from now, and say "Why Grandpa (or Ma) how funny you looked when you were at the University of North Carolina"—well, if they do, it wasn't our fault.

Durham And The Negro Middle Class

The so called "Negro problem" with its multifold aspects is not one which may be treated in one paragraph nor easily in one volume. The variety of problems, at present in existence, pertaining to the Negro is too great, presents a complexity which cannot adequately be dealt with in any brief discussion. However, it might prove somewhat interesting and profitable to look at a situation in our immediate vicinity.

Durham, North Carolina, has been termed "the capital of the Negro middle class." There are the business men of the colored race, the Negro bankers and participators in industry and businesses. Some years ago James Merrick, a Negro slave who had lived in Chapel Hill, was given the opportunity to establish a barber shop in Durham. Here the business grew; he gained capital, and engaged in other branches of business.

So, with our men. C. C. Spaulding, a Negro millionaire, is connected in executive capacities with a number of businesses in Durham. Negro business is growing. There is a rapid development of what, until a comparatively recent date, was unknown: the negro middle class. And Durham is their capital. This establishment of a middle class is, in all probability, for the betterment of the situations and conditions now existing within the Negro realm.—By John Mebane.

IN THE WAKE OF NEWS

J. E. Dungan

"If you will join my fraternity you'll be a big man on the campus," said the Greek. "To begin with we'll make you subassistant to the associate manager of yo-yoing."

* * *

Officer Blake of the Department of Protection and Bell-Ringing has moved his beat from the left side of the Y to the right side. All criminals beware!

* * *

All Chapel Hill Mourns the passing of "Carolina" Brown and "Pink" Guthrie, particularly do his Phi Damma Gamma boys.

* * *

Last Saturday The Los Angeles Times printed the contents of a letter received by the management of the Alexandria Hotel, and written by one Okamoto, the original yo-yoer.

"Gentlemen: Having found the well hotel name of yours I have the honor to write you.

I am an amateur of collection of hotel labels and cards. If I can have some brilliant Labels of famous Hotel of Los Angeles of U.S.A. (which will, no doubt, glorify my album exceedingly), how should I be full of happiness and thankful.

I am an advocate; if you desire some thing in Japan I will procure them for you with youthfulness.

Yours truly please,
I. Okamoto."

Oswald opines that the something in question might be Geisha girls.

* * *

News from Portland, Maine, through the medium of the New York Herald Tribune tells of Herbert L. Pye, a veteran ash hauler, who has recently been made the heir of a $1,500,000 fortune. When interviewed Pye was very much concerned over his future business. "If the story spreads, boys, I'm ruined. Competition in this business is terrible. If my customers get the notion that I am rich, they'll give all their trade to my rivals." Here, if ever, was a genuine example of being called to a task.

* * *

An inventor in Boston has perfected a device that detects dirt which is imprecitable to the human eye on various substances. The kid brothers and sisters are in for plenty of torment when this infernal machine is adopted into the household. Sunburn and tan will no longer be excuses, and as for dirty ears and necks, they'll be things of the past.

* * *

In the Open Forum of the Baltimore Evening Sun an irate subscriber and football fan writes in to complain of the rudeness of the City College rooters, and ends with this rebuke—" "I suggest that if the City College fellows are not taught football manners at their school that they ought to take a few lessons from Poly."

Those Old Meanies, always getting boisterous at foootball games.

* * *

Philip A. Edwards, Olympic champion and captain of the New York University track team, was married to Miss Edith Margaret Oedelshoff, daughter of a former German government official here. This all read well enough until you get this fact—Edwards is negro and Miss Oedelshoff is white. This is the marriage that George Jean Nathan predicted to his friends and acquaintances some six months ago. New York doesn't lynch their negroes, they make track captains out of them. Down here?—Well.

Readers' Opinions

Intramural Athletics as a Substitute for Gym

Editor Daily Tar Heel:

Various freshmen, among others, have raised the complaint that gym classes interfere with intramural athletics, primarily, tag-football. It is easily obvious that men in the dormitories and fraternities are taking a great interest in tag-football this year, and since this sport is entirely optional, these men are to be commended. Gym classes are from around four to six o'clock daily, which covers approximately the time that the contests between the different teams are held. Some of the boys say that it is next to impossible for them to take their regular gym classes and play in the contests also. Therefore, they desire that a plan should be made enabling them to be excused from gym on days that contests are held.

Coach Bob Fetzer, in the Intramural handbook, has this to say about the subject:

"The introduction of intramural athletics and its development as a real working organization, has furnished an opportunity to every student in the University to participate in some form of competitive sport. Such participation provides not only physical exercise and healthful recreation, but enables the contestants to learn by actual practise the invaluable lessons of sportsmanship. The traits of character such as honor, fair play, courtesy, unselfishness, courage, determination, and the proper regard for the rights of others, developed on the athletic field, are some of the fine ideals which are welcomed in the business world and are splendid assets to carry into the battle of life.

There is little diffenrence of opinion as to the value of athletic participation, the benefits to the individual both physically and morally, but the majority of students prefer to applaud the other fellow instead of entering into active participation themselves. Intramural athletics has removed any barrier that may have existed to prevent any normal student from engaging in athletics, but furnishing a class of competition in which marked athletic ability or athletic experience is not a prerequisite. The Intramural slogan, 'every student in some form of healthful exercise', is a splendid ideal, and every student should avail himself of the opportunity to participate in competitive sports."

—Paul Michael

The National City Bank of New York recently became the biggest in the world, nosing out London's Midland Bank, Ltd., by a bare 83 million dollars. Its merger with the Corn Exchange Bank and Trust Co., swelled its resources to $2,386,066,401.

BARNETT TELLS JOINT MEETING OF Y OF CHINA

A joint meeting of the three Y cabinets was held Monday night at the Y at 7:15. Jimmie Williams, president of the junior-senior cabinet, presided.

After a few announcements were made, Eugene E. Barnett gave a short talk on "The History of the Y Work in China." Mr. Barnett told very interestingly how the Chinese Y had started from a small group of college men and has grown to what it is today.

All of the cabinet members who attended this meeting thoroughly enjoyed the talk. The program was closed with a word of prayer by H. F. Comer.

Theta Kappa Psi Initiates Seven Men

Upsilon chapter of Theta Kappa Psi medical fraternity announces the initiation of the following men: A. E. Barnhardt, Concord; Haskell W. Fox, Statesville; Charlie H. Gay, Charlotte; J. W. Kitchin, Hendersonville; E. V. Moore, Shelby; H. M. Price, Hickory, and W. A. Fritz, Hickory.

Following the initiation yesterday a buffet supper was enjoyed by both the old and new men.

The chapter also wishes to announce the pledging of Henry Harrill, Ellenboro, and William Flythe, Hamlet, N. C.

FOR RENT

Furnished apartment for light housekeeping. See or call Mrs. W. G. Privett, 307 McAuley street.

LOST

On Sunday, Oct. 13, in vicinity of quadrangle, Woodrow Wilson High School class ring, '29. If found please return to or notify F. M. Hawley, 211 Ruffin.

SAWYER'S
Rainwear
ZEPHYR-WEIGHT

IN this new and ultra smart line of Sawyer's "Forain" Zephyr-weight rainwear, carefully dressed college men and women everywhere have at once discovered their ideal wet weather garment.

This lightest weight waterproof clothing is made of balloon cloth, rendered absolutely waterproof and windproof by the famous Sawyer Process. Street coat weighs only 20 oz.

FROG BRAND SLICKERS

These justly famous oiled garments have been supplying the nation with snug warm comfort in wettest weather since 1840. In addition to their reputation for rugged serviceability, Frog Brand Slickers may now be had in a wider range of models that possess snap and good looks. Buttons or buckles and your choice of colors.

See them at your favorite shops.

H.M. SAWYER & SON
EAST CAMBRIDGE, MASS.
Offices: New York, N.Y. Chicago, Ill. St. Louis, Mo. San Francisco, Cal.

THE WHOLE SHOW IN Gorgeous Natural Colors!

Direct from its $2 run in New York

The Screen's First
MUSICAL COMEDY
Photographed
Entirely in Technicolor!

Another miracle; another triumph! Combination of Technicolor with the Singing Speaking Screen achieving one of the most sensational musical comedies ever presented to the public. Scintillating, sparkling—

"ON WITH THE SHOW"

A Warner Brothers Vitaphone
All Talking - Singing-Dancing Musical Comedy
with
BETTY COMPSON
ARTHUR LAKE
SALLY O'NEIL
JOE E. BROWN

And a Chorus of 100 Dazzling Beauties.

You'll Hear the new Song Hits
"Birmingham Bertha"
"Am I Blue"
"Let Me Have My Dreams"

ADDED ATTRACTIONS
Paramount Sound News

TODAY - TOMORROW

CAROLINA THEATRE

No Advance in Admission

Hours of Shows
1:30; 3:15; 5:15
7:15; 9:15.

A Publix-Saenger Theatre

DEPENDABLE
Used Cars
TO SUIT
YOUR TASTE AND POCKETBOOK

Call One of Our Salesmen for a Demonstration

Strowd Motor Co.

Old Grid Rivalry Between Tar Heels And Georgia Is Renewed

Last Game Between Teams Played in 1924 With Heels Winning 41-6.

When the University of Georgia football team invades Kenan stadium Saturday, it will be the Bulldogs' first appearance in the Old North State in many a long year and the renewal, after a lapse of 15 years, of what used to be a mighty hot Tar Heel-Bulldog grid rivalry.

And unless the prophets are mighty badly mistaken, that renewal is going to be mighty interesting.

An ambitious and up-and-coming group of sophomores and a big backfield noise named Waugh have been whooping it up steadily at Georgia this year—as attested by a 27-0 victory over Furman. The Tar Heels, "team of a hundred backs," have shown their own great offensive. It looks like a big game.

The sidelights promise to be almost as interesting as the game itself and promise to add considerably to the great throng to visit Chapel Hill that day. The University and state are holding Homecoming Day that Saturday, and, in addition, the University is to dedicate its new $625,000 library and open its annual Southern Conference on Education.

Days of yore saw many a hot clash between Tar Heel and Bulldog. They staged their first battle in 1895. That was the hey-day of the be-whiskered athlete who played the mass formation and bit, chewed or hacked his way to victory, catch as catch can, no holds barred. Edwin Clarke Gregory, now a prominent Salisbury attorney, then a Phi Beta Kappa football captain, led the Tar Heels to a 10-6 win.

The Tar Heels and Bulldogs met every year except one until 1901, with the Tar Heels winning five of the six verdicts. One was the famous 44-0 victory of the 1898 team, captained to an undefeated season record by Frank Rogers, now a prominent Arkansas physician.

Georgia didn't appear on the Tar Heel schedule again until 1913. The Bulldogs won a 19-6 verdict that year. Captain Dave Tayloe and the 1914 Tar Heels amply repaid the compliment with a 41-6 dose of defeat the following year. Another 15 year lapse, the story is brought down to date, and fans are waiting for the new installment of this ancient grid rivalry.

(By "Crawf" McKethan)

Fifteen years have passed since the Bulldog of Georgia has offered its unrelenting grip to the Tar Heels of North Carolina. Back in the fall of 1914 the University of North Carolina met the University of Georgia and by good fortune and superior playing crumbled its more southern rival by a 60 to 6 count. With that game football relationships between the two institutions were brought to a close, and for the past decade and a half the chain of rivalry upon the gridiron has remained broken.

The game this week-end in Chapel Hill will occupy the center of the Southern football stage. Who knows; upon this game may hang in balance not only the southern crown, but also a slice in the pie of national recognition. However, in spite of its importance the North Carolina-Georgia engagement must at least doff its hat to six other games that also hold a share of the interest throughout the south. When the national scoring champions of last year run up against the national champions of 1928 something is bound to turn up of interest. The Florida-Georgia Tech game this week-end would have been the most important contest in the South had the Tornado repulsed the Heels last week-end. The Tennessee - Alabama game is alike to the Bulldog-Heel struggle in that through this game one of the strongest contenders for the conference title will probably go down in defeat. Tennessee and Alabama both boast the possession of grid teams that have perfect right to bid for high conference honors.

The Auburn-Vandy game follows closely upon the heels of these three major engagements, as does also the Virginia-V. M. I. contest. The interest in the far southwest is centered about the Tulane-Southwest L. I. clash.

The Duke-Navy game claims a portion of the intersectional interest. This will be the first game of the Blue Devils since their overwhelming defeat at the hands of Pitt two weeks ago.

A game bearing weight upon the state title will be played off in Raleigh Thursday when N. C. State meets the Deacons of Wake Forest. This game will be in the form of an added attraction to the state fair that is being held in Raleigh this week.

Two Carolina Backs Among High Scorers Of Southern Teams

Two University of North Carolina backs are included in the first fifteen high scorers in the southern conference, according to figures made public yesterday. They are Jimmy Ward, fleet Carolina halfback, and Johnny Branch, diminutive quarterback. Ward, with a total of 30 points, is in a triple tie for fifth place with Kelley of Kentucky and Woodruff of Clemson. Branch is in a triple tie for ninth place with 24 points.

High scoring honors went to Gene McEver, Tennessee phantom halfback who raced through a flagging Mississippi defense Saturday to score four touchdowns and bring his total to nine. The shifty Volunteer ball carrier had little trouble in registering five touchdowns against Centre and Chattanooga in early warm-up engagements.

Ward failed to improve his standing in Saturday's battle. Branch, on the other hand, boosted his total six points by a 60 yard return of a punt.

Watch Carolina against Georgia.

Duke Coaches Witness Navy vs. Notre Dame

Duke coaches worked direct in scouting the Navy team in Saturday's game with Notre Dame at Baltimore. The Blue Devils were idle and the staff was present in Baltimore.

TRACK SQUAD TO MEET

There will be a meeting of the varsity track squad Wednesday afternoon at 5:15 at the athletic offices at Emerson field.

The track schedule is to be released by Coach Bob Fetzer at this time. This will be an important meeting as important meets have been added to the spring schedule.

Definite plans for the year's training will be outlined also at this meeting.

All upper classmen interested should attend and all candidates for the team must be present.

TAR HEELS HAVE KICK SPECIALIST

Rowe Performs His Part With Average of 53 Yards; Seldom Plays.

Any warrior of the gridiron who has an average of booting the ball 53 yards from placement may well be termed a specialist. Such is Ezra Rowe, kickoff man for the Tar Heels, who after taming Tech's mighty Tornado are to meet the Georgia Bulldogs in Kenan stadium here Saturday afternoon.

Rowe was a fair freshman guard in 1928. He was big and faithful, but he never quite made the varsity grade.

He didn't play much, even in scrimmages, and got sorta lonely hanging around. He took his grievances out by indulging in hefty cracks at the pigskin.

Chuck Collins, head Tar Heel coach and a Notre Dame strategist who knows what an extra 10 yards on kickoff may mean, observed the big boy at his favorite pastime and saw his possibilities.

Rowe was given some extra coaching. Came the eventful day of last year's North Carolina-Georgia Tech game, and the Tar Heels presented their specialist.

Rowe sent a 45-yard boot deep into Jacket territory that looked decidedly good. He did even better against South Carolina, getting off boots for 58 and 55 yards, and from then on he was head kickoff man.

He has kicked for every home game since, and has made one or two trips. He has never kicked less than 45 yards, and his average is 53 1-2.

If you figure that out, you will find he averages sending the pigskin to the enemy's 6 or 7-yard line. His boots are high, too, giving the Tar Heels plenty of time to get well on down the field.

Counting this year's Wake Forest game, in which Rowe began a new season with a 55-yard boot, the big boy has played varsity ball in six games, yet his actual playing time has been about 5 minutes.

He performs his specialty, then retires. They even tell a story on him that on one occasion he kicked off and instead of going into the play retired to the bench, leaving the Tar Heels with just 10 men on the field. But that can't be vouched for.

Rowe might have made the regular team had he had more time for football. But he is a self-help student making all expenses, and keeping up a good scholastic record as well.

He has one more year of football, and many of the fans who have seen his stellar work and admired his faithfulness, are predicting he will win his coveted "N. C." whether he ever gets a tackle in a varsity game or not. Rowe is from Leaksville, N. C.

DUKE CONTINUES RADIO HOUR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Durham, Oct. 15 (Special)—Continuing the Duke University radio hour over station WPTF in Raleigh, the Blue Devils jazz orchestra will be heard tonight at 8 o'clock. Weekly programs will be sponsored by Duke at this time.

First of the Duke programs of the year was given last Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. J. Foster Barnes, directors of the glee clubs, rendering a number of vocal numbers.

Other Duke orchestras and bands are scheduled for concerts during the fall and winter.

In 1901 the University track team of five men won the southern championship against heavy odds.

HEELS, FLORIDA, AND CLEMSON TOP SOUTHERN TEAMS

Ten Teams Undefeated in Conference Tilts; Duke, Georgia, and V. P. I. Yet to Play in Circle.

Carolina went into a tie with Florida and Clemson for top honors in the Southern Conference title race by defeating Georgia Tech Friday. Each team has won two games and are yet to drop a contest. Seven teams have won one game without losing any. Georgia, Duke, and V. P. I. are yet to face Conference opposition.

The standings are as follows:

Team	Won	Lost
Florida	2	0
North Carolina	2	0
Clemson	2	0
Alabama	1	0
Virginia	1	0
Vanderbilt	1	0
Tulane	1	0
Tennessee	1	0
Louisiana State	1	0
Kentucky	1	0
Georgia Tech	1	1
Washington and Lee	1	1
South Carolina	1	1
Virginia Military	0	1
Sewanee	0	1
Maryland	0	2
North Carolina State	0	2
Mississippi A. and M.	0	2
Auburn	0	2
Mississippi	0	3
Georgia	0	0
Duke	0	0
Virginia Poly	0	0

Fordham has five great ends in Tobin, Cavanaugh, Hurley, Elcewic, and Koppenburg.

Coach National Championship Eleven Will Get Automobile

W. O. McGeehan Heads National Committee to Select Football Champions.

An authoritative attempt to select the championship college football team for 1929 will be made under new and novel circumstances during the coming autumn, according to an announcement just made by the committee which will undertake the task.

Under the chairmanship of W. O. McGeehan, nationally known sports columnist and newspaper writer, and with the sponsorship of a committee of prominent amateur sports patrons, the aid of 250 newspaper sports editors is being enlisted to secure an "exhaustive and satisfactory national selection for the Albert Russel Erskine Award." Sponsors of the plan are Albert Russel Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation, and the following committee: Theodore Roosevelt, New York; John McE. Bowman, New York, head of the Bowman hotel chain; W. T. Anderson, publisher of the Macon, Ga., Telegraph; W. R. Morehouse, vice-president of the Security First National Bank of Los Angeles; Walter M. Christie, track coach of the University of California; W. T. Clayton, of Anderson, Clayton and Company, Houston, Texas, and Martin J. Collins, president of the Graham Paper Company, St. Louis, Mo.; Feg Murray, sports cartoonist; Avery Brundage, president of the Central Association of the A. A. U.; and Walter C. Allen, president of the Yale and Towne Manufacturing Company, Stamford, Connecticut.

A preliminary ballot will be taken in December among the 250 sports critics and a final ballot will then be voted on the few teams which lead in the first ballot. Between the halves of the New Year's Day game in California the winning team will be announced. The coach of this team will be presented a Studebaker President Eight motor car. The committee plans to make the award an annual future of the football season.

DUKE FOLLOWERS TO GO TO ANNAPOLIS SATURDAY

Indications are a big crowd of Duke students and football fans of Durham and North Carolina will see the Blue Devils play Navy at Annapolis Saturday.

A special train will leave Durham Friday evening and a reduced fare is an inducement, but the chief inducement is the hope of the Duke followers that the Blue Devils are due to give Navy an argument.

LIBERAL REWARD
FOR RETURN OF HAT
Light Gray Brill Bros. Hat
RETURN TO 205 SOUTH BUILDING

At U. of N. C.

Sheaffer is leader*

Sheaffer's Lifetime° pens were discovered by the old alumni of most American schools, and as these writing instruments are guaranteed against everything except loss for the owner's whole lifetime, they're probably still in use. The swifter, easier writing brought by Balance in Sheaffer's Lifetime° pens and pencils is a very real help in class and makes quick work of long themes. Just try the smartly designed, smooth-writing Sheaffers at your dealer's. You'll know why Sheaffers outsell all others at 73 of the 119 leading American colleges, and you'll go unsatisfied until you own yours!

At better stores everywhere

All fountain pens are guaranteed against defects, but Sheaffer's Lifetime° is guaranteed unconditionally for your life, and other Sheaffer products are forever guaranteed against defect in materials and workmanship. Green and black Lifetime° pens, $8.75; Ladies', $7.50 and $8.25. Black and pearl De Luxe, $10.00; Ladies', $8.50 and $9.50. Pencils, $5.00. Golf and Handbag Pencil, $3.00. Others lower.

* A recent survey made by a disinterested organization showed Sheaffer's first in fountain pen sales at 73 of America's 119 foremost seats of learning. Documents covering this survey are available to anyone.

SAFETY SKRIP, Successor to ink, 50c. Refills, 3 for 25c. Practically non-breakable, can't spill. Carry it to classes!

SHEAFFER'S
PENS-PENCILS-DESK SETS-SKRIP
W. A. SHEAFFER PEN COMPANY • FORT MADISON, IOWA, U. S. A.
° Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. © W. A. S. P. Co., 1929

Students' Supply Store
EVERYTHING IN STATIONERY
Agents For
SHEAFFER
Full Line of Sheaffer Merchandise

BAND IS PRAISED FOR PERFORMANCE AT ATLANTA GAME

Herald-Tribune Sports Writer And Others Praise Carolina Band.

Bill Cox, Greensboro News sports editor, pays compliment to the N. C. band. In his column he says:

Will McGeehan, the well known stick of caustic who reports events for the New York Herald-Tribune, saw the Tar Heels beat Tech, and Will come out flatfooted and say that Carolina outplayed the losers all the way around.

"He said in part, 'If there is any snappier band in the country than the Blue and White uniformed band of the University of North Carolina, your correspondent will travel any distance to see and hear it.' The tooters even outcharged and outsmarted the enemy; an added honor, some claim.

"McGeehan doesn't tell the real tale. The Carolina band probably won that game. They have a fellow down there who leads the grand march with an undulated pipe in his mouth, McCorkle is the name. Here they come—first thing you see is the pole the major totes; he swings it like it was nothing but a pole—a trick in that. That's not half of it.

"The Tech team probably became so confused when they saw that guy breaking training with a pipe in his mouth that they didn't recover until it was too late. Pipe smoking drum majors are scarce, so scarce there is only one in existence. The sight is disconcerting to citizens as well as players. What would happen should the pipe fall from his mouth — shudders — perish the thought.

"That bird certainly takes chances. Anything could happen, but he marches on and on and never misses a lick—puff for puff—and beat for beat. The experts could trace the victory to his rank bravado. McCorkle and his tooters scared Tech stiff. The rest was easy.

"In the fight racket they call that putting the bad eye on 'em. Teams have been known to try the same in football, but it was never as subtle as this. We look for a wave of pipe smoking drum majors. Bigger and better pipes will probably settle the issue."

MRS. MOSHER TO ATTEND MEETING OF A. A. U. W.

Mrs. E. R. Mosher of Chapel Hill, who was recently elected president of the North Carolina division of the American Association of University Women, will be in Greenville on Thursday to attend the first meeting of the association branch there.

This chapter, with 30 charter members, was organized in May. For this reason its members are particularly fortunate in having Mrs. Mosher speak to them on the objectives of the organization at their initial gathering. Mrs. Mosher presided over the meeting of the executive board in High Point last Saturday and will doubtless outline to the Greenville group some of the policies and plans formulated at that convention.

DISTINGUISHED GRAD VISITS CHAPEL HILL

Dr. T. Gilbert Pearson, '97, chairman of the game commission and president of the International Audabon societies, after attending Home-Coming week in Raleigh visited Chapel Hill yesterday.

Dr. Pearson spoke at the Home-Coming banquet Monday night with Governor Max Gardner as host and Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York as honor guest.

McGeehan Talks Of Fumbled Ball Rule

Johnny Branch, whose name has been appearing in the sports pages all over the country, was the subject of an article by W. O. McGeehan in yesterday's New York Herald-Tribune. His column, "Down the Line," which is syndicated throughout the United States and Canada, discussed the new football rule which limits the penalty for a fumble.

He cited our game with Georgia Tech as showing the effect of the rule. After stating that fans and rooters at football games will probably dislike this rule for it will rob them of much exciting melodrama, he continued to say:

"An incident showing the effect of this ruling occurred on the previous day, when the University of North Carolina beat Georgia Tech in one of the most truculent games that has been staged since they reformed the game of intercollegiate football.

"Young Johnny Branch, the quarterback of the Tar Heels, scooped up a loose ball. Previously the fleet-footed Branch had swept through the Golden Tornado like a counter whirlwind. With all the Tornado swirling about him, he was able to twist and tear his way through to a touchdown.

"Branch received the ball and waited just for a second. Then he grinned and moved rapidly in the direction of the goal line of Georgia Tech. He knew the rule. In fact, throughout that game he showed that he knew nearly everything concerning the game from the fundamentals, which they teach in the preliminary practice, to the greater puzzles that the rules committee invent during the winter.

"When he had cleared the last remnant of the Golden Tornado he stopped abruptly and laughed as he tossed the ball back in the direction of the point when he recovered the fumble. It was a gesture that said: 'The Tar Heels could have had another touchdown, if it had not been for that fool rule.' It is my notion that all the impartial and many of the partial spectators agreed that it was a fool rule.

"It is written that in the United States it is easier to get a fool law or a fool rule passed than it is to have it repealed. But it is my notion that as the season progresses there will be enough examples of the anti-climax it has brought to this game so that the rules committee will be doing plenty of reconsidering on this particular point. It will be made quite apparent that this was one of the most radical changes in the game since they started shuffling the goal posts back and forth. The committee should rule that it was a 'noble experiment,' but that, like many other 'noble experiments,' it proved to be a fizzle."

What Engineering Is To Be Explained To Frosh By Professors

(Continued from page one)

of the entire field of engineering and will the show the scope of activities of each branch.

The heads of the departments who will speak in this series are E. G. Hoefer, mechanical engineering; G. F. Bason, electrical engineering; F. C. Vilibrandt, chemical engineering; and H. G. Baity, civil engineering. Professor A. W. Hobbs will speak on the relation of mathematics to engineering and on business ethics in relation to engineering.

Three additions to the faculty of the School of Engineering have been made this fall. W. D. Merritt, Jr., J. J. Slade, and T. P. Noe have been aded to the faculty as instructors.

Mr. Merritt who graduated form the University in 1928, is instructor in descriptive geometry and engineering drawing. Mr. Merritt was at the University of Wisconsin last year taking graduate work in hydraulics, and he taught at the summer school there during the past summer.

Mr. Slade, who graduated from the University last spring, is instructor in mechanics and engineering drawing.

Mr. Noe, also a graduate of the University last spring, is instructor in mechanics and is also assisting professor Hickerson in the work in advanced structures.

Roosevelt Pays Visit To Campus; Likes Heel Football Team desire to meet "Shorty" Branch, Coach Collins, and Captain Farris.

(Continued from page one)

Following a brief stop at South building where he shook hands with several hundred students gathered there, the governor's party drove to Kenan stadium. There he chatted with Coaches Collins and Cerney and spoke to the team. Coach Collins explained that there was no team, but 35 men who played together. The Governor replied that they certainly played together against Tech.

He seemed to admire the Carolina campus stating that ever since serving with Mr. Daniels in the navy department he had wished to visit the campus. The old buildings on the campus interested the Governor more than the modern ones. New West, New East, Old East, Old West, and South were pointed out to him.

President Few of Duke accompanied the party on the trip from Chapel Hill to Duke.

When Your Friends Come to Town

This week-end you will probably have lots of friends visiting in Chapel Hill. Give them a treat that is typical of our village—a cheerful glass of

SHERRI-COLA

or

SHERRI-ALE

And if they are not such pious friends you will want several bottles of the "Ale" to help in the celebration.

Sherri-Cola Company

Fraternity Bids Distributed
2 O'CLOCK TODAY
MEMORIAL HALL

The Daily Tar Heel

Fraternity Bids Distributed
2 O'CLOCK TODAY
MEMORIAL HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1929 — NUMBER 24

Rhythmic Charm In New Era Of Dance Presented Here

Isadora Duncan Dancers Provide First Program of Entertainment Committee for 1929; Please Large Crowd in Memorial Hall.

Displaying a spiritual rhythmic charm of the dance to a perfection seldom seen on the stage today, the soul of the famous Isadora Duncan lived again last night in Memorial hall when a troupe of ten of her proteges were seen and heard by an audience which well filled the auditorium. It was the first program of the school year offered by the student entertainment committee.

Freedom and absolute control of the splendidly proportioned human body which interpreted and reacted to the heavenly harmonies of such master musicians as Schubert, Schumann and Chopin, were features of the performance last night.

Lacking a lot of the spectacular of the modern dance as Americans are accustomed to see on the stage, the lifelong trained girls in the Duncan troupe more than made up for any alleged shortcoming in the eyes of the audience, by their charm of motion and graceful gestures.

The girls are direct from the most famous of the schools founded by Isadora Duncan in Moscow, Russia. It is the first time in America for several of them. They were chosen because of their proficiency and leadership in the noted school of the dance. Their performance last night revealed the minute care in their years of training, because Isadora Duncan's system of schooling for the dance starts when the person is a mere child.

There was little costuming and stage settings, which seemed strange to the audience at first. However, when the psychology of it was seen (that the whole show was in the graceful movement in the dance of these lissome airy-footed spirits), the absence of stage decorations and brilliant costumes was not missed.

(Continued on page four)

No Grail Dance

In answer to many inquiries the Order of the Grail has announced that there will be no dance under its supervision this week-end. This is in accordance with a ruling made two years ago barring dances on the campus after a major football game. The next Grail dance will be held October twenty-sixth after the V. P. I. game.

Pittsburgh Sports Writer Lauds The Beauty of Stadium

Max Hannum, writing in his column of the Pittsburgh Press, says of the Kenan stadium:

"We have been privileged to see many of the beautiful football stadiums of the country, including the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, and others, but none can even approach the one of the University of North Carolina campus as Chapel Hill. Where some of the gridiron structures run to massiveness, attempting to draw attention by their imposing grandeur, the simple setting, clever architecture, and splendid arrangement of the Tar Heel bowl could hardly be matched.

"It is a little gem, set in a natural depression of the heart of a pine forest. You walk over North Carolina's campus, passing among fine new buildings and others that were erected in 1822, follow signs that direct you to the stadium, and are unaware of its proximity until it looms up before you through the pine trees. They surround it upon all sides. It sits in the little valley, with concrete stands on either side, and entrance at one end and a wonderfully appointed field house at the other.

The green turf, the luxurious landscaping and the blue sky make a sight that is not easily forgotten. No wonder the Pitt boys were frisky colts when they worked out there before the Duke-Pitt football game."

Scribe Interviews Irma Duncan; She Says She Likes Chapel Hill

(By George Sheram)

"I love this place," said Miss Irma Duncan in talking to a representative of the Tar Heel yesterday afternoon. "I have traveled much over the United States but have never seen such magnificent trees, such beautiful shrubbery in all my wandering.

"The atmosphere, the very tempo of the town is so much like dancing. It breathes the spirit of nature in all her freedom, in all her glory, and in all her beauty.

"Your Chapel Hill is so unlike New York. Everything is so hurried there, so matter of fact; here it is soothing, quiet; I should love to stay here."

Miss Duncan is the adopted daughter of the incomparable Isadora Duncan, and was taught the dance under the tutorship of her foster mother. After Isadora Duncan met her tragic death two years ago Irma Duncan took over the school in Moscow and continued the work that her mother had begun.

Miss Duncan, like her brilliant and world acclaimed foster-mother, has only two passions—dancing and her pupils. She is now the head of the Moscow school of dancing. The artists appearing on the program last night were selected as the most talented and accomplished members of the school. They have been trained since early childhood for the dance; and they have perpetuated not only the great technical knowledge of their teacher, but also the passionate love of grace and beauty and the soul of dancing which has immortalized the name of Isadora Duncan.

It was the ambition of Miss Duncan to have every child in the world to take dancing.

"We are not professional dancers in the true sense of the word," further stated Miss Irma Duncan, "but we are attempting to educate the people of the world in the art of the dance and to show that dancing is essential to the body and the soul.

"We find the American audience very responsive to our dancing. The American people are finding enjoyment in the dance and it is gaining favor over all the country. I wish to establish a school similar to the one in Moscow sometime in the near future, and I feel now that it will be a success."

LAW SCHOOL SETS NEW HIGH RECORD

Total Registration is 121 as Compared With 118 Last Year.

Enrollment for the 87th term of the University of North Carolina law school has set a new record, according to registration figures announced today by Dean Charles T. McCormick.

The total registration is 121, as compared with 118 last year. The senior class numbers 39, as compared with 15 last year, despite the fact that University candidates were 100 per cent successful at the bar examination last summer.

Nineteen of the entering class have college degrees, and the general level of preparation is regarded as unusually high. Eight states are represented, but 90 percent of the students are Tar Heels.

A special feature of the curriculum is the newly added course in the administration of justice.

This course, to be had in but two other law schools in the country, is attracting wide interest.

The course is designed to prepare for creative leadership on the part of the legal profession in the solution of the larger problems of the administration of justice.

Half-day meetings are to be held monthly, by the entire faculty, in cooperation with visiting judges and members of the bar.

Exhaustive investigations into actual practices are to precede each seminar session, which will deal with the important suggestions now in the forefront of public and professional interest in connection with the administration of the course.

Each session discussion leaders are to give carefully prepared reports, followed by general discussion by faculty and students, and any visiting lawyers. The first such conference is to be held tomorrow afternoon on "Incorporation of the Bar," with Dean McCormick in charge. The schedule for the remainder of the meetings follows:

November 14—Prof. Breckenridge, Arbitration and Conciliation.

December 12—Professor McCall, The Rule-Making Power.

January 16—Professor Wettach, A Ministry of Justice.

February 13—Professor McIntosh, New Ideas in Pleading.

March 13—Professor Van Hecke—Statute Law-Making.

April 17—Professor Winston, The Jury System.

Prof. A. C. McIntosh, several years acting dean, began his second quarter century of law teaching with the opening of the law school this year, coincident with the appearance in the first year class of one of his second generation of students, Miss Cornelia Frizzelle, daughter of Paul Frizzelle, of Snow Hill. Professor McIntosh has just completed a carefully prepared work on North Carolina Pleading and Practice, which should be available to the legal profession before Christmas.

Professor Walker Ill

Professor Walker of the school of education is confined to his bed with influenza. The doctor states that his illness is very serious.

At the time of construction Carr dormitory cost $18,000.

Freshmen Don Pledge Buttons With End Of Silence Today

Rushees Meet in Memorial Hall This Afternoon at 2 O'clock To Make Choice; New System Tried.

After sixteen days of actual rushing, the fraternities have turned in their bids to the secretary of the Inter-Fraternity Council and the selected freshmen meet today in Memorial hall to signify their acceptance or rejection.

The system now in order of bidding freshmen is vastly different from the one used five years ago. Today rushees will assemble in Memorial hall at two o'clock. After being arranged in alphabetical order, they will go up individually to make their choice. A card will be given to each freshman on which he will list three fraternities, in order of his preference. He will then receive a slip of paper upon which will be the first of these if he has an invitation to that fraternity, or if not, the second or the third if he has an invitation to either of those. After this, the freshman will go out of the back door and go directly to the fraternity of his choice without communicating with anyone.

Five years ago bids were mailed by every fraternity to the freshmen that they wanted. At an appointed time the freshmen would stay in their rooms and representatives of the fraternities would come around to "pledge them up." This system had two very noticeable faults. Primarily, there was often a "post mortem" of bad feeling due to the fact that the freshmen knew positively how many fraternities they had refused. Secondly, it was often quite embarrassing to popular freshmen being beseiged by several of the Greek orders at the same time, beseeching them to join their lodge. As one can see, both of these defects have been corrected.

Freshmen are reminded of the fact that the Period of Silence is enforced between themselves now, as well as in regard to the fraternity men. This remains in existence until six o'clock tonight when all freshmen will have received their bids.

Dance In Durham

The news that there will be no dance on the Hill Saturday night after the Georgia game was a rather devastating blow to those students who had invited girls down for the week-end but when rumors that there was to be a dance in Durham were verified by the appearance of posters yesterday, many problems were solved.

Every indication is that Chapel Hill will see the biggest crowd in its history Saturday and this very sell out brings to mind a University ruling prohibiting dances following games at which the attendance promises to be unusually large. Those who intend to celebrate by dancing must do so on foreign floors.

The dance announced for the Washington Duke hotel Saturday night has taken on the color and importance of a Georgia-Carolina celebration and being the only dance in the neighborhood will no doubt be taken possession of by the football crowd. The management will have as its invited guests the Carolina and Georgia football squads and a feature of the evening will be a no-break dance for these men.

Fraternity Notice

Fraternities are requested to turn in lists of pledges before six o'clock this evening at the Tar Heel office, basement of Alumni building. In order for these lists to be published they must contain the addresses of the pledges and be typewritten.

The fraternities are also requested to type the name of the fraternity with the year of its establishment at the University at the top of each page. Lists must be double-spaced.

UNIVERSITY MAN AT BROOKS FIELD

Dr. Otto Stuhlman, head of the physics department here, has received a letter from Frank L. Smith, a former University of North Carolina man and a former student of Dr. Stuhlman's, saying that he had received an appointment as a flying cadet.

Twenty thousand men took the physical examination, which was a very rigid one, and out of that number only fifteen hundred passed it. From those passing the two hundred appointments were selected. Smith was one of the two hundred chosen. He is now located at Brooks Field, San Antonio, Tex.

The course of study at Brooks Field includes aerodynamics, maps, navigation and meteorology. Smith stated that his knowledge of physics, gained from the University, was indispensible to him in his study of these courses.

In his letter Smith stressed very much the importance in the future development of aviation. He said that there were many instruments to develop and many problems to solve whose development and solution depend entirely on physics.

FRIENDSHIP GROUP TO HOLD VESPERS

Freshmen Take Over Religious Activities of Y for Week.

During the coming week the Freshman Friendship Council of the University Y.M.C.A. will conduct the daily vesper services that are held at Gerrard hall at seven o'clock every evening, Monday to Friday, inclusive. These meetings practically make up the religious activity of the Y, whose primary purpose on the campus is the promotion of student aid and activities. Various campus groups will be assigned during the year to conduct the exercises.

The following members of the Friendship Council will serve, in the order that they appear, as leaders of next week's services: Stratford Donnell, Jerome Hamer, Alex Webb, Henry Parsley, and Thomas Worth.

Concerning other activities of the council, the president, Alex Webb of Raleigh, has announced that the organization will publish a daily list in the Tar Heel of students who are confined to the infirmary. They will also post this list on the bulletin board at the Y building.

Another bulletin board feature to be sponsored by the council will be a lost and found column. To facilitate the operation of this service Webb has requested that all notices of lost articles be given to Miss Ames in the Y.M.C.A. office. Found articles and the name of the finder will also be carried to the same place.

Dr. Branson Better

Dr. Eugene C. Branson, head of the department of rural social economics of the University, who has been ill at his home here with influenza and pneumonia, was reported as being improved last night.

University Symbolizes Progress Of State, Says Joseph M. Dixon

Assistant Secretary of the Interior and former Senator and Governor Joseph M. Dixon visited Chapel Hill and the University yesterday afternoon. Mr. Dixon served as Senator and Governor of Montana, his home state, but he is a native North Carolinian, having been born in Chatham county and having lived in this state for the first twenty-four years of his life.

Mr. Dixon spoke yesterday at the State Fair in Raleigh and came from there to Chapel Hill in the early afternoon. On his arrival in Chapel Hill Mr. Dixon stated to a Tar Heel reporter that, although he had lived the greater part of his life out of the state, he still had a keen interest in North Carolina and had watched closely its rapid development. He also stated that he had for many years been adding to a personal collection of North Carolina relics, and expressed a regret that the native North Carolinians were not more interested in collecting and preserving the many historical relics in which this state abounds. Mr. Dixon recalled an incident in his youth when his grandfather told him of a meeting between his great-grandfather and Cornwallis when the British general was retreating with his army through his grandfather's old home, toward the close of the Revolution. He stated that his interest in collecting North Carolina historical relics had grown out of the personal part his ancestors had played in the history of this state.

Mr. Dixon visited the old Davie poplar, the stadium, and the new library, and showed a great deal of interest in the historical aspect and the steady growth of the University. Greatly impressed by what he saw of the University, Mr. Dixon said:

"The University of North Carolina symbolizes, perhaps better than anything else, North Carolina's amazing progress these last years. From a provincial state university, inadequately equipped and supported, it has grown, almost within a decade, into one of America's most distinguished institutions of learning.

"I was particularly impressed by the beauty and architectural excellence of the University's physical plant. The charm of the old University, as I remember it, has been admirably preserved in the new. As a native-born North Carolinian I have been gratified to learn that in her rapid material progress, North Carolina has in no sense lost sight of the importance of education and the things of the spirit."

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon — J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

Thursday, October 17, 1929

On Getting "Het Up" Over Cold Water

W. H. B.'s communication, appearing in the Readers' Opinions column this morning, interests us mightily. In common with most other dormitory residents, we have frequently returned from a fast set of tennis or a gallop around the track to shiver under an icy shower. Even our vast rage, induced by the cold water and directed against the powers that be in the buildings department, does not serve to heat up our red corpuscles sufficiently to keep our teeth from emulating castanets on such occasions.

Apparently the University heating plant is not capable of keeping the water at a temperature high enough for the most he-mannish of cold showers during the peak periods before the breakfast and supper hours. W. H. B.'s suggestion that a heating plant be installed in the fieldhouse at the stadium is worthy of serious consideration. Installation of a plant there would decrease the peak hour drain on the tanks at the heating plant, but it would prove a temporary expedient at best.

Increased facilities for heating water must be provided before the problem is solved and the dorm men may contentedly splash around in plenty of hot water. At present the students are becoming quite "het up" over the frigidity of their baths. All power to the building department bosses, say we, but they do seem to be enjoying a bit of slumber on the job insofar as this water heating proposition is concerned.

The Duncan Dancers and The Entertainment Program

Last night the Duncan dancers auspiciously launched the student entertainment program for the year when they held a capacity Memorial hall audience enthralled for the better part of two hours. The abbreviated costumes and comely figures of the dancers added much to the enthusiastic reception tendered them by the students, but the perfect rhythm of movement and finer shades of symbolic thought translation seemed to be highly appreciated by the entire audience.

Indications point to a highly successful season for the University student entertainment committee in its second year of existence. With the favorable reception tendered the opening event of the 1929-30 program last night, students, townspeople and faculty alike have recalled the excellence of last year's program. A cursory glance at the events scheduled for the remainder of this year will convince the most critical of observers that the University has graduated to the "big time," as far as entertainments are concerned.

Dean Addison Hibbard, the directing genius of the entertainment committee, deserves a generous measure of applause, and we hereby extend our share of it.

Those Tickets For the Game

(By H. J. G.)

When several thousand people called for their tickets for the Georgia-Yale game the other week, they found themselves the lucky recipients of beautifully engraved golden pasteboards, each with appropriate pictures and a nice sentiment, included with the price of the seat.

The tickets called to mind the efforts of Broadway theatrical producers for the opening of their shows, when beautiful golden pieces of typographical art are granted to the members of the audience, presumably to help them forget the fifty or so perfectly good iron men they had handed out for the privilege of occupying a small plush throne for the space of three hours.

It was with the thought of the Georgia tickets in our mind that we fondly surveyed the tickets issuing from Mr. Woollen's office for the battle this Saturday. Then we turned to the current copy of the Raleigh News and Observer, and saw this piece, written by our Mr. Robert House.

"I hold," he wrote, "that reader to be blest who in the welter of print, whether by wide reading or in a more limited way, has found some few books that are peculiarly his own—books that he keeps close at hand; that speak to him in language that never grows stale, that awaken in him thoughts and emotions which flow in and over and around the volume itself in a sort of creative symphony. These are books with meaning, dog-eared, worn-covered, loose-leaved treasures, that are loaned out with the same misgivings of a safe return with which a mother sends her son to college."

And then we turned to the passbook issued by the Athletic association, and reread Mr. House's last phrase. For he is right, dead right! How fondly those passbooks are being kept, with what misgivings loaned out, and with what appreciation will the stubs be turned over after the season is closed and the victories won. Golden tickets, Georgia? Ours should be engraved on silver plates this season.

Readers' Opinions

LACK OF HOT WATER

Editor of the Tar Heel:

I, among many others, come in on these chilly October afternoons from a workout, and have facing me the most pleasant experience of taking a cold shower. I have inquired as to the reason for the lack of hot water, and I have been told that all of it is being used by the freshman and varsity football teams. I should like to say in this connection that I do not object to a football player taking a bath for I am sure he needs one as badly as anyone could, but I do object to the football players using up all the hot water. The first remedy that one might think of is the heating of more water. I do not know whether or not the plant is heating all the hot water it can, but if it isn't it should. If it is, arrangements should be made for a plant to be set up in the stadium for the football boys alone, and this would leave a surplus for the dormitories. I have heard much discussion concerning this matter and discontentment has been voiced every time. If any remedy for the situation can be arranged I move that it be immediately.

—W. H. B.

RED-BLOODEDNESS WILL OUT

Editor of the Tar Heel:

Now, at the very beginning of what bids fair to be the most glorious year in its existence, the University students, old and new, seem afraid to back up their own football team? Yes, some, but mighty sporadic. Enthusiasm? A little, but none with any guts behind it.

Only last Sunday the Tar Heel, which presumably reflects the minds of the students of the University, had an editorial in which it was said that "Especially disgusting is the spectacle of a college man, presumably above the average in intelligence and in the niceties of social usage, descending to vicious imbecilities because his team has won an athletic contest."

Vicious imbecilities indeed, because a group of red-blooded Carolina men celebrated the glorious victory over Tech in the streets of the town, the most natural because it is the most public place for them to be. Are we to hide our heads when our own team wins a football game, and that such a game as will go down in the annals of history?

Must we be driven off the streets of this, our college town, by a cop with a badge and a man with a knife merely because we want to show we are proud of our football men? There was a demand for a special show at the theatre, such a demand as is always, on similar occasions, made and acceded to in other, more natural college towns. And was this a crime?

Mr. Editor, mere cheering at the game is not enough. If we cannot congregate when and where we want to and celebrate our victories without being told we are "assinine," "rowdies," "vicious," and "childish," something should be done. If this is the attitude of the paper, we want no more of it. Some, at least, on the staff seem to have the proper idea, for the editorial following the one already referred to said what should have been said in praise of the spectacular game of the mighty Shorty Branch.

Let us forget we are staid men with the cares of life weighing us down, and act with enthusiasm, as God intended us to and as the incomparable playing of our team is leading us to act. Are we red-blooded men of Carolina, or nice Willie-boys who just love to see the great big team win a nice little victory of a sunny afternoon? Must we be dictated to always, or may we show our spirit and celebrate in the time-honored, enthusiastic Carolina manner?

Yours for enthusiasm,
—PETER GREEN.

French Work Edited

Professors U. T. Holmes and J. C. Lyons, of the romance language department, and Professor G. C. Taylor, of the English department, have in preparation an edition of the works of Guilliume de Salluste du Bartas (1544-1590), to be published by the University Press. The edition, which has been in progress for four years, will fill several volumes. Du Bartas was a Calvinist poet whose popularity and influence in his day were enormous—he furnished material to Milton, for example—but his works have not been reprinted in toto since 1632. The edition should be completed by the end of the summer of 1930.

Infirmary List

The following are confined to the infirmary: M. M. Jones, Asheville; J. F. Merritt, Greensboro, and Miss Ruth Allen Williams, Warsaw.

State Musicians In Meet at Greensboro

Greensboro, Oct. 16.—Special.—Keen interest in the supervisors' conference held in this city Friday and Saturday, when more than 100 music instructors of the state gathered at North Carolina college to hear T. P. Giddings, of Minneapolis, and Dr. Russell Morgan of Cleveland, nationally known authorities on group vocal and instrumental instruction, and to make plans for the forthcoming spring high school contest, led those attending to pass resolutions asking for a continuation of the conference each year.

Although the music teachers did not set an exact date for the big state contest, they approved the latter part of April and left the selection of days to Dr. Wade R. Brown, director of the contest. Committees selected the music to be used by contestants. Reports brought out that more than 2,000 contestants were involved in the 10th annual meet, held in this city last spring. The figures indicate a number exclusive of the district enumerations.

District chairmen who will regulate the affairs of the various district contests, to be held next spring two weeks before the final meet in this city, are as follows:

Rocky Mount district, Harmon Nicodemus; Edenton, Mrs. A. W. Bachman; Durham, W. P. Twaddell; High Point, L. L. Stookey; Salisbury, J. R. Keith; Charlotte, L. R. Sides; Winston-Salem, C. D. Kutschinski; Gastonia, Edwin M. Steckel; Lenoir, Mrs. F. N. Blackwell; Asheville, Frank Biddle; Cullowhee, Miss Vivian Blackstone; Greenville, J. H. Rose; Wilmington, Jack Harrison; Fayetteville, Arthur S. Yeaw; Raleigh, W. A. Porter.

N.C.C.W. Gets One Day Thanksgiving

Greensboro, Oct. 16.—Special.—Thursday, November 28, Thanksgiving, will be observed as a holiday at North Carolina college, state institution for women, this city. But the calendar shows only one day of recreation for students and members of the faculty.

Christmas holidays this year begin at 5 o'clock in the evening, December 19. That date is Thursday. The vacation extends to January 3, at 8:15 o'clock in the morning.

The spring vacation takes in the days from April 1 to 7.

WILLIAM CAIN CHAPTER TO HEAR BRAUNE TALK

At the meeting of the William Cain student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers to be held this evening in Phillips hall, Dean G. M. Braune of the school of engineering will speak, and two reels of an engineering moving picture will be shown.

Dean Braune will speak on the activities of the society and especially on the relation of the student branches to the national organization. Mr. Braune is well fitted to make a talk of this kind, for he was at one time director of the tenth district of the society.

The moving picture to be shown is titled "Hydroelectric Power Production in the New South" and illustrates the development and construction by the Carolina Light and Power company of a great hydro-electric project in the Great Smoky mountains.

The scenes in the picture show how the contractors were forced to blast their way along ledges of the site of the dam, how cables were slung across a gorge and how a flume was built to divert the waters of a creek from the tunnel headings. The picture is to be exhibited through the courtesy of E. T. du Pont deNemours & Co.

CAROLINA THEATRE ISSUES SCHEDULE

Manager E. Carrington Smith of the Carolina theatre has just announced the schedule of outstanding pictures to be shown during the rest of October. Included among them are many which are either running on Broadway now or have just been received from there.

The list of coming attractions includes "This Is Heaven," with Vilma Banky; "Private Life," with Billie Dove; Ronald Colman in "Bulldog Drummond," the famous mystery story which in picture form has enjoyed extended runs on Broadway and in London, where it is still playing; the Follies star, Ann Pennington, in "Gold Diggers on Broadway"; "Say It with Songs," in which Al Jolson says it; "Salute," featuring George O'Brien; Richard Dix in "The Love Doctor"; Harold Lloyd in another laugh film, "Welcome Danger"; Sue Carol in "Why Leave Home," and the popular little star, Janet Gaynor, in two pictures, "Lucky Star" and "The Four Devils."

In response to numerous requests received at the theatre, the schedule of outstanding pictures to be shown in November will be run in an early issue of the Tar Heel.

IF YOU RECEIVED THE LETTERS you write

Would you be proud of them or just a bit sheepish? What about the appearance of the envelope—the paper? Would they make you want to read the letter itself?

Old Hampshire Stationery has that ability—it impels one to read the message. It is aristocratic, rich, substantial. It makes a letter stand out of the crowd.

Old Hampshire Stationery

Sold in Chapel Hill by Sutton & Alderman

Don't Experiment with your Appearance

ESTABLISHED 1896 — QUALITY VALUE SERVICE — LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES — NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

CAROLINA THEATRE

LAST TIMES TODAY

First 100% Natural Color, All Talking, All Singing Dancing Picture.

ON WITH THE SHOW

SATURDAY
BILLIE DOVE
in
"HER PRIVATE LIFE"

Saturday Morning Matinee—10:30

Look Snappy! in one of our "College" SUITS

New Patterns
Tailored to Your Measure
$29.50
$34.50

Stetson D

The key to highest scholarship honors is brought nearer when you are aided by good health. Shredded Wheat—every day—keeps your mind active and your body fit. Make it a habit.

Shredded Wheat

All the bran of the whole wheat. Easy to digest

Heel Cindermen Have Penn State On 1930 Card

Big Eastern Team Added to Tar Heel Schedule; May Come Here Next Spring.

The 1930 edition of the Tar Heel cinder path artists will be confronted with an exceptionally difficult task in maintaining their dual meet record of no defeats in eight seasons because of the addition of Penn State to this year's track schedule. Penn State boasts one of the strongest teams in the country and in recent years has not only maintained a splendid team record but has developed a great number of individual performers. Alan Helfrich and Bill Cox rate among the greatest of the former stars. Last year Offenhauser equalled these men in rank when he ran a 4:21 mile and a 1:56 half mile in one afternoon. Penn State's four-mile relay team last year broke the Penn Relay championship record for that distance, and this year's team will number three members of this team with Bill Cox lacking. Both Carolina and Penn State have been noted for exceptional distance runners in cross country and track, the former leading the southern conference and the latter the I. C. A. A. A. A.

According to University athletic officials, the scheduling of Penn State is a tacit acknowledgement on the part of the University athletic council of the splendid work done by former Carolina track teams and an expression of confidence in those men now on the varsity squad who are being looked to for a continued maintenance of the spirit which has carried the team through so great a number of successful seasons. This meet with Penn State is to be a home and home meet, which means that the Nittany Lions will bring their great team here either next spring or the year after, the place being undecided as yet.

An interesting sidelight on this meeting of the Tar Heels with Penn State is the fact that Coach Nate Cartmell, famous amateur and professional sprinter who coached at Carolina between 1911 and 1914, is now track coach at Penn State. Cartmell's name will be familiar to many Carolina alumni of that period.

Georgia Captain

Captain Joe Boland (above), who led the Georgia Bulldogs to their great 15-0 victory over Yale, is one of a small number of third-year men who lend the steadiness and stability to Georgia's great sophomore team. Captain Boland was a tower of strength against Yale, and his pivot play, opposite the Tar Heels' fine center, Ned Lipscomb, is expected to feature the North Carolina-Georgia contest Saturday.

Ward Still Leads

Player	TD	EP	T
Ward, Carolina	5	0	30
Williams, Elon	4	3	27
Branch, Carolina	4	0	24
Waggoner. Elon	4	0	24
Walker, Elon	3	3	21
Magner, Carolina	3	2	20
Cox, Guilford	3	1	19
Mills, W. Forest	3	0	18
Spaulding, Carolina	2	4	16
McCall, Davidson	2	0	12
King, Davidson	2	0	12
Hipps, Wake Forest	2	0	12
Bunn, Guilford	2	0	12
Buie, Duke	1	2	8
Cheek, Guilford	1	1	7
Benton, W. Forest	1	3	9
Newsome, W. F.	1	1	7
Beaver, Duke	1	0	6
Dellinger, State	1	0	6
Nash, Carolina	1	0	6
Erickson, Carolina	1	0	6
Peeler, Duke	1	0	6
Godfrey, Duke	1	0	6
Quillen, W. Forest	1	0	6
Parrish, Davidson	1	0	6
Broussard, David'n	1	0	6
Fraley, Davidson	1	0	6
Covington, W. F.	1	0	6
Black, Catawba	1	0	6
Perdue, High Point	1	0	6
Bryan, A. C. C.	1	0	6
Doffiemeyer, Elon	1	0	6
Willis, W. Forest	1	0	6
West, Guilford	1	0	6
Holsome, Lenoir	1	0	6
Brock, Davidson	0	6	6
House, Carolina	0	1	1
Weigel, Catawba	0	1	1
Blosser, High Point	0	0	x2

x—Safety.

Team Scoring

Team	TD	EP	T
Carolina	17	7	109
Elon	12	6	78
Wake Forest	10	4	64
Davidson	7	6	48
Guilford	7	2	44
Duke	4	2	26
Catawba	3	2	20
State	1	0	6
High Point	1	0	x8
A. C. C.	1	0	6
Totals	62	28	402

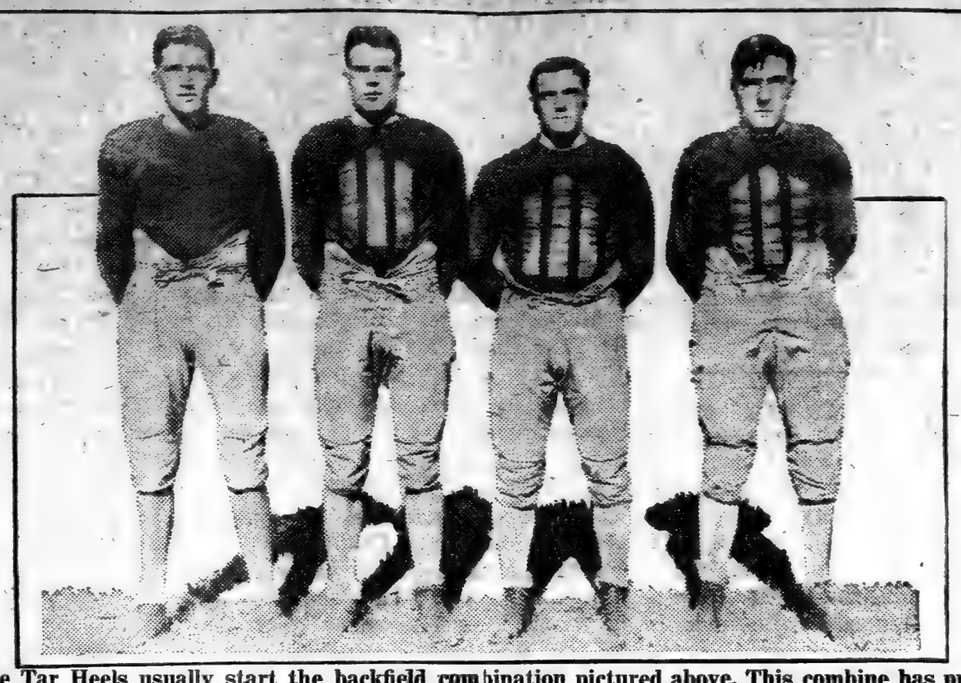
x—Safety.

SOUTH'S PREMIER HURDLERS TO RACE

Feature Event To Be Staged Between Halves of Georgia Contest.

Four of the South's premier collegiate hurdlers will feature a contest, between the halves of the Carolina-Georgia football game, next Saturday afternoon.

Coach Fetzer's plan is very unique in that an event of this nature has never been staged during a football game at the University before.



Heath Whittle of Davidson, considered best in the south, and Bill Perry of Carolina will face each other for the third time. At the last state championship meet Whittle beat Perry by less than a foot.

Besides these two there will be an entry from the University of Georgia and another from Davidson, who will engage in hurdling.

Not only is this event for the amusement of the football fans, but interest in hurdling is expected to be stimulated among the students.

In 1900 Carolina won six football games, tied one, and was beaten by Virginia for the only loss of the season.

Four Carolina Backs

The Tar Heels usually start the backfield combination pictured above. This combine has proved about the smoothest starting foursome the Tar Heel mentors have found, and, with the possible exception of Wyrick, will be the quartet that will open against Georgia in Kenan stadium here Saturday.

Left to right are Strud Nash, right half; Yank Spaulding, fullback; Pete Wyrick, quarter; and Jimmy Ward, left half. All played in the memorable Georgia Tech victory except Wyrick, and acquitted themselves in rare style.

Nash was one of the Heels' most consistent backs last season, and with a good start this year, looks to be headed stright for All-Southern. Spaulding is a great man at backing up the line, a fine pass receiver and interference runner, and a hard driver. Wyrick is a brainy field general and a stellar interference leader. Ward, playing his final season, is leading the North Carolina college backs in point-scoring, and is a triple-threater.

Heels Use Strong Offense To Keep Grid Foes From Scoring

The Tar Heel scoring machine was back in high gear this week and with all the fleet corps of backs rounding into shape after last week's gruelling test with Georgia Tech, prospects were looking rosy for the big Georgia battle in Kenan stadium here Saturday.

Not to discount the Bulldogs' strength at all. Far from that. Any team that could shove over 15 points on Yale's great line can be called plenty strong in a scoring way. And this same team beat Furman 27-0. Davidson, Dickens, and Rothstein form a great quartet of ball toters, and Vernon "Catfish" Smith is a constant threat from his flank position.

But the Tar Heels have a sort of super-scoring machine that functions on the theory that the best defense is the super-offense. The team ran up seven touchdowns on Wake Forest, and Eddie Brietz, Associated Press sports writer, lauded them as the "team of a hundred backs."

They ran up seven more on Maryland, and Curley Byrd, Old Line coach, called them the greatest team in the South Atlantic. They bagged three more to beat Georgia Tech, 18-7, and assume national prominence.

These Tar Heels have scored exactly 109 points in three games and had just one touchdown scored on them—a tribute to the greatness of Stumpy Thomason, Georgia Tech's All-American flash.

The secret of all this scoring power lies in a wealth of backfield material. Head Coach Chuck Collins hurled exactly 10 backs at Georgia Tech. It has been likewise all season, only more so. Coach Collins believes in a fresh backfield running top speed, all steam and power.

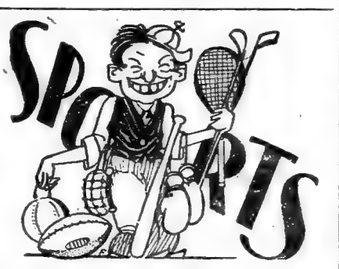
Strud Nash, one of the Tar Heels' most consistent halfbacks, and Yank Spaulding were both banged up a bit in that memorable Tech victory but were looking in shape again today.

They will be ready for Georgia. So will Johnny Branch, stumpy potion of dynamite, and Jim Magner, who did the greatest damage against Georgia Tech, and the others of the fine crew—Jimmy Ward, Pap Harden, Jimmy Maus, Phil Jackson, Rip Slusser, and Chuck Erickson. It looks like two great offensives for Saturday's menu.

At one time the University buildings were for rent.

NOTRE DAME TEST IN GEORGIA GAME

Coaches of Opposing Teams Trained Under Famous Knute Rockne.



When Georgia and North Carolina meet this week-end in what is predicted to be a death struggle, four coaches of one great family will watch silently upon the sidelines. Regardless of who wins this coming tilt, which the sports tribe are saying will show the 1929 southern conference champs in action, a portion of the credit and praise for the style of play must travel up and over to Notre Dame and center upon the football famous Knute Rockne. Chuck Collins, Bill Cerney, Frank Thomas and Harry Mehre all broke into gridiron renown under the tutoring of Rockne.

The clash of the two Notre Dame-coached teams, playing the same general tactics, and showing relatively the same potential strength, should be interesting.

There is just one difference in the Tar Heel and Bulldog attacks. Harry Mehre down in Peachland teaches the Notre Dame system, shift and all, exactly as the master Rockne. Head Coach Collins up in Tar Heelia has left the shift off and adapted the system slightly.

Collins and Cerney starred at Notre Dame in 1922, 1923 and 1924. Mehre played his last season the year before. He was counted one of the greatest centers Knute Rockne ever turned out and played on the great Southbend team of 1920 that blanked the Army 27-0 one Saturday and the following Tuesday did the same thing to Rutgers, only by a seven-touchdown margin. Collins was regular end on the great Four Horsemen eleven of 1924. Thomas was Notre Dame's quarterback in 1922.

The team that Collins and Cerney will send on the field Saturday is a culmination and product of four years of hard preparation. The Carolina mentors did not, when they first came to the University of North Carolina, build for the present. They bided their time and stuck with almost hard-headed persistency to a system which they believed would someday lift North Carolina above the ordinary run of football teams.

With the football season approaching its climax in the game with the Georgia Bulldogs here Saturday, athletics seem to be reaching the peak usually attained during the fall quarter. The various sports are holding early practice in preparation for the more strenuous work which will come later.

The boxing team which won the southern conference crown for the last two out of three years is working out daily under the coaching of Creighton Rowe, the man who put boxing on the map here at the University. Prospects are good in practically all divisions except the heavyweight. However, Coach Rowe hopes to fill this post before the season opens, with some hefty fellow from the football squad. An analysis of the team shows that every weight with the exception of the above mentioned heavy division has a varsity man from last year back to fill it. Thus it seems from the way the boys are showing up in the early workouts that the Heels will have a bunch of pugs fighting this winter who will make a strong bid for another championship.

The wrestling team is also working daily in the Tin Can and the prospects are looking good. Practically the entire personnel of last year's team is back in school and augmented by some good men from last year's freshman aggregation, the mat artists should prove stronger than they were last season.

While the usual early basketball practice has not officially begun, several of the men from last year's varsity and freshman squads have been working down in the Tin Can and getting their eye on the basket in anticipation of the beginning of real work.

The tennis squad, faced with a tough schedule and weakened by the loss of Shapiro and other men from last year's team, is working daily under the eyes of Coach Kenfield. While the star material of last year is partially missing, such men as Yeomans, Scott and Merritt can be counted upon to form the nucleus of a team which will prove dangerous to all opponents. None of the places are filled, since the rankings are yet to be established by means of competitive play. All men interested in going out for tennis are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Bo Shepard, the new head of intramural athletics, has his department working smoothly as the second week of the annual tag football race progresses. Several of the dormitory teams have been showing potential strength in the early games. New Dorms, always a team to be feared, is a threat again this fall. The Pi Kappa Phis, winners of the campus championship last year, have a strong aggregation though they will be pushed for honors by several other smooth working combinations.

Fall baseball practice is being held under the direction of Coach Ashmore and every afternoon a score or more candidates are working down on the diamond at the far end of the intramural field. Interest is keen and the men are taking the work seriously with the idea of developing both batting and fielding by this daily practice. Several of the men from last year's varsity are on hand every day and their number is augmented by members of last year's freshman team and by men going out for baseball for the first time.

The cross country season which opens shortly will find the Tar Heels in top shape and ready to make a strong bid for another southern championship. The loss of several stars may have weakened the team to some extent but the acquisition of several excellent performers from last year's freshmen will probably make up for this.

Coach Ranson has been putting his men through a daily set of conditioning exercises and they are fast getting into shape for the five mile grind which will take place when they open the season in a short time.

Fall track practice has been begun and many of last spring's stars are taking workouts every afternoon.

A rapid survey thus shows that athletics at the University are in full swing though the season is on for only one or two teams. The early practices which have been instituted here during the last few years have been very valuable and this season, from advance indications, they will probably bring several potential stars to light.

Smith dormitory, now the graduate dorm, was completed in 1901.

Managers To Report

All assistants and sub-assistants of track are to report at Emerson field Friday afternoon at 3:30.

Quick Relief

GONICH quickly heals and relieves the unpleasant and painful irritation caused by wearing athletic supporters.

Also recommended for foot itch, ringworm, eczema and certain skin affections. Keep a package handy. On sale in Chapel Hill at:

Patterson's Drug Store
Eubanks' Drug Store
Andrews-Henninger

Gonich

HARRIERS MEET V. P. I. FRIDAY

Varsity and Frosh Leave This Morning for First Meet Of Season.

The Carolina varsity and freshman cross country teams leave this morning at 8:30 for Blacksburg, Va., where they are scheduled to meet the V. P. I. harriers tomorrow afternoon. According to Coach Dale Ranson nothing is known of the strength of either of the V. P. I. teams, and a hard fight is expected from the opposing teams.

Captain Barkley, Baucom, Lowry and Wrenn, last year's veterans, together with Farris, Simpson, Phoenix and Pierce, will compose the varsity team, which Ranson expects to win the meet.

The freshmen making the trip are Jensen, Cox, Cordle, Zelly, Hawley, Lumpkin and Caldwell. Jensen, former Newark prep star, who has been leading in the daily workouts, is expected to be one of the outstanding stars of the meet. Mark Jones, who has also been showing up well in the workouts, will be unable to make the trip because of confinement to the infirmary with mumps.

Al Marsters Leads Scorers of Nation

A total of 78 points, represented by 11 touchdowns and a dozen extra points in three games, gives Al Marsters, Dartmouth star, the lead among college grid scorers of the nation.

McElreath, Baylor halfback, heads the southwest and ranks second to Marsters with 56 points, seven touchdowns and as many extra points in four games. McEver, Tennessee, heads the South with 54 points, all counted by the touchdown route.

Other sectional leaders: Pacific—Moffatt, Stanford halfback, 36; West — Pederson, Idaho, quarterback, 36; Missouri Valley—King, Drake, 26; Rocky Mountain—Day, Colorado Aggies, halfback, 21; Bix Six—Page, Kansas halfback, 18; Big Ten—Ynevich, Purdue fullback, 18.

All-Southern Honors

North Carolina will be presenting a large galaxy of talent for all-southern honors when North Carolina and Georgia clash here Saturday. The classic between the conquerors of Yale and Georgia Tech promises to draw a record quota of sports scribes and pickers of the mythical selections, and they should have plenty to look upon. Outstanding among Tar Heel claimants will be Captain Farris, guard; Koenig and Adkins, tackles; Branch, quarterback, and Magner and Nash, halfbacks.

Super Line Play

Two big, stalwart, hard charging lines will meet in combat when Tar Heel and Bulldog grapple in Kenan stadium here Saturday. Georgia started a 183-pound line against Yale, and North Carolina showed a 191-pound forward wall against Georgia Tech. Both teams won notable victories, and much of the credit for those victories was due to super line play.

At one time tuition at the University was free.

Georgia Tickets

According to an announcement of the Graduate Manager's office there are plenty of choice seats for the Georgia game available for sale. Over ten thousand tickets have been sold since the beginning of the week for this game. Tickets are on sale in Chapel Hill at the Book Exchange and the Student Supply Store.

DR. ALEXANDER GRAHAM PASSES 85TH BIRTHDAY

Friends of Dr. Frank Graham, professor of history at the university, will be interested in reading the following editorial from the Charlotte Observer about his father, Dr. Alexander Graham:

"It is the top o' the mornin' to Dr. Alexander Graham, now past his 85th mile-post and actively engaged for nearly 70 years as an educator of the young people of the state, a great hand-shaker all these years, and lovingly embraced by the people of Charlotte as father of their school system. His record as teacher and promoter of public school work probably has no parallel in the state, and but few in the nation. If he had been a politician he might have become president of the United States, but that he has not been entirely void of political equipment is evidenced in the fact that through a life of educational activities since "before the war," he has successfully weathered the many political storms that arise around every factor prominent in educational work. Constitutionally, Dr. Graham is of the build of men against whom the years do not count. He bears the mental and physical poise of youth. He does not play golf, but gets his exercise in garden work, having risen to within talking distance of Burbank as vegetable and flower grower. Educationally, he has bent a veritable forest of twigs to grow up in the right way."

Kay Kyser's Band Now Broadcasting

Kay Kyser and his orchestra, former University of North Carolina students, are broadcasting this week from Station WHK, Cleveland, Ohio.

The Tar Heel band will broadcast Thursday night from 12:30 a. m. to 1 a. m., and on Saturday from 1:15 to 1:45 p. m.

The class of 1900 presented a reproduction of Venus de Milo to the University.

COLLINS PRAISED BY SPORT WRITERS

With the Georgia-Yale football game on their hands the Atlanta sport pages were crowded for room Sunday, but they found space somehow to talk about the smart work of Coach Chuck Collins, whom they have dubbed the "wonder boy coach."

The Sunday American ran a big three-column sketch of Collins that extended from the top to the bottom of the page, accompanied by the following statement:

"Coach Chuck Collins entered the ranks of the wonder coaches Friday when the Tar Heels defeated Georgia Tech. Collins, one of the youngest coaches in the South, has developed a replica of the old 'Four Horsemen,." The sketch was done by Clio Mansfield.

The other Atlanta papers were equally fulsome in their praise of the Carolina coach.

The assistance given Collins by Cerney and Bob Fetzer also called forth much favorable comment.

Georgia's defeat of Yale and Carolina's defeat of Tech has caused the big boys of the Atlanta sport writing group to change their plans overnight. Several days ago most of them were planning to cover the Tech-Florida game here and to send their chief assistant to take care of the Georgia-Carolina game. Now they are planning to go to Chapel Hill next Saturday themselves. Those who expect to go to Chapel Hill include: Eddie Brietz, southern sports editor of the Associated Press; Ed Danforth, sports editor of the Constitution; Morgan Blake, sports editor of the Journal, and Jimmy Burns, of the Georgian.

Med Fraternity Pledges

Beta Iota chapter of Alpha Kappa Kappa, international medical fraternity, announces the initiation of the following men: J. M. Alexander, Derita; R. B. Garrison, Glen Alpine; W. B. Green, Midland; C. F. Hudson, Sparta; A. E. Knoefel, Jr., Black Mountain; L. M. McKee, Durham; T. M. Northrop, St. Pauls; J. T. Ramsaur, Kings Mountain; Asa M. Scarborough, Greenville, S. C.; W. R. Wandeck, Marianna, Fla.; B. L. Woodard, Kenly.

A "rogue's gallery" has been established by the Detroit recreational league to prevent use of ringers in football games. Players must register and leave a "mug" for future identification.

Anybody Got a Ram? Heels Want Mascot

Has anybody got a ram? A great big, husky, burly one, with heavy-set horns, and a mean expression?

Rameses, long mascot to North Carolina football teams, is dead, and the boys want another Rameses. For the big North Carolina-Georgia game this weekend, if anybody has one handy.

Carolina's pride and joy held the center of attraction once. He attended home games and made trips, in state, as became his regal majesty.

The boys began to forget him. And maybe life didn't smile so well on him in his home in the Med school. The football managers went to get him for the Georgia Tech invasion, which now is history—but Rameses never lived to witness that triumph.

His kingly grace had passed on—in the middle of September—in the interim between summer school and regular school. Unpraised, unmoaned, without a single tribute! What an end for glory such as once was his!

Managers that once were retainers to the great Rameses say there must be another to carry on the glorious tradition. Won't someone hearken and send them a Rameses II?

Engineer Society Postpones Meeting

The meeting of the University student chapter of the A. I. E. E. has been postponed from this evening until next Thursday to avoid a conflict with the meeting of the William Cain society which will be held in Phillips hall tonight.

After the meeting next week, regular meetings of the institute will be held every two weeks. The program for the next meeting has not yet been announced.

Squadron leader A. H. Orlebar, of the British Schneider Cup Team may now claim the distinction of having gone faster than any one else in the world. His official record is 357.7 miles per hour, but he is said to have previously gone 368 mph. in an unofficial test flight.

Army Reserves to Meet

The Chapel Hill army reserve officers, C. M. T. C. students and others interested in the army reserves will meet Friday evening, October 18, at 7:30 in Mr. Totten's office on the lower floor of the Davie hall annex. Captain Dan Floyd, recently assigned as executive officer to the 316th field artillery, will be present and will organize a troop school, or extension class covering army correspondence class work. The day of the week and the hour for future meetings and the courses of study will be decided at this meeting. Those interested are urged to be present.

Captain Dan Floyd replaces Captain Dick Hunter, the executive officer of the 316th field artillery for the last five years. Captain Hunter has been transferred to Fort Sill. Captain Dan Floyd before entering the army was well known in North Carolina as a very popular football star at State.

Rhythmic Charm Is New Era Of Dance Presented Here

(Continued from page one)

Following a classical program of beauty in which melodies of masters like Schubert, Schumann and Chopin were interpreted with heavenly grace, the program was concluded by two numbers truly Russian in character. First of these two was a group of Russian songs in which the dancing bodies burst into song during their symphony of motion.

The second group of songs and the final number on the unique entertainment were impressions of modern Russia interpreted in folk songs.

Seven Chopin numbers made up the interesting and well appreciated first part of the program after the intermission.

Efforts of the late Isadora Duncan who was acclaimed in both the old and new world for her successful efforts to revolutionize the dance by making it a part of the education of children, were on the whole reflected in the wholesome performance here last night. Miss Irma Duncan deserves resounding credit for carrying on in such a splendid manner the fine start in the "new age of the dance" instituted by Isadora. Those who remember Isadora's dancing and that of her students prior to her tragic death six years ago, see her still living in the dancers who were seen here last night.

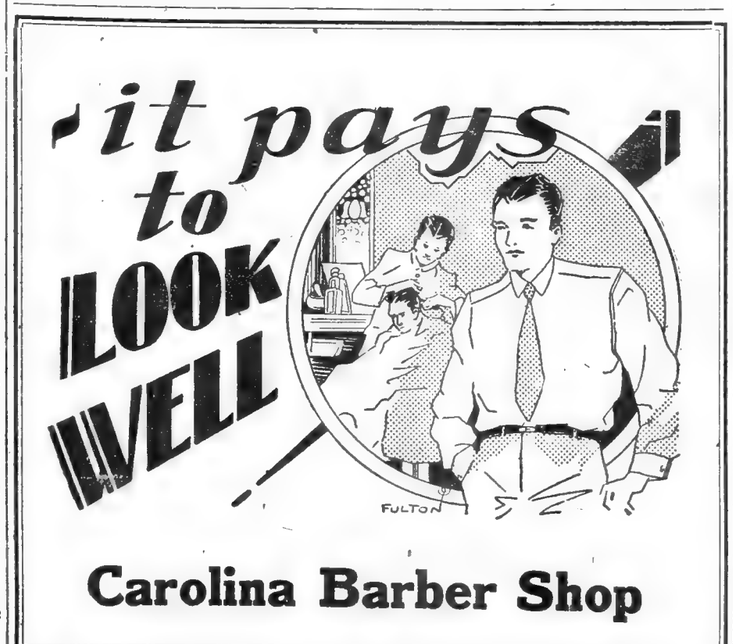
At one time if a student at the University received 30 demerits, his removal from school was requested.

You CAN Afford to Let It RAIN if You Have Those Shoes Fixed Like New
—at—
The University Shoe Shop

New Carolina Belts and Buckles $2.00

New Neckwear $1.00 and $1.50

Learbury Suits and Topcoats



Have you seen the 200 samples of the latest fall patterns for Suits and Topcoats made to your measure?

$27.50 and $34.50

Also a Complete line of Shirts, Sweaters and Luggage.

at

Jack Lipman's University Shop

Carolina Barber Shop

TIFFANY-STAHL presents
TWO MEN AND A MAID

Today Friday and Saturday in DURHAM

William Collier, Jr.
Alma Bennett
Eddie Gribbon
George E. Stone

EXTRA—On the Stage Twice Daily at 3:30 and 9 P. M.
Duke Blue Devil Orchestra
From Duke University

CAROLINA THEATRE

HAVE YOUR YACKETY YACK PICTURE MADE NOW AND AVOID THE RUSH
Make Appointments at Patterson's and Students' Supply Store
1-3 and 5:30-7:30 O'clock
Pictures Must Be Made Now --- Imperative

MASS MEETING
9 O'CLOCK TONIGHT
MEMORIAL HALL

The Daily Tar Heel

MASS MEETING
9 O'CLOCK TONIGHT
MEMORIAL HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1929 — NUMBER 25

Rushing Season Ends With Quiet Pledge Day

Small Number Pledged to Fraternities Yesterday; New Rushing Plan Tried This Year.

Beginning at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the 1929 rushing season ended with over 250 new men donning pledge buttons. A complete list of pledges is not available as many fraternities failed to turn in lists yesterday. There was a noticeable lack of enthusiasm on the part of fraternities with the pledging due in part to the novel system of rushing inaugurated this year. However, if enthusiasm was lacking the relief expressed more than made up for it. The new system was designed to relieve the strain on fraternities and rushees. It found both suffering under the same strain as the final hour approached yesterday.

Rushing rules were quite different from those of the preceeding year. Whereas actual rushing began last year immediately following the appearance of the freshmen on the Hill, a period of silence was in effect for ten days after the arrival of the men this fall. This silence period was also placed in effect until 2 o'clock this afternoon as well as at all meals and after 9 o'clock at night. The period of rushing was also shortened from 28 to 16 days. The authorities state that the system was very satisfactory.

Initiations will not take place until the beginning of the spring quarter. This is due to the fact that to be eligible for initiation a freshman must have passed at least five courses and made C's on two of these courses.

List of Pledges Published Saturday

As the list of fraternity pledges was incomplete the names will not be published today in the Tar Heel but will be published tomorrow. Fraternities which have not turned lists in are requested to do so at the Tar Heel office before 2 o'clock today. List should be typewritten and double-spaced. Additions or corrections to lists already submitted should also be turned in before 2 o'clock.

Sororities End Rushing at Duke

Durham, Oct. 17.—(Special).—Forty bids have been accepted by women students of Duke university in the six sorority groups on the campus, marking the close of a three-week rushing season that was marked by a number of social events.

STUDENTS ASKED TO COOPERATE

Farris and Barrett Want Student Body to Help Cheerleaders.

(By E. G. Daniel, Jr.)

"There is a part that the student body can play in football, by cooperating with the cheerleader," was one of the remarks made by Ray Farris in a recent chapel talk. As president of the University student body and captain of the Tar Heel grid team, Farris was discussing the cheering question in preparation for the big game with Georgia on Saturday. Commenting on the unusual spirit displayed by Georgia followers during the Yale game, he encouraged a similar gentlemanly attitude on the part of the Carolina students.

This talk and another short one by Jack Barrett, recently elected cheerleader, were prompted by the fact that the support of the football team has been on the decline during the past season or two. Since Kay Kyser, and consequently the Cheerios, left the University an adequate cheering section has been lacking on the campus. Organized enthusiasm, which according to Captain Farris, makes or breaks a team, has been a

(Continued on page four)

PLAY READINGS TO BE GIVEN ON SECOND SUNDAYS

Playmaker Reading Programs Include "Street Scene" and Other Noted Plays.

Readings of plays on the second Sunday evening of each month during the school year, in past terms most popular with students of the University, will be continued again this fall and winter, according to Prof. Frederick Koch of the dramatic department.

The first reading in the series was given last Sunday evening by Prof. Koch himself who has been prevailed upon to start the year off in the past with a Shakespeare reading until this has become a tradition. The next reading will be in November when Elmer Hall, new technical director of the Carolina Playmakers, will present the noted play, "Street Scene."

Professor Koch and others were keenly disappointed at the small crowd which attended the first reading last Sunday evening. However, the lack of a packed house was explained by them more on account of students not knowing that the play was to be read, rather than a dearth in appreciation of Shakespeare in Chapel Hill. Those who heard Professor Koch give the laudable renditions of scenes from "The Taming of the

(Continued on last page)

Music Department To Give Concert Sunday

Among the many interests of Home-coming Week is a concert which is to be given under the supervision of the University Music Department. Series number eleven of these concerts which have been held for the past few years will take place Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in Memorial hall. The concert is being put on complementary to the second conference on education which will be held here during the week-end.

Professor T. S. McCorkle will render a number of violin solos with Mrs. McCorkle accompanying him on the piano. Professor Nelson O. Kennedy will give a number of interesting selections on the piano. The University glee club will make its initial appearance of the year under the direction of Dr. Dyer. This is Dr. Dyer's first appearance as leader of the glee club for which he is doing such wonderful work as a director. The club for this occasion has already been picked, but the club for the trips has not been decided upon.

The complete program for the concert is as follows:

I. Arabesque, Schumann, Prof. Kennedy.

II. Wee Bit O' Heart, Shilkret-Gordon; Oriental Romance, Rimsky-Korsakov-Gordon; Hejre Kati, Hubay—Professor T. Smith McCorkle and Lilita W. McCorkle at the Piano.

III. Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee, Bach; Ave Maria, Jacob Arcadelt; The Galway Piper (Irish Air), arr Davidson—The Glee Club.

IV. Prelude, Op. 28, No. 17, Chopin; Mazurka, Op. 6, No. 1, Chopin—Professor Nelson O. Kennedy.

V. Hymn of the Pilgrims (A. D. 1620), MacDowell-Ambrose; The Long Day Closes, Sullivan; Land-Sighting, Edvard Grieg—The Glee Club.

"Catfish" Smith

The papers said Yale would beat Georgia 14 to 20 points last week. But Vernon "Catfish" Smith, one of the "rebel" Georgia Smith, didn't show he had read the papers. Mr. Smith, sub, almost beat Yale single-handed.

DURHAM ALUMNI TO HOLD DINNER

Banquet to Be In Keeping With Homecoming Celebration.

The Durham Alumni Association will hold a dinner Friday night in the Washington Duke hotel. This dinner is in keeping with the University Homecoming celebration this week-end during which time the library will be officially dedicated.

All alumni in the vicinity of Durham are invited to attend. It will be formal. R. O. Everett, president of the Durham alumni, will be toastmaster and introduce the principal speakers of the evening. President Chase of the University will make a speech.

Co-Eds Give Only Dance of Week-End

Annual Dance Rescues Social Reputation of Campus for Biggest Week-End.

The co-eds are rescuing the social reputation of the campus for the biggest week-end of the year with their annual dance which will be given tonight at Spencer Hall from nine til one. With the exception of the Georgia-Carolina dance at the Washington Duke Saturday night, this will be the only dance in the neighborhood.

With the increased number of co-eds here this year, tonight's affair will be one of the largest ever held in the Woman's building. Invitations have gone to several hundred boys, each girl having been allowed to invite two. Jack Wardlaw and His Orchestra will play for the event.

Epsilon chapter of the Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity announces the initiation of Alex Mendenhall, Greensboro, and Colbert Crutchfield, North Wilkesboro.

Students Meet Tonight To Cheer Team Before Georgia-Carolina Game

Memorial Hall Scene of Gigantic Mass Meeting; Captains of '95 And '14 Teams and Descendant of First University to Talk.

A lineal descendant of the first student at the University of North Carolina and two former captains of Carolina football teams which defeated Georgia in years past will speak to the student body tonight at a gigantic mass meeting at 9 o'clock in Memorial hall.

Major Alexander James, West Point graduate and descendant of Hinton James, who ventured to enter the University in 1795, will head the program. Following the talk Clark E. Gregory, who led an inspired Tar Heel team to a 10-6 victory over Georgia in 1895 when a football player and a Northwest mounted policeman were in the same class, is scheduled to exhort the assembled students and team. Dave Gayloe, who captained the 1914 squad which trampled Georgia to the tune of 41-6 will conclude the program.

The entire football team led by Captain Ray Farris will occupy front seats in the hall. Members of the team including Captain Farris are expected to speak to the students.

The University band will be present in full force to provide musical entertainment. Jack Barrett, cheerleader, will head the ceremonies and introduce the various speakers.

The securing of Major James to speak at the meeting was through a lucky stroke. The major who is residing in Charlotte, made known his intentions of attending the Georgia game to a friend who notified the cheerleader. Wounds received while fighting in France necessitated the retirement of Major James.

Library Dedication

Students and townspeople are urged to attend the dedication of the new library services which will be held in Memorial hall tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. Principal speakers will be Governor O. Max Gardner and President Keogh of the American Library Association.

Library Dedication To Be Held Saturday

The University's new $625,000 libary, the most costly building yet to be erected by the state, is to be formally dedicated here tomorrow (Saturday) morning. The exercises will begin at 10:30 o'clock.

The new structure, which is located at the South end of the new campus, will house the largest college or university book collection in the south this side of Texas.

It is the largest and most beautiful of the many pretty buildings on the University campus.

An impressive ceremony has been arranged for the dedication. Governor O. Max Gardner will present the new building in behalf of the people of North Carolina. John Sprunt Hill, chairman, will accept it in behalf of the board of trustees. Andrew Keogh, librarian of Yale university, and president of the American Library Association, will deliver the dedication address. Then will come announcements of gifts by Louis R. Wilson, University librarian, whose efforts have been chiefly responsible for the University obtaining the new building. President Harry W. Chase will preside over the exercises. Rev. W. D. Moss will conduct the de-

(Continued on page four)

University Library Can Deliver Books On Four Minutes Notice

"Within four minutes any book in the library stacks can be brought to you at the delivery desk," was the boast University librarians made to first-year men during the freshman week library tours.

Their boast will be reiterated this week-end when librarians from all over the south, gathered for the second annual conference on Southern education, will inspect the book distributor which makes the North Carolina library service the fastest of any library's in the world.

This almost human two-way distributor is a recent invention which has been installed only at North Carolina. Four new libraries, however, are planning to follow the North Carolina library in adopting it. They are the Rochester University library, the University of Cincinnati and Toronto Public libraries, and the new Sterling Memorial library at Yale University.

The November Scientific American contains an article by Clare Elliott describing the distributor. At the North Carolina library the distributor can be seen running up and down a shaft back of the delivery desk. Cars eight feet apart on an endless chain carry the books from one level to another. At each floor an almost humanly intelligent comb arrangement takes off the books in cars directed to that floor.

So simply is the distributor constructed that it does not get out of order and runs by itself without any attendance. When a librarian on any level wants to deliver a book to the desk, he simply puts the book in a passing car, which consists of a floor made up of a number of parallel aluminum rods.

When the car arrives at the level of the delivery desk, a comb made of aluminum fingers set the same way as the rods in the car floor sweeps down and combs the book off. The book falls into a box containing a cushioned bottom that sinks with the weight of the deposited books. When the box becomes two-thirds full a bell calls the attendant's attention.

The distributor also returns books when the reader has finished with them. A librarian at the delivery desk who wants to return a book to the fourth stack floor, for example, puts the book on a car and presses a button labeled "four." When this car passes the fourth floor, it causes the comb there to swing out and sweep the book off into a bag.

(Continued on page four)

Dancing Girls Remind Writer Of Days In Southern Europe

(By Mark Pola)

Those who have been fortunate enough to see dancing girls in Constantinople or Rome no doubt remember pleasant evenings over cognac at the Pera Palace, or bewitching nights under the velvet Italian sky at the Casina de la Rose. The ten graces who enthralled us last night rekindled the old memory and the equally old desire to be presented at the back-stage door.

Back-stage doors at Chapel Hill are different from those of other towns. Here, dressing rooms are merely improvised affairs (as if no one was supposed to dress or undress) made up of transparent cloth hung from overhead wires. In Egypt the costume of female dancers usually consists of a heavy, curtail-like robe. It is not very revealing. When the performance is over there is no rush stageward. With Constantinople and Rome it is different. The filmy attire characteristic of these Latin and Turkish climes is a frank invitation to pay a call back-stage, where a good time for all may be had at the cost of a few drinks.

Patterson's or Sutton's loomed in our mind as we presented ourselves at the rear of Memorial hall after the performance Wednesday night. By displaying two fingers and going through the motions of imbibing we immediately caught the understanding glance of our fair Russian friends. A knowing smile beamed from the face of the impish blonde, (yes, she understood)—yes, the girl in red, (more nods and pointing)—yes, and her friend in green. Very important were we for finishing touches regarding dress to be completed, very curious as to what remarks were being exchanged in this strange tongue. How would we tell them that we would not keep them out long? What could we do, besides use our hands, for conversation? Who could imagine anything so romantic as this occurring in Chapel Hill?

Finally the last curl was tucked into place, the last bit of powder applied. Our friends came trooping out of their improvised skene and greeted us with cautious glances. Arm in arm—the girl in green and the girl in red. . . . Now for our party. Failing to make any impression by employing, in our most polished manner, all of the

(Continued on page four)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon — J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

Friday, October 18, 1929

The Unpledged Majority

One of the greatest ambitions of many freshmen is to "make" a fraternity. If they are among the "elect," the "fortunate" few who don buttons on pledge day, they feel that they have been admitted to the sanctified circle of college aristocracy. Within the next few days they will come to realize the utter falsity of their beliefs.

College fraternities are nothing more nor less than social organizations. The greatest fault of fraternities lies in the attitude of the members and, to a great extent, of non-fraternity men. The frat men feel that admission to a fraternity is a signal honor, and the non-frat men, whether they admit it or not, agree with them. Many freshmen believe that when they receive pledge buttons they have entered the portals of undergraduate glory. And the freshman who hasn't been handed a pledge button envies them as he envies no other mortals.

All of the pain that hundreds of freshmen undergo because they do not receive frat bids is caused by the utterly false assumption that fraternity membership is a distinct honor. The average fraternity is made up of mediocre young men, banded together for social purposes. It is impossible for the frat men to select the best element of the freshman class—they are not competent to judge, and they do not have an opportunity to become really acquainted during the brief rushing season, with the hundreds of newcomers to the campus. Even the most ambitious of first-year men has not the slightest reason to feel envious or hurt if he has not been offered a fraternity bid.

A Boorish Exhibition

The pianist with the Duncan Dancers informed us after the performance in Memorial hall Wednesday night that he considered the audience the most unresponsive that he had observed since becoming connected with the troupe. Naturally he was hesitant about expressing his opinion of the audience, but he intimated that he was astonished by the boorish conduct of the students, especially after the many complimentary things he had heard about the University.

Without doubt the reception accorded the dancers was one of the most deplorable exhibitions of crudeness and vulgarity ever witnessed on the University campus. The conduct of some of the students was reminiscent of a gang of yokels applauding a musical comedy chorus. Frequently they whistled suggestively and laughed uproariously during the most serious and artistic of interpretative dances.

It is evident that a few of the undergraduates—a small group created all the objectionable disturbance Wednesday night—must be compelled to observe the dictates of common decency.

Mildly Suggesting

Students graduate from the University of North Carolina with twelve courses in English and literature, four courses in history, a slight knowledge of a language or two, perhaps an acquaintance with science, and, maybe, even a course in philosophy. A sheepskin parchment is witness to the fact that they are prepared to meet life, to batter down the fortress of opposing forces, to cross safely the moat of unfavorable circumstance.

Now, the salient aim of college is, or should be, to help prepare the student for life, to suggest the arms with which he may better slash through the giant bugaboos of adverse conditions. History gives the student a background of the world in which he lives; philosophy trains the mind for logical thought; languages are beneficial; science teaches him to search after the truth and reveals to him important facts; English and literature are essential.

But should not one take into account the fact that after graduation, in a majority of cases, the problems of marriage and family relationships must be considered? An intimate knowledge of family relationships is essential to the man who would promote a harmonious relation with his family. Many students have had no opportunity, previous to their college training, to become acquainted with the facts of which an intimate knowledge is so essential in their later life.

Many schools require the student to take a course in marriage and family relationships. At this University such a course is given; but it is not required. In fact, there is a comparatively small number of students who enroll for the course. Is it not better that the student learn something of these intimate relationships which he will, undoubtedly, need to have knowledge of, than to take a course in which he learns the igloo of the Esquimau is made of blocks of snow? That is, of course, an exaggerated example; yet, there are a number of courses given here which are, speaking comparatively, of small worth. Would it not be beneficial for the student to take at least one course dealing with marriage and family relationships? Would it not, perhaps, be a good idea to require for graduation one such course?—John Mebane.

Why the Gym Should Be Open Sundays

A number of students have complained because the gymnasium is not open on Sundays. Being doubtful about the matter, we investigated and found that the gym is closed unless some of those in charge of gym work wish to take a workout.

There is no conceivable reason why the gym should not be opened on Sundays provided enough men desire to workout there. The tennis courts are always full; the intramural athletic field and the stadiums are used. Those who desire to exercise with gym equipment should certainly be given the opportunity.

The only drawback we see toward opening the gym is securing someone to take charge and be responsible for the building on that day; with so many men interested in the work, some one could be easily secured.

This in another way in which the University can serve the students; we hope that some one will see fit to investigate the demand for gym work on Sunday and see to it that those students interested have what they need. —J. D. M.

Readers' Opinions

SOUTHERN CHIVALRY?

To the Editor:
Sir:

I have long heard of that product of the South, Chivalry, Gentlemanly Conduct, and that the South possessed these as no other section of these United States. Yet, last night during the remarkable performance of those true artists, Isadora Duncan's dancers, I beheld an exhibition of yokelry that would have shamed a native of the Ozarks mountains. Sex-crazed neurotics of moron mentality persisted in whistling suggestively at each dramatic selection; there was laughter when in the whole performance there was not a single theme for mirth; and when a dog, that probably a student of particularly low mentality had dragged in for the purpose and egged him to bark, woefully interrupted the program, there was horse laughter from many. Will one of those students who laughed let us know what caused him to do so? If he can give a single reason for his action I will treat him to a hot weiner, then sock him on the head with a loaded billy. In fact, when I again go to enjoy such a rare treat as that last night, I shall have a billy, and when a degree-seeking hillbilly from Piny Flats laughs, whistles, ogles, or yodels, I shall knock him into merciful unconsciousness (his proper sphere) in order that those who wish to may enjoy the performance without feeling ashamed of the human race.

I wonder what was the impression of the dancers? Famed Southern Chivalry! Bah! Respecters of women! Bah! That has passed with all true and beautiful things.

Sincerely,
NICKLE-PLATE WHITIE.

CO-ED ANSWERS PETER GREEN

Editor of the Tar Heel:

I can not conceive of anyone being so utterly devoid of all sense of good taste, gentlemanliness, honor and decency as to write such an imbecilic and totally asinine letter as the one who signed himself Peter Green in yesterday's issue of the Tar Heel.

We co-eds are under enough curse as it is without having to be placed in the presence of a howling mass of hoodlums and near-thugs as were on the streets of Chapel Hill following the Carolina victory over Georgia Tech.

There is no doubt in my mind since reading Peter Green's letter as to whom the ring-leader of last Saturday's collection of crazy, howling, embarrassing and disgusting pseudo-students were.

I have prided myself on being associated with a group of gentlemen at the University; but this pride is becoming extinct as I see that even one of the students of the University sanctions the vulgar display of crudeness, fatuousness and lack of intelligence that was exhibited in the theatre and on the streets last Saturday.

Yours truly,
EVANGELINE.

PETER GREEN RECEIVES A REBUKE

Editor of the Tar Heel:

Peter Green, in his letter in Thursday's Tar Heel, proves conclusively that he is from the backwoods. If he isn't, then he has succeeded in acquiring a set of backwoods manners from a city environment.

Apparently Peter Green fails to realize the significance of the phrase, "Carolina gentlemen," which is heard so often on this campus. He would substitute the tactics of an uncouth, uneducated rabble for the properly restrained appreciation and loyalty of a group of college men and women. I cannot see what "red-blooded enthusiasm" for a team of football players has to do with trying to break down the doors of a place of amusement, and then because such an effort is properly resisted, throwing rotten eggs to further show that "red-blooded enthusiasm."

If cheering in a stadium is not enough for Peter Green, let him go out and climb trees in back of the Freshman field to work off a little of his worthy enthusiasm, instead of being himself and inciting others to be a nuisance to the town of Chapel Hill and the University. He has made a monkey of himself once already, so doing it again cannot be harmful.

The students and townspeople want to feel that their lives and properties are safe after a football game. They don't want such conditions as existed last Friday night, whereby a co-ed could not proceed down the street without being subjected to indignities. If the condition of enthusiasm here doesn't suit Peter Green, let him try those of a nearby institution.

R. HAWKINS.

SCORES PETER GREEN

Editor of the Tar Heel:

"Must we be dictated to always, or may we show our spirit and celebrate in the time-honored Carolina manner?" With this extraordinary outburst of eloquence, Mr. Peter Green concludes his plea for freedom of cheering which appeared in yesterday's Daily Tar Heel.

To begin with, Mr. Green, you have the wrong idea entirely. Such an exhibition as occurred in Chapel Hill last Friday night after the Carolina-Tech game was not cheering. It was for the most part merely a bunch of freshmen who did not know any better and allowed their emotions to get the better of them. The older men who have been here a year or two realize the foolishness of committing themselves to such a ridiculous procedure.

Perhaps cheering at the game is not enough. But, Mr. Green, do you think a football team would appreciate such expressions of cheer as you presumably favor? If you are going to celebrate, why don't you organize and have some principle about the thing? Last Friday night you howled and raised beaucoup whoopee until someone who knew the mastery of words appeared before you, and then you scattered like leaves in a wind. We believe in celebrating too, but not with such an organized and unprincipled mob as attempted it Friday night.

ARISTOTLE.

Many Girls From Over South Here for Week-End

Enthusiasm, not over football entirely, has prompted invitations to a horde of girls to descend on the Hill this week-end. Naturally girls from all over the state will be here, the advance notices prove that, but the entire south, especially Georgia and Atlanta, will be strongly represented. Last week's invasion will be responsible for the presence here of several Atlanta debutantes of this season. Every available room in town has been taken to accommodate the girls, most of whom will remain for the dance in Durham tomorrow night.

The first long distance telephone line to Chapel Hill was from Durham and was installed in 1901.

THE THEATRE

(By J. E. Dungan)

Duncan Dancers, Memorial Hall, Wednesday. Student Entertainment Committee.

Isadora Duncan lives again! Irma Duncan, the great dancer's adopted daughter, and her troupe of Moscow terpsichorean artists completely swept the University audience off its feet during a performance given in Memorial hall.

Isadora in her lifetime was credited with revolutionizing interpretive dancing, and we expected her proteges, coming as they did from Russia, the land of revolutions, to carry this revolution of the dance even further.

In this we were frankly disappointed since it is our opinion that the Duncan dancers go back to the original Greek forms much more frequently than the Divine Isadora.

From the standpoint of the audience, the martial numbers such as Le Marche Militaire, the Soldier's march from Scenes from Childhood, and Chopin's Polonaise, in addition to the stirring impressions of modern Russia, were the most widely understood and appreciated on account of their emotional appeal. And probably due the youth of the dancers, youth always being more emotional and chauvinistic, these were the numbers executed with the most finesse.

Irma, the masked faced leader of the troupe, was the most outstanding of the dancers, but falls far below the intelligent and brilliant dancing done here last spring by Ronny Johansen. In the first place, Mlle. Duncan had better watch those avoirdupois or she will be retiring in very short order. In the matter of facial expressions and gestures she was splendid. And her hands! They are the most beautiful hands we have ever seen and the most expressive.

For even tempo of work the nine supporting dancers: Lola, Maya, Little Tamara, Maria, Lisha, etc., approach perfect scynchronization as nearly as it is humanly possible to do so. The unsophisticated appeal of these girls is very strong, particularly that of Little Tamara, who starred in Ras, Dwa, Tre. Dubinushka and Vo Subotu were the two most powerful selections, the rhythmic swing of the first and the fire of the second marking them as the most sincerely done.

Don't think, however, that other dances fell flat. There was no prettier bit on the program than their Zizilian and Blindmans Buff of Scenes from Childhood and the Lullaby at the last of the program.

As a pianist Maurice Sheyne, who by the way is not one of the Duncan dancers, whatever you may have thought, was excellent. The program, as a whole, taking into consideration the rushin' (not responsible for this pun) back and forth across the open stage of sundry Lower New York theatrical gents with big cigars in their mouths, in addition to the bobbing back and forth of some of the campus theatrical lites and the plaintive song of a stray canine, was one of three best best that the student entertainment committee has brought to Chapel Hill this year and this.

Greensboro High Awarded Trophy For Journalism

Greensboro high school has been awarded the Thomas Hume cup in the sixth annual contest for journalism in North Carolina high schools, which is conducted by the University extension division.

By winning this cup the Greensboro high school is entitled to keep it for one year. Greensboro has won this cup every year since it has been offered. At the end of ten years the cup will be in the permanent possession of the high school which has won it the greatest number of times.

The Thomas Hume cup was donated by the alumni of the University three years ago, and has proven to be an incentive toward the high school papers of the state in improving their style of journalistic writing.

The judges in the contest for the 1928-1929 award were Addison Hibbard, O. J. Coffin and Louis Graves. The high school papers entered in the contest were the Charlotte High School Rambler, the Kernersville Spotlight, the Raleigh Student, the Lenoir Mountaineer, the High Point Pointer, the New Hanover Sandspur, the Durham Hi-Li and the Greensboro High Life.

In 1899 Carolina won 7 football games; lost 3; and tied [illegible].

CAROLINA THEATRE

TODAY
Vilma Banky
--in--
"This Is Heaven"
with
James Hall
Loveland
New York the setting for a master romance of dynamic today. SEE and HEAR irresistible Vilma in her first talking film—a superb story superbly acted! Vivid! Vibrant!
Added Features
Pathe News
Lloyd Hamilton in "Peaceful Alley"
All-Talking Comedy

SATURDAY
BILLIE DOVE
—in—
"Her Private Life"
Saturday Morning Matinee 10:30

In any event wear an
ALLIGATOR
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

LET rain, wind or chill sweep the field—you're dry and warm. Smartly dressed, too! Expertly styled in a wide range of distinctive colors. For men and women, $7.50 to $25.
THE ALLIGATOR COMPANY, St. Louis
New! ALLIGATOR STEPPERS (Pat. App. for) Protect trouser legs—all colors to match all coats. $2 and $3.50 a pair. Ask to see them.
KEEP DRY FROM HEAD TO FOOT

(By "Crawf" MacKethan)

Many a gridiron season has passed into history since the University of North Carolina has entered into such a contest of southern and national importance as confronts them when they line up on even terms with the Georgia Bulldogs Saturday afternoon.

The 1928 and 1929 games with Georgia Tech fade into significance when compared to the program that has been scheduled for this week-end. Few of the annual struggles with the University of Virginia at Thanksgiving time have ever meant so much toward placing the Tar Heels within the spotlight of national criticism.

Last year North Carolina entered the Tech game weighed down and encumbered with the knowledge that one of the strongest teams in the nation opposed them. The main object was to hold the Tornado to as few touchdowns as possible. Consequently we played to oppose but hardly to win.

The victory last week-end forced us from behind our old barricade of protection. We now play on an even level with the best that Dixie can place on the field. Sports Editor L. S. Cameron made the following comment upon the game:

"A purely Southern battle not only headlines Dixie's card for Saturday but draws national attention because of the victories by the principals last week. University of North Carolina, which stopped Georgia Tech's string of wins at Atlanta Friday, will meet University of Georgia's Bulldogs, victors of last Saturday over Yale, at Chapel Hill in this intrasectional game with far-flung interest.

WRESTLERS GET LOST IN CHAPEL HILL WOODS

Wrestlers should stick to their mats, or at least should not emulate cross-country runners, if they do not wish to become lost. Six members of the University's wrestling squad will testify to this.

Training yesterday included a jog down the highway in the general direction of Raleigh. Suddenly, the coach gave the order that the squad should divide into small groups, take to the woods, and return to the campus on the trot thru the pines.

The six comprising the lost battallion put their faith in one member who "knew" the way. A half hour later, and growing fatigue, found the panting athletes still in the woods, lost. Another ten minutes and an almost deserted path brought them a view of the stadium, a most welcome sight. The alleged "scout" was not so popular when the other members of the group regained their various breaths.

Rothstein One of Georgia's Best Backfield Bets

A fullback who can be counted on for three yards a clip, when three yards are needed, is a great asset. Benny Rothstein, Georgia fullback, did exactly that against Yale, and Tar Heel supporters are thinking Rothstein will be one of the hardest men the Tar Heels will have to stop in the Carolina-Georgia classic here Saturday. Rothstein ran the ball 13 times against Yale, for a total gain of 45 yards, and an average gain of 3 1-2 yards. He led both Yale and Georgia's backs in yardage gained. Rothstein is from Gainesville, Ga.

PSYCHOLOGY MAY HOLD ANSWER TO SATURDAY'S GAME

Georgia and Heels Were Keyed To High Pitch for Last Week's Games.

Psychology may play a big part in the way football history is made over in Kenan stadium Saturday.

Georgia was keyed up to the last notch for Yale. North Carolina was just about the same for Georgia Tech.

Will Georgia suffer a let-down, or North Carolina, or both? A good psychologist might come nearest to doping out the results.

The Atlanta sports writers think North Carolina has the odds—psychologically, no more.

Georgia was dedicating one of the finest stadiums in the south. All Georgia was to be looking on. The Bulldogs had conquered Yale but once before in all history. It was a sort of "do or die" affair, to give all to repel those Yankee invaders.

The Bulldogs, think the Atlanta writing clan, were keyed up most.

The Tar Heels, they comment, took things more as they came, went in and played matter-of-fact football, and beat Tech in an entirely unemotional, business-like way.

Coach Mehre, they say, has the greater problem in keeping the Bulldogs keyed up to a fighting pitch, of doing their best.

Both teams are pointing hard for this battle. Both showed great strength in whipping the teams they beat last week. Both are strong Southern Conference contenders, and defeat Saturday will mar one's chances.

The open question then is which is going to have the letdown Saturday, or will either? Answer that and solve this football riddle.

After 40 Years

Washington, N. C., Oct 17.—(Special)—Forty years ago Stephen C. Bragaw, of this city, captained the first football team ever to be turned out at the University of North Carolina. The team won every game it played during its initial season.

That was back yonder in 1889. Since he left the University, Judge Bragaw has never seen a Carolina team in action.

"But if I possibly can make arrangements, I am going to Chapel Hill Saturday," said the judge this afternoon, "and I'm expecting to see Carolina turn in a decisive victory over Georgia. If it will be any incentive to the University boys, I'll agree to stay away another 40 years if they will win Saturday's game."

Sophomores Star

Five powerful, enthusiastic and inflammable Georgia sophomores started the memorable Yale game and turned in great exhibitions. Only Catfish Smith, Joe Boland, Congressman Frisbie and B. Rothstein were third-year men. It looks like Georgia youth and fire against Tar Heel age and experience in Saturday's big classic in Kenan stadium here.

Sophomore Quarters

A couple of sophomores will probably be running the North Carolina and Georgia elevens in Saturday's big clash here. Johnny Branch, Tar Heel flash, proved a great sensation against Tech, and Downs ran the Georgia eleven in veteran style against Yale.

An airport is being constructed on Cozumel Island, in Mexico.

Fenner—End

Julian Fenner is expected to take good care of right end Saturday, judging from his performances in recent games.

ROOKIE TACKLES MAY GET CHANCE AGAINST GEORGIA

Koenig Not Recovered From Injuries; Dortch and Thompson May Play.

On Gavin Dortch and George Thompson, Tar Heel rookie tackles, may fall a lot of responsibility Saturday.

Bill Koenig, veteran claimant to the left tackle post, got banged up considerably in a great line fight at Georgia Tech. Koenig hasn't been recovering as rapidly as was expected, and these two youngsters may have to carry on in his shoes against Georgia.

That would be responsibility personified. Georgia's sophomore eleven upset Yale 15-0, and sports analysts said Georgia's great line won that game.

With both teams outstanding contenders for the Southern Conference championship, and with Saturday's game to mar the chances of one, it is a sure thing that Georgia's great line will be fighting just as hard, and maybe harder, against the Tar Heels.

Dortch stepped in when Koenig stepped out of the Tech battle and played a game that would have done credit to the veriest of the veterans.

With his 6 feet 2 inches and 190 pounds, he was a gigantic bulwark of strength, and mighty few gains passed his way. He was a plague to Tech's Thomason and Mizell at every turn, and was frequently breaking up plays before they got under way.

He will probably get first call against Georgia in case Koenig doesn't get back in shape. George Thompson, just one inch shorter and the same weight, hasn't proven himself as Dortch in a test like the Georgia Tech battle, but he has been doing great work in practice in scrimmages.

Both men are juniors, with a season's experience to their credit. Dortch is from Raleigh, and Thompson is from Goldsboro. The rest of the veteran Tar Heel line that faced Georgia Tech will probably be intact against Georgia. That means Don Holt, left end; Captain Farris, left tackle; Ned Lipscomb, center; Bud Eskew, right guard; Fenton Adkins, right tackle; and Julian Fenner, right end.

HEELS MUST WATCH SMITH

"Catfish" Smith, who is to man one of the ends for Georgia in the big North Carolina-Georgia clash here Saturday, is being looked to for a full quota of dynamite. "Catfish" practically licked Yale by himself—he blocked and fell on a punt behind the goal and took a pass for one of Georgia's touchdowns. He played at Sidney Lanier High in Macon, Ga., before he became a Bulldog, and was just a "mediocre" end then. But now—that's a different story.

Kelly—End

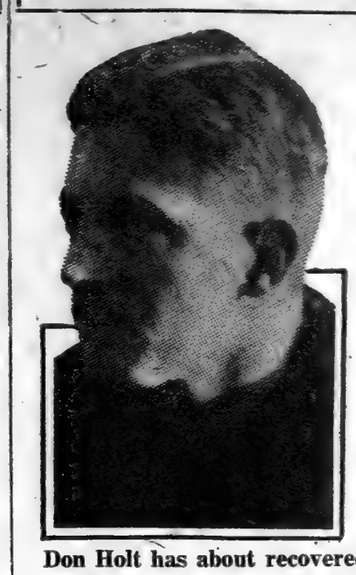
Bill Kelly is one of the fine pair of Georgia ends who will be seen in action in the Carolina-Georgia clash in Kenan stadium tomorrow. Georgia's ends featured the Yale victory.

GEORGIA SHOWS GREAT FLANKMAN

"Catfish" Smith, Sub End, Proves Find in Yale Game; Will Start Against Heels.

Vernon "Catfish" Smith, one of the Georgia Smiths, sub, almost licked the Yale Yankees single-handed, and this same "Catfish" Smith, one of fine group of Georgia ends, promises to be a constant menace to the Tar Heels as North Carolina and Georgia lock horns in Kenan stadium here tomorrow.

Another Smith (not one of the Smith brothers though), and another third-year veteran too, had the other end as the season started for an All-Smith flank combine. But "Red", as Mr. Smith No. 2 is known, broke a hand and went out for a few weeks.



That left the Catfish to carry on the noble tradition of the ancient name of Smith. And this Catfish person did it nobly in the memorable Yale battle. He blocked the punt and recovered behind Yale's goal and spelled Georgia's first marked. He took a pass to score Georgia's second. And he was in on the play on which Georgia scored its safety and made it—Georgia 15, Yale 0.

He did about everything one football player could do. He looked like at least one of the great duet of Nash and Shivar, who brought the All-American honors to Georgia in '27. Bill Kelly over on the other end was playing just as hard and effectively, though not as spectacularly. The experts said Georgia's line won the game and these two boys, playing the whole game, were a big part of the line.

The Tar Heels have a fine pair of ends, too, in Don Holt and Julian Fenner, and the flank-play promises to be one of the features of this North Carolina-Georgia battle. Holt had a bad cold and didn't play much against Tech. A rookie, Herb Nelson, stepped in and gave a super-performance. This boy must be counted in for Saturday, and a number of other reserves who may break in the "big time" as he did—Parsley, Tabb, Brown, Morris, and Reid being among the most promising.

Bynum Gymnasium was presented to the University in 1905 by W. P. Bynum in honor of his grandson.

Holt—End

Don Holt has about recovered from his injuries and will give Georgia's star ends a real scrap tomorrow.

HEEL ELEVEN SETS SCORING RECORD

With Exception of Alabama Carolina Ran up Largest Score on Tech Since 1913

The great North Carolina eleven that beat Georgia Tech last week and faces Georgia's Bulldogs this Saturday at Kenan stadium here did more than topple the national champions. It broke quite a few records on Tech's field.

Jimmy Burns, sports writer for the Atlanta Georgian, tells the story with a few figures:

"North Carolina's score was the largest any team has registered on Tech at Grant field since 1926 and before that since 1913.

"In 1926 Alabama won 21 to 0, and in 1913 Auburn beat Tech 20 to 0. Besides that, since 1913 only three southern teams have scored as many as two touchdowns on Tech at Grant field.

"They were Vanderbilt, Alabama, and Auburn. Only three other clubs have registered as many as two touchdowns at Grant Field in a single game. They were Penn State, Rutgers and Notre Dame."

The Tar Heels have 109 points to their credit for three opening games. Tech held them to three. They have been scored on but once, by the well-nigh unstoppable All-American Stumpy Thomason.

Waugh Comes Through

Armin Waugh was just another third-stringer until Georgia played Furman. Coach Mehre decided the Atlanta boy was "right and ready." He was the big noise of a great 27-0 victory for Georgia and one of Georgia's best backs against Yale. And now the Georgians say he'll be head-noise in the Georgia wrecking crew against North Carolina in Saturday's big game here.

CHARLOTTE LEADS HIGH GRID RACE

Class A Title Chase Gets Underway In East This Week; Wilmington Favored.

The results of the North Carolina class A western conference high school football games is as follows, up to the present time: Greensboro 7, Salisbury 0; Charlotte 32, Salisbury 7; High Point 7, Winston-Salem 6; Salisbury 7, Gastonia 6; Charlotte 21, Greensboro 6.

On the basis of returns at the present time, Charlotte has a percentage of 1,000, as also has High Point. Charlotte has won both games it has played and High Point has won its only game so far.

In the class A eastern conference the opening game will be played at Fayetteville, between Fayetteville and Raleigh. Wilmington and Raleigh will play at Raleigh on Friday of next week.

The general football contest, which is participated in by those high schools not included in the class A conference, has not as yet begun. Blanks are to be filed by the schools wishing to enter this general contest not later than October 26, at the office of the University extension division, under whose auspices the contest is to be held.

Picks Carolina

Raleigh, Oct. 17.—(Special)—After being kept abed under physicians' orders for the better part of three days on account of a touch of flu contracted on his trip to Georgia last week, Governor Gardner was able to be up and about the mansion yesterday.

The Governor regretted missing the major activities of Home-coming Week, but as to the game in Chapel Hill tomorrow, Governor Gardner indicated that it would take more than doctors to keep him away from that. Having seen both Carolina and Georgia in action last week-end, the Governor is of the opinion that Carolina is the better team and will win.

"Carolina has a great team," he said, and in matters pertaining to the gridiron the Governor qualifies as an expert. Back from 1903 to 1906 he was starring on teams representing State College and the University, both of which he attended.

We may soon have radios by General Motors, along with its various makes of automobiles, refrigerators, etc. The new Cadillacs have an aerial in their bodies, and for $150 extra are equipped with a Delco-Remy receiving set.

Scotland has a milk-price war.

GEORGIA'S NEXT

We don't believe anybody or anything can stop Carolina's march to a Southern Championship!

FREE! FREE! FREE! FREE!

1 suit cleaned and pressed to every Carolina man who scores a touchdown Saturday. "The more the merrier!"

O'Kelly Tailoring Co.

Oldest Cleaners in Town

Dramatic Art Group Meets in Asheville

Today the dramatic art section of the North Carolina education association meets in Asheville for the first of a series of meetings throughout the state. Miss Nettina Strobach, secretary and treasurer of the Carolina Dramatic association will conduct an open forum at each of the meetings, which will continue through November 22.

A talk on play writing and play production by an outstanding authority will be a feature of each of the district meetings. A one-act play will be presented as a basis for constructive discussion. The purpose of these meetings is to facilitate the education association in organizing and keeping in touch with dramatic teachers throughout the state.

Plans for the annual dramatic tournament open to high schools, colleges, and community clubs were discussed at a meeting of the executive committee of the Carolina Dramatic association held in the Playmakers theatre last Saturday. The meeting was for the purpose of outlining the plans of the association for the coming year.

The members of the executive committee present were: Frederick Koch, W. R. Wunsch, president; P. C. Farrar, vice-president; Nettina Strobach, secretary - treasurer; R. M. Grumman, Sam Selden; R. C. Robinson, Pearl Setzer, and Grace Everest.

The business taken up at this meeting included recommendations of changes in the constitution and the decision to hold the conference of dramatic directors of the state here in January. Elmer Hall, technical director of the Playmakers was appointed to design a new trophy for the state tournament, April 10-11-12. The mask of the Carolina Playbook cover will be used as a basis for this design. Any one desiring to do so is privileged to submit a design.

Chapel Notes

This morning in chapel Dean Bradshaw gave the freshmen a few last minute pointers concerning the issue of the day on the campus, fraternities.

"When you come to the matter of selecting between two or more houses, forget the houses, forget their local or national rating, choose between them on the basis of just what the friendship of the respective members will mean in the time that you are in college. Remember that a fraternity is merely a social order that acts as a background for the type of activities that you as an individual desire," he suggested.

"Don't make the mistake of letting the looks of a house influence you. After all, they are all well heated and comfortable; you can't look at the beauty of a structure from the outside anyway.

"Most fellows of your ages pay more attention to what the men of your own age think than about what more experienced heads try to teach, but in the long run the thing that really matters, at this time, is the opinion each man has of himself. Don't let your ego die if a fraternity doesn't offer you a bid. Remember that if you've got the right stuff in you, you will be recognized sometime, and be justly rewarded. On the other hand, if you have been rushed by numerous fraternities don't let it get the best of you. Wear the same size hat and be content."

As a last word Bradshaw added: "If you have not made a complete choice; don't pledge. Wait, be sure of yourself. Then join they'll still want you then.

Watch Carolina against Georgia.

At the Carolina Today

VILMA BANKY IN "THIS IS HEAVEN"

Faculty Notice

The faculty of the University is requested to assemble on Saturday, October 19th, at 10 a. m. at the Alumni building. The president requests that all members wear the academic costume. All members of the Board of Trustees, architects and builders and any other invited guests are requested to assemble at the president's office in South building at the same hour. The band will please assemble at the termination of Senior Walk below the Alumni building. The academic procession will form at 10:15 and proceed by the usual route to Memorial hall.

CHAS. S. MANGUM,
Faculty Marshal.

Play Readings To Be Given On 2nd Sundays

(Continued from page one)

Shrew," were greatly pleased with the evening, and are expected to form the nucleus of larger crowds which will attend readings in the future.

Remarkable character portrayal was given in the reading by the founder of the Carolina Playmakers. Petruchio in "The Shrew" is his favorite Shakespearean role. Professor Koch also took the part of the old man in the play with great effectiveness, while in portraying the difficult Katherine his actions showed immense contrast from that of Petruchio and Kate's father.

Dancing Girls Remind Writer of Europe

(Continued from page one)

foreign tongues at our command, in desperation we blurted out ". . . Drug Store." We were amazed and disappointed at the reply—all in one breath—"Non monsieur, too tired; dance last night, dance tonight, dance tomorrow night. Non monsieur, pardon, very tired, must sleep. Thank you." And so we were to have only a walk in the moonlight.

Encouraged by this display of words, we ventured, "How long will you be in America." One year," was the reply. "How do you like America?" we asked. A little shrug of the shoulders, a wave of the arm—"Ah, ze moon, lufely, I luve it. . . ."

Library Dedication To Be Held Saturday

(Continued from page one)

votional exercises. There will be appropriate music.

Reception After the Game

Former Tar Heels back for the state-wide celebration of Home-coming Week are expected to attend the dedication exercises, which will be followed by the Carolina-Georgia football game in Kenan stadium that afternoon and an open house and reception in the library after the game. That night at 8:30 o'clock the visitors will be guests of the Carolina Playmakers.

The library dedication will mark the beginning of the University's celebration of Homecoming Week. An open invitation to the University celebration is extended to all Tar Heels, especially to native sons coming back for a visit.

Southern Education Conference

Saturday will also mark the opening of the University's Second annual Southern Conference on Education and the annual meetings of the Southeastern Library Association, the North Carolina Library Association, and the Citizens Library Movement of North Carolina. All of these meetings will continue through Tuesday. The program of the Southern Conference on Education will deal particularly with the subject of "Libraries."

The Sunday program will be a big feature of the University's celebration. At 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning Dean Shailer Mathews of the School of Divinity, University of Chicago, will preach at a union service of all Chapel Hill denominations in Memorial hall. That afternoon there will be an appropriate musical program by the University department of music.

Students Asked To Cooperate

(Continued from page one)

missing quantity. Now with a team of championship caliber, this situation is unwarranted to say the least.

However, Carolina is not the only school in which this condition prevails. From the Tulane "Hullabaloo" we get the following: "Tulane's spirit is not what it should be. What with a crowd on hand at the first game, the acclaim to our football team should have been pronounced."

And from the N. Y. U. "Daily News":

"The quality of the cheering evident at the last two football matches has been pathetically uninspiring. A spirit of lassitude and sluggishness seems to have held the cheering sections in thrall, and the best of their efforts have appeared ludicrous as instillers of pep."

What these two schools intend to do about the matter they have not said. But here at U. N. C. innumerable remedies have been offered. Groups of students everywhere on the campus have discussed it with the conclusion that an organized cheering squad of several hundred men should be organized and drilled in the art—for there is a peculiar technique in effective cheering. Others hold to the ancient idea that the freshmen should be pressed into service as a cheering body.

On that subject let us again turn to the Tulane paper. We quote:

"The idea of spreading freshmen in the stands to instill more yelling is a good move in the direction of getting that spirit spread throughout the student section. The brunt of cheering should not be left entirely to the freshman group."

It is a certain fact that a cheerleading section of some kind should be organized here at Carolina. Desultory cheering, the type that prevailed at the Wake Forest game, may readily instill an undesired effect in the members of the team and should thus be avoided. How this will be done is to be left to the cheerleader and his associates.

In an interview with Barrett after the chapel talk this week he stated that following the Georgia game he would doubtless attempt to organize a regular squad to lead the cheering. For this week's game he is planning a pep meeting on Friday night, announcement of which will appear in this issue.

Other than these he has no other plans. At the same time, in view of the increased elation over the approaching big affair and on the strength of the appeal by Ray Farris he is expecting hearty support from the student body. Those who know Barrett believe he will keep his promise "to get some yelling out of that crowd."

Headed by the University band, resplendent in their new uniforms, and backed by an enthusiastic crowd in the stands, Tar Heels are expecting the great Carolina football team to march to a Southern conference victory over the University of Georgia team.

University Library Can Deliver Books On 4 Minutes Notice

(Continued from page one)

"Library planning may be revolutionized by this invention," said William Snead, vice-president of the firm of bookstack engineers which builds the distributor, as he announced its perfection at a recent convention of the American Library association in Washington.

"Since it can be made to run up, down, and around corners, this new system makes it possible to build new bookstacks away from the main library. Books can be carried across the street or under the ground to the reader."

North Carolina intends to take advantage of this flexible feature of the system, according to Donald Coney, assistant librarian. New bookstacks will be built alongside the main stack building, and the distributor will be extended to the new stacks. Thus books from all wings of the library will be obtainable within a few moments at the main library desk.

The cost of operation of the distributor is very small. At North Carolina the entire system is run by a three-quarter horsepower motor at a cost of from one to two cents an hour.

There is no danger connected with the operation. If any one puts a head or an arm into the shaft and a car comes along, the misplaced arm catches on a safety strap before it can get hurt and the whole distributor stops within six feet.

The North Carolina library marks the latest advance in book service. In ancient libraries the reader simply went into the stacks and took the book he wanted; he could not take it far, however, because it was generally chained to the shelf.

When the libraries became large and complicated, like the library of the British museum, readers were not allowed to go among the books. Instead they gave their request to an attendant, who got the book for them. Often they had to give their orders one day and come back the next for the books.

In order to speed up service, another new step was added between the reader and his book. One attendant took the order and sent it to another in the stacks; the latter found the book and got it to the reader by truck or elevator. Another conveyor had to be provided, however, to return the book to the stack.

Now at the University library one conveyor both brings and returns the book. Mr. Coney plans to install a further step by providing a telautograph system: the librarian at the delivery desk will write the book order on a pad; his handwriting will be carried by electricity and reproduced before the eyes of the attendant in the stack who will find the book and put it in a car bound for the delivery desk.

In a recent year Hampton Roads, Va., handled 27,500,000 tons of coal.

Let's DANCE TONIGHT

Take Her in a U DRIVE IT

Reserve Your Car Now and prepare for

A Great Week-end

Carolina U-Drive It
Around corner from Post-office

YOU'LL WANT THIS

SMOOTH, SWEET NUMBER IN YOUR BOOK!

RUTH ETTING will have you all sewed up the minute you hear her newest Columbia record.

She sings this pair of hundred-proof hits (one from a red-hot show), and makes them sparkle—with all the delightful vivacity you've learned to expect of this great little girl.

When you call for your copy, hear what good company Ruth is in . . . .

Record No. 1958-D, 10-inch, 75c
AIN'T MISBEHAVIN'—(from "Connie's Hot Chocolates") } Ruth Etting
AT TWILIGHT . . Vocals }

Record No. 1957-D, 10-inch, 75c
LONELY TROUBADOUR
THROUGH! (How Can You Say We're Through?)—Fox Trots—Ted Lewis and His Band. (Incidental singing by Ted Lewis).

Record No. 1947-D, 10-inch, 75c
TOO WONDERFUL FOR WORDS— (from Motion Picture "Words and Music")
STEPPIN' ALONG—(from Motion Picture "Words and Music"—Fox Trots—Ipana Troubadours, S. C. Lanin, Director.

Record No. 1946-D, 10-inch, 75c
INDIANA
FIRE HOUSE BLUES } . . Fox Trots
Mound City Blue Blowers

Record No. 1933-D, 10-inch, 75c
WAITING AT THE END OF THE ROAD—(from Motion Picture "Hallelujah") TRAV'LIN' ALL ALONE—Vocals—Ethel Waters.

"Magic Columbia Notes"

COLUMBIA
"NEW PROCESS"
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
RECORDS
Viva-tonal Recording—
The Records without Scratch

GEORGIA vs. CAROLINA
2:30 TODAY
KENAN STADIUM

The Daily Tar Heel

LIBRARY DEDICATION
10:30 TODAY
NEW LIBRARY

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1929 | NUMBER 26

Library Dedication Begins 10:30 This Morning; Keogh Will Be Principal Speaker

Governor Gardner Will Present Building for State; John Sprunt Hill To Accept for Trustees.

Preparations for the dedication of the new University library have been completed and the program will begin this morning at 10:30 o'clock. Governor O. Max Gardner will present the structure to the board of trustees of the University for the state of North Carolina. Mr. John Sprunt Hill of Durham, chairman of the building committee of the trustees, will make the speech of acceptance for the University.

Andrew Keogh, librarian of Yale University, will deliver the dedication address. Following the address by Mr. Keogh, Dr. Louis R. Wilson, librarian of the University, will announce the gifts which have recently come to the library. The devotional exercise for the affair will be in charge of Rev. W. D. Moss, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Chapel Hill. President Harry W. Chase will preside over the exercises. Music appropriate for the occasion will be played at the time.

The dedication of the library will be the beginning of the University's celebration of Home-Coming week. The visitors will attend the Georgia-Carolina football game this afternoon in Kenan stadium. At 5 o'clock the library will stage an open house and reception in the library building for the guests. At 8:30 o'clock tonight the Carolina Playmakers entertain the visitors with illustrations of their work.

The second annual Conference on Education and the annual meetings of the Southeastern Library association, the North Carolina Library association and the Citizens Library Movement of North Carolina will also begin today. The feature of the programs of the meetings will be the subject of "Libraries." The meetings will continue through Tuesday. Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago school of divinity will address the members of all the Chapel Hill denominations in Memorial hall tomorrow morning at 11:30 o'clock.

The new Library building is the largest and prettiest on the University campus, and is considered by many to be one of the prettiest in the south. It will house the largest college or university collection of books in the south with the exception of Texas University library. It was erected at a total cost of $625,000.

FARRIS ACCEPTS DANCE INVITATION

Captain Ray Farris, on behalf of the Carolina football team and their guests, the Georgia players, has accepted the invitation of the hotel Washington Duke that they be the honorees at the dance to be given there tonight.

The fact that this is to be the only dance in the neighborhood tonight should make it one of the most colorful of the year and the presence of the football men will end an atmosphere of collegiate enthusiasm rarely approached. There will be a no-break waltz at the climax of the evening in honor of the letter men.

Y.M.C.A. Lunch Stand

The Y.M.C.A. will operate a drink and sandwich stand in front of the Y Building all day today for the benefit of those who cannot secure lunch conveniently elsewhere. The proceeds will be added to the Y fund.

NEW DIRECTORY IS DISTRIBUTED

Material Gathered by University Y.M.C.A.; Bound in Book Form This Year.

The University directory, which was gotten up by the Y. M. C. A., has been distributed. This directory is considered by many as the best that has ever been published for the University, and has also been distributed earlier this year than ever before.

The directory, being neatly bound in book form, contains the names of University administrative officers, other officers, deans of the colleges and schools, heads of the departments, faculty and administrative people, personnel of the institute of research in social science, personnel of the extension division, secretarial and clerical staffs, directory of the fraternity houses, local graded school teachers, local ministers, explanation of the fire alarm system, a complete local directory, and a complete student roll with each student's class, religious preference, home town and county, and his local address.

There are and will be, of course, many changes in the directory on account of students changing their addresses, and for this reason there will be printed in Tuesday's Tar Heel a list of all the present corrections. It is advisable to make all these changes in your own directory so as to keep it as correct as possible. A list of the changes will be published in the Tar Heel at least once a month.

Dashiell Talks To Raleigh Clericus

On Tuesday last J. F. Dashiell addressed the Raleigh Episcopal church Clericus on the subject, "Is Psychology Soulless?" He made the point that the methods of psychology are inadequate to handle any metaphysical problems such as that of the soul, theologically considered, and emphasized the relation between a pure science and its applications as obtaining between scientific psychology and humanistic and idealistic lines of endeavor.

Stars In New Role

"Puny" Harper and "Sandy" Dameron, well known campus "big men," will make their debut in a new role tomorrow night. This famous pair has been chosen to act as official bouncers at the Georgia-Carolina dance at the Washington Duke hotel. With the Georgia and Carolina football men who will be the guests of the management to assist them, Harper and Dameron should have no trouble maintaining order and preventing the Atlanta debutantes from being smothered in the rush.

PROGRAM FOR WEEK-END

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19

10:30 A. M.—Memorial Hall.
Convocation

Presiding: President Harry W. Chase.

Dedication of the University of North Carolina Library.

Invocation by the Rev. Dr. W. D. Moss, of the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church.

Presentation of Building, by O. Max Gardner, Governor of the State of North Carolina.

Acceptance, by John Sprunt Hill, Chairman of the Building Committee of the Board of Trustees.

Announcement of Gifts, by Louis R. Wilson, Librarian of the University of North Carolina.

Dedication Address, by Andrew Keogh, Librarian of Yale University and President of the American Library Association.

University Hymn, by the Assembly.

Benediction, by the Rev. Dr. W. D. Moss.

2:30 P. M.—The Kenan Memorial Stadium.
Carolina-Georgia Football Game

5:00 P. M.—The Library.
Open House and Reception

8:30 P. M.—The Playmakers Theatre.
Carolina Folk Plays

The Carolina Playmakers, Professor Frederick H. Koch, Director.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 20

11:00 A. M.—Sermon. "Manufactured Gods," by Dean Shailer Mathews, School of Divinity, University of Chicago.

4:00 P. M.—Musical Program, the University of North Carolina Department of Music, Professor Harold S. Dyer, Director.

ALUMNI OBSERVE HOMECOMING DAY

Old Grads and Native Sons To Be Welcomed at University Today.

(By R. W. Madry)

The North Carolina homecomers, who were feted last night by the University alumni of Durham at a big banquet at the Washington Duke hotel, will move on to Chapel Hill this morning and receive the University's welcome.

Today and Sunday are the days set aside for the University's program in connection with the state-wide home-coming celebration, and those who have been receiving the glad hand of fellowship in Raleigh and Durham are expected to come on and get their Chapel Hill greetings.

The University community has been looking forward to the occasion for several weeks, and during the last few days has been especially dressing up for the celebration.

It will be home-coming day for the old grads as well as for the native sons returning.

The principal features of the program here will be the dedication of the University's new $625,000 library at 10:30 o'clock this morning; the Carolina-Georgia football game at 2:30 o'clock; a performance by the famous Carolina Playmakers at 8:30 tonight; a union service by all Chapel Hill denominations at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, with Dean Shailer Mathews of Chicago as the minister, and a musical program by the University department of music at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The library dedication Saturday will serve as a prelude to the formal opening on Monday of the second annual Southern Conference on Education and the annual meetings of the Southeastern Library association, the North Carolina Library association, and the Citizens Library Movement of North Carolina.

Who is Peter Green?
Who is Evangeline?

CHASE DISCUSSES TODAY'S PROGRAM

President of University and Dean Bradshaw Feature Chapel Exercises.

Two important matters were brought before the student body in chapel Friday morning by President H. W. Chase and Dean of Students F. F. Bradshaw. President Chase announced and discussed to some extent the following program of events for the week-end: dedication exercises, 10:30 a. m. Saturday; University sermon, 11 a. m. Sunday; glee club concert, 4 p. m. Sunday. President Chase issued a hearty invitation to the students to attend each of these events.

The other matter concerned the conduct of students following victories of the football team. Dean Bradshaw began a discussion of this subject by stating that he wished to oppose Peter Green in the debate taking place in the Open Forum column of the Tar Heel. Peter Green has defended the action of a group of students who caused no little disturbance after the Carolina-Tech game Friday night by saying such was a time-honored tradition of the University. Dean Bradshaw declared that these students acted in a most unusual manner. The accustomed method of celebrating athletic victories is a dignified and quiet acceptance of victory. He explained that the students who acted in such an ungentlemanly manner Friday were probably surprised by the victory out of their dignity and good taste. This should not happen again as Carolina can expect to win all other games, he added.

The dean ventured that a literal "reign of terror" was perhaps not unusual after athletic contests in some high and preparatory schools. Such action there is generally explained by the statement that "boys will be boys." Dean Bradshaw declared that the University freshmen were expected to be not boys, but men.

Staff Meeting

Sunday night at 7:30 the Daily Tar Heel staff will meet in the office, basement of Alumni building. All reporters and editors who are not present will be dropped from the staff unless they are excused before the meeting by the editor or managing editor.

GLENN HOLDER,
Editor.

MANY NOTABLE TO ATTEND GAME

Georgia and North Carolina Governors Here for Big Clash.

An impressive host of notables will attend the Carolina-Georgia football game in Kenan stadium today.

Georgia's splendid team, conquerors of Yale, will be followed by a record crowd of supporters. Governor L. G. Hardman and Chancellor Charles M. Snelling of the University of Georgia will head the invasion.

North Carolina will be celebrating Home-Coming week, and the University will be celebrating Homecoming Day. Tar Heel notables will be present, headed by Governor O. Max Gardner, former governors Angus W. McLean and Cameron Morrison, Former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, and President Harry W. Chase of the University.

North Carolina's committee on Home-Coming week will be present to the last member, scores of prominent legislators and judges, and prominent educators and library executives from many sections of the country, gathered to attend the meetings of the Southern Conference on Education, the Southeastern Library association, and the North Carolina Library association, which convene here on Monday.

DEAN IOWA STATE TO SPEAK MONDAY

Dean Anson Marston, dean of the engineering school of Iowa State college, is expected to arrive on the campus Monday morning. Dean Marston is the president of the American Society of Civil Engineers and he is here to visit the William Cain student chapter of that society.

He will speak to the engineering students at 12 o'clock Monday in Phillips hall and at 1:30 will be entertained at a luncheon at the Carolina inn, given by the members of the American Society of Civil Engineers of this vicinity.

Dean Marston is very widely known and is an outstanding figure in the engineering world. He is past chairman of the Advisory board on highway research and was formerly a member of the national research council. In 1900 he was president of the Iowa engineering society and in 1904 received the Fuertes gold medal given by Cornell University. In 1924-25 he was member of the executive committee of the American society for testing materials. He contributes to numerous technical journals and his late publication, "Sewers and Drains," is widely known.

Number Of Pledges Fail To Better Mark Of 1927 Season

Between 350 and 375 Pledged Thursday Afternoon; Average Of Over 10 for Each Fraternity.

With the end of rushing season Thursday afternoon between 350 and 375 men donned pledge buttons of the 35 social fraternities located at the University. This number is expected to be swelled considerably within the next few days as many men failed to accept bids to any fraternity at the regular time.

This mark fails to better the high mark of 1927 when more than 395 freshmen were pledged at the regular time. Within the week following pledge day that year many more became pledges to run the total to more than 400. Last year's figures were about the same as this year's.

The list of fraternities in order of their establishment at the University and the pledges are as follows:

D. K. E.

Elliott Hill Newcombe, Charlotte; Erwin Goode Walker, Charlotte; Archibald Kimbrough Davis, Winston-Salem; Aubrey Lee Brooks, Jr., Greensboro; William Vass Shepherd, Raleigh; Raymond H. Chatham, Elkin; Robert H. Carmichael, New York City; Joseph W. Lineberger, Belmont; Robert J. Mebane, Jr., Durham; John A. Preston, Lewisburg, W. Va.

Phi Gamma Delta

Charles Allen Crowson, Durham; Arthur Hynes Fleming, Louisburg; John Sills Dozier, Rocky Mount; Francis Leroy Savage, Rocky Mount; Grosser Matheson Young, Rocky Mount; Frank Payne Davis, Winston-Salem; James Robinson Hubbard, Clinton; Jack Cornelison Morisey, Clinton; Paul Boucher, Damascus, Va.; Gilbert Fleming Oberfell, Lynchburg, Va.; Robert Dorsey Davis, High Point; Robert Brock, Florence, Ala.; William Alexander Howard, Concord; Champ Clark Henry, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Frank Alexander McLeod, Lumberton.

Beta Theta Pi

Charles Ashby Penn, Jr., Reidsville; Charles G. Rose, Jr., Fayetteville; Walter W. Bacot, River Forest, Ill.; William G. Roberts, Marshall; Fisher S. Black, Bryson City; Holmes Bryson, Jr., Asheville; George Goodson Stone, Greensboro; Lawrence Flinn, Pittsburgh, Pa.; J. Russell Williams, Jr., Pinopolis, S. C.; William T. Wilson, Jr., Winston-Salem; James Madison Lynch, Asheville; Joseph E. Dunn, Oak Park, Ill.; Joseph J. McGrauley, Oak Park, Ill.; Garrison Reid, Winston-Salem; Andrew Hargreave, Forest Hills, Long Island, N. Y.

Delta Psi

Paul Carter, Bridgehampton, L. I., N. Y.; Harold A. Haines, Chestnut Hills, Philadelphia, Pa.; Carroll Rogers, Tryon.

Chi Psi

William Mitcham, Charlotte; Robert Atwood, Durham; Pierre Campbell, Long Island, N. Y.; Thomas Davidson, Gaffney, S. C.; John Jeffries, Winston-Salem; Hubert Crow, Raleigh; Banks Young, Raleigh; Marvin Roby, Charlotte; Charlie Allison, Charlotte.

Phi Kappa Sigma

Robert Drane, Florence, Ala.; James Thompson, Raleigh; John Manning, Chapel Hill; George Wilson, Gastonia; Wm. Markham, Durham; James Steere, Charlotte; Hugh Wilson, Haver-

(Continued on page four)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

Saturday, October 19, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

Greatest mystery of the year: WHO IS PETER GREEN?

Now that the W. C. T. U. has started a campaign against aspirin tablets, we believe that the time is ripe to launch our drive on the deadly ice cream soda habit.

Franklin Roosevelt's visit here Tuesday seems to have had an uplifting effect on the campus politicians. A tremendous revival of handshaking and backslapping has come to pass during the last two or three days.

What with the battle for the Conference title in Kenan stadium this afternoon, the donning of cap and gown by our friendly antagonists the faculty for the academic procession this morning, the dedication of Louie Wilson's new library, and the continuation of the famous Peter Green controversy in the Readers' Opinions column of the S. L. C. D., it looks like a hectic weekend hereabouts.

The Undergrads and The Alumni Loyalty Fund

A movement of vital importance to the future development of the University is now underway among the alumni, but very few undergraduates understand its aims or its significance. Many of the alumni leaders of five and ten years hence will be recruited from the ranks of the present undergraduates; every student should become thoroughly familiar with the Alumni Loyalty fund, the greatest single project that the University graduates have ever undertaken.

In 1924 the University board of trustees granted a revised charter to the Alumni Loyalty fund, in which its purpose was set forth as being for "The inauguration and stimulation of University activities and the improvement and enrichment of its student life, with th consequent enhancement of the University's service to the state and nation and with the especial object of serving purposes other than those for which the state ordinarily makes sufficient appropriation."

In more simple terms, the purpose of the fund is to make possible the finest development of the University. State appropriations have enabled the trustees and executive officials to establish an outstanding University here; private funds must be secured if they are to be enabled to develop a really excellent institution. Ordinary needs of the University are cared for through the state appropriations. These funds must continue to increase in proportion to the growth of the institution. President Chase and alumni leaders have referred to these every-day, constant needs as the "bread - and - butter" demands. But just as the student cannot thrive physically upon bread and butter alone, although he must have them, he cannot thrive mentally and spiritually on the ordinary things of the curriculum and of University life. He must have the finer opportunities, the "excellencies" of the truly great university.

In 1919-20 the University was receiving more than one-third as much income from private sources as from the state for its maintenance. By 1928 the ratio had dropped to one-eighth. Income from alumni and other private sources influence fundamentally both the income from the state and from the Educational foundations. It is essential that the ratio which obtained in 1920 be restored, but it is just as essential that the state appropriations continue to increase.

Thus an efficient method of promoting the habit of contributing to the University on the part of the alumni has become necessary. The Alumni Loyalty fund admirably fulfills this need. Each alumni is asked to contribute a small amount each year that the University may attain its greatest and finest development. Money secured from the fund will be used to supplement state appropriations, but the appropriations must not be diminished.

Since we first became interested in the possibilities of the Alumni Loyalty fund a few days ago, we have become increasingly enthusiastic over its prospects. We are confident that the future of the University is dependent to a great extent upon the success or failure of the Alumni Loyalty fund.

It is the move of the alumni, but it is also the move of the undergraduates. We must come to understand thoroughly the significance of the movement, and to develop a lasting sympathy with its purposes during our undergraduate days.

Our New Library

Great battles have been fought by the University of North Carolina. Many have been lost and many won. Championship athletic teams have represented Carolina; undefeated forensic teams have held sway for her honor. And sometimes her efforts have not been fruitful, and Carolina, at times, has been temporarily vanquished. Carolina is always fighting—she is fighting not only for superiority in athletics, but, in the main, for the supremacy of enlightenment over ignorance.

Today Carolina is in readiness for two great events: one is a battle with the University of Georgia for athletic superiority; the other, the greater event, is the celebration of a battle won, the dedication of the new library.

For many years the University, to be on a parity with other great institutions of learning, has needed a library with the proper facilities to accommodate the growing student body. Nobody saw this need any quicker than the head of the library, Dr. Louis R. Wilson. He not only dreamed about such a plant as we now have; he worked for it by creating enthusiasm and by actually seeing to it that the University got a new library. Of course there were others who were instrumental, but to Dr. Wilson goes the highest praise.

Now that the dream has been realized and is to be dedicated today, a chapter has been closed in the history of the upward climb of the University of North Carolina. The dedication of the library marks another milestone on the highroad to greatness, but in our praise of the projects we should not forget those who have labored to bring it about. —B. M.

The Profs Don Cap and Gown

A parade of never-failing interest and color will be staged this morning not long after you have finished the last of your breakfast coffee and laid down your copy of the Tar Heel—provided it is a part of your breakfast ceremony.

The order has gone forth for the faculty to appear in academic robes in front of Alumni building, and at 10:15 the march to Memorial hall for the new library dedication services will begin. At that hour, all students who wish to get a new slant on their profs and deans will be lining the path, goggle-eyed.

The academic procession is one of the last vestiges of the pageant of learning in America. Our colleges have grown and acquired big business methods, and with them, big business efficiency and impatience with nonsense. Our professors and deans and presidents look like business men, without even venerable white beards to enable one to pick them out of the crowd of ordinary mortals.

In England the dons rush around the Quadrangle in long black robes. In most colleges the students are required to wear the academic garb, complete with rakish mortarboard, while the University is in session. They are constantly aware that they are serious students, working with a purpose. If they forget, they stumble over the folds of their gowns.

It is, in fact, an inspiring sight to see a line of men proceeding at a dignified gait, each with his cap, gown and colored cape. It brings one nearer to the ages of Chaucer and Elizabeth, when the rank of men was indicated by what they wore.

It is to be hoped that Professors Coffin and Connor will be together in the procession, as they were at the last commencement, when Professor Connor unconcernedly smoked a cigar and Professor Coffin walked along with a cigarette between his lips. But smoking or no smoking, the procession should be seen, for it shows at least the other and more academic side of the briefcase-carrying, business-like professor.—H. G.

Readers' Opinions

PETER GREEN SAYS IT AGAIN

Editor of the Tar Heel:

In my appeal for enthusiasm and support for the football team in a letter to the Tar Heel, I had no idea that there was so much enthusiasm apparently going to waste on the campus. I might suggest that a few of the men who took occasion to vent their enthusiasm by calling me a "yokel" and "backwoodsman" would transfer a little of their excitement to the team when it plays and to a celebration if it wins. I am modest. I don't need all their attention for myself.

I merely undertook to point out that there was little genuine enthusiasm displayed after last week's game. For this I received a veritable shower of figurative brickbats. I repeat that a student body should not have the rights of free speech and congregation taken from it. I do not, however, mean to confuse these rights with the rights to rowdyism, and I never suggested it.

I am perfectly aware that students can be obnoxious. I don't believe, however, that a majority of the boys who did the damage, if damage was done, last Friday were students. A good number seemed to be from neighboring towns, and University students should not be held responsible for their actions, nor called a "howling mass of hoodlums and near-things" because of them.

Do you want to suppress feelings of genuine enthusiasm, Mr. Editor? No more do I. And no one deplores evidences of rowdyism more than myself. I felt secure in writing my letter that it would be understood that I was referring to the traditional Carolina gentleman when I asked for more enthusiasm and backing for the team.

I do not wish to refer to the epithets which were hurled at my head by the gentlemanly writers of the letters in yesterday's paper. In attempting to brand me they merely branded themselves. Gentlemanliness, and womanliness too, for that matter, is not demonstrated by the passing of empty personalities. I appreciate and agree with "Aristotle" in his demand for organized enthusiasm, something more than mere stadium cheering. And I hope to see a real occasion for it Saturday night.

Sincerely,
PETER GREEN.

On August 7, 1873 the Old Davie Poplar was struck by lightning.

DR. R. R. CLARK
Dentist
Over Bank of Chapel Hill
Phone 6251

WHEN IN DURHAM
meet and eat at the
Silver Moon Cafe
Opposite Bus Station
DURHAM, N. C.

WIN OR BUST

Faculty, Citizens, Co-Eds, Sophomores and All Others:
BOOST THE BOYS — WIN THAT GAME

If the exertion rends the hose, slits the underwear, or rips the shoes—

Come Down Monday and Get 10% Off of Our Entire Stock as Our Contribution

Outfitters of the Better Kind for Ladies and Men

Andrews-Henninger Co.

Welcome Alumni

May This Be a Day You will Long Remember.

We Wish You Much Happiness in Renewing Old Acquaintances.

O'Kelly Tailoring Co.
Oldest Cleaners in Town

Celebrate the Victory
at
The Carolina Grill

The telephone grows air-minded

THE BELL SYSTEM has made many successful experiments in two-way plane to ground telephone communication. This new development illustrates how it marches a pace ahead of the new civilization. It is now growing faster than ever before.

New telephone buildings are going up this year in 200 cities. Many central offices are changing from manual to dial telephones. A vast program of cable construction is going on.

This is the period of growth, improvement and adventure in the telephone industry. Expenditures this year for new plant and service improvements will total more than five hundred and fifty million dollars—one and one half times the entire cost of the Panama Canal.

BELL SYSTEM
A nation-wide system of inter-connecting telephones

"OUR PIONEERING WORK HAS JUST BEGUN"

Georgia-Tar Heel Grid Clash Features Big Homecoming Celebration Today

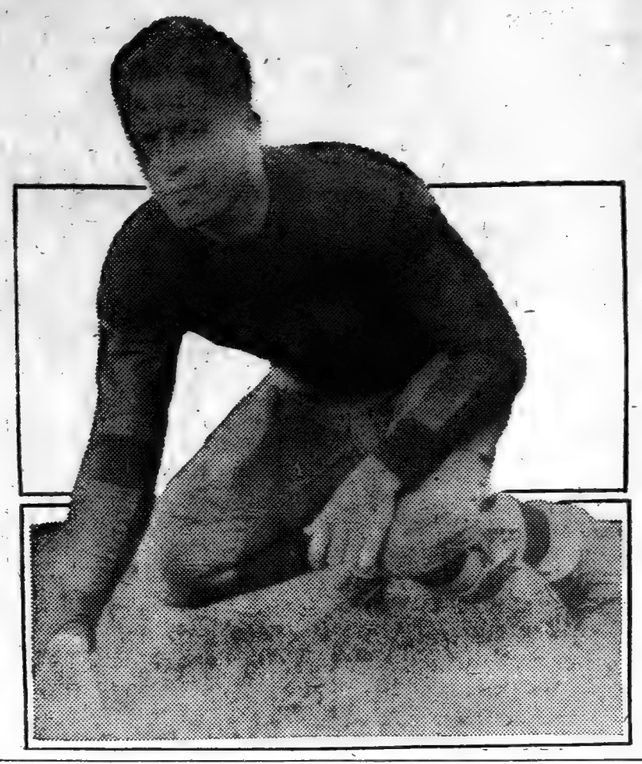
Game This Afternoon Has Bearing on Conference Race; Both Teams Have Hard-Charging Lines and Fast Backfields.

(By Will Yarborough)

Two hard-charging lines and two flashy sets of backs will line up against each other this afternoon in Kenan stadium for the first game between Carolina and Georgia since 1914. That year the Heels won 41-6. Today the teams are more evenly matched and no such total will be scored.

Not only does the game bear directly upon the Southern Conference title, but it brings two teams together coached by scholars of Knute Rockne. Both seem to have mastered the intricacies of the Notre Dame attack and defense. Both are highly rated since their victories of the past week-end. Georgia trounced Yale 15-0 and the Heels toppled the once powerful Golden Tornado 18-7.

Those two scores lifted the game this afternoon from being just another game to one of nationwide interest. Tech rates among the best. Yale was reputed to have another strong outfit. Both fell before the best exhibitions of defensive football shown in the south this season.



Coach Collins will have his first-line-up ready except for Koenig, who was injured in the Tech fray. Dortch, reserve tackle, stepped into Koenig's position in the Tech game and played great football. He will get the starting call today. Branch will general the Tar Heels again this afternoon. Against Tech he played great football. His running proved one of the features of the game. Nash and Ward at the halfback posts and Spaulding at full complete the backfield. Collins also has Magner, Erickson, Slusser, Jackson, House, Harden and Maus—all ready to go. They will all see action.

Georgia is bringing a team fresh from victory and suffering from no injuries. "Catfish" Smith and Captain Boland are expected to be the big stars in the line. Back of the line Downs, a sophomore, and Rothstein, a senior, are expected to furnish much of the fireworks. Armin Waugh is another of Coach Harry Mehre's aces. He jumped into the Furman and Yale games with a bang. He played such great football in those two contests that he is no longer rated as a "third-stringer."

All in all the game is expected to be thrilling from the opening whistle. Whereas the Tech-Carolina contest was billed as "the battle of the backs" today's clash is titled "the battle of the teams." Carolina's passes against Georgia's defensive play will feature. But Carolina intersperses runs with passes enough to worry any team. Georgia plays heady football throughout.

The Heels have shown more offensive power this season in scoring 109 points in the first three games than any Carolina team since the war. Georgia has come along more slowly. But they seem to have hit their stride against the "Big Blue" team of Yale.

Carolina Captain

Probable Line-Ups

GEORGIA	pos.	CAROLINA
Smith	l.e.	Holt
Rose	l.t.	Dortch
Maddox	l.g.	Farris (C)
Boland (C)	c.	Lipscomb
Leathers	r.g.	Eskew
Frisbie	r.t.	Adkins
Kelly	r.e.	Fenner
Downs	q.b.	Branch
Davidson	l.h.	Ward
Dickens	r.h.	Nash
Rothstein	f.b.	Spaulding

Gates Open 12:30

The gates of the stadium will be open at 12:30 today and the game will begin at 2:30. Tickets to be called for will be held at the ticket office in South building until 1 o'clock and then will be at the call ticket booth near gate number two. There are still approximately 8,000 unsold tickets, but it is expected that they will be sold before the game starts.

Mr. Woollen urges that all students come to the game early to avoid the ticket confusion at the last minute.

During the Charleston earthquake in 1886, the bottles in the chemistry laboratory were moved about on the shelves.

The first of a series of gymnastic exhibitions at the University was given at Thanksgiving 1886.

Statistics of Georgia Football Squad

Name	Pos.	Yrs.	Red Jersey No.	White Jersey No.	Age	Wgt.
Joe Boland	C	3	45	43	21	175
Ralph Maddox	G	1	44	42	20	175
Dave Mountford	C	1	40	41	19	170
Milton Leathers	G	1	43	22	20	190
J. C. Bennett	G	1	42	35	21	185
Cree Stelling	G	3	39	40	23	195
Herbert Bryant	T	3	21	12	22	200
Theodore Frisbie	T	3	19	11	24	190
Robert Rose	T	1	15	44	20	200
Earl Lynn	T	1	38	26	22	250
Spera Tassapoulos	C	1	14	30	22	200
Henry Smith	E	3	28	39	23	190
Vernon Smith	E	1	27	38	21	180
Henry Palmer	E	3	37	34	20	175
Russell Timmons	E	1	26	37	21	175
Herbert Maffett	E	2	24	29	21	180
Weddington Kelly	E	1	36	33	19	165
Austin Downes	Q	1	41	20	22	150
Tom Moran	Q	1	34	31	21	165
Marion Dickens	H	1	23	28	22	180
Spurgeon Chandler	H	1	11	14	22	170
John Davidson	H	2	18	23	22	175
Armin Waugh	H	2	20	25	23	155
James Patterson	H	1	31	17	20	180
Jack Roberts	F	1	30	16	18	175
Benny Rothstein	F	3	13	27	22	170

Statistics of Carolina Football Squad

No.	Name	Position	Age	Weight	Yrs. on Squad
70	Holt	LE	21	180	3
79	Nelson	LE	23	161	2
50	Tabb	LE	21	177	2
72	Fenner	RE	21	180	3
89	Parsley	RE	19	168	2
95	Koenig	LT	21	190	3
75	Dortch	LT	21	188	2
80	Thompson	LT	20	190	2
90	Adkins	RT	22	239	3
91	Gregory	RT	22	195	2
99	Farris (Captain)	LG	22	185	3
97	Crew	LG	19	187	2
47	McIver	LG	18	165	1
73	Eskew	RG	20	180	3
78	Hudson	RG	22	175	2
65	Fysal	RG	22	188	2
87	Lipscomb	C	19	182	2
94	Gilbreath	C	20	182	1
62	Wyrick	QB	20	150	2
63	Branch	QB	19	150	1
93	Moore	QB	19	140	1
88	Magner	LH	23	170	2
55	Maus	LH	20	160	2
76	Ward	LH	24	165	3
60	Jackson	LH	22	160	3
61	Nash	RH	21	170	2
51	Erickson	RH	22	160	2
53	Slusser	RH	21	163	1
92	House	FB	18	167	2
69	Harden	FB	23	180	3
52	Spaulding	FB	21	170	3

CAROLINA THEATRE
TODAY
Billie Dove
--in--
"HER PRIVATE LIFE"
A Lady among ladies, Queen of the social register! Great name, great charm, great traditions. Yet she sacrificed them all for a man they called a card cheat!
Special Morning Matinee 10:30
Added
Jack White Comedy
"Look Out Below" and a Talking Novelty
MONDAY
RONALD COLMAN
—in—
"Bulldog Drummond"

U-RIP-'EM
WE-FIX-'EM
Tailoring
and Repairing
To Suit
Your Taste
And Pocketbook
"BOSS" HILL
Franklin Street Next to Graham Memorial
PHONE 6751

The second bell for prayers in 1868 rang for five minutes just at sunrise.

SHINE 'EM UP
"The Best Shine in Town," says Mack, the Shine
at
UNIVERSITY BARBER SHOP

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

EYES CORRECTLY FITTED
W. B. SORRELL

THE PROVIDENT
Thrift Policy---
Completing the Circle of Protection
AS ISSUED BY THE Provident Mutual
Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia
Founded 1865

WHAT IT WILL DO FOR YOU:

If You Live—
It pays you $10,000, or the face value of your policy, at age 65. This plan establishes a capital quietly accumulated during your productive years to take care of you in your old age.

If You Die—
Before age 65 your wife or children or heirs will receive $10,000 cash, plus any accumulations. A monthly income (plus excess interest) may be taken in place of the principal sum. Double the amount of the policy will be paid if death results under conditions covered by the Accidental Death Benefit Provision.

If You Become Totally and Permanently Disabled Before Age 60—
You, yourself, will receive $100 per month and will be relieved of paying any further premiums, while such disability lasts. Moreover you will receive the regular annual dividend. In addition to these benefits your policy will be paid in full at your death; or, if you are living at age 65, the $10,000 cash will be paid you as described above, and the disability income will continue so long as you remain totally disabled.

NOW, WHILE YOU ARE INSURABLE and can spare the money, let us tell you how small a yearly saving will put this Thrift Policy into action for the comfort of your old age—or for your family's comfort if you die. Just fill in the information called for on the blank below and mail it to us and we will send you full particulars without delay.

TODAY you are insurable—TOMORROW you may not be.

Mail This Blank Now!
You may send me full information and quote premium rate for a $.....
Provident Thrift Policy, on the understanding that it places me under no obligation.
I was born on the..... day of..... 1.....
My name is .....
My address is .....
Carolina men will find it to their advantage to examine my rates.
Frank M. Harper, District Agent, Raleigh, N. C.

A Football Game Without a Dance—A Ship Without a Sail—Same Thing
DON'T FORGET
The Carolina-Georgia Hop --- Washington Duke --- Durham --- 8:30 Tonight
Featuring "Jelly" Leftwich and His University Club Orchestra
SCRIPT—$2 SCRIPT—$2

Number of Pledges Fails to Better Mark Of 1927 Season

(Continued from page one)

ford, Penn.; Tom Walker, Chapel Hill.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Joseph Adams, Asheville; E. G. Ballenger, Atlanta, Ga.; William Barnes, Wilson; Marsden Bellamy, Wilmington; Henry Groves Connor, Jr., Wilson; Lee Covington, Norfolk, Va.; Jay Glenn, Atlanta, Ga.; Bryan Grant, Atlanta, Ga.; Isaac Hughes, Henderson; James Kenan, Atlanta, Ga.; Theodore Maybank, Charleston, S. C.; Henry Nutt Parsley, Wilmington; Fred Patterson, Chapel Hill; William O'Brien, Durham; Alexander Webb, Raleigh; Thomas Worth, Raleigh; Kemp Plummer Yarborough, Louisburg.

Zeta Psi Fraternity

Ashby Lee Baker, Raleigh; Julian Tucker Baker, Raleigh; Milton Augustus Barber, Raleigh; Frederick M. Laxton, Charlotte; Joseph Hyde Pratt, Chapel Hill; Arthur Valk, Winston-Salem; Louis Whitehead, Woodville, N. C.

Chi Phi

Lucas Abels, High Point; Duval Lennon, Lumberton; LeRoy Johnson, Aberdeen; Philip Peacock, Salisbury; Lee Richardson, Atlanta, Ga.; A. C. Skinner, Salisbury; Sage Upshaw, Raleigh; William Withers, Raleigh.

Kappa Alpha

Burwell Allen, Weldon; John Daniel, Weldon; William Taylor, Warrenton; William Trotter, Greensboro; Wriston Carpenter, King's Mountain; Thomas Watkins, Jackson, Miss.; Rolfe Hughes, Laurens, S. C.; James Morrison, Baltimore, Md.; Ed Mann, Middleton.

Phi Delta Theta

N. Dixon Barns, East Hampton, N. Y.; Braxton Davis, Fremont; William R. Griffin, Wendell; E. C. Daniels, Zebulon; Rodney Knowles, Mt. Olive; Howard Martindale, San Antonio, Tex.; H. L. Meacham, Statesville; Ted Newland, Pasadena, Calif.; Mark Moore, Whitakers; John Peacock, Fremont; Tom Peacock, Fremont; Julian K. Taylor, Wilmington; Jonathan Jackson, Hendersonville; N. B. Grantham, Smithfield; Kenneth T. White, Louisburg.

Sigma Nu

Frank Bennett, Wadesboro; Harry Bunn, Henderson; Stuart Carr, Norfolk, Va.; Edward Ferguson, Greenville; Charles Forbes, Greenville; James Griffith, Monroe; Sadler Hayes, Charlotte; Walter Lane, Monroe; George London, Raleigh; Billy McCorkle, Salisbury; James Moye, Greenville; Clifton Prince, Norfolk, Va.; Arnold Snider, Salisbury; Louis Skinner, Greenville; Lenoir Wright, Charlotte; Tom Wright, Charlotte.

Sigma Chi

Stewart Chandler, Durham; Trogler Adkins, Durham; Dave Henry, New Bern; Bruce Jarrett, Concord; William Karle, Rochester, N. Y.; Henry Wood, Asheville; Jack Adams, Asheville; Turner Bunn, Rocky Mount; Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C.; Charles Holcomb, Atlanta, Ga.; James Stikeleather, Asheville; Howard Wilson, Greenville; Harold Staten, Bethel; Jake Shuford, Hickory; Bud Abernathy, Hickory; Bill White, Raleigh.

Kappa Sigma

Tom White, Jr., Hertford; Rufus Brown, Concord; Jimmy Gray, Statesville; Ernest Staples, Lexington; Cabell Philpot, Lexington; Everard Shemwell, Asheville; P. P. Pelton, Southern Pines; Eugene Webb, Thomasville; William Hoffman, Atlantic City, N. J.; Platt Landis, Charlotte.

Pi Kappa Alpha

Thomas Chears, Edenton; John Gorrell, Winston-Salem; Aleck Wornom, Yorktown, Va.; John Williams, Washington; Richard Studdert, Washington; John Blue, Aberdeen; W. K. Holt, Jr., Burlington; Frank Hawley, Portsmouth, Va.; Harvey Brady, Conover; Allan Bisanar, Hickory; Harry Cassada, Littleton; Robert Plummer, Brevard; Claude Clark, Williamston; Richard Barker, Waynesville.

Pi Kappa Phi

Henry Armistead Boyd, Warrenton; Charles Heriot Brawley, Durham; W. Charnelle Buchanan, Lakeland, Fla.; William N. Dixson, Winston-Salem; Bernice Divine Farmer, Jr., Wilmington; William O'Kelly Fowler, Greensboro; Moody Z. Gaither, Winston-Salem; A. Hall Johnston, Jr., Asheville; James Gordon Kurfees, Raleigh; Fenner Tilden Phillips, Washington; George A. Phillips, Washington; Schuyler C. Schenck, New York, N. Y.; J. Harold Smith, Charlotte; William Woodward Walker, Asheville; B. Barker Williams, Warrenton.

Delta Sigma Phi

Charles Carlton, Statesville; Roddy Giles, Statesville; John W. Reynolds, Albany, Ga.; William Roth, New York City; Thomas Watkins, Charlotte; Clarence Johnson, Statesville.

Theta Chi

Otto Clyde Owen, Jr., Winter Haven, Fla.; John Taylor Still, Jr., Durham; Marion Foy Stone, Wilmington; Thomas Addison Glasscock, Jr., Greensboro; Vernon Lane Wharton, Slidell, La.; Waverly Frederick White, Enfield; Emery Marvel, Asheville; Worth Douglas Wood, High Point; Robert B. Hubbard, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

Delta Tau Delta

R. Caffrey Pond, New Orleans, La.; Harry R. Small, Fayetteville, Tenn.; Harold Smith, Burlington; Gilbert Weis, Toledo, Ohio; Charles Gault, Wilmington; Richard Hillers, Winston-Salem; Charles Kluttz, Salisbury; Cameron Weeks, Tarboro.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

William Kerr Hall, Winston-Salem; James Walter Crews, Walkertown; Donald Ray Seawell, Sanford; Allen Tribble Caldwell, La Grange, Ga.; Thomas Stanley Redding, Ashboro; Paul Meredith Thompson, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; Thomas Lester Johnson, Lumberton; John Dudley Latham, Washington.

Tau Epsilon Phi

Samuel Breen, Rocky Mount; Edward Brenner, Hendersonville; George Brown, New York City; Norman N. Coates, New York City; Joseph Eisner, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Sidney L. Hirsch, Brooklyn, N. Y.; I. S. Peres, Gastonia; Lawrence L. Spitzer, Yonkers, N. Y.; George R. Sulkin, Mattapan, Mass.; Nathan H. Volkman, Washington, D. C.; Samuel E. Warshauer, Wilmington; Theodore D. Levy, Tarboro.

Theta Kappa Nu

Edwin Culpepper, Elizabeth City; Thomas P. Crane, Plainfield, N. J.; Charles G. Daniel, Oxford; Claude W. Walck, Plainfield, N. J.; John M. Cheek, Jr., Sparta.

Alpha Lambda Tau

Hampton W. Boring, Chapel Hill; Charles F. Crews, Greensboro; G. Lee Whiteheart, Greensboro; William S. Wall, Wadesboro; Max Holland, Greensboro; George M. Winecoff, Albemarle; Ward L. Hinkle, Albemarle; Thomas M. Mashburn, Salisbury; Donald Rulfs, Wilmington.

Lambda Chi Alpha

Macon Hewitt, Forest City; Philip Padgett, Forest City; Howard Bowman, Statesville; Charles P. Stowe, Belmont; Ralph Fleming, Northside; Pete Miller, Middleton, Conn.

Sigma Phi Sigma

Daniel E. Gray, Jr., Middletown, Conn.; J. Reid Shoemaker, Charlotte; Chas. I. Loftin, Jr., Gastonia; John F. Geiger, Mt. Airy; Jerome Hamer, Rockingham; Henry E. Gibbons, Hamlet; Calvin G. Todd, Belton, S. C.; Vermon Briggs, Jr., Middletown, Conn.; Joseph Hinds, Westfield, N. J.; Thomas Edward Rea, Charlotte.

Zeta Beta Tau

Seymour Abrams, New Brunswick, N. J.; Harold Cone, Greensboro; Frank Mannheim, New York, N. Y.; Julian Spiegle, Spartanburg, S. C.

Sigma Zeta

John Campbell, Morganton; J. S. Griffin, Marshville; J. G. Galloway, Winter Park, Fla.; B. B. Frazier, Charlotte; M. T. Lea, Wilson; C. M. Austin, Winston-Salem; N. E. Bryan, Newton Grove; F. W. Farrell, Cary; C. J. Jensen, E. Orange, N. J.

Sigma Delta

Freshmen: Louis V. Brooks, Greensboro; S. H. Crumpler, Rosemary; W. V. Covington, Fayetteville; Al Lansford, Charlotte; Morgan P. Moorer, Asheville; Bill Spradlin, Greensboro; Henry Weiland, Greensboro, and Roland Long, High Point. Upperclassmen: Sherman Shore, Winston-Salem; F. O. Carver, Jr., Roxboro; Robert Hodges, Winston-Salem.

Phi Sigma Kappa

Charles Rives, Greensboro; Robert Hanscome, Washington, D. C.; William Petree, Greensboro; Ward Peetz, Winsted, Conn.; Henry Click, Ravenswood, W. Va.; Earl Mitchelle, Danville, Va.; Fred Merritt, Greensboro; George Vick, Selma; Clancy Evans, Charlotte.

Sigma Epsilon

Joseph Judson Long, Edenton; Dermont Lohr, Lexington; Wyndham Woods Hewitt, Asheville; Dowd Philip Whitley, Monroe.

Phi Kappa Delta

N. E. Wiggins, Goldsboro; E. L. Swain, Walkertown; F. C. Rankin, Belmont.

Phi Alpha

William Liberstein, Far Rockaway, N. Y.; Irving M. Margulies, Raleigh; Morris Krasney, Newark, N. J.; Benjamin H. Misker, New York City; Jack Bessen, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Milton Fleishman, Fayetteville; Elias N. Seligson, Floral Park, N. Y.; Samuel Glass, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Henry Lubetkin, Hempstead, N. Y.; Jack Margolis, New York City.

In June 1869 there were 3 sophomores and 7 freshmen at the University.

LIBERAL REWARD

FOR RETURN OF LARGE BROWN WALLET
Lost Thursday, presumably in front of Western Union.
507 ROSEMARY STREET

FANCY ICES SHERBETS

DURHAM ICE CREAM CO., Inc.
"Blue Ribbon Brand"
ICE CREAM
DURHAM, N. C.

BLOCKS "Won its Favor-by its Flavor" PUNCH

FRANK BROTHERS
Fifth Avenue Boot Shop
Between 47th and 48th Streets, New York

Footwear of recognized quality in styles to meet the most exacting demands of college men.

Exhibit at University Cafeteria, Oct. 21, 22

CAROLINA-GEORGIA
A Great Game
A Bunch of Dances

Take a U-Drive It To Enjoy Yourself

Carolina U-Drive It
Around corner from Post-office
More Fun — Less Cost

See Carolina Beat Georgia

Then See

Our Big Exhibition of Pictures
"Action" and Still Shots
All Sizes
Of the Boys Who Beat Georgia

You Can't Go Wrong Betting on Carolina
You Can't Go Wrong Buying at the

Students' Supply Store

Everything in Stationery

Hear the New Record Releases

EACH

CAMEL

IS A HIGH-SPOT

OF PLEASURE

Camels are either a solitary pleasure  or a companionable custom  As you pass from one activity to the next  or meet one friend after another  let Camels mark the transitions  and lend their cheerful aroma to each new circumstance  To punctuate each day with high-spots of pleasure  say to yourself now and then  I'll have a Camel!

Camels are mild, mellow and smooth . . . refreshingly cool . . . an expert blend of the choicest tobaccos grown. That's why they bring you an extra measure of pleasure . . . why they never tire your taste, nor leave an unpleasant after-taste, no matter how often you smoke them.

© 1929, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

YOU CAN'T LOSE BETTING ON THESE TAR HEELS

You Can't Lose Having Your Cleaning and Pressing Done at

JOHNSON-PREVOST DRY CLEANING COMPANY

MUSIC PROGRAM
4:00 O'clock
MEMORIAL HALL

The Daily Tar Heel

UNION SERVICES
11:00 O'clock
MEMORIAL HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1929 | NUMBER 27

DEBATING SQUAD HEAR LAW PROF

Breckenridge Says Quick Wits Needed By Modern Scientific Lawyer.

"Quick wits mingled with a knowledge of facts are the qualifications of the modern scientific lawyer," declared Professor Millard S. Breckenridge of the law school speaking before a joint meeting of the debate squad and class Thursday evening in Murphey hall.

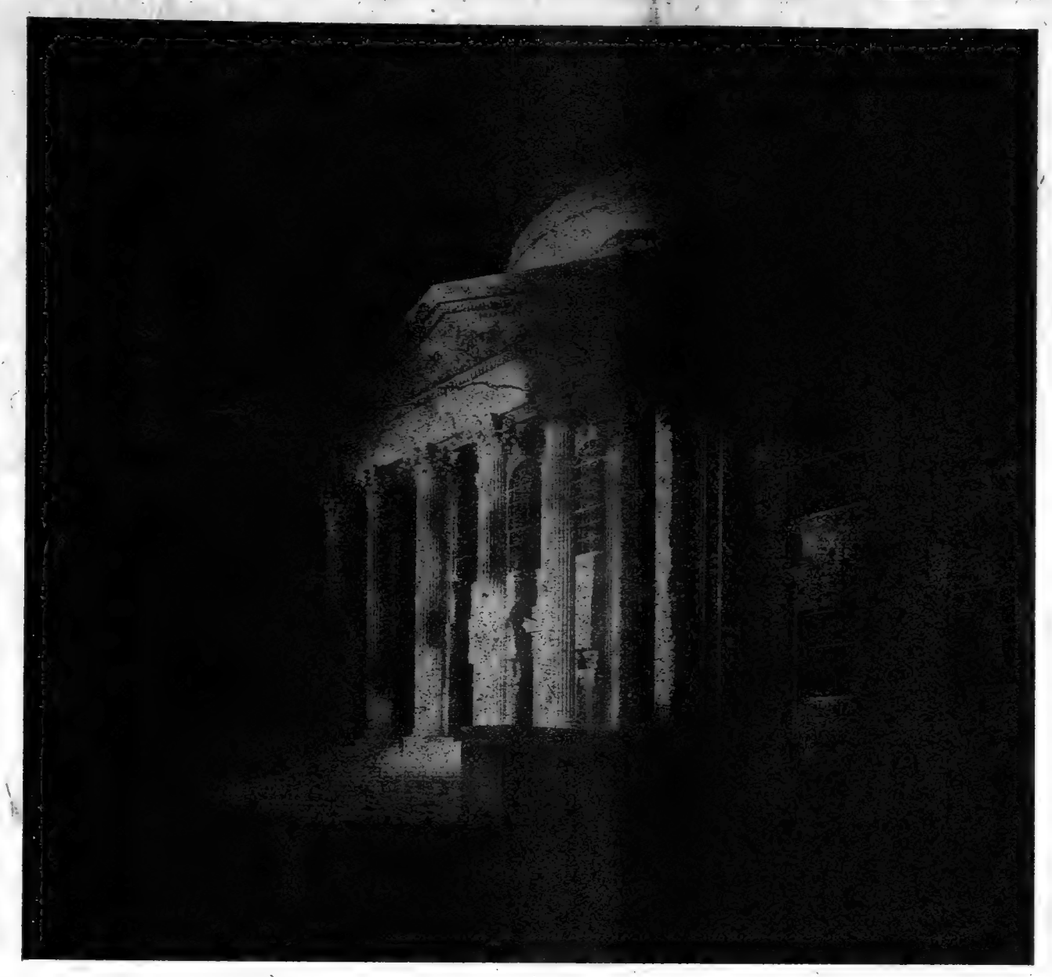
Facts, Mr. Breckenridge said, are essential to the effective presentation of a case in court. Not only must facts be presented through witnesses by the lawyer; he must skillfully draw facts from witnesses who are instruments of the opposing side. To be able to do this, the lawyer must necessarily use his wits.

Presentation of evidence is also an important factor in cases of argumentation, according to Mr. Breckenridge. The actual result of the trial is directly dependent on the manner in which material is presented to the jury. Irrevelant material should always be avoided by debaters as well as lawyers.

Great satisfaction was expressed by members of the class for Professor Breckenridge's address. Professor George McKie, faculty adviser of the debate group, stated that the regular meeting would be held next Thursday night as usual at seven-thirty o'clock in 215 Murphey hall.

Chase Entertains Visitors at Game

As president of the University, Dr. Harry W. Chase entertained the following notables at the game yesterday:



Chancellor and Mrs. Charles M. Snelling; Governor and Mrs. L. G. Harding, Governor and Mrs. O. Max Gardner; Judge and Mrs. N. A. Townsend; Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. R. T. Fountain; Former Governor and Mrs. Cameron Morrison; Former Governor and Mrs. A. W. McLean, Mr. and Mrs. John Sprunt Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Mangum, Congressman Charles A. Jonas, Mr. and Mrs. George Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Harvey, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Lee Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Woollen.

Dr. W. C. Coker, Mr. and Mrs. Haywood Parker, Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Knight, Dr. and Mrs. L. R. Wilson, Rev. W. D. Moss, Mr. Andrew Keogh, Miss Sarah Bogle, Miss Charlotte Templeton, Miss Anne Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Atwood, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Nash, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Page, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. McCorn, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Womble, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Tapp.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Mull, Mr. Henry Burke, Colonel J. W. Harrelson, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brooks, Dr. Delia D. Carroll and Dr. Norwood Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Duffy, Mr. W. A. Graham, Mr. Thomas O'Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Page, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Park, Judge and Mrs. John J. Parker, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Poe, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Sullivan, Thomas S. White, Mr. and Mrs. John Huske Anderson, Mr. W. M. Kendall, and others.

A number of the guests will be delegates to the Library and Southern Education meetings.

A Night View of the New Library

John Sprunt Hill Accepts New Library For Trustees

$625,000 Structure Dedicated Saturday With Andrew Keogh As Chief Speaker; President Chase Says It Is Fulfillment Of University's Dream.

Carolina's new $625,000 library was dedicated yesterday morning. The building—a magnificant structure — already houses the largest college or university book collection in the South this side of Texas.

Present at the exercises, which were held in Memorial Hall, was a notable assemblage made up of Home-Comers, delegates from other institutions, University trustees, students, faculty members, and a large number of visitors.

The exercises began at 10:30 o'clock after the University faculty members, speakers, trustees, and builders had formed a procession in front of South building and marched to Memorial hall.

Dr. Harry W. Chase, president of the University, who presided over the exercises, referred to the occasion as "the fulfilment of one of the dreams that has been ours for years."

"My own happiness is the greater that this buildiing has come to us out of state funds," Dr. Chase declared, "for it indicates clearly that here in North Carolina is another great democracy that has seen the necessity of such a great central power-house for the University and for the State."

The dedicatory address was delivered by Andrew Keogh, librarian of Yale University and president of the American Library Association.

The address of presentation was delivered by Governor O. Max Gardner, who emphasized the view that "while its soul is the spirit of the men who teach and are taught, the heart of a true university is in its library."

John Sprunt Hill, chairman of the building committee of the Board of Trustees of the University, delivered the speech of acceptance in which he empha-

(Continued on page four)

Honorary Fraternity Initiates Four Men

Four graduates of the University were initiated into Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering fraternity, last night at a special initiation ceremony.

The four men, Dwight Plyler, '24, Fred Ray, '24, James Lewis, '26, and W. C. Johnson, '27, were all pledged to the group before leaving the University, and returned at this time for the initiation ceremony. Two of these men were members of the original group that petitioned for a chapter of the fraternity at Carolina.

At present all four are working for the Hardaway Contracting Co of Columbus, Ga., one of the largest construction firms in the southeast. Mr. Plyler is working on a bridge over the Tennessee river, Mr. Lewis is at a dam in Florida, and Mr. Ray and Mr. Johnson are at West Point, Georgia.

The annual fall tapping of Tau Beta Pi, when members of the present senior class in the engineering school will be chosen for membership, will be held sometime before Christmas.

Lutheran Students To Elect Officers

All Lutheran students are urged to be present at the Bible study hour this morning at 10 o'clock in Gerrard hall. There will be a short discussion of the topic for the day followed by a very important business meeting for the purpose of electing the student church council. Students are especially urged to be present as this matter of business must be transacted without further delay.

Entertainment Tickets

Season tickets for the remainder of the student entertainments are on sale at Dean Hibbard's office in South building. A reduction is being made, because the first performance of the series has been given.

Many Delegates Attend Exercises

Educational institutions in virtually every section of the country were represented here yesterday at the dedication of the University of North Carolina's new $625,000 library.

Among the delegates present were:

Leo M. Favrot, representing the general education board, Baton Rouge, La.; Professor Frank C. Mitchell of Duke, representing Millsaps college, Miss.; Donald Coney representing University of Michigan; Dr. Guy B. Johnson, representing Baylor University, Tex.; Mrs. Morgan F. Vining, representing Drexel Institute, Philadelphia;

Col. William A. Blair of Winston-Salem, representing Haverford college, Pa.; Miss Eva Wrigley and Professor A. G. Griffin representing Furman University, S. C.; Dr. E. B. Fowler representing University of Louisville, Ky.; Miss Mary R. Mullen representing Alabama Department of Archives and History, Montgomery; Miss Eleanor W. Falley representing Goucher college, Maryland;

Dr. John C. French representing Johns Hopkins University, Maryland; Miss Beverly Wheatcroft representing Georgia Library Commission, Atlanta; Miss Tommie Dora Barker representing Carnegie Library school, Atlanta; Miss Margaret Jamison representing Emory University, Georgia; Harry Clemons representing the University of Virginia;

Dr. L. M. Brooks representing Boston University; Professor Paul M. Gross of Duke University representing Duke University; Dr. L. H. Snyder of N. C. State college representing Rutgers University; Charles H. Stone representing North Carolina College for Women;

Mrs. Lillian B. Griggs and all members of the Library Commission — eight — representing N. C. Library commission; Miss Alice V. Wilson representing East Carolina Teachers College; Clarke Foreman representing the Julius Rosenwald Fund of Chicago; Miss Sarah C. N. Bogle representing Yale University.

Georgia Whips Tar Heels 19-12 In Tough Encounter

Bulldogs Play Heady Football in Defeating Carolina Before 24,000 Home-Coming Fans; Magner and Spaulding Star In Backfield for Tar Heels; Roberts, Downs, and Chandler Furnish Fireworks for Bulldogs.

Playing with an eye on the ball throughout, the Georgia Bulldogs fought their way to a 19-12 victory over the Carolina Tar Heels here yesterday in Kenan stadium. Some 24,000 spectators saw a Bulldog eleven stop Carolina's great backs before they reached the line of scrimmage and saw a Carolina line, which played great football against Georgia Tech last Saturday, allow Georgia's linemen to sift through and stop the backs before they started.

The game was decided by the breaks. But Georgia was here to win. It played from the opening whistle with the idea of winning. Carolina tied the score early in the game and at one time let 12-6, but Georgia came right back to score again and again. Its backs failed to run through Carolina's line or around the Tar Heel ends, but it stopped Carolina's passing attack completely. In fact it was the defensive playing of Georgia which won for it.

The game was colorful. It was thrilling until the last few minutes of play when Georgia spent most of the time deep in Carolina territory. Magner constantly threatened to break for long runs. He usually did when he got beyond the line of scrimmage. Slusser brought the stands to their feet several times with threatened long runs. Spaulding furnished plenty of fireworks with his defensive work and line plunging. But the Georgia fans felt the thrills. Georgia furnished a large number of them. Roberts, sub fullback, ran wild during his stay in the game. Chandler and Downs did enough running to keep Carolina from scoring. It was Georgia's day from the beginning.

Georgia scored early when Branch fumbled on Carolina's six yard line. Rothstein, one of the few seniors playing for the Bulldogs, tried the line twice and scored. "Catfish" Smith, highly touted before the game, failed to kick the point after touchdown.

Carolina then began to score. Ward tossed a pass to Spaulding who galloped 40 yards before being pulled down. But his run went for naught when Carolina failed to add another first down and the ball went over on downs. Smith kicked the ball outside on Carolina's 32 yard line, but the advantage failed to help, for Boland, captain of the Bulldogs, intercepted a pass a few moments later to give the ball to Georgia on their 29 yard line. Here the Carolina team clicked. Magner, Slusser and Spaulding combined to get a first down. Then "Rip" Slusser snagged one of Magner's heaves, outran most of Georgia's backfield, and scored. The try for point failed.

Action was rather slow for the rest of the half, although Magner continued to run wild when he got past the line of scrimmage. One of his runs went for 28 yards and the other for 50 yards. But the punch to drive the ball further was lacking.

(Continued on page three)

Tar Heel Notice

There will be an important meeting of the Tar Heel Staff tonight. All members of the staff are expected to be present unless excused by the Editor. The meeting will be held promptly at 7:30 o'clock in the Tar Heel office.

STATION HOOKS UP WITH EUROPE

University Radio Plant Connects With Madrid, Spain, for First Time.

The University radio station, W4WE, had a very successful season during the past summer. Communication was established with more than 10 foreign countries, and many messages were exchanged with other stations in the United States.

For the first time in the history of the station messages were exchanged with a station in Spain, when on October 8 contact was made with station EAR-96, at Madrid. This exchange of messages was especially noteworthy, because the QSA, readibility of signals, of 5 is very unusual for Spain.

During the summer the station worked Peru for the first time. While communication with South American stations is not unusual, this exchange of messages was the first with a Peruvian station. Station OA4J, the station in Peru, is operated by William Garey Wilson of Barranco.

The contacts with both Spain and Peru were on a wave length of 20 meters, one of the five bands on which the local station is licensed to operate. Station W4WE works all five of the amateur bands under a license from the Federal Radio Commission.

No diffiiculty is experienced in carrying on a radio conversation with a foreign operator, for the majority of them can speak some sort of English, and the many international "Q signals" enable one to carry on a limited conversation without knowing anything about the language of the other party.

The University station is mentioned in the last issue of QST, the radio amateur journal, for having been in contact with stations in New Zealand and Australia.

Cards from other stations signifying that the local station has been in communication with them are always being received by the operators of W4WE, and in the laboratory there is a large board entirely covered with cards from foreign countries.

Since last spring the local station has talked to stations in Germany, France, England, Hungary, Brazil, Chile, Holland, Switzerland, Peru, and Spain.

Since its organization the station has been in contact with stations in 52 countries, 4 continents, and 2 expeditions, one in the arctic, the other in the antarctic.

2624 Students

There are 2624 students now enrolled at the university, five less than the record of two years ago, according to Dr. T. J. Wilson, registrar.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
Dick McGlohon — J. C. Williams

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

Sunday, October 20, 1929

A Great Team Is Defeated

It was a great game, a gigantic struggle between two of the best teams that ever appeared in Kenan stadium. While it seemed a heart-breaking defeat from a Carolina standpoint, there were many features of the game that should serve to consol Tar Heel sympathizers. Scintillating plays were frequent, and Collins' charges gave the Bulldogs a stiff battle, a much harder game than even the mighty Yale team could offer.

In the dejection that is only natural after defeat, most Carolina men are prone to believe that the roseate visions of a Conference championship and even a Rose Bowl victory, which would assure a generous measure of consideration whenever National Championship claims are considered, have been definitely shattered. There are a number of games still to be played by the Bulldogs and the Tar Heels, however, and Carolina still has a chance to achieve a Conference title.

At any rate, a great Carolina team and a magnificent Georgia aggregation battled on even terms yesterday afternoon. It was a clash between two equally-balanced teams. We believe that Georgia has a marvelous football machine, but Carolina has, without doubt, an equally great team. Georgia earned her victory, but the Tar Heels were great even in defeat.

The Hissing Element

That institution which we call human society is generally agreed that public demonstrations of disapproval are, to say the least, undesirable. With this introduction, the writer ventures to say that the students who hissed and booed the Russian dancers a few nights ago in Memorial hall deserve censure. Although we condemn this sort of conduct, we are inclined to think that it can be explained.

Two years ago the students of the College of Liberal Arts and of the School of Education voted a tax on themselves to provide an annual program of entertainments. These events are scheduled with a view to pleasing the student body at large.

Undoubtedly, it would be a fine thing for those who are already confessedly super-cultured if everybody liked the things which appeal to the self-appointed intelligentsia element. This campus, however, is filled with men who have not had any great opportunity to learn to appreciate certain forms of art. The contention of this editorial is that a large percentage of the students of the University have spent their money for something which they fail utterly to understand. If this be the case, they should seek in some way to express their disapproval.

The Student Entertainment Committee has done a very notable thing this year in bringing to the campus many attractions of national and international reputation. Nevertheless, we cannot help feeling that they have tried to force on the students a type of entertainment for which they are not prepared, and to that extent have invited the very sort of misconduct which took the form of hissing a few nights ago. As evidence of the reasonableness of this contention we cite the long, patient and courteous attention which a crowded house gave last year to the efforts of Von Luckner. In other words, the student will give attention to something which is attractive to him.

If anyone doubts the correctness of the conclusions set forth above ,let him explain why the Shakespearian play fails to command an audience today while the various picture houses of the land are filled. Let him also expound why students delight in concerts given by the glee club but shun organ recitals.—J. C. W.

Readers' Opinions

PANACEA FOUND

Editor of the Tar Heel:

Peter Green, Evangeline, Mr. Hawkins and Aristotle have all been at each other's throats in the columns of the Daily Tar Heel for the past severay days, and it seems to me that after reading all the denunciations of both sides that the Vox Pop of the student body is not dead, but rather very much alive. But what's all the use of this mud slinging and verbal warfare. Neither side is satisfied, and there is yet to appear anyone with a suggestion as what to do with all this "red-bloodedness," "he-manness" or what have you.

Coming from the great open spaces of the middle-west where we used to hang strangers as horse thieves when we didn't like them, and where we still are pretty red-blooded, it seems to me that a little reversion to type, a little jumping of the traces, and being what we really are after all, despite all of our supposed sophistication, doesn't do any harm—so long as it doesn't interfere with the rights of others. There is a big expanse of cleared ground down near Emerson stadium on which these aboriginals of ours could maul, bat, pummel, bruise, pound and injure each other to their savage hearts' delight. Nothing is as funny, however, when it is practiced on one's self.

The University of North Carolina does have some cultured students who, unlike the vociferous Duke student body and the timid Deacons of Wake Forest, desire to strike a happy medium. We, the cultured and misunderstood minority of the University of North Carolina, call upon the rest of the student body to reform, clean up, and inhibit their baser instincts, not that we don't believe that E. C. Smith of the Carolina theatre doesn't deserve to be soaked in the eye with the most ancient eggs served at the local boarding-houses.

Now then, to get serious about this great campus problem, what we propose is that all this so-called red-blooded animation be turned to good and practical purpose by let us say—Grady Pritchard, and that these red-blooded youths turn their talents to the carpentering, brick masoning, plastering, etc., of Graham Memorial and open it by Christmas time.

If this suggestion fails to meet with immediate public approval we have an alternate proposal; i. e., that these same Peter Pans, instead of assaulting our own home town folk placing them in jeopardy of life and limb (our own Chapel Hill people who are heart and soul for us—especially our pocketbooks) transfer the scene of their activities to the well known eleemosynary institution (foundling adopted by the Dukes) there to carry on in the true fashion of that highly renowned and cultural center.

ROY FARCE.

DEAN HIBBARD LAUDS AUDIENCE OF DANCERS

Editor of the Tar Heel:

The reception accorded the Isadora Duncan Dancers here last night by the students of the University reflects distinct credit upon the student body. In one way or another I have been associated with entertainments here for several years, and at different times the question of bringing a group of aesthetic dancers to the Hill has come up for consideration. Each time those in charge of entertainments have expressed some hesitancy in bringing such an attraction here, feeling that an undergraduate body of men might look on the performance more as a display of physical attraction than of aesthetic art. I suspect that this attitude on the part of some of us has been a hold-over from the old days when the undergraduate was thought of as a hoodlum.

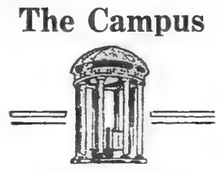
Last night, it is true, two or three students were inclined to express their backwoods qualities by whistling and other weird sounds. Perhaps these two or three were among those who attempted to express their enthusiasm at our victory over Georgia Tech by rushing the Carolina Theatre. However, on the whole, the audience was definitely attracted by the performance and the old fear of bringing such attractions here was abolished. I assume that in the future it will be safe to bring artistic performances here with the understanding that they will be judged for their artistry.

While writing you, Mr. Editor, I wish to thank you for the courteous editorial in this morning's paper relative "to the Duncan Dancers and the Entertainment Program." Since you are a member of this year's Entertainment Committee, and one who, through your Tar Heel experience of several years, is familiar with the inception and growth of the Entertainment plan, I must infer that your courteous reference to me in that editorial is more generous than deserved. If any one man deserves credit for the starting of this program here, it is a former editor of the Tar Heel—Dave Carroll. Through Dave's enthusiasm and political acumen the plan was placed before the students and voted in by the students of the School of Education and the College of Liberal Arts. Every decision, every contract, every item in the program has been the unanimous decision of the committee and any credit for this series of entertainments belongs first of all to Dave Carroll and, secondly, to the members of last year's and this year's committees.

For some reason we have sold forty-five fewer season tickets this year than last. Since our budget is determined on the basis that we sell all of the season tickets possible, I hope that students, faculty members, and townspeople will see fit to buy up these remaining forty-five season tickets. Unless we sell this number, our committee is likely to have a very close year. We have already made contracts totaling about $5,800 and we need to sell these tickets to break even. There are still twelve numbers remaining on the program; anyone buying now will certainly receive his money's worth.

THE CRITIC IS CRITICIZED

Editor of the Tar Heel:



We wonder if your reviewer, Mr. J. E. Dungan, actually attended the performance of the Isadora Duncan Dancers in Memorial hall Wednesday night. If he did, we are frankly puzzled. How did Mr. Dungan overlook the fact that Schubert's Marche Militaire was neither played nor interpreted. Perhaps Mr. Dungan has in mind some other piece when he says that "Le" Marche Militaire was one of the most widely appreciated interpretations. It is possible that, in writing his criticism, Mr. Dungan trusted his printed program rather than his memory, or his knowledge of music. Haw.

Again, Mr. Dungan informs us, paradoxically enough, that "Irma, the masked faced leader of the troupe" was "in the matter of facial expression . . . splendid."

We may suggest, for the sake of the University, that the Tar Heel engage writers whose reviews are faithful criticisms rather than vehicles for their own cleverness?

Thank you,
TWEEDLEDUM AND TWEEDLEDEE.

The Campus

By Joe Jones

"Look here, Charley, at this Daily Tar Heel! Can you beat that? And to think what a tough time we had making it a semi-weekly just a few years ago! That's progress on the old campus for you. I tell you, Charley, there's been something besides buildings and football teams growing up here during these ten years." And so the old grad considers the Daily Tar—the Tar Heel, whose history runs back across a span of thirty-five turbid years.

During that time it has served many masters, has lifted its editorial oriflame in many campus wars and rumors of campus wars, has attacked and been attacked; until now it comes into its inheritance, a daily, subservient to none. Today it is become the thread that binds a growing cosmopolitan student body together.

For fifty years before the Tar Heel's beginning the Magazine was the sole carrier of campus news. In 1891 the Chapel Hillian, a student paper, was begun. This soon died, and in February, 1893, there appeared the first issue of the Tar Heel, whereupon the Magazine said, "What the Magazine has so long urged and hoped for is at last come to pass. We are to have a weekly paper, The Tar Heel, published under the auspices of the Athletic Association. It will be an exponent of the University's everyday life and a chronicle of minor events to the world at large, but intensely interesting to friends, alumni, and students. The Athletic Association will have an organ through which athletics will be brought into prominence and athletic claims set forth in no uncertain strain. In fact The Tar Heel will be of incalculable benefit to the University and deserves hearty support."

The Tar Heel thanked the Magazine, and said it hoped the two would be co-workers. There have been frequent skirmishes between them since then, but at last they have forgotten their grievances to enter happy wedlock as daily and Sunday supplement.

In 1894 there arose the Blue and White, a non-frat student weekly, which maintained that Tar Heel was run solely for and by frat men. This rival was treated with respect by the Tar Heel, but it soon followed the Chapel Hillian down the dim trail to oblivion.

Founded as the child and official organ of the Athletic Association the Tar Heel remained so for thirty years. In this capacity it was chiefly concerned with athletics. Let us see what it is saying during these thirty years.

A '93 issue says, "The old University yell has served its time and purpose; has become worn out. It took enough wind to run a cyclone to yell it. We are pleased to hear that a new yell is being warmly received."

In a '96 number we are told that "the conduct of students during the two games with Lafayette here caused a great deal of unfavorable comment. Every attempt was made to guy and worry them while on the campus."

In '96 the first blue ink issue told of a football victory over Virginia. The headlines were, "Carolina Forever. We Win From Virginia by Superior, Scientific Football." Another blue ink issue in '98 headlines, "Howell's Great Run Wins Game. Carolina's Scientific Football Wins Over the Superior Weight and Force of Virginia."

In '99 the Tar Heel stated that "quite a good deal of interest has been excited recently at the introduction of basketball into our athletic sports. It promises to be an interesting game."

A '03 issue carried this item: "A new feature at the game yesterday with Gettysburg was the music by the University band. Ten of the University's talented musicians have organized a brass band under the leadership of Mr. Charles T. Woollen."

The only red ink Tar Heel ever printed appeared in 1911 with this startling head: "Tar Heels Skin Sore Backs."

In '16 the Tar Heel says, "The time necessary for military training has made it impossible for intercollegiate football to be carried on. But keen rivalry was aroused in company athletics." Also in '16: "It is reported that several men in the University have taken the privilege of giving to their 'best girl' a monogram sweater. We suggest that the Student Council look into the matter. It isn't fair to those who have worked for the honor of representing a Carolina team."

Pen Points

By H. J. Galland

Chapel Hill is a chastened town this morning. There was excitement aplenty yesterday afternoon, but now, for some reason or other, the town seems quiet. Perhaps the score of the game has something to do with it.

* * *

Always a colorful town, Chapel Hill was a veritable riot of spectrums while the crowd assembled for the football game. The ladies were much in evidence, and they are not generally known to choose the most quiet colors to be found for their costumes. From the field, the stands were a dull grey, relieved here and there with a red hat or an even redder face.

* * *

The south side had a self-appointed cheerleader who threatened to take the interest of the crowd entirely away from the game. He led cheers, sang songs and encouraged the team practically at one and the same time. As more than one bystander remarked, it must have been potent stuff.

* * *

A news cameraman, thoroughly Carolina in his sympathies.

(Continued on page four)

HEAR THE SCREEN'S MOST ROMANTIC STAR
In His First
ALL TALKING ROLE!

No one can justifiably say any drama is the greatest of all audible screen attractions. For tastes differ. But, if you like shuddery adventures that provide either a thrill or a smile, and a characterization which inspires that romantic feeling . . . why not decide for yourself whether this isn't excellent entertainment.

RONALD COLMAN
in
"BULLDOG DRUMMOND"
with
Joan Bennett

MONDAY
CAROLINA THEATRE
ADDED FEATURES
Pathe News Showing the Latest News Events
Chinatown, My Chinatown (Screen Song)
a PUBLIX SAENGER THEATRE
WEDNESDAY - THURSDAY
ANN PENNINGTON in
"Gold Diggers of Broadway"

Statistics on North Carolina-Georgia Game

	Georgia	N. Carolina
Passes through line:	122	182
Yards around end	0	13
Passes attempted:	11	12
Passes completed:	5	4
Passes intercepted:	4	0
Yardage on passes:	60	97
Penalties in yards	10	10
Average distance on punts	41	50
Yards punts returned:	77	33
First downs	11	13

Georgia Whips Tar Heels by 19-12 Score

(Continued from page one)

Chandler also pulled a good run in the second quarter, getting 30 yards before being dragged down.

Magner, Slusser, Spaulding and Branch were in the backfield. Spaulding received the kickoff and ran it to Carolina's 38 yard line. Magner got going again and added 33 yards. Eight plays put the ball over. Magner did the scoring.

It was at this time that Roberts began playing. He played well enough to give the Carolina fans a feeling that all was not well. He ran and ran. He took the kickoff and ran it back to the middle of the field. The Georgians then marched it to Carolina's four yard line. Here the line played its best. Georgia could move it only three and a half yards in four attempts. The kick was fair but Downs ran it back to the 14 yard line. Again the line held and Carolina took the ball within the shadows of the goals. Georgia was not to be stopped. Using its passes judiciously it scored via Downs and Chandler.

The game was nearing the end, but Georgia was not through. A tie meant little to them. Taking a fumble close to Carolina's goal they used an end run to score again.

The game ended shortly after this play with Georgia still in possession of the ball.

In the line Captain Farris, Hudson and Lipscomb did great work. Hudson and Lipscomb were getting many of Carolina's tackles. Yank Spaulding put in the best defensive game of the day. Backing up the line he stopped the Bulldog backs time after time.

Defensive Star

Yank Spaulding has often been labeled the hard luck player of the Carolina football squad. His sophomore year he failed to play enough to earn a monogram. Last year he was shifted to full back and was going good until injuries and other troubles cut short his work. This year, however, his playing has been consistently good. Yesterday he was the defensive star of the Carolina squad. Backing up the line, he made a large number of Carolina's tackles and proved effective against passes.

Intramural Schedule

Third Week - October 21-25

Monday, October 21:

3:30 1. Old West vs. Ruffin
2. Zeta Psi vs. Sigma Chi
3. No Game

4:30 1. New Dorms vs. "J"
2. Carr vs. Manly
3. Phi Delta Theta vs. S. A. E.

Tuesday, October 22:

3:30 1. Grimes vs. Steele
2. Mangum vs. "F"
3. No Game

Wednesday, October 23:

3:30 1. Sigma Phi Sigma vs. K. A.
2. Phi Sigma Kappa vs. Pi Kappa Phi
3. No Game

4:30 1. New Dorms vs. Carr
2. Old East vs. "I"
3. Kappa Sigma vs. Chi Psi

Thursday, October 24:

3:30 1. Beta Theta Pi vs. Theta Chi
2. Chi Phi vs. Delta Kappa Epsilon
3. No Game

4:30 1. Pi Kappa Alpha vs. S. A. E.
2. Phi Delta Theta vs. Sigma Nu
3. Zeta Psi vs. Kappa Psi

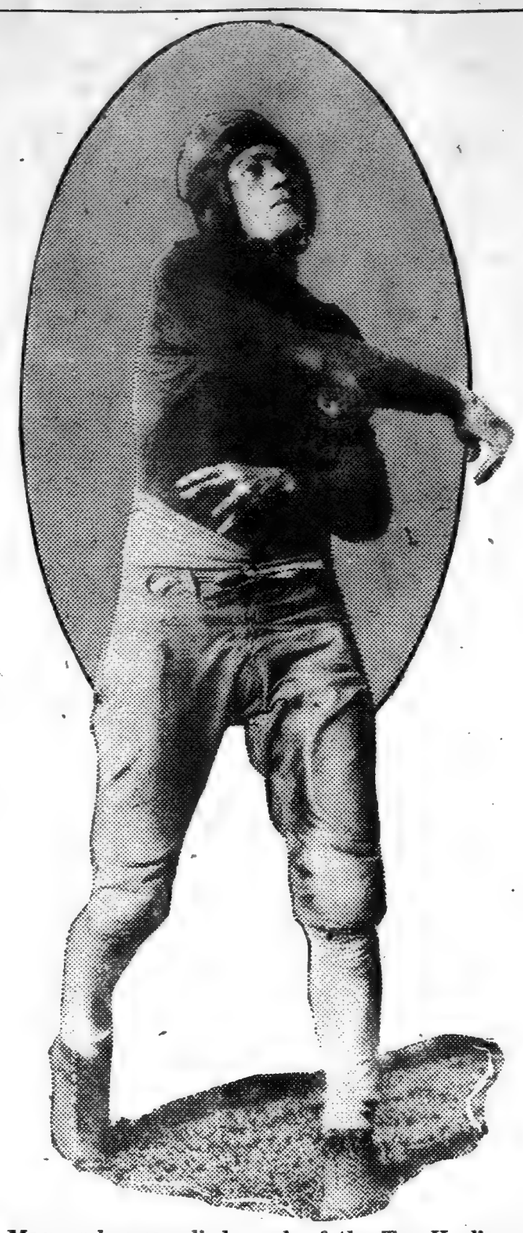
Friday, October 25:

3:30 1. Old East vs. Ruffin
2. Old West vs. "G"
3. No Game

4:30 1. Mangum vs "I"
2. "J" vs. "F"
3. Carr vs. Steele

Duke Archive Will Appear This Month

The first issue of the 1929-30 Archive, the monthly literary publication of Duke university, will appear about the middle of October. "My Faith—and My Unfaith," a story by Virginia Stait, will feature the opening issue. Miss Stait will be remembered by readers of the Archive as the author of "India Ink," which appeared in the magazine last year, and which subsequently won one of the O'Henry prizes for 1928.



The frontispiece of the opening number, "Dance at Dawn," was contributed by Preston Moses. Along with other poetry will appear the work of Dillard Stokes, Harold McCurdy and John Marshall. The poetry and fiction will be supplemented by varied book reviews on recent publications. This year's Archive is under the management of Gerald Crona, editor, and Julian Connally, business manager. For the past two years it has been adjudged the best college literary publication in the state, and according to Editor Crona the same policies will be maintained which have been used by the magazine during this period.

Coker Is Director

Dr. R. E. Coker, head of the Zoology department, is director of the Alleghany School of Natural Science, located in New York state, which was praised highly by Dr. Carl Zimmer, director of the Berlin Museum, during his recent visit to the U. S. Dr. Zimmer stated that the school interested him greatly and emphasized the value of the work offered in the institution to biologists and teachers of natural science. The German scientist stressed the need of such institutions in Germany.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

Headed for All-Southern

Jim Magner has supplied much of the Tar Heel's punch this year and yesterday's contest was no exception. His runs featured Carolina's attack, and coupled with his performance against Georgia Tech last week puts him with the best backs in the South. Magner is playing his second year on the Carolina varsity. Last year he started his good work late in the season, waiting until the Virginia and Duke contests before breaking loose. He hurls passes with the best of them. He is Carolina's best bet for all-southern honors this year.

Nearly 40 Millions Spent In N. C. for Public Education

—Nearly $40,000,000 has been appropriated by the General Assemblies of North Carolina as an aid in support of public elementary and secondary education in the counties within the past thirty years, according to the current issue of State School Facts, official publication of the State Department of Public Instruction.

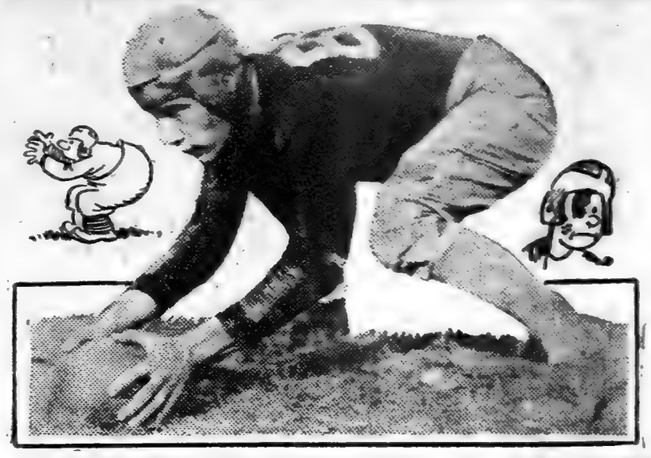
This number of School Facts is entitled "State Aid to Public Education," and it carries a history of the various apportionments of State funds from 1899-1900 to 1929-1930, inclusive. A table of statistics showing the total amounts apportioned to the counties for each year from the several funds accompanies the historical account.

According to School Facts, the Legislature of 1899 made the first direct appropriation from the general treasury to be distributed to the counties as an aid in financing the public schools. This first appropriation was $100,000, and was distributed on the basis of school population.

"Each succeeding General Assembly," the publication points out, "has made appropriations in increasing amounts for the benefit of the public schools."

Smith Entertains Cheerios at Show

The University cheerios, comprising a majority of the members of the freshman class, were the guests of Manager E. Carrington Smith of the Carolina theatre last night.



The picture shown was "This Is Heaven," in which Vilma Banky was starred. The special show was given the cheerios in appreciation of their past services and to give them a chance to assemble as a body for the first time this year, before they settled down to work for the big game yesterday.

Whittle Wins

Between the halves of the Carolina-Georgia game yesterday Heath Whittle and Bill Perry renewed their duel for high hurdling honors. Whittle, Davidson captain, defeated the Carolina star by about five yards.

Do you know Peter Green?

Another Pivot Star

At the beginning of the present season, one of the worries of of the coaches was whether a center could be found to fill Schwartz's position. Ned Lipscomb, reserve last year, started there. He has been there ever since. He played great against Tech and yesterday, with Ray Farris and Jimmie Hudson, did good work in the line. He stands well over six feet and uses his height to good advantage against passes.

Winner's Captain

Joe Boland, Captain of the Georgia Bulldogs, may well wear a contented smile, for in the past eight days the Georgians have bowled over two outstanding teams, Yale and Carolina.

Vicious Bulldog

Playing one of the half back positions, Chandler gave a good account of himself yesterday. He either tossed or caught all of Georgia's successful passes. Two of Georgia's scores resulted from his well directed tosses.

"Customed to Don or Customed to Measure"

Unanimous

Clothes tailored with the rare distinction and luxurious imported woolens commands unanimous respect for the individual appearance created by LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES.

LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

"University Outfitters"

Program Southern Conference on Education

Sunday, October 20

Eleven A. M.—Memorial Hall

Sermon. "Manufactured Gods," by Dean Shailer Mathews, School of Divinity, University of Chicago.

Four P. M.—Memorial Hall

Musical Program. The University of North Carolina Department of Music, Professor Harold S. Dyer, Director.

Monday, October 21

Ten A. M.—Gerrard Hall

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE ON EDUCATION

Presiding: President H. W. Chase.
"Significance of Intelligent Reading and of Library Facilities in Modern Education," by Dean William S. Gray, School of Education, the University of Chicago.
"The Library in the Public Schools of Winston-Salem," by Mr. F. H. Koos, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Winston-Salem.

Eleven-thirty A. M.—Gerrard Hall

SOUTHEASTERN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

Presiding: Miss Charlotte Templeton, Librarian, Greenville Public Library, Greenville, South Carolina.
Address of Welcome, by Dr. Louis R. Wilson, Librarian, the University of North Carolina.
"The Rome Conference," by Mr. Andrew Keogh, President of the American Library Association.
"The Survey as a Starting Point," by Miss Mary U. Rothrock, Librarian, Lawson McGhee Library, Knoxville, Tennessee.

Two-thirty P. M.—Gerrard Hall

SOUTHEASTERN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

Presiding: Miss Charlotte Templeton.
Open Discussion:
County Libraries.
Negro Library Service.
Public Library Standards.

Four P. M.—Gerrard Hall

NORTH CAROLINA LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

Presiding: Miss Anne Pierce, Librarian, Charlotte Public Library, Charlotte, North Carolina.
Introduction of Speaker, by Colonel F. P. Hobgood, Jr., Greensboro, North Carolina, Chairman, Citizens' Library Movement.
Address, by Governor O. Max Gardner.
"The Mecklenburg Campaign," by Mr. C. W. Tillett, Jr., Chairman, Charlotte District, Citizens' Library Movement.
"The Citizen's Part in a Library Program," by Professor Frank P. Graham, the University of North Carolina.
Report from Davidson County.

Six-thirty P. M.—Carolina Inn

Dinner. Guests will be entertained by the University of North Carolina.
Address: "The Use of Leisure," by Dr. Arthur E. Bestor, President of Chautauqua Institution.

PEN POINTS

(Continued from page two)

complained bitterly just after Georgia evened the score. He was so nervous, he said, that he missed a perfectly good picture.

* * *

One of the busiest men on the Hill before the game was the Dean of the Smoke Shop. The center of an interested but wary crowd, he had some difficulty in disposing of large blocks of Georgia money. Many a careful man counted his money and then mentioned Dean Paulsen in his prayers last night.

* * *

Our sympathy goes out to the Governor's chauffeur. He had one of the toughest breaks of anyone at the game. The Governor's car was parked as near as possible to the stadium, just near enough for everything to be heard and nothing to be seen. And there the chauffeur stayed throughout the game, embellishing his private stock of cuss-words.

* * *

A remarkably good job was done by the Durham cops sent over here to direct traffic. And right natty they looked, too, in their Sam Browne belts and blue uniforms. Officer Blake of the local force saw the game from an excellent seat on the sidelines, apparently unperturbed by the drunks just behind him and engrossed in the game.

* * *

The men who clean up the stadium after the game will have a tough job on their hands. When the score was lifted to 18 and then 19, we saw innumerable faces fall. And several bottles.

* * *

There are other games on the schedule this year, and other victories to be won. Which is the main thing. One game doesn't make or break a team. So we'll see what happens next Saturday.

Regular Sunday Tea

The regular Sunday afternoon teas, sponsored by the student vestry of the Episcopal church will be held from 4:30 to 6 o'clock this Sunday afternoon at the parish house of the Episcopal church.

All students of the University are invited by the church to attend regardless of their church preference. Visitors are also invited to the tea.

German Scholar on Visit Here

Friederich Brie, professor of English in the University of Freiburg, Baden, was in Chapel Hill from Friday to Sunday. He is to introduce American literature courses at Freiburg, and in preparation he is visiting American institutions to consult with their professors and to see their libraries. He came here from Vanderbilt and left for the University of Virginia.

Historical Society To Meet in Raleigh

The annual session of the Literary and Historical Association of North Carolina will be held in Raleigh during October 31 and November 1, the program this year to be headlined with an address by Dr. H. M. Wagstaff, president of the association and professor of history at the University, and author of several works of history.

The Historical Association has been functioning for more than a quarter of a century, and the sessions each year are featured with addresses by notable historians and literary men, to which meetings the public is invited. Many eminent men have addressed the sessions in the past, including such figures as William Howard Taft, Claude Bowers, Walter Hines Page and others.

The presidents of the association are chosen each year in recognition of their literary, historical, or other cultural contributions to North Carolina. The object of the organization has been toward the cultural life of the state, and its efforts have gone for the furthering of rural school libraries, realization and recognition of state achievements from a cultural standpoint, and many such accomplishments as the marking of the Civil War battlefields and establishing the Valley Forge Memorial.

STUDENT WORKED WAY THROUGH HARVARD 1657

The practice of earning one's way through college is just about as old in America as are colleges themselves. Someone who has been poring over Harvard college records has discovered that Zachariah Bridgen, who entered as a freshman in 1657, when but fourteen years old earned his way at least in part by "ringinge the bell and waytinge," says The Columbia Dispatch.

The bureau of education at Washington refers to this as the first instance on record of a student working his way; but Harvard was twenty-one years old when Bridgen entered, and as students were not as a rule wealthy in those days, the chances are altogether in favor of the presumption that in every one of these twenty-one years there were students working to pay their way, whether the work was done for the college itself, as in Bridgen's case, or for some private employer.

During the period when the University was closed following the Civil War $2,394.19 was paid for repairs.

In the 15 years from 1897 to 1912 the University won 25 intercollegiate debates and lost 10.

John Sprunt Hill Accepts Library For the Trustees

(Continued from page one)

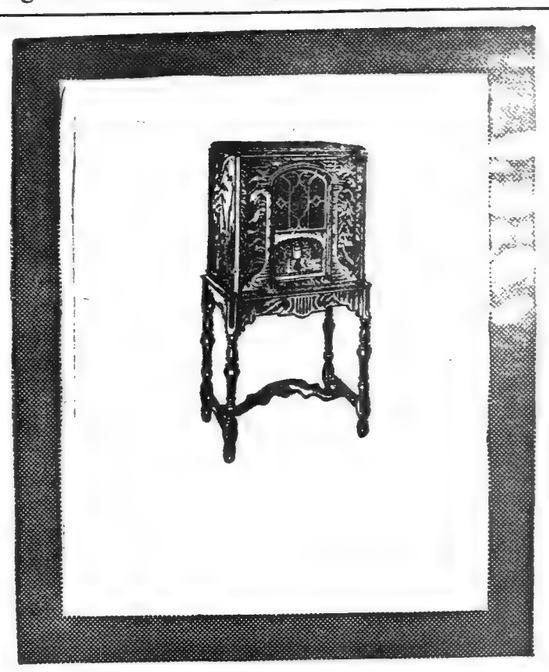
sized the need for the present building.

Gifts to the University were announced by Dr. Louis R. Wilson, Librarian. Among them was $1,000,000 given by the Carnegie Foundation for the establishment of a School of Librarians. There were many other gifts ranging from $500 to $30,000.



Following the address of Dr. Keogh, the audience sung the University hymn, and Rev. W. D. Moss pronounced the benediction.

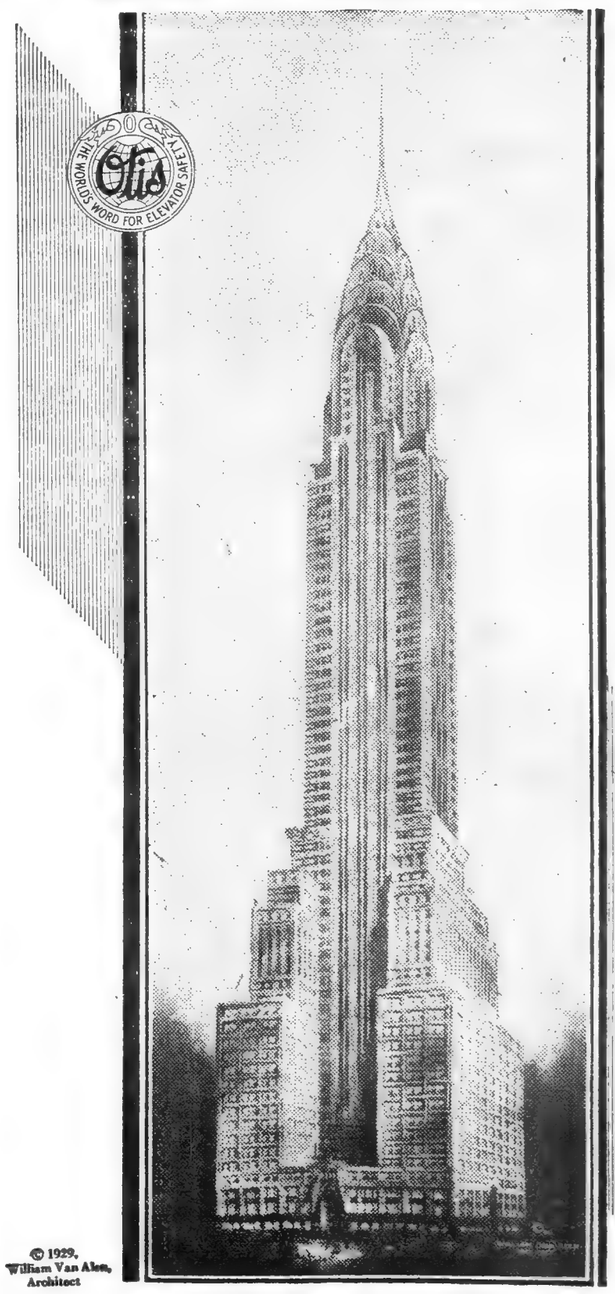
At 5 o'clock the new Library held an open house and reception. Last night the Home-Coming folks were invited to attend a guest performance of the Carolina Playmakers.

The Home-Coming program is continued today, with Shailer Mathews, Dean of the School of Divinity, University of Chicago, conducting union services in Memorial hall, and a musical program by the University's Department of Music at four o'clock.

In 1869 the executive committee of the University recommended to the legislature that the expenses of one student for every member of the legislature be paid by the state if the student would agree to teach in the public schools.

DR. J. P. JONES
Dentist
Over Welcome-In Cafeteria
PHONE 5761

ELECTRO-DYNAMIC



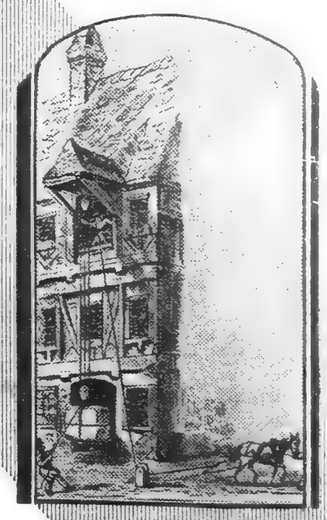
complete
FOR ONLY
$145.00
(Less Tubes)

ATWATER KENT RADIO SCREEN-GRID . . . a new cabinet model specially priced

Electric & Water Division
UNIVERSITY CONSOLIDATED SERVICE PLANTS

HERE IS a new cabinet model of the most famous radio in the world. It is the new Screen-Grid Atwater Kent—as fine a radio as can be built.

It is celebrated for marvelous tone, great power, range and selectivity. Its dependability is proved. There is no doubt that this cabinet model, at this unusually low price, is a radio value difficult or impossible to duplicate . . . . Deferred payments. . .



The World's Tallest Building

THE new Chrysler Building in New York will be the tallest building in the world. It will be equipped with thirty Otis Signal Control Elevators.

Here is additional evidence in support of the statement that "most of the world's famous buildings are Otis-equipped."

The world's first safe elevator was an Otis—and today the marvelous Signal Control elevator is an exclusive Otis development.

One of the early phases of Vertical Transportation

© 1929, William Van Alen, Architect

OTIS ELEVATOR COMPANY
OFFICES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES OF THE WORLD

Park $33.00 Suit Club

The Best Made-to-Measure Suit

Win a Suit for $3.00! Somebody Will.

An easy way to pay for a suit if you go the limit—$3 weekly for 11 weeks—Name drawn each week and man whose name is drawn will be given a suit for the amount he has paid up till the drawing—Special factory representative here

MONDAY and TUESDAY

Carolina Dry Cleaners

FREE! Clip This add and Receive $1 Credit on First Payment FREE!

V. P. I. TICKETS
Exchanged
Y. M. C. A. TODAY

The Daily Tar Heel

TAYLOR SOCIETY
Tonight 7:30
BINGHAM HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1929 | NUMBER 24

Development Of Intelligent Reading Habits Is Important Problem, Says Dean Gray

Second Annual Conference On Education Opens With Address by Dr. Chase and Paper By Dean of Chicago's School Of Education.

The second annual Southern Conference on Education sponsored by the University opened at the Carolina Inn yesterday wieh an attendance of more than 250 leaders from the entire south.

Following an address of welcome by President Harry Chase, papers were presented by Dean William S. Gray of the school of education, University of Chicago, and by F. H. Koos, assistant superintendent of schools, Winston-Salem.

Declaring that the elementary and secondary schools are faced with many problems, Dean Gray said "the two urgent problems of today are the development of intelligent reading habits and the provision of adequate library materials for use in enlarging and enriching the content of school subjects and in promoting recreational reading interests.

The Southeastern Library association also held its first 1929 session here Monday morning, with Miss Charlotte Templeton, librarian of the Greenville public library, presiding.

Last Chance

Holders of season tickets to the Carolina Playmaker productions have been notified that today is the last opportunity to redeem these for reserved seats. Reservations may be obtained at the Student Supply store.

A few season tickets are still available at the office of the Playmakers. The cash sale of seats for the three one-act plays to be presented October 24, 25 and 26 will begin tomorrow.

Players Entertain Visitors With Show

Last Saturday night the Carolina Playmakers gave a special production of "Magnolia's Man" by Gertrude Wilson Coffin, and "Being Married" by Catherine Wilson Nolan, for the entertainment of the delegates to the Southern Conference on Education, the library committee, and the visiting alumni.

An interesting feature of the program was a demonstration of stage setting. The curtain was left up and the audience allowed to watch the stage preparations between plays.

Concert Given By Music Department

Sunday afternoon the University's department of music gave a splendid program in Memorial hall, with Professor Harold S. Dyer, head of the department, in charge. There were vocal selections by the University glee club, violin selections by Professor T. Smith McCorkle, assisted by Mrs. McCorkle at the piano, and piano selections by Professor Nelson Kennedy. A large crowd attended the concert.

Crane To Attend Clinic

Professor Harry W. Crane will attend the Mental clinic at the State School for Blind at Raleigh Tuesday, October 22. He will also attend another clinic in Salisbury on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Calendar Notice

Beginning with today's Tar Heel a calendar of events will be published every day. All announcements for the calendar should be reported to the Tar Heel office before four o'clock the day preceding the issue.

Alpha Phi Delta Frat Initiates Prinzhorn

Last Thursday night, October 17, the local chapter of Alpha Phi Delta, a psychology fraternity, enjoyed a meeting and banquet at the Spanish inn in Durham. Four men were initiated at the meeting, these being D. H. Briggs, Dr. K. E. Zener of Duke University, E. R. Mosher of this institution and Dr. Hans Prinzhorn of Frankfort, Germany. Dr. Prinzhorn is a psychologist and psychiatrist specializing in psychotherapy. He came to the United States to attend the International Congress of Psychology at Harvard University during the month of August, and also the Ninth International Congress of Psychology at Yale University in September. He delivered two lectures at the latter congress.

Dr. Hans Prinzhorn was formerly connected with the Psychology clinic at Heidelburg, Germany, and is now arranging a series of lectures to be given through the United States. In December he will go to Mexico where he will be the guest of the German ambassador to that country.

He has written many books on psychology, personality and character development.

DRAMATIC SECTION ELECTS OFFICERS

The dramatic art section of the North Carolina Education association held its first meeting of the year in Asheville last Saturday. Short instructive talks were given by W. R. Wunsch of Asheville, and Mrs. Louise S. Perry of Swannanoa.

"Pink and Patches," a one-act play, was presented by a cast from the Morganton high school, under the direction of Mrs. E. O. Randolph. The play was used as a basis for discussion and suggestions in the coaching and production of plays. Miss Nettina Strobach of Chapel Hill conducted an open forum.

The officers elected for the coming year are Mrs. E. O. Randolph, president, and Msis Flora Mae Hood of Hendersonville, secretary.

Crime On Decline

Crime was apparently on the decline in Chapel Hill last week as only three offenders were hailed before recorder's court this morning.

Judge Hinshaw was out of town and Mayor Council presided at the court.

L. G. Cox, white, was fined $10 and costs for public drunkeness and having intoxicating liquors in his possession.

W. W. Suggs, white, was fined $10 and costs for passing worthless checks.

Fred Ivey, white, was charged with driving under the influence of liquor. His case was continued until next week.

PLAYMAKERS OPEN SEASON THURSDAY

First Bill To Be Presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday Evenings.

The Carolina Playmakers present the first bill of their twelfth season next Thursday, Friday and Saturday night at the Playmaker theatre. The program consists of three original one-act plays: "The No 'Count Boy" by Paul Green, "Magnolia's Man" by Gertrude Wilson Coffin; and "Being Married" by Catherine Wilson Nolen.

"The No 'Count Boy" was produced in New York in 1925, winning first prize in the National Little Theatre tournament. The play is a comedy of negro life. Professor Koach says of it, "Although the characters are drawn to the life, the play is really a fantasy. . . . In 'The No 'Count Boy' Paul Green gives us a fleeting glimpse of the dream-world of the carefree minstrel of the race."

Gertrude Wilson Coffin, the author of "Magnolia's Man," is the author of "A Shotgun Splicin'." Her present play is a comedy based on a spinster's efforts to secure a husband through the mail-order marriage mart. The scene is laid in a remote section of North Carolina, the time being 1904, before the new freedom made spinsters less helpless.

"Being Married" is a domestic comedy with the struggle of well-to-do young married people who suddenly decide that the only "square thing" is to live on their own meagre income. Professor Koch says of it, "The charm of the dialogue is really the charm of the young people themselves."

McCormick In Memphis

Dean C. T. McCormick of the school of law left Saturday for Memphis to attend the sessions of the American Bar association and of the executive committee of the Association of American Law schools. He will return to Chapel Hill on Friday.

GOLDEN JUBILEE SUBJECT OF TALK

W. H. Witherspoon Speaks of Edison's Life At Chapel Exercises.

Yesterday, the fiftieth anniversary of the date of the invention of the incandescent lamp, the chapel exercise was fittingly taken for a discussion of Thomas A. Edison, the well-known inventor of this convenience. W. H. Weatherspoon of Raleigh told something of Edison's life and work and pointed out the value and importance of his inventions.

Mr. Weatherspoon described the invention of the incandescent damp as probably the most important event in our industrial life. He showed that this one thing has revolutionized industry by literally bringing the world from darkness into light.

Tracing the invention from its beginning, Mr. Weatherspoon said that others before Edison had attempted to make an incandescent lamp, but with little success. "It was finally Edison who by his labor and genius discovered the proper material and method and whose efforts on October 21, 1879, culminated in success.

Then the speaker the world-

(Continued on page four)

Dr. Dabney Here

Dr. Charles W. Dabney, former Professor of Chemistry here, is spending some time in Chapel Hill engaged in historical research work at the library. During his visit to the University Dr. Dabney is staying at the residence of Dean Braune.

Dr. Dabney is a distinguished educator having served as president of the University of Tennessee and later as president of the University of Cincinnati. He is also former State chemist, and at one time was a director of the United States Agriculture Experiment station. Dr. Dabney is said to have been instrumental in the writing of the charter for The A. and M. College, now N. C. State.

Judges' Decisions In Debating Giving Way To Open Discussion

(By J. C. Williams)

Along with other changes in the field of intercollegiate debating has come the recent shift of emphasis from the decision debate to the no-decision contest. Although the system of letting the audience vote both before and after the debate is still very widely practiced, the old "cut and dried" judges' decision has almost gone out of existence in the case of the larger colleges and universities of the country.

Of the seven intercollegiate debates in which the University of North Carolina participated last year four were no-decision contests, while the decision was rendered by the audience in the case of the remaining three. The plan which provides for definite judges "three to seven in number" was not employed at all. The University of Kentucky, one of the opponents of the Tar Heel debaters last spring, never participates in a decision debate except by the specific request of the opposing team. Even then an audience vote is preferred.

A concensus of the various contentions in this connection seems to show that the aforesaid shift of emphasis from the decision debate to the no-decision contest is due largely to the fact that debaters have heretofore worked only with a view to receiving the verdict at the end of the debate. Thus, there is a tendency to develop only the high spots of the question rather than a well-rounded discussion. The audience then is the sufferer. Debaters who are working for a decision are invariably prone to ignore the fact that their listeners as a whole are not familiar with the question which they are debating. For this reason a mere arithmetical development of the high spots means little to them. A further concensus of opinion seems also to show that the removal of the decision causes the average debater to develop a fuller and more complete discussion. This belief was substantiated locally by the Harvard - Carolina no - decision debate of last spring. The audience which was composed very largely of Chapel Hill people considered this the best debate held in the village for many a day.

Resultant of experience in this connection the University debate council has become a strong advocate of the abolition of decisions in intercollegiate debates.

Buccaneer Notice

There will be a meeting of the Buccaneer business staff tonight at 8:30 in the basement of the Alumni building. All old and new men who wish to try out for the staff please be present.

H. N. Patterson
Bus. Mgr.

HENDERSON BACK FROM KENTUCKY

University Professor Makes Principal Speech At Unveiling of Bronze Tablets.

Dr. Archibald Henderson has returned home from Henderson, Kentucky, where on Friday, October 11th, he made an address and unveiled six bronze tablets. These tablets were erected in memory of Colonel Richard Henderson, often called "the Political Father of Kentucky," (great-great grandfather of Dr. Henderson) and the eight other men who were partners in the Transylvania Company.

The six tablets which are affixed to the front exterior walls of the Henderson County Court House named in honor of Colonel Henderson give the history of the deeds of the nine men whose resourcefulness and courage have made their names imperishable. They were erected and dedicated under the auspices of the Henderson County Historical Association. Judge Robert Worth Bingham, an alumnus of the University of North Carolina, owner of the Louisville "Courier-Journal" and Louisville "Times," and former mayor of Louisville, presented the tablets. Dr. Henderson unveiled them and made the principal address. All of the several speakers on this occasion were descendents of the original members of the Transylvania Company.

In his address Dr. Henderson ciited the part played by the Transylvania Company in the development and history of the United States. He stated that men who took an active part in the affairs of the company played conspicously in the history of the Revolution. The members of the Transylvania Company made possible the heroic exploratory accompliishments of George Rogers Clark. Had it not been for Clark the Revolutionary War would have left the Union comprising but a fringe of States bordering the Atlantic Seaboard; there would have been no Kaskaskia and Vincennes had it not been for the Transylvania Company.

The circumstances under which the land was purchased by the Transylvania Company—which included almost all of Kentucky, parts of Virginia, North Carolina, and Tennessee

(Continued on page four)

Tickets Exchanged

Student coupons will be exchanged in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. for student tickets to the V. P. I. game, on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. All lost books must be reported at the ticket table today if tickets are to be issued to the persons who have lost the books.

Dean Mathews Speaks Against Present-Day Idol Worshippers

Says People of Today Little Different From Ancient Idolaters; Culture a Fine Asset If Not Overdone; Science Makes God More Apparent.

Manufactured gods were taken to task here this morning by Dean Shailer Mathews, Dean of the school of divinity of the University of Chicago.

Dean Mathews preached a brilliant sermon at a union service of all Chapel Hill denominations. Memorial hall was well filled. Among those who heard him were many of the delegates to the Southern Conference on Education and the library executives who began their sessions here yesterday, and a number of visitors here for the University's home-coming program.

The sermon was in a sense a continuation of the dedication program for the University's new library.

President Chase presided at the service this morning.

The noted divine took his text from the 17th verse of the 44th chapter of Isaiah—"Out of the residue he maketh a God." He pointed out that it was futile to believe in any form of idolatry. He referred to the fact that the Hebrew people, from time to time, reverted to the type of religion of that day—idolatry—and that in many senses that nation was not especially religious.

"The Hebrew nation didn't have a genius for religion," Dean Mathews declared. "They did not live in a desert all the time and they did not invent monotheism."

He was emphatic in making the point clear that the Jewish nation did not invent what we term our religion of today. The prophets were largely responsible for the Hebrew religion. Dean Mathews felt that the actual religious beliefs of the Hebrew peoples were not so important as the "great eternal truth, illustrated by that people." He placed much stress on the "principles for which the prophets stood—that there was only one God and that the God which the Hebrews worshipped, in theory at least, was that God."

"No wonder people get confused," Dean Mathews went on,

(Continued on page four)

What's Happening

Student coupons exchanged for V. P. I. tickets at Y. M. C. A.

Playmaker tickets exchanged at Student Supply Store.

Playmaker Production, Thursday Night, Playmaker Theatre.

A. M.

with an attendance of more

9:30—Southern Conference on Education, Gerrard Hall.

11:30—Southeastern Library Association, Gerrard Hall.

11:30—North Carolina Library Association, Carolina Inn.

P. M.

1:00—North Carolina Library Association, Carolina Inn.

7:00—Rifle club meeting, basement Alumni building.

7:15—Di Senate initiation meeting, Di hall, New West building.

7:15—Phi Assembly meeting, New East building.

7:30—Taylor Society organization meeting, 103 Bingham hall.

8:30—Buccaneer business staff meeting, basement Alumni building.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
J. C. Williams

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan
Henry L. Anderson

REPORTERS
Howard Lee Frank Manheim
Holmes Davis Stowe Moody
Louis Brooks Clyde Deitz
Charles Rose George Sheram
Lawrence Harris Robert Hodges
Mary Price John Lathan
J. P. Tyson B. H. Whitton
Browning Roach Nathan Volkman
Al Lansford George Stone
Joe Carpenter Lawrence Miller
Peggy Lintner Jack Riley
E. C. Daniel

Tuesday, October 22, 1929

Faculty And Student

Well may we lament the rise of mass education and the consequent disappearance of personal contact between students and professors, for much has been sacrificed to efficiency and method. Well may we also welcome mass education, for it has done much to enlighten people in general.

With this introduction the writer hopes to embody in this editorial a discussion of the relation of faculty and student from the standpoint of the student's interests entirely.

After having heard his father talk about his college days (days when colleges were small), the average youth comes to college today with the expectation of broadening and educating himself through association with professors. Little does he realize that when he graduates four years from the date of his entrance not more than five or six professors will know his first name and even fewer will call him by it. In other words, he is utterly ignorant of the great barrier which separates faculty from students. And this aforesaid barrier is, in the last analysis, the evil of mass education in colleges and universities.

Over against this situation we may well consider the unbiased contention that a few minutes conversation with the average professor is worth a dozen of his lectures—immeasurably more useful and invariably more interesting. Yet the rank and file of our professors seldom take any time from playing golf, writing books, or working on research projects to talk with individual members of their classes. Seemingly, this is asking too much of them.

Yet we offer no well-defined remedy to the situation, for it is a personal matter which is, perhaps, beyond the realm of faculty legislation. After all, it may be a stimulus to individuality. The writer feels, however, that even that trait needs to be guided.

The truth of the matter is that personal relationships between faculty and students have gone the way of all big business. This fact we lament.

—J. C. W.

The clinging-vine type of girl is said to be scarce, but she is frequently seen winding her tendrils around the automobile driver.—Newark Advocate.

The Second Conquest Of Annie Peck

Annie S. Peck is a name which, in North America, has been almost forgotten. Twenty-one years ago that name was as well known as Lindbergh's is today, for it was then that Annie Peck accomplished her epoch-making climb up Mount Huascaran in Peru, the highest point ever reached by an American in the Western Hemisphere.

But Miss Peck is by no means lost to the staleness of things accomplished. The north peak of Huascaran, "Cumbra Ana Peck," is evidence that she has the privilege, if anybody has, of continued existence on her dying reputation. There shall be none of this for her. Once more she feels the urge of adventure, and she has announced that at a very early date she is to make her tenth voyage to South America.

This time she will not attempt to scale again the highest peak. She will try something which, to her, is a new experience. It will be a conquest and it will be an upward journey; she is to explore the western and eastern coasts of South America by airplane, and she has never ridden in one before.

Annie Peck is now an old woman—old in years but young in spirit. Like Lindbergh, she is symbolic of youth, but of a different kind of youth. She is going to try something which is almost impossible for a woman of her years; yet, she is undaunted by warnings. Her spirit is the restless ever-achieving type. Hers is the spirit which college students must cultivate if they are to keep continually fresh, and if they are to make education count for more than mere social and economic prestige.

—B. M.

Readers' Opinions

PETER GREEN, AGAIN!

Editor Daily Tar Heel:

My roseate expectations have recently suffered a very severe setback. I have been accused of lifting my raucous voice, sneering at properties, and of being one half humbug and the other half hypocracy. The slightest modicum of common sense would teach that I was making myself the subject of scorn and sarcasm over the entire campus. It is the natural corollary of such iconoclastic statements that I should apologize to the Student Body. The horrible consciousness has just dawned upon me that I am hardly presentable for polite society under the present conditions. I offer my humblest apologies to Mr. Hawkins, Miss Co-ed, and Mr. Aristotle, and their forgiveness for all these offenses is very penitently and humbly invoked.

Sincerely yours,
PETER GREEN

TAG FOOTBALL

Editor Daily Tar Heel:

Tag football is now in full swing on the campus. Every dormitory group has been issued footballs with which to practice in preparation for its regular scheduled games. But instead of practicing on the intramural fields which have been set aside for this purpose, the tendency for dormitory teams is to "choose up sides" and play just outside the dormitories—right in the middle of plots of extraordinarily beautiful grass. Much time, expense and effort have been spent on this campus of ours. And to have all their work erased by the trampling feet of crowds of unthinking students is a perfect shame. Our campus is a thing of beauty and it ranks with those of the most beautiful colleges in the country. Now the question is: "Are we to continue this practice of playing tag on the campus grass?"

No, we are not. Too much is at stake. We will henceforth play or practice games on the intra-mural fields. And the grass surrounding the buildings on the campus will grow green and unhampered. The beauty of our campus will not be ruined.

A STUDENT

DEFENDS THE COUNTRY

Editor of the Tar Heel:

In Friday's Tar Heel Peter Green is referred to as a backwoodser or, "If he isn't, then he has succeeded in acquiring a set of backwoods manners from a city environment."

The writer hates to appear curious but would like to know if there is some magic in a city environment which does not permit the breeding of such asinine individuals as Peter Green?

I am afraid that our friend, R. Hawkins, has confused his ideas of a backwoods environment with that of a cotton mill village.

I was born and reared in the country and I am very proud of that fact, yet in all my backwoods existence I have still to see the country boy who would make such a totally idiotic exhibition of himself such as advocated by Peter Green.

Respectfully,
A COUNTRY BOY.

Clipped

It Is Abominable

This is to say that we indorse unreservedly the remarks of the Daily News' sports editor about the abominable contraction of Tar Heels as a designation for the University of North Carolina football team into the indefensible and outrageous "Heels" and that we pledge whatever assistance we are able to render him in his campaign to wipe that absurd anomaly from the face of the earth.

In the day when the colleges and universities rejoice in the naming of their athletic teams with such monstrosities as Crimson Typhoons, Bounding Earthquakes and Golden Hail Storms, it has been a satisfaction to reflect that one team at least has a name with genuine meaning. Tar Heel connotes something. It has tradition, it has state significance, it is known all over the country.

Yet in the very home of the Tar Heel, at the university itself and in the student newspaper which carries at its masthead the name of The Daily Tar Heel, the reader is slapped in the face with a headline, "Roosevelt Visits Campus; Likes Heel Football Team," and again "Notables to Attend Heels-Georgia Game" and once more, "Heels, Florida and Clemson Top Southern Teams." If the Tar Heels themselves permit and encourage this abomination, what can they expect of headline writers elsewhere?

Oh, we know the difficulties of headline writing and the necessity of holding a head in a definite space. But where has the art of the headline gone that the problem cannot be met?

We were for the Tar Heels when they faced a once great and perhaps a still great foe in Atlanta, and we'll be for them when they meet the conquerors of Yale this week. But the Heels arouse no patriotic fervor in these North Carolina breasts.

If this be conservatism, let the sports writers make the most of it. Only let them understand now that a coat of tar and the heel of a boot is our policy for those who do not know that a North Carolinian is a Tar Heel and nothing less.—Greensboro Daily News.

Merely Meandering

john mebane

For the last time, we swore to ourself. For the last time; never again. It started this way: someone flattered us by mentioning the fact that we had a good poem in our column last issue. "Hilariously funny" to be precise. Well, that was the beginning of it all. Being quite naive, and consequently, susceptible to flattery and compliment, it went to our head. Well, up in front of Swain hall, we walked out into the middle of the street and quite forgot what we were in the street for. Then suddenly, into the midst of our inquirious musings, broke a dozen or so shouts of "Look!", and we stood still. Fortunately, the car just passed over the tips of our toes. We prayed our thanks, resolving never, never again to write a poem which might induce someone to tell us that it was good. And if anyone dares . . .

Well, there is no need to make threats. And if you will keep reading, you will see the needlessness of them.

For those who, at various times in their lives, have been disappointed in love-affairs—that is, affairs with the efflorescent aspect—we suggest that they have printed and framed several of the following masterpieces. Over the desk or the bed is a good place to hang them:

"To mortals what a dreadful scourge is love." (Euripides, Medea).

". . . perhaps all early love affairs ought to be strangled or drowned, like so many blind kittens. . . ." (Thackeray, Pendennis).

"Shall I, wasting in despair,
Die because a woman's fair?
Or make pale my cheeks with care,
'Cause another's rosy are?
Be she fairer than the day
Or the flow'ry meads in May,
If she be not so to me
What care I how fair she be?"
(George Wither, Shall I, Wasting in Despair).

"Too red, too red the roses were,
Too black the ivy on the tree—
Dear, at the trembling of your hair
All my despair comes back to me. . . ."
(Stephane Mallarme, Song Without Words).

"Pourquoi renouer l'amourette? C'est-y bien la peine d'aimer?" (Why knot again our broken love? Is the sorrow of love worth while?)
(Paul Fort).

"Parting is all we know of heaven,
And all we need of hell."
(Emily Dickinson, Parting).

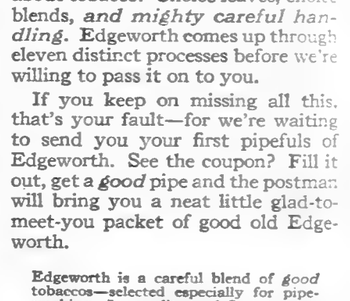
That's enough. Help yourself, and paste the credit line below the frame. Then look up at them occasionally with a sad and melancholy gaze . . . and sigh (puffingly).

Below, for your perusal, we present two parodies. To the first ten persons turning in the correct list of poets imitated, the columnist will offer a

TO HORTENSE

Hortense, thy beauty is to me
Like sweet perfume in alleyways,
That one can smell but cannot see;
Through all the dreary dismal days
It floats before my gaze.



Lo, on yon dreamy balustrade
How delicate I see thee stand
A bag of peanuts in thy hand!
As if intent on escapade
In foreign strand.

PROFS ARE KIND

Do not weep, maiden, for profs are kind.
Because one once drew zeros on your theme
And cussed you generously,
Do not weep.
Profs are kind.

Hoarse, booming voices of the brotherhood,
Little souls that thirst for light,
These men were born to rave and curse.
The unexplained glory clings around them,
Great is the teaching-god, and his domain—
A room where a score of wretches nurse.

The President's home on Franklin street was built in 1907 at a cost of $15,000.

Tobacco's at its best . . . in a pipe

MEN'S preference for a man's smoke—the pipe—is plenty positive. But do you know why? We'll tell you.

First, pipe tobacco's different—for instance, Edgeworth. Second, tobacco smolders as it should in a pipe. And third, these mean you get more satisfaction—greater relish of the good old savory burley, soothing fullness of rich smoke.

There's even a fourth reason: you like good company. The pipe-smoking brotherhood is that.

Tobacco's at its best in a pipe. It gets a chance to be itself there—to loosen up as it comes to life, to expand and take in air and glow. Only the choicest leaves get that chance, moreover, for pipes tell the truth about tobacco. Choice leaves, choice blends, and mighty careful handling. Edgeworth comes up through eleven distinct processes before we're willing to pass it on to you.

If you keep on missing all this, that's your fault—for we're waiting to send you your first pipefuls of Edgeworth. See the coupon? Fill it out, get a good pipe and the postman will bring you a neat little glad-to-meet-you packet of good old Edgeworth.

Edgeworth is a careful blend of good tobaccos—selected especially for pipe-smoking. Its quality and flavor never change. Buy it anywhere—"Ready Rubbed" and "Plug Slice"—15¢ pocket package to pound humidor tin.

EDGEWORTH

LARUS & BRO. CO.,
Richmond, Va.

I'll try your Edgeworth. And I'll try it in a good pipe.

Name _____

Street _____

Town and State _____

Now let the Edgeworth come! v

"Customed to Don or Customed to Measure"

Conclusive

Consider the many hours you spend in your clothes and how much of your ease and comfort and satisfaction and pride depends upon making the right selection—and you can come to only one conclusion—LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES.

LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

"University Outfitters"

Tar Heels To Point Hard For Battle With Gobblers

Carolina Eleven Preparing To Put Everything Into Great Drive For Remainder of Hard Schedule; House and Koenig To Be Ready For Saturday's Contest.

North Carolina's Tar Heels, set back in a hard 19-12 contest with Georgia Saturday, were today taking their defeat with a grain of salt and preparing to put everything into a great drive for the remainder of a hard schedule—the first barrier of which will be a game with V. P. I.'s fast moving Gobblers here Saturday.

Some of the more optimistic Tar Heel supporters today were consulting schedules, trying to figure how the Conference leaders might be upset so as to give the Tar Heels a claim for Conference honors.

Tennessee still has to pass Vanderbilt, with another great club; and on the other hand Vanderbilt might drop a game to Georgia Tech, as last year. Georgia might slip up against Florida, Alabama or Georgia Tech. And so on and on.

The Tar Heel team itself was forgetting Georgia Tech and Georgia and focusing all attention on this V. P. I. engagement just around the corner, which is looming as a threat aplenty just now.

The Gobblers have shown great potential strength in rolling up big scores on Roanoke, Hampden-Sidney and William and Mary. They created even more of a rucus when they held Penn State to 14-8 in a game in which statistics and scouts agreed that the Gobblers played the greater game but lost on breaks.

The North Carolina game will be their first Conference test, and Coach Gustafson's boys will undoubtedly be "gunning" for the Tar Heels. The Tar Heels, on the other hand, may be expected to give everything to erase a 16-14 defeat of last year, traceable principally to Frank Peake, who gained 200 yards that game.

The North Carolina squad came through the Georgia test with hardly an injury, and will begin pointing for V. P. I. this afternoon with almost full strength. House and Koenig, practically valueless against Georgia, are doped to be back in shape to man fullback and left tackle Saturday and add strength to the Tar Heel lineup.

(By "Crawf" MacKethan)

A lot of things happened last week-end on the gridiron, some of them were expected while quite a few proved to be upsets in the general calculations. Some of the outcomes still remain as thorns in our side, and as for the rest, we haven't figured out even at this last date just how and what happened.

The one bright spot of the Big Five of North Carolina lingers over the campus of Davidson. Once again that "thin red line," the source of so much press agitation, demonstrated its worth by turning back a South Carolina threat in times of danger and holding valiently while the educated toe of Captain Thad Brock scored the point which defeated thein ancient rival, the Citadel.

There is no getting around the fact that Duke is running up against some potent teams from up and down the eastern coast, and there is also no getting around the fact that for this publicity she is paying dearly in her profit and loss statement. The Blue Devils met a strong foe when they ran up against the Navy, and the one point lead at the end of the first half indicates that they must have played a pretty strong brand of ball.

The Tar Heel came out with a five hundred percent batting average in its predictions regarding the Tennessee-Alabama and Florida - Georgia Tech games. Tech must have certainly had a rejuvenation of spirit since last week-end for they not only held in check the much touted Florida offense, but also managed to score sufficiently to satisfy the Georgians who still faithfully followed their national champs. The famous Crabtree and Co. failed to function even threateningly. Florida's hopes of capturing the Southern crown and possibly national recognition went up in a huge bundle of smoke.

Possibly the most bitterly fought game in the entire east was witnessed over in Knoxville when the Vols withstood a Crimson Tide and turned it homeward dragging the poor end of a 6 to 0 score. Alabama failed by a bare three inches to knot the score when a Tennessee forward wall stiffened in defense of its goal. This victory places Tennessee side by side with Georgia on the first ring of the Southern Conference ladder.

The Bulldog victory over the Tar Heels grants Georgia a position among the foremost elevens of the nation. However, looking a seemingly long way off, all we can say is that the Bulldog-Tornado affair next month is going to be a football game worth seeing.

V. P. I., Carolina's foe this coming week-end, managed to come safely through its game last Saturday with William and Mary, defeating the Indians in the last period of play. The V. P. I.-Carolina game will be the first encounter of the Tar Heels this fall with one of her Virginia rivals.

The following statement was clipped from the Gamecock, the University of South Carolina official publication; here's what the Gamecock sports editor has to say about the Tar Heels:

"Should the loud mouth Tarheels get to feeling a bit too cocky over their questionable achievement and begin to sprain their arms patting themselves on the back, they're due to get knocked off their high horse sooner or later. And if they start their publicity bureaus to telling the sports world what they are going to do to a certain South Carolina team one bright day in November, they may find that their ballyhoo was a fraction too premature.

Novice Track Meet To Be Held Oct. 31

A novice track meet is to be staged by the University Athletic department Thursday, October 31, according to an announcement by Coach Dale Ranson. This meet will be open to all men who have not previously competed in varsity or freshman track at Carolina.

The various events which will be open for competition are as follows: 50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 120 yard dash with low hurdles at 20 yards distance, pole vault, high jump, broad jump, shot put, discus throw and javelin.

Rankin In Goldsboro

E. R. Rankin, director of high school athletics, attended a meeting yesterday evening at Goldsboro of the eastern class "A" conference for athletics. The purpose of meeting, at which 15 or 18 high school principals and athletic directors will be present, is to formulate a basketball schedule for the coming season.

As soon as the Goldsboro meeting is over, Mr. Rankin is to proceed to a similar conference of Western schools at Salisbury.

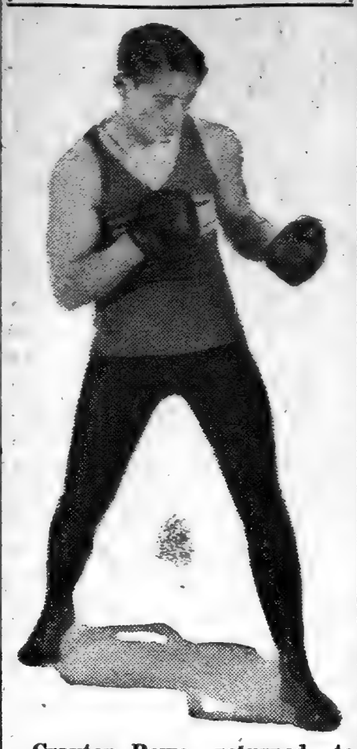
OFFENSIVE FIGHT LIKELY SATURDAY

Great Ball Carriers Will Perform in Carolina - V. P. I. Game; Hooper Is Gobbler Star.

The North Carolina-V. P. I. gridiron battle in Kenan Memorial stadium here Saturday afternoon will throw into conflict two of the south's leading backfield aggregations, and the contest may settle down to an offensive struggle between the rival backfields.

Frank Peake, that terrifying ball toter who tore through Carolina to a heart-breaking 16-14 victory last year, is gone, but the 1929 Gobbler backfield has almost as much drive and better balance.

Bird Hooper, at quarter, is considered the headiest quarterback turned out at V. P. I. since the palmy days of Rip Wallace a decade ago.



Tommy Tompke, at left half, short and stocky, is a real driver, and ardent lover of the game. Phil Spear, at right half, is small and fast, and his excursions into Tar Heel territory a year ago were no momentary flashes. He is being hailed a second Peake. Mit Owens is a big, crashing fullback and a fine defensive man. The outstanding reserve is Macauley McEver, who needs no other introduction than that he is a brother of Tennessee's terrifying Gene McEver.

North Carolina has its own great array of ball-toters, Jimmy Ward, Jim Magner, Phil Jackson and Jimmy Maus—all hard runners, fine passers, fair kickers and jam-up defensive men. Strud Nash is a hard consistent runner and a great pass receiver.

Johnny Branch is a heady little quarter, replacing the injured Wyrick, and from his great broken field work is being hailed a second Stumpy Thomason. Rip Slusser is a ten-second halfback, and Chuck Erickson is considered one of the finest men in a broken field in the south. There are three fine fullbacks—Henry House, Yank Spaulding and Pap Harden. House is perhaps the hardest driver of the three.

These Tar Heel backs have run up 121 points in four games, while the Gobbler backs have countered 89. North Carolina has had opponents score 26 points, and V. P. I. 34. Both teams have won three games and lost one, Carolina to Georgia's great eleven by 19-12, and V. P. I. to a strong Penn State team 19-8.

Boxing Coach

Crayton Rowe returned to the Hill this year to assist the Southern Champions in retaining their title. Rowe tutored the Carolina mitmen two years ago, and his return has added much to the stock of the Tar Heels.

MANY VACANCIES ON BOXING TEAM

Loss of Davis and Vaughn Leaves Big Gaps To Be Filled.

According to Coach Rowe, there are entirely too few candidates for the boxing team this year and as only four lettermen are back with the varsity there are many vacancies on the team. Obie Davis has been called home on account of the death of his father and will not return to the University this year. Davis' loss will leave a large gap in the lineup as he wes expected to be even better than last year.

In addition to losing Davis the last year's Southern Conference champions will not have Evan Vaughn returning. Vaughn, for some unknown reason, will not return to the lineup this year and the 115 pound class has no picked successor. Davis left the 165 pound class open with few men to pick from to succeed him while Vaughn's loss still further complicates matters.

Coach Rowe says that no position is filled for certain and that all who come out for the team will be given equal opportunities for the positions.

The four lettermen back this year are: Captain Archie Allen, Goodrich, Sheffield, and Warren.

In addition to the call for new varsity candidates there is also a need for more freshman material. All freshmen who are interested should report at the Tin Can for workouts every afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The University Magazine was revived in 1897 to cultivate the literary art among the students.

VANDY AND VOLS LEAD CONFERENCE

Seven Teams Have Perfect Record As They Hit Tough Opposition.

(Joe Eagles)

The climax of the 1929 football season was reached last Saturday as far as the teams in North Carolina were concerned, for the Tar Heels made their bid for southern honors and Duke met the Navy in another intersectional game. From now on the big games in this state will be of interest primarily because they will have direct bearing on the race for the championship of the big five.

On a basis of their early season records, up until last Saturday, five teams stood out in the Southern Conference as potential champions. Now that the games scheduled for last week-end are over, only two elevens remain undefeated among the stronger contenders, and consequently they appear at present to be the favorites to come out on top of the heap. North Carolina, Alabama, and Florida saw their chances go as each bowed to superior football. Out of the melee only the Georgia Bulldogs and Tennessee remained with clean slates. Georgia Tech, always a contender, was removed from the undefeated class by the loss to North Carolina two weeks ago.

Other elevens in the conference which remain unbeaten but which will have to show added strength before they can be ranked with Georgia and Tennessee are Kentucky, Tulane, Vanderbilt, Clemson, and Louisiana State. Perhaps the Green Wave from Tulane is the most outstanding among this group. Their real strength will be tested when they meet Georgia Tech this week-end. If Banker and his teammates are successful in overcoming Tech, they will be almost sure to be found near the top when the season closes.

The biggest upset of last Saturday was the overwhelming victory scored by the V. M. I. Cadets over Virginia.

The present standing of the Southern Conference teams follows:

	W	L	T	Pct.
Clemson	2	0	0	1.000
Vanderbilt	2	0	0	1.000
Tennessee	2	0	0	1.000
La. State	2	0	0	1.000
Georgia	1	0	0	1.000
Kentucky	1	0	0	1.000
Tulane	1	0	0	1.000
Florida	2	1	0	.666
North Carolina	2	1	0	.666
Ga. Tech	2	1	0	.666
Alabama	1	1	0	.500
Virginia	1	1	0	.500
Wash. & Lee	1	1	0	.500
South Carolina	1	1	0	.500
Va. Military	1	1	0	.500
Sewanee	0	1	0	.000
Maryland	0	2	0	.000
N. C. State	0	2	0	.000
Miss. A. and M.	0	3	0	.000
Duke	0	0	0	.000
Virginia Poly	0	0	0	.000

Jensen Leads Run

Clarence Jensen, former Newark prep star and now leading freshman cross country runner, broke the V. P. I. course record last Friday in the meet with the V. P. I. frosh when he ran the three and one-half mile course in 18:25. Jensen's record run, however, did not keep the V. P. I. team from winning the meet with a low score of 26 points to Carolina's 30. White of V. P. I. ran second to Jensen with Cordle of Carolina coming in third.

The Tech varsity harriers also defeated the Carolina varsity team with a low score of 27 points to Carolina's 33. Miles and Palmer of V. P. I. led the field being followed by Baucom, Lowry and Barkley of Carolina.

According to Coach Dale Ranson, this is the second defeat for a Tar Heel cross country team in the last six years.

PICKPOCKETS VERY BUSY DURING GAME

The attraction of 25,000 people in Chapel Hill Saturday was seemingly too much for pickpockets at the state fair, as the town suffered an epidemic of petty thieving.

Chief Lloyd reported that over 20 pocketbooks were found after the Carolina - Georgia game, wrapped in newspapers with their contents rifled.

Most of the losses were reported to the police after the rush between the quarters and the half. The police believe that the pickpockets did their mischief as the crowds rushed the cold drink stands during the intermission.

Rifle Club To Meet

There will be a meeting of the Rifle club Wednesday night at the Rifle club office in the basement of Alumni building at 7 p. m. Every one interested is asked to attend.

Of the 110,000 Americans of Danish birth over 21 years of age in 1920, 70 per cent were American citizens.

From Freshman or Prexy—

no one can tell—if the letter is written on Old Hampshire stationery—for it gives an almost presidential dignity to the message it carries. Whether your letter is to the family at home, to some of your tradesmen or purveyors—or to your very best girl, Old Hampshire adds a distinct tone, for it is rich, substantial, smart—it has the rich texture, the crisp crackle of the truly aristocratic paper.

Old Hampshire Stationery

Sold in Chapel Hill by Sutton & Alderman

Exhibition HERE At CAROLINA DRY CLEANERS Today and Tomorrow

Harry Kuster, Rep.

THE FINCHLEY Establishments

NEW YORK CHICAGO

THE MODEL SKETCHED OFFERS AN EXAMPLE OF THE TYPE OF GARMENT CONSIDERED MOST EFFECTIVE FOR FALL USAGE AMONG COLLEGE MEN. THE LINES ARE ENTIRELY CORRECT AND FOLLOW AUTHORITATIVE DICTATION. THE VARIETY OF WEAVES FROM WHICH SELECTIONS MAY BE MADE IS VERY BOUNTIFUL. INTEREST IS ALSO SOLICITED FOR CRAVATS, SHIRTS, WOOLIES, HATS, CAPS, FOOTWEAR AND VARIOUS OTHER INCIDENTALS OF CORRECT DRESS.

Marston Addresses Engineer Society

Dean Anson Marston, dean of the engineering school of Iowa State college and president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, was here today to visit the William Cain chapter of that society. At 12 o'clock he addressed the engineering students at Phillips hall.

Dean Braune introduced the speaker and expressed much appreciation for the size of the audience. He stressed the engineering students' good luck in having so eminent a scholar to address them.

Dean Marston stated that when he finished school 40 years ago, an engineer with a college degree in a railroad construction job was an exception rather than a rule and that today an engineer there without a degree is an exception.

He told of the importance and great future of engineering. Forty years ago there were only a few divisions of engineering; today there are many, and in 10 more years there will be many much more important. According to him an engineer should have the broadest kind of an education for times have changed and all types of problems confront the engineer. There are many problems concerning the public and many gigantic undertakings to be accomplished which depend entirely upon engineering skill and ingenuity.

Affairs of the society were discussed and Dean Marston dwelt upon the recent progress of the American Society of Civil Engineers. It has over five thousand student members and one hundred student chapters. Dean Marston was on the committee for drawing up the rules for the student chapters. He explained that all student chapters were known by the names of their school and of that rule there were only two exceptions, the Braune chapter of the University of Cincinnatti, named in honor of Dean Braune of this university, and the William Cain chapter named in honor of Dr. William Cain of this university also.

After his speech, Dean Marston was entertained at the Carolina inn at a luncheon given him by the members of the American Society of Civil Engineers of this section.

TOWN DESERTED

(Frank J. Manheim)

Had Oliver Goldsmith visited Chapel Hill Saturday and had he been able to resist the temptation to see a stirring example of modern football, he would have, while wandering about the town and campus, had occasion enough to write another "Deserted Village."

Franklin street, normally the scene of a hustling community, with scores of parked cars, hundreds of students entering and leaving busy shops, talking, walking and hailing passing men and motors, was practically deserted. A few negroes lounged lazily as they leaned first on one side, then on the other, against the quiet store-fronts. But three tickets had been sold for the Carolina theatre, usually the scene of immense life and activity. A desultory car, parked here or there, was to be seen. Babies could have safely played about the "deadmen," so little traffic was there. But even the children and their nurses seemed to have been drawn as if by a massive magnet to Kenan stadium. Every person who could walk, ride, or be carried, had left the once noisy center of Chapel Hill for the noiser regions of the Kenan Memorial stadium.

The campus at 4 o'clock in the morning has seen more people go to or from their rooms than on Saturday at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The dormitories were unbelievably quiet—not a door slammed, not a heavy-clad foot was heard pounding down the hall, no yells nor phonographs were to be heard. Once or twice, a telephone tingled, and its echoing and re-echoing as it remained unanswered through the building seemed to accentuate the heavy silence that had fallen upon the campus.

In the space in front of the "Y," where ordinarily cars and students are always to be seen, a stray, nondescript dog was sniffing—as if looking for its lost master or a long buried bone. Occasionally, a falling twig or the faint shout of thousands of distant voices broke the stillness that lay like an unearthly pall over the Hill. The bell in South building pealed the hours—much like the dreary tollings of a death announcement.

Di Senate Meets

The Dialectic senate will hold its usual weekly meeting tonight in New West building at 7:15. This will be the second and last regular initiation meeting of the present quarter. All candidates for membership are asked to report promptly at 7:15.

The dance committee which was appointed two weeks ago has decided to have the annual Di senate dance occur one week after Thanksgiving. The chairman of that committee will make a detailed report of the plans of the committee tonight.

In addition to the regular discussions of the senate the proposition of a mock trial is slated to come before the society.

TAYLOR SOCIETY HOLDS FIRST MEETING TONIGHT

The University of North Carolina student branch of the Taylor society will hold its first meeting of the year this evening at 7:30 in room 103 Bingham hall.

The Taylor society is an international organization for the promotion of the study of scientific business management. The local branch is the only student branch in the entire south.

At the meeting this evening D. D. Carroll and G. M. Braune, deans of the schools of commerce and engineering, will speak. Dr. G. T. Schwenning, advisor of the local branch, will speak briefly on the history and aims of the society, and reports of last year's activities and the plans for this year will be given.

At the conclusion of the meeting an opportunity to join the society will be given to those present. Seniors in both the commerce and engineering schools are urged to attend the meeting this evening.

Henderson Back From Kentucky

(Continued from page one)

—comprised what was the most colossal real estate transaction that has ever been negotiated by private individuals in the entire history of America. The Transylvania Company paid approximately $243, 325 to the Cherokee Indians for their claim on approximately 20,000,000 acres.

The original object of the purchase was twofold. Colonel Henderson was interested in promoting the Transylvania Company as a great speculative enterprise. His chief object, however, was to establish Transylvania as the fourteenth American Colony. Although the company failed in establishing the State of Transylvania, they attained the rating of empire builders.

The history made by this band of nine men well be perpetuated forever by the bronze tablets erected in their memory. Their daring feats, glorified by the speeches made by their descendents, have made their memory sacred and their names immortal.

Pledges Increase

The number of freshmen who have received bids to fraternities since the publication of the pledges-list in Saturday's Tar Heel has increased to 378.

This total is the largest the University has ever seen and represents half of the freshman class.

Golden Jubilee Subject of Talk

(Continued from page one)

wide celebration that took place yesterday on the passing of the fifteen anniversary of Mr. Edison's achievement. In this Henry Ford has taken a great part. He has collected all the apparatus of the former and reestablished at Dearborn as a memorial to Edison the laboratory in which he worked at Menlo Park, N. J. Last night Edison with many of his friends and relatives met there to celebrate the date by repeating with the old apparatus assembled there the making of the first incandescent lamp.

Mr. Weatherspoon mentioned a few of the incidents in Edison's life, and then spoke of the tremendous importance of the great inventor's work. Summing up his achievements Mr. Weatherspoon said, "We owe them to the labor and perseverance of the man who said that genius is one percent inspiration and 99 per cent perspiration."

Dean Mathews Speaks Against Present-Day Worshipers of Idols

(Continued from page one)

"at this teaching, for the Hebrew nation was never victorious in war, was at the mercy of contemporary nations and peoples continually and most of them were made captives from time to time."

He pointed out that it was difficult for the Hebrew peoples to believe that the one God was a Hebrew favoring God when such punishments were continually being meted out to them. "Their one God should have served them from such fates as met them during their national existence," he said. Hence, the reversion to idolatry, despite the fact that the Hebrew had been taught that "the only God there is loves you and cares for you."

"It is interesting to me to penetrate the minds of the prophets and see the futility of idolatry and also the insistence of the Jews in the making of manufactured Gods."

Dean Mathews said that the people of today were little different from these Hebrews, who manufactured Gods to suit their purposes. He spoke of the fact that there were many people today who were superstitious, who believe in the efficacy of a rabbit's foot, who would not sit down to a meal with 13 persons at the same table, who would not go under a ladder, who would not sleep in room No. 13 in a hotel, who feared a black cat's path and who insisted on rapping on wood. Dean Mathews said that such practices were "not idolatry but just silly." However, he emphasized that in such superstition we were manufacturing Gods.

In this modern era, Dean Mathews felt that the word, God, stood for that person, idealism or factor, "to whom we make final appeal for justification of our acts as beliefs." He traced the great economic era of progress in business today. He told of friends of his in business today, who readily admitted that much of what did was not exactly right but based on the saying "Business is business" and the actual fact that "our competitors do it and we must protect ourselves." Dean Mathews was sorry that the average business man had cut himself free from idealism in business as a necessary prerequisite to making success and money. "We are idolatry worshippers in that we worship efficiency in business," he asserted.

He felt that culture was a fine asset of the human race but that culture could be overdone and so become a manufactured God. He was sure that technical perfection was just another idol which we were now worshipping.

"We have a new idolatry of social conventions, which make life almost worthless at times," Dean Mathews thought. "We turn mere eating into banquets; we have erected the God or Goddess rather of 'Everybody Does It.' I have a sneaking respect for the man who does wrong sometimes and actually admits it, for that man is not covering his acts by the conventions of our modern life. He is real.

"Christianity has never stood for this sort of thing—idolatry of culture, efficiency, conventions and so on," Dean Mathews said.

Dean Mathews hoped his hearers would look to the God of the Universe rather than fall into the easy pathway of worship of a conventional God of idolatry. He saw no threat at the supremity of this God of the Universe, through science, as he was satisfied that "the more we learn through science, the more we know we do not know and the more beautiful becomes the handiwork of this God of the Universe."

A feature of the service, which lasted not more than an hour and a quarter, was an anthem sung by the Community Choir.

SWEATERS
by
SPALDING

Slip-over and button in the Crew and V necks

Students' Supply Store
Everything in Stationery

CAROLINA THEATRE
TODAY
"OH YEAH"
with Robert Armstrong
EXTRA
Added Attraction
STAN LAURAL
OLIVER HARDY
in
"Perfect Day"
also
Vitaphone Vaudeville

Wed. - Thur.
ANN PENNINGTON
in
"Gold Diggers of Broadway"

DR. R. R. CLARK
Dentist
Over Bank of Chapel Hill
Phone 6251

FRESH SMYRNA FIGS!
From the 1929 Crop
Just Arrived
CAROLINA CONFECTIONERY
and
COFFEE SHOP

Just Naturally Good

Good tobaccos . . . made good by Nature, not by "artificial treatment." That's the secret of OLD GOLD'S goodness

A chef may be able to make a doubtful steak taste good by artificial flavoring and sauces . . . But it's still dangerous to your stomach.

So it is with cigarette tobaccos. "Heat-treating" is useful to "set" and "sterilize" the tobaccos . . . and all cigarette makers have used it for years. But "heat-treating" cannot take the place of good tobacco in making a honey-smooth cigarette.

OLD GOLD tobaccos are naturally good. Carefully selected from Nature's best for smoothness, flavor and freedom from throat-scratch.

You have only to try a package to get the thrill of this smoother and better cigarette. That will tell you why OLD GOLD'S sales are ALREADY THREE TIMES GREATER than the combined sales of three leading brands during a like period of their existence.

© P. Lorillard Co., Est. 1760

Better Tobaccos make them smoother and better . . . with "not a cough in a carload"

On your Radio, OLD GOLD—PAUL WHITEMAN HOUR. Paul Whiteman, with his complete orchestra, every Tuesday, 9 to 10 P. M., Eastern Standard Time

V. P. I. TICKETS
Exchanged
Y. M. C. A. TODAY

The Daily Tar Heel

Report Calendar Notices
Before 4 O'clock
Tar Heel Office

VOLUME XXXVIII — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1929 — NUMBER 29

FORMER PLAYERS MAKE GOOD WITH NEW YORK SHOWS

Al Kahn and Lee Elmore Have Good Positions With New York Companies.

A letter from Al Kahn, a former member of the Carolina Playmakers, the author of a play, "The Queen Has Her Face Lifted," and for two years author and director of the Wigue and Masque, has been received by Professor Koch, to the effect that Kahn is now playing with a New York production company.

Kahn writes, "I make my debut as a waiter—as the waiter in the first act of 'Roundabout,' opening at the Assembly Theatre on October 21. I shall also be assistant stage manager. Should the show move up town after its initial four weeks at the Princess I am to be full stage manager."

Kahn adds that although now a professional actor "I am still wearing my Playmakers Mask in full vivew."

P. L. Elmore, whose stage name was Lee Elmore, is another former member of the Carolina Playmakers who is now with a leading New York company. He was stage manager for a number of the Playmakers' productions. He is with A. H. Woods Production company.

COST TO STUDENT IS NEARLY $669

Grady Leonard Tells Kiwanis Club About Average of Student's Expenses.

The Kiwanis Club at its regular weekly supper last evening heard Grady Leonard, self-help secretary of the Y M. C. A., tell of the work of his department.

An analysis of a representative group of self-help applications revealed the fact that 38 per cent of those applying for part-time work were the sons of farmers, said Mr. Leonard, and the conditions of North Carolina farms during the past two years has increased the number of those farmers' sons needing jobs. The next highest profession to farmers was that of merchants, and there was only 5 per cent of the boys whose fathers followed this occupation.

Mr. Leonard stated that of four hundred applications received from entering freshmen over one hundred men did not show up at the beginning of school. This indicated the widespread desire of North Carolina boys to attend the University, and the lack of finances with which to enter. Speaking of the average cost of a college year, the self-help secretary said that a survey last year revealed the average expenditure to be $669. The self-help men average about $500, while the average fraternity-man expenditure was nearly $900. Seventy per cent of last year's student body were self-help, meaning by self-help all those who earned or borrowed during the year $150. The speaker urged the Kiwanians to assist his department in placing self-help students in the afternoon on odd jobs.

Eugene Olive, Baptist minister in Chapel Hill, is president of the local Kiwanis Club. Weekly supper meetings are held in the social rooms of the Baptist church.

Theatre Passes

Through the courtesy of the Carolina theatre, passes were awarded at the regular Sunday night meeting of the Daily Tar Heel staff to four reporters for excellent work during the past week. Milt Wood, Joe Jones, Howard Lee and Clyde Dietz were the recipients of the passes.

Several beats were re-assigned, and the staff voted to hold the weekly meetings at 7 o'clock on Sunday nights.

MME. CURIE TO RECEIVE RADIUM FROM ADMIRERS

Dr. Otto Stuhlman to Represent American Physics Society At Exercises.

Doctor Otto Stuhlman, Jr., head of the University physics department, has been honored with an invitation to attend the presentation of a gram of radium to Mme. Curie, in Washington October 30. Dr. Stuhlman will attend the presentation as the representative of the American Physical Society on the National Research Council.

At four o'clock on October 30, President Hoover will present to Mme. Curie, the discoverer of radium, the second gram of radium to be given her by her American admirers. The first gram was presented in 1921 when she paid a visit to this country.

At the same time in 1921 a fund yielding an annual income of $35,000 was provided for Mme. Curie's private use, but the endowment had no strings tied to it; and she used the money toward the rental of a gram of radium for the Warsaw Cancer Hospital.

Because Mme. Curie had frustrated their efforts to make her private life easier, American women have raised another fund with which to purchase another gram of radium for her so that the income from the endowment can be used for the purpose for which it was intended.

While in this country Mme. Curie will visit the General Electric Laboratory at Schenectady, the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the electric light at Detroit, and a conference on cancer to be held in New York.

MUSIC PROFESSORS VISITING NEW YORK

Professors Nelson O. Kennedy and Harold S. Dyer of the University music department left last Sunday night for New York and Chicago where they will remain for several days before returning to the University. They will examine the installation of some of the largest pipe organs in the world. Every company in the country is bidding on the installation of an organ which is to be installed at once by the University. These men are interested in inspecting different organs and getting bids for the best organ at the best price. Professor Kennedy will have charge of the new organ which is to be installed in the new music building at once by the University. The old library of last year is being remodeled and will soon be the home of the music department.

In May 1900 Francis P. Venable was elected president of the University.

Dr. Bester

Dr. Arthur E. Bester, president of the Chautauqua Institution, was the principal speaker Monday night at the dinner given at the Carolina Inn for delegates to the Southern Conference on Education and to the Southeastern and North Carolina Library associations.

Miss Annie Pierce

Miss Anne Pierce (above), president of the North Carolina Library Association, which met in Chapel Hill Monday and Tuesday in conjunction with the Southern Conference on Education. Miss Pierce is Librarian of the Charlotte Public Library.

Successful Men Must Read To Keep Abreast Of Times, Says Speaker At Conference Meet

Cartwright Declares That College Graduates Cannot Give Up Reading and Keep in Step With Modern Business.

"The old theory that 'you can't teach a dog new tricks' has been exploded by a series of careful tests conducted by Edward L. Thorndike, famous psychologist of Columbia University, and as a result the adult education movement will grow by leaps and bounds in the next few years," Morse A. Cartwright, executive director of the American Association for Adult Education, declared here yesterday in an address before the Southern Conference on Education being held here at the University in conjunction with meetings of the Southeastern Library association and the North Carolina Library association.

"It used to be the case that after a man was graduated from college he cast his books aside and considered his period of study a matter of the past," Mr. Cartwright explained. "But now the situation is quite different. If a man hopes to keep step with the best in his business or profession he must be informed and keep abreast of the best thought of the day."

This can be done only through the use of reading and library

(Continued on page four)

Hoefer And Bailey Attend Engineering Meeting In Raleigh

Professor E. G. Hoefer and N. P. Bailey were in Raleigh Tuesday afternoon and evening to attend meetings of the Raleigh section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

The afternoon meeting of the Society was given over to a discussion of business, and the evening meeting was in the form of a joint banquet with the Raleigh Engineers Club, celebrating the Golden Jubilee of the Electric Light.

Charles W. Edwards, head of the physics department at Duke, was the chief speaker of the evening. His subject was "The Search for Light."

American History Coaching Classes

Notices have been sent out by R. D. W. Connor, head of the department of history, to students delinquent in American History as an entrance credit. Coaching classes will be held by H. D. Pegg for those students who wish to prepare for an examination. The next meeting of the class is scheduled for those h class is scheduled for 7 o'clock Thursday night, October 24, on the third floor of Saunders.

Student Government Is Highly Developed Here, Says Bradshaw

The freshmen again heard a discussion of student government in chapel Tuesday when Dean of Students F. F. Bradshaw spoke on the subject in some of its more practical aspects. The new men have heard the theory of the honor system and the campus code explained both during freshman week and since; however, Dean Bradshaw's speech was of especial interest in that he pointed out some things relative to the actual practice and the importance of student government at the University.

Dean Bradshaw said that the high development of the system of student government here was one thing that distinguished the University of North Carolina from other American colleges and universities. There lies more freedom and more responsibility for government with the individual here than at any other institution. This fact has been attested to by recent surveyors and by educators from all over the country, Dean Bradshaw stated.

Then the dean gave a few specific examples of the liberal and progressive features of student government at the University. Contrary to the practice in other institutions, there is no faculty supervision of dormitories. The men residing in each building form their own organizations and control their own conduct. Neither is there a policing system spread over the campus. Most unusual of all, however, is the fact that the University student council has final jurisdiction in cases of suspension of students. The policies in Carolina student government uphold the highest tra-

(Continued on page four)

Howe Lauds Local University For Educational Achievement

Official of Scribner Publishing Firm During Visit to Chapel Hill Discovers Why Carolina Has Taken Leadership in Scholasticism in America.

(By Milt Wood)

W. D. Howe of the editorial staff of Charles Scribner & Son, noted New York City publishers, has discovered in the two days he has spent in Chapel Hill attending the Library conference this week, an explanation of why the University of North Carolina has in recent years advanced to the foremost ranks of American educational institutions.

Mr. Howe in his travels over the United States had been told time and again by prominent educators of the high standard of scholastic achievement of the local university. He looks with a discerning eye on the general situation because of his years of experience as a university professor in his native state, Indiana.

Accordingly, there was sincerity and truth in the statement when Mr. Howe early in an interview said, "There is no university or college in America that has made such rapid strides and impressions on America in the past decade as the University of North Carolina has."

His analytical eye places the credit for this advancement squarely on the shoulders of President Harry W. Chase. "His leadership, his fearlessness and his courage have overcome all obstacles in the path of unbroken new achievements. Ev-

(Continued on page four)

PLAYMAKER WORK ATTRACTS MANY VISITORS HERE

Ohio People Come To Chapel Hill To Learn About Koch's Work.

(By Milt Wood)

Fame of the Carolina Playmakers and playwrights may be the means of attracting many people of the United States as tourists on sightseeing trips over the romantic and historic districts of North Carolina, it was revealed yesterday in the visit to Chapel Hill of four Columbus, Ohio, clubwomen.

The four had planned to make the trip to North Carolina as a result of the stirring up of their interest by the reading of dramas written by University students and included by Prof. Frederick Koch of the dramatic department in the three volume series known as "Carolina Folk Plays."

The ladies are traveling in Bohemian style in order to get the most out of their pilgrimage —in the economical and efficient conveyance given to humanity by Henry Ford. "I doubt if we would have been able to turn some of the corners in the majestic hill country of this state if it weren't for our reliable Lizzie," said one of the women.

The women arrived in Chapel Hill Sunday and after calling on Professor Koch, were shown through the Playmakers Theatre by the father of that stage as well as the founder of the new movement "the drama of locality" as represented by Carolina folk plays to date. Yesterday morning the women sat in during the Playwriting and other classes in Professor Koch's dramatic department.

The women included: Mrs. Sam A. Hudson, Mrs. E. F. McCampbell, Mrs. C. L. Inscho, and Mrs. L. P. Albright, all of Columbus, Ohio.

The visitors were thrilled at seeing new Carolina folk plays in the making as well as being shown the scenes of the earlier successes of the new drama movement in North Carolina.

"We were thrilled while reading the plays that have been printed to date in the three books, but it is doubly thrilling to visit the actual settings for plays such as Paul Green's 'No 'Count Boy' and Loretto Carroll Bailey's 'Job's Kinfolks,'" said Mrs. Hudson.

"No wonder such inspiring works are being done in the drama in this state with such a colorful setting of places and people," Mrs. McCampbell commented.

Mrs. Inscho said they intended to make reports of their travels to other women of Columbus, Ohio, who are also interested, with the result that others will probably come on trips to Carolina in the future for similar visits. She predicted that in time the plays being written about North Carolina will attract many tourists like those who yearly make pilgrimages to Stratford On Avon in England.

Dean Walker Up

Dean Walker, of the school of education, is now able to meet his classes again. He has been confined to his home for the past ten days with influenza.

Y CABINETS HOLD MEETING

Plans For the Coming Year Are Discussed by the Three Cabinets.

The three Y cabinets met Monday night at the Y at 7:15. The Freshman Council program, Alex Webb presiding, opened with devotional exercises led by Strat Donnell. President Webb, on behalf of the Y thanked those men who had distributed handbills of the Marine Band at Saturday's game, and he also announced the leaders for the Vesper services for the coming week. After a report of all the committees and a few announcements, the program was turned over to Aubrey Perkins, who introduced Claude Ferrell, the cabinet member who is to help the Freshman Council for the coming year.

Mr. Perkins led a discussion on "What is a Y program?" After a good bit of discussion it was decided to continue the discussion at the next meeting. The program closed with a word of prayer by John Lang.

The Sophomore Cabinet meeting program, which was led by J. Elwin Dungan, opened with the devotional. After a few announcements the program was turned into a business meeting. For the monthly program it was decided to have one joint meeting and one business meeting. The meeting closed with a prayer.

The Junior-Senior Cabinet program, led by Jimmie Williams, opened with a devotional, after which plans were discussed for the new year. Definite plans were made concerning the Marine Band. A prayer closed the meeting.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
J. C. Williams

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan
Henry L. Anderson

REPORTERS
Howard Lee Frank Manheim
Holmes Davis Stowe Moody
Louis Brooks Clyde Deitz
Charles Rose George Sheram
Lawrence Harris Robert Hodges
Mary Price John Lathan
J. P. Tyson B. H. Whitton
Browning Roach Nathan Volkman
Al Lansford George Stone
Joe Carpenter Lawrence Miller
Peggy Lintner Jack Riley
E. C. Daniel T. E. Marshall
W. A. Shulenberger R. T. Martin

Wednesday, October 23, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

This gloomy weather inclines us to believe that the Weather Man is a Carolina football fan.

Governor Gardner gets a page in the Literary Digest this week. From which we gather that as a publicity agent the Governor knows his public.

Atlee Pomerene, government prosecutor, describes the hundred thousand-odd simoleons received by Fall as "filthy lucre." So's your salary, Mr. Pomerene—but you don't refuse any of it on that account.

Vengeance Or Justice?

After three weeks of skirmishing between some of the state's most brilliant legal talent, the trial of Gastonia strikers and strike leaders for the murder of Police Chief O. F. Aderholdt has come to a dramatic conclusion. All seven of the defendants were found guilty of second degree murder and prison sentences ranging from five to twenty years were imposed upon them by Judge M. V. Barnhill.

In many respects the conduct of the case has been extremely unfortunate. When Judge Barnhill addressed the first jury, which was dismissed when one of its members became insane, he declared that the case would be conducted strictly as a murder trial, that would be limited to the type of evidence ordinarily encompassed within the scope of a murder trial. The defendants were not to be tried for their political, religious, social or economic beliefs.

Yet the state was allowed to subject the defendants and defense witnesses to a rigorous cross-examination concerning their religious and economic beliefs. The spectre of communism, the very mention of which never fails to conjure up horrible phantasies of gruesome murders, rape, pillage, atrocities of all description in the minds of men such as those who composed the Aderholdt jury, stalked through the court-room during the entire proceedings. State attorneys pounced eagerly upon the faintest allusions to anything which remotely resembled a belief in the tenets of communism and capitalized them to the fullest extent.

In the final address to the jury, Solicitor Carpenter threw himself prone upon the floor in the attitude of the slain police chief. Grasping the hand of the sobbing widow of the dead officer, he pledged the vengeance of the state upon the slayers. Never since the days of Jeffreys, England's infamous Hanging Judge, has a more grotesque exhibition of viciousness been staged in a court of justice.

Although we realize that we are far from competent to judge as to the degree of guilt of the defendants, it occurs to us that decided discrimination was shown in the sentences meted out. The state was frankly gunning for Beal and his cohorts. While we have not the slightest sympathy with the methods or purposes of the organization represented by Fred Beal, we do not understand why the men from other parts of the country received heavier sentences than did the three Gastonia strikers.

Already criticism of the manner in which the trial was conducted has been expressed all over the country. There is every indication that the affair will assume the proportions of the Sacco-Vanzetti case when it comes up in the North Carolina Supreme Court on appeal, probably during next April. That a flood of prejudice was loosed during the trial upon the occupants of the jury box cannot be denied. Solicitor Carpenter morbidly promised the weeping widow the vengeance of the state upon the defendants, and the world will firmly believe that North Carolina has visited it upon these men, rather than the justice which Judge Barnhill promised them.

Sanity In Cheering

Controversy has been carried on recently between two "schools of enthusiasm"—if one may use the phrase—namely, that of the unknown "Peter Green" and that one composed of "Evangeline" and a few followers with various pseudonyms. "Peter Green's" contention that the puerile display of "school spirit" given in front of the theatre on the Friday night following the Tech game was perfectly reasonable, nay, laudable, seems to have aroused the ire of certain other literary spirits who at once sat down and, with pen in hand, succeeded in starting a wrangle which is in danger of becoming a campus issue.

Each of these sides has gone to extremes. There is certainly no need of the rabidly imbecile enthusiasm demonstrated by the mob of freshmen and otherwise on that particular night after Carolina's victory; if the student body must conduct themselves in that fashion then one can appreciate the aptness of that Menckenian phrase homo boobiens and apply it to college students particularly. But on the other hand the students, to perpetuate true collegiate color, must cheer; they must demonstrate their loyalty and affection for dear old Alma Mater in some other way besides the mere imbibing of corn. So, just as a more intelligent group applaud the work of an artist or an excellent dramatic performance, the college student vents his enthusiastic appreciation of victory in yells and concentrated cheering sections.

But in the name of a harrassed police force let the exhibition stop there. Don't let "red-blooded, he-mannish" ribaldry run further and into the haphazard organization of childish mobs, who are only heaping cause for ridicule on themselves by their utterly inane antics. The ordinary amount of cheering and vociferous "pep" displays in the stadium can be understood, but when youth must be served by degenerating into a sorry pack of hoodlums, it is time for ridicule and anathema to show youth the error—and the absurdity—of its ways.—R. H.

Readers' Opinions

OVER-EXERCISED FRESHMEN

Editor the Daily Tar Heel:

As six bells toll the end of Monday's gym,
The freshmen dorm-ward plod their weary way
And all they ask is rest for tired limbs
Although it may be on a bed of hay.
"Whatsoever ye sow that shall ye also reap."

This phrase is sincerely believed to be the truth by the freshmen who attended gym at 5:15 Monday afternoon.

If one should have observed the freshmen coming from gymnasium Monday afternoon he would have noticed that the usual pep and vigor exerted by the freshmen this year was wholly lacking. Few joked or yelled or frolicked among themselves as is the usual case but on the other hand they moved off mechanically toward a place where rest could be had.

Probably the reason for this undue restraint of enthusiasm was partially due to the fact that on this afternoon more work than usual was required. This unusual amount of gym work seemed to have been caused by the exertion of too much energy the previous Friday. This caused a great deal of disturbance during gym work and to cooperate with the freshmen in getting rid of this energy the work was greatly increased Monday. The surplus energy after all seemed to have been caused by the coming football game for there wasn't much energy left after the gym work Monday from outward appearances.

At all events it is probable that the freshmen will cause less disturbance during gym work for there are some who don't enjoy the work very much.

JACK RILEY.

DISGRACEFUL!

Editor Daily Tar Heel:

Students of North Carolina! Wake up! Snap out of it! Such cheering as you have been giving the team this year is a disgrace to the very name of Carolina. Are you not holding your heads in shame? Well, you should be, after last Saturday's game, to have let 100 students of Georgia, (or was there that many?) out-yell over 2600 Carolinians, and as many more alumni. It was pitiable to hear your cheer leaders trying to pull a few cheers out of you, Yes! when the team needed your support most of all. You can get on the streets, after the game, and yell your heads off at passing automobiles, and at the co-eds, and you can keep everybody awake at nite, cat-calling in the quadrangles, or holding a riot in the town streets, as you did a week ago, but the disgrace of it all is that you can't be heard across the field, at Kenan Stadium. Carolina once had the reputation of being the best cheering section in the country, challenging any college for all-American cheering honors—That is not just another story of feats done in the past, told for effect, it was a fact—and IT CAN BE AGAIN. How about it? Are you going to fall down on that team? Are you going to let them do all the work? Are you? Well! There is a challenge for you, Carolinians!

A STUDENT

Frosh Meet Deans

This morning the freshmen in the schools of education and commerce will meet their deans in Peabody and Bingham halls, respectively. Dean Carroll will speak in 103 Bingham hall and Mr. McIntosh will speak in Peabody building.

IN THE WAKE OF NEWS

J. E. Dungan

Max Hannum on the staff of one of Pittsburgh's big dailies goes off on an aesthetic flight in speaking of our Kenan stadium to wit: "It is a little gem, set in the heart of a virgin forest." Yes, Mr. Hannum, a little gem seating some thirty thousand people, used for football—not interpretive dancing.

The Bell Telephone Company advertised last week that the telephone had gone air-minded. As a matter of fact it has always been hot air-minded.

"Daniel at Harvard," headlines the paper, and he surely ought to have an easy time of it after having been through the lions' den.

Ray Farris and Jack Barrett say "Get behind your team—fight for them—fight with them!" meaning of course to leave Peter Green alone.

Hot Keys MacKethan, the local grid specialist and game forecaster, looks mighty glum after the games played last week-end, but who would have thought that Florida would have been beaten, or Carolina, etc.

It looks like Elzada Feaster, Mary Price, Edna Morrisette, and some half a dozen campus belles are going to make a strong bid for the title of "The Most Popular Co-ed" next spring. Some of our co-eds are pretty good to look at, honest.

Times have certainly changed since the horseback days of Margaret Broadus, a former queen of the campus. In those days the most beautiful girl on the campus always flunked her work because of the rush she got.

In a fine letter to the Tar Heel, Dean Addison Hibbard lauds the work being done by Editor Holder. Independently speaking, we all take our hats off to a courageous editor who says what he thinks in logical and straight-forward language that needs no dictionary for interpretation.

The latest rumor is that the Chi Phi's are to have a new home. It is to the credit of student management and ingenuity alone that we have built this fall or in the progress of building houses belonging to the Pi Kappa Phi's, the Phi Gamma Delta's, the Beta's, and the Phi Delta Theta's.

Charles Frederick Crum of Gatun, Panama Canal Zone, is one of the boys making good at the big university, to paraphrase O. O. McIntyre.

Of course there is no adequate check on the amount of liquor consumed in Chapel Hill last week-end, but it is safe to say that it was the worst ever consumed here. Two gentlemen I know hadn't come out from under at a late hour last night. Some say it was equal to the death ray itself.

The new directory, complete in every respect, has everybody's name but yours. Life is like that, isn't it.

The Playmakers are to bring a Shakespearean actor to the campus the night of November 8, and will stage the reading in Memorial Hall instead of their theatre.

Dr. Collier Cobb claims that the reason why Dr. Shailer Mathews, who preached an excellent sermon las Sunday is such a good speaker is that he has two geologists as brothers. Be that as it may, we won't dig into that here.

What's Happening

Students' coupons exchanged for V. P. I. tickets at Book Exchange today.

Novice track meet entrants report to Coaches Ranson or Cowper, Emerson stadium.

10:30 a. m.—Commerce and education school freshmen meet deans, Bingham hall and Peabody building.

3:30 p. m.—Intramural games, intramural fields.

4:30 p. m.—Intramural games, intramural fields.

7:00 p. m.—Coaching class in American history, Saunders hall.

Coming: Thursday—Playmaker Production, Playmaker theatre.

ARMY EXTENSION CLASS WILL MEET THURSDAY

The army extension class will have its next meeting Thursday evening, October 24, at 7:30 o'clock in the lower basement of Davie hall. This class conducted by Captain Floyd will study mobilization and administration, the same course offered by the army through correspondence. This is a basic course for all arms of the service, and counts as credit toward a commission.

Captain Floyd especially wishes to interview all students who have had training in citizen military training camp work and reserve officers training corps work. All students interested in army reserve work are invited to attend.

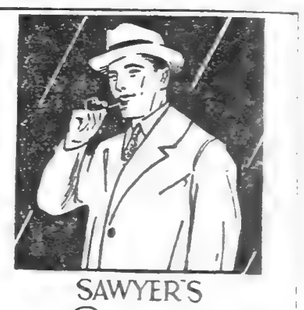
CAIN FORMULA USED IN DAM CONSTRUCTION

The Engineering News-Record of October 12 gives a description of an arch dam recently constructed near Phoenix, Ariz., which was designed according to the Cain formula, originated by Dr. William Cain of the University.

Governor Downcast

"Down-hearted, too?" Governor Gardner was asked shortly after the end of the game.

"More than down-hearted," his honor replied. "My feeling is just inexplicable."



The chief executive was interviewed hastily as he was alighting from his automobile near the library where he and Mrs. Gardner were going to attend a reception.

"But in our humility we must not forget that it was a remarkable game, packed with thrills," the governor philosophized. "We also have this consolation—that we made a much more impressive showing against Georgia than Yale did."

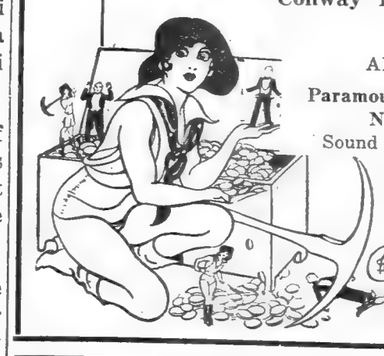
Yet the big, broad smile so often associated with North Carolina's executive was missing from his face. It revealed more than words his keen disappointment in the way things turned out.

"It's like life," he said in parting. "We get our jolts."

At commencement in 1869 one Bachelor of Arts, four Master of Arts, and two Doctor of Divinity degrees were conferred.

SAWYER'S
Rainwear
FROG BRAND SLICKERS

SAWYER'S Frog Brand Slickers have established a lasting reputation on the campus among well-dressed college men and women where rain garments of good appearance as well as long life are essential.



Sawyer slickers are all good-looking, roomy, well-cut garments, guaranteed to keep you absolutely dry and warm and are to be had lined or unlined, buttons or clasps as you prefer, in a wide variety of styles for every purpose. Your choice of colors. Shops everywhere carry them.

H. M. SAWYER & SON
EAST CAMBRIDGE MASS

New York, N. Y. Chicago, Ill. St. Louis, Mo. San Antonio, Texas

Dancing and Singing Girls Follow the Colors! Living and Almost Breathing Musical Spectacle! Blending Stage Lavishness with Rainbow Hues!

100%
NATURAL COLOR SINGING - TALKING - DANCING PICTURE
"THE GOLD DIGGERS OF BROADWAY"
with
Ann Pennington — Nick Lucas
Conway Tearle

TODAY
TOMORROW
ALSO
Paramount Sound News
Sound Novelty
CAROLINA THEATRE

RESIDENCE SHOP
222 Vance Street
9:30 — 12:30 Daily
2:30 — 5:00 Saturday Afternoons
Frocks and Costume Jewelry
Appointments Can Be Made by Telephone 7876
Today is the Last Day of Our Introductory Offer of 10% off on all Purchases.
MARJORY BRADSHAW
and
LAUREL MacMILLAN

Big Five Teams Will Play Important Games Saturday

Carolina Meets V.P.I. On Own Field; Other N.C. Teams Visit

Duke and State Play Intersectional Games; Deacons and 'Cats Meet at Greensboro.

(By "Crawf" MacKethan)

A varied assortment of action awaits Big Five grid teams of North Carolina this week. In fact the circuit will extend as far westward as Michigan and northward as far as Philadelphia. Three of the members of this family will remain within the state; however, only Carolina will be playing in its own backyard.

The Wildcat-Deacon affair in Greensboro has gathered about it a goodly portion of the interest within North Carolina. No two Tar Heel teams have fought quite so equally as these two teams have for the past six years. The Wake Forest victory last year was more or less an upset, and on top of that it was the first time that either team has emerged victorious since 1923. Always by some means or other the scorekeeper had managed to even the count. Even when the 'Cats won the state championship several years ago they were forced to accept a tie game from the Deacons. This game will add one more to the sixteen-game series that has already been played off between the two teams. Davidson has won ten, Wake Forest two, and four have ended with a deadlocked count. Neither of the two teams are up to par this season, but what they lack in material they have portrayed in fight. The Deacons team that will meet Davidson is a far improved outfit from the one which fell several weeks ago before a Tar Heel onslaught.

The Blue Devils from Duke are again slated for travel, for undaunted by their unsuccessful invasion into Annapolis last week-end they have chosen as their next opposition Villanova. This Pennsylvanian aggregation has been sliding through their early schedule in rather dangerous style, and bids fair to give the North Carolinians plenty to worry about.

Contaminated by the roaming instinct of her neighbor, it seems, the Wolfpack from N. C. State will make its yearly pilgrimage up toward the Great Lakes to meet Michigan State. Information as to the strength of Michigan State is rather sadly lacking in these parts, and so about all that the Tar Heel can say is: "More power to you, Wolfpack, we'll try to keep the homefires burning."

Tar Heel-Gobbler Clash Expected To Be Close Battle; Both Have Three Wins.

There is scant comfort for the pre-game prophets when they attempt to forecast the score of the North Carolina-V. P. I. battle in Kenan Memorial Stadium here Saturday afternoon.

The Tar Heels had the dopester's favor after their memorable Georgia Tech victory. The Georgia Bulldogs came along with a whirlwind finish to upset that, along with V. P. I.'s impressive record and great showing in holding a strong Pennsylvania eleven to a 14-8 count.

Now the season records seem to indicate two well matched teams and give promise of another fight when the ancient rivals meet here Saturday that will rival last year's thrilling 16-14 victory for the Gobblers.

The Gobblers have won three early season games and dropped an intersectional battle to Pennsylvania by a score of 14-8. To match this record the Tar Heels have won three games, one against Georgia Tech, and dropped a bitterly contested argument to the great Georgia Bulldogs 19-12

The North Carolina and V. P. I. losses match evenly, for the margin in the V. P. I.-Pennsylvania game was 6 points as compared with the 7 point lead amassed by Georgia.

The Tar Heels had perhaps the harder schedule in the other games. They downed Wake Forest 48-0, Maryland 43-0, and Georgia Tech 18-7. The Gobblers defeated Roanoke 19-0, Hampden-Sidney 32-6, and William and Mary 25-14.

The scoring and defensive records compare fairly close, too. The Gobblers have rung up 89 points and allowed 34 to their opponents. In the same number of contests the Tar Heels have scored 121 points and allowed four opponents 26 points. Certainly the coming game bears all the earmarks of an epic scrap.

Intramural Games

Beginning with this issue a schedule of all intramural games will be published daily, and the standings will be published weekly. Thus far much more enthusiasm has been shown in the games than last year.

There will be two officials at the games this year instead of one, as heretofore. Today's schedule is as follows:

3:30—(1) Sigma Phi Sigma vs. Kappa Alpha.
(2) Phi Sigma Kappa vs. Pi Kappa Phi.
(3) No game.

4:30—(1) New Dorms vs. Carr.
(2) Old East vs. "I."
(3) Kappa Sigma vs. Chi Psi.

B. J. Crider, barber of Austin, Texas, makes and sells violins in his spare time.

Railways of Portugal are forming auto-truck transportation companies.

TEAM THINKS OF GOBBLER CONTEST

Georgia Loss Forgotten as Coaches and Players Begin Work for Saturday's Game.

With the coaches driving the men harder and longer, and the whole squad responding with fine spirit, North Carolina's Tar Heels were letting the world know today that last Saturday's defeat by Georgia had neither broken their spirit nor put them out of any Southern titular quests whatsoever.

The Tar Heel backs gained more than a hundred yards more than Georgia's ball carriers that day. Carolina supporters are unmoved from the first contention that the Tar Heels played the greater game but lost on breaks, in the form of inevitable fumbles which struck the camp at the most inopportune time.

And these Tar Heel supporters, further, are unmoved by the contention that these Tar Heels are out of the conference race. Strength is too evenly divided among the conference teams, they believe, for any team to pass an undefeated season, and one loss isn't ruining Tar Heel chances.

Tennessee to date has the best chance for a clean slate, but Tennessee must pass Washington and Lee, Kentucky and Vanderbilt. Vanderbilt must go by Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia Tech. Georgia would have to down Georgia Tech, Alabama and Florida.

Chuck Collins and his coaching partners are saying nothing. From the way they were driving the boys in practice yesterday for V. P. I., and from the way Coach Collins roared out "This ball season isn't over," it seems they were harboring these same sentiments.

V. P. I. is reported to have another fine club, and the Tar Heels are pointing hard to getting back in the winning column. Koenig, House and other veterans injured for the Georgia fray should be back in shape, and it seems a sure thing these Tar Heels will be fighting all the way.

Cowper To Coach

Daily workouts are being held by the pole vaulting candidates under the direction of Vernon Cowper, holder of the University of North Carolina record of 12 feet 5 inches in the pole vault and one of the two men on last year's track team to gain a first place in the Southern Conference meet. Cowper is assisting Coach Dale Ranson with fall track work and is at present devoting special attention to the vaulting candidates.

Workouts are held each afternoon at four o'clock regardless of the weather. A sawdust vaulting pit has been rigged up in the Tin Can for use in bad weather. It is hoped that all freshmen and upperclassmen interested in this event will report for work at once.

McEver Leads S. I. C.

Jimmy Magner is tied with Reeves, of L. S. U., and Stumpy Thomason, of Georgia Tech for second place in the Southern Conference scoring in football with 24 points. McEver, Tennessee's premier halfback, leads the scoring with 30 points.

McEver also leads the scoring in the South with a total of 60 points, and is well above Bowman, L. S. U., with his 42 points.

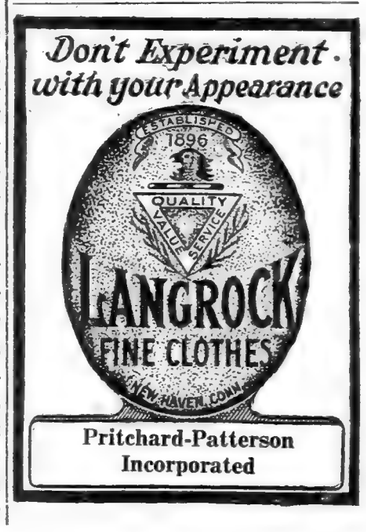
The leading scorers in Conference and non-Conference games are:

Player and team	TD.	EP	T.
McEver, Tenn.	10	0	60
Bowman, L. S. U.	7	0	42
McMillan, Clemson	6	0	36
Kelly, Kentucky	6	0	36
Reeves, L. S. U.	5	4	34
Butler, L. S. U.	5	1	31
Banker, Tulane	4	7	31
Dunn, V. M. I.	5	1	31
Spear, V. P. I.	5	0	30
Ward, N. Carolina	5	0	30
Smith, L. S. U.	5	0	30
Woodruff, Clemson	5	0	30
Holm, Alabama	4	3	27
Magner, N. Carolina	4	1	25
Boineau, S. Carolina	3	7	25

(By Henry L. Anderson)

According to Head Coach Collins the main reason for the Tar Heels' defeat last Saturday was due to the weakness of the line from tackle to tackle. V. P. I. may be expecting to find this weakness on the 26th but the Gobblers will be sadly disillusioned if they place much stock in last week's showing against the Georgia Bulldogs.

Bill Koenig will probably be restored to the line this Saturday and Henry House will no doubt see action then also. Koenig and House have been out with injuries and their return will boost the Tar Heel team's margin.



A Tar Heel visitor at V. P. I. last week came back with the news that Blacksburgh was literally covered with signs bearing last year's score of the Tar Heel-Gobbler affair, 16-14. Perhaps that score may prove a mere consolation after the approaching game.

Reports from V. P. I. show that the team is much stronger this year than last. Last year the Poly's gridiron victories were mainly due to the outstanding play of Peake, but this year's wins so far have been without the famous Peake. Although Peake has gone the V. P. I. team is much stronger than last year due to the development of many of last year's reserves and the return of many veterans.

In spite of the showing made by the Tar Heels last week against Georgia they are still given the margin over V. P. I. by almost all sports writers. The Gobblers showed their best against the strong Pennsylvania team when they held them to a 14 to 8 win. U. N. C.'s best showing so for was in the Georgia Tech game.

In the Davidson-Wake Forest game this Saturday Davidson is picked to win in view of their showing so far. Citadel and Elon have been numbered among their victims, while Wake Forest made their best show against N. C. State. Many of those who saw Wake Forest battle the Techs last week thought that the Deacons should be given the advantage against Davidson, but the majority of sports writers pick the 'Cats to win.

Where? — In Tar Heel Ads.

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

At The Carolina Today

Ann Pennington and Nick Lucas in "Gold Diggers of Broadway." Carolina Theatre, Wed. — Thur.

Entertain Visitors

Following the glee club concert Sunday afternoon the visitors to Chapel Hill were entertained with the students of the University at the weekly tea at the Parish house of the Episcopal church.

The Episcopal church reports that many students are attending these Sunday afternoon teas and the informal gatherings seem to be greatly enjoyed by the guests.

Messrs. Lynch, Humphries, Miller and Connally composed a quartet which sang several numbers. Miss Walker, accompanied by Mr. Humphries on the guitar, gave several selections on a "violin" saw.

Tea, cakes and cookies were served to all the guests in the recreation room of the Episcopal church which was recently furnished with comfortable chairs, attractive rugs, and draperies by the women of the Episcopal church.

The women receiving the guests were Mesdames John Anderson, W. S. Bernard, R. D. W. Connor, A. S. Lawrence and Mrs. DeR. Hamilton, assisted by a bevy of co-eds.

Howe Lauds University For Great Achievement

(Continued from page one)

erywhere I go Dr. Chase and the University of North Carolina is known."

Another reason for the rise in the scholastic ladder of this university, in the opinion of Mr. Howe, is the sterling minds of men on the faculty. "Their creative effort," said Mr. Howe, "is widely known and is apparent in the fine quality of graduates turned out of Chapel Hill educational mills."

As an attache of an internationally known and honored publishing house, Mr. Howe nevertheless paused to pay tribute to the local university press. "Your Carolina press has a widespread good name, and the books are of fine quality and appearance.

"I have been extremely interested in watching the general advancement of Carolina in educational matters over a period of 25 years," reminisced Mr. Howe. "Too much tribute for this cannot be paid to the memory of the late Mr. Aycock, for many years your state superintendent of schools. I watched his career as he proceeded like a comet to put this state on the map scholastically. He is or was your modern Moses. A finer example of the benefits of democracy can be found no place."

Mr. Howe stated that North Carolina had led all other states in the new movement toward adult education, while such things as the establishment of high school libraries are only factors in the general scheme.

In answer to a query, he stated that Scribner's was proud to have at least three North Carolina authors on its regular publishing list. These include James Boyd, historian; Olive Dargan, poetess; and Tom Wolfe, whose new novel, Homeward Angel, containing a lot of local color of North Carolina, is attracting widespread comment. All are alumni of the University of North Carolina.

Professor Frederick Koch was lauded by Mr. Howe for his pioneer work in the "drama of locality" as revealed by university playwrights and products of the Carolina Playmakers. "I have known of his works for many years," said Mr. Howe, "but this is the first time I have had an opportunity of seeing Koch's workshop. He and Dr. Chase took me through the Carolina Playmakers building last night and it was a revelation. Yes, wherever I go, west coast, Atlantic seaboard, or the Gulf states, Fred Koch and his Playmakers are known and through them the University of North Carolina.

"Your new library here is a perfect shrine and a fitting monument to the lives of men who have placed North Carolina on the educational pinnacle which it enjoys," Mr. Howe said in closing.

Successful Men Must Read Says Speaker

(Continued from page one)

facilities, Mr. Cartwright pointed out, making education a continuing process for the adult. And in this connection the New York man urged greatly improved public library facilities.

Mr. Cartwright foresaw "vastly increased use of library facilities as the only logical outcome of the adult education idea."

President D. R. Anderson of Randolph-Macon Women's college presided over the morning session. Other speakers included Russell M. Grumman, director of the extension division, University of North Carolina; Dr. Louis R. Wilson, University of North Carolina librarian; Charles H. Stone, librarian of North Carolina College for Women, and Miss Sarah C. N. Bogle of the American Library association.

For The Middle of The Week

Possibly we have been stressing the advantages of SHERI-ALE for the week-end so much that you have lost sight of SHERI-COLA as a "middle of the week" drink.

SHERI-COLA is delicious at all times. Try a tingling glass at chapel period this morning and rid yourself of the boredom that follows two hours of dry lectures.

Sheri-Ale Company

"Gold Diggers of Broadway" All-Color Pageant of Song

The '29ers versus the 49ers! The bearded miners of the California gold rush days of 1849 were mere pikers compared to the finely-feathered feminine Broadway gold diggers of 1929 with their charms, their wiles and their ability to get pay dirt from the most forbidding prospects, brought forth in "Gold Diggers of Broadway," Warner Bros. and Vitaphone 100% natural color, singing, talking, dancing picture in technicolor, which comes to the Carolina Theatre today.

The ways in which they "dig" their boy friends for shiny nuggets form many of the comedy situations in this brilliant extravaganza which was one of Belasco's great stage successes.

Nancy Welford, Winnie Lightner, Ann Pennington, Lilyan Tashman, Gertrude Short and Helen Foster play chorus girls in "Gold Diggers of Broadway," while other principals in the cast are Conway Tearle, William Bakewell, Nick Lucas, Armand Kaliz, Lee Moran and Albert Gran. There is a beauty chorus of 100.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements.

Student Government is Highly Developed Here

(Continued from page one)

ditions of American democracy.

Dean Bradshaw pointed out that the ultimate purpose of student government is the benefit of the student—to teach the principles of self-government and to equip students for leadership. Likewise, its success depends upon the student. Dean Bradshaw declared that the institutions of student government are institutions of student responsibility, and that their support demands that the average man take his share.

The dean of students said that the policy of the administration of the University is to depend upon the student's sense of fair play. He affirmed that this policy has been successful so far and is expected to continue so.

LOST

Lost: Chi Omega pledge pin in front of old Episcopal church on Franklin Street. Please return to Tar Heel office.

A Mistaken Idea

You do not have to put the most in your weekend in order to get the most out of it. Anywhere, anytime, a U-Drive-It is cheaper, and so much more convenient.

Make your reservations now for the coming weekend.

Carolina U-Drive-It

Phones: Day 3861, Night 5706

Wait For

BERMAN'S Harvest Sale

Starts Friday Morning

OUR 70th ANNIVERSARY

A&P ESTABLISHED 1859 WHERE ECONOMY RULES

ATLANTIC & PACIFIC

Karo Blue Label Or Golden Crown Syrup No. 5 Can 33c No. 10 Can 59c

White House Evaporated MILK 5 Tall Cans 39c

Scoco or Swift's Jewel Shortening 8 Lb. Bucket 99c

A&P Plain or Self Rising FLOUR 12 Lb. BAG 49c | 24 Lb. BAG 95c | 48 Lb. BAG $1.85

Eagle Condensed MILK Large Can ... 18c

CAMPBELL'S TOMATO SOUP 3 Cans 25c

NUCOA lb. 25c

HERSHEY And Other Favorite CANDY BARS 3 For 10c

N. B. C. CRACKERS ASSORTMENT DE LUXE Pkg. 29c — 6 5c Pkgs. Crackers 25c

COFFEE Received fresh each week and ground to suit the individual taste.

8 o'Clock — The world's most popular coffee — more pounds sold than any other brand. lb. 35c

Red Circle — A Blend of the Finest Coffees Grown. lb. 39c

PILLSBURY FLOUR 12-Lb. Bag 63c

GOLD MEDAL FLOUR 24-Lb. Bag $1.25

Lucky Strike, Old Gold, Camel, Chesterfield, Piedmont Cigarettes Carton 10 large pkgs. $1.19

DEL MONTE RAISINS Seeded or Seedless pkg. 10c

Clicquot Club Ginger Ale 3 Bottles 40c

QUAKER GRITS 3 pkgs. 25c

MORTON'S SALT 3 pkgs. 25c

HOUSEHOLD NEEDS

Palmolive Soap	4 cakes	27c
Lux Toilet Soap	6 cakes	39c
P. & G. SOAP	7 cakes	25c
FAIRY SOAP	6 cakes	25c
IVORY SOAP	2 Lge. cakes	15c
Lifebuoy Soap	3 cakes	20c
SUPER SUDS	3 pkgs.	25c
GOLD DUST	6 pkgs.	25c
Waldorf Tissue	2 rolls	11c
MATCHES	3 Large Boxes	10c

GRANDMOTHER'S the BREAD Value of the hour

ROLLS Square or Round Pan 8c

FULL POUND Wrapped Loaf 7c

Sunnyfield Whole Milk Butter In ¼-Lb. Prints lb. 53c

THE GREAT ATLANTIC & PACIFIC TEA CO.

PLAYMAKER PRODUCTION
8:30 TONIGHT
PLAYMAKER THEATRE

The Daily Tar Heel

PLAYMAKER PRODUCTION
8:30 TONIGHT
PLAYMAKER THEATRE

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1929 | NUMBER 30

GRAIL TO GIVE DANCE SATURDAY

Alex Mendenhall's Orchestra Engaged To Furnish Music For Occasion.

Due to the German club ruling that no dances can be held on the Hill during the week-end of a major football game, the Grail dance scheduled for last Saturday was postponed and will be held Saturday night.

The dance will be held as usual in the Bynum gymnasium at 9 o'clock. Alex Mendenhall and his Tar Heel boys have been engaged to furnish the music. Dancing will continue until 12 o'clock.

Because of the excessive number who wish to attend these dances the number of tickets on sale for stags has been limited to prevent the overcrowding of the dance floor. These tickets will be on sale at the rear entrance of the gym at 8:30 o'clock preceding the dance.

The general rules of the German club will be in effect regarding the fact that freshmen are not allowed to be present at these dances. Other rules are known to those who are eligible to attend.

This is next to the last dance of the quarter as only three are given each quarter. The date for the last dance has not as yet been decided upon.

Co-eds Entertain

The co-eds entertained at their regular Wednesday tea yesterday afternoon at Spencer building.

The hostesses for the occasion, Sydney Curry, Olivia McKinne, and Louise Thacker, received the guests, who called between 4:30 an 6 o'clock.

The purpose of these teas is for the students to get to know each other and for them to be able to repay the courtesies of their friends. Any girl may ask anyone she wishes.

All the co-eds are urged by Kitty Wells, president of the Woman's Association, to come to the teas.

UNIVERSITY BAND BEGINS PROGRAM

Preparations Being Made for Local Winter Concerts; Patten Is Manager.

The University band is now moving along in full swing. Its new uniforms and the Georgia Tech-Carolina football game of week before last seem to have given it pep that has never existed before. The band, as a whole, has already begun work in preparation for a concert trip and for local concerts in the winter quarter. The membership of 85 men is working on this program music. Later the concert band will be cut to 50 men. And since there are 85 men to fill 50 places the competition will likely be very keen, both because a band man is not eligible to receive an award until he has proven musicianship of sufficient merit to be chosen for the concert band.

Paul Patten is now manager for the band and is now working on the matter of booking dates. According to the officials of the band, it is not always an easy task to get concert dates because people generally are afraid a band program will be too much of a "rah-rah" type. But the Carolina concert band has made every effort to demonstrate that a band can play real symphonic music, worthwhile for an organization to play and for any audience to listen to. And it is encouraging to the organization that a return date has always been available at every place a concert has been played, and that every year the territory in which it is possible to secure these dates gradually widens.

The Asheville papers last spring, in commenting on the band's concert there called the organization "a symphony without strings," and was enthusiastic in their commendations. The type of music used in this concert work has constantly increased in amount and in difficulty in the repertoire of the band.

(Continued on page two)

German Club Completes Plans For Fall Dances

Annual Thanksgiving Hops To Be Held on November 28th and 29th.

JACK CRAWFORD TO PLAY

The annual Thanksgiving dances of the German club will be held on Friday and Saturday, November 28 and 29, the executive committee of the club announced Wednesday. The set will consist of a series of five dances, of which two will be held Friday and three Saturday. The afternoon dance on Friday from 4 until 6 o'clock opens the program; a second dance from 9:30 until 1 o'clock will be held that night. The Saturday morning dance will continue from 11 until 1 o'clock, the afternoon dance from 4 until 6 o'clock and the final dance of the set from 9:30 until 12 o'clock that night.

Jack Crawford and his Victor recording orchestra have been engaged to furnish the music for the dances. This orchestra has just completed its fourth season at the Steel Pier, Atlantic City, and is contracted to begin playing for the winter at the Million Dollar Pier, Miami Beach, Fla., on the first of January. Crawford's orchestra played here at the Thanksgiving dances last year.

The German club plans to hold the dances in Swain hall in order to accommodate the large crowd anticipated. The annual Carolina-Virginia football game is held in Chapel Hill this year, and officials of the club are expecting a large number of young people to be at the dances. Plans for the decoration of Swain hall are under way at present, and the definite scheme of decorations has not been announced.

The dues for the set of dances will be five dollars, in addition to the annual dues of twelve dollars.

Electrical Seniors In Charlotte For Institute Meeting

The entire senior class in electrical engineering together with Professors Bason, Stainback, and Winkler went to Charlotte yesterday to attend the fall meeting of the North Carolina section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

The group attended the meetings of the Institute held last night, and today they will make an inspection of the Mountain Island Hydro-electric station and the newly completed Riverband Steam Station, the largest steam station in the south.

The senior class went to the meeting as the representatives of the local student branch of the institute. They will return to Chapel Hill late tonight or early tomorrow morning.

What's Happening

A. I. E. E. meeting postponed until October 30.

Student coupons exchanged for V. P. I. tickets, Book Exchange.

2:00 to 5:30 p. m.—Exhibition first edition of Thoreau's books, Episcopal parish house.

7:00 to 7:30 p. m.—Arlindo Cate and Harold Cone broadcasting, station WPTF, Raleigh.

7:30 p. m.—Debate class meets, 201 Murphey.

8:30 p. m.—Playmaker production, Playmaker theatre.

ASK STUDENTS TO REPORT CHANGES

Many Corrections Made In New Directory; Master Directory Kept In Y. M. C. A.

Many students have changed their addresses since the directory has been printed. In order that these changes may be recorded, each student who changes, or who has changed his address is requested to call or come to the Y office, and have his new address placed on a Master Directory.

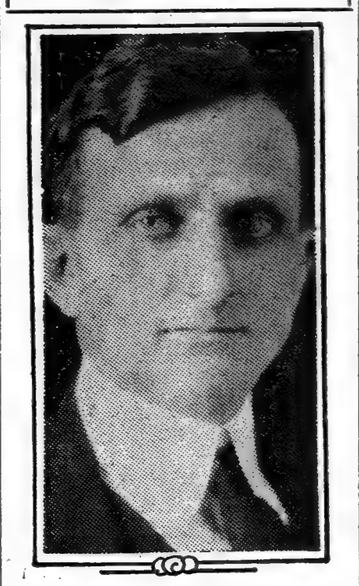
This Master Directory will be kept in the Y all the time, and it is very important that it be absolutely correct. Very often an important call cames for a student who has changed his address without making a record of it at the Y. In such cases it is very hard to secure the student right away.

There will be a list of these changes in the Tar Heel each month, and it is advisable to copy these changes into your individual directory.

The new names and changes that have come to the Y office since the directory went to the printer are as follows:

Abernethy, R. F., Alpha Chi Sigma House; Allison, C. W., Jr., 201 Graham; Atkins, C. H., 107 Carr; Bailey, B. B., 304 Hillsboro St.; Barberm, R. N., 310 Everett; Barnes, S. B., Rev. Eugene Olive's; Bartlett, G. L., 307 E. Franklin St.; Benton, M. S., Delta Theta Phi House; Bowen, Sumter, 308 Smith; Brashear, Miss Minnie M., Mrs. Logan's; Briet, I. S., 214 Everett; Burgess, S. E., 101 Carr; Carmichael, D. M., 412 Grimes; Chace, R. A., 303 Everett; Cheek, J. M., Jr., Theta Kappa Nu House; Conley, G. L., 115 Aycock.

Dunlap, J. P., 227 Pittsboro St.; Green, W. B., 302 Grimes; Hayes, C. P., 117 Lewis; Horne, J. R., 205 Carr; Jones, H. W., Phi Sigma Kappa House; Jones, W. O., 413 Ruffin; Kariker, T. R., Y. M. C. A.; Kellogg, Martin, Jr., Delta Theta Phi House; Kendrick, E. L., 23 Steele; Kitchen, Miss Kate Parks, 211 Spencer; Kitchen, W. J., 310 Carr; Leary, H. A., 101 Carr; Loven, Andrew, 212 Mangum; McCullough, Miss Ruth, 211



(Continued on page two)

Dr. Henderson To Entertain Tonight

Officials of local publications will be guests of Dr. Archibald Henderson, nationally known literary figure and head of the University department of mathematics, at a banquet at the Carolina inn. The affair will begin at 7 o'clock.

President Chase will head the list of guests. O. J. Coffin, head of the journalism department; Louis Graves, editor-publisher of the Chapel Hill Weekly; R. W. Madry, director of the University news bureau; J. M. Lear, treasurer of the Publications Union; J. Maryon Saunders, editor of the Alumni Review; John Mebane, editor of the Carolina Magazine; Cy Edson, editor of the Buccaneer; Marion Alexander, business manager of the Daily Tar Heel, and Will Yarborough and Glenn Holder, managing editor and editor, respectively, of the Daily Tar Heel, will attend.

E. J. Woodhouse

Edward J. Woodhouse, Professor of Government, Chief of Bureau of Municipal and County Government Research, and former mayor of Northampton, Mass., writes a comprehensive statement about the so-called "protective tariff" now before Congress.

DIALECTIC SENATE TO SPONSOR DANCE

The dance committee of the Dialectic senate announces that the annual dance sponsored by that organization will be held in the Di hall, New West building, on the night of December 6.

The affair will be open to all members of the senate and their guests, in addition to those included by several honorary bids which are to be distributed. Members of the senate must pay their yearly dues and the dance fee of one dollar before attending the dance. For the price of a dollar any member may secure a bid for a male friend upon condition that one of them bring a girl. All candidates for membership are urged to join the senate at an early date and thus be eligible for participation in the dance.

Further information about the matter can be secured from Senators McPherson, Patterson, or Hamer. These three compose the dance committee.

FORMER STUDENT AUTHOR OF BOOK

Asheville Man Receives Recognition as Writer; Graduated in 1920.

Thomas Wolfe of Asheville, whose novel Look Homeward, Angel was recently published by Scribners, is a former student at the University, having graduated in 1920. Wolfe is only 29 and has had short stories published as well as this novel.

Look Homeward, Angel has been given excellent reviews and has already attracted attention. The novel is laid in the south, mostly in the mountains of North Carolina west of Asheville. Part of the work, being of an autobiographical nature, is written around Chapel Hill and the University, and many of the places mentioned will be familiar to students here.

Wolfe was a member of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity during his student days here, and was elected to membership in Sigma Upsilon, national literary fraternity. He was editor of the Tar Heel in his senior year, and had also written several plays for the Playmakers, acting in his own productions. He obtained his degree at 19, and went to Harvard for three years, studying dramatic technique in the 41 workship, George Baker's famous school of playwriting and dramatic production.

Mrs. Mosher To Speak

Mrs. E. R. Mosher, state president of the American Association of University Women, will address the state branch of the association at Greensboro today, in the initial meeting of the year.

Pocketbooks Found

Twenty-one pocketbooks, stolen at Saturday's Georgia game, have been found with their contents gone. Persons desiring to recover the purses, may have them by applying to Mr. P. L. Burch of the Buildings department.

Long Distance Calls Deluge Local Operators During Games

(Frank J. Manheim)

"Hello—the Washington Duke hotel in Durham? Who's calling please? Mr. Snozzle at Mangum? I'll call you, Mr. Snozzle, when I get the hotel." . . . "Hello—Schyler 0898 in New York City? Who's calling please? Jack Pink of the D. T.'s house? I'll ring you as soon as I get New York, Mr. Pink." . . . "Hello? 4483 in Winston-Salem? Who's calling please? Mr. Wimpfburger from the Carolina Inn? Just a minute, please." And so on through the entire 24 hours.

The "gals" over at the Chapel Hill Telephone Company's building on East Rosemary lane do this on an average of 150 times per day. They're used to it now. You'll find no wrinkles on their high and wide brows due to overwork. But wait, just try to get a kind word out of them when a big football game is scheduled—such as last week's Georgia game.

With heroic grimness and determination, they "carry on," in spite of the 250 long distance calls that must be made during the day. That's what the average was last week. They have no time to play then. But if they catch a spare moment on the actual day of the big game, they devote it to a royal "cussing out" of the lot of people who, a wee bit "under the influence of intoxicating liquor," place phone calls to anywhere from Durham to Los Angeles, and then disappear when the troublesome connection has been made.

For some reason, fraternity houses seem to be in the bad graces of the telephone operators. When visiting brothers and alumni appear at the house, they are overcome with the beauty of the campus or intoxicated with the Carolina moon and they raise merry Cain with the telephone.

But if you've been sorely tempted at times to pick up the entire apparatus and throw it the length of the corridor because the dial system doesn't work for you, pause a minute and think what a blessing the automatic system is to the personnel of the telephone company.

There are 650 subscribers. And every one of their calls is handled automatically. The magical contrivances receive the number called and without the

(Continued on page two)

'Protective Tariff' Does Not Raise Living Standard

By E. J. WOODHOUSE, Professor of Government

In its total effect upon our internal and our external relations, the "Protective Tariff" is the greatest curse that has ever been inflicted upon the people of the United States. It does not really protect our working men and their standard of living from the competition of the more poorly paid laborers of other countries with their lower standards of living, for it takes from our workers in the form of increased prices much more than it gives them in the form of increased wages. It does not benefit even the owners of the industries which it is supposed to protect, since it encourages them to depend upon the artificial aid and stimulation of higher tariffs instead of upon more efficient management of the industries, and since it alienates or diminishes foreign markets and limits or destroys the foreign markets of their domestic customers and thereby lessens the capacity of those customers to buy. The very idea of such tariff "protection" is a relic of the misconceived medieval doctrine of Mercantilism. Both Mercantilism, the plan of importing as little as possible and of exporting as much as possible with the design of inducing a steady inflow of currency to pay for the "favorable" balance of trade, and its modern descendant, the widely praised and much misunderstood "Protective Tariff," are essentially contrary to the well-established economic principle of international trade that, in the long run, imports and exports tend to equal each other, and that it is better for both sides of the trade that they should be so equalized. Those from whom we buy are apt to buy from us in proportion as we buy from them. Of the 23 best customers of the United States in 1927, all but Chile buying from us one per cent or more of our exports, all but three (Soviet Russia in Europe, Denmark and British South Africa) were among the 24 who sent us most of our imports, and all of these but Spain sold us as much as one per cent each of our imports.

As long as we offered to the world chiefly food and raw materials, the peoples of other nations who could not supply their own needs of these primary

(Continued on page four)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
J. C. Williams

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan
Henry L. Anderson

REPORTERS
Howard Lee — Frank Manheim
Holmes Davis — Stowe Moody
Louis Brooks — Clyde Deitz
Charles Rose — George Sheram
Lawrence Harris — Robert Hodges
Mary Price — John Lathan
J. P. Tyson — B. H. Whitton
Browning Roach — Nathan Volkman
Al Lansford — George Stone
Joe Carpenter — Lawrence Miller
Peggy Lintner — Jack Riley
E. C. Daniel — T. E. Marshall
W. A. Shulenberger — R. T. Martin

Thursday, October 24, 1929

Give The Sucker a Break!

The erratic fluctations of the stock market Monday and Tuesday demonstrated that manipulation by professional operators is responsible to a great extent for the enormous losses sustained by small traders during the past several months. Thousands of wage earners and professional men failed to meet their margins in the drastic downward break Monday and were sold out, suffering heavy losses in the spread between asked and bid prices. After the professional operators had disposed of the small traders, prices surged upward Tuesday. Dozens of "big-time" traders fattened their already bulging bankrolls considerably.

It is apparent that the stock market has become a gigantic gambling device, manipulated for the benefit of leeches who make their fortunes by squeezing the suckers dry. Americans are notoriously fond of speculating, especially men of moderate means who are victims of the "get rich quick" bug. Savings of a lifetime are frequently lost in a few days by inexperienced stock market speculators.

Obviously the small plungers should be protected from their own weak-minded attempts to beat the market. Millions of dollars are thrown away on stock gambling, while legitimate business enterprises suffer from a lack of capital.

Originally the stock market served a highly desirable function in providing a ready market for securities, but the manner in which transactions are conducted at present places a premium upon clever manipulation by professional traders. The market does not set prices which an analysis indicates as desirable, but according to what the speculators consider correct—for their own best interests.

Legislation offers one means of reducing stock market speculation. At present a bill to tax stock transactions is under consideration by a senate sub-committee. Introduced by Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, the bill would provide a tax which would make it unprofitable for small traders to invest in stocks for quick turn-overs.

Gambling will continue so long as human nature remains as it is. Always the lure of easy money casts its spell upon otherwise perfectly sane and reasonable persons. Although their intellectual faculties convince them that they haven't the ghost of a chance to win in the long run, they will continue to cast their money away in pursuit of the elusive goal of a "big killing." Speculation is one form of gambling, and it exercises a fascination upon certain persons, while there are many others shrewd and unscrupulous enough to take advantage of this essential weakness in human nature.

The bill offered by Senator Glass would at least ameliorate the situation on the stock market. Society should protect its weaker members who are unable to resist the temptation to gamble as much as possible, at least to the extent of discouraging the professional birds of prey who live by picking the financial corpses of the suckers. Every effort should be exerted by the conscientious powers that be at Washington—and we are idealistic enough to believe that there are at least a few—to facilitate the passage of the stock tax bill.

The Stagnant South

What is it in the south that frightens away genius, talent, brilliance, leadership? Where is the old supremacy that characterized the south? Southerners were once prominent in scholarship, education, culture, in everything fine or outstanding; writers, teachers, statesmen, soldiers, all boasted of coming from the south. To come from mellow Virginia, from semi-tropical Alabama, from hot-blooded, drawling Georgia, furnished cause for pride. But those days have passed with the old plantations, with the courtly silver-haired planters and the faithful negro slaves, with the indolent but beautifully colorful existence that made the south the most picturesque region.

In the last half century the north and the west have forged ahead. Materialistic, commercial, powerful, those sections have taken giant strides, steps with which the slower south could not keep up. But besides this materialistic inferiority there has arisen a cultural and educational mediocrity which is truly deplorable, especially in the light of the past. Our record of illiteracy is tragic; our standards of education painfully low. Our universities cannot compare with the larger and more affluent institutions of the other sections.

Aside from this, however, is the lamentable lack of appreciation of artistic effort, of literary excellence, of talent and brilliance, which characterizes the south. A prominent actor once made the statement that that the theatrical route from Asheville to Raleigh was known to the stage as the "starvation route." This same dramatic star added that the accusation could be applied to the entire south. . . . It is futile for opera to attempt to establish itself in this region; it is rare for a musical genius to receive sincere applause from an audience of southerners. If we are steeped in the abysmal stupidity and lack of appreciation of the ignorant why not attempt to learn something about the arts so they can be accorded a good reception? Are the many charges of ignorance and the stubborn rejection of knowledge made against the region true after all? What can one answer in the face of our barren artistry, our shallow learning?

Ellen Glasgow, Paul Green, James Branch Cabell; two decades ago, O. Henry. How many more writers of this rank from the south? Let talent grow in the south, and if it manages to reach maturity—the south claims it no longer! Time and time again this has happened; when art and cleverness do thrive they are soon transplanted. Thomas Wolfe, from Asheville and a Carolina graduate, looms on the literary horizon—but not in his native section. Instead, he writes as an expatriate, railing bitterly against the region of his birth for what he indirectly terms its smug complacency, its placid ignorance and untroubled stupidity, for its slough of intellectual despond. When intelligence does stay in the region it becomes weary with a tolerant cynicism at the sense of futility.

It is time for this land of charming ghosts, with its history of glorious phantoms, to shake off this incubus of mental stagnation. The south should amend this sad situation and climb from the rut to terms of intellectual and artistic equality with its neighboring sections.—R. H.

Did You Know That---

More than 32,500 letters are mailed each week from the Chapel Hill postoffice and that most of them, of course, are from the University?

Upon examining 53 visiting cards that were posted upon the various dormitories' doors, 38 of them were found to be engraved, two to be embossed and the remainder merely printed? Which goes to show the something or other of students.

The University of North Carolina's radio station in Phillips hall, W4WE, has been in more or less regular communication with the Byrd expedition to the South Pole?

Approximately 12,000 words were dispatched from the local office of the Western Union on last Saturday? And this doesn't include the number of words transmitted over the private wires that the Associated Press and two Atlanta papers had. Twelve thousand words—almost 30 or forty themes.

The freshman who was heard to say, upon seeing W. B. Sorrell's store for the first time, "That's a sight for sore eyes," has declared that he has finally reasoned out why that food known as "Grits" is so-called—he has to have plenty of it to eat it.

An average of 700 books are taken daily from the circulation and reserve rooms of the library?

The state of North Carolina has "made" Webster's Collegiate dictionary, third edition of the Meriam series? We quote from Page 132: "bun'combe, bun'kum (From Buncombe, a county of North Carolina) Speechifying to gratify constituents, or to gain public applause; anything said, written or done for mere show."

The oldest car on the campus is a stream-line model Ford, built in the year 1914 and owned by Byron A. Sieder, a junior who hails from South Orange, N. J.?

New York state sends more non-North Carolinians to the University than any other state in the Union? And that South Carolina follows, far behind, with New Jersey making a close third?

Although February is the shortest, and oftimes most unpleasant month of the year, it invariably shows that more more books are borrowed from the University library during that month than in any other? It could be attributed to anything but we'd say it's the scholastic urge that finally breaks out after months of restraint by football.

There was a famous dancer in the nineteenth century who later became one of the wives of the emperor of Siam? Her name was Llih Lepah, which if you carefully invert, will prove to be the name of the University of North Carolina, with the exception of the letter "C."

To those students of history . . . did you know that 281 years ago this very day the Peace of Westphalia was signed?

—F. J .M.

Di Senate Admits Ten New Members

The Dialectic Senate held its second regular initiation Tuesday night at 7:15 in the Di hall, New West building. The following men were granted membership: B. J. Herkimer, New York; R. A. Van Cleave, Pennsylvania; H. N. Parsley, Wilmington; Alexander Webb, Raleigh; G. S. Dickson, Helton; W. C. Medford, Rainbow Springs; C. A. Shreve, Reidsville; and J. M. Little, Jr., Winston-Salem.

President Williams appointed the committee on the Mary D. Wright debate. The personnel of the committee includes Senators Kincaid and Simpson. The committee was instructed to confer with the Phi's committee and make a report at the next meeting of the Senate regarding their plans for the debate, which is to be held in December.

Senator Studdert urged the new members to take part in the discussion hereafter. He called attention to the fact that the life of the organization depends largely upon the efforts of new members. The senator said: "The Dialectic Senate is just what you make it."

Three resolutions were placed on the calendar during the course of the meeting. A motion to discuss one of them failed, however, and the Senate adjourned.

Long Distance Calls Flood Local Operators

(Continued from page one)

supervision, aid, or adjustment of any person, ring the number required. The human equation is entirely removed from the uncanny devices and hence the possibility of error is reduced to the minimum.

"Of course," the operator hastens to explain, "there are some people who claim that the dial method isn't worth a tinker's damn but you may rest assured the fault lies with them."

And with a "voice with the smile wins" kind of tone, she promises some happy youth that she'll get that number for him in Greensboro just as soon as she is able to break in on the conversation that the dean of women at the college is having, she'll get that certain party.

University Band Begins Program

(Continued from page one)

Four years ago the organization made its first trip away from the campus in concert work, playing three programs. Last year almost a dozen outside appearances were made. The number will perhaps not increase greatly this year, since more time cannot be taken. But the territory to be visited will be largely a new one, with a few return dates where the invitations have been very cordial.

The members of the band are reminded of a very important meeting at the band hall Thursday evening at seven o'clock.

Black Cat Dance

The Black Cat club, composed of former Carolina, Duke and State students, will stage a dance tomorrow night at the Carolina hotel in Raleigh.

Ask Students To Report Changes

(Continued from page one)

Hillsboro St.; McLawhorn, H. A., 306 Graham; Marshall, R. D., 403 Mangum; Martin, I. L., MacRae Bldg., Mitcham, W. E., Jr., 201 Graham; Nelson, H. A., A. T. O. House; Pittman, F. W., 314 Lewis; Noeburn, Miss Martha E., 512 E. Rosemary Lane; Ray, J. W., 9 Tankersley Bldg.; Reeding, R. L., Carolina Inn; Roach, B. B., 5 Sutton Bldg.

Sawyer, Abbott, 227 E. Rosemary Lane; Shevick, E. B., 203 Everett; Shields, J. D., 227 Pittsboro; Shulenberger, W. A., Jr., 4 Sutton Bldg.; Smith, O. M., Phi Kappa Delta House; Stainback, R. L., 107 Berman Court; Stalling, E. H., 307 Grimes; Stonestreet, C. B., Chi Tau House; Strawn, J. B., 208 Pritchard Ave.; Stubbs, C. A., 314 Lewis; Turner, H. F., Phi Kappa Delta House; Umstead, O. L., Kappa Psi House; Vanhoy, G. M., 310 Ruffin; Ward, A. T., Delta Theta Phi House; Wells, T. L., Jr., Mrs. B. B. Lane's; West, G. E., 102 Carr Bldg.; Whitley, J. L., 307 Grimes; Williams, J. H., 125 Mallett St.; Williams, S. W., 101 Carr; Wilson, M. P., T. J. Wilson, Jr.

Faculty

S. A. Emory, subject: philosophy, residence: Dr. J. M. Booker's; M. D. Taylor, office: 305 Bingham.

Rev. Solomon Pool was selected as president of the University after the Civil War.

A letter in a paper of 188x calls Chapel Hill "the Deserted Village of the South."

Fresh Smyrna Figs
Just Arrived
Carolina Confectionery

FLIGHT

Prevents Itching

Certain skin affections such as ringworm, foot itch, eczema and irritation or itch caused by wearing athletic supporters are quickly relieved and healed by two or three applications of GONICH.

GONICH has been widely prescribed by doctors for such skin affections. If you are bothered, get a bottle today. On sale at:

Patterson's Drug Store
Eubanks' Drug Store
Andrews-Henninger

GONICH

DOBBS

Hats and Caps

Stetson

Clothiers Furnishers

Stretch the Check from home. Spend less for food ... have more for fun. Shredded Wheat—for breakfast and for midnight supper. Delicious and economical. Helps you work and lets you sleep.

Shredded Wheat

Keeps you active and alert

Seven Teams Boast Spotless Records In Conference Group

Clemson, Vanderbilt, Tennesse, And L. S. U. Lead Chase for Southern Title; Georgia, Kentucky and Tulane Still Unbeaten.

All down the line, and from every portion of the Southland, the process of elimination is being pursued relentlessly. Out of a maze of Conference teams that so white and spotless opened their schedules four scant weeks ago, seven leaders have by conqueror's right placed themselves in the forefront and offer themselves to the speculation of the sport world. This list of the undefeated fails to include four teams who though they have lost one Conference struggle still demand by right of strength alone a premier place.

Clemson, Vanderbilt, Tennessee and L. S. U. have each won two Conference games, while Georgia, Kentucky and Tulane have one vivctory to their credit. Georgia Tech, Florida, Alabama and North Carolina have all four dropped one but must still be recognized among the stronger elevens in Dixie. From this list will come the title winner, unless some dark horse such as V. P. I., who has not as yet played a Conference game, comes forward to do the unexpected.

This week-end Kentucky will meet Centre, Vanderbilt will engage Maryville, and L. S. U. will take on Louisiana Poly. The three leaders in this group should come through one more week without any serious damage to their hopes. However, things are not going to run quite so smoothly for Tulane, for it meets the Golden Tornado from Georgia Tech, and since the victory over Florida, Tech seems to have gotten it into her head that although her chances of doing any good this season are pretty slim, they can at least force others to be partners in misery.

Clemson meets this afternoon her ancient rival, South Carolina, in a game which should be of the nature of the Tennessee-Alabama clash of last week-end. Imagine the rivalry between Carolina and Duke increased about twelve times, and you have figured out the love that exists between these two South Carolina teams. Nothing could make the University of South Carolina so happy as to wreck the hopes of Clemson for a Southern crown.

Georgia will take on Florida where Tech left off last week-end; this game is going to be another test of the steel of the Bulldog sophomores, and is also going to give an inkling into what may happen when Georgia meets Georgia Tech.

The turning point has come and this week should witness the wrecking of the hopes of more than one ambitious Conference eleven.

V. P. I. Coach

Andy Gustafson, head coach of football at V. P. I., is bringing another powerful team to Chapel Hill this Saturday. The Gobblers have lost only one game this season and have shown considerable power against all opposition.

LETTERMEN TO ASSIST RANSON IN TRACK WORK

Six of last year's lettermen have been chosen to assist Coach Dale Ranson with fall track work, according to an announcement from the latter's office yesterday. The six men are Gay, Nims, Perry, Bagby, Neiman and Dameron.

Each of these men is outstanding in his particular event and each will be in charge of a group of candidates for his event. Gay will be in charge of the sprinters; Nims, the long distance men; Perry, the hurdles; Bagby, high jump; Neiman, pole vault and broad jump, and Dameron, weights.

Coach Ranson also announced that fall track practice will begin this afternoon. He is especially interested in having all new men, whether freshman or varsity, report for practice at once.

ENGINEERING MEETING POSTPONED FOR WEEK

The meeting of the local student branch of the A.I.E.E., electrical engineering society, has been postponed from this evening until next Thursday. This postponement was made necessary because the entire senior class in electrical engineering went to Charlotte to attend the state meeting of the institute and will not return until late tonight.

Debate Class To Meet

The University debate class will meet tonight at 7:300 in 201 Murphey. Dr. R. M. Bell, of the department of chemistry, will direct the discussion.

Dr. Bell's lecture tonight will be a continuation of several talks which have been planned by officials of the class on the general subject of "The Scientific Method in Investigation."

Intramural Schedule

The intramural schedule for today is as follows:

3:30—1. Beta Theta Pi vs. Theta Chi; 2. Chi Phi vs Delta Kappa Epsilon; 3. No game.

4:30—1. Pi Kappa Alpha vs Sigma Alpha Epsilon; 2. Phi Delta Theta vs Sigma Nu; 3. Zeta Psi vs Kappa Psi.

Forty-three degrees were confered at the University commencement of 1896.

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS TO BROADCAST TONIGHT

Arlindo Cate and Harold Cone, two University students, will broadcast tonight over radio station WPTF, at Raleigh, from 7:00 to 7:30. Their program, which is sponsored by the Freshman Friendship Council, is to be given during the time of the regular University hour, which comes each week at this time.

Arlindo "Lindy" Cate of Greensboro, has quite a musical record behind him. He has been twice winner of the state violin contest, once concert-meister of the all-southern orchestra and once assistant concert-meister of the national high school orchestra. He is a very skilled player as is seen by his excellent record. He will be accompanied at the piano by Harold Cone, also of Greensboro.

FALL BASEBALL PRACTICE NOW IN FULL SWING

Many of Last Year's Squad Return; Pitching Is Weak.

(Browning Roach)

From the way things have been going in the last four weeks of fall practice, Coach Ashmore predicts that the 1930 baseball team will be the same general sort of club as the one that played here last spring—strong on the hitting and fielding but a trifle weak when it comes to the mound work. Most of last year's squad are back this fall and every afternoon that weather has permitted they have been hard at work out on the practice field limbering out the kinks and absorbing some inside dope on the old U. S. Game as dished out by the supreme authority in baseball around the Hill, Jim Ashmore.

The routine followed so far this fall has consisted mainly of pitching and outfield hitting. The work is on the whole a sort of bridging over of the long gap between seasons, a refreshening of the players' memory concerning baseball tactics, and a check for the staleness—mental and physical—that creeps over an athlete during a protracted cessation of activities.

About twenty-five or thirty candidates have been reporting for practice with encouraging regularity and it is understood that there are several more whose football practice conflicts with baseball. Among the old men who are back are Whitehead, Lufty, Sher, Paxton, Wright, Fleming, Brown, Kushner. Jackson and Captain Maus, veterans of last year's team, are at present with the football squad. Coxe, Satterfield, Jessup, Barnhart and Ball, who were graduated last June, will be missed in this year's lineup, but there are plenty of new men to take their places. Prominent among the new men who are out at present are Hinton, Shields, Sipe, Martin, Blythe, Strusinski, Johnson, Sachs, Allison and others, mostly products of last year's freshman squad.

The pitching staff will be considerably weaker than the rest of the team, according to Ashmore, unless some more prospective hurling arms are uncovered by next March. Fleming and Wright are plenty good but it takes more than two moundsmen to bring a baseball team through a hard schedule such as the Tar Heels have for the coming season.

Coach Ashmore announces that it is his plan to continue the fall workouts as long as the weather permits. Rain and wet grounds have interrupted the regularity of practice so far and it is the coach's intention to get in as much drill as possible before Old Man Winter calls a halt to all outdoor sports.

Novice Track Meet Entrants To Report

All university students expecting to enter the novice track meet to be staged Thursday, October 31, by the athletic department are urged to report to either Coach Ranson or Assistant Coach Cowper immediately. The coaches also advise daily workouts at Emerson field for those intending to enter the meet next week.

Home Department Meeting

The home department of the Community club will meet at the home of Mrs. W. F. Prouty today (Thursday) at 3:30. Mrs. F. H. Edminster will talk on "European Furniture in Its Relation to Early American Furniture."

Just about one year ago this coming week-end, a certain Virginia team came down to use Kenan Stadium as a playground. They romped this way and they romped that way, in fact they romped continuously; of course we romped too, but we missed romping enough by the bare margin of two points, and so we lost to V. P. I. 16 to 14.

There have been a good many football games played around these parts; some of them have been pretty good while others needed a bit more backyard practice. Now we aren't trying to say that the V.P.I.-Carolina game last fall was the best exhibition of football that we have ever witnessed here on the Hill; but we are saying that as for a game of thrills, few contests around here have ever surpassed it. In fact it was so good in its way that at the conclusion few people even remembered who had won and who had lost. All that remained in our memory was the imprint of backs dashing up and down the field, passes stabbing the air from every position, and lengthy punts being pulled from the air and returned far up the field in spite of the fact that a football team opposed the way. There is no getting around the fact that it was a day of offense.

The game this coming Saturday has every indication of following closely in the footsteps of last year's performance. Unless everything works conversely, it is going to be a game of thrill upon thrill, and the winner is going to be picked from the eleven that has the greatest ability for "romping."

The game Saturday is going to prove to the football world in general, or anybody else that is interested, that while the Tar Heels received a pretty strong blow in the region of their hopes last week-end they are a long ways off from calling the football season a failure and packing away their uniforms. One or two of the papers thruout the south inferred that such might be what would happen, and in reply the Tar Heel advises them to visit the Hill Saturday and witness a Carolina eleven, not grief-stricken, but rejuvenated.

Comparing scores is one of the most enjoyable ways of wasting time that a person can possibly delve into. Just think, according to scores, Davidson is scheduled to lick the socks off of Carolina this season. Didn't Citadel wipe up Oglethorpe, who the preceding week had downed the mighty Georgia? And didn't the Wildcats from Davidson overcome the Citadel last week-end? However, if you haven't much to do you might even trace it back to where Davidson is supremely superior to Florida, and may possibly, by comparing of scores, end up the season with the championship of the south. It's great sport, but don't bet your money that Wake Forest can beat anything in the south should she defeat Davidson Saturday.

Since reading the following article from the Atlanta Constitution, we have searched far and wide over the Carolina campus and have failed miserably to locate groups of students bewailing in tones of misery the unfortunate defeat of last week-end. However, here's what Ralph McGill has to say about us:

"Over at Chapel Hill, one of the saddest of possible campuses, the V.P.I. eleven will engage the Tar Heels. The Virginia Poly eleven is the real dark horse of the conference. They will be playing their first conference game Saturday and they have a most excellent chance to administer the second bumping to the Tar Heels. The odds, however, will favor the Tar Heels."

RANKIN ATTENDS SCHOOL MEETINGS

E. R. Rankin, secretary of the University extension division, attended a meeting of the eastern class "A" conference for high school athletics in Goldsboro Monday evening. At this meeting it was decided to use the Round Robin system for basketball games in the class "A" high school conference for the eastern part of the state.

Mr. Rankin attended a meeting of the western class "A" conference for high school athletics in Salisbury yesterday to discuss plans for the basketball conference in the western part of the state.

The towns which have high schools entered in the class "A" basketball conference in the east are Durham, Raleigh, Goldsboro, Fayetteville, Wilmington, Wilson, Rocky Mount and perhaps Greenville. Those entered in the west are Charlotte, Gastonia, Salisbury, Asheville, High Point, Winston-Salem and Greensboro.

These class "A" conferences play in separate contests in football, basketball and baseball. The football class "A" state championship game will be played in Chapel Hill on November 30.

The general contest in high school football, which is open to 309 schools not eligible for the class "A" contest, will begin next week. The state championship game in the general contest will be played in Chapel Hill on December 6.

In 1886 there was a case of kleptomania in the student body.

LATEST RECORDS!
Weekly Release of Victor and Brunswick Just in
Students' Supply Store
Everything in Stationery

MILLIONS TO HEAR FAVORITE RADIO STARS IN "GOLD DIGGERS"

Nick Lucas, the famous "crooning troubadour," who makes his talking motion picture debut in "Gold Diggers of Broadway," in Warner Bros. and Vitaphone 100 per cent natural color, singing, talking, dancing picture, now at the Carolina theatre, has sung to millions he has never seen.

For the past four years Lucas has been under contract to one of the leading phonograph record companies as an exclusive record artist accompanying himself on his familiar guitar. During that time over ten million of his records have been sold, while during 1928 alone three million records of Lucas' crooning voice were bought by an appreciative public.

"In Gold Diggers of Broadway," Nick Lucas sings several original songs written especially for this picture by Al Dubin and Joe Burke, in which he appears with an all-star cast which includes Nancy Welford, Conway Tearle, Winnie Lightner, Ann Pennington, Lilyan Tashman, William Bakewell, Helen Foster and many other well-known stage and screen players and a dazzling beauty chorus of 100. Roy Del Ruth directed.

Dr. Wilson Away

Dr. T. J. Wilson, registrar, left yesterday for a visit of several days to Wilmington.

CAROLINA THEATRE
LAST TIMES TODAY
"Gold Diggers of Broadway"
with
Ann Pennington
Nick Lucas
100% Natural Color, Singing, Talking, Dancing Picture
Added
Paramount Sound News
Vitaphone Vaudeville
FRIDAY
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR.
in "Careless Age"

A Real College Shoe

Walkover's latest production—THE WARWICK—adopted as the college shoe by the big colleges north—
Why not Carolina?

If a cheaper shoe is wanted try Freeman's real shoes at $5.95.

Sweat Shirts — Rugby and Bradley Sweaters — Arrow Blue and White Shirts—Varsity Underwear—Pajamas — Ties — Hosiery.

10% OFF ALL DAY FRI., OCTOBER 24., SAT. OCT., 25
Save a ball ticket by purchasing here at these prices.

Andrews-Henninger Co.

P. S. Your measure taken October 23, 24 and 25 for one of the best tailored lines shown—and for less.

"Protective Tariff" Does Not Raise Living Standard

(Continued from page one)

necessities and could not buy sufficient elsewhere than from us had to buy our goods; we could be fairly sure of selling our exports, or most of them on our own terms. Whether or not we would keep our tariff wall low enough to allow the importation of the exported goods of another people, they could not do without our foodstuffs and raw materials and had to find other means of paying us for them than by sending us their goods in exchange. They had to sell to other peoples from whom we had ourselves to buy goods and thus have us paid by a so-called "triangle of trade." For example, since the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland buys more from us than it sells to us, it has to pay us by selling to British India or to some other country that sells us more than it buys from us, a surplus above the exports of that country to the United Kingdom. This surplus is used to pay us through the machinery of foreign exchange. Either this is what takes place, or the United Kingdom has to send us currency to pay us the balance in our favor in the trade between it and us, that is, in so far as the people of the United Kingdom are buying from us what they must have and what they cannot get as cheaply elsewhere.

But now much more than half of the exports of the United States are manufactured goods, and manufacturers have much keener competition in world markets than have our raw materials and food stuffs. In 1927, the U. S. exported raw foodstuffs and raw materials to the value of $1,613,890,000; manufactured food worth $463,365,000; other goods partly manufactured or finished to the value of $2,681,059,000. Our Department of Commerce of the U. S. government has shown by its eagerness to develop our world markets its realization of the fact that we have on our hands a much greater marketing problem than when we sold to the world chiefly food and raw materials most of which they must buy from us or suffer want. Foreigners are realizing this, too. Andre Siegfried has recently called attention, in an article in the October, 1929, number of Foreign Affairs to this new factor in the world trade of the United States. In such a state of affairs, the good will of our possible customers for our exports may be the determining factor in their choice of our manufactured goods or of those equivalent goods of other nations. Whenever we raise the tariff rates on an article exported to us by one of the purchasers of our exports, we both diminish their ability to pay us directly and stimulate in them a desire and inclination to buy from others who exclude their exports less rigorously than we do.

Siegfried, the thoughtful Frenchman, who has been studying us as a people and our place in the world, points out as another new factor in the relations of the U. S. and Europe, namely the possible and probable closer union of Europe as a result of the general attitude of the U.S. and especially as a result of the tariff policy of this country. He says: "Of course, nothing like a European tariff union was in sight at Geneva (in the Economic Conference of 1927), but the birth of a common European point of view in respect of tariff policies was obviously taking place. Signs of the same process might be observed during the last meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce. After all, it is quite natual that countries where similar economic conditions prevail should sooner or later be led to feel and argue in the same manner. Although no practical step is imminent, then, the idea of a most favored nation clause, limited to Europe, may come up for discussion in the not very distant future."

Soon after the U. S. House of Representatives had shown its inclination to raise tariff rates generally in the new tariff bill, the Chambers of Commerce of France, at a general convention, passed resolutions urging the French government to take steps toward common action with the rest of Europe to combat or offset the tariff policy of the U. S.

Professor F. W. Taussig, formerly chairman of the U. S. Tariff Commission, said, in an article in the October, 1929, number of Foreign Affairs: "Tariff legislation is a perennial source of international distrust and irritation. . . . At the present juncture in international affairs, more depends on the spirit which we show than on the precise things which we do. Everyone who has meditated on the underlying causes of international friction and combat cannot but feel that it is the spirit which signifies. We must have a new and better attitude toward foreign countries. We must dismiss the language of war when we speak of our intercourse and trade with them. . . . Shall we continue to suspect, to fear, and to cultivate fear? To treat the foreigner from whom we get goods as always an enemy and an intruder? To circumvent him, to bully him, rouse his resentment and his irritation? Or shall we treat him as we wish to be treated ourselves?" In other words, Professor Taussig is asking, shall we lay the foundation for international good feeling, understanding and peace by practicing the Golden Rule in our commercial and diplomatic policies? Or shall we continue to lay the foundations for future wars by acting as if every foreign people were an enemy even when we are trading with them or conducting diplomatic negotiations with them?

How seriously will other nations take our gestures for world peace, such as our Briand-Kellow Pact and our Washington Conference, our efforts to stabilize Europe by the Dawes Plan and the Young Plan, as long as we persist in slapping in the face with increased tariff duties every people who happen to send us a few imports? Do we, as a Nation, believe that we can benefit only by selling to the world outside our national boundaries and national possessions and by buying only among ourselves? We bought from Denmark in 1927 only to the amount of $4,139,000 and sold to her the amount of $58,674,000. And yet much effort is spent in Congress toward keeping out what little butter, cheese and other products the Danes send to us. This protection against the small Danish imports is one of the great pretences of doing something for the relief of the farmers of the U. S.

Argentina exported to us in 1927 products to the amount of $96,961,000, but bought from us our produucts to the value of $163,350,000. How long will she continue to buy our automobiles, farm machinery, electrical equipment and other things that we produce for export, if we are to continue in this tariff act the efforts we have made in all our others to exclude more and more of what Argentina ships to us? In 1913, France sold Argentina twice as many automobiles as we did, and Britain sold there half as much farm machinery as we did. In 1927, we sold Argentina about 95 per cent of the automotive vehicles she imported and about the same proportion of farm machinery. If Germany, France and Britain continue to buy more and more of Argentine products and we continue in our efforts to buy less and less, where will we stand in this profitable market within a very few years? This leading South American Nation imported from us in 1927 to the amount of 217,816,076 Argentine gold dollars (such a dollar is worth 96.46 cents in our money; from Britain 166,459,525 Argentine gold dollars worth; and from Germany to the value of 96,988,994 Argentine gold dollars. So these other nations have a good start toward recapturing the lead they had in South American trade before the World War.

How do we treat our neighbor, Canada? She bought from us in 1927 to the value of $835,878,000, but we allowed her to export to us only to the amount of $475,077,000, and now the Tariff Bill before the Senate raises rates against Canadian exports to us so as to diminish them still further. And still we prate of our friendliness to Canada and wonder why she rejected by such a heavy majority our proposal of Reciprocity some years ago. Hear what Professor Taussig has to say in the article already cited, as to our treatment of Canada: "There is no case in which complete freedom of trade for the staple agricultural products and the fundamental raw materials is so fully justified as in our trade with Canada. . . . It would be going too far afield to enter on any detailed discussion of our trade with Canada; it is great in volume, mutually beneficial if ever any trade is, and politically of pregnant importance. For many years we have treated Canada much as a big bully treats the smaller boy. Those Canadians who have championed friendship with us have had no easy task in enlisting their countrymen, and our intolerant tariff policy makes it harder and harder for them to preserve good relations."

Small wonder, in view of our ignorant, suspicious, hostile, bullying attitude toward other peoples, that Sherwood Eddy said last year in one of his addresses in our Memorial hall that he firmly believed we were more hated and feared by the peoples of the world, as dangerous to the peace and happiness of mankind than any other nation on the face of the earth except Great Britain. And he explained that Great Britain would receive more hostile votes than we in a world-wide plebiscite to test the feeling of the rest of the world on this point because she would receive such a heavy adverse vote in India on account of the discontent and unrest there. I am convinced Mr. Eddy was right, and that we are still probably one of the two peoples most feared in all the world as dangerous to the peace and happiness of mankind. Shall we, by blind, ignorant, petty, hostile tariff legislation make selves still more hated and feared?

FLIGHT

Wait For

BERMAN'S Harvest Sale

Starts Friday Morning

The

Daily Tar Heel

Prints Chapel Hill

News

FIRST

All Matters of Interest to the People of

Chapel Hill Featured Equally With

Those of the University.

Local Subscriptions

$2.00

SUBSCRIBE NOW

The

Daily Tar Heel

PLAYMAKER PRODUCTION
8:30 TONIGHT
PLAYMAKER THEATRE

The Daily Tar Heel

PRESBYTERIAN PARTY
8:00 P. M,
SOCIAL ROOMS

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., FRIDAY OCTOBER 25, 1929 | NUMBER 31

University Authorities Not Disturbed By Carnegie Foundation Survey Report

Graduate Manager Woollen Says That University Gave Investigators All Help Possible and if There Is Anything Wrong With Athletics Here Authorities Will Investigate.

FULL REPORT HAS NOT BEEN ISSUED

Carolina Named As One of 84 Institutions Subsidizing Athletes; No Definite Charges Made Against University.

(By Stanley Weinberg)

University athletic officials are taking very calmly yesterday's sensational announcement by the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching, which named North Carolina among 84 colleges using reprehensible methods of recruiting and subsidizing varsity athletes.

Charles T. Woollen took the attitude that since nothing definitely wrong had been revealed about Carolina, there was nothing the Carolina authorities need do about the athletic situation. Professor Allan H. Hobbs, chairman of the faculty committee on athletics, also said that athletics at Carolina were pretty clean as far as he knew.

Director of Athletics Robert A. Fetzer could not be reached yesterday, as he had left for Columbia, S. C. Other members of the coaching staff did not think the announcement said anything that every one had not known before.

"Nothing has been made public yet which reflects discredit on North Carolina," said Graduate Manager Woollen, speaking of the announcement.

"The Carnegie report named Carolina among the colleges at which evidence that athletes were subsidized has been found, but it made no specific charges. I know of nothing dishonest at Carolina, although the Carnegie investigators may have found something; we won't know what they have found, however, until the complete report is made public in December.

"Investigators were down here several times about two years ago, and we gave them all the help we could. They may have found that we give scholarships only on the basis of athletic ability; they may have found that we give athletes soft jobs, or use high pressure methods to induce them to come here—or even that our alumni give them salaries.

"I haven't come across any of that; whether the Carnegie investigators have or not will not be evident until their report is made public. Of course, if there is anything nasty in Carolina athletics, the faculty committee, the student authorities, or I will look into it.

"Definite charges have been made against New York University and several other big institutions. But they are mostly in the North where there are no conferences or associations enforcing eligibility rules. Harvard, Yale and Princeton have an agreement among themselves, but in general each college sets up its own requirements.

"In the South, on the other hand, there is the Southern Conference. Twenty-three schools have got together and made certain agreements which we have tried to enforce. Carolina has abided faithfully by these rules.

"The rules of the Southern Conference, however, vary from

(Continued on page four)

ENGINEERS TO GO ON CO-OPERATIVE WORK NEXT WEEK

Group Out On Jobs Now To Return to School at That Time.

The second section of junior cooperative students in the school of Engineering will go out on their jobs next week, and the first section, which has been working outside since school started, will return to the University at the same time.

Final quizzes for section one on the five weeks' work since school began will be given next week, Monday through Friday, and the students in section two will report for work on Monday, November 4.

Twenty men will leave the University at this time to replace those who have been out since the middle of September. The majority will go to places within the state, but two go as far as Illinois and one will be in Wisconsin.

In the cooperative junior year in the engineering school, the students spend seven weeks in school and then seven weeks engaged in actual work with some organization.

A partial list of the companies with whom the engineering school has placed co-op students includes the Illinois Bell Telephone company at Chicago, the Catipillar Tractor company at Peoria, Ill., the Milwaukee Sewage Commission at Milwaukee, the Southern Railway at Danville and Charlotte, the Duke Power company, the State Highway Commission, the Charlotte Filter Plant, the Tidewater Power company at Wilmington, and the University Consolidated Service Plants, as well as the Chapel Hill Filter Plant.

Those students who are going out next week will stay out seven weeks, returning after Christmas. Those who are coming in and whose places will be filled by the outgoing students, will study at the University until December 23 and will then return to their co-op work.

Chi Phi's To Have Tea Dance Saturday

First Fraternity Dance of the Season at Carolina Inn.

The Chi Phi fraternity has sent out invitations for a tea-dance to be given by its members Saturday immediately preceding the Grail dance. The dance will take place in the ballroom of the Carolina Inn and will last from six to nine. The Grail will begin at nine. Alex Mendenhall and his Tar Heel boys have been engaged to furnish the music.

This affair marks the beginning of the series of dances which the fraternities give throughout the year. The majority of these are given on the Hill while some of the larger and more elaborate dances are held in Durham.

These affairs do quite a lot in bettering the feeling between the Greek orders as the list of invitations outside of the members of the order giving the dance is ordinarily quite large.

Communications Must Be Signed

Several anonymous communications to the Readers' Opinions columns of the Daily Tar Heel have been received by the editor within the past few days. All contributions to the column must be signed by the authors; hence these anonymous communications have not been published.

Psuedonyms will be published with the article or letters, but the editor must be informed of the correct name and address of the writer. Such information will be treated as strictly confidential. Writers of articles which have been submitted during the past two days, signing themselves "A Pennsylvania Republican" and "Il Pensoroso" are especially requested to see the editor at the Tar Heel office this afternoon, in order that their communications may be published immediately.

SALE IS MAKING READING TOUR; MAY VISIT HERE

Author of "The Tree Named John" Receives Favorable Comments From Reviewers.

John B. Sale, who is author of "The Tree Named John," is to make a reading tour of Virginia and the Carolinas during the latter part of November. This book, from which the selections will be read and about which Mr. Sale will speak, was published by the University Press. Press officials are making an effort to have him appear here on the campus sometime between November 11 and 30, the dates of the tour.

About three weeks ago, along with "The American Scholar" by Norman Foerster, "The Tree Named John" was issued. Since that time its success has become more pronounced with each review. In "Books," a feature section in the New York Herald Tribune, Hershell Brickell writes of the book: "Amid the vast flood of recent books that deal with some phase of . . . Negroes . . . Mr. Sale's unpretentious collection of stories from a Mississippi plantation strikes me at once with its honesty and authenticity." Mr. Brickell also pays it the supreme compliment of saying that "its dialect is nearly perfect."

Another excellent critic, Donald Davis, in two reviews from Nashville, Tenn., speaks of the realism with which Mr. Sale treats his subject matter: "Here is the Negro the people of the South know best. . . . I don't think any author of these times has done anything more convincing in dealing with the Negro."

While William Soskin in the New York Post seems to think, since the author appears to be so steeped in the folk-lore and the shrewd principles upon which much of Negro superstition is based, "that 'The Tree Named John' is likely to give you a far more vivid and authen-

(Continued on page four)

ADAMS EXHIBITS THOREAU'S WORKS AT PARISH HOUSE

Collection of More Than 400 Items Placed on Display Yesterday.

Yesterday afternoon, in the Episcopal church parish house, Dr. Raymond Adams of the English department presented one of the most interesting exhibitions of literary treasures that the University has seen.

Dr. Adams has for several years been particularly interested in the life and writings of Henry David Thoreau, the great American author who lived from 1817 to 1862. Even before writing his doctor's dissertation on Thoreau, Dr. Adams began collecting Thoreauania until today his collection represents one of the finest in the country. More than 400 various items constitute the entire collection, of which only half was on display.

The author of "Walden" has, in recent years, become a much sought for item of the collectors, and first editions of Thoreau's works, such as Dr. Adams has, are valued at prices ranging from thirty to one hundred dollars per volume. The original manuscripts of Thoreau's works are mainly in the J. P. Morgan library in New York and the Huntington Library in California. An excellent supply of material lies in the library of the Middlebury college, Vermont.

There has been a great increase in the amount of interest shown in Thoreau and today he is the subject of numerous magazine articles and treatises. Dr. Adams has written several articles on Thoreau for literary journals and is at present working upon the editing of several volumes of his specialty.

In his research work, Dr. Adams has had occasion to correspond and talk with several living personages who remember Thoreau quite well. Ralph Waldo Emerson's son and Abbey Hosmer, who are still living in Concord, have afforded Dr. Adams a great wealth of material for a biography which Henry A. Salt, the greatest living authority of Thereau, suggested that he write.

Among the many interesting

(Continued on page four)

DR. HENDERSON FETES EDITORS

Members of Faculty and Publications Heads Attend Dinner Given by Noted Biographer.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, author, mathematician, and biographer, entertained the heads of the campus publications and several faculty members with a dinner at the Carolina Inn last night. Those present were Dr. H. W. Chase, president of the University; Dr. Henderson; Professors Oscar Coffin and J. M. Lear, faculty members of the Publications Union Board; Louis Graves, editor of the Chapel Hill Weekly; Maryon Saunders, editor of the Alumni Review; R. W. Madry, director of the University News Bureau; Glenn Holder, editor of the Tar Heel; Will Yarborough, managing editor of the Tar Heel; Marion Alexander, business manager of the Tar Heel; John Mebane, editor of the Carolina Magazine, and Cy Edson, editor of the Buccaneer.

Carolina Playmakers Present Three Plays

FIRST ISSUE LAW REVIEW TO APPEAR DURING DECEMBER

The following men have been selected to compose the student board of editors of the Law Review:

Allen K. Smith, editor-in-chief; John H. Anderson and J. A. Chadbourn, assistant editors-in-chief, and P. B. Abbott, LeRoy Armstrong, Moore Bryson, A. W. Gholson, Jr., John F. Glenn, Jr., Walter Hoyle, John B. Lewis, Charles S. Mangum, Jr., H. B. Parker, Harry Rockwell, Charles F. Rouse, Y. M. Smith, Neil S. Sowers, Thomas W. Sprinkle, T. A. Uzzell, Lawrence H. Wallace and J. A. Williams.

R. H. Wettach will act as faculty editor-in-chief this year.

The Law Review is designed to comment on current cases of law and to discuss general problems in judicial administration. In the Review are advanced ideas for proposed changes and modification of law enforcement.

In December the first issue will appear. The four issues which are published this year will together comprise the eighth volume of the North Carolina Law Review. One copy of each issue appearing this year will be sent to each lawyer in the state.

LIBRARY GROUP HONORS WILSON

University Librarian Elected President North Carolina Library Association.

Dr. Louis R. Wilson, University librarian, has been honored for the third time as president of the North Carolina Library association. Not only has he served in this capacity two times before, but he has also served one term as president of the Southeastern Library association.

By virtue of his unusual talents for library work and his exceptional business qualities, Dr. Wilson is regarded as one of the most outstanding librarians in the south.

In the thirty years that Dr. Wilson has served his alma mater he has gained an enviable reputation both in the state and outside the state. He has done much pioneering work. Dr. Wilson was one of the four librarians who met at Goldsboro in 1904 to organize a statewide library association. Through his efforts the extension department was organized; this department makes library books available in communities where there are not any public libraries.

Back in 1907 Dr. Wilson was instrumental in bringing to Asheville the annual convention of the American Library association. This is the only time that this association has ever met in any Southeastern state. Approximately 500 librarians from every state in the Union attended this meeting.

Dr. Wilson began work with the library when it was in its infancy—a collection of less than 30,000 volumes. He has guided it through a period of 29 years until his lifetime ambition—a library that may stand before the public as worthy of the institution it serves—has been achieved.

"The No 'Count Boy," "Magnolia's Man," and "Being Married" To Be Presented Again Tonight and Saturday.

The Carolina Playmakers presented the first production of their twenty-fourth bill, composed of three original one-act plays, before a large and enthusiastic audience last night at the Playmaker theatre. The bill will be repeated tonight and Saturday night.

The plays presented were "The No 'Count Boy," a negro comedy by Paul Green; "Magnolia's Man," a comedy by Gertrude Wilson Coffin, and "Being Married," a domestic comedy of young people by Catherine Wilson Nolen.

This is the twelfth year the Playmakers have presented their original productions, and each year from the very beginning they have met with success under the direction of Professor Frederick Koch.

The stage work of Elmer Hall, new technical director of the Playmakers, was approved by the audience as adding much to the success of the production.

"The No 'Count Boy" was written some years ago, but has never been produced by the Playmakers. "Magnolia's Man," in which the author herself takes a leading part, is a new play, dealing with the efforts of a small town spinster to "get a man." "Being Married" is also a new play. It has to do with a group of young married people who are unwilling to live on the allowance supplied by their wealthy parents.

The casts for the three plays are:

"The No 'Count Boy:" Pheelie, Phoebe Harding; Enos, her beau, Howard Bailey; The No 'Count Boy, Holmes Bryson; An Old Negro Woman, Muriel Wolff.

"Magnolia's Man:" Mis' Tish, Gertrude Wilson Coffin; Newt Norris, Ted Wilson; Magnolia Starnes, Muriel Wolff; Bartholomew M. Burgess, Marvin Hunter.

"Being Married:" Jim Ried, Milton Wood; Connie, his wife, Elzada Feaster; Pete Burch, Howard Bailey; Dora Farraday, Helen McKay; Penelope Sears, Anne Melick; Betty Holmes, Elizabeth Barber; Gertie Warens, Beth Colley.

Fred Greer is stage manager for the production and William Day assistant stage manager.

What's Happening

Today

Meeting Dramatic Art section, N. C. C. W., Greensboro.

Student coupons exchanged for V. P. I. tickets, Book Exchange.

4:30 p. m.—103 Bingham Hall. Meeting of the undergraduate faculty. Please note change of meeting place.

8:00 p. m.—Presbyterian party, social rooms, Presbyterian church.

8:30 p. m.—Three one-act plays, Playmaker theatre.

No chapel until Tuesday.

Coming Events

V. P. I.-Carolina football game, 2:30 tomorrow, Kenan stadium.

Chi Phi tea dance, 6 o'clock, tomorrow, Carolina Inn.

Meeting Tar Heel staff, 7:00 p. m. Sunday.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
J. C. Williams

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan
Henry L. Anderson

REPORTERS
Howard Lee Frank Manheim
Holmes Davis Stowe Moody
Louis Brooks Clyde Deitz
Charles Rose George Sheram
Lawrence Harris Robert Hodges
Mary Price John Lathan
J. P. Tyson B. H. Whitton
Browning Roach Nathan Volkman
Al Lansford George Stone
Joe Carpenter Lawrence Miller
Peggy Lintner Jack Riley
E. C. Daniel T. E. Marshall
W. A. Shulenberger R. T. Martin
G. E. French J. S. Weathers
Stanley Weinberg

Friday, October 25, 1929

Premature Condemnation

Although the Buccaneer made its first appearance of the year on the campus less than 36 hours ago, the University comic magazine has already been subjected to vitriolic criticism by the faculty and students alike. In many respects the Pigskin number of the Buccaneer is a classic example of collegiate pornography, and there is ample justification for most of the criticism directed against it.

While the make-up and art work of the Pigskin number is uniformly excellent, much of the copy oversteps the bounds of decency. Not only are many of the jokes obscene—they are grossly stupid and crude.

Editor Edson and his staff should not be judged upon the quality of material in this first issue, however. It is always difficult to secure enough copy for the first issue of a college humorous publication after the institution opens in the fall, and probably much of the objectionable material in the Pigskin number was published out of necessity. We believe that Editor Edson is capable of giving the campus a Buccaneer much superior in every respect to the very mediocre publication of last year, and he should not be condemned too severely for the Pigskin number. We are confident that the next number of the comic will contain very little of the obscenity that characterizes the first issue. The wholesale condemnation of the Buccaneer staff that is being expressed on the campus is premature, to say the least.

Splitting The Gate Receipts

Yesterday's daily papers carried results of the inquiry made into college athletics by the Carnegie Foundation. Investigations showed that nearly 100 of the 118 colleges and universities questioned have an athletic subsidy. The report is chiefly a confirmation of what the public has long suspected—that the majority of college athletes are paid to play football and participate in other sports.

From all over the country a howl will arise against the colleges that provide for their athletes; our first and most natural reaction is to ask "what of it?"

Collegiate sports have long ceased to be sports in the sense that the participators play for the pure joy of playing. The member of the team now plays "dear old Raleigh," for the personal glory that stardom will bring him, for the benefits that the college will receive from a winning athletic team. The difference between amateurs and professionals has become a technical one; there are few if any real amateurs left in organized collegiate sport; all receive some subsidy, directly or indirectly.

Football receives the butt of the censure in the Carnegie report. Football has become a big business; coaches draw fabulous salaries, gate receipts from the big game sound like government expenditure figures; trainers, coaches, scouts and a host of other officials are employed to make winning teams. The game itself has been so highly developed that only experts with long training can play it properly. To play on a college football team is about a full sized job, besides attending classes.

We personally can see nothing wrong with what is now being done for college athletes; even if they are paid, does that fact take the thrill and glory out of a football game? Does it not make them better athletes, and does not the college as well as the public want winning teams? Why should we object to giving the football boys a little expense money, when they bring thousands of dollars to the colleges every Saturday?

The man who devotes his time to football, who trains for years and years, who works strenuously three and four hours a day, goes away for three or four days a week on trips, takes the continual beatings and drudgery of a game each Saturday, and with it all can pass the required work, deserves to have part of his expenses "taken care of" by the alumni, or by the college itself, if no other funds are available. We would not object to splitting the gate receipts with the players, we should like to admit that the college sports are professional, and no longer try to shield ourselves under a screen of hypocrisy by calling them amateur.—J. D. M.

The Rushing Problem

Notwithstanding the seemingly well-grounded evidence that fraternity men make higher grades on their academic work than do unaffiliated students, there are certain outstanding defects in the rushing system employed on this campus which are without parallel in all the annals of socialdom. This aforesaid system may well be termed an indictment of fraternity intelligence.

To begin with, the rushing season is too short. Even the most rational groups cannot possibly select the best men from the freshman class during the brief and feverish period of campaigning which now exists. Resultant of this situation and its attending evils they are compelled to rely in large measure upon recommendations sent in by alumni. The untruth contained in these recommendations is well expressed in the language of the critic—"Anybody can get a recommendation."

Now by way of becoming more specific, let us consider the problem from the standpoint of the freshman. Whether he has a high "I.Q." or not, the average newcomer is sadly incapable of penetrating the superficiality of a fraternity within the scant period of time now allotted to the rushing season. This is undoubtedly the crux of the situation. With almost feminine logic (if, indeed, there is such a thing) well-meaning parents send their sons to college to embrace in one scant month friendships which will continue throughout their entire stay there. The writer could never believe that these same parents would sanction their son's attempt to select a four-year's wife in the space of thirty days. And yet the analogy is of such a character as to make it nothing short of proof.

By way of further constructive criticism, let us turn to the academic life of the rusher and the rushees during the rushing season. Both are compelled to neglect their class work with results to which only random mention should be made in this article. Instructors expound their concentrated knowledge to sleepy upperclassmen, bewildered freshmen, and empty benches. In the language of Mr. Professor—"I'm tired of asking questions a second time."

Furthermore, undue emphasis is laid on getting a fraternity bid. Mr. Freshman is led to believe that his reputation both now and forever depends upon his election to membership in almighty Gamma Zeta. As a matter of fact, however, nothing could have a more temporary effect upon earthly and celestial destiny.

But far be it from the intentions of the writer to attack the present rushing system without offering some solution to the problem.

In the first place, a prolonged rushing season—a year in length, for example—would render unnecessary classroom repudiation which is so characteristic at present. And, too, there are some upperclassmen on this campus whose academic laziness cannot be explained in terms of having to entertain freshmen.

In the second place, a year of mutual inspection would enable fraternities to know their proteges better. When fraternity brothers room and dine together—as is othten the case here—a very careful selection of pledges is imperative to the best interests of the fraternity. The rusher might discover that he was deceived in the character of his protege. The protege, in turn, might discover that his rusher was not all that he was "cracked up to be."

In the third place, freshmen who feel that their rise or fall is determined on bid-night might change their ideas a bit if the rushing season were prolonged. Furthermore, upperclassmen would have an opportunity to watch their proteges work or loaf on class, as the case might be. This would be of some considerable service, we feel, in eliminating the bad student from the fraternity element.

Finally, a prolonged rushing season of a year's duration would remove pledge-day from the period of football supremacy and brawn-worship by the space of two quarters. In this case the promising freshman football player would not have any undue advantage over the rest of the freshmen. Cool deliberation would have an opportunity to supplant feverish haste.

We believe that the above described innovation would accomplish much toward eliminating the feverish password—"Howmanymendidyouallget."—J.C.W.

FRANK GRAHAM WILL BE AT PRESBYTERIAN PARTY

Young people are invited to attend "the party" in the social rooms of the Presbyterian church Friday, the 25th, at 8 p. m. The ladies are especially asked to come.

Mr. Frank Graham will be there to greet the new people and say hello to his "old" friends.

No Chapel Today

There will be no chapel until next Tuesday, unless further announcements are made. The roof of Memorial hall is being repaired.

Readers' Opinions

PROTEST

The first issue of the Buccaneer has just made its appearance, and impression, for the year 1929-30. What is our impression? On reviewing its cover, print, and arrangement, we are well impressed by its general excellence; and then we begin to read. What humour! The author of this article is neither squeamish nor prudish, a "hot" joke or a story can be appreciated if it possesses wit and subtlety. Such probably should have a place in a college publication which is purposefully humorous. But to one who has a pride in the notice and commendation which the University publications are increasingly receiving, the uniformly suggestiveness and crudity of the contents of the Pigskin number of the Buccaneer is not cheering.

The editors have certainly fallen down on the job, and cast a reflection both upon themselves and the spirit of the University when they become dependent upon prurient humour to make their publication a success.

For those who have a taste for the obscene, there are a number of publications which specialize in that form of so-called humour. A university publication should meet the requirements of the student body, and is supposed to reflect the spirit of the students. Does this issue of the Buccaneer do that?

R. W. A.

AN OPEN LETTER

To The Dramatic Critic of The Carolina Magazine:

Editor the Daily Tar Heel:

It would be presumptive for a humble reader, unskilled in literary phenomenon, and insensible to the fine points of dramatic criticism, to attempt to criticize the critic. But encouraged by Milton's tolerant assurance that "Opinion in good men is but knowledge in the making," I beg your indulgence. Surely one in your position can afford, without any loss, save time, to heed for a moment the futile outpourings of babes and sucklings.

Being uncertain how to start, I quote from your column in the last issue of the Carolina Magazine: "Of the many plays in New York which I have seen, "Bird in Hand" by John Drinkwater is the best." As you have seen so many, I wondered if possibly you had not confused "Bird in Hand" with "Journey's End," which you describe so graphically as "disappointing" and "quite boring." You say that "Bird in Hand" is the "Most delightful performance" you have seen "in a long, long time." That, of course, I can't dispute with you. Some people spend most of their time at the Columbia Burlesque Theatre on Forty-sixth and Seventh Ave. But perhaps you prefer third-rate vaudeville. As I say, I cannot prove that "Bird in Hand" isn't the best thing you have seen in a long, long time.

"It is a fine play." What a remarkably trenchant criticism! I can almost discover the names of the minor characters and the price of the Saturday matinee tickets. "Fine" covers everything. Eighth-graders who wish to comment thoroughly and concisely on a book they like, say that "it is a fine book." And "a little child shall lead them."

You could trust Drinkwater not to let you down on your "exquisitely written." (I hope you pronounce "exquisitely" correctly. So many people don't.) But I am afraid you have overreached yourself on the "really remarkable merit" and "great English classical comedies." The merit, I suppose, is that "Bird in Hand" shows us that a pure heart is worth more than Norman blood. This is such a momentous and original thought that the author offered no other for fear of confusing the audience. Do you honestly believe, Mr. Greenblatt, that Mr. Drinkwater was concerned with writing a play of "really remarkable merit"? He couldn't have been trying to write an amusing bit of nonsense, could he?

"Like that of so many of the great English classical comedies, the plot is light." "Bird in Hand" is undoubtedly like that other great English classical comedy "The Merchant of Venice." Shakespeare, however, gives us three plots and a couple of subplots. The only thing that is classic about "Bird in Hand" that I can see, is your criticism. "It is a rare thing."

Despite the fact that the majority of prominent New York critics have agreed that "Journey's End" is one of the best plays of the past five years, I imagine that Mr. Sherrif will be brokenhearted to learn that you didn't like "Journey's End" and will go back to selling insurance. Far be it from me to point out its merits to you. If you couldn't discover them for yourself, why should I waste your time and mine? But, if you could not appreciate "Journey's End," why proclaim you your intellectual limitations from the housetops. Or, if you must be original and vigorous, why didn't you choose some play that was not generally recommended? It seems as though every one was out of step but Johnny.

As I have been so critical of your remarks and opinions, the least I can do, I suppose, is to write better ones myself. And while I do not pretend to be a dramatic critic, let me suggest the following:

"Bird in Hand" by John Drinkwater is an amusing, light comedy of English middle-class people. It is the old story of a middle-class girl marrying above her station with the usual family objections and complications. Although the interest wanes toward the end of the second act, Drinkwater's initial attempt at this type of play will entertain you for part of an evening, if you can think of nothing better to do.

"Journey's End" by R. C. Sherrif is widely acknowledged to be the best play that has come out of the war. It gives one a picture of "English gentlemen fighting a gentleman's war." Unadorned with emotional outbursts that characterize the usual war play, "Journey's End" manages through sincerity and restraint to develop a tenseness and a realism that should not leave the most unemotional audience unmoved. A dirty dugout is the only scene; the lines seldom rise above a conversational tone; yet the superb acting of the all-British cast, several of whom saw service in the World War, and the sharp sincerity of the lines build for one a picture that is more than a picture, a play that is more than a play. To see "Journey's End" is to live through three hours of the war. And to come from the theatre into sham and artificiality of Broadway with its kaleidoscopic sights and sounds makes one understand how Schelling could write his Victory Ball.

Thanking you for your time, I remain,

Very truly yours,
A NEW YORKER.

COMMERCE SCHOOL HEADS ATTEND COURT IN RALEIGH

Dr. D. D. Carroll and Professor M. D. Murchison, of the school of commerce, went to Raleigh yesterday to attend the hearing of the chain store tax case which is being tried before the Supreme court there.

They attended the hearing at the special request of Attorney General Brummit, who wished them to be present as advisers to the state in its attempt to prove the validity of the tax.

FLIGHT

College Jewelry!

Rings — Pins
Compacts — Bracelets
All with Carolina Seals

also

Full Line of Felt Goods

Students' Supply Store
"Everything in Stationery"

A Mistaken Idea

You do not have to put the most in your weekend in order to get the most out of it. Anywhere, anytime, a U-Drive-It is cheaper, and so much more convenient.

Make your reservations now for the coming weekend.

Carolina U-Drive-It
Phones: Day 3861, Night 57

ALLIGATOR
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
WEATHERPROOF ROOMY-BRILLIANT COLORS

ALLIGATOR is one snappy outergarment—and you can slosh around in it all day and never get wet. Turns rain, wind, dust.

Models for Men and Women $7.50 to $25

THE ALLIGATOR CO. St. Louis

New! ALLIGATOR STEPPERS (Pat. App. For)
Protect trouser legs—all colors to match all coats.
$2 and $3.50 a pair Ask to see them
KEEP DRY FROM HEAD TO FOOT

Tar Heels Working Hard For Game With V.P.I.

Drill To Correct Mistakes Of Georgia Clash In Practices

Whole Team Bent on Revenging 16-14 Defeat Handed Them by Virginia Tech Last Year; Virginians Have Many Good Backs.

WITH hard work and more hard work again yesterday, Chuck Collins and his coaching mates are leaving no stone unturned in preparing the Tar Heels for their V. P. I. battle in Kenan stadium here at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The Georgia defeat disclosed notable defects. The coaches have been driving away, night and day, in field practice afternoons and "skull practice" nights in an effort to eliminate these flaws. If the Tar Heels don't show a smooth and finished attack against the strong Gobblers, the fault won't be ascribed to the coaches.

And it seems the Tar Heels will need all the smoothness and finesse they can muster. The Gobblers rolled up big scores on Roanoke, Hampden-Sidney and William and Mary, and showed even greater strength in holding Pennsylvania to a 14-8 count.

The great ball carrier, Frank Peake, is gone, but with Tomko, Spear, Owens and Hooper all taking turns at carrying the ball instead of letting Peake carry it three of five tries, and with a fine line, the Gobblers present a real threat to the Tar Heels' maintaining their place at the forefront of the Southern Conference race.

Although Mr. Peake should be missed aplenty, the Pony Express of 1929 is boasting a better balanced backfield than that of last season. And what is still more alarming for Tar Heel supporters—Macauley McEver and Buckner Green, two Poly backs who have been laid off with injuries since the beginning of the season, will be back in the lineup Saturday. Macauley McEver is the brother of Gene McEver of Tennessee fame and was just launching into sensational ground gaining antics when struck down in the opening game of the season.

Both line and backfield promise to show more drive Saturday, by virtue of this week's gruelling preparation, and by virtue of the return to the lineup of Henry House, driving fullback, and Bill Koenig, 190-pound veteran tackle. Both men rate about top-notch at their respective positions, and both were out of the Georgia game.

Pete Wyrick, veteran quarterback, out for three weeks with a back injury, will probably not get in, according to word today from Dr. Foy Roberson, advisory physician, nor Julian Fenner, veteran end, who was injured in the Georgia game.

Johnny Branch, sensational sophomore, who ran the team against Georgia Tech and Georgia, will call the signals again. Herb Nelson, who put up a great game against Georgia Tech, may be shifted from left to right end to fill Fenner's post.

House Addresses Rotary Club

R. B. House, executive secretary of the University, spoke at a meeting of the Rotary club of Greensboro Tuesday. His talk dealt with education and its influence on civilization. Mr. House was formerly a member of the faculty of Greensboro high school.

THREE DIVISIONS OPEN FOR BOXERS

Coach Rowe Has Promising Candidates Working for Hard Schedule.

(By Frank Smathers)

Under Crayton Rowe's instruction fall work in boxing is enjoying great popularity. With the addition of new equipment and regular classes for beginners there has been an influx which has swelled the number of enthusiasts to approximately fifty. Each afternoon from four to six the ring is filled with boxers, coaching classes are under way, the bags are strumming busily, skipping ropes are flying, as the southern champions are preparing for another heavy season.

Captain Archie Allen, southern champion, is busy with several other lettermen from last year in getting in condition for the coming meets. Sheffield and Goodrich are the men from the varsity squad who are also working out. Sheffield will probably hold down his 125 pound class again and Goodrich, named by many as the cleverest man in his class in the south, should not find much difficulty in retaining the crown in the 135 pound class. Allen, starting his last year for Carolina, is undoubtedly the strongest man in the 145 class in the south, and is expected to retain his southern crown for the third straight year. Vaughan, varsity 118 pounder seems an uncertain contender just now, due to doctor's orders.

The unfortunate death of Obie Davis' father leaves the 160 or middleweight class open, as Davis was making the weight of last year's captain, Charlie Brown. John Warren is back at the heavy post which his brother filled efficiently two years ago and which John held down last year.

The light heavy class is open and makes in all three weights without vetera. material—118, 160, and 175. There is a decided weakness in the heavy weights and Coach Rowe is anxious to see more men in this weight out.

In the lightweights Ed Gray, from last year's freshman team, and Jimmie Gray, a freshman this year, are the most promising contestants. Several freshmen are also showing up well in the 140 and 150 pound classes such as Conner and Preston.

In the middleweight class Smathers and Parsons are the leading contestants. Parsons made a very good record on the freshman team last year, and Smathers has been showing up well in practice this fall.

FIVE INTRAMURAL GAMES SCHEDULED

Only four intramural games were played yesterday, the Zeta Psi-Kappa Psi game being postponed. The results were as follows: Beta Theta Pi and Theta Chi tied up, 6-6; Pi Kappa Alpha won from Sigma Alpha Epsilon by five first downs to three; Delta Kappa Epsilon won from Chi Phi by a forfeit, 1-0; Sigma Nu won from Phi Delta Theta 14-0.

The schedule for today is as follows:

3:30—Old East vs. Ruffin.
Old West vs. "G."
4:30—Mangum vs. "I."
"J" vs. "F."
Carr vs. Steele.

Where? — In Tar Heel Ads.

Back In Form

Henry House, driving fullback who has been on the injured list for some time, is ready to get in action again Saturday.

SCORELESS TIES MARK CAROLINA V. P. I. RIVALRY

Gobblers Have Big Edge In Close, Hard Series; Last Tar Heel Victory In 1904.

If history does anything like repeat itself, then North Carolina and Southern grid fans are in for another epic struggle when the V. P. I. Gobblers and the Tar Heels renew their ancient rivalry Saturday afternoon.

The Tar Heels and the Gobblers celebrated their grid introduction, back in '96 with a scoreless tie, and those scoreless ties have since been quite the vogue when the ancient rivals met. There have been five of them, in fact, in 17 meetings.

In the other 12 games the Gobblers have had quite a goodly margin of victories, but every game has been among the closest and hardest on the schedule of both teams. Captain Frank Rogers led North Carolina's great undefeated team of 1898 to a 28-6 victory over V. P. I. and the team of 1904 eked out a 6-0 victory. Otherwise the series has been All-Gobbler.

The two teams met in Kenan stadium last year for the first time in 15 years, in what was one of the most thrilling clashes of the whole Southern grid season. The Gobblers were up to old tricks, and led by the master ground gainer, Peake, they pulled a hard game out of the fire by a heart-breaking 16-14 count.

The Tar Heels will be out to get revenge for that count, and likewise to keep their place at the forefront of the Southern Conference race. With the Gobblers having mowed down three strong teams already and having held Pennsylvania to 14-8, it looks like another great struggle is in the offing.

Comparative Scores

Some of the University of Georgia's students did some figuring not long ago whereby, after the defeat of Carolina, they were possibly the best team in the south.

Davidson might claim an extremely high rating by the following figures. Oglethorpe beat Georgia, 13 to 7; Citadel defeated Oglethorpe, 18-0; Davidson beat Citadel, 7 to 6 so Davidson has a 38 to 13 margin over the University of Georgia.

Georgia beat Carolina 19 to 12, so Davidson, on paper, should defeat Carolina 57-25. In the game this week between the Wildcats and the Demon Deacons the 'Cats, on paper, should come out victorious by 105 to 25, because Carolina took Wake in tow 48-0.

(By Henry L. Anderson)

ACCORDING to reports from the V. P. I. stronghold at Blacksburg, the Gobblers are bending every effort to be in top form for the game here Saturday. Although Green's return to the V. P. I. tackle adds much to their forward strength, the loss of Davis, 234 pound tackle, offsets this gain. McEver, Spear and Tommy Tomko will probably be the shining lights for the Gobblers.

To offset the optimistic spirit which reigns over the campus at Blacksburg is the showing that the Tar Heel varsity is making against the Tar Babies in practice. The old line that met Tech will be back in trim with the exception of Parsley at right end in place of Fenner. Koenig, although practicing with the veteran line, may not start the game Saturday. The others—Lipscomb, Adkins, Farris, Eskew and Holt—are in top form. Wyrick probably will not be in shape for this game.

In practice the veteran line is being followed by Branch, quarterback; Slusser and Magner, halfs, and Harden, full. Alternating with this backfield are Jackson, Nash and Ward, and Spaulding.

Many of those who saw the V. P. I.-Pennsylvania game say that the score indicates very little the difference between the two teams. The 14-8 score was not more, according to reports, merely because Pennsylvania was saving up for the hard game the following week. Tomorrow's game, however, won't be a walkaway for either team. U. N. C. is out to avenge its defeat, by two extra points, of last year and V. P. I. will strive to duplicate this feat, if possible.

"V. P. I., 16—North Carolina, 14," is painted in large letters on signs, placards and barracks at Blacksburg. After Carolina's defeat of Tech and defeat by Georgia, V. P. I. seems to be anxious to have a try at the "fallen hero." How much stock the Gobblers are placing in last Saturday's score? Probably the same amount that they are placing in extra points.

To replace Peake, who was the star in V. P. I.'s victory over the Tar Heels last year, there is Spear, speedy halfback, Tommy Tomko, tooted ball carrier, and Mac McEver, another spectacular back who will probably be recovered enough from injuries to return to the lineup. Mac is a brother of the famous Gene McEver, Tennessee's flash and nominee for an All-American backfield berth. McEver, at V. P. I., is reported as being almost as flashy a back as his brother. Not having seen Mac in action it is hard for the Tar Heel to compare him with the Carolina backs but Saturday we will probably see how he will look against Branch, Magner, Nash, Slusser, Ward, Spaulding, House, Harden, Jackson, Maus, etc.

In the Davidson-Wake Forest game the Wildcats are being given 3 to 2 odds to win and even money to win by seven points. Thad Brock, Davidson Captain and end, will probably be the mainstay of another Davidson victory as he was against Citadel last week. Brock's toe was responsible for the 7-6 win for the 'Cats. By comparison on paper they are given a large margin, but common sense will hold the score down. Davidson beat Citadel, Citadel beat Oglethorpe, Oglethorpe beat Georgia, Georgia beat Carolina, and Carolina stomped on Wake Forest 48-0. More figuring might give Davidson the national championship.

TAR HEELS HOLD FOURTH PLACE IN S. I. C. SCORING

Clemson Tigers Lead With 182 Points in Five Contests; L. S. U. and Tulane Follow Closely.

Carolina is retaining fourth place in the Southern Conference scoring so far this season with a total of 121 points.

The Clemson college Tigers are setting the pace for the Conference teams so far this season. In five games the powerful Tigers under Coach Josh Cody have rolled up a grand total of 182 points, and have been scored on only three times.

Louisiana State's machine is pressing Clemson hard. Russ Cohen's Bengals have played one game less than their South Carolina brethren, but have chalked up 175 points against 20 for their opponents.

Tulane's big Green Wave is in third place with 147 points for four games.

Other conference teams above the hundred mark are Kentucky and Tennessee, each with 118; Alabama with 116 and Washington and Lee with 103.

Kentucky has scored 118 points in three games. Tennessee required four games to register the same total. Both Kentucky and Tennessee's goal lines have been crossed but once.

The University of Mississippi has been scored on more than any other team with a total of 117 points standing against the Hazel outfit.

Pittsburgh, Navy and Mercer together have scored 103 points against Duke.

The following table shows the points scored for and against each team.

Team	Games	Points For	Agst.
Clemson	5	182	20
Louisiana State	4	175	20
Tulane	4	147	10
North Carolina	4	121	26
Kentucky	3	118	6
Tennessee	4	118	6
Alabama	4	116	13
W. & L.	4	103	58
Sewanee	4	99	39
V. M. I.	5	99	26
South Carolina	4	94	19
Florida	4	92	26
Vanderbilt	4	92	30
V. P. I.	4	89	34
Georgia	4	68	25
Georgia Tech	3	53	38
Maryland	4	53	82
Virginia	4	52	33
Mississippi	4	47	117
Duke	3	39	103
Miss. A. & M.	4	19	99
Auburn	4	15	86
N. C. State	3	14	59

Sigma Chi announces the pledging of Arlindo Cate of Greensboro, N. C.

CAROLINA THEATRE

TODAY

"THE CARELESS AGE"
with
Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

See beautiful settings in famous Lake Como. Hear Carmel Myers in a big Broadway stage spectacle.

Added
Vitaphone Vaudeville Screen Song

—SATURDAY—
Ina St. Clair
in
"THE AWFUL TRUTH"

It's an old GROGAN custom . . .

. . . So of course you're quite right to expect that this newest Oscar Grogan record holds a pair of knockouts.

Grogan's intimate whispering tenor has turned out another brilliant vocal job—this time on two of the greatest up-to-the-minute song sensations.

You're sure to want these hits in your album—better drop in on your Columbia dealer today for Grogan's latest, and hear these other numbers, too . . .

Record No. 1966-D, 10-inch, 75c

TIP-TOE THRU' THE TULIPS WITH ME (from Motion Picture "The Gold Diggers of Broadway") / WHERE ARE YOU DREAM GIRL? — Vocals . . Oscar Grogan

Record No. 1968-D, 10-inch, 75c

WHERE THE SWEET FORGET-ME-NOTS REMEMBER / IF I HAD MY WAY (from Motion Picture "The Flying Fool") — Fox Trots . Merle Johnston and His Ceco Couriers

Record No. 1963-D, 10-inch, 75c

IT'S UNANIMOUS NOW / THAT'S WHERE YOU COME IN — Vocal Duets . . The Sunshine Boys (Joe and Dan Mooney)

"Magic Notes"

Columbia "NEW PROCESS" Records
Viva-tonal Recording - The Records without Scratch

Exclusive Dealers for COLUMBIA PRODUCTS
IN CHAPEL HILL
UNIVERSITY BOOK & STATIONERY CO.

University Student Heads Dance Club

Many Carolina students will attend the Black Cat dance in Raleigh tonight at the Carolina hotel. The dance is sponsored by the Black Cat club, an organization composed of Carolina students and those of other institutions in this state.

John Park, University student, is president of the club. Other Carolina students who are active in the organization and who have held office are Alex Webb, George Lonson, Vass Shepherd, John Cooper, Henry London, Ollen McLeod, Harold Glascock and Wilford Sisk.

Jack Wardlaw and his orchestra, another University organization, will furnish the music for the occasion.

The dance will be from 9 until 1.

Local Orchestra Will Broadcast

Jack Wardlaw and his all-new University orchestra will broadcast tonight over station WPTF, Raleigh, from 6 to 6:45.

The personnel composed of students from 5 different states is as follows: Tom Tyler, piano; Ike Hughes, trumpet; Frank Adams, trumpet; Cradell Forehand, trombone; Bill Thompson, base; Otis Haislip, saxaphone; Tom Weeks, saxaphone; Joe Hinds, saxaphone; Ward Hinkle, drums; Jack Wardlaw, banjo, and Tyer Sawyer, manager.

Legal Fraternity Pledges Six Men

Delta Theta Phi, national legal fraternity, announces the pledging of the following six men: S. G. Morse, Asheville; O. M. Smith, Winston-Salem; A. M. Covington, Tatum, S. C.; R. W. Lamm, Wilson; R. G. Key, Elkin; S. A. Silver, Bandana.

There are 66 chapters of this fraternity in the United States, most of these being located in the west and north. The entire local chapter now resides in a new house located on Rosemary street.

BROTHER OF TENNESSEE STAR PLAYS FOR V. P. I.

The Tar Heels won't have to worry about Mr. Frank Peake when they meet the V. P. I. Gobblers here Saturday, but they will have to bother considerably about another young gentleman who may prove as big a sensation as did Mr. Peake last season.

Reference is to Macauley McEver, brother of the famous Gene McEver of the University of Tennessee, who has been laid off with an injury since the first of the season.

Macauley McEver was just launching into sensational ground gaining antics when struck down in the opening game of the season. He is reported to be fully recovered, however, and will be used against the Tar Heels Saturday.

Tomko, Spear, Owens, and Hooper are other Gobbler backs who are expected to give Carolina plenty of trouble. The Gobblers present a well-balanced backfield.

TOM LAWRENCE JOINS CHAPEL HILL HIGH TEAM

Chapel Hill high school football stock took a decided rise this week when Tom Lawrence reported to the team for practice. Lawrence is from Episcopal high in Virginia and was considered one of the best prep school ends in the Old Dominion.

Chapel Hill so far this season has two victories and one defeat chalked up against them. Ashboro and Bragtown went down in defeat before Coach Jones' protegees; and Oxford, rating one of the best teams of its class in the state, defeated the Chapel Hillians after a hard struggle.

Carolina Students Heard Over WPTF

Arlindo Cate and Harold Cone, who broadcasted last night from 7:00 to 7:30 over WPTF, Raleigh, gave a very excellent program. Their program, consisting of some very select pieces, was given in place of the regular University hour which comes each week at this time.

Arlindo Cate has made a very excellent musical record for himself. He has been twice winner of the state violin contest, once concert meister of the all-southern orchestra, and once concert meister of the national high school orchestra. He was accompanied at the piano by Harold Cone.

Their program, sponsored by the Freshman Friendship Council, was as follows:

Suite Moderne (Whiting), played by Cone; Ave Maria (Schubert), Cate; Rhapsody in Blue (Gershivin), Cone; From the Canebrake (Gardner), Cate; Boy of Mine, Cate.

EDUCATION ASSOCIATION MEETS TODAY AT N. C. C. W.

The Dramatic Art Section, northwestern district, of the North Carolina educational association, will meet today at the North Carolina College for Women, Greensboro.

The program will feature Mr. J. O. Bailey of the University English department, who will give an instructive talk on play development. Miss Henninger of the dramatic department of Greensboro college will also speak, her subject being taken from a famous quotation of Shakespeare.

Following the speakers, the "Patchwork Quilt," a one-act play by Rachel Field, will be presented by a student cast coached by Miss Sarah Richardson. This play will be constructively discussed and criticized for the benefit of the teachers present.

After the presentation of various problems and solutions dealing with the state dramatic movement, an election of officers is to be held.

ADAMS EXHIBITS THOREAU'S WORKS

(Continued from page one)

books and pamphlets on display, is a sonata, written as Mrs. Adams helpfully explained, to be played in the mind, as it is not a particularly melodious composition. Another absorbing volume, is a cheap edition of "The Excursion," which, sometime prior to coming into the possession of Dr. Adams, was in the hands of a sailor, who, when reading a passage in which Thoreau described the "diving-birds," annotated the book by saying: "Saw these off the coast of North Carolina." Dr. Adams obtained this book in Chicago and it is now once more in the country that the sailor passed so many years ago.

At various times, persons become imbued with Thoreau's experiment as he described it in "Walden" and try to emulate his two-year more or less primitive life. On the top of Mt. LeConte, in North Carolina, there is now a young man who is said to have nothing but a copy of "Walden" with him, in his lonely, isolated habitation. Last year, it may be remembered, a student of Dartmouth simply left his room one day and proceeded to enter the deepest wood. He left an explanation, ascribing his act to the effect that Thoreau's writings had upon him, in showing the bad features of present day civilization.

Unfortunately, Dr. Adams, who was ably assisted by his wife, exhibited his collection for only one day but that it was popular was clearly evinced by the number of interested people who came to look at it.

Phi Opposes Trend To Industrialism

The Phi assembly in its regular session last Tuesday night after a heated discussion defeated the resolution that the present day tendency toward industrialism in North Carolina be approved by the Phi assembly. The majority of the representatives opposed the bill on the grounds that the government in North Carolina is subsidized by big business, that North Carolina's industrialism is of the nineteenth century type, and that it is having a radical effect on labor conditions in this state. The minority held that the present industrial trend in North Carolina is only a fair example of such a trend throughout the world. They further held that financially the mill conditions offer a more desirable means of livelihood than the long established agricultural situation.

At the close of the discussion Acting Speaker Albright appointed Representative Wilkinson to confer with the Di representative as to the date and query of the annual Mary D. Wright debate.

SALE IS MAKING READING TOUR; MAY VISIT HERE

(Continued from page one)

tic impression of Negro life than many a more pretentious work."

With these facts and the increase in sales of this book in mind, the probable visit of the author to the University assumes a great deal of interest.

Another announcement of importance has also come from the University Press to the effect that "The Virginia Plutarch" by Alexander Bruce, will probably be off the press within ten days. It is the most recent of the association's releases.

UNIVERSITY AUTHORITIES NOT DISTURBED BY REPORT

(Continued from page one)

those of other associations. For example, some of the small colleges in this state allow freshmen on their varsity teams. We play those schools, because we feel that with their small student bodies we can afford to give them that advantage.

"The Carnegie Foundation has set up a standard by which they judge the schools they have investigated. Whether North Carolina and the rest of the Southern Conference come above or below that standard won't be known until the Carnegie people make public their complete report."

"This report won't affect Carolina as far as I can see," said Professor Hobbs, chairman of the faculty committee on athletics, when interviewed yesterday.

"I should be the last to claim that we are purer in athletics than most other institutions of our class," he continued. "If the more reprehensible types of subsidizing athletes spoken of in the Carnegie foundation announcement exist here I am not aware of it.

"Of course, some of our alumni may get together a sum of money to help a good football player through college. It is hard to detect that and harder to stop it; we may have some of it. I know that that exists at Virginia, and the Carnegie announcement gives Virginia a clean slate.

"If a man gives some penniless fellow five hundred dollars to help him through college everybody praises him. But if the fellow turns out to be a good football player, he is called dishonest, and a subsidizer and professionalizer of athletics.

"Virginia, though, is pretty careful about giving out athletic scholarships. In fact, at the Southern Conference meetings, the Virginia representatives constantly bring up the fact that other schools give out scholarships only on the basis of athletic ability. Georgia especially has been accused of giving scholarships and easy jobs to athletes, both in the Carnegie announcement and elsewhere.

"It has been difficult to prove these charges against Georgia or any other school. When the complete report comes out, of course, it will give all the facts, and perhaps some of these charges can be proved. I won't be afraid of anything proved against Carolina. I haven't noticed much wrong here, but if there is, it will do the University good to have it dug out."

This investigation was conducted by the Carnegie Foundation for the advancement of teaching, an organization endowed by Andrew Carnegie. The foundation has been sending agents to investigate athletics in American, British, and Canadian colleges, for several years. One report, comparing American and British sports has already been issued.

The current announcement is a preliminary notice of a report on amateurism in American college athletics, which will be issued in several months. Several more reports and investigations about college athletics are due in the next few years.

Recruiting of promising school boy athletes by a subtle, intensely organized system, is one of the evils attacked by the report. Michigan, Ogelthorpe, Southern California, Wisconsin, and Northwestern are among the worst offenders in this respect.

"The school boy notion,' says the announcement, "that athletic ability can be turned to advantage is so widespread that the mercenary athlete seldom waits for solicitation. He 'shops around.' For purposes of shopping around one enterprising school boy had an especially favorable press notice from a local paper mimeographed, and sent it around to various colleges.

"Soliciting and bidding for athletes are keen in the middle West, the South and on the Pacific Coast. The practice is not so strenuous in the Southwest and New England."

At Dartmouth, N. Y. U., Pennsylvania and elsewhere, a special member of the coaching staff is necessary to care for the correspondence with school boys about athletic scholarships. New York U. and Oklahoma, which pay regular weekly or monthly wages require special office forces to handle the payroll.

Many novel methods are used for giving out athletic scholarships. Blue Ridge College, for example, scales the amount given a man according to the number of teams he plays on. Carolina, according to graduate manager Woollen, gives uniform scholarships, athletic and non-athletic, of $75; much less than other colleges give.

Generally the coach or a graduate official selects the recipient of an athletic scholarship. At Ogelthorpe, however, the president of the college picks the lucky winner.

Slush funds for subsidizing athletes exist at many colleges. They vary from $13,000 at Carnegie Tech to $600 at little Center. Usually the alumni or friends of the college contribute to the slush fund.

Washington and Jefferson College in West Virginia had what was probably the grand mogul of slush funds. Alumni and business men made contributions of from ten dollars to $1,000 annually to a fund aggregating from $25,000 to $50,000 a year. From this the college expenses of all football players were paid and additional 'pay checks' were distributed to star players.

In the East various prep schools have established relations with Princeton, Pittsburgh, Dartmouth and other colleges by which the college 'farms out' good school boy football players to the school, paying all his expenses, until the boy is ready for college. That practice does not exist in the South.

Fraternities often do their bit by providing rooms and board for the players for almost nothing.

Of 112 colleges and universities visited during the investigation, only 28, seven of them Canadian, were found free of the above practices. Virginia and Tulane were the only Southern colleges among the 28. Others were Chicago, Cornell, Illinois, West Point, and Yale.

The remaining 84 institutions, including North Carolina and many other leading universities were guilty of at least one of these practices. No specific charges, however, were made against each college on the list these charges will be made public in the full report.

The investigators were baffled at all the colleges visited except at Georgia, a Southern Conference school, and Ogelthorpe a member of the S. I. A. A. A. one of the worst offenders.

LOST

LOST: Copy of Spinoza's Ethics belonging to Durham Library. Reward for return to Tar Heel office.

FLIGHT

Don't Experiment with your Appearance

ISRAEL SHEP 1896 QUALITY LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

ANNOUNCING

Berman's Harvest Sale

Be sure to see our collection of Men's Suits and Topcoats in Styleplus and other well-known brands—Over 500 suits to pick from at—

$14.95 $19.95 $24.45 $29.50

Gillette Blades
Sale
35c
Package of 5

Ties — Suspenders
$1.50 Value
Sale
79c

Men's Sox
50c - 75c Values
Sale
39c

Hanes Underwear
2 Pieces
$1.25 Value
Sale
85c

Tuxedoes
Very Good Quality
Sale
$19.95

Tux Shirts
Best Quality
Sale
$2.45

White Shirts
Popular Brands
Special
$1.45

Shirt Special
Guaranteed Fast Colors
$1.25 Value
Sale
89c

White Ducks
Good Quality
$1.55
Best Quality
$1.95

Tooth Paste
Listerine 21c
Forhan's 49c
Pepsodent 11c

Sweaters
Real Good Bargains
Sale
$3.98

Lumber Jacks
High Quality
Sale
$3.90

BERMAN'S DEPARTMENT STORE

Chapel Hill's Leading Department Store

GRAIL DANCE TONIGHT
9 O'CLOCK
BYNUM GYMNASIUM

The Daily Tar Heel

CAROLINA vs. V. P. I.
2:30 P. M.
KENAN STADIUM

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY OCTOBER 26, 1929 | NUMBER 32

PRIZES OFFERED TO PLAYWRIGHTS

Contest Closes December 31; Koch Judge for State.

The Drama League of America, in conjunction with the Play Department of Longmans, Green and Company, announces its third annual playwriting contest. Awards will be made for a full-length play, a one-act Christmas play, and a religious play, either full-length or pageant.

The winning full-length play will be produced by the New York Theatre Guild; the Biblical play by the Pilgrim Players of Evenston, and the one-act play by the American Academy of Arts. Longmans, Green and Company will publish all the winning plays.

The announcement states that "The purpose of the contest is the discovery of new authors and the developement of native American drama." The contest is open to the public. December 31, 1929 is the last day for submitting manuscripts.

For the purpose af facilitating the judging of the contest, state judges have been appointed to select the winning manuscripts submitted to them, and send these to the national judges. Professor Frederick Koch of Chapel Hill is the judge for this state.

Pledges Entertain

The Chi Omega pledges gave a luncheon at the Carolina Inn yesterday at noon in honor of Elizabeth Murphey, Sydney Curry and the patronesses of the sorority.

Toasts were given by Catherine Sherrord, Mary Burrough and Kate Kitchen. Miss Sherrord officiated and presented the honoree with silver vanities. The others were presented with characteristic gifts accompanied by rhymes suitable to their personalities.

A four course luncheon was served. Twenty members and pledges were present including the patronesses who are Mrs. W. W. Pierson, Mrs. Don Coney, Mrs. Ernest Mackie, Mrs. A. H. Hobbs, Miss Nellie Graves and Mrs. Wallace Smith.

Faculty Luncheons

The hostess of the Graduate club is now ready to make engagements for the faculty luncheons. This has been for several years one of the many activities of the Graduate club which has not been seen by the students.

Last year arrangements were made so that the faculty of each department has one luncheon a week. Some of these luncheons were formal, some were informal and others were for business purposes. After luncheon the members of the faculty gathered in the reception room and discussed different phases of their work or amused themselves for one or two hours.

ST. HILDA'S GUILD TO MEET SUNDAY EVENING

St. Hilda's Guild will meet with Mrs. A. H. Lawrence Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. Supper will be served. This is a regular meeting of the Guild, the purpose of which is to discuss the furnishing of the rooms in the vestry. The program for the year will also be mapped out at this time. Several visitors will be present in addition to members.

Dr. Collier Cobb

Dr. Collier Cobb, eminent geologist and head of the department of geology of the University, who has recently done research work in connection with the migration of the Palatines to eastern America and North Carolina.

RED CROSS WORK GROWING RAPIDLY

Courses Are Given In Colleges and Universities Throughout America.

Addressing an audience at Harvard last summer, an official of the American National Red Cross observed that multitudinous forces were striving continuously to penetrate the surrounding walls of the country's educational system, to impress it in some way, influence its trends, or utilize it otherwise.

The fact that these well springs of education are so guarded makes it especially significant that the American Red Cross is accepted at increasingly numerous points of contact between its services and those of educational bodies and institutions throughout the nation.

This association of the Red Cross with the nation's educational programs begins with earliest school years, and flourishes in the highest institutions. It ranges through a variety of Red Cross services of intense practicality.

Today, in physical education departments of leading universities, the American Red Cross course in swimming and life saving; and first aid, is standard. Some of these courses originally were conducted by Red Cross representatives, are now continued under experts trained and qualified according to Red Cross requirements. Some of the best instructors in these subjects who have served on the Red Cross staff formerly were college athletes, members of swimming teams, crews, etc.

Women's colleges not alone have adopted the Red Cross courses in home hygiene and care of the sick; and nutrition, but many give credits for completion, including extension credits to teachers who take these courses.

Summer courses in the fundamentals of Junior Red Cross administration were given the past summer at 197 state universities and normal schools. The Junior Red Cross "credit course" was given this year at Teachers college, Columbia University, New York; George Peabody Institute. Nashville, Tenn.; University of Wisconsin, and University of California.

Another Red Cross summer

(Continued on page three)

BELL SPEAKS TO DEBATING CLASS

Dean Says Process of Experimental Verification Left to Rank and File of Scientists.

The University debate class held its weekly meeting Thursday night in 201 Murphey hall at 7:30. Dr. J. M. Bell, dean of the school of applied science, addressed the group on the subject of the functioning of the scientific mind in arriving at conclusions.

Dr. Bell called attention to the fact that in the field of science every principle needs to be verified to the uttermost. He contended that scientific advancement thus far has been due to the efforts of a few men who may be classed as geniuses. Such men have hit upon the big ideas and left the process of extended experimental verification to the rank and file of scientists.

The speaker reminded his audience that every now and then some principle which has been considered a fact for many years is subjected to doubt which leads people to experiment with a view to further verification. In the case that no error can be found in the principle, it is strengthened. In the case that the principle is disproved, a great contribution is made to science by the removal of the false idea.

In the opinion of Dr. Bell, the most effective way of debating is that of stating the principal idea and then finding facts to prove it.

Geology Professor Figures In Wreck

Professor J. C. Bynum of the Geology Department failed to attend classes Friday as the result of shock sustained in an automobile accident early Thursday night.

The wreck occurred when a Buick Sedan driven by Bynum and a Ford Coupe driven by F. G. Carlile of Greensboro and a salesman for the Swift Co. collided in front of the Episcopal church on West Franklin Street.

According to the police Carlile stated that he was driving east at a moderate rate of speed when he saw the car driven by Bynum approaching him and that he was prevented from driving to the side of the road by a wagon on the edge of the pavement.

The cars struck in the middle of the road crushing the left front wheel and fender of the Ford and the right front wheel and running board of the Buick. Police stated that Bynum then apparently lost control of the machine which careened to the opposite side of the pavement and struck a Buick Coupe and Ford Coupe parked in front of Mrs. Patterson's.

Local police stated that no cases would be made against the men.

Battle Guest Here

Kemp P. Battle of Rocky Mount spent Wednesday here as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. John Booker on Franklin street. Mr. Battle is a grandson of Kemp Plummer Battle, a former president of the University.

Slump In Cheering Due To Conflict Of Stimuli

The following article was written after an interview with Dr. A. M. Jordan, professor of educational psychology.

(By J. C. Williams)

Much is being said and quite a bit is being written about the alleged slump in Carolina's cheering section. Some blame the cheerleader; others attribute the lamentable condition to a lack of organization. Although these factors may have some influence, the essential features of the so-called "let-down" in cheering here can be explained in other terms.

Students of the University are more familiar with that part of the campus on which Emerson stadium is located than they are with the part where Kenan stadium is located. For this reason and because of its beauty also, the landscape surrounding the Kenan field wrests the attention of those students who come to cheer. Poor cheering is the result. Through the medium of sound the amplifiers which are new being used acquire their almost undivided attentions. How can anyone behold the beauty of a landscape, listen to an amplifier, watch the game, and cheer effectively at the same time? Due to the great beauty of Kenan field, the lure of its surroundings, and the recently established practice of using amplifiers, and larger crowds, would-be cheerers find it more difficult than ever before to concentrate on the business of yelling for the team. Moreover, the strength of multiplied suggestion is at its maximum when one is in a throng. This factor is very antagonistic to good cheering.

Generally speaking, the larger a crowd is, the freer people feel to give utterance to their feelings. To be heard in a crowd one shouts instead of merely speaking. To be seen the individual is prone to gesticulate rather than merely to move. Frantic demonstrations are habitually used to express the feelings of the crowd. These aforementioned exaggerated signs of emotion which characterize the crowds which attend our football games serve to exaggerate the student's state of mind. The unbridled actions of the crowd coupled with many simultaneous attractions produce in the human organism a competition and a conflict of stimuli which cause the mind of the student to shift from one thing to another in rapid succession. This is very obviously antagonistic to good cheering.

Furthermore, crowd conditions facilitate the circulation of feelings but hamper the circulation of ideas. The problem of the cheerleader, therefore, is greater now than it was when local football games were played on Emerson field. He finds it harder to get his ideas across now than ever before. Moreover, emotional expressions must be alike or they will neutralize each other. The student who seats himself in Kenan stadium to witness such a game as the Carolina-Georgia contest of last week is aroused from an auditory standpoint by the amplifier, in a visual way by a beautiful landscape, and in an emotional way by a boisterous throng. This

(Continued on page two)

Chase Declines To Make Statement On Carnegie Athletic Investigation

Details Indicate That Carolina Is Implicated Very Little; Heads of California, Ohio, Wesleyan, and Brown Deny Charges.

President Chase yesterday declined to comment on the Carnegie foundation's investigation of college athletics, until he had received and read an official copy of the report. Since the full report will not be out until December, Carolina students have a long time to wait before Dr. Chase says anything.

Meanwhile more detailed information indicates that Carolina is implicated very little in the practices whose revelation is arousing a storm of discussion in colleges and newspapers throughout the country.

Carolina is not among the 28 colleges where the Carnegie investigators did not find any evidence of commercialization, but no severe charges are made against the University. In fact, Carolina is mentioned only three times in the entire report, according to information given out yesterday in New York by the Carnegie foundation.

In the chapter on "The Coach in College Athletics" appears the statement that the head football coach at North Carolina and Ohio Wesleyan has assumed authority which theoretically belongs to the director of physical education.

The other two references are favorable to North Carolina. One says that here and at four other Southern Conference schools—Georgia, Georgia Tech, Tennessee and Tulane—regulation of athletics rests in the hands of faculty members whose principal duties are teaching, instead of in the hands of coaches.

North Carolina and seven other universities, says the report in another chapter, generally keep excellent account of all student athletic activities.

This and other information is being issued piecemeal by the Carnegie foundation. As information leaks out and makes the cases against some colleges blacker, their presidents take various attitudes. The heads of California, Ohio Wesleyan and Brown, for example denied the charges. Many presidents have followed Dr. Chase in refusing to say anything until the full report is made public.

Officials of Harvard, Princeton, Franklin and Marshall, and West Virginia assert that the objectionable practices have been stopped, either at the time when Carnegie investigators discovered them or since then.

A former president of Carolina, Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, now president of Virginia, expressed himself as extremely gratified that Virginia had received a clean bill of health. The president of Tulane, against which no charges were made either, echoed Dr. Alderman.

The University of North Carolina was the only college in the state which the Carnegie investigators visited. Nothing has been said about the situation at Duke, State, or any of the smaller North Carolina colleges.

All the state papers, in common with papers throughout the nation are devoting several columns a day to the report. In

(Continued on page two)

Grail Dance

The Order of the Grail will stage its second dance of the year tonight at 9 o'clock in Bynum gymnasium. Tickets will be placed on sale promptly at 8:15 o'clock tonight in the rear of the gymnasium. Only a limited number will be sold for the dance. All boys with girls can secure their tickets at the door. The usual rules of conduct will be enforced.

MARINE BAND TO PLAY HERE SOON

Noted Musical Organization To Be Here at the University On November 14.

Foremost among the military and concert bands of this country is the United States Marine band, which is to appear here in Kenan stadium on November 14. It will, no doubt, be greeted here with much acclaim, for everywhere, by its stirring concert performances, the Marine band has attracted large crowds.

Having been in existence for 128 years, the Marine band is the oldest military organization in America. As the official band of the United States Marine corps, it is the premier musical organization at Washington and plays in all state functions at the White House. Among its traditional duties are playing at the inauguration of presidents, welcoming kings, statesmen and other distinguished visitors to the capital, and leading parades down historic Pennsylvania avenue.

Through its long term of service the Marine band has grown into one of the finest bands in the entire world. It is noted for its high standard of musical excellence and in particular has won much fame for its spirited military march music. The Marine band numbers in its ranks some of America's best soloists. The five men who appear as individual performers may be expected to render the best in military music.

Until a few years ago the Marine band never played away from the capital. However, upon request President Taft granted permission for a tour of the south. The band met with such success that since then permission for tours has been given each year. Hence, it is by courtesy of the President that the Marine band will appear here on its annual tour. Many will welcome gladly this opportunity of hearing the "President's own band."

BERNARD TO CONDUCT SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS

Dr. W. S. Bernard will conduct the students' Sunday school class at the Methodist church next Sunday morning at 9:45. Dr. Bernard has been a successful teacher, and has attracted the largest Sunday school class in Chapel Hill. All students are invited by him to attend.

Walker Resumes Work

Dean N. W. Walker of the School of Education of the University, who has been confined to his home with influenza, is again able to meet classes.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
J. C. Williams

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan
Henry L. Anderson

REPORTERS
Howard Lee — Frank Manheim
Holmes Davis — Stowe Moody
Louis Brooks — Clyde Deitz
Charles Rose — George Sheram
Lawrence Harris — Robert Hodges
Mary Price — John Lathan
J. P. Tyson — B. H. Whitton
Browning Roach — Nathan Volkman
Al Lansford — George Stone
Joe Carpenter — Lawrence Miller
Peggy Lintner — Jack Riley
E. C. Daniel — T. E. Marshall
W. A. Shulenberger — R. T. Martin
G. E. French — J. S. Weathers
Stanley Weinberg

Saturday, October 26, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

The panning that the Buccaneer and the dramatic critics of the Tar Heel and Magazine are receiving proves that the campus is back to normal this year.

A full page is devoted to Governor Gardner in the Literary Digest this week, which indicates that as a publicity agent the Governor knows his public.

Crown Prince Humbert, of Italy, narrowly escaped death from the bullet of an assassin yesterday, and on the same day announced his engagement to Princess Marie Jose, of Belgium. The prince seems to have suffered a tough break all around.

Justice?

Monday seven strikers and strike leaders were found guilty at Charlotte on a charge of murdering Police Chief Aderholdt, and heavy sentences were imposed upon them by Judge E. V. Barnhill. Just four days later a Gaston county grand jury, convening at Gastonia, a few miles from Charlotte, released nine men who were arrested in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, a striker, and freed seven other men charged with kidnaping three National Textile Workers' union organizers.

It was indeed unfortunate, at least for the sake of appearances, that 16 men charged with brutally murdering one striker and flogging three others have been acquitted so soon after seven strikers were sentenced to serve a total of more than a hundred years in prison on charges of having committed a murder certainly no more reprehensible than the slaying of Mrs. Wiggins. Even to the most casual observer it occurs that the courts of North Carolina have laid themselves open to charges of gross maladministration of justice and the most narrow of prejudices.

Chief Aderholdt was killed when he led several officers against a band of strikers. He and his men were armed and perfectly capable of defending themselves. Indeed, there is some doubt as to whether the policemen or the strikers were the agressors. The killing of Mrs. Wiggins occurred when an alleged anti-communist mob turned back a truck-load of cotton mill strikers enroute to a meeting in Gastonia, followed them and later fired into the group, one of the bullets striking the woman and killing her almost instantly.

The murder of Chief Aderholdt was deplorable; that of Mrs. Wiggins utterly atrocious. In one case an officer was killed in line of duty; in the other a defenseless woman was cruelly murdered by a gang of "civic-minded" cut-throats. Yet public opinion in this state has been very severe in its denunciation of the slayers of Chief Aderholdt, while very little indeed has been said in censure of the men who murdered Mrs. Wiggins. And the courts seem to have acquiesced to the dictate of the blinded, utterly false and bigoted opinions of a rabidly anti-striker element in the state. While it is impossible to determine accurately the considerations which motivated the grand jury at Gastonia, it seems to us that its investigation was at best rather perfunctory.

There is every indication at present that a long and bloody war between labor and capital is to be fought with North Carolina as the battlefield. In all probability numerous other cases as serious as the Wiggins and Aderholdt affairs must be tried in the courts of North Carolina, and if they are conducted in the manner that marked the Charlotte and Gastonia trials the judicial system of North Carolina serve to retard rather than expedite final settlement of the issues at stake between the warring forces of labor and capital.

Carnegie Foundation Off On a Tangent

Andrew Carnegie had a very lofty purpose in view when he created the Carnegie Foundation and if we accept the recent investigations of that institution into the matter of subsidized football as indicative of a trend, we must admit that the leaders of the Foundation are not only living up to the ideals of Mr. Carnegie, but by their zealousness have become even more idealistic than he ever expected. Were that good old Scotchman to be here today he would be pleased to see how well his money is being spent.

The tenet of the Carnegie group all during the investigation was that amateurism in its narrow and impossible sense was desirable. Bill Tilden recently proved to an idealistic and arbitrary tennis board that strict amateurism is and has been genuinely dead for years. Now comes the Foundation with its brain-child deploring the abominable conditions existing in college athletics.

Baseball is the American sport, and yet the most rabid idealists have never dared to claim that paying the stars salaries, which make the pay check of the vice-president of the United States look like bridge stakes, detracts from the thrills, the cleanness, and the vitality of the game. But baseball in the big leagues is a professional sport! A question that can very well be asked is: whether the mere exchange of the wherewithal to feed, clothe and provide the necessities and a few of the pleasures of life for the consecration of a man's time to a sport make the one who gets something in return for all of his long hours of practice and playing and all of his charley-horses and bruises any less of an honorable man imbued with the ideal of clean sportsmanship than the one who receives nothing.

The phenomena of American education is the facility with which sons of farmers, mechanics, small merchants, and craftsmen can acquire the best in learning and culture. Trained from birth to meet "hard-knocks" these sons of toilers make as good or even better football men than the sons of more fortunate men. The amount of time required by self-help students to merely get along financially would make their playing football prohibitive were it not for this so called subsidizing, which is not recompense or pay, but identically the same kind of aid that every university extends to all its students through the medium of numerous scholarship funds. We need not go off our own campus to find worthy students of limited means, who in serving their institution in its various activities having no connection with athletics whatsoever are rewarded by being made the recipents of these scholarships. Going farther, there are countless students who occupy scholarships and contribute nothing more toward the honor of their schools than their high scholastic standing. The Carnegie Foundation overlooks the fact that modern education is interested not only in scholarship, but aims to encourage interest and taste for athletics and culture. If scholarships are awarded students for scholastic standing, there is no reason why the leaders in athletics should not receive them.

With the exception of some of the Canadian institutions named on the Foundation's white-list, it is a reasonable assumption that a good number of these schools were just inadvertently successful in disguising the aid extended to their athletes by them.

Strict amateurism like the chivalry of knighthood days is a thing of the past, paying huge salaries to football men over and above reasonable living expenses while at college, would demand investigation and condemnation. We have yet to hear of any institution with funds sufficient to carry out such a project, and no one needs defend Carolina for such a practice knowing the struggle the University has to barely secure operating expenses. Aiding a student who plays football is fully as commendable as aiding any other student.

Like many of whom the report of the Carnegie Foundation was no news and who feel that amateurism is a contradictory term we suggest that the Foundation turn its efforts to solving the crime, prohibition, tariff, and transportation problems of the country.—J. E. D.

THE THEATRE

By J. D. McNairy

The twenty-fourth bill of original folk plays presented by the Carolina Playmakers at the Playmaker theatre, October 24, 25, 26, at 8:30.

THE CASTS

The No 'Count Boy by Paul Green: Pheelie, Phoebe Harding; Enos, her beau, Howard Bailey; The No 'Count Boy, Holmes Bryson; An Old Negro Woman, Muriel Wolff.

Magnolia's Man by Gertrude Wilson Coffin: Mis' Tish, the village dressmaker, Gertrude Wilson Coffin; Newt Norris, local widower, Ted Wilson; Magnolia Starnes, a spinster, Muriel Wolff; Bartholomew M. Burgess, from Arkansas, Marvin Hunter.

Being Married by Catherine Wilson Nolen: Jim Ried, Milton Wood; Connie, his wife, Elzada Feaster; Pete Burch, Howard Bailey; Dora Farraday, Helen McKay; Penelope Sear, Anne Melick; Betty Holmes, Elizabeth Barber; Gertie Warens, Beth Colley.

When the last curtain was rung down on the Playmakers' production last night an enthusiastic audience left the theatre with the feeling that they had seen the most entertaining bill of plays yet produced by Carolina's most famous amateur group of dramatists. Perhaps other plays here have surpassed these in the portrayal of real "folksy" characters or in the faithful reproduction of life, but none have been better "theatre," none have entertained an audience better, and none have provided more spicy or more witty lines. The general excellency of the plays was increased by the marked ability of a well trained group of actors who put across a balanced program with pep and enthusiasm. With plays ranging from the negro life to our state high society of Chicago the ability of the group to do more than one thing was tested and found not to be wanting.

For the first time the Playmakers produced The No 'Count Boy, Paul Green's most popular comedy of negro life. Mr. Koch explained in the program that "although the characters are drawn to the life, the play is really a fantasy. The author reveals an uncanny insight into the character of the negro, and a rare feeling for the imagery and melody of his race." In the role of Pheelie, Phoebe Harding played her part with an effective understanding of the negro life; although her acting fluctuated, the general level was good. Howard Bailey acted his part with his usual consistency. Holmes Bryson walked off with the honors of the evening with his harmonica and his acting in the part of the no 'count boy. As the curtain went down, many experienced theatre goers around us exclaimed, "That is real acting."

By far the most witty one-act play we have seen is Magnolia's Man by Gertrude Wilson Coffin; the clever repartee of its lines, the friendliness of its atmosphere, its closeness to something genuine and representative of the mountain people make it a most successful production. Mrs. Coffin in the leading role of Mis' Tish, the village dressmaker, was by far the best actress in the entire bill. Never for a moment was she out of character, never did she falter in her lines, or make a false move; she brought the old dressmaker before us with a portrayal that was truly deceptive. Ted Wilson, Muriel Wolff, and Marvin Hunter all kept their character and spoke their lines with precision and with a typical mountain accent.

Being Married, a domestic comedy with a bit of sparkle comedy completed the bill. This is the second of Mrs. Nolan's society plays written for the Playmakers. While the name could be improved a bit, we doubt if the acting or the lines would gain much by reworking. The whole thing was polished and run off with a smoothness that characterizes good productions. The plot centers around Jim Ried who cannot earn enough money to support his wife in Chicago and his efforts to get out of his situation. Elzada Feaster as Mrs. Ried did the most distinctive work of the play; her fine looks and good voice made her fitted to the part of a successful society lady. Milt Wood as Jim Ried split second honors with Anne Melick as Penelope Sears. Milt's restraint and poise were as pleasing as Anne's clever way af getting off her wise-cracks. Helen McKay, Elizabeth Barber, and Beth Colley played the parts of typical bridge and club women with their southern drawl effectively overhauled into the Chicago accent.

This was the first chance of the play goers to see the work of Elmer Hall, the new technical director of the Playmakers. His sets drew much favorable comment.

CHASE DECLINES TO MAKE A STATEMENT

(Continued from page one)

their editorial comments the papers express pleasure that the situation at Carolina has been found so clean. The Charlotte Observer, for example, says:

"President Chase and other officials of the state university at Chapel Hill are marking time on the college athletics report of the Carnegie Foundation, preferring to read over the printed document before expressing an opinion. The report has nothing harmful to say of athletics practiced at North Carolina. It might be interesting to state that the Carnegie's inquiry into American college sports entailed visits to over 130 colleges, schools and universities, and involved the cooperation of more than 2,000 persons. Only two of the 130 institutions approached did not cooperate fully."

"What of it?" is the comment most students and athletic officials make to the stories of scholarships, subsidies and soft jobs for football players. "Everybody knew that all along. And what's so terrible about it?"

"Those football players," remarked one junior, "lay off candy, smokes, parties, booze, and then they go out and kill themselves on the field when Saturday comes. They deserve something for it."

Rex Enright, freshman football coach, slipped the following comment by Ed Danforth from the Atlanta Constitution. It expresses the prevailing attitude toward the Carnegie revelation.

"Everybody knew that star high school football and baseball players were given jobs, scholarships, or other inducements to attend certain colleges. But as long as the practice did not lead to the production in our colleges of thieves, thugs, and the like, we do not mind.

"With all the laughter that will follow this 'expose' of college athletics—it is just about as startling as the profound announcement that Easter bunnies do not lay eggs—good may come of the whole clumsy matter. It may curb the pernicious activities of 'new' schools that frankly are recruiting athletes for the advertising value inherent in a good football team.

"It may result in the eradication of extreme cases. And finally it may suggest to some college executives that the way to keep athletics pure is to raise the scholastic requirements a bit."

Slump in Cheering Due To Conflict of Stimuli

(Continued from page one)

conflict of stimuli is bound to place a damper on cheering efficiency. Under such conditions individuality tends to wilt. Since organization is dependent upon individuality blended into oneness of purpose, these attractions are detrimental to the "yelling" cause.

Finally, the trend of human nature is away from loud vocal demonstrations of approval or disapproval. People no longer cheer the speaker who merely makes a big fuss. Time was when the most civilized of men and women could look at the fiercest of bull fights without any show of emotions. The time is also coming when cultured mankind will shudder at the thought of a prize fight. In other words, the urge which displays itself in the form of vocal boisterousness is disappearing.

There were ten members of the summer school faculty in 1908.

FOR RENT

One hot air room, furnished. 2 blocks from Franklin Street. Apply Woltz's Coffee Shoppe, or 208 Pritchard Ave.

DR. R. R. CLARK
DENTIST
Office Over Bank of Chapel Hill
Telephone 385

WHEN IN DURHAM
meet and eat at the
Silver Moon Cafe
Opposite Bus Station
DURHAM, N. C.

Did You Know That

THE AVERAGE BOY EATS AT THE UNIVERSITY CAFETERIA FOR LESS THAN

$27.50 A Month

Come to See Us About Our Plan

Tar Heel vs. Gobbler

Don't Miss That, But Remember—

Next to Seeing a Great Football Game,
The Best Thing Is

HEARING IT PLAY BY PLAY
Over the Incomparable
ATWATER KENT
Electro Dynamic Radio

The World of Music and Sport at Your Finger Tips Immediate Delivery at

Electric & Water Division
University Consolidated Service Plants
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

Tar Heel-Gobbler Encounter Attracts Much Attention

CAROLINA SEEKS REVENGE FOR DEFEAT AT HANDS OF TECHNICIANS LAST YEAR

Pony Express Backfield Men Outweigh Carolina's Ten Pounds to the Man; Lines More Even.

Embittered by defeat, a new University of North Carolina football team awaits for the opening whistle against V. P. I. at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon to make reparations for misplays last Saturday against Georgia, and last year against today's opponent.

Fit and ready, the Tar Heels boast full strength for the combat with the heralded Gobblers. The line against which Georgia Tech hurled its forces fruitlessly prepares to take the field full force against the Virginia eleven. In the backfield, a tried quartet makes ready to match speed with the Flying Gobblers.

Boasting a backfield outweighing the Tar Heel backs ten pounds to the man, the V. P. I. eleven looks forward to completing the destruction made last week by Georgia's sophomore aggregation. McCauley McEver, brother of Gene McEver, Tennessee's flying halfback, Phil Spear, Mit Owens and Bird Hooper, complete a backfield which terrorized Pennsylvania supporters throughout a hectic 14-6 loss earlier in the season. Tommy Tomko, halfback, is the reserve threat.

Concentration on defense drew the major portion of last week's practice sessions. Every combination was tried in an effort to prevent a repitition of weakness displayed last week. A light workout yesterday completed preparations for the fray.

Johnny Branch, sophomore flash, will probably general the Tar Heels today, with Nash and Ward starting at the halves, and Spaulding at full. Henry House, flashy fullback, is due to be back in shape to lend drive to the attack. "Ten-yard" Jim Magner, who has carried the ball 30 times for 316 yards this season, is in fine shape and is expected to be one of the biggest threats to counterbalance McEver and the fast V. P. I. crew.

Speculation was rife yesterday as to how the two lines will stack up. Dex Hubbard, the lightest man in the Gobbler line, but one of the most aggresive guards ever produced at V. P. I., is to be the only man who helped Frank Peake and the Pony Express to a 16-14 victory here last year. Nutter and Pattie, ends; Stark and Swart, tackles; Jones, guard, and Wimmer, center, will all be new men on Carolina soil.

Can't Swim; Looks For Life Preserver

Students in Dormitory "G" looked perplexed yesterday when asked by Carson C. Tatum, 307 of the same building, for a life preserver. But the Salisbury youth explained half-seriously that he was in earnest, because if the present rainstorm continued as long and as much as the last one, his life was in danger while wading to and from classes. "You see, I can't swim very well," he said.

Intramural Results

Results of Intramural games: Steele, 6; Carr, 0.

The following games were won by forfeits: "F" over "J"; Ruffin over Old East; Mangum over "I"; Old West over "G"; Kappa Sigma 0, Zeta Psi 12. The latter is a postponed game, played off yesterday.

Pete Wyrick

Pete Wyrick, veteran quarterback, who has been out nearly all season on account of back injuries, will probably see service this afternoon against V. P. I.

Shelton Comments On Student Cheers

A. L. Shelton in his sports column in the Greensboro Record has the following to say about Carolina's cheering this fall.

"The importance of a cheering section to the success of a football team is a matter which long has been the subject of dispute, but its importance to the spectators and to the college traditions is unchallenged.

"The boys on the field may never hear their classmates in the stands giving them that "Yea, team," but a game in which it isn't given is a cold and bloodless affair hardly worth the name. Moreover, a man likes to remember that he once yelled that sort of thing. The cheerios are a necessary part of the traditions of most colleges.

"Most colleges, mind you. They could hardly be a tradition or any large part of campus life at Carolina, and that's because the cheering sections there are very close to complete nil—a dead loss.

"Not that the Tar Heel students haven't got the spirit. Everyone knows they are all broken out with it. If they had anymore they might make themselves sick with depression over a defeat or swoon with exuberance and get the campus all littered up after a victory. They have the spirit, but they can't possibly cheer effectively to show it—which, after all, is what cheering is for. Because they can't, the games at Chapel Hill are devoid of one beautiful shade of what the descriptive writers call color.

"We wish the student body at Carolina would organize itself into cheering sections, as is done at other large institutions. As it is, the students are scattered thinly about, intermingling in the stands with soap salesmen, bankers, grocerymen, dowagers and debutantes. The cheer leaders are posted out in front where they labor bravely but vainly to coax something in the nature of a great big yell from the conglomeration. It can't be done, it can't be done.

"Few people ever have attended a football game in a more beautiful setting than Kenan stadium affords. It dips down into a great natural bowl, the stands overlooking a marvelously kept field. Everything is perfect—until you hear the first attempt at cheering. That puts a dent into the days pleasure.

Hypnotism is now being used in place of an anesthetic in surgical operations.

(By "Hank" Anderson)

Although the big Blue and White team is expected to take the Gobblers in tow, there is every indication of a hard scrap. The majority of the bets seem to give the Tar Heels a two to one margin or either an even bet allowing V. P. I. one touchdown. So far this season Carolina has been extremely weak in extra points, and that was the cause of the Gobbler victory last year.

Both teams are rated as having excellent offensive teams but little is being broadcast concerning defense. At Georgia Tech, Carolina displayed one of the best lines in the south. Against Georgia is was extremely mediocre. Although reports credit the Carolina line with improvement there is not much enthusiasm being shown over the prospects of another such line as met Georgia Tech.

Pete Wyrick entered into scrimmage for a few minutes Thursday and Collins says that Wyrick will probably see action for a part of the game, anyhow, today. Although Johnnie Branch is hailed as a second Stumpy Thomason, those that have been following the game closely at the Hill agree that the veteran Wyrick will greatly strengthen the offensive as well as the defensive ability of the team merely by his experience.

As this game with V. P. I. approaches and reports are being given out from the rival camps we are reminded, by news from V. P. I., of the prophecies previous to the Carolina-Maryland clash. Preceding that game Coach Byrd said that Carolina had the best team in the South Atlantic states. Some thought this merely issued for its psychological effect on the Carolina team. Now Coach Gustafson of V. P. I. is issuing statements. Although he doesn't go as far as Coach Byrd he predicts a Carolina victory by three touchdowns. This brings us back to psychology again. Does he mean it? The students of N. C. U. will probably agree just to keep things friendly, but it would be easier to believe in a smaller score and be pleasantly surprised by a true prophecy on the part of the Gobbler coach.

Clemson defeated South Carolina last Thursday, 21-14. In view of our approaching game with South Carolina it might help us in the prediction to note that: Rhames and Boineau intercepted Clemson passes and made long runs for touchdowns. South Carolina's fumbles put Clemson in a scoring position. The South Carolina team is light, but fast and shifty.

In the Carnegie investigations which have been holding the headlines of all the state papers recently, we find that the University is mentioned three times. No direct charge is made against Carolina for subsidizing athletes. The first time it is mentioned is where it refers to the "Coach in "Athletics." At North Carolina the head coach is in charge of physical education. Another section contains a reference to U. N. C. "Generally state universities appear to keep excellent account of all student athletic activities." Carolina is listed in these Universities. "Five members of the Southern

Prediction of Games

(By J. C. Eagles)

In accordance with the practice begun this fall the Tar Heel will attempt to pick the winners in the largest games on schedule in the south today.

Doubtless the game of most importance to fans in this section is that which will be played in Kenan stadium this afternoon. Carolina, ready to avenge last year's loss, will give V. P. I. a stiff battle with their full strength available for the first time in three weeks. Reports from the Virginia team say that it is even stronger than last fall. Perhaps the absence of Peake will be sorely felt, but the team as a whole is a better rounded aggregation. There is little doubt that the Tar Heels will be able to give them a better fight than they did last season. Accordingly we pick Carolina to win over the cadets. In our opinion the great reserve strength of the Collinsmen will be the chief factor in turning the tide of victory.

Georgia Tech, seemingly a different team since the Tar Heels made them wake up and play football, meets Tulane, as yet undefeated. Thomason and Mizell will be matched against the great Banker, Tulane's stellar ball carrier. Tech's decisive victory over the Florida 'Gators last Saturday makes them favorites to win since Tulane, though yet to be defeated, cannot boast a victory over such a strong team.

Duke again goes north to meet a strong foe in Villanova. The early season record of the Blue Devils is admittedly unfavorable but some consolation can be gathered from the fact that their opponents have been among the most powerful teams in the country. Villanova is no exception to this rule. Undefeated last season, the Pennsylvanians have another well rounded eleven. Duke has resorted to its passing attack as its chief threat so far this fall. However since the loss to Navy, Dehart has been drilling his men in an effort to strengthen his running offense and this type of play will probably characterize the Blue Devils' play this afternoon. In spite of the alleged improvement of the Duke team the Tar Heel predicts that the Villanova eleven will defeat them.

Georgia's Bulldogs, conquerors of the Tar Heels, go south to Jacksonville today to battle the Florida 'Gators. Perhaps this game holds more general interest to fans all over the Southern Conference than any other battle scheduled for this afternoon. In the 'Gators the Bulldogs will meet a foe worthy of their best efforts. Weakened to some extent by the loss of one or two varsity men the Florida team still has an array of star performers who can match anything that Georgia may offer along the football line. Crabtree and Van Sickle are undoubtedly two of the most outstanding men in the Southern Conference at quarterback and end respectively. On the other hand the Georgians have a wonderfully hard charging line, strong all the way through and flanked by excellent ends. In Rothstein and Waugh, they present two backs of great ability. So far this fall the record of the Bulldogs is more impressive than that of the 'Gators. However, Florida has the advantage in that her men are much more experienced, Georgia's entire line being composed almost of sophomores. Weighing the dope on both sides as impartially as possible we venture to predict that Florida will nose out the Georgians.

Davidson and Wake Forest will hold the stage as the only two teams among the Big Five in this state to battle each other. Starting off rather inauspiciously each team seems to have gained strength as the season progressed. At first glance there appears little to choose between the two elevens. Neither has any stars of exceptional ability but each team presents a fairly well rounded team. Perhaps the Wildcats have the edge on the Deacons in general all round play and for this reason we pick them as the potential winners. However, the rivalry is keen and there will be a great fight before either of them emerges as the victor.

Tennessee and Kentucky, both potential candidates for the southern crown, seem certain to maintain their undefeated records today when they meet Washington and Lee and Centre respectively.

I'LL WHIP VIRGINIA BEFORE I DIE

PLAYS WITH CAROLINA ONE YEAR; V. P. I. NEXT

1905 PLAYER AVENGES OLD GRUDGE

This afternoon's clash of backfield aces in the Carolina-V. P. I. football battle in Kenan Memorial stadium here recalls one of the south's greatest ball-carriers of all time who once played for both Carolina and V. P. I. during the days when players could do such things.

Hunter Carpenter he was by name. He played first at Carolina, then at V. P. I., and wherever he went he usually swung the tide of victory. He has been a favorite pick with the national grid experts for the mythical All-Time honors.

The story goes that young Carpenter, husky built and with a natural bent for carrying a football, developed a grudge against his first Alma Mater, Virginia, and swore to play football until he whipped the Cavaliers on the gridiron.

Carpenter came to the University of North Carolina in the fall of 1904, and inspired and aided by his great ground-gaining the Tar Heels swept through their first six games undefeated and without yielding their opponents a score. They dropped two bitterly fought games to Georgetown and Virginia to close the season, and Carpenter transferred to V. P. I. in 1905 in a further effort to whip Virginia.

It seemed, too, that Carpenter carried the scales of victory, for the Tar Heels had whipped the Gobblers 6 to 0 in 1904. The next year, led by the same smashing halfback, V. P. I. came down and won the annual battle 35 to 6.

RED CROSS WORK IS GROWING RAPIDLY

(Continued from page one)

course in the atmosphere of a center of higher learning was afforded at the University of North Carolina, where Red Cross representatives gave first aid instruction, first to a police officers group, which so impressed the heads of the institution as to lead them to request special lectures to a class of athletic coaches, composed of students from nine states.

These university contacts of the Red Cross are fitting capstones to foundations laid in the primary grades, and extending through high school and preparatory years, modifications of the aforementioned Red Cross courses being used, with credits granted by a number of schools for completion.

The combination of infusion of ideals of service with practical instruction enabling the individual student to render such service in a material as well as spiritual sense, makes the appeal of the Red Cross. It leads, as the student matures, to a deeper interest frequently exemplified in community service in later life. Here too, the Red Cross stands ready, its local chapters the medium for such service.

Strength of Red Cross activities is measured by general Red Cross membership, enrolled annually from November 11 to 28.

MEDICAL FRATERNITY INITIATES TEN MEN

The Phi Chi medical fraternity announces the initiation of the following men: Rufus Reid Little, Robert M. Oliver, Jr., William O'Kelly Fowler, Robert Wallace Wilkins, James Brownlee Hall and James Annerston Turner.

A Correction

The Daily Tar Heel begs to correct an article which appeared in yesterday's issue stating that Professor Murchison accompanied Dr. Carroll to Raleigh to attend a Supreme Court hearing. It was Professor M. D. Taylor, and not Professor Murchison.

FULL LINE
Loose-Leaf Level Back
NOTE BOOKS
Students' Supply Store
"Everything in Stationery"

CAROLINA THEATRE
TODAY
INA CLAIRE
in
"The Awful Truth"
Added
All Talking Comedy
Vitaphone Vaudeville
MONDAY
Gloria Swanson
in
"THE TRESPASSER"

FANCY ICES SHERBETS
DURHAM ICE CREAM CO., Inc.
"Blue Ribbon Brand"
ICE CREAM
DURHAM, N. C.
BLOCKS "Won its Favor-by its Flavor" PUNCH

Dr. Collier Cobb Describes Migration Of The Palatines

(By Dr. Collier Cobb)

Each one of us is an omnibus on which all his ancestors ride; and the direction we take and the speed we make depends on which forefather is driving.

The hold that heredity has on us, stated in the first clause of the sentence, must bring us pause and thought when we consider the second clause. Which ancestor is driving us?

A principle known as Mendel's Law, governing the inheritance of many characters in plants and animals, was discovered by Gregor J. Mendel, an Austrian abbot, about the time that Charles Darwin was making his studies of plants and animals under domestication. As a result of his breeding experiments with peas he showed that height, color, and other characters depend on the presence of determining factors behaving as units and that the second and later generations exhibit these characteristics in all possible combinations, each combination in a different proportion of individuals.

Power of Environment

But this law does afford a chance at saving grace to every one; for even among the great from whom many in this society are descended, men whose Mr. Hyde was as much in evidence at the start as their Dr. Jekyl, there have come unbroken lines of high-minded men and women.

We are all what we are largely because we are where we are. This is a very definite statement of the influence of environment. Many human geographers and and sociologists today are disposed to see environmental control rather than the influence of environment, following not far off the thesis of Henry Thomas Buckle in his "History of Civilization in England," a book that created as much discussion and as much opposition as "The Origin of Species," which appeared at about the same time. But it will not do to hold altogether with these people, or with their next of kin, the behaviorists.

Where Man Came From

The Palatinate was a name applied to two little countries of the old German Empire, the Upper Palatinate and the Lower or Rhonish Palatinate, which were politically connected until 1620. The Palatinate was originally a feudal district whose ruler, the Count Palatine, a prince of the Holy Roman Empire, exercised all the prerogatives of a king. These Counts Palatine were so paternal in their government, that their people—rather than subjects—took pride in calling themselves the Palatines.

The Lower Palatinate (Unterpfalz), was made up of territory on both sides of the Rhine, embraced roughly within the space marked off by the cities of Mainz, Worms, Heilbronn, Landau, and Zweibrucken. It included the Electoral Palatinate—with Heidelberg, and for a time Mannheim, as its capital; the Principality of Simmern, the Duchy of Zweibrucken Deux ponts), the Principalities of Veldenz and Lautern, and some others. Its capital was Heidelberg.

First Count Palatine

The first Count Palatine of the Rhine was Henmann I., who ruled from 945 until 996, and although the office was not hereditary it appears to have been held mainly by his descendants until the death of Count Hermann III., in 1155. In 1155 the German king, Frederick I., appointed his step-brother Conrad as Count Palatine. In 1214, on the death of the reigning count, the Palatine was given by the German king Frederick II. to Otto, the infant son of Louis I., duke of Bavaria. The Palatinate was ruled by Louis of Bavaria on behalf of his son until 1228, when it passed to Otto who ruled until his death in 1253.

When the possessions of the house of Wittelsbach were divided in 1255 and the branches of Bavaria and the Palatinate were founded, dispute arose over the exercise of the electoral vote, and the question was not settled until in 1356 the Golden Bull bestowed the privilege upon the Count Palatine of the Rhine, who exercised it until 1623. The Palatinate was divided into four parts among the sons of the German king Rupert in 1410, but in 1559, on the extinction of the senior line, Frederick, Count Palatine of Simmern, succeeded to the Palatinate, becoming the elector Frederick III.

Introducing Frederick III.

This Frederick III. was the elector who introduced Calvinism in the Palatinate and made it the established religion. Under his direction the Heidelberg Catechism was drawn up (1563). He also aided the French Huguenots and extended his protection to Protestant refugees of every sect, especially to the Protestants of France. He was often called by his admirers the Alfred the Great of the Palatinate. Under his kindly rule Lutherans, Presbyterians and Anabaptists flourished, notwithstanding severe Calvanism which was the theology of the established or Reformed Church.

During the wars of Louis XIV. the Palatinate, one of the richest and most fertile lands in Germany, was mercilessly devastated by the French armies in 1674 and 1689. In 1685 the Simmern line died out and was succeeded by the collateral line of Neuburg, whose members were of the Catholic faith. This led to the emigration in 1709-10, of a large number of Protestant inhabitants (estimated at 13,000) to England. These went at the special invitation of Queen Anne, who was seeking desirable subjects to train in British ways and later send to her colonies in America. In England these people from the Palatinate were pitiable objects of English charity and at the same time creators of serious discontent among the English poor; for bread was scarce and commanding double price, while these foreigners were supported by public collections and by the Queen. It is not surprising that they are so often spoken of as "the poor Palatines."

How They Migrated

In England these people lived in tents from the early summer of 1709 until they sailed in mild weather in January, 1710. From there a large body crossed over to Ireland, while others went to North Carolina, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. In 1710 between 3000 and 4000 Palatines, as they were called, settled in Columbia and Ulster counties, New York, whence many removed to Montgomery and Herkimer counties, to the region around Worcester, Massachusetts, and to Pennsylvania. For more than a century these good people continued to come to the United States, and a colony of Palatines settled in New Jersey as late as 1850, finding there some who had come a hundred years earlier.

Baron Christopher de Graffenreidt and Ludwig Michel, who had been attracted to North Carolina by their previous association with the now deceased Duke of Albemarle, found these "poor Palatines" in England "intermingled with Swiss and people from several of the German provinces!" "He and Mitchell," Dr. Vass tells us, "were looking for a profitable speculation, and ready to grapple with this problem for a consideration. It was understood that "the Queen would not only assume the expense of their transportation, but also bestow upon them considerable assistance. This really took place; and this last sum amounted to 14,000 pounds sterling!

"Other advantageous promises gilded the enterprise. Between DeGraffenreid and the Lords Proprietors was drawn up an elaborate contract, which still exists. His pay was five and a half pounds apiece for six hundred and fity Palatines transported to North Carolina—more than $18,000. Liberal provision was made for their comfort on arrival, and for their support for a year in their new homes. . . . . Young people, healthy and laborious, and of all kinds of occupations, were selected, and ample provision was made for their comfortable voyage in well-equipped ships. De Graffenreid appointed three directors, notables from North Carolina, then in London, one of whom seems to have been Lawson, the surveyor-general; for he could not himself sail with them, as he had to await his colonists from Bern."

In the group then were French Protestants from Guienne and from Gascony, a few French Swiss, and German Swiss, and Germans from beyond the Palatinate. One of these young Germans was a son of August Hermann Francke, professor of Oriental languages—changed to to professorship of theology in 1698—at Halle, a pupil of Spener and the teacher of Zinzondorf. Professor Francke was a pietist preacher, whose activity, however, took the practical direction of founding, endowing, and organizing schools for the religious training of the poor and neglected children of his city and its surrounding country.

Taught Them Practical Things

Nor did Francke overlook their more material needs of a practical sort. He set up a printing office for his boys, and opened an apothecary's shop. He had them instructed in the natural sciences and in their native language. He gave them systematic physical exercises, and had them instructed in manual trades. All his foundations exist at the present time, and several thousand pupils annually receive instruction in the buildings grouped around the Francke Platz in Halle. A bronze statue of the founder adorns the center of the square.

The pietist preacher had been in correspondence with Cotton Mather about the chance his son Johann—already a man—might have to make a man of himself in New England; and Hans was now in London ready to sail for Boston. But fate decreed otherwise. Hans saw among the poor Palatines a beautiful girl named Sevil Muller; and New Bern, rather than Boston, became the destination of John Martin Francke, and Sevil Muller was his destiny. Sevil Muller was the daughter of Jacob and Katherine Muller, who came with their children to New Bern from the Palatinate in 1710.

Francke had with him his surveying instruments, and he brought along many small wares that he thought might be useful to colonists. He went up one bank of the Trent river and down the other, starting out with his surveyor's compass on his shoulder and his peddler's pack on his back. He returned to New Bern in less than two years, with a fine estate called Little Germany not far from the head of the river, with land on both sides of the Trent, and with his pockets full of ready money. He was almost immediately elected a member of the General Assembly of 1712, and he returned to New Bern as a justice of the peace. His sons took wives from the best that the colony afforded; and his wife's brothers, the Muller-Jacob, John, and Philip—have also an honorable part in building up this and other states.

Where Descendants Are Found

Descendants of de Graffonreidt and of Michel are found throughout our broad land, numbering among them many of the old Huguenot and other French Protestant families. Many French Protestants who fled to the Netherlands afterwards found their way to our country.

At Old Mankin in King William County, Virginia, were three hundred families with Claude Phillipe de Richbourgh as their pastor. He afterwards led many of the mto New Bern, and later to a South Carolina home, meeting there a stream of good men and women who had come direct from the French Holland settlement in 1686. These and many other French colonists in America, as well as other German colonists, are often mistakenly called Palatines.

In the middle of the XVIII century, however, many people from the Palatinate moved on down through Virginia and into Piedmont North Carolina; and their descendants are today the leaders in everything worth while in the up-country of both Carolinas. Gaston, Lincoln, Catawba, Caldwell, Cabarrus, Cleveland, Rowan, also in Guilford, Alamance and Randolph—practically all of our piedmont counties—are the better for their presence. They are scattered over South Carolina, particularly in the northwest, and a number of the people of Charleston and Savannah have kindred from the Palatinate. French Protestants from Guienne and Gascony.

DR. DABNEY DOING RESEARCH WORK HERE

Dr. Charles W. Dabney, formerly president of the University of Tennessee and later president of the University of Cincinnati and at one time a professor of chemistry here, is spending some time in Chapel Hill doing historical research work in the University library.

Dr. Dabney has an enviable record as a scientist and educator. In addition to having served as president of two universities, he has served as state chemist, as a director of the United States agriculture experiment station, and is said to have been instrumental in the writing of the charter for what is now State college.

EYES CORRECTLY FITTED
W. B. SORRELL

Don't Experiment with your Appearance

ESTABLISHED 1896 QUALITY VALUE SERVICE LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

The Daily Tar Heel

Is An Unusual

ADVERTISING MEDIUM

BECAUSE

It Reaches All Chapel Hill

EVERY DAY

Patronize Our Advertisers

The Daily Tar Heel

TAR HEEL STAFF MEETING
7:00 P. M.
ALUMNI BUILDING

The Daily Tar Heel

GO TO CHURCH TODAY
COMPLETE PROGRAMS
OF CHURCHES ON PAGE 2

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SUNDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1929 | NUMBER 33

Carolina Runs Roughshod Over V. P. I., 38-13

Northern Papers Continue To Feature Carnegie Probe; Carolina Is Not Implicated

Fetzer and Collins Declare University Involved Very Little In Accusations of Professionalism; Interest Wanes In Southern Colleges.

Interest in the Carnegie investigation of college athletics is rapidly dying down on the Carolina campus and throughout the South, as it becomes clear that Carolina is implicated not at all and most other southern colleges very little in the dishonest practices denounced by the Carnegie investigators.

"It doesn't concern us," is the attitude University athletic officials are taking toward the investigation. Students have almost stopped talking about it, and the Raleigh Times was the only North Carolina paper in which references to the scandal could be found yesterday.

Featured in North

Protests by college officials and additional scandal from the offices of the Carnegie foundation are still being featured in Northern papers, however, as the athletic situation in many northern colleges is involved very deeply in commercialization.

"I don't see why the Carnegie people have given out this information before their investigation is finished," said Coach Robert A. Fetzer, director of athletics, when questioned yesterday. "To me it seems half-baked, but I can't see how it will harm the University.

"The investigators came down here some time ago," he continued, "and we cooperated with them in every way we could. They haven't said anything detrimental to the University as far as I can see. In fact they mention North Carolina only once.

Criticisms Unwarranted

"The newspapers said the director of athletics here had taken over duties the director of physical education should rightfully have. As a matter of fact, we really have no department of physical education; if the athletic association is trying to take its place, that should have brought us favorable comment instead of criticism."

Professor Robert D. W. Connor, a member of the faculty committee on athletics, declined to say anything about the Carnegie investigation. "It doesn't involve us and the less said about it the better," he remarked.

The other member of the faculty athletic committee, Professor Herman G. Bailey, could not be reached yesterday. President Chase continued to hold the silence he has maintained since the preliminary announcement of the report was made public. In common with other coaches throughout the nation, head football Coach C. C. Collins was too busy in connection with yesterday's football game to bother with the Carnegie investigation.

DR. STUHLMAN ATTENDS WASHINGTON EXERCISES

Dr. and Mrs. Otto Stuhlman left yesterday for Washington, D. C., to attend the presentation of the grain of radium to Madame Currie. This is to be a very great occasion and Dr. Stuhlman will represent the national research council.

Dr. and Mrs. Stuhlman are expected back in Chapel Hill on Monday.

Football Scores

North Carolina 38 - V. P. I.13
Virginia 32 - St. Johns 0
Mich. State 40 - N. C. State 6
Tulane 20 - Ga. Tech 14
Florida 18 - Georgia 6
Yale 21 - Army 14
Wake Forest 6 - Davidson 0
V. M. I. 11 - Maryland 6
Alabama 35 - Sewanee 7
Tennessee 33 - W. andL.0
Notre Dame 7 - Carnegie 0
Villanova 58 - Duke 12

ENGINEERS ARE BACK FROM TOUR

Senior Electrical Engineers Visit Charlotte, Badin, and Norwood.

The senior class in electrical engineering and three professors of the department returned Friday night from a two day trip during which they attended the meeting of the North Carolina branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers held at Charlotte and made inspections of several electrical developments in the state.

The entire class attended the meetings of the Institute Wednesday evening and Thursday. After the regular inspection of the Mountain Island Hydro-electric Station and the Riverbend Steam Plant, which was a part of the program of the Institute's meeting, the group made inspection trips of the Carolina Light and Power Company's station at Norwood and the plant of the Aluminum Company of America at Badin.

Members of the class report that during their entire trip they were treated with the utmost courtesy by officials of the companies which they visited.

The inspection of the two Duke Power Company projects at mountain Island and Riverbend were made as a part of the program of the regular state meeting. The Riverbend Steam Plant was recently completed and is now the largest steam plant for the making of electricity in the South. The ultimate capacity of the plant is four times its present capacity.

On the way back from Charlotte, the group stopped at the Norwood Station of the Carolina Light and Power Company at Norwood, a few miles from Albemarle. One member of the party reported that a novel feature of this development is that the generating units instead of being covered as in most plants are exposed on the back of the dam.

The class plans to attend the next meeting of the North Carolina branch of the A. I. E. E. which is to be held in Raleigh next spring.

Statistics on North Carolina-V. P. I. Game

	N. C.	V. P. I.
Yards gained thru line	185	42
Yards gained around end	31	3
Passes attempted	10	32
Passes completed	7	9
Passes intercepted by other team	2	6
Yardage on passes	117	215
Penalties:	65	15
Average distance punts	39	38
Yardage on returning other team's punts	27	20
First downs	17	9

New University Library Stimulates Development Of Special Collections

Southern Historical and State Rural Social-Economics Collections are Being Built Up.

By J. P. Huskins

The dedication of the University of North Carolina's new Library, with its enlarged housing capacity and greater facilities, asures increased activity in the building up of two important book collections—the North Carolina and the Rural Social-Economics collections.

The modern trend in educational practice shows that the day of the large private library is passing. Fewer and fewer men are able to purchase the swiftly growing number of publications in their fields. It is the practice nowadays for the universities to gather for common use all important books of the past and present related to a particular field. It is in this fashion that the North Carolina and the Rural Social-Economics collections have grown up.

The North Carolina Collection

For the past twenty-five years the University has been actively engaged in the building up of the North Carolina collection. At present this assortment of historical material represents some 40,000 volumes.

The movement proper had its beginning with the completion of

(Continued on page two)

Local Negro Beats Up White Man Who Insulted His Mule

'You can't kid a nigger about his mule' is an old axiom of the South. But evidently Clyde Wheat did not know it or chose to disregard it, and as a result he is suffering from a much battered and bruised head.

It all started when Wheat, local white man, began to guy Harvey Williams about his whiskers. Wheat was drunk and Williams was sick, so the negro chose to ignore the remarks. But Wheat met his Waterloo when he asked Williams who owned the mule he was driving.

"Ain't none of yoh business," Williams retorted verbally, and as that did not seem sufficient he leaped off his wagon and crowned the too verbose Wheat with a lump of coal from a most handy coal bin nearby.

The affray took place in front of the police station while the minions of the law were at the football game yesterday. Deputy Sheriff Hearn happened to be in the office, and promptly arrested the men.

They were later released on a $100 bond until court Monday in order that Wheat might get aid for his head.

'Protective Tariff' Is Hailed As Great Benefit To U. S. Workers

Editor's note: This article was written by an undergraduate in an effort to refute the arguments of E. J. Woodhouse, University professor of government, who denounced the protective tariff in Thursday's issue of this newspaper.

(By a Pennsylvania Republican)

The "protective tariff" is by no means the greatest curse that has ever been inflicted upon the people of the United States, it is on the contrary a positive benefit. It protects our laborers and their standard of living from the competition of the more poorly paid laborers of foreign countries. It is very easy to sit in a chair and theorize about evils of a certain system, but I venture to state that if Professor Woodhouse had to earn his living in a steel mill, he would feel very different about a system which saves him from the terrible conditions that surround a foreign laborer even in such forward looking countries as Germany and Belgium.

The writer has first-hand knowledge of a report made by the general superintendent of the largest steel mill (privately owned) in Pittsburgh about the conditions prevalent among the working classes in Germany today. In no way do they enjoy the many advantages enjoyed by the American working man, those advantages which are guaranteed to him by the "protective tariff." Even in the most up-to-date mills they are not provided with places to drink. While the American mill-worker is provided with unlimited quantities of ice-water, the German has to send out to buy some beer in order to quench his thirst, and mill workers get thirsty often. Accordingly many have to go withous a drink all day. It is very difficult to buy gasoline in

(Continued on page three)

Tar Heels Score Almost At Will As Entire Team Displays Brilliant Form

16-14 Defeat at Hands of Gobblers Last Year Is Avenged By Decisive Win.

Sweeping over the Gobblers of V. P. I., a Tar Heel attack, battered down to the merest show of resistance last Saturday, rose again to its old might on Kenan field yesterday afternoon to swamp the Virginians under an avalanche of passes and line attacks by the score of 38-13.

The orange wave of Carolina brushed aside the thrusts of the Gobblers and surged down the field, smothering the V. P. I. offense to tally touchdown after touchdown almost at will. The spectacle of a mighty football team placed opposite a better-than-average eleven revealed to 8,000 fans sparkling exhibitions of good football throughout the contest.

Held scoreless for the entire first quarter, the Carolina attack moved across the V. P. I. goal line four times in the second quarter to score a total of 26 points. The V. P. I. defense was powerless before the terrific onslaughts of the determined Tar Heels.

Time after time in the first half the V. P. I. line held the Carolina backs to six or seven yards for three downs, only to see a surprising overhead attack carry the ball far down the field. Five passes accounted for 92 yards and were istrumental in all four touchdowns during the first half.

The second quarter opened with Carolina in possession of the ball on the V. P. I. 12 yard line. The V. P. I. defense stiffened and two tries through the line brought the ball back to the 18 yard line. A short pass, Magner to Parsley, returned the ball to V. P. I.'s six yard line. Surprising the V. P. I. defense with another pass over the goal line, Magner hurled the ball to Nash for the first touchdown. The quarter was only two minutes old.

The eveness of the first quarter had disappeared. V. P. I.'s line began to feel the effect of the persistent battering by the veteran Tar Heel offense. The famed Notre Dame off tackle play opened wide holes in the opposing line for the Tar Heel backs. Underneath it all was the sting of the loss to Georgia last week, spurring the team to a display of strength seldom seen on Kenan field. The sparse crowd began to perk up. Here was big time football.

A series of line bucks and timely passes completed the rout of the Gobbler eleven. The second touchdown followed a pass for twenty yards to the three yard line. Spaulding bucked through the line for the necessary yards.

At this point Coach Collins substituted an entirely new team. Still dazed by the force of the Carolina attack, the Virginia eleven allowed two more touchdowns to cross their goal line via the long pass route. A forty yard pass, Ward to Brown, accounted for the third marker of the quarter. Following a

(Continued on page three)

Tar Heel Meeting Tonight In Alumni

The Tar Heel staff will hold its regular weekly meeting in the basement of Alumni Building tonight at 7:00 o'clock. All members of the staff are expected to be present unless excused by the editor.

60 HOUR WEEK DENOUNCED BY FRANK GRAHAM

University Professor Makes Impromptu Talk; Deplores Night Work for Women.

"The 60 hour week is a disgrace to the commonwealth of North Carolina," declared Frank Graham in an address before a social gathering at the Presbyterian church Friday evening. "And this state is one of the few civilized places in the world which permits it. It is a reflection upon the sincerity of our religion," he continued, "that three countries allow night work for women—China, Turkey and the United States."

In outline, Mr. Graham's talk was as follows: (1) As members of Christian churches we need a new sense of social responsibility in the present industrial situation.

(2) Our social adjustment lags far behind our mechanical advance.

(3) We need to study social and industrial history, as written into the records of the past 150 years, in order that we may be intelligent in making social adjustment.

(4) Concretely, we need in North Carolina to : reduce the 60 hour week, abolish night work for women and eliminate the fourth great clause in the Child Labor act.

This is the substance of talks that Mr. Graham has been making all over this state for the last four years.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Graham invited students to join in the session of the North Carolina Conference for Social Service, which plans to take up this subject at its next meeting.

In addition to Mr. Graham's impromptu address, the program of the evening, which was entirely informal, consisted of a rendering of English, Spanish, and Phillippine music by Alfredo Nazareno, a native Filipino who is taking work here at the University, and the singing of folk songs by all of the guests who professed the ability to carry a tune. Parson Moss and Noah Goodrick were hosts.

PEEK NOT TO SPEAK AT UNIVERSITY THIS FALL

Efforts to obtain F. W. Peek, prominent consulting electrical engineer, to speak before the University student branch of the A. I. E. E. this fall have had to be abandoned because Chapel Hill is not on his itinerary this fall.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER.....Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH...Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER....Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
J. C. Williams

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan
Henry L. Anderson

REPORTERS
Howard Lee Frank Manheim
Holmes Davis Stowe Moody
Louis Brooks Clyde Deitz
Charles Rose George Sheram
Lawrence Harris Robert Hodges
Mary Price John Lathan
J. P. Tyson B. H. Whitton
Browning Roach Nathan Volkman
Al Lansford George Stone
Joe Carpenter Lawrence Miller
Peggy Lintner Jack Riley
E. C. Daniel T. E. Marshall
W. A. Shulenberger R. T. Martin
G. E. French J. S. Weathers
Stanley Weinberg

Sunday, October 27, 1929

The Ideal Week-end

President James Rowland Angell of Yale has launched a movement to compel college students to remain on their respective campuses on week-ends. In his opening address to the Yale undergraduates, Dr. Angell declared that "the men who systematically withdraw from New Haven each week-end are not only depriving themselves of the opportunity to make valuable friendships on the campus, but they are subjecting themselves to fatigue and excitement which brings them back jaded and unfit to do their college work on Monday." He intimated that University authorities might be forced to curb such activities by requiring one or two registrations every Sunday by Yale undergraduates.

Every week-end a large percentage of the Carolina students betake themselves to Greensboro, Raleigh and other nearby cities where the female of the species congregate in large numbers. The campus is almost deserted on Saturdays and Sundays when no major athletic contests are scheduled here.

Without doubt the scholastic level of the University would be improved if the undergraduates could be persuaded or compelled to remain on the Hill over the week-ends. Saturdays and Sundays offer by far the best opportunities of the week for study and recreation. On the other hand, the undergraduate mind, released from the grind of class attendance, is prone to shake itself free of scholastic incumbrances during the two days of freedom, and to turn toward more diverting forms of activity than those concerned with books and compositions. Social affairs and recreational activities are uppermost in the thoughts of Carolina men on week-ends, quite naturally. Since opportunities for such activities are lamentably few in Chapel Hill, it is expected that a large proportion of the students should spend their week-ends in other places which offer far greater inducements to the recreation seeker.

We doubt seriously that President Angell's plan of compulsory presence on the campus during week-ends would be either practicable or desirable here. It would be a decided infringement upon student prerogative, which all undergraduates are inclined to defend zealously. Perhaps the better solution of the problem here would be to offer more Sunday band concerts, social affairs, such as houseparties and dances, attractive programs at local churches, even performances by the Playmakers and intramural athletic events. And if the narrow-minded Blue Advocates could be prevented from protesting too vociferously, Sunday movies and entertainment program performances would be highly desirable. In our opinion two days of leisurely social and recreational activities on the Hill, with just enough work on the affairs of the curriculum to prevent the mind from disrupting its scholastic continuity, comprises the ideal week-end.

The Taylor Society

Every student of economics knows who Frederick W. Taylor was and what he did. His methods of personnel management in industry are still recognized—fifteen years after his death—by economists and business leaders as the most efficient ever devised. He was the first man to look upon personnel management as a science.

Taylor was interested in all phases of industry in so far as improving efficiency is concerned. It is said that he used over twenty-five thousand tons of steel in demonstrating to the iron men the increased efficiency to be gained by scientific steel cutting. His very nature was of the inquisitive sort. He even eliminated nightmares by which he was troubled by fastening to his back a contraption which made him sleep on his sides. (He was visited by nightmares only while he was sleeping on his back.) Taylor, thus equipped by temperament, offered some plan for the improvement of everything with which he came in contact.

It is after this man that the Taylor Society, a national organization for the promotion of efficiency in production and of scientific personnel management, is named. A local student chapter of this society was organized last year largely through the efforts of Professor G. T. Schwenning, of the commerce school. Last year's activities, according to leaders of the group, justified the bringing here of the chapter, and this year's interest has been fairly satisfactory.

However, the Taylor Society, in bringing to the campus industrial leaders of national importance, merits the credit of the University and deserves large membership among the students. It is the type of club which is composed entirely of members who are earnestly interested in the activities of their organization.

Readers' Opinions

THE DRAMATIC CRITIC ANSWERS HIS CRITICISERS

To the Editor:

May I, through your column, express my thanks for the kind attention of A NEW YORKER in criticising my column. His letter was very interesting, and shrieks for itself.

I should like to state, though, that my paragraphs in the Carolina Magazine were not, quite obviously, criticisms of some current plays, as he thinks, nor were they meant to be. (I should hardly try to write a criticism of a play in one short paragraph.) They were simply my personal impressions of what I had seen.

Since A NEW YORKER's examples of what dramatic criticism should be are hardly above the level of press notices, I can not accept them as models of writing. And as for coinciding one's opinions with those of the newspaper men whom A NEW YORKER so admires, I prefer to form my own, right or wrong.

Very sincerely yours,
MILTON GREENBLATT.

EDITOR MEBANE ANSWERS

Editor of The Daily Tar Heel:

With interest I read in the last issue of the Tar Heel the open forum letter addressed to "the dramatic critic of The Carolina Magazine." Somewhat hesitant at first as to whether I should answer this letter, I concluded that, as the writer, "A New Yorker," was so obviously at a loss to understand the purpose of this column on the drama, I should, in fairness to him, point out the fallacies in his conclusions.

I asked Mr. Greenblatt, previous to writing his column, if he would contribute to the Magazine a few notes on the drama. I further suggested that these notes be limited to one or two sentences each in order that the appraisal of a number of plays might be presented. This, Mr. Greenblatt did. As to giving a critical and finished review of each of the plays mentioned, that was out of the question; lack of space prohibited expansive criticism. Appraisals parallel to Mr. Greenblatt's notes may be found in "Judge" and "Life" in which magazines the critics present the name of a play or picture and state whether or not it is worth attending. These statements as to the worth of the plays are, of course, their own opinions. Mr. Greenblatt saw each play he mentioned, formed his own conclusions about them, and presented his estimations to the campus through his column. Now whether or not "A New Yorker" agrees with the critic as to the worth of the plays makes little difference; their estimations are solely a matter of individual opinions.

It might be also argued that it is useless to present appraisals of many plays, when, by taking one or two, the critic could do a much more thorough job. However, as this particular treatment of the drama will not be a regular feature of the Magazine, it was concluded that it might be well to set an appraisal on a number of those which the critic saw during the summer.

The writer of yesterday's letter attempted, I fear, to indulge rather crudely in personalities. He implied that Mr. Greenblatt was in the habit of attending third-rate vaudeville. As to his remarks concerning various phrases which the Magazine critic used, I state again that Mr. Greenblatt attempted no polished and finished criticisms.

Now perhaps the main fallacy in the open forum letter under discussion is that the writer censured Mr. Greenblatt for daring to disagree with the New York critics! To say that this bit of fault-finding is remarkably absurd would be "putting" it quite too mildly. May I refer you to the last sentence of paragraph two.

It rather amused me that, after "A New Yorker" confessed that he was "insensible to the fine points of dramatic criticism" and that it was far from him "to point out the merits" of Journey's End, he goes so far as to forget these statements and to present a rather lengthy criticism of two plays. But perhaps he should not be censured for his "absent-mindedness;" that would be an attempt to place him on the same level with a much-abused type of college professor.

I hope that I have pointed out, to a certain extent, "A New Yorker's" errors.

JOHN MEBANE
Editor Carolina Magazine.

PANNED AGAIN!

To the Editor:

After reading A New Yorker's letter in yesterday's Tar Heel, I feel an irresistable urge to take up the job of razzing the Carolina Magazine's dramatic critic, wiith the hope that the magazine will benefit by my humble efforts.

To attempt to cover the field of 'Drama and the Arts" in one column, as Mr. Greenblatt does, is somewhat bold. The superficial way in which he disposed of the New York theatre in last week's issue shows how futile the attempt was. "Street Scene," the current Pulitzer play, for example, the critic announced as "a well written piece of journalism." I'm sure Elmer Rice is very, very thankful for Mr. Greenblatt's condescending approval!

"Let Us Be Gay" Mr. Greenblatt considers "fairly amusing"; but it would have been better, thinks he, 'if the author had not tried to make her characters speak like sophisticated English ladies and gentlemen." For the frowning critic's benefit, the author not only "tries" but succeeds in picturing "sophisticated English ladies and gentlemen." Actual, live, flesh and blood Englishmen speak as Rachel Crothers' characters do! The critic should go and hear some real Englishmen speak before he criticizes Miss Crothers' delineation of them.

The criticism of "Journey's End" and "Bird in Hand" has been sufficiently denounced. In his comments on three other plays — "Candle-Light," "It's a Wise Child," and "Porgy"—the Carolina Magazine's critic displays ignorance, poor judgment, and variations from the common verdict equal to those shown in his comments on the previously-mentioned plays.

Now that I have worked off my ire, however, I should like to say that I don't think the fault was really Mr. Greenblatt's, but the Magazine's itself, that the Drama column was so rotten. What in the name of the gods is the use in reviewing plays five hundred miles off in New York! Very few of the students will ever get a chance to see them; why waste paper in reviewing them! But if they must be reviewed, why not devote a little more space to the reviews? You can't comment on twelve plays in three-quarters of a column without making an ass out of yourself. The Carolina Magazine has tried and has succeeded.

ANOTHER DAMYANKEE.

THE THEATRE

(By Peggy Lintner)

A thoroughly enjoyable program of one act plays was presented for all introspectors, aimless wanderers and genuine theatre goers Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings by the Playmakers. The fact that the audience was consistently appreciative throughout the run of the plays is a tribute to the organization, participants and management for it is evident that those seeing the Playmakers for the first time viewed the performance with a severely critical eye.

Paul Green's No 'Count Boy was a potent playlet and an impressionable bit of theatre. It was like "youth's song of yearning" embodied in a Negro spiritual, the refrain of which produced a sympathetic note in even the least imaginative person. Phoebe Harding, in the role of Pheelie, was technically good but her sincerity wavered. On the whole, she seemed coached up to rather than down to her role. Holmes Bryson, The No 'Count Boy, got the feeling of the play and did an excellent piece of work save for slightly insufficient restraint in the more emotional moments. Too, one noted that his voice and dialect suffered by contrast with that of Howard Bailey who took the part of Pheelie's beau. Mr. Bailey understood his part well and played in accordingly.

Magnolia's Man, a comedy by Gertrude Wilson Coffin, is based on the life of a people found in the Carolina highlands and while it is most appreciated by persons from those parts, it is equally interesting to those unfamiliar with the locality. The play was interesting in its simplicity and sincerity. The humor of the swift dialogue was more like the sparkle of a mountain spring than like that of white wine—however, duly appreciated. Mrs. Coffin, in the role of Mis' Tish, was vivid and except for slight inconsistency in the work of Muriel Wolff, who took the part of Magnolia, the acting was on an even plane.

The theme of Being Married, Catherine Nolen's play of society life, is neither elegant nor unusual. It is pleasantly simple, merely giving us a picture of young people, earnest, vital, wise and otherwise—taking up marriage vows and trying gallantly to make a go of it. It is estimated that they succeed, for a noble wife makes the traditional sacrifice and consents to give up the life she craves for the life an enterprising husband—still new in the art of husbanding—can offer her. And she is sincere. She loves him. However, one feels the pangs of curiosity and could care for an insight into affairs a few years hence.

Elzada Feaster, in the role of the wife, did not quite orient herself. Looking wistful was her strong suit. She spoke too quickly at times, lacked stage presence, waxed melodramatic and looked charming. Her work shows promise.

Milton Wood, as Jim, the model husband, was well motivated. His restraint was marked—too marked at times. The members of the Ladies Club spoke their lines well but were slow to fill in the gaps and take up their cues. Anne Melick and Howard Bailey did the most convincing work. They were not strained and seemed perfectly at home on the stage.

College Life

With The Churches

Sunday, October 27

Baptist
O. I. Olive, Pastor
9:45 a. m.—Sunday School.
11:00 a. m.—Morning Services: Sermon, "The Might of Motive," Mr. Olive.
7:00 p. m.—Young Peoples Union: Interdenominational Meeting.
8:00 p. m.—Evening Services: Sermon, "A Life on My Hands," Mr. Olive.

Chapel of the Cross
A. S. Lawrence, Rector
8:00 a. m.—Holy Communion.
10:00 a. m.—Student Bible Class: U. T. Holmes, Teacher.
11:00 a. m.—Morning Service and Sermon: Mr. Lawrence.
6:00 p. m.—Meeting of St. Hilda's Guild: The Rectory.
7:00 p. m.—Y. P. S. L., Interdenominational Meeting at the Baptist church.
8:00 p. m.—Evening Service: Organ Solo, N. O. Kennedy, Sermon, Mr. Lawrence, Tea will be served at the Parish House from 4:30 to 6:00 p. m.

The United Church (Christian)
B. J. Howard, Minister
9:45 a. m.—Sunday School: Grady Leonard, Supt., Paul McConnell, Teacher of Men's Bible Class.
11:00 a. m.—Morning Services: Sermon by Mr. Howard.

Methodist
C. E. Rozzelle, Pastor
9:45 a. m.—Sunday School: Young Men's Bible Class, Dr. Bernard, Freshman Bible Class, Mr. Phillips.
11:00 a. m.—Morning Services: Sermon, "Fact and Faith," Mr. Rozzelle.
8:00 p. m.—Evening Services: Sermon, "Might, Power and Spirit," Mr. Rozzelle.
The Epworth League will join the other young people's societies in a union meeting in the Baptist church at 7:00 p. m.

Presbyterian
W. D. Moss, Pastor
9:45 a. m.—Sunday School.
11:00 a. m.—Morning Services: Sermon by Mr. Moss.
7:45 p. m.—Evening Services: Sermon by Mr. Moss.
8:45 p. m.—Young People's Social, Social Rooms at Presbyterian church.

Tar Heels Subdue Gobblers By Big Margin

SIDE LIGHTS UPON CAROLINA VICTORY

Coach Collins Is Developing "North Carolina" System.

(By G. M. Cohen)

The use of orange jerseys by the Carolina eleven was made necessary by the dark maroon coloring of the V. P. I. team. The psychological advantage of the bright color was apparent when the Carolina eleven appeared for the opening whistle.

* * *

The V. P. I. eleven almost pulled a fast one on the officials when they inadvertently placed the ball on the fifty yard line instead of the forty yard line for the opening kickoff. The watchful eye of Lambert, referee, noticed the error and moved the Virginia team back ten yards just before they prepared to kickoff.

* * *

Assistant Coach "Bill" Cerney spent the entire first quarter in the press box observing accurately the attack of the V. P. I. eleven. After translating to paper the strength and weaknesses of the Gobbler bunch, he returned to the bench with the information for possible emergencies. Luckily he was not forced to coach the squad during the half in the tactics of the opposing team.

* * *

Coach Collins discarded his rule of saving a threat for the later moments of the game. The best backfield combination available, consisting of Nash, Magner, House and Branch started the contest. Knute Rockne introduced this technique to football but since Collins has disregarded many of the precepts of his teacher, this is only one more step in the development of a Carolina system.

* * *

Coach Collins refused to allow his eleven to use the play which baffled the Georgia eleven time after time last Saturday. The play, a combination delayed line thrust and off tackle drive, on which the back interfering stops dead in his tracks and allows the ball carrier to thrust himself through tackle minus interference, was brought in by Collins from somewhere. Anyway it is but another link in the formation of the new system, and will find good use in future games.

Tennis Tournament Makes Good Start

The fall U. N. C. tennis tournament was well under way Friday afternoon and Grant and Hines, seeded numbers one and two respectively, advanced to the third round. The other seeded players, Yeomans, Merritt, Wright, Eubanks, and Rhett, all came through in fine style.

The first round matches were: Grant defeated Waterhouse 6-1, 8-6; Pachman defeated Wilkinson 6-3, 8-6; Eubanks defeated Kindell 6-1, 6-4; Hines defeated Kendall 6-0, 6-1; Wright defeated Draper 6-0, 6-1; Rhett defeated Black 6-4, 6-2; Abels defeated Baley 6-0, 6-1; Lansford defeated Winecoff 6-4, 6-2; D. Graham defeated E. K. Graham, Yeomans defeated C. D. Wardlaw 6-0, 6-2; Wolf defeated Skinner 6-2, 6-2; Palmore defeated Brown; Neely defeated Chambliss; and Potter won by default from Bryan.

The second round matches were: Hines defeated Drellar, who drew a bye in the first round, 6-0, 6-1; Rhett defeated Cohen 6-4, 6-2; Grant defeated Smith 6-0, 6-1; and Abels defeated Barnett.

Features Line Play

Ray Farris, star guard who captained the Tar Heels to a victory over V. P. I. yesterday, is making a determined bid for all-Southern honors this year.

Protective Tariff Is Hailed As Benefit

(Continued from page one)

all parts of Germany for the simple reason that very few persons in Germany have cars. No, in Germany the mill worker is only too thankful that he has a roof over his head and something to eat, he does not even dream of owning a car. Do we want our working men reduced to this same level? That would be the result if the "protective tariff" were to be done away with.

Professor Woodhouse talks about "more efficient management." Yes, the foreigners are more efficient, but at the expense of the working man. They make as much profit as do the American mill owners because they can sell for so much less and still make profit, as their overhead is small. Authoritative figures show that a German mill can produce a ton of iron at the cost of thirty cents a ton, whereas an American mill produces it at a cost of around three dollars. "There is industrial inefficiency for you," shouts the theorist. But wait a minute. Why does the iron cost so much more in America? Because the men who handle the ore from mine to furnace are paid a living wage and are enabled to live a decent, enjoyable life. Not so in foreign countries. There they can make it so cheap that they could bring it over here and still make a huge profit by underselling the American manufacturers. That is why our government has to levy a high tariff upon foreign cheap goods, to protect its citizens from having to live in the same terrible conditions as do the foreign workers. And after all is that not the chief function of the government? To protect its citizens? I think so!

Surely, the government can throw away the high tariff and the manufacturers be forced to fight the foreign industries with their own weapons, that is, at the expense of the working man, but that will never come to pass, since the working man knows what is good for him. He will always vote for the party that guarantees to him a decent wage made possible by a high tariff on competing foreign goods. The working man of England today is having hard times because of his government's fallacious ideas about free trade. Pittsburgh and other manufacturing towns experienced bread lines during Cleveland's administration when hardly a wheel turned over in a single mill due to unregulated foreign competition, and they will not witness them again if their votes mean anything. So I say "Hurrah for the 'protective tariff' which has enabled the American working man to get real enjoyment out of life."

NEW UNIVESRITY LIBRARY WORKS ON COLLECTIONS

(Continued from page one)

the Carnegie Library in 1907 when a fire-proof vault in the library stack room was equipped with specially designed steel cases for valuable books and manuscripts and a large room set aside for general works dealing with North Carolina.

With the establishment in 1908 of the position of curator of the North Carolina collection, a more systematic effort at collection was begun. Files of state reports were completed. Letters were written for missing numbers of periodicals. Publishers and printers in the state were asked for copies of their publications. Schools, societies, and officials were solicited for copies of their reports.

Weeks Collection Acquired

The Stephen B. Weeks compilation of North Carolinians was purchased in 1918. This assortment comprised some 10,000 titles and represented the work of 34 years of collecting. Its acquisition was a tremendous asset to the North Carolina collection and to the Library in general not only on account of the rare and valuable material but because of the attraction its excellency offered to the collections.

In the next few years several other important private collections were added by gift. A 1,500-volume assortment of North Caroliniana was given by the family of President Kemp Plummer Battle. A railroad collection of 700 volumes was donated by the family of Col. A. B. Andrews. And from James Sprunt the North Carolina collection secured as a gift a valuable file of Wilmington newspapers.

Davie Memorial Collection

The William Richardson Davie Memorial Collection was founded in 1927 by Preston R. Davie, a descendant of the noted founder of the University. This group is limited to rare books dealing with the early history of the Carolinas. The volumes in this compilation are distinguished by a special bookplate, a facsimile of the bookplate used by General Davie. Additional selections are placed in this assemblage from time to time.

For practically a hundred years the University has been actively engaged—with only a few interruptions—in the collection of materials for the study of the state's history. In 1844 the North Carolina Historical Society was organized at Chapel Hill with its main object the collection, arrangement, and preservation of "one or more copies of every book, pamphlet, and newspaper published in this state since the first introduction of the press." With the breaking out of the war the society died. It was revived at the reopening of the University in 1875 and has been active since.

The growth of the North Carolina Collection has been phenominal in recent years. It now numbers about 10,000 bound volumes, of which 1,000 are newspapers, 17,000 bound pamphlets, 8,000 incomplete, unbound continuations, 318 maps, and a large number of clippings and manuscripts not counted.

Twenty years ago the whole of the collection was contained in two bookcases and occupied only about 30 feet of shelf space. Today it extends over 4,857 feet of shelf space.

Rural Social-Economics Library

Perhaps the next in importance to the North Carolina Collection is the Rural Social-Economics Library. This consists of an assortment of books, official reports, periodicals, bulletins, pamphlets, and classified newspaper clippings. These center around North Carolina social and economic institutions in the main, but are also concerned with the field at large.

The Rural Social-Economics Collection contains about 2,000 titles. This number does not include, however, any of the official reports of state officers, the census volumes, nor U. S. Government reports and bulletins, of which rather full files are kept.

This collection treats with such factors of North Carolina's social and economic structure as religion, sociology, immigration, journalism, politics, race relations, education, agriculture, taxation, crime, family relations, and many less important items.

A valuable section of the Rural Social-Economics library is that devoted to a special study of the county governments of the state. At the expense of considerable research, practically all of the available material on this subject has been collected. Special files are devoted to each of the 100 counties of the state, comprising material on the initiative, education, and historical background of the counties.

Started by Dr. Branson

The value of the Rural Social-Economics collection is largely in the classified pamphlet files, containing information that is sometimes available almost nowhere else, that keep information in the various fields right up to date. So rare and important are some of these pamphlets that many University alumni, doing graduate work at Harvard, Chicago, and other northern universities, frequently send back here for material that they find impossible to secure elsewhere.

This collection had its beginning about 1915 in Dr. E. C. Branson's small personal assortment of books and clippings. At that time the field of rural social-economics was little cultivated and material was scarce. However, with Mr. Branson's collection as a nucleus the compilation has grown until now it contains around 2000 volumes, in addition to many official reports, clippings, pamphlets, and so on.

LOCAL HIGHS WIN IN STIFF GAME

Defeat Alexander Wilson 13-6; Lawrence Stars at End.

Chapel Hill high school ran up their string of victories to three Friday when they defeated Alexander Wilson high 13 to 6 at Swepsonville. The game was hard fought throughout with both teams fighting hard at the end.

The Chapel Hillians scored first after a sweeping drive down the field. In the second quarter Alexander made their only score of the game; and the half ended 6 and 6. Chapel Hill began another drive in the third quarter which netted them a touchdown before the close of the quarter. The end of the game found the Hillians in possession of the ball on Alexander's 25 yard line.

Lawrence at left end was the star for the local club and Harden at fullback proved to be a high school Stumpy Thomason for the Wilsonians.

Carolina Whips V. P. I. By Big Score of 38-13

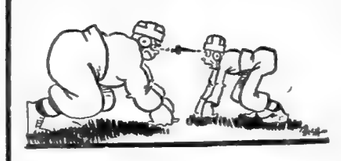
(Continued from page one)

march from midfield, Erickson crossed the goal line for the fourth touchdown on a twenty yard pass.

Returning to the game with renewed vigor, the Gobblers were able to score two touchdowns by means of passes to bring their score to 13. The last touchdown made by the visitors came in the closing minutes of the game on a short pass. Carolina also pushed across two markers in the last half to equal the scoring of the V. P. I. eleven.

The Carolina team had found itself. The lengthening shadows over the field brought the realization that a powerful team with an unknown quantity of strength had met and swamped a mighty good bunch of ball players. In the line, a tightening up of defense was observable. The backs passed and ran under the able supervision of two competent field generals, whenever the occasion presented itself. The smoothness gained through weeks of driving training blended the team into one aggregate machine, roving over the gridiron. It was the making of the Carolina football team.

Rifle Club To Meet



There will be a meeting of the Rifle club Monday night at 7:00 at the office in the basement of Alumni. Officials urge that every one interested be present.

In 1894 there was issued a Golden Jubilee number of the North Carolina University Magazine.

WANTED

Small boy wants work after school hours and Saturdays. See Luther Edwards.

DR. R. R. CLARK
DENTIST
Office Over Bank of Chapel Hill
Telephone 385

"Little one, I'm going to annihilate you."

"Aw, you big stiff, go chase yourself with SHERI-ALE."

There is nothing like SHERI-ALE to make things smoother. The singing of "Sweet Adeline" sounds much better when it has been preceded by this cheerful beverage.

And don't forget to brace-up the next morning with a glass of SHERI-COLA.

Sheri-Ale Company

"Customed to Don or Customed to Measure"

A Brief Month

There remains only a month before the Thanksgiving holidays will be with us. Drop in and let the "University Outfitters" measure you for a "Turkey Day" suit of LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES. You will appreciate the hand-tailoring original exclusive woolens.

LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Pritchard-Patterson
INCORPORATED
University Outfitters

GLORIA SWANSON With Glorious Voice; Gorgeous Gowns Makes Talking Screen Debut in . . . .

"THE TRESPASSER" AT THE CAROLINA THEATRE MONDAY

The Entertainment Event of the Year!

Gloria Swanson, the screen's foremost dramatic actress, TALKING, SINGING in what is POSITIVELY the greatest picture she has ever done.

Wears Marvelous Parisian Gown Creations!

SINGS Two Songs, "LOVE" and "SERENADE,' by Toselli—In a voice that will be the talk of the town by nightfall. Picture has remarkable cast of Broadway Stars.

AFTER THE SHOW

VISIT

The Carolina Grill

JUST ACROSS THE STREET

Gloria Will Tell You—

Poorly-bobbed hair wrecks appearance as nothing else

WHY RUN A RISK?

HAVE IT DONE AT

University Barber Shop

Below University Book and Stationery Co.

"Trespassers" is a gorgeous spectacle but you will enjoy it more if your eyes are right

W. B. SORRELL

Optometrist for 30 years in Carolina Theatre Building

THE MOST SENSATIONAL AIR PICTURE EVER MADE

Jack Holt
Lila Lee
Ralph Graves
in

"FLIGHT"

Mighty Drama of adventure in the sky with a love theme that will grip you. ..Greatest and most sensational romance and thrill triumph.

What the Critics Say

"Has thrills punch and pathos." — Daily News

"Within range of the ten best pictures of the year." — Standard Union

"A lulu. Don't miss this."—Mirror

CAROLINA THEATRE

NOVEMBER 6th and 7th

SHE STANDS REVEALED! THE STAR OF STARS!

GLORIA'S First All-Talking Picture

Her singing voice—her very own—is the screen's best!

Hear her sing "LOVE"

You've been wondering what's become of Gloria Swanson. Perhaps you thought talking pictures meant her "finish."

While you've been wondering this great star has been working. She has made a talking picture that reveals her as the foremost actress of our times!

Her speaking voice, her singing voice—magnificent!

Her beauty, her charm, her power —you've never known them until you've seen "The Trespasser!"

A story of fervent love that was frustrated. A story of motherhood defeated. A story of luxury and wealth, with Gloria Swanson lifting it to emotional heights!

GLORIA SWANSON IN "THE TRESPASSER"

ON THE SAME PROGRAM

"Fatal Forceps" An all talking comedy chuck full of hearty laughs.

Pathe News Showing the latest news events from the four corners of the earth.

MONDAY

TUESDAY Ina Clair in "The Awful Truth"

CAROLINA THEATRE

One of the Publix Saenger Theatres

WED-THUR. Al Jolson in "Say It With Songs" with Davey Lee

If Gloria Swanson Lived in Chapel Hill—

She Would Take Her Meals at

A Place Where Only Home Cooked Food is Served

Welcome In Cafeteria

Why Pay For Board While Off the Hill?

Eat the Cafeteria Way! Two Meals a Day $18.00 per month, or $1.00 per day.

$5.50 Tickets for $5.00, 6 for $28.00

Wonderful Clothes

are a great part of Gloria's great beauty in "Trespassers"

SEE THEM, THEN SEE US

EVERYTHING IN CLOTHES AND NECESSITIES

FOR EVEN THE MOST FASTIDIOUS

S. BERMAN'S DEPARTMENT STORE

Next to Carolina Theatre

Radio and Victrola Tone that Rivals Gloria Swanson's Golden Voice

Gloria sings "Love" and "Serenade" superbly in

"Trespassers"

CAROLINA THEATRE - MON.

You can have her golden voice in your home every day with a Victor.

Latest Models in Victrolas, Radiolas and Electrolas

Turn with The Nation — to —

Victor Radio

WITH ELECTROLA

"The Music of the World at Your Fingertips"

Hear "Love" and "Serenade" as Gloria sings them exclusively for Victor.

Then hear her sing them over Victor records and hear her broadcast on a Victor Radio.

Latest Victor Records of all Great Artists Weekly.

University Book and Stationery Company

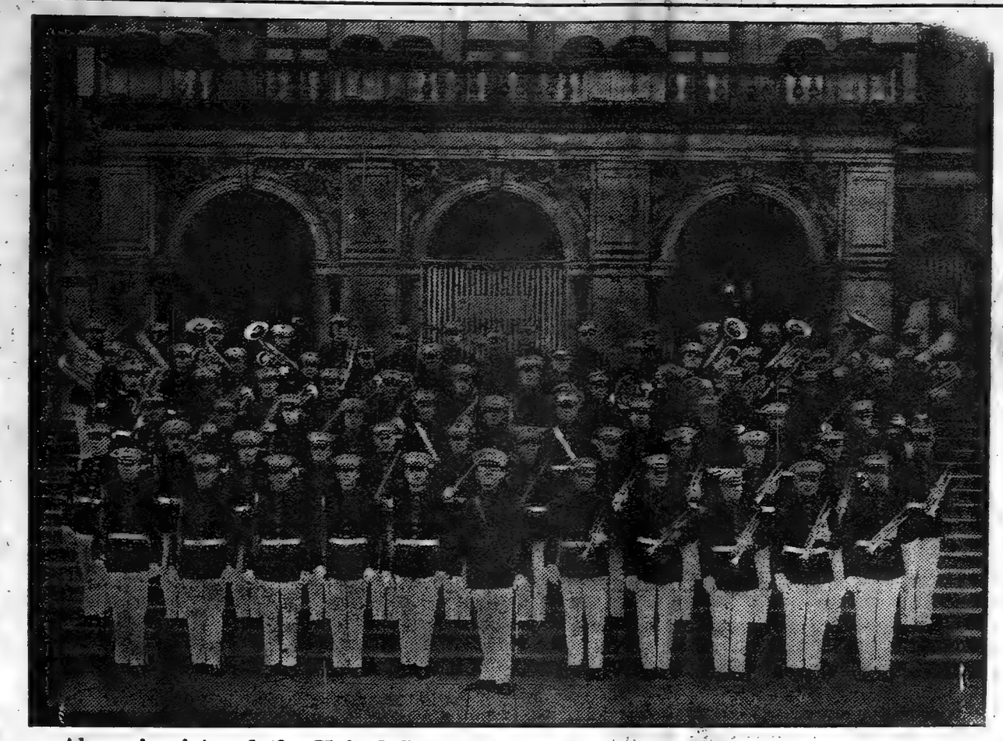
NEXT TO SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

SEEKS TO STOP FRAUDULENT USE OF PASS BOOKS

Grady Pritchard States That Tickets Will Be Stamped With Pass Book Numbers.

In a letter appearing in today's "Readers' Opinions" column, Grady Pritchard, assistant graduate manager of athletics at the University, strongly took to task those students who have been making fraudulent use of their tickets.

At the V. P. I. game more than 40 people presented student tickets that they had no right to possess as they were not students. These tickets were obtained by students who traded in their student tickets for tickets outside the student section, and then sold them to strangers. This is to be avoided, in the future, by having all tickets that have been transferred stamped with the recipients' registration numbers, and demanding that coupon books with the corresponding registration number be shown with all tickets at the gates. Gate No. 5 is going to be used exclusively hereafter by students.



PLAYMAKERS WILL BROADCAST PLAYS

The Carolina Playmakers are to broadcast over Station WPTF from Raleigh during the 5th regular University of North Carolina hour next Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Hubert Heffner is directing the production, "The No 'Count Boy," by Paul Green, and the same cast that played last week-end here will enact the radio production.

Vestry Meets Tonight

There will be a meeting of the student vestry tonight at 7:15 at the Episcopal parish house. All members are urged to be present.

UNITED STATES MARINE BAND

Above is pictured the United States Marine Band which will appear here November 14 under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The band is known as "The President's Own" and is the oldest in America. It has played at every presidential inauguration and important State event in Washington for the past 130 years.

MAN WHO INSULTED MULE PAYS COSTS

White-Negro Affray Ends In Court Yesterday Morning; Two Other Cases.

Clyde Whitt, white, and Henry Williams, negro, who staged a solo race riot in front of the local police station Saturday afternoon, were made to split the costs of court between them in recorders court before Recorder Henshaw yesterday morning. Whitt was also fined $5 and costs on charge of public drunkeness and disorderly conduct.

Fred Ivey, white, was fined $50 and costs for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Ream Pendergraph, white, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon, the use of violent language, and pointing a pistol at Charlie Bird. His case was dismissed.

Former Texas Governor Will Begin Prohibition Education Program At University Today

Pat M. Neff To Talk in Gerrard Hall This Morning and At The Methodist Church Tonight.

Inauguration of the prohibition education campaign on the campus of the University will begin today with two addresses by Pat M. Neff, ex-governor of Texas.

The first talk will be made in Gerrard Hall during chapel period with the last address at the Methodist Church at 8 o'clock tonight. Both speeches will be delivered on the general subject of "Good Citizenship."

Ex-Governor Neff is one of the outstanding platform speakers in this country, according to C. A. Upchurch, head of the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League, which is sponsoring his tour through the state. Mr. Upchurch, in announcing theses addresses, expressed gratification that it was possible for arrangements to be made for the ex-governor to speak in most of the state colleges, particularly, Wake Forest, Duke University, Elon College, High Point College, University of North Carolina, and Guilford College. Besides addressing college audiences, Mr. Neff will speak to meetings in Raleigh, High Point, Burlington, and other cities in the state.

These addresses are part of a state and nation-wide campaign being promoted by the Anti-Saloon League, the W. C. T. U., the churches, and other organizations carrying out the suggestions of President Hoover, made several times since his inauguration, that the public generally unite with him in the inauguration and promotion of such a campaign.

The campus address originally was planned for Memorial hall but extensive repairs to the roof of the structure necessitated the moving of the place of speech to the smaller building.

Tar Heel Notice

The Tar Heel Business Staff is to be reorganized completely tonight. There are any number of places open for new men who want to work. Experience is preferred but not absolutely necessary. All old members desirous of continuing on the staff must be present. Meeting will be held in Tar Heel Business Office, basement of Alumni Building, promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

Marion Alexander,
Business Manager

MARKET EDITOR HERE YESTERDAY

Reavis Cox To Spend Several Weeks Studying Textile Contions in North Carolina.

Reavis Cox, market editor of the Journal of Commerce, a New York business newspaper, paid the University a semi-official visit on Monday. He was received and conducted around the campus by Dr. T. J. Woofter, research professor in social science.

Mr. Cox, in his tour of the Southern states, plans to spend two weeks in North Carolina, as he is interested in the textile industry. While in this part of the state, he stopped in Raleigh and was received by Governor Gardner.

Although Mr. Cox was anxious to see the University campus, the main objective of his visit was to gather necessary data from the Institute for Research in Social Science.

Mosher Talks To Y

E. R. Mosher spoke to the Y. M. C. A. last night at 7:15 on "What Is Religion." The general theme of Mr. Mosher's address was that religion is essentially a way of living and not a way of escape from eternal damnation, nor a hope for eternal reward in a heaven. Mr. Mosher stated that "a man's religion is to be tested by what he is, not by what he professes to believe."

Repairs Prohibit Use Memorial Hall

Chapel exercises in Memorial hall will be discontinued until further notice due to extensive repairs to the roof of the structure, Dean Bradshaw announced Monday. Organizations accustomed to using the hall for rehearsal purposes will not be allowed in the auditorium while the building is under repair.

COLLEGE PRESS ASSOCIATION TO CONVENE SOON

Three Day Session of State Organization To Be Held at Lenoir-Rhyne.

The North Carolina Collegiate Press association is scheduled to meet in Hickory as guests of the Lenoir Rhyne publications sometime in November if the college calendar can be so arranged.

The convention will probably be attended by about a hundred and twenty-five delegates representing the collegiate press of North Carolina. The editors and business managers, and their assistants, of the student magazines, newspapers and annuals of the leading colleges of the state will attend.

The meeting this fall is sponsored by the student publications of Lenoir Rhyne. Frank Poovey is chairman of the committee to arrange the convention plans while Olin Sink and Aurine Davis are also on the committee.

Topical Discussion

The meeting this fall will be featured by topical discussions by the young editors concerning their problems in the collegiate publishing world. Speakers who are experienced in journalism will be provided to enlighten the young people.

Entertainment features of the three day session there will be a banquet or two, movie shows, and perhaps a football game is to be scheduled as one of the events. There will be business sessions at which time routine matters will be disposed of. The officers will not be elected at this meeting as the spring session is the time set for the annual balloting.

Eminent British Political Leader Will Lecture Here

Dr. Herbert Gray of London To Appear Here Under Auspices Y. M. C. A. November 6, 7 and 8.

Dr. A. Herbert Gray of London, eminent British minister and Labor party leader, is coming to the University to deliver a series of addresses and to hold conferences on November 6, 7 and 8, under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Gray, who is a statesman, preacher and author, was one of the organizers of the British Labor party. He also figured prominently in the campaign that elected Ramsay McDonald, and is probably better posted on the Labor party and the McDonald regime than any other man.

One of the few colleges that has had the privilege of hearing and seeing Dr. Gray is Dartmouth. After Dr. Gray left Dartmouth, Professor W. J. Rose of the department of sociology characterized Dr. Gray as "one of the few distinguished leaders of thought whom Dartmouth men have been privileged to see and to hear."

Dr. Gray is, by profession, a minister, and is at present pastor of the Church Hill Presbyterian church at London. Unlike the American ministers, the English ministers take an important stand in the national leadership of their country. Dr. Gray and Dean Inge, both ministers, hold high places in the present leadership of England, and are very influential in the English political world.

Besides being a statesman and a minister, Dr. Gray is an outstanding author of books on social relationships. He has written many noted books of this type that have been read by college men all over the world. Dr. Gray's best known book, "Men, Women and God," is very popular among college men of today. (38,000 copies of this book having been sold in the United States alone). Some of his other books are "Christian Adventure," "As Tommy Sees Us" (written during the war), and "With Christ as Guide."

Dr. Gray is one of the main speakers on the Y program, and the University should feel highly honored and privileged in having such a man as its guest; according to H. F. Comer, secretary of the Y.

'Railroad' Best Is Chapel Hill's Original Telegraph Operator; On Job 22 Years

(By H. J. G.)

He knew the town when there were no automobiles, no moving pictures, and no paved roads, when the telegraph office was at University Station in Carrboro, and when every professor knew every student in the student body. He is Chapel Hill's first and oldest telegrapher, R. R. Best.

As a middle-aged man he came to Chapel Hill from Oxford with his son. The younger Best was offered the job of telegrapher but had managed the new office only a short time when his father took an interest in the work, and in three months had become an expert operator. He took over the managership from his son.

22 Years on Job

That was in 1895, when it cost an extra 10c to get a message out to the telegraph office, and when the standard rate was 25c. During a period of twenty-two years R. R. Best stayed on the job, known to everybody in the town and in the University as "Railroad" Best, although the initials of his name actually stand for Romulus Remus.

There were many trials and tribulations during those years when the town was growing up. Money was scarce, and the manager of the local theatre found it difficult to pay for the frequent wires he sent out. The telegraph operator understood the situation, and offered to let the theatre manager run up a bill to be paid at the end of the month. For this courtesy he was given free entrance to the theatre at all times, a privilege which he has continued to enjoy through the various changing of managers until the present time.

His step is a bit slow now, and his hearing is not as acute as it used to be when he caught the clicks of the telegraph messages as they raced in over the wires. He wears a goatee and carries a stick, and is as interested in the town and the progress of the University as any man here.

But his chief interest is the moving pictures. He sees every show that comes to town, and if, he says, he doesn't manage to see them in the afternoon, he is always at the Carolina in the evening. His hobby is taking children to the show. He generally takes at least four, and always pays for all of them. If he has promised to take one or two of the town kids and they find they cannot accompany him

(Continued on page four)

Oldtime Hazing Receives New Name; Now Called Orientation

A frightened, blind-folded freshman tied on the back of a bull calf—the calf, in turn, tied by means of a long rope to a tree from which it was driven away at full speed—the rope suddenly becoming taut—calf and rider being hurled to ground—such was the welcome that often greeted the newcomer at the University of North Carolina three-quarters of a century ago. In those days it was called hazing.

Today quite a different situation awaits the freshman. One among 800, he arrives on the campus nearly a week before the upperclassmen. He is interviewed by counselors, shown over the campus, hears lectures on student government, is given pointers on the use of the library, and in general is welcomed to the University. Today this process is called orientation.

In contrasting the old with the new, The Alumni Review of the University asked Dr. Archibald Henderson, of the class of '98, to give his impressions of the greetings given the freshmen in his college days. By way of presenting a contrast, The Review asked D. Allen Harrell of the class of'33 and the North Carolina winner of the recent Edison scholarship contest, to write his observations of "Freshman Week." Their replies make an interesting study.

Dr. Henderson saw the hazing of his day as innocent sport for the most part that usually took the form of entering the room of a freshman while he was asleep, blacking his face, and leaving before he was fully awake. Or the subject of the hazing might be carried to some nearby graveyard, tied to a tree, and left

(Continued on page four)

Freshman Notice

Freshmen who did not have their photographs taken during their first week at the University are requested by the Dean of Student's office to be photographed this week, in the mornings, at Wootten-Moulton.

Tar Heels Now Working For Game With State's Wolfpack

Saturday's Contest Second "Big Five" Game For Both Teams; Has Bearing On Conference Race.

With the N. C. State game to figure in both state and southern title races, the Tar Heels were all set to begin a hard week of preparations for Saturday's reception to the sister state institution.

The Tar Heels will be pointing hard to that game. For one thing, to avenge a 19-6 loss in 1927 and a 6-6 tie last year. For another, to maintain their place at the head of the state title race and in the forefront of the Southern Conference chase.

Both teams have clean Big Five slates, each having registered a victory over Wake Forest. Both will be fighting also for Southern aspirations, for the Tar Heels strengthened their position with Saturday's smashing 38-13 defeat of V. P. I. while Georgia's Bulldogs were going down in defeat at the hands of Florida, already defeated by Georgia Tech, whom the Tar Heels beat 18-7.

North Carolina has a more impressive season record than the Wolfpack, but supporters who recall how hard the Wolves always fight against the Tar Heels, are thinking there will be another hard, close game.

The Tar Heels came through the Gobbler clash in fairly good shape, and according to Trainer Chuck Quinlan, should be in better shape Saturday than they have been lately, barring injuries this week, of course.

Captain Ray Farris and Ellis Fysal, guards, and Pap Harden, fullback, were the only casualties in the Gobbler tilt, and Trainer Quinlan says a couple of days' rest should fix them up for Saturday.

Pete Wyrick and Henry House, veteran quarterback and fullback, returned to the lineup against V. P. I. after two and three-week layoffs with injuries and should be in better shape against State.

In addition, Bill Koenig, regular left tackle; Julian Fenner, regular right end, and Herb Nelson, reserve end, all out of the V. P. I. game, are due to be back in shape to lend strength to the Blue and White line against the Wolfpack.

COLLINS GIVES TAR HEELS REST

Injured Football Men Expected To Be Ready For Game Saturday With State.

Faced with the problem of keeping his charges in the top of condition for the second half of the schedule, Coach Chuck Collins Monday ordered a day of rest for the entire Tar Heel squad.

Worn by the strain of the contests of the last three weeks and torn by minor injuries, the team accepted the holiday with thanks. Captain Ray Farris and Ellis Fysal, guards; George Thompson, tackle; and Pap Harden, fullback, were added to the ailing list after the struggle with V. P. I. Saturday.

The remainder of the squad, excepting Julian Fenner, Herb Nelson, and Bill Koenig, who were on the list for the V. P. I. game, carefully nursed sore muscles and pulled ligaments. Trainer Chuck Quinlan expressed the opinion that all would be in shape for the Wolfpack battle Saturday.

The porch and columns which were on the south side of Gerrard hall were removed in 1901.

The longest lived animal is the tortoise, some living to be 200 years old.

Win Over Gobblers Shows Offensive Power of Carolina

Carolina's victory over V. P. I. Saturday showed that Coach Collins has developed one of the most powerful offensive teams in the south. Incidentally the 38 to 13 defeat suffered by the cadets was the worst suffered by a cadet team in the last twenty years. The Carolina victory is made more impressive by the fact that the strong Pennsylvania team was able to score only 12 points against the Gobblers.

This season has seen the Tar Heels run up more large scores than any other team in North Carolina has done in several years. To date the opponents have scored only 39 points in five games, averaging a little less than eight points each game. On the other hand the Tar Heels have amassed a total of 159 points, averaging almost thirty two per game. However, despite their tendency to run up large scores, the 1929 Tar Heels have not equalled the 65 to 0 victory scored by last year's team, 48 points being the high score for this fall.

Saturday seemed to be a special day for high scoring. In addition to the 38 points scored by Carolina, Villanova scored 58 against Washington and Lee. ran up 40 points against N. C. State, the undefeated Tennessee eleven amassed 39 points against Washinigton and Lee. Perhaps the most outstanding scoring performance of the day was furnished by Ringle of Gallaudet who scored nine touchdowns and kicked five extra points for a total of 59 points in the game against Shenandoah.

Tennis Team In Pinehurst Tourney

The University of North Carolina tennis team went to Pinehurst Monday to attend the fall tennis tournament there. Coach Kenfield entered five men: Hines, Yeomans, Merritt, Graham and Al Brown. They motored down Monday morning.

Bryan Grant was unable to make the trip because of his studies. He would probably have been seeded number one on the strength of his southern championship title.

The tournament going on here has been discontinued until the team returns.

The team is expected to make a very good showing. All the boys were showing exceptional form in practice matches here Saturday and Sunday.

NOVICE MEET WINNERS TO RECEIVE RIBBONS

Stamped ribbons are to be presented to the winners of each event in the novice track meet to be held Thursday afternoon, according to Vernon Cowper, assistant track coach. Blue ribbons will be given to the first men in each event, red to the second entrees, and yellow to third.

Much interest is expected to be centered about this meet, the management of which has been undertaken by the Intramural Athletic association. The Intramural association is stirring up interest in the meet among the various dormitories and fraternities, and invitations have been extended to all of these organizations to enter teams.

More than forty candidates have already signified their intentions of competing and the track coaches have asked that all those intending to enter report at once.

LEADS

Picked Up Here and There by Will Yarborough

Naturally we start at home, so:—

"The 'team of a hundred backs' flashed back into action this afternoon and the University of North Carolina wiped out some of last week's disaster with a surprisingly large margin of victory over V. P. I. —38 to 13."

Yesterday morning after everyone had talked about the game and read the various comments of the newspapers, the papers carried the post-mortems as usual. The Carolina coaches expressed concern over the possibility of over-confidence in the Tar Heel camp. Despite the four touchdown margin of victory over V. P. I. there is little room for too much confidence among the Carolina football men. The Techmen had an off day. Carolina's passing game was clicking. Things were going right. No room for "over-confidence" now.

* * *

Close by is Duke University. The Durham Herald-Sun carried the following account:—

"Villanova, Pa., A great Villanova team, undefeated since early in the 1927 season, beat a crippled Duke eleven 58 to 12 this afternoon with 10,000 persons looking on."

The Blue Devils have fared badly in their inter-sectional contests. In their only games with a southern team they showed power. After Boston they began their southern campaign in earnest. With the return of several injured veterans Duke is expected to get going right.

* * *

State took a long trip Saturday. The results evidently weren't worth the trip. Again we refer to the Associated Press' account:.....

"East Lansing, Mich.,—(AP)—Opening up a dizzying offense, Michigan State colleg's football team humbled North Carolina State here this afternoon 40 to 6."

* * *

The two remaining members of the "Big Five" clashed in Greensboro. Wake Forest did an about-face and whipped the Cats 6-0.

"Greensboro,—(AP)—Wake Forest brought Davidson up short this afternoon before 5,000 in the Memorial stadium by a score of 6 to 0. Mills swept around left end in the opening quarter for the only core of the game."

Taking a defeat from the Deacons will make the Cats much tougher to beat in the future. Davidson usually scraps harder against big teams than against those of its own size. Carolina, Duke, and State have trouble in store for them.

* * *

The announcement of the score of the Georgia-Florida game gave the students at the V. P. I. contest a big "kick". The "lead" is also taken from the Associated Press:—

"Jacksonville, Fla.,—(AP)—The Florida Alligators crawled out of the Everglades today to check the wild dash of the trouble making Georgia Bulldogs with a smashing 18 to 6 victory."

We expected Florida to win. But we didn't expect it enough to say so with enthusiasm. In some paper we read that Georgia left too much in the Yale and Carolina games.

* * *

Two or three clippings caught our eye and so again we resort to the A. P.

"New Orleans,—(AP)—With a fast running attack combined with some exceptional passing, the Tulane university Greenies today crushed the powerful Georgia Tech eleven, 20 to 14, both of the Tech touchdowns coming in the final period."

"Roanoke, Va., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Tennessee's Volunteers passed and plunged here this afternoon to maintain their southern conference supremacy and defeat the Washington and Lee generals, 39 to 0."

"Cheek Field, Danville, Ky., Ort.

As "Topsy" said in "Gold Diggers of Broadway," "use your imagination."

TAR BABIES SHOW GOOD TEAMWORK

Coach Enright Confident of Victorious Future for Yearlings; Next Game With Maryland Frosh.

With their next scheduled game with the Maryland freshmen at College Park only three weeks off, the Tar Babies are working hard on both defense and offense with the determination to return from their first foreign invasion this year victorious.

Since the frosh were defeated by the Duke Blue Imps in their last game by the narrow margin of eight to seven many changes and improvements have taken place which Coach Rex Enright believes it to a decided advantage.

Recently in scrimmages with the varsity the Tar Babies have shown a smoother running team than at any other time this year. Nearly everyone on the squad has been given a chance to show his ability. Quite frequently the frosh offense has broken through the varsity line for nice gains and also have checked the varsity offense in a creditable manner. A number of new prospects have been discovered and it is almost certain they will see action in the coming game.

In the Southern Conference the freshman football schedule is not allowed to contain more than five games. In Pennsylvania only two games are allowed the freshmen and in the Western Conference the freshmen are merely for the use of the varsity in scrimmage.

The freshmen team is generally considered to be a training ground for the varsity and so far this year the freshmen have been using the rival team's plays for use in scrimmage against the varsity. Because of this the frosh have had little time to develop much style of their own. In spite of this there is every indication for another win over Maryland this year.

In the fall of 1869 freshmen in the A. B. school studied Latin, Greek, Mathematics, and Rhetoricals.

TEAM HAS PLAYED HALF OF SCHEDULE

The football squad, having played just half of its 10-game schedule, now faces five more tough games with North Carolina and Southern Conference rivals.

Four of the five games figure in the Southern Conference race, in which the Tar Heels have three victories out of four starts, and three of them bear on the final ranking for the state title, in which Carolina to date has a clean slate.

The first hurdle in the Tar Heels' path is the Wolfpack of State, which is to invade Kenan Stadium Saturday of this week. Then comes South Carolina, Davidson, Virginia and Duke in succession.

Two of the five remaining games are carded for the stadium, one the annual Turkey Day Classic with Virginia on November 28. South Carolina, Davidson, and Duke will all be played away from home, November 9, November 16, and December 7, respectively.

The success of the season depends largely on these five games, and victories in all five would mean the state championship, a ranking in the first division of the Southern Conference, and maybe a Conference title since the Tar Heels have dropped but one game and the titular chase is getting generally mixed up. Much depends on what Tennessee will do from now on.

As mid-season is passed, Carolina and State both hold clean slates in Big Five tilts, both having won from Wake Forest. Duke has not begun its series with North Carolina opponents yet.

Mechanical Engineers Will Meet Thursday

A meeting of all mechanical engineering students is to be held at 214 Phillips hall at 7:15 Thursday night. The purpose of this meeting is to organize a society the aim of which is to petition a chapter of the American Mechanical Engineers as soon as a sufficient membership is attained.

All students interested are urged to be present.

VARSITY - FROSH HARRIERS READY FOR N. C. STATE

Annual Dual Meet Between Tar Heels and Techs To Be Held Between Halves of Game Saturday.

Carolina's varsity and freshman harriers are practicing in earnest in preparation for their dual meet with the varsity and freshman cross country teams of N. C. State college next Saturday afternoon. This meet will be run off between the halves of the State-U. N. C. football game and is expected to attract much attention, as both schools have good teams.

Coach Dale Ranson, Carolina mentor, has announced that his teams have been working hard the last two weeks and are confident of defeating the best State may have to offer.

According to the State college "Technician," Coach Alex Redfern is also giving him teams strenuous workouts in preparation for the meet Saturday. Redfern's hopes for a varsity victory are banked on Johnson, Pearcy and Brock. Troutman is outstanding among the freshman runners.

The meet next Saturday is expected to give Coach Ranson a line on what competition may be expected from State in the Southern Conference meet November 23.

Intramural Games

Results of yesterday's Intramural games were as follows: Zeta Psi won from Theta Chi 7 to 0; Steele won from Manly 6 to 0; Carr won from "J" on a forfeit; Old West and "F" tied 6 to 6, but Old West made eight first downs to "F's" six. thereby receiving credit for a win.

Where? — In Tar Heel Ads.

DR. R. R. CLARK
DENTIST
Office Over Bank of Chapel Hill
Telephone 385

"Customed to Don or Customed to Measure"

In The Fall Mode

Frosty nights and a cutting tang in chilly breezes sound King Winter's approach. Slip into a new topcoat, and see how much better you'll feel when Carolina whips State Saturday. Finest fabrics. Latest styles. Cut in the fall mode to suit the University man.

LANGROCK FINE CLOTHES

Pritchard-Patterson
INCORPORATED
University Outfitters

What's Happening

TODAY

10:30 a. m.—Pat M. Neff, Gerrard hall.

7:00 p. m.—Meeting Tar Heel business staff in offices, basement Alumni building.

7:15 p. m.—Di Senate, Di hall, New West.

7:15 p. m.—Phi Assembly, Phi hall, New East.

7:15 p. m.—Student vestry meeting, Episcopal parish house.

8:00 p. m.—Pat M. Neff, Methodist church.

WEDNESDAY

7:00 p. m.—Venable hall. Motion pictures, "White Magic," "Romance of Paints and Varnishes" and "Profits from Cull Oranges and Lemons."

THURSDAY

7:15 p. m.—Mechanical engineers meet, 214 Phillips.

DI SENATE WILL DISCUSS 3 BILLS

The following resolutions appear on the calendar of the Dialectic senate:

Resolved, That the Dialectic senate go on record as favoring the organization of southern textile workers into established, competent, and recognized unions.

Resolved, That the Dialectic senate go on record as requesting the officials of the University to repair the walks in front of Swain hall.

Resolved, That the Dialectic senate go on record as stating that, since co-eds are permitted to enroll in the University, they should be admitted to all classes.

These resolutions will come up for discussion tonight in the order named.

The dance committee appointed two weeks ago has made all plans for the Di senate dance and will make a complete report tonight. The committee on the Mary D. Wright debate will also make a report.

All candidates for membership who report at the meeting tonight at 7:15 in New West building will be granted regular privileges of membership and be initiated at the regular initiation meeting, the date of which has not yet been set. All such men are urged to be present and join tonight in order to be eligible for the Di senate dance of December 6.

Phi Calendar

Resolved: That the General Assembly of North Carolia make bumming a misdemeanor.

That the Phi Assembly go on record as not approving of subsidized athletics.

That a School of Religion should be established at the University of North Carolina.

That the entire freshman class should be made to sit in a special cheering section and wear the Cheerio uniform.

State College Men Confer With Walker

Frank Capps, director of extension at State college, and E. W. Ruggles, assistant director, together with Professor E. W. Broshart, professor of vocational education at State college, were in conference yesterday with Dean Walker relative to the coalition of the credits of the two institutions.

DEAN McCORMICK BACK FROM MEMPHIS MEETING

Dean C. T. McCormick of the University Law School has just returned from Memphis, Tenn., where he has been attending the sessions if the American Bar Association.

Dean McCormick also attended a meetng of the Executive Committee of the Association of American Law Schools, of which he is a member.

Music Department Professors Return From Northern Trip

Dyer and Kenedy Inspect Many Organs While Away.

Professors Harold S. Dyer and Nelson O. Kennedy have returned from a trip to inspect some of the larger organs of the country and to get bids on a new organ which is to be installed in the new home of the music department. The old library is now being remodeled and will be the headquarters of the University music department.

While on their trip Professors Dyer and Kennedy visited Kornegy Hall, New York. This building is one of the most noted buildings in the world. A new organ is being installed there, and it is to be dedicated on November 4. The organists there will be Pietro Yon who was formerly organist at Saint Peter's Cathedral and Vatican in Rome. Yon's present position is at Saint Patrick's Cathedral in New York city where a new organ is also being installed.

From New York the party went to Chicago and visited the Rockefeller Chapel at the University of Chicago where another large organ has been installed, and then came back to Hagerstown, Md., to inspect the factory of the Moller organ works. More than one organ a day is delivered by this factory.

The last stop before returning home was Washington, D. C. The party while there visited the Calvary Baptist church, the church of the late President Harding.

All of the leading organ factories seemed to have a great desire to install the organ in the University. This eagerness is due chiefly to the idea of the advertising in the south.

INA CLAIRE STARS IN "THE AWFUL TRUTH" AT CAROLINA THEATRE

Ina Claire, charming star in Pathe's all-talking production of "The Awful Truth," which comes to the Carolina theatre today, won her first recognition by David Belasco who later became her mentor by burlesqueing one of his current plays in the Ziegfield Follies. She was singing a parody of Marie-Odile and her gift of satire made the number one of the biggest hits of that season's show.

Because Miss Claire's burlesque of a Belasco star indicated a finer talent not inferior to that of the artist she was mimicking, Belasco made her a flattering offer. The next year, under his management, she was a Broadway star in "Polly With a Past." There follows a long string of successes which include "The Gold Diggers," "Grounds for Divorce," "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," "The Awful Truth" and "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney."

Ina Claire says she does not know just when she first conceived the idea of going on the stage, but she made her debut in a song and dance act at the age of four. She was born in Philadelphia but lived most of her childhood in Washington, D. C.

Her reputation as the best dressed woman on the American stage preceded Miss Claire into Hollywood and, according to those who are authorities on the subject, she has lived up to that reputation both on and off the screen.

Even as women are indebted to Ina Claire for original and daring style creations, so do men admire her as a modern sort of Mrs. Sir Walter Raleigh. For it was she who first smiled down from the nation's billboards, announcing the fact that she loved to see a man smoke a pipe."

Airplane For Use Of Engineers Will Arrive Here Soon

A letter acknowledging receipt of the order from the University for an airplane has been received from the War Department by E. G. Hoefer, head of the mechanical engineering department of the University.

The letter states that the commanding officer of Fairfield air depot at Fairfield, Ohio, has been instructed to ship the airplane as soon as possible. Mr. Hoefer stated that the War Department is usually prompt in filling its orders, and the plane should arrive soon.

The plane, type VE-9, is being placed in the University by the War Department for the purpose of instruction with the understanding that it will not be used for actual flight.

Hobbs Will Speak At Mathematics Seminar

The first four meetings in the mathematics seminar to be held this year have been given over to the presentation of a paper by L. E. Bush on "General Quaternions." Mr. Bush's paper, which was based on work that he took at the University of Chicago during the past summer, followed the general trend of finding an integral basis for certain cases of the general quaternion.

The mathematics seminar, which meets weekly, is a discussion group formed of the graduate students and the faculty of the mathematics department. At its meetings things of interest in mathematics and developments of science are discussed. Papers are presented, and discussion and criticism of them is given.

At the next meeting of the seminar, which will be held Wednesday afternoon, Professor A. W. Hobbs will present a paper on "Geometric Interpretation of Vieta's Transformation of the Cubic."

Grand Opera Appears In Greensboro Soon

The Pennsylvania Grand Opera Company will present three operas in Greensboro at N. C. C. W. auditorium on November 18 and 19. "Il Trovatore" will open the series on Monday night followed by "Martha" at matinee Tuesday: "Lucia" will end the run on Tuesday night.

Many noted artists will appear with the Pennsylvania company: it is known as one of the best traveling opera companies and cooperates with the Metropolitan company in the use of great stars. This set of artists is making a tour of the south, starting in Philadelphia and going to New Orleans and then ending up in Philadelphia again.

Tickets are on sale now and may be secured by mail from the Corley Company in Greensboro.

Duke Official Will Interview Engineers

While in Charlotte attending the meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers Wednesday and Thursday, Professor G. F. Bason, head of the electrical engineering department, had an interview with C. I. Burkholder of the Duke Power Company, and he reports Mr. Burkeholder as being very interested in graduates in electrical engineering from this institution.

Mr. Burkholder stated that he would like interviews with members of the graduating class in electrical engineering who are interested in becoming connected with the Duke company.

Mitchell and Green Have Contributions In American Caravan

The American Caravan, yearbook of American literature, carries in the recently issued edition a short story, "Cool Swamp and Field Woman," by Joseph Mitchell, alumnus of the University and last year assistant editor of The Carolina Magazine. Mitchell will be remembered by many students here as the author of numerous stories and poems in the magazine, and as Playmaker critic of the Tar Heel. The Caravan also carries Paul Green's play, "Tread the Green Grass." This play is also scheduled to be presented in the near future in New York City.

Edited by Alfred Kreymborg, Lewis Mumford and Paul Rosenfeld The American Caravan is published yearly and contains stories, verse, essays and novels by the young writers furthering the "new trend of literature." Paul Green, the University's famous playwright also contributed to the first American Caravan published in 1928.

Smith To Present Birthday Tickets

No student whose birthday occurs during the school year need bemoan his fate, for in accordance with the custom established last year, Manager E. Carrington Smith of the Carolina theatre will present a complimentary ticket to each of the students whose birthday is in the school calendar.

A list of the birth dates of all students has been compiled, and invitations to attend the show are mailed in time to reach the student on the morning of his birthday. Freshmen this year have been surprised to find the tickets in their birthday mail, and many have called on Mr. Smith to thank him personally.

In the course of the average day between 30 and 40 tickets are mailed out. The complimentary passes may be used for any show during the day they are good. Birthday passes will be sent out throughout the school year.

Folk Lore Society Meets In Raleigh

The North Carolina Folk Lore society will hold its annual session in Raleigh at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon, November 1, in the ballroom of the Hotel Sir Walter. Sessions of the state Literary and Historical association will be held during both Thursday and Friday, October 31 and November 1.

Programs for all these sessions will be interesting: that of the Folk Lore society will be as follows:

Presidential address, Mrs. S. Westray Battle, Asheville: lecture, "Ballads and Other Songs of the Kentucky Mountains," Gilbert Reynolds Combs, Charlotte: paper, "Treasure-Hunting in North Carolina," Frank C. Brown, Durham; paper, "Folk Customs": business session with reports and election of officers.

Officers of the society are: president, Mrs. S. Westray Battle, Asheville; vice-presidents, Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Raleigh; Mrs. Maude Minish Sutton, Forest City; Miss Lucy Maria Cobb, Raleigh; secretary-treasurer, Frank C. Brown, Durham.

Graduate Club To Give Reception

The Graduate club will give its third annual reception in Smith building Friday, November 1, from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The University faculty and residents of Chapel Hill are cordially invited to be present. Following the reception there will be an informal dance from 10:30 to 1.

Oldtime Hazing Now Has New Name; Called Orientation

(Continued from page one)

awhile to contemplate the mysterious and fearsome tombstones that shone white in the night. Dr. Henderson also remembered incidents that had a rougher aspect. He told of two freshmen from the western part of the state who, backed in Memorial hall, drawn knives in their hands, defied the raving, jeering sophomores to touch them.

"One virtuous idea alone lay back of the philosophy of hazing," said Dr. Henderson, "and that was the idea that a freshman was an undeveloped species of the homo sapoens., and that he needed first of all as a primary lesson in college life to have inculcated in him a more wholesome respect for the manly virtues which the upperclassmen necessarily imagined him.

While the old-time hazing had its weak points and serious defects, Dr. Henderson did not find it wholly bad and expressed the desire that the present policy of orientation not develop into a form of coddling. "It is, I am sure," he writes, "the purpose of the principle now in force at this institution both to inspire the freshman with confidence in his environment and in the atmosphere of feeling which he is to breath; and also to make him appear that he is a man under guidance and that his future destiny on the campus lies in his own hands. The purpose of orientation is not to coddle but to guide with judgement and kindliness."

How different the experience of the modern freshman as told by North Carolina's boy Edison, D. Allen Harrell.

"From the Dean of Students I received letters assuring me that I would find the University a splendid place from every standpoint: from the Y. M. C. A. I received the "Freshman Handbook," containing pictures and information about the University and its student activities: but most impressive of all was a letter from the president of the sophomore class, congratulating me upon my choice of schools, and giving me advice on the subject of my college career. In two days I felt myself to be a full-fledged Carolina man."

So there's the difference. Once it was hazing, but now orientation is the word. And before many years, if the present trend continues, people will grab their dictionaries whenever the word "hazing" is used. Perhaps the dictionary itself will add an "obsolete" after the word.

LOST

Black bill fold bearing name Robert Drane, lost somewhere on campus yesterday morning. Reward if finder will return to Lost and Found Bureau, Y. M. C. A.

CAROLINA THEATRE

TODAY
INA CLAIRE
in
"The Awful Truth"
A great Broadway star in her greatest stage success.
Added Features
HARRY LANGDON
in
"Hotter Than Hot"
All Talking Comedy
"SCREEN SONG"

Wednesday - Thursday
AL JOLSON
"Say It With Songs"

Best Is Original Telegraph Operator

(Continued from page one)

for one reason or another, he buys the tickets nevertheless and leaves them at the box office, so that the children can use them at their first opportunity—and they generally don't fail him.

He has seen the rise and fall of many a picture star, but confronted with the question of his favorite, he found it difficult to answer. At last he decided Billie Dove was about the cream of the lot in his opinion, though he quickly added that he likes 'em all.

Mr. Best gets around to all the football games and the major events on the campus. He never has need of a ticket, for he is well known to everybody. His mind is keen and active, and it is one of his boasts that he remembers the calendar as far back as two hundred years. Given the date of the day, the month and the year, he will tell you at once the name of the day, as far back as you care to go.

He spent 22 years in the telegraph service, doing pioneer work, and has been pensioned for the last twelve years.

There is no one more proud than he is of the progress of the telegraph from the old slow hand key with its up-and-down motion, to the modern "bug," operated with a flick of the wrist at lightning speed. He is the father of telegraphy in the community, the Edison of Chapel Hill, and one of the last of the old-time, picturesque, and dependable "buzzer boys," the men who made the telegraph the useful instrument it is today.

LOST

Lost: Copy of Spinoza's Ethics belonging to Durham library. Reward for return to Tar Heel office.

Tobacco's at its best . . . in a pipe

MEN'S preference for a man's smoke—the pipe—is positive. But do you know why? We'll tell you.

First, pipe tobacco's different—for instance, Edgeworth. So tobacco smolders as it should in a pipe. And third, these mellow flakes give more satisfaction—greater fragrance, the good old savory burley, sound and fullness of rich smoke.

There's even a fourth reason. It's like good company. The pipe-smoking brotherhood is that.

Tobacco's at its best in a pipe. It gets a chance to be itself. It can loosen up as it comes to life, expand and take in air and grow mellow. Only the choicest leaves get that chance, moreover, for pipes tell the truth about tobacco. Choice leaves, blends, and mighty careful blending. Edgeworth comes up eleven distinct processes before it's willing to pass it on to you.

If you keep on missing all this, that's your fault—for we're willing to send you your first pipeful of Edgeworth. See the coupon? Fill it out, get a good pipe and a tin that will bring you a neat little sweet-you packet of good tobacco, all worth.

Edgeworth is a careful blend of tobacco—selected, aged, cut for smoking. Its quality and flavor are unchanged. Buy it anywhere. Ready-Rubbed and Plug Slice—15¢ the pocket package; tin of pound humidor, $1.50.

EDGEWORTH

LARUS & BRO. CO.,
Richmond, Va.

I'll try your Edgeworth. And if it is a good pipe,

Name
Street
Town and State
Now for the Edgeworth coupon.

What's Happening

TODAY

10:30 a. m.—Pat M. Neff, Gerrard hall.

7:00 p. m.—Meeting Tar Heel business staff in offices, basement Alumni building.

7:15 p. m.—Di Senate, Di hall, New West.

7:15 p. m.—Phi Assembly, Phi hall, New East.

7:15 p. m.—Student vestry meeting, Episcopal parish house.

8:00 p. m.—Pat M. Neff, Methodist church.

WEDNESDAY

7:00 p. m.—Venable hall. Motion pictures, "White Magic," "Romance of Paints and Varnishes" and "Profits from Cull Oranges and Lemons."

THURSDAY

7:15 p. m.—Mechanical engineers meet, 214 Phillips.

DI SENATE WILL DISCUSS 3 BILLS

The following resolutions appear on the calendar of the Dialectic senate:

Resolved, That the Dialectic senate go on record as favoring the organization of southern textile workers into established, competent, and recognized unions.

Resolved, That the Dialectic senate go on record as requesting the officials of the University to repair the walks in front of Swain hall.

Resolved, That the Dialectic senate go on record as stating that, since co-eds are permitted to enroll in the University, they should be admitted to all classes.

These resolutions will come up for discussion tonight in the order named.

The dance committee appointed two weeks ago has made all plans for the Di senate dance and will make a complete report tonight. The committee on the Mary D. Wright debate will also make a report.

All candidates for membership who report at the meeting tonight at 7:15 in New West building will be granted regular privileges of membership and be initiated at the regular initiation meeting, the date of which has not yet been set. All such men are urged to be present and join tonight in order to be eligible for the Di senate dance of December 6.

Phi Calendar

Resolved: That the General Assembly of North Carolia make bumming a misdemeanor.

That the Phi Assembly go on record as not approving of subsidized athletics.

That a School of Religion should be established at the University of North Carolina.

That the entire freshman class should be made to sit in a special cheering section and wear the Cheerio uniform.

State College Men Confer With Walker

Frank Capps, director of extension at State college, and E. W. Ruggles, assistant director, together with Professor E. W. Broshart, professor of vocational education at State college, were in conference yesterday with Dean Walker relative to the coalition of the credits of the two institutions.

DEAN McCORMICK BACK FROM MEMPHIS MEETING

Dean C. T. McCormick of the University Law School has just returned from Memphis, Tenn., where he has been attending the sessions if the American Bar Association.

Dean McCormick also attended a meetng of the Executive Committee of the Association of American Law Schools, of which he is a member.

Music Department Professors Return From Northern Trip

Dyer and Kenedy Inspect Many Organs While Away.

Professors Harold S. Dyer and Nelson O. Kennedy have returned from a trip to inspect some of the larger organs of the country and to get bids on a new organ which is to be installed in the new home of the music department. The old library is now being remodeled and will be the headquarters of the University music department.

While on their trip Professors Dyer and Kennedy visited Kornegy Hall, New York. This building is one of the most noted buildings in the world. A new organ is being installed there, and it is to be dedicated on November 4. The organists there will be Pietro Yon who was formerly organist at Saint Peter's Cathedral and Vatican in Rome. Yon's present position is at Saint Patrick's Cathedral in New York city where a new organ is also being installed.

From New York the party went to Chicago and visited the Rockefeller Chapel at the University of Chicago where another large organ has been installed, and then came back to Hagerstown, Md., to inspect the factory of the Moller organ works. More than one organ a day is delivered by this factory.

The last stop before returning home was Washington, D. C. The party while there visited the Calvary Baptist church, the church of the late President Harding.

All of the leading organ factories seemed to have a great desire to install the organ in the University. This eagerness is due chiefly to the idea of the advertising in the south.

INA CLAIRE STARS IN "THE AWFUL TRUTH" AT CAROLINA THEATRE

Ina Claire, charming star in Pathe's all-talking production of "The Awful Truth," which comes to the Carolina theatre today, won her first recognition by David Belasco who later became her mentor by burlesqueing one of his current plays in the Ziegfield Follies. She was singing a parody of Marie-Odile and her gift of satire made the number one of the biggest hits of that season's show.

Because Miss Claire's burlesque of a Belasco star indicated a finer talent not inferior to that of the artist she was mimicking, Belasco made her a flattering offer. The next year, under his management, she was a Broadway star in "Polly With a Past." There follows a long string of successes which include "The Gold Diggers," "Grounds for Divorce," "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," "The Awful Truth" and "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney."

Ina Claire says she does not know just when she first conceived the idea of going on the stage, but she made her debut in a song and dance act at the age of four. She was born in Philadelphia but lived most of her childhood in Washington, D. C.

Her reputation as the best dressed woman on the American stage preceded Miss Claire into Hollywood and, according to those who are authorities on the subject, she has lived up to that reputation both on and off the screen.

Even as women are indebted to Ina Claire for original and daring style creations, so do men admire her as a modern sort of Mrs. Sir Walter Raleigh. For it was she who first smiled down from the nation's billboards, announcing the fact that she loved to see a man smoke a pipe."

Airplane For Use Of Engineers Will Arrive Here Soon

A letter acknowledging receipt of the order from the University for an airplane has been received from the War Department by E. G. Hoefer, head of the mechanical engineering department of the University.

The letter states that the commanding officer of Fairfield air depot at Fairfield, Ohio, has been instructed to ship the airplane as soon as possible. Mr. Hoefer stated that the War Department is usually prompt in filling its orders, and the plane should arrive soon.

The plane, type VE-9, is being placed in the University by the War Department for the purpose of instruction with the understanding that it will not be used for actual flight.

Hobbs Will Speak At Mathematics Seminar

The first four meetings in the mathematics seminar to be held this year have been given over to the presentation of a paper by L. E. Bush on "General Quaternions." Mr. Bush's paper, which was based on work that he took at the University of Chicago during the past summer, followed the general trend of finding an integral basis for certain cases of the general quaternion.

The mathematics seminar, which meets weekly, is a discussion group formed of the graduate students and the faculty of the mathematics department. At its meetings things of interest in mathematics and developments of science are discussed. Papers are presented, and discussion and criticism of them is given.

At the next meeting of the seminar, which will be held Wednesday afternoon, Professor A. W. Hobbs will present a paper on "Geometric Interpretation of Vieta's Transformation of the Cubic."

Grand Opera Appears In Greensboro Soon

The Pennsylvania Grand Opera Company will present three operas in Greensboro at N. C. C. W. auditorium on November 18 and 19. "Il Trovatore" will open the series on Monday night followed by "Martha" at matinee Tuesday: "Lucia" will end the run on Tuesday night.

Many noted artists will appear with the Pennsylvania company; it is known as one of the best traveling opera companies and cooperates with the Metropolitan company in the use of great stars. This set of artists is making a tour of the south, starting in Philadelphia and going to New Orleans and then ending up in Philadelphia again.

Tickets are on sale now and may be secured by mail from the Corley Company in Greensboro.

Duke Official Will Interview Engineers

While in Charlotte attending the meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers Wednesday and Thursday, Professor G. F. Bason, head of the electrical engineering department, had an interview with C. I. Burkholder of the Duke Power Company, and he reports Mr. Burkeholder as being very interested in graduates in electrical engineering from this institution.

Mr. Burkholder stated that he would like interviews with members of the graduating class in electrical engineering who are interested in becoming connected with the Duke company.

Mitchell and Green Have Contributions In American Caravan

The American Caravan, yearbook of American literature, carries in the recently issued edition a short story, "Cool Swamp and Field Woman," by Joseph Mitchell, alumnus of the University and last year assistant editor of The Carolina Magazine. Mitchell will be remembered by many students here as the author of numerous stories and poems in the magazine, and as Playmaker critic of the Tar Heel. The Caravan also carries Paul Green's play, "Tread the Green Grass." This play is also scheduled to be presented in the near future in New York City.

Edited by Alfred Kreymborg, Lewis Mumford and Paul Rosenfeld The American Caravan is published yearly and contains stories, verse, essays and novels by the young writers furthering the "new trend of literature." Paul Green, the University's famous playwright also contributed to the first American Caravan published in 1928.

Smith To Present Birthday Tickets

No student whose birthday occurs during the school year need bemoan his fate, for in accordance with the custom established last year, Manager E. Carrington Smith of the Carolina theatre will present a complimentary ticket to each of the students whose birthday is in the school calendar.

A list of the birth dates of all students has been compiled, and invitations to attend the show are mailed in time to reach the student on the morning of his birthday. Freshmen this year have been surprised to find the tickets in their birthday mail, and many have called on Mr. Smith to thank him personally.

In the course of the average day between 30 and 40 tickets are mailed out. The complimentary passes may be used for any show during the day they are good. Birthday passes will be sent out throughout the school year.

Folk Lore Society Meets In Raleigh

The North Carolina Folk Lore society will hold its annual session in Raleigh at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon, November 1, in the ballroom of the Hotel Sir Walter. Sessions of the state Literary and Historical association will be held during both Thursday and Friday, October 31 and November 1.

Programs for all these sessions will be interesting; that of the Folk Lore society will be as follows:

Presidential address, Mrs. S. Westray Battle, Asheville; lecture, "Ballads and Other Songs of the Kentucky Mountains," Gilbert Reynolds Combs, Charlotte; paper, "Treasure-Hunting in North Carolina," Frank C. Brown, Durham; paper, "Folk Customs"; business session with reports and election of officers.

Officers of the society are: president, Mrs. S. Westray Battle, Asheville; vice-presidents, Mrs. Josephus Daniels, Raleigh; Mrs. Maude Minish Sutton, Forest City; Miss Lucy Maria Cobb, Raleigh; secretary-treasurer, Frank C. Brown, Durham.

Graduate Club To Give Reception

The Graduate club will give its third annual reception in Smith building Friday, November 1, from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The University faculty and residents of Chapel Hill are cordially invited to be present. Following the reception there will be an informal dance from 10:30 to 1.

Oldtime Hazing Now Has New Name; Called Orientation

(Continued from page one)

awhile to contemplate the mysterious and fearsome tombstones that shone white in the night. Dr. Henderson also remembered incidents that had a rougher aspect. He told of two freshmen from the western part of the state who, backed in Memorial hall, drawn knives in their hands, defied the raving, jeering sophomores to touch them.

"One virtuous idea alone lay back of the philosophy of hazing," said Dr. Henderson, "and that was the idea that a freshman was an undeveloped species of the homo sapoens., and that he needed first of all as a primary lesson in college life to have inculcated in him a more wholesome respect for the manly virtues which the upperclassmen necessarily imagined him.

While the old-time hazing had its weak points and serious defects, Dr. Henderson did not find it wholly bad and expressed the desire that the present policy of orientation not develop into a form of coddling. "It is, I am sure," he writes, "the purpose of the principle now in force at this institution both to inspire the freshman with confidence in his environment and in the atmosphere of feeling which he is to breath; and also to make him appear that he is a man under guidance and that his future destiny on the campus lies in his own hands. The purpose of orientation is not to coddle but to guide with judgement and kindliness."

How different the experience of the modern freshman as told by North Carolina's boy Edison, D. Allen Harrell.

"From the Dean of Students I received letters assuring me that I would find the University a splendid place from every standpoint; from the Y. M. C. A. I received the "Freshman Handbook," containing pictures and information about the University and its student activities; but most impressive of all was a letter from the president of the sophomore class, congratulating me upon my choice of schools, and giving me advice on the subject of my college career. In two days I felt myself to be a full-fledged Carolina man."

So there's the difference. Once it was hazing, but now orientation is the word. And before many years, if the present trend continues, people will grab their dictionaries whenever the word "hazing" is used. Perhaps the dictionary itself will add an "obsolete" after the word.

LOST

Black bill fold bearing name Robert Drane, lost somewhere on campus yesterday morning. Reward if finder will return to Lost and Found Bureau, Y. M. C. A.

CAROLINA THEATRE

TODAY
INA CLAIRE
in
"The Awful Truth"
A great Broadway star in her greatest stage success.
Added Features
HARRY LANGDON
in
"Hotter Than Hot"
All Talking Comedy
"SCREEN SONG"

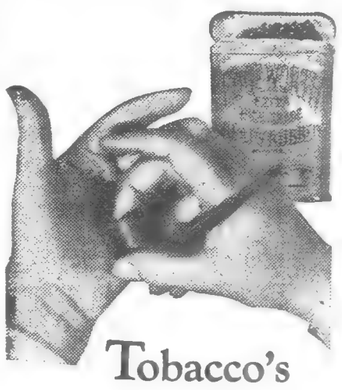
Wednesday - Thursday
AL JOLSON
"Say It With Songs"

Best Is Original Telegraph Operator

(Continued from page one)

for one reason or another, he buys the tickets nevertheless and leaves them at the box-office, so that the children can use them at their first opportunity—and they generally don't fail him.

He has seen the rise and fall of many a picture star, but confronted with the question of his favorite, he found it difficult to answer. At last he decided Billie Dove was about the cream of the lot in his opinion, though he quickly added that he likes 'em all.



Mr. Best gets around to all the football games and the major events on the campus. He never has need of a ticket, since he is well known to everybody. His mind is keen and active, and it is one of his boasts that he remembers the calendar as far back as two hundred years. Given the date of the day, the month and the year, he will tell you at once the name of the day, as far back as you care to go.

He spent 22 years in the telegraph service, doing pioneer work, and has been pensioned for the last twelve years.

There is no one more proud than he is of the progress of the telegraph from the old slow hand key with its up-and-down motion, to the modern "bug," operated with a flick of the wrist at lightning speed. He is the father of telegraphy in the community, the Edison of Chapel Hill, and one of the last of the old-time, picturesque, and dependable "buzzer boys," the men who made the telegraph the useful instrument it is today.

LOST

Lost: Copy of Spinoza's Ethics belonging to Durham library. Reward for return to Tar Heel office.

Tobacco's at its best . . . in a pipe

MEN'S preference for a man's smoke—the pipe—is plenty positive. But do you know why? We'll tell you.

First, pipe tobacco's different—for instance, Edgeworth. Second, tobacco smolders as it should in a pipe. And third, these mean you get more satisfaction—greater relish of the good old savory burley, soothing fullness of rich smoke.

There's even a fourth reason: you like good company. The pipe-smoking brotherhood is that.

Tobacco's at its best in a pipe. It gets a chance to be itself there—to loosen up as it comes to life, to expand and take in air and glow. Only the choicest leaves get that chance, moreover, for pipes tell the truth about tobacco. Choice leaves, choice blends, and mighty careful handling. Edgeworth comes up through eleven distinct processes before we're willing to pass it on to you.

If you keep on missing all this, that's your fault—for we're waiting to send you your first pipefuls of Edgeworth. See the coupon? Fill it out, get a good pipe and the postman will bring you a neat little glad-to-meet-you packet of good old Edgeworth.

Edgeworth is a careful blend of good tobaccos—selected especially for pipe-smoking. Its quality and flavor never change. Buy it anywhere—"Ready Rubbed" and "Plug Slice"—15¢ pocket package to pound humidor tin.

EDGEWORTH

LARUS & BRO. CO.,
Richmond, Va.

I'll try your Edgeworth. And I'll try it in a good pipe.

Name_____

Street_____

Town and State_____

Now let the Edgeworth come! v

Student Tickets Exchanged
TODAY
Book Exchange

The Daily Tar Heel

Student Tickets Exchanged
TODAY
Book Exchange

VOLUME XXXVIII | CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1929 | NUMBER 35

NEXT BUCCANEER WILL BE BETTER SAYS CY EDSON

Art And Editorial Staffs To Be Reorganized; Deadline For "Aviation Number" Is November 1.

With the distribution of the first issue of the Carolina Buccaneer, the editor, Cy Edson, states that he expects one of the most successful years for the campus monthly. Failure of contributors to submit copy early handicapped the organization of the staff and necessitated the use of considerable old material in the first issue.

Both the art and editorial staffs are to be completely reorganized with the November issue of the publication. Many new men will be added to the staff and more men will be given the opportunity of observing how the book is made up.

The coming issue will be the "Aviation Number," with the cover designed by an artist on the staff of the Charlotte Engraving Company. With better organization and a larger staff of contributors the editor expects this issue to be a great improvement over the first one.

Another feature of the coming issue of the Buccaneer will be a change throughout the book in cuts to exemplify more clearly the term "Buccaneer."

The deadline for contributions to the coming issue is November 1.

Magazine Editor Visits The Hill

James Southall Wilson, editor of the Virginia Quarterly Review, was in Chapel Hill last week as the guest of Dr. J. DeR. Hamilton. His primary motive in coming to the University was to solicit contributions to the publication from members of the faculty. Dr. Hamilton and Dr. Archibald Henderson had articles in the magazine last month.

Koch Heads State Committee To Select Three Winning Plays

Drama League Of America Announces Contest In Playwriting.

ENDS DECEMBER 31

Purpose Is "The Discovery Of New Authors And The Development of Native American Drama."

Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Playmakers, has been appointed state chairman of three national contests in playwriting that are being sponsored for the third consecutive year by the Drama League of America and the Play Department of Longmans, Green, and Company.

The purpose of the contests is "the discovery of new authors and the development of native American drama."

Awards will be made for a full-length play, a one-act Christmas play, and a religious play, either full-length or pageant.

The winning full-length play will be produced by the New York Theatre Guild, and the author will receive an advance royalty of $500 and a percentage of the gross weekly office receipts.

The winning one-act Christmas play will be produced by the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

The religious play judged best will be produced by the Pilgrim Players of Evanston.

The author is to receive $500 advance royalty on the book and amateur acting rights of the full-length play, $150 advance royalty on the religious play and $100 advance royalty on the one-act Christmas play. The author is also to receive a certain percentage of the gross sale of the book and 50 percent of all collections from the sale of amateur acting rights.

North Carolinians entering the contests should send their manuscripts to Professor Koch who will place them in the hands of a committee of judges composed of Professors Russell Potter, R. P. Bond, and Dougald MacMillan, all of the English department. The state judges will select the winning manuscript for each contest and forward them to the national judges, who are Hatcher Hughes, Kenyon Nicholson, Alexander Dean, Dr. Holman L. Richardson, Professor Harold A. Ehrensberger and Mrs. A. Starr Best.

All manuscripts must be submitted to the state judges by December 31. Information regarding the contests will be supplied by Professor Koch.

SCIENCE SCHOOL RECEIVES GRANT

Rockefeller Foundation Awards Fund To University For Promotion Of Research Work.

The University has received a grant of five thousand dollars annually for three years from the Rockefeller Foundation as an extension of a grant of the same amount which has been given for the past three years.

Dr. W. C. Coker, who is chairman of the committee to distribute the grant, stated yesterday that the grant will be used for the promotion of research in the pure sciences.

"The grant has been a great help to us in the stimulation of research work," said Dr. Coker, "and the Foundation is doing a great piece of work in making these grants."

The sciences which will receive aid from this gift are botany, geology, psychology and zoology in the natural sciences, and chemistry, physics and mathematics in the physical sciences.

In the past the grant from the Rockefeller Foundation has been to professors who are doing research, and this policy will be followed during this year. The aid given to those doing research work is used to purchase expensive and unusual equipment needed in the work, to buy costly material used, to pay the salaries of research assistants, and to pay traveling expenses.

The committee responsible for the distribution of the grant within the University consists of Doctor Coker, chairman, Dr. Stuhlman, Dean Braune, Dr. MacNider, Dr. Bell, Dr. Prouty and Dr. Henderson.

The University is the only institution in the state to receive aid from the Rockefeller Foundation to be used for the promotion of scientific research. The Rockefeller

PEOPLE JUDGED BY ATMOSPHERE SAYS PAT NEFF

Former Texas Governor Talks Before Kiwanis Club; Says Carolina Has Fine Intellectual Atmosphere.

"Atmosphere," Ex-Governor Pat M. Neff of Texas told the Chapel Hill Kiwanis club last evening, "is that important quality by which people are judged. Nations, peoples, and different sections of the country have different atmosphere and it is this quality which is permanent." The ex-governor stressed the fact that the most important thing about institutions and people is their atmosphere. He said that he was particularly struck by the fine intellectual atmosphere which prevailed upon the campus of the University of North Carolina. "It is that quality which is indigenous to an institution which the students will absorb, and which will convert them into a fine type."

The speaker mentioned the early connections between his own state and that of North Carolina, how North Carolinians had been prominent in the struggle for the uniting of Texas with the American union. Mr. Neff made mention of the part played by President James K. Polk, a North Carolinian and an alumnus of the University, in bringing Texas into the union.

Other visitors at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanians were C. A. Upchurch, head of the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League, and Thomas J. McFadden of Washington, D. C.

Eugene Olive, president of the Kiwanis club, presided at the meeting. It was announced that, beginning with next Tuesday, the Kiwanians would meet in the basement of the Methodist church, rather than the Baptist church, as has been their custom for the past four months.

REGISTRAR RETURNS

Dr. T. J. Wilson, Jr., registrar, has returned to Chapel Hill after spending several days out of town.

Ex-Secretary Tells Some Interesting Facts In Life Of Celebrated Millionaire

Carolina Student Turns Spotlight On Domestic Life Of Harry K. Thaw, Famous Murderer, Philanderer, and Financier.

(By Joe Jones)

While the public eye is turned upon the recent awarding of $75,000 by the New York Supreme court to Miss Marcia Estardus, New York night club hostess, for an alleged biting and hair-brush spanking at the hands of Harry K. Thaw, Broadway sugar daddy, it is of especial interest to know we have a former secretary of Mr. Thaw right here on the campus. This student, a Virginian, became connected with Mr. Thaw while the latter was summering at Kenilworth, the Thaw estate near Winchester, Va.

During his period of secretaryship this young man traveled constantly with the divorced husband of Evelyn Nesbit and slayer of Stanford White. Many and varied were the experiences he had. The tale of these experiences, interesting though it be, is only one brief chapter in the career of America's most notorious playboy.

During the last 24 years Thaw has occupied more space on the front pages of American newspapers than any other individual; Lindbergh, Ford, Edison and Charley Ross not accepted. His marriage in 1905 to Evelyn Nesbit, coveted Broadway beauty, followed a three-year courtship during which the gay actions of the couple frequently got into print. But it was 14 months later that the two became the center of international attention when Thaw shot Stanford White on the old Madison

(Continued on last page)

DR. WAGSTAFF TO DELIVER ADDRESS

History Professor To Make Opening Talk To State Literary And Historical Association.

Dr. H. W. Wagstaff, of the history department, will deliver the opening address at the State Literary and Historical Association, which will hold its annual meeting in Raleigh tomorrow and Friday. Dr. Wagstaff is president of the Association.

The other speaker for the occasion is Dr. William Starr Meyers, professor of politics at Princeton University. Dr. Meyers, who is a noted lecturer on political and historical subjects, is an alumnus of the University, having been a member of the class of 1897. He will speak on the subject, "Representative Government—Past and Present."

The North Carolina Folk Lore Society will convene at the same time; the members of the two groups will hold several joint-meetings.

The program for the two days is: Thursday, October 31, 8:30 o'clock, Virginia Dare ball room, Invocation and Presidential address by Dr. H. M. Wagstaff to members and guests of the association and society.

Friday morning, November 1, 10 o'clock, Manteo room, Sir Walter, Paper: 'The Moravian Contribution to Colonial North Carolina," by Adelaide Fries, Winston-Salem. Paper: "Further Reflections on Reconstruction," by B. B. Kendrick, Greensboro. Paper: "The Status of Woman in Ante-bellum North Carolina," Guin Griffin Johnson, Chapel Hill.

Business Session, Friday evening, November 1, 8:30, Hugh Morson High School Auditorium, Address, "Representative Government—Past and Present," by William Starr Meyers.

NEWS INSTITUTE SET FOR JANUARY

University Will Be Host To Annual Gathering Of Newspapermen.

January 15, 16, and 17 have been set as the dates for the next annual Newspaper institute, which is to be held here under the joint auspices of the North Carolina Press association and the University.

The dates were fixed and a tentative program outlined at a joint meeting here of the executive committee of the Press association and a committee from the University.

Five feature speakers are to be invited to address the institute. They are specialists in their line and are well known to the newspaper folk.

Advertising, circulation, and the editorial and news pages are among the chief topics to be discussed.

The program that the joint committee has in mind is one that should be of special interest to both weekly and daily newspapermen.

The committee that met here to map out the program was composed of W. C. Dowd, Jr., Miss Beatrice Cobb, Lee Weathers, Josh Horne, Isaac London, and Herbert Peele, representing the North Carolina Press association, and R. M. Grumman, M. F. Vining, O. J. Coffin, and R. W. Madry, representing the University.

Mark Van Doren Praises Work Of Guy Johnson And H. W. Odum

(By E. C. Daniel)

It is not as the school iwth "a team of a hundred backs" or as the home of the Playmakers that the University of North Carolina is being mentioned recently among the intelligentsia, "the people who really count," but as the home and laboratory of a group of people become famous as authors on social research, especially on the subject of Southern Negro folk-lore. Press notices and reviews praising the work of University faculty members have come to us by the score, appearing in the nation's most important journals. Frequent mention has also been made of the University Press which has done much to encourage the work by pioneering in the publication of books by local authors.

Again we are able to give you an excellent report on two books written by University men, this time coming from the section on Books, Films, and Drama published in "The Nation" for October 30, written by Mark Van Doren. In many ways it is the most enthusiastic of the criticisms that have come to us since the first wave of popularity for University publications began its sweep over the country. Headed "Dough-Boy and Hammer-Man," it is a discussion of the merits of "Wings on My Feet" by Howard W. Odum and "John Henry" by Guy B. Johnson.

In the beginning Mr. Van Doren says: "This pair of authors cannot be too much admired. They write 'social studies' at the University of North Carolina, but what they write is also literature, and it happens to be of a very fine order."

Taking first "Wings on My Feet" he continues: "Mr. Odum's book is a sequel to 'Rainbow Round My Shoulder,' wherein two years ago this sociologist suddenly proved himself a poet." After describing how Mr. Odum got his character "Black Ulysses," and how he introduced him into the arrangement of the new story, the adventures of an American Negro in the World War, the reviewer proceeds to the dialect, which he declares is "without any of the favorite devices of the dialect writer. No misspelling, no labored grotesquerie." And the result, says the critic, is an authoritive work on the Negro, his talk and temperament, and incidentally "a

(Continued on last page)

BANQUET IS GIVEN BY SIGMA PHI SIGMA FRAT

The Sigma Phi Sigma social fraternity held its first banquet of the year at the Carolina Inn Monday night. Thirty members and pledges were present, including Dr. Otto Stuhlman and K. H. Fussler of the physics department and W. R. Berryhill of the medical school.

Dr. Fussler made an interesting talk to the fraternity in which he outlined the way to attain success in one's life work. Drs. Stuhlman and Berryhill also made short talks.

The Phi Delta Phi Legal Fraternity announces the initiation of J. H. Chadbourne and Charles S. Mangum, Jr.

University Profs Are Baffled By Simple Auto Crash Problem

(By Milt Wood)

"Chance and confusion and error
The chain of their destinies wove."

Franklin street was peaceful a moment before. As peaceful as Franklin street ever gets when dusk adds Cyclopean eyes to already terrifying modern horseless wagons whose component parts of writhing steel at eventide are even busier in their unending quest to conquer new pedestrians.

Night falls with a thud. Brakes scream out like a signal for the piercing, rending crash that follows when two of the roaring giants wipe off each others gunwales. Crippled and reeling, one of the monsters limps onward 100 feet and buries its gory head in a third and then a fourth armored machine-dragon which seeks vainly to escape by side-slipping to the curbing.

Nearby diners near the battle of steel, poise potatoes and gravy half way mouthward, and stampede from the festive board to count the casualties.

In a twinkling, din is superceded by an aftermath of hush. The staccato gasping of the four wounded and dead monsters stops. Splintered glass glitters on the battleground, its tinkling music stilled. With suspicious eyes yet other monsters of gas and oil and iron stop baffled and watch the scene. A large crowd of questions forms a human circle. The law appears, two of it. The surviving matadors meet in the center of the ring.

Listeners hear a battery of charges and denials: it wasn't my fault . . . nor mine . . . nor mine . . . I'm not to blame . . . where's the horse and wagon . . . who broke the bottle . . . where's the driver of the Ford . . . what was he doing over on my side . . . stand back there and give us room . . . here's where his tire slid . . . that's where we hit . . . his lights blinded me but I knew I was on the right side of the street . . . here officer, did you hear that . . . that's my car down there.

The chief of police and the larger of the two officers decides that it is time to take down some

(Continued on last page)

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane — Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan — J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones — B. C. Moore
J. C. Williams

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough — K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning — Sherman Shore

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles — Crawford McKethan
Henry L. Anderson

REPORTERS
Howard Lee — Frank Manheim
Holmes Davis — Stowe Moody
Louis Brooks — Clyde Deitz
Charles Rose — George Sheram
Lawrence Harris — Robert Hodges
Mary Price — John Lathan
J. P. Tyson — B. H. Whitton
Browning Roach — Nathan Volkman
Al Lansford — George Stone
Joe Carpenter — Lawrence Miller
Peggy Lintner — Jack Riley
E. C. Daniel — T. E. Marshall
W. A. Shulenberger — R. T. Martin
G. E. French — J. S. Weathers
Stanley Weinberg

Wednesday, October 30, 1929

Tar Heel Topics

Our secret ambition: to issue a Tar Heel editorial page unsullied by the name of Peter Green.

The tariff bill is dead, Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, one of its sponsors, announced in the senate Monday, whereupon that political arena became the scene of a general cussing of the bill. Evidently the senators have no respect for the dead.

Campus sheiks report that the co-eds are more insistent upon trips to soda fountains and movies this week than ever before. We knew that "Gold Diggers of Broadway" at the Carolina last week was going to make a dent in the bankrolls of those foolish enough to carry co-eds to see it.

The Stock Market Collapse A Benefit To the Public

Crash after crash in the stock market has shaken the financial structure of the nation during the past two weeks. After each succeeding collapse prices have rallied under the careful manipulation of the professional speculators, but they have exhibited an inexorable downward trend that has driven the small investors frantic. In a panic-stricken effort to protect dwindling margins the "small fry" have dumped their holdings upon the market, sending stock prices hurtling downward.

President Hoover's reassurance last week that general business conditions are sound is evidence that there is much uneasiness over the financial situation. The mad downward career of the stock market has aroused fears of a major business depression equaling those of 1921 and 1907. As the fears of a decline in the price level become general, retail concerns hold buying to a minimum, the consumer is affected by the contagion, and a real depression may result from mere mob psychology, rather than any real deficiency in general business conditions.

Everyone familiar with Wall street conditions realized last spring that a stock market collapse was inevitable. During the past five years stock values have been inflated out of all proportion to dividend returns. The remarkable upturn in stock prices since 1925 has brought very little if any new capital to industry. Profits from stock sales reverted to the shareholders rather than the corporations themselves. Business and industrial expansion was handicapped, since banks rushed their funds to the call money market where much higher interest rates were available than could be secured on legitimate loans to agriculturists, business men and industrial concerns. The market speculators could afford to pay high interest rates on the 90 percent of stock prices which they borrowed for marginal operations.

A general stifling of industrial expansion has resulted from the scarcity of capital occasioned by the demand for call money on the stock market. Now that stock speculation has been effectually checked by the market collapse, more funds will be available for legitimate loans at reasonable interest rates. Industry and business in general should be speeded up and increased prosperity should logically result rather than the depression which is already haunting the thoughts of many small business men.

A general understanding of the underlying causes of the stock market collapse would effectually avert the threatened financial panic and depression and insure greater prosperity. Sound reasoning is imperative on the part of the general public as well as the financiers regarding the true condition of the nation's business.

In Chapel Hill business and construction should be materially stimulated by the stock market crash. We understand that local banking interests have withdrawn several hundred thousand dollars from the call money market which they had rushed to Wall street in order to share in the high interest returns offered by the speculators. With these funds diverted back to the ordinary channels of commerce and industry, money should be considerably easier locally on legitimate loans.

Plowed Fields, or Tennis Courts?

Tennis is by far the most popular sport among the great majority of students who are not candidates for any varsiy athletic team. Most students realize the value of exercise and enjoy playing tennis as this game may afford great pleasure and healthful exercise to the average man who is not an expert in sports.

A large number of tennis courts are provided for the use of the general run of students; although there are not enough courts, those that are available are in such bad condition as to make playing almost impossible. It seems to me that the only thing the caretakers of the grounds ever do is to mark off the courts with white lines. Most of the time the ground is so rough that balls will never bounce normally and the nets are often torn and broken. Nothing is more discouraging than to try to play decent tennis on unkept and sorry courts.

Like all great universities Carolina expends great energy and great wealth on the upkeep of varsity teams and varsity equipment; only a very small per cent of the student body can ever hope to participate in varsity contests. Something is done to encourage sports among the average students in the way of sponsoring intramural teams and contests; something is done in offering some tennis courts, not nearly enough attention is paid to the physical development of the average student. After two quarters of required gym the student is through with exercise; many are forced to quit because the University does not offer adequate facilities.

It is typical, we suppose, that little money is expended for intramurals and for sports for the average students; in most colleges intramurals are blamed for causing the deficit in the athletic budget. We wonder if a few dollars spent in keeping up the tennis courts would cause our athletic association to go bankrupt? Would it break the University to have rollers go over the tennis courts once in a while and keep them in fair condition for the average student? From present indications it seems that it would.

—J. D. M.

Readers' Opinions

WHO'S WHO ABOUT PETER GREEN

Editor the Daily Tar Heel:

To visualize poor Peter Green
From what we've heard and read and seen,
We picture one of pompous mien,
Robust physique and narrow bean,
Long sharpened teeth and eyes of green,
Squalid, uncouth, asinine,
An irreligious Libertine,
Ill spoken, vulgar and obscene,
Imbued with all that's low and mean,
Hateful, vicious and unclean.

But we know Peter, lank and lean,
Who's neither Co-ed, Prex. nor Dean,
Nor rampant imbecilic fiend
With fingers stained by nicotine
And hair besmeared with vaseline.
But just a student, fair and clean
Who on the Tar Heel staff doth glean
A bare existence, scant and lean
For writing what he's heard and seen.

This wily chap, for business keen,
Was present at the movie screen.
He saw the Boisterous vent their spleen
To celebrate our winning team
And hastened to report the scene
But competition, unforeseen,
Had gone to print while he, serene,
Procrastinated with his theme.
For Pete alas is prone to dream.

He set upon another scheme
And wrote about a half a ream
Defending what to us would seem
Unwanton vandalism, mean
And unprovoked, and our esteem
Was tested, though we deem
Pete fair and clean.
We trust some time will intervene
Before Pete starts another scream.
And now let's off to Hallowe'en.

THEODORE TENNYSON.

PLAYMAKERS AND ATHLETES

Editor the Daily Tar Heel:

Since Professor Koch himself has introduced the contrast in one of his lectures I feel free to include a word about dramatics and athletics in the same discussion.

In my opinion the performances of Ned Lipscomb on the football field Saturday and the Carolina Playmakers on the stage are among the best exhibitions of the year on the University campus. I mention these because I consider both the stellar work of Lipscomb and of the Playmakers underrated in reports and reviews appearing in the Daily Tar Heel.

"... and was stopped by Lipscomb" was one of the most frequent announcements made during the Carolina-Gobbler contest, and it was for good reasons that the plucky center was so often mentioned. On almost every play he broke through the V. P. I. line to help bring down the most brilliant of the Virginia runners, and on several occasions he knocked down passing attacks, using a roving style of defense that would have been creditable to Harry Schwartz or Peter Pund. He now stands ace high with the fans and if his teammates like him equally as well he should captain the Tar Heel eleven next season.

And now about the Playmakers: I was greatly pleased with the group of plays which they offered on their week-end bill. I had heard much of the abilities of Professor Koch's group in producing Carolina folk plays, but except for a radio appearance I had never had the opportunity to see or hear them. The realism of their characterization and dialect in the Carolina dramas was therefore more surprisingly natural to me of the South than to the young lady from New Jersey who most recently reviewed the program. To me the actors in Paul Green's comedy might have been any one of the numerous Negro characters that I have known for so long on the farms and in the towns of the New South.

E. C. DANIEL, JR.

A DEFENSE OF THE SOUTH

Editor of The Daily Tar Heel:

"R. H." is evidently trying to join the ranks of those who, most of them descendants of the poor whites of the South, are gaining a hearing and an ephemeral notoriety in the north by befouling their own nests. One can always gain an audience—and sometimes a Pulitzer prize—by besmirching and belittling the South.

To those the things of life that count in the South, the background, the traditions of honor, of high ideals, the "grace of living," as Dr. Chase has delightfully phrased it, are a closed book.

Of course, one could take issue, and I think successfully, with each sentence of R. H.'s remarkable effusion. It would seem that before making such dogmatic statements and such a sweeping and vindictive indictment of a whole section that he would, at least, be sure of his facts. But he apparently does not think this necessary.

To these half-baked critics I should like to recommend an article in the November Atlantic Monthly by Count Hermann Keyserling, famous philosopher and critic. It is called "The South—America's Hope." A few extracts from this article are as follows:

"I found out that an overwhelming percentage of all Americans who have played and are still playing a really important part in the country in the sense of human superiority were and are sons of Virginia and the adjacent states. Then I visited these states personally. And I found Virginia not only to be one of the most beautiful and delightful countries in the world—it is the one region of America which has a general cultural atmosphere in a wide sense. There is a cultural atmosphere in New England, too; but, quite apart from the fact that it is vanishing, the culture in question is much too narrow a thing, and, moreover, too bloodless.... Now almost all intelligent Americans realize that the significant future of their country depends on whether or not it will develop an original culture. A culture can only grow; it cannot be manufactured; every additional century of tradition means so much more capital. Under these conditions, time inevitably works for the American of the Virginian type.... On the whole, there is little true vitality to be found in the modern North; speed, there, is not an expression of strength, but merely of neurotic restlessness. The more one moves southward ... the more full-blooded, in the sense of being a complete man, the American appears. The Northerner will, of course, continue to exist, but in days to come he will be recognized as the poorest, the least superior type; he will mean to America at large what the most narrow type of Prussian means within the German nation. The Middle West will in all likelihood continue to represent America's national foundation. But if a culture develops, and the stress is laid on culture, then the hegemony will inevitably pass over to the South. There alone can there be a question of an enduring culture.... But all the more will that type survive, or revive, which was chiefly responsible for America's true greatness in the past. That is the type of the Southern gentleman, with the corresponding type of woman. For these are the only types of 'complete souls' that the United States has as yet produced."

A SOUTHERNER—AND PROUD OF IT

The Campus

By Joe Jones

Lake Placid Club on Lake Placid, N. Y., probably gathers unto itself more college students in summertime than any other like organization in the country. Here young men and maidens are transformed overnight from nondescript collegians to immaculate white-filleted waitresses; sprightly bellhops, or white-coated waiters, busboys, coffeeboys, trayboys, and rollboys.

* * *

Each summer the club selects several hundred students from the several thousand applicants. From all over the country they come to make up the staff of this great resort. Dozens of colleges in many states are represented. Last summer there were girls from schools as far apart as Winthrop in South Carolina and St. Lawrence College just below the Canadian line. Smith, Mt. Holyoke, Goucher, Russell Sage, and Cornell are some others represented among the waitresses. There was one William and Mary co-ed. The boys are as widely distributed. There was one from the U. of California, several from middle-western schools, and a greater number from eastern colleges. There were two from the U. of Richmond, one from W. and L., a Virginia man, and one Tar Heel, ye columnist.

* * *

It is quite fascinating to work in such a group. One starts for the dining-room with a tray, and before he reaches his tables he has a fair chance to collide with a football captain form the Middle-West, a track star from Vermont U., a Deke from Middlebury, a little yellow-headed dancer from a Boston dancing school, and maybe even a Phi Bete or two. One of the trayboys is a fencer from Vermont; another is a journalism student from Columbia. Among both waiters and waitresses is a sparse sprinkling of college writers and editors. There are engineering students, law students, art students, and followers of medicine. The members of this crowd are fast friends before the summer is over. Some even go so far as to fall in love, and cry when they say goodbye.

* * *

It is hard to imagine a more pleasant place for a student to spend his vacation. Lake Placid, lying in a 2,000 foot Adirondack altitude, has scarcely any uncomfortably warm days, while the nights are forever cool. The lakes thereabouts rank among the most beautiful in the North. About them rise the highest peaks of the Adirondacks, including Mt. Marcy, which is surpassed in the East by our own Mt. Mitchell. At this Lucerne of America the student employees of Placid beguile the long summer afternoons; to say nothing of the summer night, which, as Byron says, "was made for loving." The Lake Placid staff know it. They work at mealtime, play most of the day, and are disciples of Byron at night. At summer's end they have a pocketful of college funds, a coat of tan, and the memory of a happy summer spent at a millionaires' club. The tan comes from swimming, tennis, canoeing, golf, mountain-climbing, and just plain loafin' in the sun. The money comes from small pay and big tips.

* * *

By way of indoor entertainments there are every week two movies, three concerts by the Boston Symphony Ensemble, and an educational lecture by Dr. William Starr Myers, Princeton professor, Carolina alumnus and a former editor of the Tar Heel. Staff members are admitted free to all of these. There is a staff dance every Thursday night. Staff members take part in the club plays, and sing in the club choir. There is a big staff masquerade each summer with liberal prizes for the best costumes.

* * *

Dr. Myers was not the only Carolina alumnus at exclusive Lake Placid Club last summer. Another was Judge Walter P. Stacy, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina. He was married at the Club last spring, and spent most of his honeymoon there. Dr. M. C. S. Noble was there for several days as the guest of another Carolina alumnus, Dr. Alderman, President of the U. of Virginia. President Alderman is a Club member, and spends his summers there.

Only Fifty Percent!

What's Happening

TODAY

10:30 a. m.—No chapel. Freshmen and sophomores report to Gerrard hall.

7:00 p. m.—Venable hall. Moving pictures, "White Magic." "Romance of Paints and Varnishes," and "Profits from Cull Oranges and Lemons."

THURSDAY

7:15 p. m.—Mechanical engineers meet, 214 Phillips hall.

7:30 p. m—Meeting of debate squad.

FRIDAY

7:30 p. m.—Meeting of the graduate school, Smith building.

Graduate Club Puts Off Dance-Reception

Because of conflicting events the Graduate Club reception and dance which were announced for Friday night have been postponed. No new date has been set, but it will be announced as soon as it is decided upon.

Rough And Uncertain Weather Up And Down Conference Coast

Six Elevens Boast Clean Slates In S. I. C. Circles; Carolina In Second Group.

Back about two months ago one of the most prominent sports writers of the south had the following to say about the 1929 football season: "It's going to be rough and uncertain weather up and down the conference coast this coming fall." The results of the games of the past month and a half have truly acclaimed him a prophet of worth.

Six elevens at this late date can boast clean slates and of this number three have yet to face first class conference competition. Below is the standing of the southern conference teams up through last Saturday:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Tennessee	3	0	1.000
Clemson	3	0	1.000
Tulane	2	0	1.000
Vanderbilt	2	0	1.000
L. S. U.	2	0	1.000
Kentucky	1	0	1.000
Florida	3	1	.750
U. N. C.	3	1	.750
Alabama	2	1	.666
V. M. I.	2	1	.666
Georgia Tech	2	2	.500
Virginia	1	1	.500
Georgia	1	1	.500
South Carolina	1	2	.333
W. & Lee	1	2	.333
V. P. I.	0	1	.000
Sewanee	0	2	.000
N. C. State	0	2	.000
Maryland	0	3	.000
Miss. A.&M.	0	3	.000
Auburn	0	3	.000
Mississippi	0	3	.000
Duke	0	0	.000

Four of the leaders await the tilts which are scheduled for them this coming Saturday. The Tulane-Georgia and the Vanderbilt-Alabama games are the two holding the center of the stage and which also have surrounding them the heaviest blanket of doubt. Both Tulane and Vanderbilt play teams which have met defeat; but have caused troubles. Here is the way things stack up in the south up to date:

North Carolina licked Georgia Tech;
Tech licked Florida;
Georgia licked North Carolina;
Florida licked Georgia;
Tennessee licked Alabama;
Alabama licked (?);
Georgia licked (?).

Judging from the way everything has turned out up until now, there is little wonder that Tulane and Vanderbilt are just a bit afraid of those question-marks.

If Tulane can get by the Georgia Bulldogs it will be on a fairly straight road to the southern title as only Auburn, Sewanee, and Louisiana State will be left on the schedule.

Vanderbilt will still have rough sledding ahead as the annual Tennessee struggle is yet in the offing.

Tennessee is safe for at least two weeks, it seems, with Auburn and Carson-Newman next on the schedule. However, Vandy and Kentucky are both dangerous rivals which must be subdued should it place high in the conference standing.

The Clemson-Kentucky game is another headliner for this week-end. This game will at least cut down the number of leaders by one unless the unexpected tie occurs. Both teams are strong and undefeated; however their opposition up to date has only been with mediocre teams.

One Intramural Game

Only one intramural game was played yesterday, the rest being either rained out or forfeited. Delta Kappa Epsilon won from Phi Delta Theta, 19 to 0.

McEver Leads S. I. C.

With southern honors and possibly national recognition beckoning him on, Gene McEver, demon Tennessee halfback, has 13 times crossed the goal line of his various opponents. Three times he hurled himself thru a bewildered Washington and Lee team last week-end for touchdowns. However, this number fails to equal his performance against Ole Miss earlier in the season when he galloped across the goal line for four counters. McEver has scored in every game this season, and his 78 points place him far in the lead of any Southern rival.

A pair of Russ Cohen's Louisiana State halfbacks were tied for second place, while two more figured in a four-cornered deadlock for fourth honors.

Smith ran rampant against Louisiana Poly Friday to account for two touchdowns and then added a point after touchdown to bring his total to 43. Butler scored twice to reach the same figure.

Bowman and Reeves, together with McMillan, Clemson's threat, and Kelly, Kentucky's bounding sophomore, followed close behind with 42 each. Tony Holm, Alabama's smashing fullback, pierced the Sewanee defense twice and brought his point total to 39. Billy Banker, Tulane's blonde blizzard, showed little regard for a vaunted Georgia Tech line in scoring a touchdown and bringing his pointage to 38. Dunn, making Virginia Military's single tally against Maryland came next with 37.

Boineau, South Carolina ace, snagged a Clemson pass and raced some sixty yards to a touchdown, boosting his count to 33. Alabama's sophomore poison, Hugh Miller, had 32 points after scoring once against Sewanee, and Magner, Chuck Collins' Tar Heel cleat mover, followed with 31.

Justus and Woodruff, a pair of Clemson luminaries; Spear, Virginia Poly's raging back; little Ike Armstrong, Banker's running mate at Tulane, and Ward of North Carolina, had 30 each.

Duke Is Pointing For L. S. U. Game

The Duke Blue Devils are again scheduled to travel this week-end, and the opposition which looms ahead of them in the form of Boston college offers little to brighten the already dismal horizon. Boston college several weeks ago fought to a seven to seven tie with the same Villanova that snowed the Dukemen under last Saturday by the margin of almost fifty points.

However, according to Jim DeHart, head coach over at Duke, the Blue Devils are really pointing with all seriousness to the game which follows the northern misfortune, for on the following Saturday they receive Louisiana State in their own stadium for their first Southern Conference engagement.

Following that game four North Carolina teams will be played in succession, and three of these frays will be played in the new Duke stadium. According to reports from the Durham camp, the coaches over there are looking forward to these last four games in order that they may place a few items upon the profit side of their ledger.

The overwhelming injury list of the Blue Devils is reported to be shrinking fast. The return of Kid Brewer to the lineup is going to help Duke's stock a bit.

Automobiles have slightly more than doubled in Connecticut since 1921.

SEASON RECORDS FAVOR CAROLINA OVER N. C. STATE

Tar Heels Apparently Caught Napping Last Year; State Championship At Issue In Saturday's Game.

Will the Tar Heels be caught napping when they meet the Wolfpack here in Kenan stadium Saturday?

Last year the Tar Heels apparently were napping or overconfident or something of the sort. Anyway, they invaded Riddick field in Raleigh doped to lick the Wolfpack by at least two touchdowns, and as things turned out they were lucky to tie the score.

A diminutive substitute staved off what appeared certain defeat for the Tar Heels when in the last two seconds of play he caught a pass thrown by the uncanny Jimmy Maus.

A fighting Wolfpack repelled thrust after thrust from the big Blue and White eleven, and forged out front when an elusive Wolf sifted through the Tar Heels' line to block Captain Ray Farris' attempted punt and recover behind the goal.

The score stood 6-0 through long hectic minutes. Mac Gray, substitute lineman, back, and general utility man, had saved one game previously for the Tar Heels, and in desperation Coach Collins prayed he might prove a saviour a second time. In went Mr. Gray. With seconds to go, the Statesville boy snagged a long pass from Jimmy Maus and skirted end on a thrilling run for the touchdown that tied the game. Point was missed, as the whistle ended the game, 6-6.

Season records favor the Tar Heels this year, but with state championship hopes of both undefeated teams in the balance, and coaches and players both reminiscent of last year's upset, there is no overconfidence in the Tar Heel camp.

Wolfpack Wants To Beat Carolina Team

A weary N. C. State Wolfpack made its appearance in Raleigh last Monday and brought with it the little end of a heavy score run up by Michigan State last week-end. This same Wolfpack has entered into its hardest week of practice before its most important game of the season with almost supernatural energy and strength. Spurred on by desperation the State mentors are driving their charges through every form of practice in anticipation of the Carolina game. The State eleven on Saturday will be a snarling, scrapping Wolfpack with its back to the wall, a mere shadow of its former self, but still dangerous and impressive as one of the most bitter of the Tar Heels' rivals. The North Carolina football world has not as yet forgotten the lucky escape of the Tar Heels from a crippled but potent Wolfpack last season.

Several shakeups have been made in the Tech lineup since the game last Saturday, but for the main part it will be the same team that battered unsuccessfully against Michigan State. Few changes will be made in the backfield lineup, it is announced; however, the backfield has not as yet definitely been decided upon. Mack Stout, all-state high school center of 1926, will be moved from guard position to the pivot of the Tech line. Jim May will probably take Stout's place at guard, and Al Vann will undoubtedly be his mate on the other side of center. Captain Lepo and Bud Rose are slated to occupy the tackle posts. Herman Gardner and Jakie Jordan will be on the flanks.

Player Control Of Football Games Advocated By Jones

(By John R. Tunis in New York Evening Post)

Player control. A little name for a big idea!

Just exactly to whom does the game of American football belong? To the spectators? No, certainly not. To the alumni of the various schools and colleges throughout the country? Not even the alumni would claim this. To the presidents of universities and principals of the high schools of the nation? Not at all. To the coaches of the elevens? No, not to them. To whom then does football belong? Why to the players of course.

One of the greatest claims made for organized athletics and especially for football by its adherents is that it develops a sense of initiative and a feeling of responsibility among those who take part in games. Actually it fails to do so quite as often as it succeeds. For the average player today is an automaton, an athletic robot subject to the guidance of a supreme deity who sits upon the sidelines and tells him not merely what to do but even when to do it, a despot who thinks for the player as much as the law allows and is not always above beating the law when a loophole presents itself. In fact so fully are the thoughts and actions of the player circumscribed by the coach with orders and restrictions that not infrequently he is left with as much initiative as the gear box in an automobile.

And so much has the situation been tending in this direction that of late years it has reached such a point that when two teams take the field it is a question of "May the best coach win." The New York Times last year printed an account of a dispute between the coach and the captain at Drake University.

"Off the field," said the coach, "and don't come back."

The coach, the teacher, or instructor had in this case become a tyrant; sometimes he was a benevolent tyrant, but a tyrant none the less. While the captain, who played the game and for whom, with his teammates, who elected him, the game supposedly exists, is a figurehead whose neck must come off the moment he begins to think for himself.

No greater crime has ever been committed in the name of sport than the gradual intrusting of the supervision and conducting of a game of football to the direction of a coach upon whom all responsibility not only for the actual teaching of a football squad but for winning games has finally devolved.

Hence the need for player control. The need and necessity for the return of the game of football to the boys, to the players to whom in the last analysis it belongs. Do you realize that today the average football player has absolutely nothing to say about the game which he makes and of which he is such a vital, indeed the most vital part? No one will deny that football could exist without alumni, college presidents, football coaches, newspaper sports writers, referees and officials and even spectators. But it could not exist without players.

Player control came into being in the state of New York before it did elsewhere. This is not to say that the idea had not been conceived elsewhere; actually it was first promulgated by former Coach T. A. D. Jones of Yale. But the first practical step toward putting it into effect was taken in Albany on June 2, 1927, when a number of school superintendents met and agreed to instruct all coaches under their jurisdiction to refrain from directing any football games from the opening kickoff until the final whistle.

During actual play the captain was to be the leader of the team in fact as well as in name; a step more momentous than perhaps some of those men realized when the order was put into effect. Captains were also to choose substitutes and coaches were not to instruct their teams or substitutes between halves.

On October 20, 1927, the central committee of the New York State High School association adopted what has been called "General Regulation Number One." In brief here it is:

"(1) In sectional and state championship contests and after the contest has begun no coach or other adult shall interfere with the activity of the contestants.

"(2) This regulation must be interpreted as prohibiting sideline coaching . . . or coaching between halves by any others than the contestants themselves.

"(3) This rule does not prohibit a coach or his representative from ordering the withdrawal of any contestant at any time, for any reason, but no contestant withdrawn by a coach or his representative may return to the same contest. Coaches may attend the physical injuries of their team members at any time during games or between periods of play."

David L. Swain was president of the University for thirty-three years.

Schedules Of High School Grid Race To Be Ready Soon

The schedules of the annual state high school football elimination contest are being made this week, according to E. R. Rankin, who attended a meeting of the high school coaches and managers in Raleigh Monday night.

Beginning this year the larger teams from schools such as Charlotte or Wilmington high will be divided into a class A conference, there being seven teams in the west and eight in the east of this group. The smaller schools will be placed in a class B conference and will only play teams in their class.

Western high schools who have entered class B are Asheboro, Concord, Forest City, Leaksville, Lincolnton, Mount Airy, Monroe, Reidsville, Siler City, Spencer and Statesville.

Eastern schools in class B are Apex, Bladenboro, Bethel Hill, New Bern, Dunn, Whiteville, Sanford, Raeford, Hertford, Ayden, Robersonville and Oxford.

COLLINS DRIVES RESERVES HARD

Gives Sophomores Good Work-Out Against Freshmen; Maus May Get Call in State Game.

Preparation for the 1930 Tar Heel football machine was begun in earnest today with the scrimmaging during the entire afternoon of players who have seen little action during the first half of the season.

On off days and spare moments when the first team was out of the way, Coach Chuck Collins has spent his time polishing the rough spots on the boys who will form the football squads of the next two years.

A backfield composed of Moore, quarter; Redfern and Houston, halves; McConnell, full, and a sophomore line, scrimmaged the freshmen for more than an hour yesterday under the watchful eye of Collins. Twice they crossed the frosh goal line. However, they allowed the charging freshman backfield to break through for long gains.

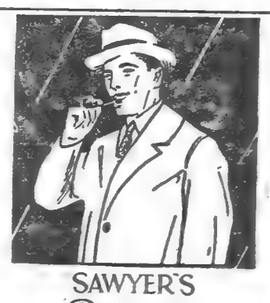
Rose, hefty tackle, was doing the best work in the line which included Reid, Norris and Johnson, ends; Cowper, tackle; Kerr and Hutchison, guards, and Alexander, center.

Probability that a new combination will start the game Saturday with State was made apparent by the backfield which worked behind the line. The quartet was composed of Maus, Wyrick, Nash and Spaulding.

Maus, it will be recalled, is the young man who staved off what appeared to be certain defeat for the Tar Heels in the game with the Wolfpack last season. With only two seconds before the final whistle he threw a long pass to Mac Gray which resulted in a touchdown and tied the score.

It was a pass from Maus to Fenner which also won the Duke game last year. Maus is also one of the flashiest runners on the squad and is a first rate kicker.

Colds prevented three of the men who saw service Saturday from attending yesterday's practice. They are Jimmy Ward, Pap Harden and Red Parsley.



Another backfield, including Branch, Slusser, House and Magner engaged in a slight scrimmage.

169 CO-EDS ENROLLED

There are now 169 women students enrolled in the University in contrast to 146 last year, according to the latest report from the registrar's office. Sixty-five of these are graduate students.

Pritchard-Patterson Incorporated

SAWYER'S
Rainwear
FROG BRAND SLICKERS

SAWYER'S Frog Brand Slickers have established a lasting reputation on the campus among well-dressed college men and women where rain garments of good appearance as well as long life are essential.

Sawyer slickers are all good-looking, roomy, well-cut garments, guaranteed to keep you absolutely dry and warm and are to be had lined or unlined, buttons or clasps as you prefer, in a wide variety of styles for every purpose. Your choice of colors. Shops everywhere carry them.

H. M. SAWYER & SON
EAST CAMBRIDGE, MASS.
Others: New York, N. Y. Chicago, Ill. St. Louis, Mo. San Antonio, Texas

BIG HALLOWE'EN DANCE
Roycroft's Warehouse
Durham
Tonight - 9 - 2
Music by Jack Wardlaw
And His University Orchestra
SCRIPT $1.00

COMER SPEAKS AT CABINET MEETING

Y Secretary Gives Synopsis Of National Council Convention; Dr. E. R. Mosher Also Makes Talk.

The three Y cabinets met last Monday night at the Y at 7:15. The Freshman Council, Alex Webb, presiding, opened with devotional exercises led by Aubrey Perkins. After a few sentence prayers, the Y quartet sang a few selections. The roll was then called and the minutes read. Mr. Comer, general secretary of the Y, who has just returned from the National Y Council, gave a synopsis of what had taken place during the National Y Council meeting. He told how large the Y organization really was, and how many great men worked in it.

Claude Ferrell, cabinet member helping freshman council, then gave a very interesting outline of a book on the Y. M. C. A. Being unable to complete his outline, he decided to continue it next meeting. The program closed with "Hark the Sound."

The sophomore cabinet, led by J. Elwin Dungan, opened its program with sentence prayers. After a discussion of the business, the Y quartet sang a few selections. Mr. Grady Leonard, self-help secretary of the Y, talked a little about the self-help students.

The junior-senior cabinet, Jimmie Williams, presiding, was opened with devotional exercises led by Ed. Hamer. Mr. Comer then gave a short talk on the National Y. Council. Plans were then discussed for means of obtaining more publicity for Dr. A. Herbert Gray's coming and also the U. S. Marine Band. After discussing some plans for securing Senator Reed of Pennsylvania to speak here on Armament, the meeting closed with sentence prayers.

Freshman Engineers To Hear Dr. Hobbs

The third of a series of orientation and motivation talks will be given to the freshman class in engineering when Professor A. W. Hobbs of the mathematics department will speak.

Dr. Hobbs will speak on "The Relation of Mathematics to Engineering." Last week Mr. Hobbs spoke to the same group on Ethics in Engineering and the Place of the Engineering Student in the Life of the Campus.

Co-eds Entertain At Afternoon Tea

The co-eds who room in Spencer hall will give their regular Wednesday tea this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. All the co-eds are urged to come and bring their guests. The particular purpose of the affair is to get the girls who live in town acquainted with the ones in the dormitory. Stephanie Moore and Sally Scott will be the hostesses.

Phi Sigma Kappa announces the initiation of Clarence Phoenix, Greensboro, and L. O. Gupton, Rocky Mount.

Infirmary List

The infirmary reports the following cases of sickness: B. W. Woodley, sophomore of Ellerbe, confined at the infirmary with mumps; I. W. Sachs, sophomore of Brooklyn, confined at the McPherson hospital, Durham, with sinus trouble; J. C. Godwin, junior of Clifton Forge, Va., confined at a Durham hospital, recovering from a motorcycle accident.

University Profs Are Baffled By Auto Crash

(Continued from page one)

data. He has paper in hand, tries to write with a match, throws it down and makes a successful second attempt to haul out a stubby pencil from his bulging pockets.

But who are the principles in the melee? Professor Jefferson Bynum, geologist, was driving a sedan which collided first with a new car owned by Swift and company, although the name, it is said, had nothing to do with the auto's speed, at the moment. Bynum, the geologist, stayed at the helm of his careening ship after the first brush, but before it came to a stop it had rammed a parked machine owned by Professor Shipp Saunders, Latin pedagog, and then spent the rest of its energy against the side of an automobile owned by Professor Grover Baird, assistant dean in the school of pharmacy.

Professor Frank Graham, historian, was early at the scene of confusion and Bynum, the geologist, enlisted his help in ferreting out causes and reasons, if any. But the practical problem almost baffled the geologist, the historian, the pharmacist and the linguist.

Graham, the historian, finally obtained some valuable data by stepping the distances from the middle of the road to the point where the first two cars collided, and subtracting and adding the estimated distance from the center of gravity of both machines.

The pharmacist, the geologist, the historian and the linguist all bent knees simultaneously to sniff the broken glass of the bottle for traces of whiskey. But whose bottle was it, and who broke it; that's the question and still is.

Another mystery of the moment and even at the present time, is who was driving the horse and wagon, and where is dobbin and his reinsman.

In fact after the most exciting hour since the Carolina-Georgia football game, supplied by the quadruple crash, the tumult ended a perfect mystery, which it is doubted even the courts can unravel.

Mark Van Doren Praises Work of Johnson and Odum

(Continued from page one)

social study of the first importance."

Also, according to the magazine writer, Guy B. Johnson has been eminently successful in "tracking down a Negro legend," offering the results of his research in the University Press publication "John Henry."

As the greatest of all the darky legends has it, "John Henry was a Negro steel driver without any parallel . . . who . . . tried to beat the steam drill down and vindicate the glory of mere man . . . and who . . . did beat it down there in the Big Ben Tunnel . . . on the C. & O. railroad . . . but died as he did so." Mr. Van Doren represents Mr. Johnson's volume as "a description of the attempt . . . to find out if . . . there was ever a real John Henry . . . and if this contest was held.

"But," he says, "the most impressive thing about his book is the enthusiastic attitude with which it is written. It is that spirit which marks him as inspired among sociologists, and leads one to expect anything anyone likes from North Carolina."

PI BETA PHI ENTERTAINS

The young ladies of the Pi Beat Phi fraternity entertained at an informal tea, Sunday afternoon from four until six o'clock at their house on Rosemary Street in honor of the faculty.

Ex-Secretary Tells Interesting Facts In Life Of Millionaire

(Continued from page one)

Square Roof Garden.

Love, hate, confidence, jealousy, birth, death, hope, despair, and tragedy — all have been churned out in the cauldron of their affairs since then. Only humor was lacking; and it comes now.

Saved from the death chair by the brilliance of his lawyers, Thaw has led a hectic life since then. Incarceration in an insane asylum for 18 years, escape into Canada, divorce, attempted suicide, reform, more trouble, more indictments — Thaw breezed through them all. Now a night club hostess gets an award of $75,000, one of the many suits against the Pittsburgh millionaire which has born fruit. This sum probably represents the world's most expensive spanking.

It is the ex-secretary of this man who is here at the University. As a special favor to the Daily Tar Heel this student has consented to divulge a bit of his former employer's private life heretofore unavailable to the press.

"During my travels with Mr. Thaw," says he, "thrills were never lacking. We were on the move constantly, and seldom spent more than one or two nights at one place. The chronic nervousness of my boss necessitated a life of constant action. Harry doesn't seek thrills to get in the papers; they are a necessity in his life—he craves them. It is just as natural for him to break established usages as it is for most men to submit to the dictates of society. He likes to live his own life as he pleases, and will not tolerate interference.

"His preference is to travel by motor. In making coastwise steamer trips he invariably takes his chauffeur and car aboard, so he can immediately step into his motor when the boat is docked.

"He seldom drinks while traveling, but at home in Pittsburgh he falls for the bottle. I've often put him to bed after a frolic. The servants at the Thaw home were averse to coming in contact with him, but I always managed to handle him with ease. He seemed to like me because I never smoked his cigarettes nor drank his liquor. He was liberal with ten-spots and yellowbacks, but wouldn't tolerate anybody who sneaked even a cigarette.

"He trusted me. Out at Kennywood Park when he went in swimming he always gave me his bankroll. It felt like a baseball in my pocket, and I was always afraid some guy would swat me and take the cash. But he seemed carefree as a small boy as he splashed water on the girls who took his fancy. At Atlantic City and Virginia Beach Mr. Thaw was a gentleman, but at a tough joint like Kennywood he was just one of the gang.

"He was fond of baseball and football, too. When he sent me to engage a box for the football season I was instructed to tell Graduate Manager Davis to give him one of the best, near Secretary Mellon's if possible. He added, 'Tell him not to forget that my mother gave about half the money to build that stadium.' Then he laughed."

It will be remembered that Mr. Thaw headed west from Broadway to Hollywood a little over a year ago with two girls, as the "good angel" of a new moving picture company. The newspapers played this affair up quite a bit; overnight, the names of Anita Rivers of New York and Susan Hughes of Kentucky became known throughout the country. It was little suspected then that one of these "17-year-old proteges," Anita Rivers, now Anita Page, would develop into such an actress as the star of "Broadway Melody" and "Our Modern Maidens."

Mr. Thaw's ex-secretary, when asked if he helped select the two prospective Hollywood beauties, aswered in the negative; but further questioning revealed the fact that a wide search had been made throughout the states of Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, before Mr. Thaw decided on Miss Page and Miss Hughes as stars for his film company.

When asked if Mr. Thaw was responsible mentally, and if he was capable of acting the part of a normal person in society, the young man replied, "Mr. Thaw is a paranoiac, but in spite of this psychological defect he is a capable financier. He plays the stock-market, dabbles in real estate, and attends to the loose ends of his ever-increasing fortune. He is very liberal toward those whom he likes, but very harsh with ony one whose opinions conflict with his own. Money is of no consideration to him in attaining a desired end, he uses it lavishly; it is the tool of his whim and fancy. His likes are frequently as foolish as those of an eight-year-old child, and he pursues their attainment just as heedlessly. It is dangerous to interfere with him when he has set his mind on anything. Whether he yells and swings his arms for effect, or whether he does it unconsciously, no one knows. It is usually best to let him have his way at such times. No doubt Miss Estardus made him angry unknowingly, hence the biting and the hair-brush spanking."

Evelyn has deserted Atlantic City for Broadway and is hostess of the Chez Evelyn. Here she finds Harry again living a life of comparative leisure. Malice has faded out with time. Grimness of tragedy has mellowed. The children of the gay lights are playing again.

On May 8, 1912, Caldwell hall, home of the Med school, was dedicated.

Scrap Books in colorful bindings

The Scrap Books you use for keeping snapshots, clippings, recipes, letters, school papers and other data need not be commonplace in appearance. These new books from Weis have bindings that are as gay and colorful as the over-drapes of your sun-room. And they are as serviceable as they are smart and beautiful.

Made in three styles: Style 10H3, with heavy crepe-finished cloth bindings in four attractive colors. Style 10M3, with bindings in brilliant modernistic patterns. Style 11M0, Loose Leaf with fancy covers in modernistic patterns same as 10M3.

Come in and see them. Lovely books for home, school, office and library use. Moderately priced.

Weis Scrap Books

Sold By

Students' Supply Store

"Everything in Stationery"

"THE LONGEST way round is the shortest way home." It may take us longer and cost us more to make cigarettes the Chesterfield way—but no other way arrives at Chesterfield's taste.

No short-cuts; nothing omitted to give richer flavor, finer fragrance, mildness with character. The long way, but the sure way to taste—

"TASTE above everything"

MILD . . and yet THEY SATISFY

Chesterfield

FINE TURKISH and DOMESTIC tobaccos, not only BLENDED but CROSS-BLENDED

© 1929, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

DEBATE SQUAD MEETING
TONIGHT
MURPHEY HALL

The Daily Tar Heel

GERMAN CLUB MEETING
1:30 FRIDAY
GERRARD HALL

VOLUME XXXVIII — CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1929 — NUMBER 36

PHYSICIANS FORM UNIQUE SOCIETY

Object Is To Assist And Direct Students Traveling in France; Service Is Given Free Of Charge.

Dr. James Bell Bullit, professor of pathology at the University, received early this month a communication from France which contains information of interest to the students, and especially to those who intend to travel or study in France.

The letter, sent by Mrs. Theodore Hough, a sister-in-law of the late Dr. Whitehead, who was for many years dean of the medical school here, contained an announcement of the opening of the club and clinic, "La Camaraderie Francaise," as 16, Rue Boissonade, Paris. As stated upon the formal announcement card, the aims of the club are to give information upon courses, studies, researches and to give advice, all gratuitous, upon medical and other personal matters.

But there is much more to the organization than appears on the formal statement. Dr. Hanotte, a French physician of some note, and greatly interested in young people, conceived the idea of establishing a free clinic for foreign students in Paris. He also realized that homesickness and financial worries and other difficulties cause as much unhappiness as ill-health. With this in mind, he advocated, in addition to the clinic, a club room where students would be able to gather and meet others and overcome the various difficulties that surround them. Other physicians were interested in the project and the result is "La Camaraderie Francaise." Mrs. Hough, who went to Paris after the death of her husband, who was dean of the medical school at the University of Virginia, became interested in students in Paris, many of whom were lonesome, discontented and sick, and without any one to whom they could turn for advice. She helped many forlorn boys and girls, sometimes nursing them through periods of sickness.

With the establishment of the "La Camaraderie Francaise," Mrs. Hough served, and is serving, as a district nurse for students of all nationalities in Paris. Dr. Hanotte and other physicians in various specialties give their services whenever required. Neither Mrs. Hough nor the doctors receive any compensation for their work. Nevertheless there are expenses in maintaining the clinic and club, and sometimes in even lending financial assistance to impoverished students. These necessary expenses are met by Mrs. Hough, the French doctors, and many others who have heard of this splendid service, among them the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. And it is the fond hope of Mrs. Hough someday to see "La Camaraderie Francaise" so well subsidized by universities of this country that the wonderful work of the clinic and club will be able to extend itself so as to reach every foreign student in Paris.

Mrs. Hough invites the students of the University of North Carolina to register with "La Camaraderie Francaise" when they go to Paris. It will put them under no obligation and will probably enable them to find their way around and become acclimated so much easier.

German Club Meeting

George Race, President of the German Club, announces that there will be a meeting of the German Club Friday afternoon at 1:30 in Gerrard Hall. At this meeting dance leaders for the Thanksgiving dances will be elected. All members are urged to be present.

TO RESUME CHAPEL EXERCISES MONDAY

Regular chapel exercises for the freshmen and sophomores will be resumed next week. Because of repairs on Memorial hall, chapel will be held in Gerrard hall. As late as 13 years ago Gerrard was used for chapel exercises, the freshman class being seated in the center block downstairs, the sophomore class in the two side blocks, the junior class upstairs on the north side and the senior class upstairs on the south side. At present, however, Gerrard will not seat the entire freshman class. In order to meet this situation half the freshmen will attend two days a week, the other half two days a week, and the sophomore class one day a week. This arrangement will be continued until Memorial hall is reopened for general use.

Assignment to seats in Gerrard hall will be made during this week. The first chapel exercises under the new plans will probably be held next Tuesday, November 5. Certain rearrangements in seating in Gerrard hall will be made in the meantime.

Dr. Sanders Goes To Exercises At Newton

Dr. W. B. Sanders, who is connected with the school of public welfare, left yesterday for Newton to attend the district welfare convention. He will speak today on the subject of "Juvenile Courts."

Dr Sanders will also be among the speakers at the annual meeting of the central district welfare association to be held at Henderson Wednesday, November 6. Others from the University who will speak at that time are Dr. R. M. Brown of the institute for research in social science and Dr. Harry W. Crane, professor of psychology.

The officers of the central district are G. H. Lawrence, president, and Mrs. T. B. Davis, secretary. Both are connected with the school of public welfare at the University.

What's Happening

10:30 a. m.—Meeting of all freshmen and sophomores in Gerrard hall to get chapel seat assignments.

7:15 p. m.—Meeting of mechanical engineering students in Phillips hall for formation of Mechanical Engineering society.

7:15 p. m.—Meeting of William Cain chapter A. S. C. E. in Phillips hall.

7:15 p. m.—Meeting of student chapter A. I. E. E. in Phillips hall.

7:30 p. m.—Debate squad meets in 201 Murphey.

9:00 p. m.—Hallowe'en dance at Roycroft warehouse in Durham.

7:30 p. m.—Lutheran student association holds Hallowe'en social in Presbyterian social rooms.

Tar Heel Begins Drive For Greater Town Circulation

E. C. Smith, Manager Carolina Theatre, Offers Two Free Passes For Every New Subscription; Marion Alexander In Charge.

Beginning today a widespread competition to increase the circulation of the Daily Tar Heel will begin, prompted by the circulation and business departments of the Tar Heel and aided by Manager E. Carrington Smith of the Carolina theatre.

For every new subscription turned in to the business department, Manager Smith will give two passes to the show, good either Wednesday or Thursday of next week, when the feature will be one of the finest pictures of the year, "Flight," which is featuring Jack Holt, Lila Lee and Ralph Graves.

The new subscriptions may be for three months at $1, or for the remainder of the year at $2. In either case, passes valued at 80 cents will be the premium offered as a reward to the canvassers.

The business staff, approximating 20 men, will begin work tomorrow. The contest is open to all students, and any number of subscriptions may be turned in. A stand will be placed near the entrance to the Carolina, to facilitate the work of receiving the subscriptions and directing the campaign, which is in charge of Marion Alexander. Graduate students, residents of Chapel Hil,, and residents of Carrboro will be reached in the effort to expand the already growing subscription list of the Daily Tar Heel.

Engineers To Form Mechanical Society

A meeting for the organization of a group of mechanical engineering students which will later petition the American Society of Mechanical Engineers for a student branch of the organization will be held tonight at 7:15 in Phillips hall.

The organization which is to be begun tonight will take the form of a mechanical engineering society which will conduct meetings during the remainder of the year. Next fall or possibly next spring the society will petition the national society for a chapter.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers in the national organization of mechanical engineers, and the local student branch, if secured, will have the same relation to the national organization as the two student branches of the civil and electrical engineering societies have to their national organizations.

Dr. Wilson Away

Dr. Louis R. Wilson, University librarian, left last Tuesday for New York City where he will attend a meeting of the advisory group on college libraries of the Carnegie corporation. He will return to Chapel Hill about next Monday.

Infirmary List

B. W. Woodley is confined in the infirmary with the mumps; I. W. Sachs is in the McPherson hospital with sinus trouble; J. C. Goodwin is also in the hospital as a result of a motorcycle accident.

Tar Heel Reporters Get Passes To Show

Tickets to the Carolina theatre have been awarded to four Tar Heel reporters for efficient work during the past week. George Sheram, Milt Wood, G. M. Cohen and B. H. Whitton received the passes, which are awarded through the courtesy of E. C. Smith, manager of the Carolina.

The passes are awarded every week on the basis of excellent work in securing special stories, general interest in the newspaper, efficiency in covering beats and making of deadlines. The editor and managing editor announce the recipients of passes at the weekly staff meetings.

Changes To Be Made In Absence Reports

The action of the undergraduate faculty on October 25 changes the absence report system from a daily to a weekly basis. The registrar's office explains that this does not mean a separate report for each day of the week, but one report for each section of each class for a five-day period. It is further suggested that such a report would read: John Doe, 10-23, 24, 25, were he absent from, say, French 4, section 2, these three days of the week October 20-25.

Members of the undergraduate faculty will note that no change has been made in the form of the absence report blanks. Observation and trial prove the practicability of the present blank, and, too, ten thousand such forms have recently been made. These have to be used before others are printed.

The registrar's office recommends that reports for each week be prepared after the last class on the final class day of each week, which is usually Friday, and sent directly to the registrar's office by inter-office mail. Such reports should not be placed in the boxes scattered about in the various classroom buildings because they will no longer be collected by special messenger.

The regulation as passed by the undergraduate faculty provides for the new system's being used immediately. The week of October 28 to November 2 will, therefore, be the first during which this scheme is operative.

Please note that this faculty action does not in any way change the former regulation regarding special notices to a student's dean when that student has been absent five, eight, and ten times. The undergraduate deans are able to cooperate with the teaching staff effectively only when these special reports are made promptly.

T. J. WILSON, JR.,
Registrar.

Education Students Will Meet Friday

All students in the school of education who have selected French either as a major or minor and intend to take Education 71 either this year or next, are asked to meet Hugo Giduz in Peabody 23 at chapel period, Friday, November 1. He will discuss the prerequisites and preparation necessary for admission to this course.

Magazine Notice

There will be a short meeting of the Carolina Magazine staff and of all students who wish to contribute during the year to the literary publication Friday night at seven o'clock in the Tar Heel and Magazine editorial offices, basement of Alumni building. All members now on the staff are expected to attend, and any others interested in literary work are invited to be present.

John Mebane
Editor Magazine

LYNCH TO SPEAK TO WILLIAM CAIN CHAPTER TONIGHT

New York Engineer To Talk On Compressed Air Tunnelling.

John Lynch, a graduate of the University and now junior engineer of tunnel construction of the city of New York, will speak to the William Cain student branch of the American Society of Civil Engineers at its regular meeting to be held tonight in Phillips hall.

In addition to the talk by Mr. Lynch there will be student talks by two members of the senior class.

Mr. Lynch, as junior engineer of tunnel construction for the city of New York, has had experience with compressed air tunnelling and his talk Thursday will deal with this topic.

Mr. Lynch graduated from the University in 1928, taking a degree of B. S. in civil engineering. Immediately after graduation he became connected with the engineering work in New York and has remained there. He is visiting Raleigh on a vacation, and makes the trip to Chapel Hill to speak before the society.

MARY D. WRIGHT DEBATE QUERY IS ANNOUNCED

Forensic Discussion To Be Held In Gerrard Hall December 10; Try-outs Held Soon.

According to announcements made Tuesday night by forensic committees of the Di and Phi, the following query will be used in the Mary D. Wright debate: "Resolved, That the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill now pending before the special session of the seventy-first congress should be passed as introduced." The Di senate team will uphold the negative, while the representatives of the Phi assembly will contend for the affirmative.

The debate will be held in Gerrard hall on the night of December 10. According to custom, the Di and Phi will attend in a body.

Tryouts will be held in both the Di and Phi some time in the near future. The exact dates can be learned from officials of the two societies.

The Mary D. Wright debate is always held in December. All members who are in good standing are eligible to try for the team of their respective society. A reasonable amount of attendance is included in the term good standing.

J. P. Harland Will Talk To Engineers

The University chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will meet Thursday evening, October 31, at 7:15 in Phillips hall, room 206. J. P. Harland, professor of archeology, will talk on problems in Greek architecture. The lecture is to be illustrated. Professor Harland has been doing research work in Greece and Egypt.

742 FRESHMEN REPRESENT EIGHTEEN STATES AND EIGHTY-EIGHT COUNTIES

Nathan Brenner Is "Baby" Of 1933 Class

The average age of the first-year students registered in the various undergraduate schools and the college of liberal arts at the University for the fall quarter, 1929-30, is 18 years, 9 months and 14 days. Edward Brenner, chemical engineering student and son of Nathan Brenner of Hendersonville, is the "baby" of the class of 1933, according to dates of birth as given by the students. He is 14 years old. Seven hundred forty-two students fall under the first-year classification.

Geographically, the first-year group comes from 88 of the counties of North Carolina, from 18 states other than North Carolina, and from China, the Canal Zone, and the District of Columbia.

Guilford county leads the North Carolina delegation with a total of 337. Mecklenburg follows with 32 and Forsyth is a close third with 29. Buncombe and Wake each have 22 first-year men, and Gaston has 20. New Hanover with 18, Johnston with 16, Orange and Union with 15 each, and Alamance and Rowan with 14 each are other leaders. Counties with ten or more, exclusive of those already named, are Beaufort, Durham, Halifax, Harnett, Iredell, Moore, Nash, Pitt, Rockingham, and Sampson.

New York state leads the out-of-state representation with a total of 36. Virginia displaces South Carolina, which latter state has of late years followed closely behind New York in numbers registered. The Old Dominion has 17 first-year students, while the Palmetto state has 15. Other states represented are Massachusetts, Georgia, Pennsylvania, Mississippi, Maryland, Connecticut, California, Ohio, Illinois, Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, West Virginia and Texas. The District of Columbia, China, and the Canal Zone also have students enrolled.

One hundred seventy-six of the first-year men carry the mark of paternal pride in their names, this number bearing "Jr." after their names. Five others complete their signatures with the Roman "III," while one youngster displays unpardonable satisfaction with preceding generations in his family by the use of the rare "IV" after his name.

In all departments, schools, and the college in the University the total registration for all classes for the fall quarter, according to figures believed to be accurate, is 2,624. This number is considerably in excess of last year's fall registration, but is fewer by seven than the peak registration in 1927.

The Daily Tar Heel

Published daily during the college year except Mondays and except Thanksgiving, Christmas and Spring Holidays.

The official newspaper of the Publications Union of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription price, $2.00 local and $4.00 out of town, for the college year.

Offices in the basement of Alumni Building.

GLENN HOLDER ..... Editor
WILL YARBOROUGH ..... Mgr. Editor
MARION ALEXANDER ..... Bus. Mgr.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
John Mebane Harry Galland

ASSISTANT EDITORS
J. Elwin Dungan J. D. McNairy
Joe Jones B. C. Moore
J. C. Williams

CITY EDITORS
E. F. Yarborough K. C. Ramsay
Elbert Denning Sherman Shore

SPORTS EDITORS
Joe Eagles Crawford McKethan
Henry L. Anderson

REPORTERS
Howard Lee Frank Manheim
Holmes Davis Stowe Moody
Louis Brooks Clyde Deitz
Charles Rose George Sheram
Lawrence Harris Robert Hodges
Mary Price John Lathan
J. P. Tyson B. H. Whitton
Browning Roach Nathan Volkman
Al Lansford George Stone
Joe Carpenter Lawrence Miller
Peggy Lintner Jack Riley
E. C. Daniel T. E. Marshall
W. A. Shulenberger R. T. Martin
G. E. French J. S. Weathers
Stanley Weinberg

Thursday, October 31, 1929

Down With Memorial Hall!

Memorial Hall is undergoing repairs at present, the nature of which we have not been able to ascertain with any degree of exactness. It is rumored that the "architectural monstrosity" has become unsafe and that it may be condemned; the roof is said to have slipped considerably during the past few months.

In our opinion the best thing that could happen to Memorial Hall would be its complete demolition. The auditorium is hideous from an aesthetic standpoint, the acoustics are terrible and the seats are decidedly uncomfortable. In cold weather the structure is never adequately heated; it is difficult to obtain a good view of the stage, since the seats at the rear of the building are no higher than those nearest the speaker's platform.

Not only is Memorial Hall woefully inadequate as an auditorium for the University, but it is highly undesirable from every consideration of beauty and comfort. Seated on the hard wooden benches of the auditorium, even the most appreciative of audiences becomes restless and uncomfortable. It is not strange that Memorial Hall audiences are notoriously prone to move about and even depart from the building during the most excellent of speeches and entertainments. N. C. C. W. has an auditorium so vastly superior in every respect to Memorial Hall that there is no comparison between the two structures, and other institutions in this state have auditoriums immensely superior to that possessed by the University.

The only justification that we can conceive for the continued use of Memorial Hall as the University auditorium is based entirely upon sentiment. Thousands of alumni would oppose razing of the ancient building because of the associations attached to it. But mere sentiment should certainly be subordinated to a desire to see the University secure an auditorium worthy of the name.

Funds for the construction of an auditorium to replace Memorial Hall would be difficult to secure with the University's financies in their present state, it is true. Construction of a new gymnasium here is contemplated, however. Very few upperclassmen use the present gym, and is is extremely doubtful whether freshmen would make any extensive use of it were they not required to do so. In all probability the undergraduates would not make use of a new gym to an appreciably greater extent.

If the funds for the contemplated new gymnasium were diverted to the construction of a new auditorium, we believe that the student body and the general public would profit vastly. Down with Memorial Hall, say we, and replace it with a decent auditorium.

Qui Bono?

The Tar Heel offers belated congratulations to Dr. Louis Round Wilson upon his being elected president of the North Carolina Library Association for the third time.

Over a period of thirty years, most of which have been lean ones financially, this grand old man has never swerved from the ideal he has had for a perfect or nearly perfect library system. Through the years he has worked and worked at the tremendous task of adding book by book to a small thirty thousand volume collection until today he is able to view with pleasure a collection close to a quarter of a million volumes.

With the exception of latter day aid, the doctor has had to depend in quite large measure upon private donations to make possible the steady increase in number of volumes.

Louis Round Wilson has refused a considerable number of offers of increased salary and prestige during this time. He has been a man above price.

We have no doubt about the strength of the present generation. There isn't an iota of despair in our hearts over the morals of our age as compared to those of other generations—but the thought has struck us again and again with sharp insistence during the past few weeks when the library world has been honoring Dr. Wilson that all the great energy of a great man is not sufficient to offset the ravages of certain undergraduate vandals, and after all—Qui bono? We have in mind the practice, that has recently come to view, of marking and tearing first editions which it is the proud privilege of any student to read and protect, and the still more abominable practice of smuggling valuable books both old and new from the tables and stacks of the building.

During the week-end of one of the Grail dances late last spring, we were thunderstruck to see a former Carolina student walk into a fraternity house with sixteen valuable library books dealing with subjects of art, translations of Persian and Japanese poetry, and the history of the drama. In his drunken condition he soon forgot his stolen booty, which fortunately fell into the hands of men who returned them to the library desk where it was discovered that not one of them had been checked out!

A graduate student we know has in his possession three very valuable books "borrowed" from the stacks, which no doubt will some time grace the shelves of someone's private library. Another student says that he paid five dollars apiece for some very valuable books which were "borrowed" by a third person from the stacks.

There is no need to carry this story any farther; it is a practice that is too utterly vicious to be further tolerated. Dr. Wilson builds with painstaking efforts and unthinking students tear down.

Very little can be done by mail. Warnings setting forth the rules regarding future quarters if library regulations are not satisfied mean nothing to students ready to drop out. A stronger check upon those persons who have access to the stacks, and a regular messenger service which will call upon students possessing books of value which are overdue and demand that they be returned would eradicate a growing evil. And this is exactly what we recommend to Dr. Wilson and to the University, if they intend to preserve the very splendid work he has wrought.

—J. E. D.

The University Plane

It is with interest that we note the approaching arrival of the department of aeronautic's first real airplane. Most of us have been rather dubious about the practicality of the aviation course, doubtful as to whether the project could be carried out on a scale large enough to permit ultimate success and continued existence. But now that a program has been launched with the idea of giving students first hand experience with planes, a great obstacle in the way of realization of success has been overcome.

The entry of the airplane into the student life here has a peculiar significance. It not only means that the University has passed another milestone in her march of progress; it means that the University is becoming more cosmopolitan. Aviation, in our opinion, is destined to make of the University not merely a local unit but a cosmopolitan influence. Not even the most speculative of minds can foretell the future potentialities of the aeroplane, the obliterator of time and space. Who knows but what educators in the future will be terming it education's greatest aid in bringing students from everywhere together and in enabling them to study the materials in various places which are not a part of their locality?

Here young Lindberghs will be developed, and aviation will be studied as a science. It is something new for Carolina, and something which requires patience and work for growth. It is to be hoped that the students will not see fit to let this infant, aeronautics, die, but that they will endeavor to make it a permanent feature of university life.

—B. M.

Readers' Opinions

AN INADEQUATE LIGHTING SYSTEM

Editor the Daily Tar Heel:

With the increase of dark mornings and afternoons natural to winter, the inadequacy of the Chapel Hill electric lighting system appears more and more often. Large numbers of students necessarily read during the day and necessarily, from the flickering of lights in all the buildings, are forced to strain their eyes and do permanent damage to them. Such a condition should not exist in a town in which a proportion of students as large as that in Chapel Hill are working. If electricity used during the day is bought from one of the power companies of the state, the company should be brought to task by University officials; if the power is generated on the campus, the proper University officials should be reminded of their failure to provide proper illumination for students' rooms and other places in which study is carried on. Improper lighting is a handicap which, certainly, should not be imposed upon Chapel Hill Modern.

R. M. WALLACE.

IN THE WAKE OF NEWS

J. E. Dungan

The plays produced by the Playmakers last week-end were quite the best that organization has produced since the beginning of our sojourn here. Mrs. Coffin's Magnolia's Man, in particular, is of professional calibre.

Due to the general hue and cry raised around my head by the publishing of a list of candidates for the feminine popularity title of the campus, the author of this column suggests that a Greater Carolina Beauty and Personality Contest be sponsored by the Grail for the purpose of selecting a campus queen to reign over a final varsity ball given by the German club, ushering out the social year just prior to commencement. The Sheiks, Minotaurs and Thirteen club could well serve as judges.

If we thought we wouldn't be accused of impropriety, we might mention the fact that Charles Randolph, aged 26, of Greenwich, Conn., surrounded by evidences of an all night drinking party was found burned to death in a hotel room in New York City last week, and that from all evidences it appears that he must have been having a "hot-time."

"Cy Edson, the witty editor of the Buccaneer, wanting to play a little joke on the other editors and literary lites of the campus, who attended a dinner tendered them by Archibald Henderson, planned to appear in full dress, but gave up the scheme as being too embarrassing to the rest of the gentlemen attending the dinner.

L. W. Midgett of Elizabeth City liked the Buccaneer but inquires as to what is meant by "private intentions."

Harry Finch, handsome sheik, together with his leather-lunged confreres, is just about convinced that Allah is not only Almighty, but that he is a damned nuisance, on account of having worn out several pairs of trouser knees in his service.

Now that Tom Lawrence has quitted Episcopal high in Virginia to play on the Chapel Hill high school grid team we suppose that the Carnegie Foundation will send a junket here to find what salary he is being paid.

The D. K. E.'s look like a good bet in the intramural tag football contest, and Haywood Dail Holderness of Tarboro predicts that the D. K. E.'s and the University of Tennessee will go through the current season without a single defeat.

With the addition of Pledge Cate of Greensboro it looks like the Sigma Chi's have set a record for the current year in the matter of pledging.

Bill Horney who spent all the day of the Georgia game in search of some one who would bet forty dollars with him on the game has been treating all his acquaintances this past week with the money he "earned" by his failure to place a bet.

Incidentally, Coach Collins is reputed to have enlarged a rich vocabulary in addressing the team the first practice after the late lamented Georgia unpleasantness.

Morris Xrasuy hailing from Newark, N. J., claims the distinction of being the only person whose last name begins with the letter X. And we defy you to pronounce K. L. Kjellesnig's name correctly the first time.

REMINISCENCES

From the Tar Heel Files

(By Howard M. Lee)

Twenty-five Years Ago This Week

—the faculty of the University numbered 67 and the students numbered 620.

—Carolina defeated V. P. I. in a football game 6-0.

—John W. Lisk, a member of the freshman class, died in the infirmary from typhoid fever.

Ten Years Ago This Week

—the Board of Trustees voted for the immediate construction of two new dormitories.

—the Carolina business school opened for the first time. This school was limited to thirty students.

—the students were making an appeal to the University for a modern laundry.

—thirty-three Carolina alumni received license to practice law in North Carolina.

—three new buildings were nearing completion. These buildings were: Phillips hall, post-office, and the Presbyterian church.

Five Years Ago This Week

—the freshman football team licked the University of South Carolina Biddies 19-7.

—the University of Maryland defeated Carolina 6-0 in football on Emerson field.

—a committee had been appointed to prepare a report on the plans and requirements for a new library building to be located behind South building and just beyond Murphy hall. The Tar Heel says: "However, this is merely a preparatory step and it will probably be several years before the new building will be erected."

—Dean Edwin Greenlaw attended the 26th annual conference of the Association of American Universities at Minneapolis.

Hallowe'en Dance In Durham Tonight

The big Hallowe'en dance, at which Jack Wardlaw is to play at Roycroft's warehouse in Durham, is scheduled for tonight, beginning at 9 and lasting until 2 o'clock.

The dance was incorrectly advertised in yesterday's Daily Tar Heel as being Wednesday night when the date was supposed to be Thursday night.

The Durham affair is the only script dance in the locality tonight, and is expected to draw a record throng of festive merry-makers. The Roycroft's floor is a large one, and script has been held to one dollar.

Special!
CAROLINA BELTS
Latest Style
Students' Supply Store
"Everything in Stationery"

CAROLINA THEATRE
TODAY
AL JOLSON
DAVEY LEE
in
"SAY IT WITH SONGS"
Added
Paramount Sound News
Audio Review
FRIDAY
GEORGE O'BRIEN
in
"SALUTE"

What a Difference Breakfast at Gooch's

If you think breakfast is the same old thing every morning, try Gooch's for a month. What a difference there is! What a variety of delightful appetizing foods to choose from. And you eat at any hour you please. Before your first class or after it.

Come down today and try Gooch's new breakfast delight—Bran Waffles. Also Raisin, Pecan, Bacon and Cream Waffles. Hot Cakes with Maple Syrup. Dry Buttered or French Toast. Cereals galore. And Coffee—what coffee! You eat just as much or as little as you want at Gooch's.

Begin this morning and try Gooch's for a month. You'll never be late at Gooch's and you'll never pay for meals you miss. Dine with the "gang" and enjoy every meal at Gooch's.

A "TRIPLE THREAT" FEEDING ORGANIZATION

QUALITY—SERVICE
GOOCH'S CAFE
SINCE 1903

Governor Gardner To Face Football Dilemma Saturday

Fans Speculate Whether He Will Root For Tar Heels Or Wolfpack When Teams Clash.

Governor O. Max Gardner finds himself in a football dilemma this week.

North Carolina and N. C. State are to hold their 22nd grid meeting in Kenan stadium Saturday afternoon.

Now it happens that Max is an alumnus and a former football star of both institutions. Both have strings on this prominent son.

The Governor will once more be torn between two loyalties. Will he support the Tar Heels or the Wolfpack?

That is indeed a dilemma, for the Carolina-State rivalry is just about as old as football at the two institutions and as intense as such rivalry might be expected to be.

The state's first citizen will undoubtedly be in great demand as a rooter and moral supporter.

Max went to State first and starred at guard and tackle on the old "A. and M." elevens for several seasons, winding up as captain.

Max was graduated from State in the spring of 1905 and entered the University Law school that fall.

He could not resist the call of the gridiron and soon was performing wonders for the Tar Heels. Players, be it understood, could do those things in the "good old days."

The files of the Tar Heel carry extracts from a speech which the former State college captain made at a Tar Heel pep meeting that season.

Gardner told the students that he was at the University to study law first and not solely to play football, but he also told them that he had played his time out for State and would be giving everything he had to win for Carolina.

The Tar Heels beat Davidson, Georgetown, V. M. I. and Virginia that season, but lost to such strong teams as Pennsylvania, Navy and V. P. I.

The annual Carolina-State game was a 0 to 0 tie. Governor Gardner played much that season, but the line-up listed in the Tar Heel for that day shows that he did not play against his old teammates. It was the last game between the two rivals until after the World War, as relations were severed for a period of 14 years.

And now Wolf and Tar Heel clash again in an old football feud. Which side will the Governor root for?

Lufty Breaks Ankle

An x-ray examination of the leg of Nap Lufty, captain of the 1928 baseball team, who injured the member late Tuesday afternoon on the intramural field, made Wednesday, disclosed that the right ankle was broken.

Lufty and a group of friends were passing and kicking a football between them when he stepped into a hole on the side of the field, twisting his ankle. Trainer Chuck Quinlan was called and ordered the leg bandaged up.

The first baseman will be forced to hobble along with the aid of crutches for another week and will not be able to attend fall practice. He has one more year with the Carolina baseball team.

Track Notice

Coach Dale Ranson announced yesterday that the novice track meet for this afternoon has been postponed until next Thursday afternoon because of inclement weather.

LEADS

Picked Up Here and There

by

Will Yarborough

BUCKEYES WERE OVERCONFIDENT, WILLAMAN SAYS

Columbus, O.—"We were surrounded by the wrong atmosphere all week, but, under the existing conditions, the team did its best," was all Coach Sam Willaman said today regarding the 0-0 tie which his Buckeyes fought with Indiana on the gridiron here Saturday.

"The players did not fight as hard as they should have, even though they thought they did," Willaman said. "We'll be ready for Pittsburgh, though, and we all know it will be a tough game."

In our first column we mentioned very briefly that the Carolina coaches feared overconfidence among the football players here as a result of the somewhat large margin of victory over V. P. I. We also said that in view of the fact that V. P. I. evidently was not playing the same type of football it played against Penn, that Carolina was clicking, and that the Tar Heels were out to win, there was no room for overconfidence now.

A review of last year's game with State shows what overconfidence did to Carolina. A team, easily three touchdowns better, barely managed to tie State. State is even weaker now, or rather the second team which is reputed to have played most of the game against Michigan State, is weaker. Carolina on the other hand is stronger. Nothing should prevent a victory. This year's scores show that Carolina is much stronger. The records of past years show that State, especially since Gus Tebell became head coach, never respected the strength of Carolina greatly. Carolina may trot a "hundred backs" on the field, but State would not be awed. They would merely be inspired to greater football.

* * *

What's become of some of the stars of several years back is often asked. The "leads" of several professional football stories accounts for three of them.

"Stapleton, with Ken Strong and six other former New York University stars in its line-up, went down to a 3 to 0 defeat in a bitterly fought National Football League game at Stapleton, S. I., yesterday before a crowd of 10,000.

"Red Grange, movie actor and once a famous gridiron performer, returned to his role of cavorting about a football field yesterday afternoon at Wrigley field where the Chicago Bears humbled the Minneapolis Red Jackets in a National Professional league game, 27 to 0. The noted Red Head threw his hips through the opposition, tossed passes, leaped into the air to snag 'em, squirmed and romped all over the field while his mates were stopping Herb Joesting, former Minnesota star, and full back for the Red Jackets."

" . . . . Packers won, 7 to 6, Ernie Nevers' place kick for the extra point after touchdown going wide."

But the newspapers no longer carry bold black streamers telling of their exploits. Although in a Monday paper the accounts were given the same amount of publicity a North Carolina paper gives horse racing. Albie and Alton still held the top lines. A lot of glory is left behind when an athlete stops playing for "dear old alma mater," or whatever the Carnegie Survey Report designates the power which causes a player to play inspired football.

At the commencement exercises in 1869 it is stated that there were 28 people in the audience.

The faculty of the University in 1902 numbered 64; there were 575 students.

CAROLINA LEADS IN TEAM SCORES

Tar Heels Top Big Five Elevens; Individual Honors Go To Williams Of Elon.

Leadership in team scoring this fall is held by the Tar Heels who are almost without competition among the members of the Big Five. Neither State, Duke, Wake Forest nor Davidson has been able to present a strong scoring combination. Second place in team totals goes to Elon with a total of only 92 points as compared to the 159 run up by Carolina. Wake Forest holds third place with less than half the number of touchdowns scored by the Collins machine. Duke and State have been unable to score with any consistency. The Blue Devils have pushed across only eight touchdowns and State three.

Individual scoring honors in the North Carolina circles go to Pete Williams of Elon who has five touchdowns and five extra points to his credit. He holds his position however only because he has added more extra points than Magner and Ward of the Tar Heels. Each of these has scored five touchdowns but lacks the extra points. Magner has two to run his total up to 32 and cinch the second position. Spaulding and Branch of Carolina are also among the leading scorers. Sam Buie leads the Duke team with fifteen points. McCall and King lead the Davidson outfit with two touchdowns each. State's three scores are scattered between that many players.

Thad Brock, Davidson captain, leads in extra point making, having kicked seven out of eight attempts.

In their 25 attempts to add the point after touchdown the Tar Heels have failed 16 and succeeded in nine, one of those coming as the result of the opposing team's being off-side on the play.

	T	EP	T
Carolina	25	9	159
Elon	14	8	92
Wake Forest	12	4	76
Guilford	11	3	69
Davidson	8	7	55
Duke	8	3	51
Catawba	3	2	20
xState	3	0	20
Lenoir-Rhyne	13	1	19
xHigh Point	2	1	15
Totals	90	38	582

x Have registered safeties against opponents.

CAROLINA THEATRE
DURHAM, N. C.

1 Nite—November 5th

Seats go on sale at the Carolina Theatre, Durham, N. C. Friday

Prices: $2.00, $2.50, $3.00

VARSITY SHOWS POWER AGAINST FRESHMAN TEAM

Backs Look Good In Scrimmage Against Yearlings; Injured Veterans Back In Uniform.

Taking advantage of leaden skies and a heavy field, Coach Chuck Collins Wednesday ordered long scrimmage sessions for every able member of the squad. Opposition for the varsity teams was furnished by two freshman combinations.

Running behind the first string line, Johnny Branch, Strud Nash and Rip Slusser cut loose for long runs, scoring several times. Another backfield proved just as effective against the Tar Baby opposition. Jimmy Maus, Strud Nash, Pete Wyrick and Yank Spaulding composed the second quartet.

Bud Eskew and Bill Koenig, injured guard and tackle, respectively, worked today. The pair, however, were not back at their old positions with the first string line, being replaced by Ellis Fysal and George Thompson. In all probability Coach Collins intends starting his reserves in these positions to spare the veterans for another week.

A session at dummy practice against the Wolfpack plays concluded the afternoon workout.

Lutheran Students Will Have Social

The Lutheran student association will have a Hallowe'en social in the social parlors of the Methodist church on Friday, November 1, at 7:30 p. m. All Lutheran students are cordially invited to be present and bring a friend.

Intramural Games

Due to wet grounds no intramural games were played yesterday. The schedule of games for today follows:

3:30—Pi Kappa Alpha vs. Sigma Chi.
Sigma Phi Sigma vs. Delta Kappa Epsilon.
Field given over to varsity baseball squad.

4:30—Theta Chi vs. Chi Psi.
Grimes vs. "J."
Phi Delta Theta vs. Kappa Psi.

The first bell for prayers should ring 20 minutes before sunrise according to an agreement by the faculty of 1868.

At the age of 12, Isaac Newton stood near the bottom of his class in school.

Read Tar Heel Advertisements

Heals Athletic Supporter Irritation

College athletes and others who are bothered with unpleasant and painful irritation and itch caused by wearing athletic supporters, will find GONICH gives quick relief.

GONICH is widely recommended by physicians for skin affections. Good for ringworm, foot itch, eczema and similar skin trouble. Keep a package handy. On sale at:

Patterson's Drug Store
Eubanks' Drug Store
Andrews-Henninger

GONICH

Wet or Dry

A U-DRIVE IT'S BEST

Nothing is so pleasant as motoring on a pretty fall day and nothing is more necessary than an auto when it's raining. Let a U-DRIVE-IT solve your motoring problems.

The coming week-end—The State game—a bunch of dances—Enjoy them to the fullest extent by reserving a U-DRIVE-IT now.

Carolina U Drive It

Phones: Day, 3861 — Night, 5706

The New

Fall Styles and Patterns Featuring Stetson "D" and the famous Biltmore Homespuns.

and

The Old

Fine Workmanship and Quality Built into every Garment.

Suits and Topcoats

Tailored to Your Individual Taste

$29.50 and more

Stetson

Motion To Outlaw Bumming Defeated By Phi Assembly

Despite the general tendency ward disturbance and upeaval when the lights go out, e Phi assembly in its regular ession last Tuesday night retained perfect order after such an occurrence took place. Just as the vote was to be taken on a bill, the lights, for some unknown reason, suddenly went out, leaving the hall in darkness. The motion was made for adjournment, but the speaker reminded the house that for one hundred thirty-five years no meeting of the Phi assembly had been seriously disturbed or discontinued. After this information the pending motion was tabled until an accurate vote could be taken, and the next resolution was read.

The bill that was at that time before the house, later to be defeated, was: Resolved, That the neral Assembly of North Carna make bumming a misdeeanor. Representative Hobod in introducing this bill explained that the term "bumming" had reference only to the ollegiate custom of standing on the roadside and signaling the autoist for rides to distant towns. In defense of this measure Representative Hobgood pointed out that the willingness on the part of the autoist to accommodate the traveler often resulted in a crowded car, thereby decreasing the efficiency on the part of the driver in bringing his car safely through traffic jams and other situations requiring complete control of his machine. His second point was that the ease with which a free ride may be obtained leads to and promotes a fulfilment of the roaming desire so prevalent among college students. He further criticized bumming on the grounds that it creates a desire and expectation of something for nothing. It was also held that the motorist is responsible for the safety of the persons taken in his auto. Several cases were cited in which insurance companies and individuals were forced to recompense injuries sustained by the student while riding in the stranger's car. Attention was also called by Hobgood to the fact that others than college students had resorted to bumming as a means of defraying traveling expenses.

In opposition to this bill, it as pointed out that the public under no obligation to accomodate the student with a ride, and that when one does so it is taken for granted that he either desires company or has no feeling of detest for the person bumming.

The second bill—Resolved, That the Phi Assembly go on record as favoring subsidized athletics—was likewise defeated. It suffered defeat on the grounds that subsidized athletics means professional football for all colleges, thereby greatly reducing the long established school spirit so readily shown at football games.

A report from the committee appointed to confer with the Di Senate as to the time and query of the annual Mary D. Wright debate reported that the query would be: Resolved, That the moot-Hawley tariff revenue bill ow pending before the present pecial session of the seventyirst congress should be passed.

STATE COLLEGE FRATS PLEDGE 152 FRESHMEN

North Carolina State college Greek letter fraternities pledged 152 freshmen at the end of the rush season there. Twenty more first-year men accepted invitations to affiliate themselves with societies this year than in previous history.

Where? — In Tar Heel Ads.

Recital To Be Held In Church Saturday

The dramatic recital of Shakespeare's King Richard The Third, by Henry Lawrence Southwick, which has been announced for next Saturday night at 8:30 in Memorial hall, will be held instead at the same hour in the auditorium of the Methodist church. This change is necessary due to the fact that repairs are being made on Memorial hall.

Mr. Southwick, who is president of Emerson college of oratory in Boston, has won wide fame on the lyceum platform, particularly as an interpreter of Shakespeare.

He comes to the University under the auspices of the Carolina Playmakers. This is the second number on the regular season program of the Playmakers.

